

TOPOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY

OF

GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND,

COMPILED

FROM LOCAL INFORMATION, AND THE MOST RECENT AND OFFICIAL AUTHORITIES.

BY JOHN GORTON,

EDITOR OF THE GENERAL BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY.

THE IRISH AND WELSH ARTICLES

BY G. N. WRIGHT, M.A.

PROFESSOR OF ANTIQUITIES TO THE ROYAL HIBERNIAN ACADEMY.

DRAWN AND ENGRAVED BY SIDNEY HALL.

IN THREE VOLUMES.

VOL. II.

LONDON:

CHAPMAN AND HALL, 186, STRAND.

1833

A NEW AND COMPREHENSIVE TOPOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY.

F.

F A E

FACCOMBE, co. Southampton.

P. T. Andover (63) 11 m. N b E. Pop. 305.

A parish in the hundred of Pastrow, Kingsclere division; living, a rectory with that of Tangle, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 26*l.* 2*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) David Lance, Esq.

FACEBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Stokesley (237) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. SW b S. Pop. 178.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Whorlton and west division of the liberty of Langbaugh; living, a curacy with that of Carleton, in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; certified value 19*l.* 5*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 36*l.* 16*s.*; patron, the Curate of Carleton.

FADDILEY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Nantwich (164) 5 m. W b N. Pop. 201.

A township in the parish of Acton and hundred of Nantwich.

FADMOOR, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Helmesley (222) 6 m. NE. Pop. 162.

A township in the parish of Kirkby-Moor-side and wapentake of Rydale.

FAENOR, or VAINOR, or FAENOR WEN, co. Brecknock, S. W.

P. T. Brecon (171) nE. Pop. 2010.

A parish in the hundred of Pen-Celli, situated upon the Lesser Faf river. It includes the hamlets of Coed-y-Cumar, Dyffryn, and Gelli, the inhabitants of which find employment in the iron-works of Merthyr. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 123*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.* The advowson was in the lords of Brecon, prior to the Reformation, but upon the attainder of the Duke of Buckingham, in the reign of Henry VIII., it reverted to the Crown.

F A I

Amongst the curiosities which are spread over the parish, may be mentioned the various Carneddau, the wooden bridge, called Pont Sarn, the cave of the Dry Ford, Ogof Rhyd Sych, and the Craig Vawr and Pen Mael Allt rocks. There is a mineral spring here upon a farm called Nant Gwyn.

FAGAN, ST., co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Cardiff (160) 4 m. N. W. Pop. 510.

A parish in the hundred of Dinas Powys, on the banks of the river Elay; living, a rectory with the chapel of Llan-illtwn, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; valued at 400*l.* per annum; patron, the Earl of Plymouth. Area of rectory 2300 acres, and of the chapelry 1000 acres. It possesses a church, parsonage, and seventy-four acres of glebe. The vicinity abounds in coal and lime.

FAHY, or FAHEY, co. Galway, Connaught, I.

P. T. Egremont (89) $\frac{3}{4}$ m. SW. Pop. 727.

A parish in the barony of Longford, situated upon the river Shannon; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Clonfert and archdiocese of Tuam; producing, by commutation for tithes, 74*l.* 10*s.*; being one of seven parishes which constitute the union of Donanaughta. A house for Grey Friars was erected here in the year 1390, by Fallig, an Irishman.

FAILSWORTH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 4 m. NE b E. Pop. 3353.

A township in the parish of Manchester and hundred of Salford.

FAIRA, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

One of the Shetland islands, lying about midway between the Shetland and Orkney islands, twenty-five miles south by west from the nearest point of Dunrossness, of which parish it forms a part, and with which the population is included. It is three miles in length, two in breadth, and being surrounded with high precipitous rocks, is inaccessible on every side, except at a small creek on the east, where there is security for small vessels belonging to the fishermen. The soil is fertile, but is principally appropriated to pasture for sheep, noted for the superior quality of their wool. This is a resort of the Skud-Gull, and here may still be seen the remains of the humble hut occupied by the Duke of Medina Celi after the wreck of the flag-ship of the Spanish Armada on this island, in 1588.

FAIRBURN, W. R. co. York.

- P. T. Ferry Bridge (177) 2½ m. NNW. Pop. 426.

A township in the parish of Ledsham and upper division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash, situated on the north bank of the Aire, and abounds with lime-stone.

FAIRCROSS, co. Berks.

Pop. 9925.

A hundred, nearly in the centre of the county to the north of Newbury, containing sixteen parishes.

FAIRFIELD, co. Derby.

P. T. Buxton (160) 1 m. E b N. Pop. 482.

• A township and chapelry in the parish of Hope and hundred of High Peak; living, a curacy and a peculiar, exempt from visitation; certified value 10*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 74*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Peter; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield.

FAIRFIELD, co. Kent.

- P. T. New Romney (63) 6 m. WNW. Pop. 86.

A parish in the hundred of Alocsbridge, lathe of Shepway; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; certified value 50*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 50*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Thomas-à-Becket; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury.

FAIRFIELD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 4 m. E. Pop. with Droysden Township.

A hamlet in the parish of Manchester and hundred of Salford, in which the cotton-manufacture is carried on to a very great extent. Here is a settlement of the Moravians, established about the year 1775, and so considerable as to form a village in itself; they have a commodious chapel, provided with an excellent organ.

FAIRFIELD, co. Somerset.

P. T. Bridgewater (139) 7 m. NW. Pop. with Stogursey.

A hamlet in the parish of Stoke Courcy and hundred of Williton and Freemanners, surrounded by very delightful scenery. The mansion-house is a fine large structure, which was rebuilt in the sixteenth century, the original having been then demolished. Here was formerly a handsome chapel, founded in the reign of Edward I., but no traces of its site are discoverable, it is supposed to have been demolished at the same period as the old mansion-house.

FAIRFIELD HEAD, co. Stafford.

P. T. Ashbourne (139) 5 m. NW. Pop. 1125.

A township in the parish of Allstonefield and north division of the hundred of Totmonslow.

FAIRFORD, co. Gloucester.

- London 80 m. W b N. Pop. 1547. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, May 14; and Nov. 12, for cattle and sheep.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Brightwell's Barrow, seated at the foot of the Cotswold Hills, near the river Colne, over which it has two neat stone bridges. The town consists of two streets, neatly and regularly built; the inhabitants are for the most part employed in the cloth-mills, this being the very centre of a large clothing district. The charter for the market was obtained in 1668; but the attendants are now very few in number. At about three miles distance from hence, the grand canal, which unites the Sever to the Thames. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 11*s.* 5½*d.*; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Gloucester; the church, ded. to St. Mary, is a fine Gothic structure, with a handsome tower, and is remarkable for its fine painted windows, twenty-eight in number, the subjects which are chiefly scriptural. John Tame, a merchant of London, having taken a prize-ship, bound from a Flemish port to Rome, discovered it to contain a collection of beautifully painted glass, and determined to build a church for its reception; having purchased this manor of Henry VII., he immediately carried his determination into effect. In this church are many monuments; one to the founder, who died in 1500, with his effigy in white marble, and several to other branches of the same family. Fairfield has a handsome free-school endowed for sixty boys, with many other charitable institutions. Here was formerly a manorial residence erected by the Earls of Warwick, called Beauchamp and Warwick Court; this was pulled down many years ago, and the present manor-house erected with the materials; in sinking the foundations several Roman coins and urns were discovered. This seat is situated in a pleasant park, surrounded by fine plantations and diversified scenery.

FAIRHAUGH, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Rothbury (303) 13 m. NNW. Pop. 8.

A township in the parish of Allenton and west division of Coquetdale ward, on the Useway-burn.

FAIRHEAD, co. Antrim, Ulster, I.

Lat. 55. 44 N. Lon. 6. 2 W.

A promontory in the barony of Carey, and the most north-east point of Ireland. Its general appellation is Bengore, or the Green Head, and it has been confounded by the ingenious Dr. Hamilton with Malin Head, the Robagnium of Ptolemy. The height of this great cliff above the sea is 535 feet. It is composed of columnar greenstone, of colossal dimensions. The front consists of an inclined plane ascending from the sea, strewn with enormous masses of rock, exhibiting a wild and chaotic appearance; from which rises a mural precipice of columnar greenstone, 250 feet in height. The ruinous scene displayed at the base of these gigantic columns, is unequalled by any thing of a similar kind in Europe. Here basaltic debris, exhibiting incipient columnarization, may be seen, whose weights are estimated at 5000 tons each. There is a singular and narrow pass between the basaltic pillars of the perpendicular cliff, called Fhirl-leith, or the Grey Man's Path, the descent of which is considered a courageous exploit, and only attempted by the boldest and most active persons.

FAIRFAX, co. Southampton.

• P. T. Newport (89) 3 m. S.E. Pop. with Pa. A hamlet, partly in the parish of Arretton and partly in the parish of Whippingham, in the hundred of East Medina liberty, Isle of Wight, seated on the east side of the Medina river. About a mile hence are the East and West Mills, two extensive piles, said to be capable of grinding forty loads of corn weekly; large quantities of biscuits are also made here for the navy.

FAIRLEY, shire of Ayr, S.

P. T. Largs (79½) 2½ m. Pop. with Pa. A village in the parish of Largs and district of Cunninghame, situated on the eastern coast of the Firth of Clyde, and having a roadstead, where vessels of any burden may find safe anchorage. Here are the ruins of a castle, formerly the residence of the ancient family of Fairley.

FAIRLIGHT, or FAIRLEIGH, co. Sussex.

P. T. Hastings (64) 2½ m. ENE. Pop. 477. A parish in the hundred of Guestling, rape of Hastings; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 6l. 9s. 2d.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) the Rev. — Pierce.

FAIRNIE, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Cupar of Fife (30) 2 m. W b N. Pop. with Pa.

A small village in the parish of Monimail and district of Cupar.

FAIRSTEAD, co. Essex.

P. T. Witham (35) 4 m. WNW. Pop. 263. A parish of Witham; living, a rectory in archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 6l. 13s. 4d.; patron, the Bishop of London. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a small building, with a neat stone tower.

FAITH, ST. co. Southampton.

P. T. Winchester (62) m. adjacent. Pop. with the Hospital of St. Cross, 272.

A parish in the soke of Winchester, Fawley division; living, a rectory annexed to the Hospital of St. Cross, and a peculiar in the diocese of Winchester, not in charge; patron, the Bishop of Winchester.

FAITHBEG, or FAITHLEG, or FAITHLEAG, co. Waterford, Munster, I.

P. T. Passage, East (102) ½ m. NW. • Pop. 799. Fairs, May and June 20; Aug. 14; and Oct. 10.

A parish in the barony of Gaultier, situated upon Waterford Harbour, and occupying the most favourable site in the kingdom for the establishment of a commercial town; living, an entire rectory in the diocese of Waterford and archdiocese of Cashel; producing, by commutation for tithes, 140l.; and united to the parish of Kill St. Nicholas; patron, the King. The prospect from the hill of Faithleg is one of the most extensive and beautiful in Ireland.

FAKENHAM, GREAT, co. Suffolk. •

P. T. Thetford (80) 5 m. SSE. Pop. 214.

A parish in the hundred of Blackbourn; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 11l. 10s. 5d.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Duke of Grafton.

FAKENHAM, LITTLE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Thetford (89) 4½ m. SSE. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Euston and hundred of Blackbourn; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; patronage with Barnham rectory. It is a sinecure, the church having fallen to decay.

FAKENHAM LANCASTER, co. Norfolk.

London 169 m. NNE. Pop. 1635. M. D. Thurs., for corn. Fair, Whit. Tues.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Gallow, seated on the slope of a hill, near the river Yar. The market held here is one of the largest in the county for corn, and is attended by the merchants from Wells and other contiguous ports. Here is an ancient market-cross. Some salt-pits were formerly worked in this parish, which is rather remarkable, as it is seven miles distant from the sea. The greater portion of the inhabitants are engaged in trade. This town suffered considerably from fire in 1789. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 35l. 8s. 8d.; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge. The church, dedicated to St. Peter, is a large and handsome building, with a tower, containing a fine peal of eight bells. On a neighbouring hill is kept the sheriffs' term and court for the whole county. The quarter-sessions for this part of the county were formerly held at this town and at Walsingham, alternately; but since the turn of this place has been removed to Holt, the sessions-house has been appropriated to the use of a school.

F A L

FALA, shire of, Edinburgh, S.

P. T. Dalkeith (6) 8½ m. S.E. Pop. 405.

A parish and village, the former mostly in the above shire, but partly in that of Haddington, and united in 1600 to the ancient parish of Soutra. It is four miles in length and three in breadth, with a tolerably level and well-cultivated surface, interrupted only by Soutra Hill, Fala Muir, and a piece of water, surrounded by marshes, termed the Floa, on which account it is subject to heavy fogs. The living is in the presbytery of Dalkeith and synod of Lothian and Tweeddale; patrons, the City of Edinburgh and Sir John Dalrymple, Bart., alternately. The London and Edinburgh road passes through the village.

FALCUTT, co. Northampton.

P. T. Brackley (63) 4 m. N b E.
Pop. with Astwell Hamlet.

A hamlet in the parish of Wapenham and hundred of King's Sutton.

FALDINGWORTH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Market Raisin (148) ½ m. S.W.
Pop. 276.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Laues, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 15l. 18s. 1½d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Earl Brownlow.

FALFIELD, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Thornbury (120) 4 m. NNE.
Pop. with Moorton 814.

A tithing and chapelry in the parish of Thornbury and lower division of the hundred of Thornbury; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Thornbury, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester, not in charge; patronage with Thornbury vicarage.

FALKINGHAM, or FOLKINGHAM, co. Lincoln.

London 106 m. N b W. Pop. 759. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, Ash-Wed.; Palm-Mond. for horses and sheep; May 13, for ditto, and tradesmen's goods; June 16, horses and horned cattle; July 3 and 4, hemp, hardware, and beacons; Thurs. after Old Michaelmas, Nov. 10 and 22, for horses, horned cattle, and tradesmen's goods.

A small market-town and parish in the wapentake of Aveland, parts of Kesteven, pleasantly situated on the side and summit of a hill, commanding extensive prospects over the fens. Its castle is now used as the house of correction for the parts of Kesteven, and in which also are held the quarter-sessions. The living is a rectory with the vicarage of Loughton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 21l. 12s. 3½d.; patron (1829) R. Arkwright, Esq. The church, dedicated to St. Andrew, is well built, and has a handsome lofty tower, crowned with eight pinnacles. To the south-east of the town is a large encampment, with a deep foss and lofty vallum. Within the area is a square keep of raised earth defended also by a foss, capable of being filled with water from the adjoining brook. In the neighbourhood are the remains of the ancient house of Lord Clinton, Queen Elizabeth's admiral, where he lived in the greatest splendour.

F A L

FALKINHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Ipswich (69) 8½ m. S.E. b E. Pop. 285.

A parish in the hundred of Colneis; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7l. 11s. 3d.; church ded. to St. Ethelbert; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FALKIRK, shire of Stirling, S.

Edinburgh 21 m. W b N. Stirling 12 m. S b E. Pop. 11,536. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, last Thurs. in Jan.; 1st Thurs. in March and Nov.; 3d Thurs. in May and Aug.; 2d Thurs. in June and July; Trysts for Highland cattle, 2d Tues. in Aug., Sept., and Oct.

A considerable market, post-town and parish, the former of which is pleasantly seated on a commanding elevation. It consists of several good streets, the principal one being three quarters of a mile long, and containing many commodious houses and shops. In the centre of the town is a spacious area, where the markets and trysts are held, the latter of which may be deemed the largest for the sale of cattle, horses, and sheep, of any in Scotland. Facing the market-place, is an elegant and commodious new church, with a fine steeple, rising to the height of 130 feet; the dimensions of the ancient structure, which is cruciform, being insufficient to contain the increased population. The suburbs are very extensive, and comprise the town and port of Grangemouth, with the villages of Briansford, Camelon, Grahamston, and Laurieston. Falkirk was formerly a burgh of regality, subject to the Earl of Linlithgow and Callander, who exercised authority in criminal, as well as in civil cases, previously to the abolition of hereditary jurisdictions. It is now governed by a baron-baillie, appointed by the lord of the manor. Here are a grammar-school and an English school, both in high repute, with good salaries annexed. There are large tar-works in the vicinity. The parish is nearly seven miles in length, by about four in breadth, and is bounded on the north by the river Carron, which gives name to the celebrated iron-works adjacent to the level and fertile tract, termed the Carse of Falkirk; but the chief boast of the parish consists in the improvements recently made by that astonishing work of art, the great canal, uniting the German and Atlantic Oceans, having been cut across its limits. The surface is mostly enclosed, and in some parts richly diversified with woods, and adorned with genteel mansions. This has been the scene of various military exploits, the last of which was a victory gained by the Pretender, in 1746, over the royal army. Of antiquities, the most noted is the Roman wall, known by the name of Graham's Dyke, on the history of which much light has been shed, by inscriptions found here. Many stone coffins and sepulchral urns also have been met with in its track through this parish.

FALKLAND, shire of Fife, S.

Edinburgh 20 m. N. Cupar 10 m. W. Pop. 2450. Fairs, 2d Thurs. O.S. in Jan.; last Thurs., O. S. in Feb. and April; 3d Thurs., O. S., and June 26; 1st Thurs. after Aug. 12; 4th Thurs. in Sept.; and Nov. 1.

A market, post-town and parish in the district of Cupar, celebrated as having been once a residence of the Macduffs, Earls of Fife, and afterwards of the kings of Scotland. James V. and VI. made it their favourite resort, and the former added greatly to the magnificence of the palace, of which there are still sufficient remains to give an idea of the taste and splendour of its architecture. The town, including the suburb of Ballinbrae, is neat, though irregularly built, the principal street containing a good modern market-house, with a steeple and clock, where are held the markets, which are abundantly supplied with provisions, &c. There is also a plentiful supply of excellent water, introduced by leaden pipes, laid down in 1781. The inhabitants are mostly occupied in the manufacture of coarse linens and Osnaburghs, the chief trade of the place, which was anciently called Killgour, and was raised to be a burgh of regality by James II., in 1458, and confirmed as such by James VI. It is governed by three baillies, fifteen councillors (from whom a treasurer is selected), and a town-clerk, who are self-elected, and whose revenue, arising principally from the tolls of the market and fairs, is about 100*l*. per annum. The parish comprises 10,000 acres, nearly half being appropriated to pasture, and the rest to tillage. It contains also the villages of Frenchie and Newton, and abounds with quarries of good freestone and muirstone. The living is in the presbytery of Cupar and synod of Fife; patron, Thomson of Balniel. Falkland gives the title of Viscount to the ancient family of Carey.

FALLOWDON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alawick (309) 7 m. NNE. Pop. 112.

A township in the parish of Embleton and south division of Bamfrough ward. It is now the property of the Hon. Henry George Grey, brother to the present Earl Grey, and is subject to a rent-charge of 5*l*. per annum, for the education of poor children.

FALLOWFIELD, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (278) 3 m. N b E. Pop. 93.

A township in the parish of St. John Lee and south division of Tindale ward. Here is a rich vein of lead-ore, belonging to Sir Edward Blackett. In this township is a long range of rocks, one of which, called Written Cragg, is inscribed, in deep and legible letters, "Petra Flavi Carantini," the crag of Flavius Carantinus; but no historical inference can be drawn from it.

FALLOWLEES, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Rothbury (303) 5½ m. SSW. Pop. 3.

A township in the parish of Rothbury and west division of Coquetdale ward.

FALLYBROOM, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Macclesfield (107) 3 m. Pop. 31.

A township in the parish of Presbury and hundred of Macclesfield.

FALMER, co. Sussex.

P. T. Lewes (50) 4 m. WSW. Pop. 437.

A parish in the hundred of Younsmere, rape of Lewes; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 6*l*. 10*s*. 10*d*.; patron (1829) the Earl of Chichester.

FALMOUTH, co. Cornwall.

London 260 m. WSW. Launceston 60 m. SW. Lat. 50. 8 N. Long. 5. 3 W. Pop. 6374. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, Aug. 7; and Oct. 10, for cattle.

A market and sea-port town, having separate jurisdiction, locally situated in the hundred of Kerrier. This town is seated at the bottom of an eminence commanding the harbour, at the mouth of the river Fal, near the English Channel; the houses are principally arranged in one street, which extends along the beach for nearly a mile. The quay here is very convenient, as the water is of sufficient depth to admit vessels of large burden to land their goods upon the wharf. The harbour is very capacious, and affords excellent security for ships, being well screened by the surrounding high lands. Near the middle of the entrance is a large rock, called the Black Rock, supposed to have been anciently the island where the Phœnicians used to trade with the natives for tin. The harbour is defended by two castles, one towards the east, called St. Mawes, the other to the west, about a mile and a half distant, called Pendennis. They were both built by Henry VIII., and the latter improved and strengthened by Queen Elizabeth. During the civil war Pendennis castle was long defended against Oliver Cromwell, whose lines of encampment are yet distinguishable near the town. Both of these castles are now strongly fortified and garrisoned by invalids, with an establishment for a governor at 300*l*. per annum, and 91*l*. 5*s*. for a deputy-governor. Falmouth owes its origin to an individual who built a small cottage, where he sold beer to the sailors coming on shore. From the quickness of the sale of this beverage, it was long called Penny Come Quick; and also Smithike, from a blacksmith, possessing a hut in another part of the village. This, however, having been thought a good situation for trading, John Killigrew, in 1613, formed a grand plan of building a whole town here; and having obtained permission of James I., this spirited individual went on with his erections, and very soon formed a considerable town of good buildings. Thus, in little more than two centuries, from being a very small village, consisting only of a few fishing-huts, Falmouth has become one of the most considerable towns in this county. The town received its present appellation by proclamation of Charles II. in 1660. It owes the great increase of its commercial importance during the last century, to the packet-boats stationed here for Spain, Portugal, and almost all parts of the world. Steam packets have also been established here which sail to Corunna, Lisbon, Gibraltar, and other parts of the south-west coast of Europe. Large quantities of gold, both in specie and bars, are occasionally brought into this port by the packets from Spain and Portugal. It carries on a considerable fishery in pilchards, which is also a source of great emolument to some of the inhabitants. Here is also a custom-house for most of the Cornish towns. Falmouth is governed by a mayor and twelve aldermen; the adjoining hamlet, called St. Mawes, or Borough Town, sends two members to Parliament, though only inhabited by a few fishermen. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 37.; patron (1829) the Hon. and Rev. W. Wodehouse. The church, which was built in the reign of Charles II., was ded. to Charles the Martyr. At the eastern extremity of this town stands Arwinnick House, the ancient seat of the Killigrew family; its original builder is unknown, but it was much enlarged by Sir John Killigrew in 1751.

FALSGRAVE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Scarborough (217) 1 m. SW b W.
Pop. 345.

A township in the parish of Scarborough, within the jurisdiction of the town of Scarborough.

FALSIDE, WESTER, shire of Haddington, S.

P. T. Tranent (10) 2½ m. SW.

A village in the parish of Tranent, with which the population is returned.

FALSTONE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Bellingham (294) 9 m. W b N.

Pop. with Flashes and Willhaugs Townships 501.

An extensive parish in the north-west division of Tindale ward, which was separated by act of Parliament, in 1811, from the ancient parish of Simonburn; it is a moorish and mountainous district, and great numbers of sheep are pastured here; grouse, partridges, and black game are found in abundance. The living, previously to its being made parochial, was a curacy; it is now a rectory, in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham, not in charge; patron, Greenwich Hospital. The old chapel having been pulled down, the present church was built at the cost of 10407.; and a rectory-house was built at the expense of the patrons, who likewise gave 4000, towards building the church. Here also is a Scotch Presbyterian chapel, which was built in 1807. In this neighbourhood are many traces of ancient British settlements.

FAMAGH-CHURCH, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Thomastown (75) m. S.
Pop. with Thomastown.

A parish in the barony of Gowran; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin, united, to the rectories and vicarages of Thomastown and Columkill.

FANGFOSS, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Pocklington (212) 4½ m. NW.
Pop. with Spittle Township 154.

A parish and township in the Wilton Beacon division of the wapentake of Easingthill; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Barmby-upon-the-Moor, and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York; certified value 84. 10s.; ann. val. P. R. 447. 15s. 6d.; patronage with Barmby-upon-the-Moor vicarage.

FANLOBISK, or FANLOBBUS, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Dunmanway (203) m. Pop. 86.

A parish in the barony of East Carbery, west division, situated upon the Bandon river; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Cork and archdiocese of Cashel; producing, by commutation for tithes, 9237. 1s. 4½d., of which the lay impropriator receives 4617. 10s. 8½d. The rectory is united to that of Dromdaleague. Here is a charity-school of sixty boys and forty-five girls. A charter-school of twenty-five boys, and two Hibernian Society schools, one of sixty boys and forty-five girls, the other of forty boys and fifteen girls.

FANNET POINT, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

A remarkable headland in the parish of Clondivadock and barony of Kilmacrenan, situated at the north-west side of the entrance to Lough Swilly. Here is a light-house, exhibiting a fixed light of a deep colour towards the sea, and a bright colour towards the Lough.

FARAHY, or FARHAY, or PHARAHAY, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Kildoverly (151) 1½ m. W. Pop. 1538.

A parish in the barony of Fermoy, adjacent to the Funcheon river; living, an entire rectory in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel, possessing a church, glebe-house, and thirty-eight acres of land, and forming the corps of the deanery of Cloyne; patron, the King.

FARAY, or PHARAY, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

Pop. with Pa.

One of the Orkney islands, forming part of the parish of Eday, from which island it is distant two miles, west. It is two miles long, and one broad, and covered with a rich verdant soil, producing corn and pasture for cattle, sufficient to supply the wants of the inhabitants, whose chief occupation is fishing. Here are the remains of an old chapel.

FARAY, SOUTH, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

Pop. with P.

One of the Orkney isles, forming part of the parish of Flota, and, though very small, noted for the excellence of its pasturage for sheep.

FARBILL, co. Westmeath, Leinster, I.

Pop. 8915.

A small barony, containing two parishes, two villages, and the market-town of Kinnegad. The greatest part of it is occupied by bogs.

FARCETT, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Peterborough (81) 3 m. S b E.

Pop. 499.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Standground and hundred of Norman Cross; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Standground, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Standground vicarage.

FAREHAM, co. Southampton.

Pop. 577.

A hundred in Portsdown division, and south side of the county, containing the town of Fareham only.

FAREHAM, co. Southampton.

London 73 m. SW. Southampton 11½ m. ESE. Pop. 3677. M. D. Wed. Fair, June 29, for corn, cheese, hops, and toys.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Fareham, Portsdown division. In Leeland's time it was only a small fishing village, but is now a maritime town of considerable trade and importance. The chief manufactures carried on here is in sackings and ropes for shipping, large quantities of which are sent to Portsmouth, and to this place it owes all its present consequence. Fareham has also a considerable manufacture of pottery, and a good trade in coals, and vessels of large burden are built here. During the summer months this town is much resorted to for sea-bathing, and a commodious bathing-house has been erected for the accommodation of visitors. The town is governed by a bailiff, two constables, and two ale-cogners, who regulate all matters relative to weights, measures, &c. The country in the neighbourhood is very delightful and adorned with many handsome seats. The living is a vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 8l. 12s. 6d.; patron, the Bishop of Winchester. The church, ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul, is a respectable building, standing at the entrance of the town; besides which there are two places of public worship for dissenters. The petty-sessions are holden here.

FAREWELL, or FAIRWELL, co. Stafford.

P. T. Lichfield (119) 1½ m. N b W.

Pop. with Charley 202.

A parish and township in the south division of the hundred of Offlow; living, a curacy and peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield; certified value 6l. 6s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 45l.; chapel ded. to St. Bartholomew; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield. Here was formerly a small abbey or priory, originally of regular canons, and afterwards of Benedictine nuns, founded about 1140.

FARFORTH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (149) 6 m. S b W.

Pop. with Maiden Well 91.

A parish in the Wold division of the hundred of Louth Eske, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory with that of Maiden Well, united to Ruckland, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6l. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Peter; patronage with Ruckland rectory.

FARINGDON, co. Dorset.

P. T. Shaftesbury (101) 5½ m. SSW.

Pop. with Cupton.

A parish united with Cupton in the hundred of Red Lane, Sherborne division; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Iwerne Courtney in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Iwerne Courtney rectory. From Windmill Hill, in this parish, said to have been a Roman intrenchment, may be obtained some very delightful views.

FARINGDON, co. Southampton.

P. T. Alton (47) 3 m. S b W. Pop. 479.

A parish in the hundred of Selbourne, Alton, north division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 18l. 6s. 0½d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Lewis Cage, Esq.

FARINGDON, or FARRINGTON, co. Berks.

Pop. 3631.

A hundred at the north-west corner of the county, bordering on Gloucestershire, containing six parishes, including the town from which it takes its name.

FARINGDON GREAT, co. Berks.

London 68 m. WNW. Pop. 2784. M. D. Tues. Fairs, Feb. 13, for horses, and fat cattle; Whit. Tues., for ditto; Tues. bef. and Tues. aft. Old Michaelmas Statute, for hiring servants; and Oct. 29, for horses, fat cattle, and pigs.

A market-town, parish, and township in the hundred of Faringdon, seated on the west side of Faringdon Hill, about two miles distant from the Thames. The chief trade of this town is in bacon and hogs, of the latter as many as four thousand have been slain in the course of a year. The town is governed by a bailiff and inferior officers. The petty-sessions for Faringdon division are holden here. The living is a vicarage and a peculiar of the dean of Salisbury, in the diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 14l. 1s. 3d.; patron (1829) — Hallet, Esq. The church, dedicated to All Saints, is a handsome building, exhibiting various styles of architecture, and the east end is of great antiquity; the tower was much injured during the civil wars, and the remaining part is very little higher than the body of the church. Here are many ancient and fine monuments, among which that of the founder, who is unknown. King John founded an abbey for Cistercian monks in this town which formerly had a strong castle, some traces of which are yet discoverable. From Faringdon Hill, in the immediate vicinity of the town, some very fine and extensive views may be obtained over parts of Gloucestershire, Oxfordshire, and Wiltshire. Faringdon House, standing in a small pleasant park, is rather a modern edifice of considerable beauty; the old mansion, which stood on the site of the present, was garrisoned for Charles I. in the civil wars, and was one of the last places that surrendered, its defenders having repulsed a large party of the Parliamentary forces a short time only before the reduction of Oxford.

FARINGDON LITTLE, co. Berks.

P. T. Lechlade (76) 2 m. NE b E. Pop. 140

A tithing in the parish of Langford and hundred of Faringdon.

FARLAM EAST, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 12 m. ENE. Pop. 401.

A parish and township in Eskdale ward, abounding with limestone, which is dug up and burnt here, some veins of coal also run through a part of this parish, which however are not worked, although there are several collieries in the neighbouring township of Talkin. The living is a curacy with that of Lanercost in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle; certified value 4*l.* 15*s.* which is allowed by the Earl of Carlisle; ann. val. P. R. 57*l.* The benefice has been twice augmented by Queen Anne's bounty, and received a bequest of 200*l.*, left by Lady Gowar; church ded. to St. Thomas-à-Becket; patron (1829) the Earl of Carlisle.

FARLAM WEST, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 11 m. E b N. Pop. 172.

A township in the parish of Farlam, Eskdale ward.

FARLEE, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kirkby Lonsdale (253) 6 m. W b N. Pop. 102.

A township in the parish of Beetham, Kerdale ward. The manor, which was formerly included with Beetham, was sold to the tenants by Sir Richard Hutton, in 1693, and now pays only a free rent of 24*s.* yearly to the Earl of Derby.

FARLEIGH EAST, co. Kent.

P. T. Maidstone (34) 2½ m. SW b W. Pop. 1143.

A parish in the hundred of Maidstone, lathe of Aylesford, where considerable quantities of fruit and hops are produced annually; living, a vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church is an ancient structure, and exhibits some remains of its original architecture, the Norman, although the principal part, was rebuilt in the reign of Edward III. FARLEIGH WALLOP, co. Southampton.

P. T. Basingstoke (45) 4 m. SW b S. Pop. 84.

A parish in the hundred of Bermondspit, Basingstoke division; living, a rectory, united to Chiddesden, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. John; patron (1829) the Earl of Portsmouth.

FARLEIGH WEST, co. Kent.

P. T. Maidstone (34) 3 m. WSW. Pop. 364.

A parish in the hundred of Twyford, lathe of Aylesford; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 10*s.* 5*d.*; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Rochester. The church, ded. to All Saints, is an ancient Norman structure, in which are many monuments to the Lawrences, Skinners, and Goulstones, lords of Totesham, in this parish, who formerly had a residence seated on the banks of the Medway. In the churchyard are some peculiarly fine trees. This parish, like east Farleigh, is famous for its plantations of fruit-trees and production of hops.

FARLESTHORPE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Alford (141) 2 m. SE. Pop. 101.

A parish in the Wold division of the hundred of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. H. 5*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 69*l.* 2*s.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Henry Kipling, Esq.

FARLETON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Lancaster (240) 8 m. NE b E. Pop. 9*l.*

A township in the parish of Milling and hundred of Lonsdale, south of the sands. Here are the small remains of a castle, which in the fifteenth century was held by a younger branch of the Harrington family, but its founder, and the period of its erection, are not known.

FARLEY, co. Stafford.

P. T. Cheadle (140) 4 m. E b N. Pop. 308.

A township in the parish of Alveton and south division of the hundred of Totmonslow.

FARLEY, co. Surrey.

P. T. Croydon (9) 5½ m. SE. Pop. 84.

A parish in the second division of the hundred of Tandridge; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 16*s.* 5½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 129*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Merton College, Oxford.

FARLEY, co. Wilts.

P. T. Salisbury (81) 5 m. E. Pop. 220.

A tithing and chapelry in the parish and hundred of Alderbury; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Alderbury, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; patronage with Alderbury vicarage. The church here was built by Sir Stephen Fox, at the latter part of the seventeenth century, whose family was ancient, though Sir Stephen, born in 1627, was the first branch of it that distinguished itself in public life; by this benevolent patron the village obtained many benefits, among which is an almshouse for six old men, a like number of women, and a chaplain, endowed with 188*l.* per annum. The building is a plain structure of brick, consisting of a centre and two wings. In the former, which is appropriated to the chaplain, is a portrait of the founder. Here also is a charity-school, founded by the same beneficent individual, and conducted by the chaplain of the almshouse.

FARLEY CHAMBERLAYNE, co. Somerset.

P. T. Winchester (62) 5 m. WSW.
Pop. with Slackstead 201.

A parish in the hundred of King's Somerburne, Andover division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.*; ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir H. St. John Mildmay, Bart.

FARLEY HUNGERFORD, or MONTFORT, co. Somerset.

P. T. Bath (106) 7 m. SE b S. Pop. 174.

A parish in the hundred of Wellow, seated in a well-wooded and most delightful part of the county, said to derive its name from the fairleys, or meadows; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Leonard; patron (1829) J. Houlton, Esq. Here was formerly a castle of very great antiquity, which was for several years in the possession of the Saxon thanes; in the eleventh century it came into the hands of Sir Roger de Curcelle, a Norman lord, and favourite of William the Conqueror. Farley House, in this parish, is a very handsome seat, surrounded by fine grounds and plantations.

FARLINGTON, co. Southampton.

P. T. Havant (66) 2½ m. W. Pop. 553.

A parish in the hundred of Portsdown, Portsdown division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; patrons (1829) D. Davis, D. D., and H. Millington, Esq.

FARLINGTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Easingwold (213) 7 m. E b S.
Pop. 170.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Sheriff Hutton and wapentake of Bulmer; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Sheriff Hutton, in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; certified value 27*l.* 16*s.* 1*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 133*l.* 12*s.*; chapel ded. to St. Leonard; patron, Archbishop of York.

FARLOW, co. Berks.

P. T. Wantage (60) 5 m. W.
Pop. with Kingston Lisle.

A tithing in the parish of Sparsholt and hundred of Shrivenham.

FARLOW, co. Hereford.

P. T. Ludlow (142) 10½ m. NE b E.
Pop. 315.

A parish in the hundred of Wolpwy; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Stottesden, in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; certified value 10*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Giles; patronage with Stottesden vicarage.

FARMANBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Pickering (226) 3 m. ESE. Pop. 103.

A township, partly in the parish of Ellorburn, and partly in the parish of Thimton, in the west division of the wapentake of Pickering Lythe.

FARMBOROUGH, co. Somerset.

P. T. Pensford (116) 4 m. SE b E. Pop. 732.

A parish in the hundred of Keynsham; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Bath and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 2*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) J. F. Gunning, Esq.

FARMCOTE, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Winchcombe (99) 2 m. E.
Pop. with Ba.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Power Guiting and lower division of the hundred of Kiftsgate; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Power Guiting, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester, not in charge; patronage with Power Guiting vicarage. Divine service is only performed here once a month.

FARMINGTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. North Leach (81) 2 m. ENE.
Pop. 245.

A parish in the hundred of Bradley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) E. Waller, Esq.

FARN ISLANDS, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Holy Island 7 m. W.

Two groups of islands, about seventeen in number, in Islandshire; at low water, the points of several others are distinguishable. These islands are rented at 16*l.* per annum; their produce is kelp, wild fowls, feathers, and a few seals, which the tenant shoots for the sake of the oil and skins. The House Island is the principal one of the Farn Islands, and is memorable as being the place where St. Cuthbert passed several of the last years of his life, after which a Benedictine priory, for six or eight monks, subordinate to Durham, was established on it. A square tower, the remains of a church, and a stone coffin, in which the body of St. Cuthbert was first interred, are to be seen here. A lighthouse has been erected on this island, and another on Staples Island, about three miles to the east. Ships may sail between these two lighthouses; but there lies in the middle of the channel a cluster of rocks, called the Oxscar, from which the passage is called the Scar Rock. Large quantities of aquatic birds, of almost every description, resort here, and jackdaws also, in considerable numbers, which build their nests in the rabbit-holes.

FARNBOROUGH, co. Berks.

P. T. East Ilsley (54) 4 m. W b N. Pop. 210.

A parish in the hundred of Compton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 12l. 8s. 4d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) George Price, Esq.

FARNBOROUGH, co. Kent.

P. T. Bromley (10) 4 m. S E b S. Pop. 553.

A parish in the hundred of Ruxley, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Chelsfield in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester, not in chagge; church ded. to St Giles the Abbot; patronage with Chelsfield rectory.

FARNBOROUGH, co. Southampton.

P. T. Hartford Bfidge (35) 5 m. ESE. Pop. 287.

A parish in the hundred of Crondall, Basingstoke division; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 7l. 12s. 11d.; ann. val. P. R. 120l.; patron (1829) G. H. Sumner, Esq.

FARNBOROUGH, co. Warwick.

P. T. Kington (83) 6½ m. E b S. Pop. 356.

A parish in the Burton Basset division of the hundred of Kington; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 5l. 12s.; church ded. to St. Botolph; patron (1829) W. Holbeche, Esq.

FARNBRIDGE, co. Essex.

P. T. Rochford (40) 5 m. NNW. Pop. 147.

A parish in the hundred of Dengie; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 14l. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FARNBRIDGE, SOUTH, co. Essex.

P. T. Rochford (40) 3½ m. NNW. Pop. 107.

A parish in the hundred of Rochford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 17l.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) E. Stephenson, Esq. Between this parish and North Farnbridge is a ferry over the river Crouch.

FARNDALE, EAST SIDE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Kirkby-Moorside (228) 4 m. N. Pop. 435.

A township in the parish of Lastingham and wapentake of Ryedale.

FARNDALE HIGH QUARTER, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Kirkby-Moorside (228) 4 m. N. Pop. 286.

A township in the parish of Lastingham and wapentake of Ryedale.

FARNDALE LOW QUARTER, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Kirkby-Moorside (228) 6 m. N. Pop. 2134.

A township in the parish of Kirkby-Moorside and wapentake of Ryedale.

FARNDISH, co. Bedford.

P. T. Higham Ferrers (65) 4½ m. SW b S. Pop. 73.

A parish in the hundred of Willey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 10l.; ann. val. P. R. 130l.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) C. Chester, Esq.

FARNDON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Daventry (72) 9½ m. SSW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Woodford hundred of Clipping War en.

FARNDON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Market-Harborough (83) 2 m. SSW. Pop. 260.

A parish in the hundred of Rothwell; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 13l. 1s. 0½d.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, St. John's College, Oxford.

FARNDON, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Newark (121) 2½ m. SW b W. Pop. 492.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Newark; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacy of Balderton in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 6l. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Prebendary of Farnon in Lincoln cathedral.

FARNDON-ON-THE-DEE, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 9 m. S. Pop. of Pa. 857. Of To. 129.

A parish and township in the hundred of Broxton; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 33l.; ann. val. P. R. 104l.; patron (1829) Earl Grosvenor. The church, dedicated to St. Chad, was rebuilt at the conclusion of the civil wars, having been burnt by the Parliament army in the year 1615, during the siege of Holt Castle. In one of the windows are some very beautiful specimens of painting on glass. Farnon was the birth-place of John Speed, the eminent historian and antiquary, who died in 1629, at the age of seventy-four.

FARNESFIELD, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Southwell (132) 4 m. NW b W. Pop. 811.

A parish in the liberty of Southwell and Scrooby; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar of Southwell, in the diocese of York; valued in K. B. 4l.; ann. val. P. R. 140l.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, Southwell College Church.

FARNHAM, or FERNHAM, co. Dorset.

P. T. Cranborne (93) 8 m. WNW. Pop. 283. A parish in the hundred of Cranborne, Winton division; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 7l. 10s.; ann. val. P. R. 70l.; church ded. to St. Laurence; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FARNHAM, co. Essex.

P. T. Stansted Mountfichet (33) 3 m. W b. N. Pop. 470.

A parish in the hundred of Clavering; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 23l. 8s. 9d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Trinity College, Oxford.

FARNHAM, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Rothbury (93) 6 m. W. Pop. 36.

A township in the parish of Allerton and Widdowson division of Coquetdale ward, consisting principally of two farms, called Upper and Lower Farnham.

FARNHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Framingham (89) 2½ m. SW. Pop. 213.

A parish in the hundred of Plomesgate; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; certified value 15l.; ann. val. P. R. 40l.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) D. Long North, Esq.

FARNHAM, co. Surrey.

Pop. 7707.

A hundred in the west side of the county, bordering upon Hampshire, containing four parishes, including the town from which it takes its name.

FARNHAM, co. Surrey.

London 38 m. SW b. W. Pop. 5113. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, Holy Thurs.; June 21, horses, cattle, sheep, and hogs; Nov. 13, horses and cattle.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of its own name, situated near the river Wey, in a very pleasant part of the county. The town consists of one principal street, running nearly in the direction of east to west, with smaller ones branching from it; in the former are many excellent houses. This town sent members to Parliament in the reign of Edward I., which privilege it no longer possesses. Farnham was formerly much noted for its cloth manufacture, during which time the culture of hops, now almost wholly attended to, and for which this place is so famous, was altogether unknown or of little consideration; it is, however, quite uncertain when this change of occupation took place. All the Farnham hops are put into pockets, with a particular device, which is changed every year; and the hop-growers bind themselves under a heavy penalty not to put any other hops into these pockets than those for which they are intended. From Michaelmas to Christmas here is a good market for oats; and the wheat-markets, formerly held here, were the largest in England, the tolls alone of which were reckoned to produce 200l. annually. The town is governed by twelve burgesses, out of which number two bailiffs are annually chosen, who act as magistrates under the Bishop of Winchester, to whom they pay an acknowledgment of twelve pence annually, and receive all profits arising from the fairs and markets; they also hold a court every three weeks, at which they have power to try and determine all actions under the amount of 40s. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 29l. 5s. 5d.; patron, the Bishop of Winchester. The church, dedicated to St. Andrew, is an extensive building, supposed to have been erected at the end of the fifteenth century; it has a good substantial tower, with a turret at each corner; the interior contains many monuments, and a good painting of the twelve Apostles as an altar-piece; it was formerly a chapel of ease to Waverley Abbey. This town possesses a freeschool and a good charity-school; the senior department of the Royal Military College is also established here. Farnham Castle, seated upon a hill, to the north of the town, was originally built by Henry de Blois, brother to King Stephen, and Bishop of Winchester. This fortress was seized by Louis, the Dauphin, and the rebellious barons, in 1216, and some years afterwards demolished by Henry III. It was, however, shortly afterwards rebuilt in a magnificent style, with a deep moat, strong walls, and towers. During the civil war, in the seventeenth century, this post was garrisoned for the king, by Sir John Denham, high sheriff of the county; but in December, 1642, was taken by Sir William Waller, after having suffered greatly in a siege; those parts remaining entire were afterwards blown up and dismantled by the same general. After the Restoration, Dr. Morley, Bishop of Winchester, expended 8000l. in rebuilding and repairing this edifice, which is neither handsome nor convenient; it is built of brick, with the exception of the towers, and covered with cement; it contains a fine library and some good paintings. It is one of the seats of the Bishops of Winchester; and though of itself nothing very remarkable, yet is a desirable residence, from the beauty of the surrounding counties, over which it commands some very extensive views. Contiguous to this castle, are the remains of another and more ancient one, consisting of parts of the towers and the stone wall that surrounded the whole, at the foot of which is a moat, now dry, and planted with oaks. Moor Park, and Waverley Abbey, are two beautiful seats in this neighbourhood, near the latter are the ruins of the establishment, from which it derives its name. The petty sessions are holden here.

FARNHAM, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Knaresborough (202) 2 m. N. Pop. of Pa. 548. Of To. 141.

A parish and township in the lower division of the wapentake of Claro; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 52*l.*; patrons (1829) Mrs. Oasler and others.

FARNHAM ROYAL, co. Buckingham.

Eton (22) 3½ m. N. Pop. 1140.

A parish in the hundred of Burnham; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 16*s.* 0½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Eton College. This manor was formerly held on condition of fitting the right hand of the king with a glove on his coronation day, and supporting his arm while he held the sceptre. The ancestors of the Earl of Shrewsbury exchanged Farnham with Henry VIII., but are said to have reserved this privilege to themselves and their posterity.

FARNHAM TOLLARD, co. Dorset.

P. T. Cranborne (93) 8 m. WNW. Pop. 203.

A tithing in the parish of Farnham and hundred of Cranborne, Shaston division.

FARNHILL, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (216) 4 m. S.
Pop. with Cononley 1350.

A township in the parish of Kildwick and wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross.

FARNHURST, co. Sussex.

P. T. Haslemere (42) 3 m. S & W. Pop. 503.

A parish in the hundred of Easebourne, rape of Chichester; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Lynch, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 50*l.*; patron (1829) W. S. Poyntz, Esq.

FARNINGHAM, co. Kent.

P. T. Foot's Cray (12) 6 m. SE & E. Pop. 540.

A parish in the hundred of Axton, Dartford, and Wilmington, pleasantly situated on the road from London to Maidstone, and crossed by the Darent, over which there is a good bridge of four arches built with brick. The living is a vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 5*s.* 11*d.*; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury. The church, ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul, contains an ancient and very curious font; it has a tower at the west end and is chiefly built with flints. This place was held in the reign of Henry III. by a family surnamed De Freningham, one of which obtained a grant for a weekly market, and several other branches were sheriffs of Kent at different periods.

FARNINGTON, shire of Roxburgh, S.

P. T. See Roxburgh. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Roxburgh and district of Kelso. It had formerly a chapel, and has long been the residence of the Ruthfords, whose ancient mansion is here.

FARNLAWS, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Eldon (302) 6 m. ESE. Pop. 10.

A township in the parish of Hartburn and west division of Morpeth ward.

FARNLEY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Otley (205) 2 m. N & E. Pop. 1751

A township and chapelry in the parish of Otley and liberty of Cawood, Wistow, and Otley; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Otley, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 4*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 33*l.*; patronage with Otley vicarage. This place has been distinguished for the residence of its lords from a very remote period. Farnley Hall, in this village, is a handsome modern structure, built on the brow of an eminence commanding very fine prospects; it is now the seat of Hawkesworth Fawkes, Esq.

FARNLEY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Leeds (189) 5 m. SW & W. Pop. 1332.

A township and chapelry in the parish of St. Peter within the liberty of Leeds; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Leeds, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 5*l.* 10*s.*; patron, the Vicar of Leeds. After the restoration of Charles II. an insurrection of some discontented Roundheads was called the Farnley-wood Plot, from that being the place of rendezvous. Farnley Hill, a seat in this village, is now the property and residence of Edward Armitage, Esq.; it was formerly the mansion of the Danbys, and was erected in 1586.

FARNLEY TYAS, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Huddersfield (188) 3 m. SSE. Pop. 900.

A township in the parish of Almondbury and upper division of the wapentake of Agbrigg.

FARNWORTH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Great Bolton (197) 3 m. SE.
Pop. 2014.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Dean. A spacious church has recently been erected by the commissioners for building new churches, on Halsehaw Moor, for the use of this village. This is the birthplace of Richard Bancroft, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury. He was the chief character in the famous controversy with the Puritans at Hampton Court, and was chief director in the translation of the Bible in general use; he was born in 1544, and died in 1610.

FARNWORTH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Warrington (184) 5 m. W.
Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Prescott and hundred of West Derby; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 16*l.* 16*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; patron, the Vicar of Prescott. The chapel, dedicated to St. Luke, contains many monuments to the Bold family. At the ancient dwelling, called Peel House, was born William Smith, who died Bishop of Lincoln in 1514; he founded Brazenose College, Oxford, and also endowed a grammar-school there, which still exists.

FARNY BRIDGE, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

• P. T. Thurles (95) 5 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Holy-Cross and barony of Eliogarty, on a branch of the T. Charles river, which is tributary to the Suir.

FARR, shire, of Sunderland, S.

Edinburgh 256½ m. N b W. Inverness, 28 m. N. Pop. 1894.

A very extensive and mountainous parish, computed at thirty miles in length by fourteen in breadth, and bounded on the north by the ocean, along the margin of which it stretches eleven miles, and includes on its bold and rocky coast several noted promontories, bays, and caves, resorted to by numerous seals. The most remarkable of these is Strathy Head, the Verubrium Promontorium of the Romans, with its stately caern and verdant summit affording, perhaps, the best browsing for sheep and goats of any in the north. The whole surface of the parish, in fact, is admirably adapted for rearing all kinds of cattle, and on one particular district, termed Muddale, vast numbers are constantly pastured. Loch Naver, an extensive sheet of water, is the source of a river of the same name, which with that of Borgie, abounds with excellent salmon. Living, in the presbytery of Tongue and synod of Sutherland and Caithness; patroness, the Countess of Sutherland, who enjoys also the title of Baroness of Strathnaver, of which wide district Farr constitutes a portion. Besides the church, built in 1774, there were formerly three chapels in different parts of the parish. The Christian Society has established a school here, but the Gaelic language only is spoken by the inhabitants. Among the many relics of antiquity to be met with here are six Pict's huts; Borge tower, a Norwegian structure, on a lofty peninsulated rock, having on each side a harbour for boats; an ancient fort on Far-head, and several tumuli raised over the slain in a great battle fought between Reginald, King of the Isles, and Harold, Earl of Orkney and Caithness.

FARRINGTON, co. Devon.

P. T. Topsham (170) 3½ m. NE. Pop. 379.

A parish in the hundred of East Budleigh; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 8l. 8l. 1½d.; patron, the Bishop of Exeter.

FARRINGTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (217) 3 m. S. Pop. 513.

A township in the parish of Penwortham and hundred of Leyland. Here is an extensive moss.

FARRINGTON GOURNEY, co. Somerset.

P. T. Wells (120) 9 m. NE b N. Pop. 526.

A parish in the hundred of Chewton; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Chewton Mendip, in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. John the Baptist; patronage with Chewton Mendip vicarage.

FARSLEY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Bradford (214) 4 m. NE b N. Pop. 2006.

A township in the parish of Calverly and wapentake of Morley.

FARTAGH, or FERTAGH, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Durrow (70) 8 m. SW. Pop. 2649.

A parish in the barony of Galmong; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the pastide of Rathlogan, and producing by commutation for tithes, 392l. 6s. 1½d. Fartagh signifies a cemetery, and it is so called from having been the burying-place of the Fitzpatricks, earls of Upper Ossory. A priory was founded here in the thirteenth century, under the invocation of St. Kiaran, by the Blanchfields, and intended for regular canons following the rule of St. Augustin. Here are the ruins of a chapel, in which is the tomb of the Fitzpatricks, supporting two recumbent figures, much defaced. The inscription is no longer legible; it ran as follows: "Here lieth at rest, entombed, the chief Mac-Gilla-Padruig, who died May 1525, and God have mercy on his soul." This is the tomb of the person who sent a special messenger to Henry VIII. complaining of Red Peter, the Earl of Ormond, and as the king was passing to church, he was met by Fitzpatrick's ambassador, and addressed in these remarkable words: "Sta pedibus, Domine Rex, Dominus meus Gilla-Patricius me misit ad te, et jussit dicere quod si non vis castigare Petrum Rufum, ipse faciet bellum contra te." Here is a curious figure of a female on a table-tomb, and a rude image of our Saviour. At the west end of the chapel stands a pillar-tower, ninety-six feet in height, and having seven rests in the wall, the support of as many floors or stories.

FARTHINGHOE, or FARNINGHO, co. Northampton.

P. T. Brackley (63) 4 m. NW b W.

Pop. 476.

A parish in the hundred of King's Sutton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 16l.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) the Earl of Wilton.

FARTHINGSTONE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Towcester (60) 7 m. NW. Pop. 265.

A parish in the hundred of Fawsley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 13l. 18s. 11½d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Bishop of Lincoln. On the brow of a hill, in this parish, are some ancient fortifications, called Castle Dykes, from the supposition of a castle having very anciently stood there.

owing to the establishment of 'some extensive coal-works'; in 1801, it only contained twenty-six persons. In sinking one of the coal-pits, a mineralized tree was discovered. About 200 children of the village attend a Methodist-school every Sunday.

FAWDON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wobler (320) 10 m. S b E.
Pop. with Clinch and Hartside, 80.

A township in the parish of Ingram and north division of Coquetdale ward. The Fawdon and Clinch estates are the property of the Duke of Northumberland.

FAWKHAM, co. Kent.

P. T. Dartford (15) 5 m. SE b S. Pop. 168.

A parish in the hundred of Axton Dartford and Wilmington, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. at 6*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons (1829) V. D. Folk and Miss Selby, alternately.

FAWLEY, co. Oxford.

P. T. Witney (65) 5 m. N b E. Pop. 147.

A hamlet in the parish of Charlebury and hundred of Banbury.

FAWLEY, co. Berks.

P. T. Wantage (60) 4 m. S b W.
Pop. with Whatcombe, 212.

A parish and tithing in the hundred of Kintbury Eagle; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons (1829) Mr. and Mrs. Wroughton.

FAWLEY, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Henley-upon-Thames (35) 3 m. N b W.
Pop. 270.

A parish in the hundred of Desborough; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Mr. Freeman. Fawley Court is a spacious and handsome structure, situated in the centre of an extensive and pleasant lawn; it was rebuilt in 1684, by Sir Christopher Wren, in consequence of the old mansion having been greatly injured in 1642, by a troop of horse, in the interests of Charles I., which was quartered here at that period.

FAWLEY, co. Southampton.

Pop. 7786.

A hundred in Fawley division, and nearly in the centre of the county, containing twenty parishes.

FAWLEY, co. Southampton.

P. T. Southampton (74) 6 m. SSW.
Pop. 1684.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Bishop's Waltham, and partly in the hundred of Redbridge; living, a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 34*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Bishop of Winchester.

FAWNS, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morham (278) 15 m. NNE. Pop. 8.

A township in the parish of Kirk-Walshington and north-east division of Tindale ward.

FAWSLEY, co. Northampton.

Pop. 13,140.

A hundred on the western side of the county bordering on Warwickshire, containing twenty-one parishes, and the town of Daventry.

FAWSLEY, co. Northampton.

P. T. Daventry (72) 5 m. SSW. Pop. 22.

A parish in the hundred of Fawsley; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*; patron (1829) Sir C. Knightley, Bart. In the church, ded. to St. Mary, are many monuments to the Knightley family, who have been lords of the manor ever since the time of Henry III. Fawsley Hall, belonging to the same family, is a curious building of various dates, but situated in a very delightful park, well stocked with deer, and admirably ornamented with pieces of water and fine trees. Dr. John Wilkin, a celebrated divine and mathematician, was a native of this parish.

FAXFLEET, E. R. co. York.

P. T. South Cave (192) 7 m. SW. Pop. 163.

A township in the parish of South Cave, within the liberty of St. Peter of York.

FAXTON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Kettering (74) 6 m. WSW. Pop. 85.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Lamport and hundred of Orlingbury; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Lamport, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Denis; patronage with Lamport rectory.

FAZAKERLEY, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Liverpool (206) 4 m. NE. Pop. 418.

A township in the parish of Walton-on-the-Hill and hundred of West Derby.

FAZELEY, co. Stafford.

P. T. Tamworth (113) 1 m. S. Pop. 1128.

A township in the parish of Tamworth, and south division of the hundred of Offlow, celebrated for the extensive cotton-manufactories of the late Sir Robert Peel.

FEAKLE, co. Clare, Munster, I.

P. T. Scariff (119) m. Pop. 6769.

A village and parish in the barony of Tul-lagh, in a very mountainous, elevated district; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Killaloe and archdiocese of Cashel; the rectory produces, by commutation for tithes, 220*l.* per annum, but the vicarage belongs to the deanery of the cathedral of St. Flannan, at Killaloe.

FEARBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Masham (221) 2 m. W. Pop. 213.

A township in the parish of Masham and wapentake of Hang East.

FEARN, shire of Forfar, S.

P. T. Brechin (66) 7 m. W. Pop. 411.

A parish, six miles in length and two in breadth, lying at the foot of the Grampian Hills, and watered by the Noran and Cruik, on the banks of the former of which are the ruins of Vain Castle, once the residence of the celebrated Cardinal Beaton. The surface is partly appropriated to pasturage and plantations, and partly to tillage; the latter grounds are very productive, having the advantage of a fine slope to the southward. Game and peats are plentiful. The living is in the presbytery of Brechin and synod of Angus and Mearns. The inhabitants of this parish, led on by a gallant youth of seventeen, inflicted a severe chastisement on the Ketrin, or Highland robbers, on their last inroad in 1710; during which, the boy slew their chief in single combat.

FEARN, shire of Ross, S.

P. T. Tain (201) 5 m. SSE. Pop. 1651.

Fish and village, the latter of which is adjoined adjacent to the ruins of an old castle, founded by the first Earl of Ross, whose descendants, as well as all of the name of Ross, still bury there. The parish is two miles square, and bounded on the east by the Moray Firth, where are the villages of Balintore and Hilltown, chiefly occupied by those engaged in the herring-fishery. Loch Eye, an extensive lake within the parish, is noted for its large eels, and as the resorts of various kinds of aquatic fowls. At Cadboll on the coast, are quarries of excellent freestone. The living is in the presbytery of Tain and synod of Ross; patron, the Crown. The remains of Lochmaben Castle exhibit marks of high antiquity.

FEARNHEAD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Warrington (184) 2½ m. NE. Pop. 631.

A township in the parish of Warrington and hundred of West Derby.

FEATHARD, or FETHARD, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

Dublin 109 m. SW. Pop. of Pa. and Liberties 521. Of To. and Liberties 2978. Fairs, April 20; Friday before Trin. Sun.; Sept. 7 and 10; and Nov. 21.

A post and fair town in the parish of Feathard and barony of Middlethird. It was anciently a borough, governed by a sovereign, vice-sovereign, recorder, portreeve, &c., and sent two members to Parliament, but is now disfranchised. It was enclosed and fortified, but the walls are now totally ruined. It is a permanent military station. The living is a rectory and vicarage in the diocese and archdiocese of Cashel; yielding, by commutation for tithes, 140*l.* per annum; and united to seven other benefices in the same diocese. It possesses a church, glebe-house, and about twenty acres of glebe. There is a parish-school in the town of ninety-four boys and thirty-three girls, and also a spinning-school.

FEATHARD, or FETHARD, co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

Dublin 108 m. S b W. Pop. 1824.

A parish in the barony of Shelburne, situated upon the sea-side. Here is the Bag and Bun Head, and also the point, called Strongbow's Camp; living, a rectory in the diocese of Ferns and archdiocese of Dublin, being the corps of a prebend. This place was formerly a borough, and governed by a portreeve, but disfranchised by the Act of Union. Here are the ruins of three castles.

FEATHERSTONE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (278) 17 m. W b S. Pop. 239.

A township in the parish of Haltwhistle and west division of Tindale ward. Featherstone Castle, the seat of the Right Hon. Thomas Wallace is seated in a fine rural and picturesque situation, near the South Tyne, opposite the confluence of the Hartley-Bourn. It was the seat of the ancient family of Featherstonehaugh, Sir Matthew Featherstonehaugh, a branch of which, sold it to the father of the present owner, who has lately added three castellated towers, and otherwise greatly improved it.

FEATHERSTONE, co. Stafford.

P. T. Wolverhampton (123) 6 m. Pop. 49.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Wolverhampton, and east division of the hundred of Cuttleshale, living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Brewood, in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge, patronage with Brewood vicarage.

FEATHERSTONE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Pontefract (177) 2½ m. York.

Pop. of Pa. 945. Of To. 337.

A parish and township in the upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, Christ Church, Oxford.

FECKENHAM, co. Worcester.

P. T. Droitwich (116) 7 m. E b S.

Pop. 2383. Fairs, March 26; Sept. 30, and cattle.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Halfshire; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 9*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; patron (1829) the Rev. E. Neele. The church, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, is a neat structure, containing many ancient monuments. Here is a charity-school for the children of both sexes, founded by Sir Thomas Cookes, Bart., the founder of Worcester College, Oxford, who also endowed it with 50*l.* per annum for ever, out of lands in the neighbourhood. The manufacture of needles is carried on here to a considerable extent. In this parish was formerly a very extensive forest, which has long ceased to exist, the timber having been cut down for the consumption of the Droitwich salt-works, before the introduction of coals into common use. It was disafforested in the reign of Charles I.

FEDAMORE, or FEDEMORE, co. Limerick, Munster, I.

P. T. Six Mile Bridge (130) 1 m. NW.

Pop. 1304. Fairs, May 3, and Oct. 9.

FARTNEY, or VARTNEY, co. Wicklow, Leinster, I.

A river which rises in Djouce Mountain, and passing near to the village of Roundwood, falls down a precipice of nearly 100 feet into the Devil's Glen, and winding through one of the most picturesque parts of the county, falls into the sea at the Murrrough of Wicklow, after expanding into a spacious lough at the last-mentioned place. FARTULLAGH, or FERTULLAGH, co. Westmeath, Leinster, I.

Pop. 7691.

One of the twelve baronies into which the county is divided. It contains ten parishes, and a part of the excellent market and fair-town of Mullingar. Half the large piece of water called Lough Ennel is in this barony, and bog occupies much of the surface. Agriculture constitutes the only employment of the inhabitants.

FARWAY, co. Devon.

P. T. Houton (148) 3 m. S. Pop. 346.

A parish in the hundred of Colyton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patrons (1829) F. Bullen, Esq. and others.

FASSADINING, co. Kilkenny Leinster, I.

Pop. 25,115.

One of the nine baronies into which the county is divided. Its area covers 66,518 acres, distributed into sixteen parishes. Castlecomer and Ballyragget are its only towns of note. The soil of this barony, a ~~marshy~~ turf, only a few inches in depth, is the worst in the county, but occupation is afforded to the numerous inhabitants in the collieries of Castlecomer, where a non-flaming species of coal is raised. Fassadinin signifies the "Winderness of the Dinan or Dineind," a river which nearly bisects the barony.

FAUGH, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 8½ m. E b S.
Pop. with Fenton, 331.

A township in the parish of Hayton, Eskdale ward.

FAUGHAN, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

P. T. Buncrana (164) 3 m. S.
Pop. of Upper, 2762. Of Lower, 4502.

An extensive parish in the barony of Inishowen, situated upon Lough Swilly, and containing the agreeable watering-place of Buncrana; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Derry and archdiocese of Armagh, possessing a church, rectory, and glebe of ninety-three acres. Lower Faughan is a perpetual curacy, having a church and glebe-house; patron, the Incumbent of Faughan Upper. Here was a rich monastery, founded by St. Columb. St. Columb and St. Muran were abbots, and the latter esteemed the patron of the place. Many interesting monuments contained in St. Muran's church, were destroyed after the Reformation, and all the reliques, except "The Acts of St. Columb," written in Irish verse, by St. Mauran; an ancient chronicle, and St. Mauran's Pastoral Staff, which was inlaid with jewels and gold. This last relique is preserved in the family of the O'Nicks; oaths were frequently taken upon it, and miracles said to be worked by it. The Bishop of Derry has his country seat in this parish.

FAUGHANSTOWN, or FAUGHLEY, co. Westmeath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Castle Pollard (62) 2 m. SW.
Pop. 1440.

A parish in the barony of Demifore, situated upon Lough Derryvaragh; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh, and one of eight parishes which constitute the union of Rathgraff.

FAUGHANVALE, co. Londonderry, I.

P. T. Muff (183) m. Pop. 5951.

A parish in the barony of Teerkerin, upon the southern shore of Lough Foyle. It is occupied almost wholly by mountain and is watered by the rivers Faughan, Maglen, Graysteel, and Faugharale; on the banks of the first of these St. Patrick built seven churches. Living, a rectory in the diocese of Derry and archdiocese of Armagh, possessing a church and a glebe of 971 acres. It is united to the rectories of Templemore and Clondemert, constituting thereby the corps of the deanery of Derry; patron, the King.

FAUGHART, or FOGHARD, co. Louth, Leinster, I.

P. T. Dandalk (51) 2½ m. Pop. 1691.
Fair, Jan. 12.

A hamlet and parish in the barony of Upper Dundalk; living, a rectory in the diocese and archdiocese of Armagh, possessing a church, but no parsonage or glebe; producing, by commutation for tithes, 250*l.* per annum. Here is an artificial mount, sixty feet high, making the boundary of what was called the English Pale. Here was the birthplace of St. Bridgid; and in 638, St. Monena founded a nunnery here in which she presided over 150 virgins. At an early period there was a monastery for regular canons at this place, dedicated to St. Bridgid.

FAULD, co. Stafford.

P. T. Uttoxeter (135) 6½ m. S b E. Pop. 48.

A small but pleasant township in the parish of Hanbury and north division of the hundred of Offlow. Robert Burton, the celebrated author of the "Anatomy of Melancholy," was born in this village, although it has been said that he was a native of Leicestershire.

FAULKBOURN, co. Essex.

P. T. Witham (39) 2 m. NW. Pop. 168.

A parish in the hundred of Witham; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. German; patron (1829) J. J. C. Bullock, Esq.

FAVERSHAM, co. Kent.

Pop. 8739.

A hundred in the lathe of Scray, nearly in the centre of the county, verging to the north, containing nineteen parishes, and the town from which it takes its name.

FAVERSHAM, or FEVERSHAM, co. Kent.

London 47 m. S.E. b E.

Pop. 4204. M: D. Weds and Sat. Fairs, Feb. 25, and Aug. 12, for linen, woolled-drapery, and toys.

A town and parish in the hundred of Faversham, lathe of Scray, and a member of the Cinque-Port of Dover. This town is of very great antiquity, and was denominated the King's Town as early as the year 811, and it is supposed that the Saxon kings had a palace here, and that a market and other privileges had been granted long before the conquest. The manor was granted to the Archbishop of Canterbury in the year 812, by Cenulph, King of Mercia, previously to which it always been a part of the royal demesne. It is situated near an arm of the Swale, and consists of four streets, forming an irregular cross, in the centre of which is the market-house; the upper rooms of this building are used as the Guildhall. Though this is a borough by prescription as well as by charter, it does not appear ever to have sent members to Parliament. The corporation consists of a mayor, eleven jurats, and twenty-four commoners. The mayor is elected by the freemen at large; the jurats are chosen by the mayor; and the commoners are elected, the one half by the mayor and jurats, and the other by the freemen. It has also a steward, or recorder, a town-clerk, two chamberlains, &c. The mayor holds a court of session twice a year, at which all offenders, except those for high treason, committed within the limits of the town are tried. Here are a theatre and assembly-rooms, and this town received considerable improvements in 1773, among which was a bridge built over the stream at the bottom of West Street. Faversham is a place of very considerable trading importance; very large quantities of corn, hops, wool, fruit, and oysters, are annually shipped from hence. It is also famous for its extensive gunpowder manufactory and large oyster-fisheries; the former employed about 400 persons during the war, and the latter nearly 200 families. Some of the gunpowder-mills here are under the superintendence of a branch of the ordnance. The oyster-fishers are under the jurisdiction of the lord of the manor, who appoints a steward and a water-bailiff. A considerable number of coasting-vessels of various burdens, and also many fishing-smacks belong to this port. The chief imports consist of coals and fir-timber, iron, pitch, tar, &c., from Sweden and Norway. A branch, both of the customs and of the excise, is established here. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 26l. 17s. 6d.; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a large handsome building of flints coined with Caen-stone, and supported by large buttresses; it has a light-tower at the west end containing eight bells, adorned with pinnacles, and terminated by an octagonal spire. The original structure was built about the time of Edward II., and had a large square castellated tower in the centre. In the year 1755 this was taken down, and the present one, as well as a great part of the body of the church, rebuilt. In the former church were two chapels, respectively dedicated to St. Thomas and the Holy Trinity, besides many altars of Catholic origin; many ancient ornaments and brasses still remain. It has been said that King Stephen and his Queen Matilda were buried here, but this is far from being certain. Here are a free grammar-school, founded by Queen Elizabeth, two good charity-schools for educating and clothing twelve boys and twelve girls; also almshouses for six poor men and six poor women, besides other benefactions and minor charities. King Stephen founded an abbey of Cluniac monks here in 1117, with valuable privileges and endowments. The ruins of some parts of the abbey are yet remaining; and a part of the chapel and lodge have been converted into a dwelling-house. The Roman saints, Crispin and Crispianus, are said to have founded an asylum here where they were apprenticed to a shoemaker.

FAVORAN, or FOYRAN, co. Westmeath, Leinster, I.P. T. Castle-Pollard (62) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. N.

Pop. 1648.

A parish in the barony of Demifone; living, a curacy in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Meath; producing, by commutation for tithes, 156l. 1s. 11d., the whole of which is payable to the lay impropriator. It is one of the parishes, forming the union of Castle-Pollard, and extends over an area of 3615 acres.

FAWCETT FOREST, co. Westmorland.P. T. Kendal (262) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. NNE. Pop. 54.

A wild, mountainous, and extensive township, partly in the parish of Kendal, partly in the parish of Shap, and partly in the parish of Orton, in Kendal ward. This manor formerly belonged to Byland Abbey, Yorkshire; and is now the property of the Hon. F. G. Howard, who lets the demesne of 5000 acres for less than 500l. per annum.

FAWDINGTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Boroughbridge (206) 5 m. NNE.

Pop. 30.

A township in the parish of Cundall and wapentake of Birdforth.

FAWDON, co. Northumberland.P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. N.W.

Pop. 747.

A township in the parish of Gosforth and west division of Castle ward. The population of this place has been greatly increased,

A parish, partly in the barony of Clanwilliam, and partly in that of Small County, including a small town of the same name; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Limerick and archdiocese of Cashel; producing by commutation for tithes, 553*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.*; of which the lay impropriator receives 369*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.* It is united to the vicarage of Glenogra, and possesses a church, glebe-house, and about fifty acres of land.

FEELSTEAD, co. Essex.

P. T. Great Dunmow (38) 4 m. ESE.
Pop. 1724.

A parish in the hundred of Hinchford; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to Holy Cross; patron (1829) the Hon. W. T. L. P. Wellesley. Here is a freeschool for eighty children of this county, founded by Lord Rich, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

FEIGHCULLEN, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

P. T. Rathangan (38) m. Pop. 963.

A parish, partly in Connell barony, and partly in the barony of East Ophaly; living, an entire rectory in the diocese of Kildare and archdiocese of Dublin; yielding, by commutation for tithes, 180*l.* per annum. It possesses a church, and about eight acres of glebe.

FEIRING, co. Essex.

P. T. Kelvedon (41) 1 m. NNE. Pop. 615.

A parish in the Witham division of the hundred of Lexden; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 11*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Bishop of London.

FEIZER, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Settle (235) 3 m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Clapham and west division of the wapentake of Staincliff and Ewcross.

FELBOROUGH, co. Kent.

Pop. 3053.

A hundred in the lathe of Scray, inclining to the north-east from the centre of the county, containing five parishes.

FELBRIDGE, or FELBRIGG, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Cromer (132) 3 m. S b W. Pop. 105.

A parish in the hundred of North Erpingham; living, a dis. rectory with that of Melton, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron (1829) the Rev. Adam Wyndham.

FELISKIRK, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Thirsk (217) 4 m. NE b E.
Pop. of Pa. 1008. Of To. 113.

A parish and township within the liberty of Rippon, living, a vicarage with the curacy of Boltby, in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; church ded. to St. Felix; patron, the Archbishop of York. The seat here, called Mount St. John, the property of Colonel Elsley, stands upon the site of a preceptory of the Knights Hospitallers of St. John's.

FELIXSTOW, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Ipswich (69) 11½ m. SE b E. Pop. 385.

A parish in the hundred of Colneis; living, a dis. vicarage with that of Walton, in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patronage with the vicarage of Walton St. Mary. This place is said to have derived its name from Felix, the Burgundian, the first Bishop of Dunwich, who landed here on his first arrival in the county, previously to his removal to Dunwich. Here was formerly a priory ded. to St. Felix, no remains of which are now discoverable. In the neighbourhood are the ruins of an ancient and once magnificent mansion, known by the name of Old Hall. Here Edward III. resided for some time previously to his expedition to France.

FELKINGTON, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Wooler (320) 11½ m. N b W. Pop. 100.

A township in the parish of North Norhamshire.

FELKIRK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnesley (172) 5 m. NE b N.
Pop. 1042.

A parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Staincross; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 1*s.* 10½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Archbishop of York.

FELLEY, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Mansfield (138) 8 m. SW b S. Pop. 71.

A hamlet in the parish of Annesley and north division of the wapentake of Broxtow. Here was formerly a priory of Black Canons, founded about the middle of the twelfth century; nothing of which now remains but a few fragments of the walls, forming a part of an old farmhouse.

FELLISCLIFFE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Knaresbrough (202) 8½ m. W b S.
Pop. 382.

A township in the parish of Hampsthwaite and lower division of the wapentake of Claro.

FELMERSHAM, co. Bedford.

P. T. Bedford (50) 7 m. NW b N. Pop. 390.

A parish and township in the hundred of Willey; living, a dis. vicarage with that of Pavenham in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge.

FELMINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. North Walsham (123) 3 m. WSW.
Pop. 361.

A parish in the hundred of Tunstead; living, a dis. vicarage, the fourth portion of which is a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; each valued in K. B. 6*l.*; patrons (1829) of the former, the Bishop of Norwich; of the latter, John Scamman, Esq.; church ded. to St. Andrew.

FELPHAM, co. Sussex.

• P. T. Arundel (35) 6 m. SW. Pop. 581.

A parish in the hundred of Avisford, rape of Arundel; livings, a rectory and dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; the former is a sinecure, valued in K. B. 9*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.*, the latter 9*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons of the rectory the Dean and Chapter of Chichester; of the vicarage the Rector of Felpham. From the contiguity of Bognor, a fashionable watering-place, the population of this parish has considerably increased of late years.

FELSHAM, co. Suffolk.

• P. T. Stow-Market (69) 7 m. W b S.
Pop. 389.

A parish in the hundred of Thedwestry; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Salisbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Rev. Joseph Gould.

FELTHAM, co. Middlesex.

• P. T. Hounslow (10) 4 m. SW b W.
Pop. 962.

A parish in the hundred of Spelthorne; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; church ded. to St. Dunstan; patron (1829) the Rev. Joseph Morris.

FELTHORPE, co. Norfolk.

• P. T. Norwich (108) 7 m. NW b N. Pop. 370.

A parish in the hundred of Taverham; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4*l.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron, the Bishop of Norwich.

FELTON, co. Hereford.

• P. T. Hereford (135) 8 m. NE b N.
Pop. 135.

A parish in the hundred of Broxash; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 12*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) the Rev. J. Lilley.

FELTON, co. Northumberland.

• P. T. Alnwick (308) 8½ m. S.
Pop. of Pa. 1510. Of To. 554.

A parish and township in the east division of Coquetdale ward, seated on a steep declivity rising from the north side of the Coquet, over which there is a good stone bridge of three arches, founded upon a free-stone rock. The scenery in this neighbourhood is beautifully romantic, and its beauty is greatly heightened by the windings of the river, on every side of which lies a rich and highly-cultivated district. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham, valued in K. B. 3*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor; the church, dedicated to St. Michael, stands on a delightful spot at a short distance to the west from the village. Here also is a Presbyterian chapel, built in 1820. Felton Hall, in this parish, is a pleasant and commodious seat, situated in an extensive park; it is now the property of Ralph Riddell, Esq. who is a famous breeder and trainer of race-horses. It is said that when the barons of Northumberland did homage to Alexander, King of Scotland, King John was so enraged that he reduced the village to ashes.

FELTON, OLD, co. Northumberland.

• P. T. Alnwick (308) 8 m. S. Pop. 91.

A township jointly with Acton, in the parish of Felton, and east division of Coquetdale ward. Acton Hall and Acton House are two pleasantly-situated seats in this township. It is supposed that this is the site of the village destroyed by King John.

FELTON, WEST, co. Salop.

• P. T. Oswestry (171) 5 m. SE b E.
Pop. 1035.

A parish in the hundred of Oswestry, living a rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) Earl Craven.

FELTWELL, co. Norfolk.

• P. T. Brandon Ferry (78) 5 m. NW b W.
Pop. 1153.

A village consisting of the united parishes of St. Mary and St. Nicholas, in the hundred of Grimeshoe; livings, two rectories in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 17*s.* 3¼*d.* and 19*l.*; patrons, the Lord Chancellor and the Bishop of Ely, alternately; the former this turn.

FENAGH, co. Carlow, Leinster, I.

• P. T. Leighlin Bridge (57) 7½ m. SE.
Pop. 2015.

A parish partly in the barony of Idrone and partly in the half-barony of Shillelagh, county of Wicklow; living a vicarage in the diocese of Leighlin and archdiocese of Dublin, annual value, by commutation, 646*l.* 3*s.* 1¼*d.* of which the lay impropriator receives 415*l.* 7*s.* 8¼*d.* and possesses a church and glebe-house; the rectory is without either. Here is a school for seventy boys and seventy girls, supported by subscription; also the ruins of a castle, said to have been one of the palaces of the kings of Leinster.

FENAGH, co. Leitrim, Connaught, I.

• P. T. Ballynamore (03) 2½ m. SW. Pop. 3447.

A parish partly in Leitrim and partly in Mohill Barony; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Ardagh and archdiocese of Armagh, possessing a church and a glebe of 1145 acres. St. Callin was bishop and abbot here in the lifetime of St. Columb; his festival is observed here on the 13th of November. Here was an ancient church and a well dedicated to the patron saint of the place.

FENBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Great Grimsby (165) 7 m. S.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Ashby and wapentake of Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Ashby All Saints, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; patronage with Ashby All Saints rectory.

FENCOAT, GREAT and LITTLE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Catterick (228) 4 m. SE.
Pop. with Pa.

Two hamlets in the parish of Kirkby Fleet-ham and wapentake of Hang East.

FENCOT, co. Oxford.

P. T. Bicester (34) 4 m. S b W.
Pop. with Murcot 274.

A hamlet in the parish of Charleton-upon-Otmoor and hundred of Ploughley FENCOTT, co. Hereford.

P. T. Bromyard (125) 4½ m. NW.
Pop. with Pa.

A township, partly in the parish of Docklow, and partly in the parish of Thornbury in the hundred of Wolphy.

FENETT, or FENITT, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

P. T. Trillick (187) 7½ m. W b N.
Pop. with Ardferit.

A parish and island in Ballyheig Bay, off the barony of Clanmorris; living, an entire rectory, united to the rectory of Ardferit and the vicarage of Kilmelchedor, constituting thereby the corps of the chancellorship of Ardferit and Aghadoe, in the archdiocese of Cashel; valued, by commutation for tithes, 100*l.* Here are the ruins of a castle.

FENHAM, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 1½ m. WNW.
Pop. 87.

A township in the parish of St. Andrew and west division of Castle ward. This manor belonged to the Knights Templars, which, with all the other property, was granted in the reign of Edward II. to the Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Jerusalem. Fenham Hall is a handsome structure, surrounded by spacious gardens, pleasure-grounds, and plantations, and commands some extensive and pleasing views over the vale of Tyne.

FENLAKE, or FENLAKE BARNS, co. Bedford.

P. T. Bedford (50) 1 m. ESE.
Pop. with Eastcotts.

A township in the parish of Cardington and hundred of Wixamtree.

FEN-OTTERY, co. Devon.

P. T. Ottery St. Mary (161) 3 m. SW b S.
Pop. 120.

A parish in the hundred of East Budleigh; living, a vicarage with that of Harpford, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 139*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*

FENNILEE, co. Derby.

P. T. Tideswell (160) 6 m. N b E. Pop. 422.

A township in the parish of Hope and hundred of High Peak.

FENNOR, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Slane (38) ½ m. Pop. 208.

A parish in the barony of Lower Duleek, situated upon the river Boyne; living, a rectory impropriate in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh.

FENNOR, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Freshford (88) 8 m. W b S. Pop. 1888.

A parish in the barony of Shilbhardagh; living, a rectory entire in the diocese and archdiocese of Cashel; producing, by commutation for tithes, 489*l.* 4*s.* 7½*d.*; possessing a church, glebe-house, and small glebe. It constitutes the corps of a prebend.

FENOUGH, or FINWACHE, or FINNOAGH, co. Waterford Muster, I.

P. T. Carrick-on-Suir (110) 3½ m. SE.
Pop. 766.

A parish in the barony of Uppert, situated upon the river Suir. The living is an entire rectory, in the diocese of Lismore and archdiocese of Cashel, producing, by commutation for tithes, 193*l.* 17*s.*, and being one of four parishes, which constitute the union of Dysart.

FENROTHER, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 4½ m. NW b N.
Pop. 99.

A township in the parish of Hebburn and west division of Morpeth ward.

FENSTANTON, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. St. Ives (59) 2 m. S b E. Pop. 776.

A parish in the hundred of Toseland; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacy of Hilton, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 11*s.* 5½*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron, Trinity Hall, Cambridge.

FENTON, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 8 m. E.
Pop. with Faugh Township 331.

A township in the parish of Hayton, in Eskdale ward.

FENTON, shire of Haddington, S.

P. T. North Berwick (22) 4 m. SW.
Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Dirleton. It is distinguished by divisions termed East and West Fenton, and gives the title of Viscount (the first of that dignity created in Scotland), to the family of Erskine, Earls of Kellie.

FENTON, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. St. Ives (59) 5½ m. N b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Pidley and hundred of Hurstingstone.

FENTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Newark (124) 6 m. ESE. Pop. 99.

A parish in the wapentake of Loveden, parts of Kesteven; living, a curacy subordiolate to the rectory of Beckingham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; chapel ded. to All Saints; patronage with Beckingham rectory.

FENTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 9 m. NW b W.
Pop. 108.

A hamlet in the parish of Kettlethorpe and west division of Well wapentake, parts of Lindsey.

FENTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 4 m. N. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Wooler, and east division of Glendale ward, situated about half a mile distant from the river Till. Here is an annual fair, called St. Ninnians, held on the 27th of September, for cattle, sheep, and horses.

FENTON KIRK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Tadcaster (190) 5 m. SE b E.
Pop. of Pa. 603. Of To. 416.

A parish and township in the upper division of Barkston Ash wapentake; living, a vicarage and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; patron, the Prebendary of Fenton in York Cathedral.

FENTON, LITTLE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Tadcaster (190) 6½ m. SSE. Pop. 113.

A township in the parish of Kirk-Fenton and upper division of Barkston Ash wapentake.

FENWICK, shire of Ayr, S.

P. T. Kilmarnock (65) 5 m. NNE.
Pop. 1852.

A parish and village in the district of Cunningham, formerly part of the parish of Kilmarnock, and first made a distinct parish in 1642. It is nine miles in length and six in breadth, but mossy in every part, except on the western border, where the soil is well cultivated and extremely fruitful. Limestone, coal, and peats abound here, and various kinds of game are plentiful on the muirs. Besides the village, of Fenwick there is another called Kirktown, and both are inhabited by weavers. Living, in the presbytery of Irvine and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, Earl of Glasgow. The church was built in 1643.

FENWICK, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 13½ m. NW b W. Pop. 76.

A township in the parish of Stamfordham and north-east division of Tindale ward. Fenwick Tower, which has long been in ruins, was formerly the seat of the ancient and heroic family of Fenwick; in pulling down a part of which, in 1775, 226 gold nobles, of Edward III. and Richard II. and one of David II. of Scotland, were discovered.

FENWICK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Snaith (173) 8½ m. SW. Pop. 205.

A township in the wapentake of Campsall and upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross.

FENYTON, co. Devon.

P. T. Honiton (148) 4 m. W b S. Pop. 321.

A parish in the hundred of Haybridge; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 18*s.* 6½*d.* church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) John Rogers, Esq.

FEOCK, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Truro (255) 6 m. S. Pop. 1093.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Powder; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 11*l.*; church ded. to St. Feock; patron, the Bishop of Exeter.

FERBANE, or FIRBANE, or WHERY, King's co. Leinster, I.

Dublin 72 m. W b S. Pop. 594.
Fairs, Aug. 2, and Oct. 20.

A post and fair town in the parish of Fербane and barony of Garrycastle, situated upon the Brosna river, which is here crossed by a stone bridge. The living is a vicarage in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh, yielding, by commutation for tithes, 276*l.* 18*s.* 5*d.*, of which the lay impropriator retains 138*l.* 9*s.* 2½*d.* It is united to the rectories and vicarages of Tessauran and Kilnegarenagh. Here is Gallen, the picturesque demesne of A. Armstrong, Esq., and at a little distance are the ruins of Kilcolgan castle.

FERCALL, or FIRCALL, King's co. Leinster, I.

Pop. 5336.

One of the twelve baronies into which the county is divided. It contains two parishes, but no town, of any consequence. It originally constituted the district called "The County of the O'Mulloys."

FERENSBY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Knaresborough (202) 2½ m. NE b N.
Pop. 110.

A township in the parish of Farnham and lower division of the wapentake of Claro.

FERGUS, co. Clare, Munster, I.

A river in the barony of Islands. It is an expansion, and at the same time it is a tributary to the noble river Shannon. It rises in the barony of Concomroe; and passing through the lakes of Inchquin, Tedane, Dromore, Ballyally, and several others, is joined at Ennis by the river Clareen. It has for many years past been in the contemplation of the county to render this river navigable to Ennis, the county town; but probably without the aid of Parliament it will not be attempted, notwithstanding its vast importance. It is navigable at present as far as the port of Clare for vessels of 100 tons, and small boats can make way across the bar, and thereby reach Ennis.

FERGUS, ST., shire of Banff, S.

P. T. Peterhead (154) 5 m. NW. Pop. 1306.

A parish, forming a detached portion of the above shire, from which it is distant several miles; being situated on the eastern coast of the shire of Aberdeen, and within the jurisdiction of its magistrates, though in all other respects it is subject to Banff. The coast is bold and rocky, affording great quantities of limestone and granite. Fish is plentiful, and the salmon-fishery in the Ugie, which bounds the parish on the south, is very productive. The surface, comprising nearly 4450 acres, is pleasantly diversified with gentle hills, fertile valleys, and those beautiful plains, termed Links, the latter of which are never disturbed by the plough. At the village of Inver-Ugie, the ancient name of the parish, are a spinning-manufactory, bleaching-grounds, ale and porter breweries, and a distillery of whiskey. The living is in the presbytery of Deer and synod of Aberdeen; patron, the Crown. The church, which was built in 1763, occupies a beautiful site on the Links; and near the ruins of the ancient castle, erected by the Cheynes, when in possession of the powerful earldom of Buchan, of which this district formed a part.

FERMANAGH, co. Ulster, I.

N to S 43 m. E to W 33 m. No. of Acres 459,058. Baronies 8. Boroughs 1. Market-towns 5. Parishes 35. Pop. 130,997. Momb. of Pt. 3. Diocese of Clogher, & Archdiocese of Armagh.

The most picturesque county in the province of Ulster. It is bounded on the north by the counties of Donegal and Tyrone; on the east by Tyrone and Monaghan; on the south by Cavan and Leitrim; and on the west by parts of Leitrim and of Donegal. It may be said to be ornamented rather than encumbered by mountains, of which Belmore, Culka, and Knockninny, are the most beautiful objects in the landscape; but Tossid, the most conspicuous, and most advantageously situated for the enjoyment of an extensive prospect, parts of nine counties being distinctly seen from the cairn upon its summit. The lowland of the county is interspersed with bog, and one-sixth of the whole area is occupied by the surface of Lough Erne during summer, and one-fifth in the winter season; this vast inland sea is nearly equal in magnitude to Lough Neagh. The residue of the level country is abundantly productive. The scenery of Fermanagh is remarkably interesting, and as yet but little known beyond the circle of its proprietors and their occasional visitors. The great lake of Erne is beautified by about 100 islands, some of them inhabited, and its banks are adorned by the seats of noblemen and gentlemen, many of whom are constant residents. The demesnes of Lord Enniskillen and Lord Belmore are remarkable for their extent and beauty; and Castle Caldwell, Killy-Hevlyn, and Lord Elys, the latter situated upon the margin of the water, possess the most romantic feature imaginable. Few parts of Ireland can boast of so many resident gentry. The rivers are all insignificant, merely feeders of the great sheet of water which occupies so large a portion of the county's surface; the principal are the Sillus, Burney, Ballindaragh, Clodagh, Ballycassidy, Kesh Water, and Moorlough rivers. There are upwards of fifty minor streams which also contribute their waters to swell the tide of Lough Erne. In those rivers, or rather in their product, the great lake, are taken pike-fish, perch, white and speckled trout, bream, red roach, a species of fish called fresh-water herrings, salmon and eels, both of the silver and mud kinds, much esteemed for the excellence of their flavour. Oats and barley are raised here in large quantities; prime cattle fed, and no market in Ireland exhibits meat of superior quality or feeding to that commonly seen in Enniskillen, the county town. The geological structure consists of sandstone and secondary limestone, alternating with tolerable regularity. Red sandstone exists in Tossid Mountain. Yellow sandstone, well adapted for building, lies round the town of Enniskillen, and in several of the islands of Lough Erne limestone may be had every where. A beautiful species of brown marble is found near Florence Court, a limestone district, but it requires to be worked to a greater depth than it is at present, in order to obtain blocks and slabs free from skull-cracks. Coals have been raised in Glengarron Hills, by the peasantry for their private use, but no effort has yet been made to work pits upon a large scale. The cheapness of turf-fuel probably occasions this culpable remissness. There are eight baronies in this county; they are called Clonkelly, Coole, Glenawly, Knockninny, Lurg, Magheraboy, Magherastephana, and Tyrkennedy, the chief towns in which are Enniskillen, the county town, Royslea, Maguire's Bridge, Lisnasken, Newtown-Butler, Brookborough, Lisbellaw, and Tempoe. The only occupations in which the inhabitants are engaged are agriculture; the linen-trade of this district is entirely lost. The inland navigation afforded by the lake, is valuable and perfect, as affects this county, and it is contemplated to extend the navigation to the sea, by a canal from Belleek to some place in Donegal Bay, south of Ballyshannon, and a second canal is also proposed to connect Lough Foyle and Lough Erne, falling into the latter at Ballycassidy, by which improvement, Fermanagh will enjoy all the advantages of a maritime county. The county has the privilege of returning two members to the imperial Parliament, and the barony of Enniskillen one.

FERMOY, co. Cork, Munster, I.

Pop. 41,790.

A barony, sometimes also called Armoyn, containing twenty-three parishes, and having an area of 112,034 acres of land, of an excellent quality, resting upon a limestone base. It is watered by the Awbeg and Blackwater rivers, and includes the fashionable watering-place of Mallow, the towns of Doneraile, Castletown, and Roche, and Kilcoleman, where are the ruins of the ancient castle, immortalized in the records of literature, as the residence of Spenser, and the retirement in which he composed his divine poem of "The Faery Queen." The barony was anciently the country of the Roches, Gibbons, and Condons, and was called the "Sacred Plain," from the vast number of Druids' altars erected here in the third century. The inhabitants were denominated Fear-Magh Feine (corrupted into Fermoy), which signifies, the metropolis of the sacred plain.

FERMOY, co. Cork, Munster, I.

Dublin 143 m. S.W. Pop. of Pa. 615.
Of To. 6702. M. D. Sat. Fairs, June 21;
Aug. 20; and Nov. 7.

A handsome town in the parish of Fermoy and barony of Condons and Clongibbons, situated upon the river Blackwater, which is crossed at this place by a stone bridge, of thirteen arches. The town is regularly built, and consists of several broad and handsome streets. It was planned and erected by Mr. John Anderson, whose name is associated with the first introduction of mail-coaches into Ireland, and does credit to his public spirit and sound judgment. He converted a mean village into a large, handsome, and convenient town, which he lived to see attain a character as a place of manufacture and of trade, and the chief military station in the south of the kingdom. The public buildings are erected from regular and architectural designs. The church, designed by Mr. Hargrave, is much admired. Here are also a Roman Catholic chapel, meeting-houses of dissenters, a spacious market-house, and extensive barracks for cavalry, infantry, and artillery. The meat-market is held in an enclosure, appropriated to the purpose, where each butcher pays a small sum for his stall. Flour-mills, where seventy persons find constant work, breweries of beer and ale, manufactories of soap and candles, and of various other necessities, are established, not only for the consumption of the town, but also for that of the surrounding district. Fermoy ale may be ranked amongst the best class of strong malt liquors. The brewery employs 100 hands through the year. A paper-mill has been long established here; and although this is an inland place, yet the establishment of an extensive permanent barracks, the energy of the founder, and the taste and judgment exerted in advancing its infant interests, have improved Fermoy to a respectable position amongst the towns of this province. The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the impropriate cure of Dohmahon; patrons, the representatives of J. Anderson, Esq. The Classical School is sustained partly by endowment, and has always possessed a high character. In the town there is a subscription-school, where 300 children receive gratuitous education. A line of navigation has been recommended to extend from this to Lismore; but, probably, a railway will now be adopted to open a communication either with that place or with Marlow. A Cistercian abbey was founded here in 1270, under the invocation of the Virgin Mary; its site is now occupied by the parish church.

PERNELL, shire of Forfar, S.

P. T. Brechin (66) 3½ m. S. Pop. 599.

A parish, three miles in length by two in breadth, and bounded on the north by the South Esk, in which there is a very valuable salmon-fishery, the property of Sir James Carnegie, Bart, the chief heritor of the parish, whose residence, Kinnaid Castle, lately erected, is a most sumptuous mansion. The living is in the presbytery of Brechin and synod of Angus and Mearns; patron, the Crown. The church, recently rebuilt, is an elegant structure, situated near the ruins of an ancient castle, at one period the seat of the family of Airley.

FERNHAM, or FARNHAM, co. Berks.

P. T. Great Farringdon (68) 2½ m. S. E. Pop. 183.

A hamlet in the parish, and hundred of Shrivensham.

FERNS, co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

Dublin 75 m. S. b. W. Pop. 4098. Fairs, Feb. 11; May 12; Sept. 4; and Oct. 29.

A small village in the parish of Ferns and baronies of Gorey and Scarewalsh, situated upon a rivulet called the Bann; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Ferns and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the rectories of Clone and Kilbride, and possessing a church, with a handsome glebe-house, upon a glebe of forty-six acres; value, by commutation for tithes, 830*l.* 1*s.* 4½*d.*; of which the lay impropriator receives 553*l.* 1*s.* 11*d.* The diocesan-school of Ferns was founded under the 12th of Elizabeth, chap. 1st, and endowed with a salary of 21*l.* per annum. In the parish of Ferns there is a school of fifteen boys and an equal number of girls, upon the foundation of Erasmus Smith. This is the see of a bishop, who was in the early ages styled Bishop of Wexford. The see is supposed to have been founded about the year 599, by Maidoc, the friend of St. David. It extends fifty miles in length, by twenty-two in breadth, and includes all Wexford, and a part of the county Wicklow, occupying an area of 520,503 statute acres; it was united to the see of Leighlin in the year 1600, which union is continued to the present time. The chapter of Ferns consists of a dean, precentor, chancellor, treasurer, archdeacon, and ten prebendaries. The cathedral church, which is also parochial, is a small building, not at all commensurate to the extent or value of the see. The tomb of the patron saint is preserved in a canopied niche in the north wall. The palace, which stands in a spacious demesne adjacent to the cathedral, is a noble square edifice, finished in a splendid style, and erected during the prelacy of Dr. Cope; it is now possessed by the learned

Dr. Elrington, known in the literary world as a divinity scholar. Ferns was once the residence of the kings of Leinster, and the ruins of the palace of the despicable Mac Murchard are still extensive. In the year 1166, this base monarch fired the town, and as an atonement for his barbarity afterwards founded an abbey here, under the invocation of the Virgin Mary, for canons regular of the rule of St. Augustin, which he also endowed with vast possessions.

FERRARD, co. Louth, Leinster, I.

Pop. 21,019.

One of the five baronies into which the county is divided. It contains twenty-one parishes, the towns of Collon and Dunleer, besides the villages of Port, Clogher, Termonfeckin, and Beg of Rath. It is a fertile agricultural district, badly supplied with water, and possessing a singularly undulating surface. This barony gives the title of Viscount to the family of Foster.

FERRIBY, NORTH, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (174) 8 m. WSW.
Pop. of Pa. 765. Of To. 347.

A parish and township in the county of the town of Kingston-upon-Hull, pleasantly seated near the river Humber, on the opposite side of which, in Lincolnshire, is the parish of South Ferriby; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 8l. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Sir Robert Peel, Bart. Here was formerly an extensive and magnificent priory, no remains of which are now discoverable. In this neighbourhood many handsome mansions, the residences of the merchants of Hull.

FERRIBY, SOUTH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Barton-upon-Humber (107) 4 m. WSW.
Pop. 453.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Yarnborough, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12l. 17s. 6d.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Bishop of Lincoln.

FERRING, co. Sussex.

P. T. Worthing (56) 4 m. W. Pop. 226.

A parish in the hundred of Poling, rape of Arundel; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 6l. 8s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 150l.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, the Prebendary of Ferring in Chichester cathedral.

FERRIS-NORTON, co. Somerset.

Pop. 4047.

A hundred on the east side of the county on the borders of Dorsetshire, containing ten parishes.

FERRY, Shire of Forfar, S.

P. T. Dundee (40) 3 m. E. Pop. with Pa.

A considerable sea-bathing place in the parish of Dundee, situated on the northern side of the Firth of Tay, opposite to Ferry-port-on-Craig; it is neat and well built, with excellent accommodations for visitors.

FERRY-BANK, co. Wicklenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Waterford (04) 1 m. N. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Gautskill and barony of Ida, situated upon the northern bank of the river Suire, across which there was formerly a regular ferry from this place to the city of Waterford. Here are a few dwelling-houses, extensive stores, and a large distillery.

FERRY BRIDGE, W. R. co. York.

London 177 m. NNW. Pontefract 5 m. NE.
Pop. with Pa.

A small and neat post-town and township in the parish of Fryston Ferry and upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross. The inhabitants derive their chief support from travellers, for whose accommodation many good inns have been established. The petty-sessions for Osgoldcross wapentake are holden here.

FERRY FRYSTON. See Fryston Ferry.

FERRY HILL, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Rushy Ford (250) 2½ m. N b E.
Pop. 574.

A township in the parish of Merrington in Darlington ward, situated on an eminence on the north road.

FERRY, LITTLE and MEIKLE, shire of Ross, S.

P. T. Dornoch (210) 3½ m. S b W.
Pop. with Pa.

Two villages so called on the northern shore of the Firth of Dornoch, and in the parish of Dornoch (which article see).

FERRY-PORT, or CRAIG, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Cupar (30) 11½ m. NE b N. Pop. 1461.

A parish and small seaport in the district of St. Andrew's, anciently a part of the vicarage of Leuchars, and made a distinct parish in 1606. It stretches about five miles along the south bank of the Tay to its conflux with the ocean; but nowhere exceeds a mile in breadth, and contains 2026 Scotch acres, part arable, and part barren muirs. Across the Creek was a much-frequented ferry, till the erection of a bridge over the Tay, at Perth. A boat, under the control of the Custom-house at Dundee, is stationed here for the purpose of collecting the public revenue, from ships entering the river from abroad. The inhabitants of the village, which is a neat and thriving place, are chiefly occupied in a very productive salmon-fishery, and in the manufacture of coarse linen. The living is in the presbytery of St. Andrew's and synod of Fife; patron the Crown. The church was built in 1607. An estate in this parish, called Scot's Craig, belonged to Archbishop Sharp, who made it his residence many years.

FERRYDON, shire of Forfar, S.

Pop. with Pa.

A considerable fishing-village in the parish of Craig, possessing a good harbour; it is situated on the South Esk opposite to Montrose, and within the jurisdiction of that port, and is chiefly resorted to by fishermen.

FERSFIELD, co. Norfolk.

• P. T. Diss (86) 4 m. NW. Pop. 325.

A parish in the hundred of Diss; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Frederick Nassau, Esq.

FERTIANA, or FARTIANA, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Thurles (95) 4 m. SW. Pop. 1053.

A parish in the barony of Eliogarty. The living is a rectory entire, in the diocese of Emyl, and archdiocese of Cashel, and one of the parishes which constitute the mensal of the Archbishop of Cashel.

FESTINIOG, co. Merioneth, N. W.

• P. T. Tan-y-Bwlch (215) 3 m. NE.

Pop. 1108. Fairs, March 7; May 21; 1st Fri. aft. Trin.; July 2; Aug. 22; Sept. 26; Oct. 19; and Nov. 13.

A small hamlet in the parish of Festiniog and hundred of Arudwy, situated near the meeting of the rivers Cynfael and Dwyryhyd, upon the former of which are the famous waterfalls, grotesque rocks, and passages of river scenery, compared to the falls of Tivoli. In the hamlet are two inns, and a comfortable and cheap boarding-house. The living is a dis. rectory, with the rectory of Maen-Twrog, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Bangor. The slate-quarries on Lord Newborough's estate here give employment to the population. A railroad is much wanted from the quarries to the quay. Here is a cold spring, efficacious in rheumatic complaints. In this parish is a Roman camp, called Tommyn-y-Mûr, a mount within the wall, where coins and other antiquities have been found. The Sarn Helen joins the camp, and passes on to Rhyayr-Helen, in the same parish.

FETCHAM, co. Surrey.

P. T. Leatherhead (18) 1 m. W. Pop. 377.

A parish in the second division of the hundred of Copthorne; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 21*l.* 10*s.* 5*d.*; patron (1829) the Rev. J. G. Bolland.

FETLAR, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

Lat. 60 41 N. Long. 56. 30 W.

Pop. with Pa.

One of the northernmost of the Shetland Islands, united to the parish of North Yell. It is four miles in length, three and a half in breadth, and contains about 400 acres, principally appropriated to pasture, but producing some corn and vegetables. Veins of copper, iron, and black lead, also garnets, have been met with here; and fuel is abundant. The living is in the presbytery of Shetland and synod of Orkney; patron, Lord Dundas. The inhabitants are chiefly occupied in the fisheries.

FETTERANGUS, shire of Banff, S.

Pop. with Old Deer.

An ancient parish and village, united in 1618 to that of Old Deer, forming a detached portion of Banff, yet subject to the magistracy of Aberdeen. The village is considerable, and of modern foundation, the manufacture of linen, check, and linsay-woolseys, having been established here within the last few years. The church is in ruins, but the cemetery continues still in use for burials.

FETTERCAIRN, shire of Kincardine, S.

P. T. Brechin (96) 11 m. N. E. Pop. 1572.

Fairs, last Tues. O. S. April and Nov.

A parish and village; the former, comprising about 14,360 English acres, lies at the foot of the Grampian hills, and is watered by the North Esk, which is crossed by many small bridges, besides that of Gan-nachie, of one considerable arch, thrown over in a most romantic spot, about a century ago, at the expense of James Black, a farmer, who generously left funds for the purposes of keeping it in repair, and for the relief of the poor. By recent improvements in agriculture, the soil on the several fine estates has become very productive, and planting to a great extent has been attended with the desired success. The living is in the presbytery of Fordoun and synod of Angus and Mearns; patron, the Crown. The church is an ancient structure. The foundations are pointed out, on the lands of Balbigno, of a once spacious mansion, called Finella's Castle, the scene of the murder of Kenneth III. by the saint of that name. The title of Lord Clermont and Fettercairn was enjoyed by the family of Middleton, attained in 1695.

FETTERESSO, shire of Kincardine, S.

P. T. Stonehaven (107½) 1½ m. W. Pop. 4383.

A parish, ten miles in length, six in breadth, and comprising 24,914 English acres, about one-third only of which is cultivated, the remainder being muir, moss, and heath, with immense rocks of granite scattered over the surface. It is watered by the rivers Cowie and Carron, and bounded on the east by the North Sea, having on the coast, which is precipitous and rocky, the town and bay of Stonehaven, the small fishing-coves of Muchals and Skatraw, and near the former an elegant new village, founded by Mr. Barclay, of Urie, consisting of four streets, built at right angles, with a spacious square in the centre, the inhabitants of which are occupied in various manufactures. The living is in the presbytery of Fordoun and synod of Angus and Mearns; patron, the Crown. The church is ancient, but remarkable only for its unusually extensive cemetery. Here are various Druidical remains; a Roman camp, said to have been occupied by Agricola, before his battle with Galgacus; the ruins of an ancient castle, once the residence of the Thanes of Cowie; and on an adjacent eminence, vestiges of a sacred edifice, with a burial-ground attached, still used as such.

FEVERSHAM. See Faversham.

FEWCOTT, co. Oxford.

P. T. Bicester (54) 5 m. NW. Pop. 148.

A hamlet in the parish of Stoke Lyne and hundred of Ploughley.

FEWS, co. Armagh, Ulster, I.

Pop. 40,440.

A barony, the most westerly in the county, encumbered by a chain of lofty primitive hills, called the Fews Mountains; it is partly under bog, and interspersed with numerous small lakes and rivulets. It includes within its boundaries the towns of Market-Hill and Newtown-Hamilton, the villages of Hamilton's Bawn, Belleck, and Crossmeglén; and is ecclesiastically divided into six parishes. It was anciently the territory of the O'Neils.

FEWS, co. Waterford, Munster, I.

P. T. Kilmacthomas (109) 4 m. WNW. Pop. 1220.

A parish in the barony of Decies-without-Drum, situated upon the Mahon river; living, an inappropriate rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Lismore and archdiocese of Cashel; yielding, by commutation for tithes, 221*l.* 10*s.* 9*d.*, of which sum the lay impropriator receives 147*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.*; patron, the Duke of Devonshire. It is united to the parishes of Mothel and Rathgormack.

FEWSTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Otley (205) 6 m. N. b. W. Pop. of Pa. 1980. Of To. 610.

A parish and township in the lower division of the wapentake of Claro, situated in a pleasant part of Knarborough forest; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 5*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 113*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FIDDINGTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Tewkesbury (103) 1½ m. ENE. Pop. with Nutton tithing, 168.

A tithing in the parish of Ashchurch and lower division of the hundred of Tewkesbury.

FIDDINGTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Bridgewater (139) 7 m. WNW. Pop. 185.

A parish in the hundred of Cannington; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 10*s.* 2½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 94*l.* 8*s.*; church ded. to St. Martip; patron, (1829) the Rev. H. W. Rawlins.

FIDDOWN, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Carrick-on-Suir (110) 4½ m. SE. Pop. of Pa. 4101. Of Vil. 229. Fairs, April 25; June 10; Sept. 29; and Nov. 30.

A village of only thirty-eight houses, in the parish of the same name, and barony of Iverk, situated upon the river Suir; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin; united to four rectories, and possessing a church with a parsonage, upon a glebe of seventy-seven acres. Area of the union, about 17,000 acres; patron, the Bishop. The Earl of Besborough maintains a charity-school in the parish, of thirty-two boys and eight girls. There is a splendid monument in the parish church, to the memory of Brabazon, Earl of Besborough, and his Countess. In the year 590, St. Macdoo was abbot of this place.

FIDREY, shire of Haddington, S.

A beautiful little island in the Firth of Forth, near the shore of Ebbottle. It belongs to the parish of Dirlton, though it was anciently deemed a part of the parish of Golyn, and had a chapel, dedicated to St. Nicholas, the ruins of which are still visible.

FIELD, co. Stafford.

P. T. Uttoxeter (135) 4 m. W. Pop. 62

A pleasant township in the parish of and south division of the hundred of Blythe, through which runs the river Blythe.

FIELD-DALLING, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Little Walsingham (114) 5 m. Pop. 322.

A parish in the hundred of North Greenhoe; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 8*s.* 1½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 95*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patroness (1829) Mrs. Smith.

FIELDSTOWN, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Dublin 12 m. NW. Pop. of Pa. Fair, Whit-Mon.

A village in the parish of Clonmethan and barony of Northcross, situated upon a rivulet, which is crossed by a stone bridge. It is only remarkable for the show of good horses annually exhibited at the fair. Here are the ruins of a church.

FIFE, shire of, S.

NE. to SW. 36 m. NW. to SE. 18 m. Square m. 504. No. of Scottish acres 257,000. Districts 4. Parishes 63. Royal Burghs 13. Pop. 114,550. Mem. of Pt. I.

A maritime county of Scotland, bounded on the north by the Firth of Tay, on the south by the Firth of Forth, on the east by the North Sea, and on the west by the shires of Perth, Kinross, and Clackmannan. The climate is healthy, the surface richly diversified with woods and plantations, and four-fifths of the soil under cultivation, and extremely productive both in corn, and pasturage for a breed of cattle in high repute among English graziers, and for sheep noted for the excellence of their wool. The southern portion of the soil, lies upon a fine substratum of coal, of which extensive mines are now in full operation; and the shire is rich also in other minerals, such as lead and iron ore, the latter being supplied in immense quantities to the famous Carron works. The principal rivers are the Eden and Leven, in the former of which agates, cornelians, and jaspers, have been found, and in the neighbourhood of Earls-ferry rubies of a brilliant water. Both rivers abound with salmon and trout, the Eden falling into the sea at St. Andrew's, and the Leven at a village to which it gives name. The herring and white fisheries upon the coast are prosecuted with such success that vast quantities are annually exported from the seaports, of which the chief are St. Andrew's, Anstruther East and West, Burntisland, Crail, Dysart, Inverkeithing, Kilrenny, Kinghorn, Kirkcaldy, and Pittenween, all royal burghs; the other two burghs, being Cupar, the county-town, and Dundfermline, the largest place in the shire. About 20,000 tons of shipping belong to these ports, by which also are exported coal, lime, grain, and many of the manufactured articles of the towns and villages; these consist of linen in all its branches, soap, candles, salt, kelp, bricks, and tiles, which, and ship-building, brewing, and distilling, employ to the numerous population. Fife is divided into four ecclesiastical districts, viz., St. Andrew's, Cupar, Dundfermline, and Kirkcaldy, each the seat of presbytery; it returns one member to Parliament, and gives title of Earl to the family of Duff, as it did anciently to the Macduffs, who restored Malcolm III. to the throne, after the usurpation of Macbeth. There are many Roman remains, and the ruins of mansions formerly inhabited by powerful nobles.

FIFE-NESS, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Crail (39) 2 m. NE. Pop. with Pa.

A small village in the parish of Crail and district of St. Andrew's, situated on the easternmost promontory of the shire, which projects into the bay, between the Firths of Forth and Tay. Latitude 56° deg. 17 min. north, longitude 2° deg. east, and off which is a buoy for the guidance of coasters round the dangerous reef to the north-east. A beacon containing a bell, to be rung at flood and ebb tides, has also been erected here, as a warning to mariners.

FIFEHEAD, MAGDALEN, co. Dorset.

P. T. Shaftsbury (101) 6 m. W b S. Pop. 206.

A parish in the hundred of Red Lane, Sherborne division; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 7*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron, the Bishop of Bristol.

FIFEHEAD NEVILLE, co. Dorset.

P. T. Blandford-Forum (103) 10½ m. NW b W. Pop. 95.

A parish in the hundred of Pimperne, Blandford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 1*s.* 5½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Lord Rivers.

FIFIELD, co. Oxford.

P. T. Wallingford (46) 2 m. NE. Pop. 2.

A hamlet in the parish of Bensington and hundred of Dorchester.

FIFIELD, co. Oxford.

P. T. Burford (72) 4 m. N b W. Pop. 136.

A parish in the hundred of Chadlington; living, a curacy, with that of Swinbrook, and a peculiar of the Chancellor of Salisbury, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 45*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patronage with Swinbrook curacy.

FIFIELD BAVANT, co. Wilts.

P. T. Wilton (84) 6½ m. SW. Pop. 42.

A parish in the hundred of Chalk; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 10*s.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FIGGLEDDEAN, co. Wilts.

P. T. Amesbury (77) 4 m. N b W. Pop. 437.

A parish in the hundred of Amesbury; living, a dis. vicarage, with the curacy of Plaitford, and a peculiar of the Treasurer of Salisbury; certified value 14*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*; patron, the Treasurer of Salisbury.

FILBY, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Caistor (126) 3 m. WNW. Pop. 424.

A parish in the hundred of East Fleg; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 1*s.* 5½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Charles Lucas, Esq.

FILEY, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Scarborough (217) 7 m. SE. Pop. 1123.

A small fishing-town and parish in the wapentake of Dickering, famous for its fish, and lobsters particularly; from the fine sands here it is becoming a resort for sea-bathing; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; certified value 16*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; church ded. to St. Oswald; patron (1829) H. Osbaldeston, Esq. Here is a ridge of rocks, called Filey Bridge, which projects nearly half a mile into the sea, and at low water is perfectly dry.

FILGRAVE, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Newport Pagnel (50) 4 m. N. Pop. with Tyrringham Parish.

A parish in the hundred of Newport; living, a rectory united to that of Tyrringham, in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 19*s.* 7*d.*; patronage with Tyrringham rectory.

FILKINS, co. Oxford.

P. T. Burford (72) 5 m. S b WJ. Pop. 508.

A hamlet in the parish of Broadwell and hundred of Bampton.

FILLEIGH, co. Devon.

P. T. South Molton (178) 3½ m. WNW. Pop. 307.

A parish in the hundred of Braunton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 5*s.* 2½*d.*; church ded. to St. Paul; patron (1829) Earl Fortescue.

FILLINGHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 10 m. N b W. Pop. 279.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Aslaoce, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 22*l*.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, Balliol College, Oxford.

FILLONGLEY, co. Warwick.

• P. T. Coventry (91) 6½ m. NW b N.
Pop. 936.

A parish in the Atherstone division of the hundred of Hemlingford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 8*l*. 9*s*. 9*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 140*l*.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FILTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Bristol (114) 4 m. N b E. Pop. 210.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Berkeley; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Gloucester and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 7*l*.; church ded to St. Peter; patroness (1829) Mrs. Manley.

FILTON, or WHITCHURCH, co. Somerset.

P. T. Pensford (116) 1½ m. N. Pop. 403.

A parish in the hundred of Keynsham; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Bath and diocese of Bath and Wells; certified value 14*l*.; church ded. to St. Gregory; patron (1829) Sir J. H. Smith, Bart.

FIMBER, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (106) 9 m. W b N.
Pop. 104.

A parish, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Buckrose; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Wetwang, in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York, not in charge; patronage with Wetwang vicarage.

FIMBOROUGH, GREAT, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Stow-Market (69) 3 m. WSW.
Pop. 300.

A parish in the hundred of Stow, watered by a small river which joins the Gipping, below Stow-Market, and adds to the beauty of this part of the county, which is in other respects also very pleasant; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l*. 1*s*. 3*d*.; patron, the Bishop of Ely. In the church, ded. to St. Andrew, are many monuments to the Woollastons, to which family this manor formerly belonged. Fimborough Hall is a pleasant mansion, seated in a finely-wooded park; it is a brick building, and was erected by Roger Pettyward, Esq., the lord of the manor, in 1795.

FIMBOROUGH, LITTLE, co. Suffolk.

• P. T. Stow-Market (69) 4 m. SW b S.
Pop. 70.

A parish in the hundred of Stow; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 1*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, King's College, Cambridge.

FIN, RIVER, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

A river, which takes its rise amidst the lofty mountains of Donegal, in Lough Filly, and passing through the barony of Raphoe, flows by Stranorlar and Lifford, and uniting its waters with those of the river Moura at Strabane, constitute the navigable river Foyle, which falls into the estuary of the same name, below the city of Londonderry.

FINAE, co. Westmeath, Leinster, I.

• P. T. Castle-Pollard (62) m. N b W.
Pop. not returned. Fair, Sat. bef. Whit-Sund.; July 27; Aug. 18; Sept. 18; and Nov. 15.

A neat village in the barony of Demifore, agreeably situated upon the river which connects Lough Sillen to Lough Inny. This river is the boundary of Cavan and Westmeath at this place, and is here crossed by a stone bridge.

FINAN, ST., shire of Argyre, S.

A small and beautiful island of Loch Shiel, in the parish of Ardnamurchan. It lies near the mouth of the river Finan, which empties itself into that extensive sheet of water, and had formerly a church, the ruins of which are still discernible.

FINCASTLE, shire of Perth, S.

One of the five districts comprising the parish of Dull, from the church of which it is distant fifteen miles, across a lofty chain of mountains. It is bounded on the south by the river Tummel, contains many ancient castles, from which it probably derives its name, and is visited by the minister only a few times annually for the performance of his spiritual duties. It gives the title of Viscount to the Murrays, Earls of Dunmore.

FINCHDALE, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (25*s*) 4 m. NNE.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of St. Oswald's and middle division of Chester ward. Here are the ruins of an ancient priory, supposed to have been founded about the year 1128. This place seems to have been of some consequence in the Saxon era, as, according to Leland, a synod was held here in 792, and also in 810; it is likewise famous for the unheard-of severities which St. Godric voluntarily underwent; he was born at Walpole, in Norfolk, and went twice on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem.

FINCH-DEAN, co. Southampton.

Pop. 6963.

A hundred near the south-eastern corner and Alton, south division of the county, containing six parishes, including the borough of Petersfield.

FINCHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Downham-Market (84) 5½ m. ENE.
Pop. 703.

A village, comprising the united parishes of St. Martin and St. Michael, in the hundred of Clackclose; living, a vicarage and rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; the former valued in K. B. 10*l.*; the latter 7*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; patrons (1829) the Lord Chancellor and the Rev. R. Forby alternately; the former this time a mansion, built in the time of Edward IV., now converted into a farmhouse, exhibits some fine old specimens of Grecian architecture.

FINCHAMSTEAD, co. Berks.

T. Wokingham (31) 4½ m. SSW.
Pop. 552.

A parish in the hundred of Charlton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 9*s.* 4½*d.*; church ded. to St. James patron (1829) the Rev. Ellis St. John.

FINCHINGFIELD, co. Essex.

P. T. Thaxted (44) 5½ m. E b N. Pop. 2007.

A parish in the hundred of Hinckford; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 18*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) R. Marriott, Esq.

FINCHLEY, co. Middlesex.

London 8 m. NNW. Pop. 2340.

A parish in the Finsbury division of the hundred of Ossulston, situated in a pleasant airy part of the county, near the road to St. Alban's. Finchley Common contains about 1000 acres of land, great parts of which have been enclosed and brought under cultivation. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 20*l.*; patron, the Bishop of London. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a neat structure with a substantial embattled tower. This parish enjoys the privileges of the free-school at Highgate. Here General Monk drew up his forces in 1660, when on his way to the metropolis to effect the restoration. In this village are many handsome and substantial villas, the retreats of merchants and others from London.

FINDERN, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (120) 4½ m. SW b S. Pop. 363.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Mickle Over and hundred of Morleston and Litchurch; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Mickle Over in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 60*l.*; chapel ded. to All Saints; patronage with Mickle Over vicarage.

FINDHORN, shire of Elgin, S.

P. T. Forres (157) 3¼ m. N. Pop. with Pa.

A seaport town and burgh of barony in the parish of Kinloss, situated on a fine plain, near the entrance of a bay of the same name, in the Moray Firth. The harbour, which is the port of the town of Forres, is formed by the river Findhorn, but large ships are prevented from entering by a bar, which occasionally shifts its position. It however possesses thriving foreign and coasting-trades by small vessels. The principal exports are corn, salmon, and yarn, and the imports coal, manufactured goods, and colonial produce.

FINDOCHTIE, shire of Banff, S.

P. T. Cullen (170) 3½ m. W b N.
Pop. with Pa.

A considerable fishing-village, in the parish of Ruthven, situated on a fine bay of the same name, which at no great expense may be rendered one of the safest harbours in Scotland. It was first settled in 1716, by a few fishermen from Frazerburgh, whose descendants are respectable, and distinguished for their superior mode of curing fish.

FINDON, shire of Kincardine, S.

P. T. Aberdeen (121½) 6½ m. S.
Pop. with Pa.

A fishing-village, on the North Sea, in the parish of Banchory-Davenick, noted for its fine haddocks and for the peculiar way of drying them by the smoke of peat.

FINDON, co. Sussex.

P. T. Steyning (50) 4½ m. WSW. Pop. 477.
Fairs, Holy Thursday, for Pedlars' wgre;
Sep. 14, for sheep.

A parish in the hundred of Brightford, rape of Bramber; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, Magdalen College, Oxford. In this parish are several pleasant seats tastefully decorated with plantations of trees and shrubs.

FINDONAGH, co. Monaghan, Ulster, I.

P. T. Monaghan (84) m. N b W.
Pop. not returned.

A parish in the barony of Monaghan; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Clogher and archdiocese of Armagh, and constitutes the corps of a prebend; producing, by commutation for tithes, 600*l.* per annum; and possessing a church, with a parsonage, upon a glebe of 647 acres; patron, the Bishop.

FINEDON, or THINGDON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Wellingborough (67) 2 m. NE b N.
Pop. 1150.

A pleasant parish in the hundred of Huxloe; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.*; patron (1829) Sir E. Dolben, Bart., to whom belongs Finedon Hall, a large handsome mansion in this village. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a spacious and handsome structure, consisting of a nave, two aisles, a transept, chancel, and a large south porch, with a lofty tower terminated by a spire.

FINESHADE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Oundle (81) 8 m. NNW. Pop. 76.

A parish in the hundred of Corby; living, donative and a peculiar in the diocese of Peterborough, not in charge; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) C. Kirkman, Esq. Here was formerly a priory, which was built on the site of a very ancient fortress, called Castle Hymel.

FINGAL, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

A name given to a large district, occupying the northern part of the county. The Fingalians speak a dialect peculiar to themselves, their features, voice, and manners are also very distinct from those of the peasantry elsewhere in the county; those residing on the seashore are expert and industrious fishers, and those more inland are energetic farmers. The family of Plunket take the title of Earl from this ancient district.

FINGHALL, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Middleham (232) 4½ m. ENE.
Pop. of Pa. 398. Of To. 126.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Hang West; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 18l. 18s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Marm. Wyville, Esq.

FINGEST, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Great Marlow (31) 5½ m. NW. b W.
Pop. 205.

A parish in the hundred of Desborough; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 6l. 7s. 11d.; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patron, the Prebendary of Daltincourt, in Wells cathedral.

FINGLAND, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Wigton (303) 6 m. N. Pop. 128.

A township in the parish of Bowness, and in Cumberland ward.

FINGLASS, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Dublin 3½ m. N. Pop. of Pa. 1181.
Of Vil. 672. Fair, May 6.

A village and parish in the barony of Nethercross; the former situated upon the Fofka river; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough, and archdiocese of Dublin. The rectorial tithes belong to the chancellorship, and the vicarage is united to the curacy of Ballycoolane. Here are a church, glebe-house, and twenty-five acres of land. An abbey was founded here at an early period, probably by St. Patrick.

FINGLASS, King's co. Leinster, I.

P. T. Meneygall (81) 3 m. SE.
Pop. with Dunkerrin.

A parish in the barony of Clonlisk; living, a rectory in the diocese of Killaloe and archdiocese of Cashel; producing, by commutation for tithes, 50l. 0s. 6d., and constituting part of the union of Dunkerrin.

FINGLASS BRIDGE, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Dublin 3 m. N. Pop. 274.

A village in the parish of Finglass, situated upon the Tolha river, across which a bridge is thrown which gives a name to the place. The situation is agreeable and sheltered, and there are many handsome residences in the vicinity. Here is a Protestant school of thirty-five boys and twenty-five girls, and a Roman Catholic school of forty boys and twenty girls, both supported by subscription.

FINGRINHOE, co. Essex.

P. T. Colchester (5) 4 m. SE. b S. Pop. 472.

A parish in the hundred of Winstreet; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 13l. 7s.; ann. val. P. R. 100l.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Peter Firman, Esq.

FINK, ST., shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Blairgowrie (58) 2½ m. ENE.
Pop. with Pa.

A village, called also Chapel-town, in the parish of Bendothy. It is situated near the junction of the rivers Eroch and Isla, where are vestiges of an ancient chapel and cemetery.

FINMERE, co. Oxford.

P. T. Bicester (54) 8 m. NE. b N. Pop. 300.

A parish in the hundred of Ploughley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 8l. 9s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 126l. 6s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) the Duke of Buckingham.

FINNINGHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Eye (81) 6 m. WSW. Pop. 435.

A parish in the hundred of Hartismere; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10l. 10s. 5d.; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patron (1829) the Right Hon. J. H. Frere.

FINNIESTON, shire of Lanark, S.

A populous village, in the barony parish, adjacent to and within the jurisdiction of the city of Glasgow.

FINNINGLEY, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Bawtry (153) 4 m. N. b E. Pop. 783.

A parish and township in the Hatfield division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, situated in that part of the country which extends itself between Yorkshire and Lincolnshire; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 13l. 4s. 9d.; church ded. to St. Oswald; patron (1829) J. Havey, Esq. Here is a school for clothing and educating the children of the parish.

FINOE, or FINNOE, or FYNNOUGH, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Burris-o-kane (61) 4 m. SW. Pop. 1730.

A parish in the barony of Lower Ormond; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Killaloe and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the rectory and vicarage of Cloghprior, and possessing a church, glebe-house, and about fifty acres of glebe, and producing, by commutation for tithes, 217l. per annum.

FINOUGH, co. Clare, Munster, I.

P. T. Six-mile Bridge (130) 2 m. NW.
Pop. 753.

A parish in the barony of Bunratty; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Killaloe and archdiocese of Cashel; producing, by commutation for tithes, 150*l*. per annum, and united to three other benefices in the same diocese. Lord Egremont is patron of the rectory, the Bishop of the vicarage.

FINSTHWAITHE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Cartmel (234) 5½ m. N. Pop. with I

A township and chapelry in the parish of Coulson and hundred of Lonsdale, north of the Sands; living, a curacy, in the archdeaconry of Chester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 85*l*.; patrons, the Landowners. The chapel, which is ded. to St. Peter, was consecrated in 1725.

FINSTOCK, co. Oxford.

P. T. Whitney (65) 4 m. N. Pop. 497.

A hamlet in the parish of Charlebury and hundred of Banbury.

FINTANA, co. Tyrone, Ulster I.

Dublin 124 m. N b W. Pop. 1536.

Fairs, May 4; June 22; and Oct. 29.

A poor and fair town in the parish of Donaghcavey and barony of Clogher.

FINNVN, co Donegal, Ulster I.

P. T. Stranorlar (151) m. NW. Pop. 80.

Fairs, May 16; July 3; Sept. and Nov.

A hamlet in the parish of Iniskeel and barony of Boyleagh.

FINTRAY, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Aberdeen (121½) 8½ m NW. Pop. 996.

A parish in the district of Aberdeen, comprising about 10,000 acres, and bounded on the south by the river Don. The surface is undulated, but the soil is rich and fruitful, except to the northward, where are extensive muirs and peat mosses. Many of the inhabitants are employed in knitting hosiery. The living is in the presbytery and synod of Aberdeen; patron Sir William Forbes, Bart., who owns the greater portion of the parish.

FINTRY, shire of Stirling, S.

P. T. Stirling (35½) 12 m. SW. Pop. 1102.

A parish five miles in length, by four in breadth, situated behind the Campsie Fells, which form part of the range of heights stretching from Stirling to Dumbarton. The Carron and Enrick have their sources here, the latter forming a fine cataract termed the Loupe of Fintry; the vales through which these rivers flow, are the only inhabited portions of the parish. An extensive cotton-mill, established on the banks of the Enrick, has caused the recent erection of a neat village on an adjacent eminence, for the residence of the manufacturers. Near it is the Dun, a hill abounding with iron, and exhibiting a noble front of perpendicular basaltic columns, fifty feet high, and about seventy in number. The living is in the presbytery of Dumbarton and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, Duke of Montrose.

FINUGE, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

P. T. Listowel (169) 2 m. SW. Pop. 1248.

A parish in the barony of Clanmaurice, situated upon the river Feale. The living is a vicarage in [the diocese of Ardferit and Agbadoc and archdiocese of Cashel; yielding, by commutation for tithes, 129*l*. 4*s*. 6*d*. per ann., of which the lay impropriator receives 61*l*. 12*s*. 3*d*. It is one of ten parishes which constitute the union of Knockanure.

FINVOY, co. Antrim, Ulster, I.

P. T. Ballymoney (150) 4½ m. SW. Pop. 5096.

A parish in the barony of Kilconway; living, a rectory, in the diocese of Connor and archdiocese of Armagh; producing, by commutation for tithes, 150*l*. per ann. Here are a church and glebe-house; area of parish, 12,958 acres.

FIRBANK, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kirkby Lonsdale (253) 11 m. N.

Pop. 209.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Kirkby Lonsdale, in Lonsdale ward, in a wild and mountainous part of the county, on the west side of the river Lune; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Kirkby Lonsdale, in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 4*l*. 8*s*. 4*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 92*l*. 12*s*.; patron, the Vicar of Kirkby Lonsdale. The chapel and school are situated on the side of an extensive moor; the former has an estate called Green-in-Lambrigg, left by Anthony Ward, together with 50*l*., which, with 800*l*. of Queen Anne's Bounty, was laid out in the purchase of land.

FIRBECK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Bawtry (153) 7½ m. SW b W. Pop. 226.

A parish and township, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the upper division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill; living, a curacy with Letwell, subordinate to the vicarage of Laughton-en-le-Morthen, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York, of the certified value of 15*l*. 15*s*. 10*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 41*l*.; chapel ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Chancellor of York.

FIRBY, E. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 4½ m. SW b S.

Pop. 44.

A township in the parish of Westow and wapentake of Buckrose.

FIRBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Bedale (223) 1½ m. SSE. Pop. 76.

A township in the parish of Bedale and wapentake of Hang East.

FIRLE, WEST, co. Sussex.

P. T. Lewes (50) 5 m. SE b E. Pop. 641.

A parish in the hundred of Totnau, rape of Pevensey; living, a vicarage united to that of Beddingham, in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 13*l*. 9*s*. 4½*d*.; church ded. to St. Peter; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Chichester.

FIRMOUNT, co. Longford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Edgeworthstown (66) 2 m. NE.

Pop. not specified.

A village in the barony of Granard; living, a chapelry in the diocese of Ardagh and archdiocese of Armagh.

FIRSBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 5 m. SE b E. Pop. 119.

A parish in the Wold division of the wapentake of Candleshoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory with that of Great Steeping, in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12l. 0s. 2½d.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Joseph Walls, Esq.

FIRSBY, EAST, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Market Raisin (148) ½ m. W b S. Pop. 29.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Aslaoce, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6l. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to St. James; holden by sequestration.

FIRSBY, WEST, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Market Raisin (148) ½ m. W b S. Pop. 31.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Aslaoce, parts of Lindsey.

FIRTH, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

Pop. 515. Fairs, 4 annually, for cattle and horses.

A parish in Mainland, Orkney, ecclesiastically united to that of Stenness, and with which is nine miles in length, but of unequal breadth. The road from Stenness to Firth passes through a narrow glen, opening upon the extensive bay of Firth, around which lies the most fertile and populous part of the parish. On the coast are various kinds of fish, with oysters of unusual size, though equal in delicacy to the celebrated ones of Colchester. In winter swans resort hither, as well as to the beautiful Loch Stenness, and Harra, which not only abound with fish, but are studded with little holmes, affording security to numerous species of ducks, and other wild fowl, for rearing their young. Kelp is manufactured along the shore in great quantities; marl also is plentiful, in digging for which the horns and bones of stags are sometimes discovered at a great depth. Here are quarries of excellent slate and flagstone, and in the northern districts, extensive peat mosses, producing a good supply of fuel. On a plain between two hills are several tumuli, evidences of a great battle fought there at some remote period. The living is in the presbytery of Cairston and synod of Orkney.

FISHBOURNE, NEW, co. Sussex.

P. T. Chichester (32) 1½ m. W. Pop. 283.

A parish in the hundred of Box and Stockbridge, rape of Chichester; living, a rectory and peculiar of the Dean of Chichester; valued in K. B. 5l. 10s.; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FISHBURN, co. Pal. of Durham.

T. T. Durham (258) 9 m. SE b S. Pop. 192.

A township in the parish of Sedgfield and north-east division of Stockton ward. Lord

Crewe's Trustees have endowed a school here with 5l. per annum; and the poor are periodically relieved from the proceeds of several charitable bequests. In this village is a chapel for the use of a congregation of dissenters.

FISHER-ROW, shire of Edinburgh, S."

Edinburgh 5 m. E. Pop. with Pa. M. D. Tues.

A seaport and market-town in the parish of Inveresk, and within the jurisdiction of the town of Musselburgh, of which it forms an extensive suburb separated only by the river Esk, and communicating therewith by an old bridge, supposed to have been thrown across by the Romans, and by another of iron, an elegant ornament to the place lately constructed. The town consists of one spacious well-built street from east to west, containing many handsome modern houses, and on the north an inferior one, the inhabitants of which are chiefly noted for their strength and laborious exertions in carrying immense quantities of fish in creels to the metropolis. The town is at the west-end of the town, as is defended by a pier. The only foreign trade carried on here is the Baltic, which, with the manufacture of starch, a tannery, and several considerable breweries, employ most part of the population. Eight of the town-council, governing Musselburgh and its dependencies, are elected from Fisher-Row.

FISHERGATE, co. Sussex.

• Pop. 6700.

A hundred, partly in the rape of Bramber, and partly in the rape of Lewes, nearly in the centre of the county, containing seven parishes, including the boroughs of Horsham and New Shoreham.

FISHERTON, ANGER, co. Wilts.

P. T. Salisbury (81) 1 m. W. Pop. 1253.

A parish in the hundred of Branch and Dole; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 13l.; ann. val. P. R. 123l.; church ded. to St. Clement; patron (1829) W. H. F. Talbot, Esq. Here was formerly a priory of Black Friars, which has been supposed by some to have been founded by Edward I., which, if not the fact, it is certain that he was a great benefactor to it.

FISHERTON-DE-LA-MERE, co. Wilts.

P. T. Amesbury (77) 10 m. WSW. Pop. with Bapton Tithing 290.

A parish in the hundred of Warminster; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 8l. 17s.; ann. val. P. R. 135l.; patron (1829) John Davis, Esq.

FISHERWICK, co. Stafford.

P. T. Lichfield (119) 4 m. E. Pop. 91.

A township in the parish of St. Michael and north division of the hundred of Offlow. Here, not many years ago, was a very handsome mansion of stone, surrounded by beautiful grounds and plantations, but it was demolished and the materials sold.

FISHGUARD, of ABER-GWAYN, co. Pembroke, S. W.

London 237 m. W b N. Pop. 1837. Fairs, Feb. 5; East. Mond.; Whit. Mond.; and Nov. 17. M. D. Clufts.

A sea-port town in the parish of Fishguard and hundred of Cemaes, situated at the mouth of the river Gwayne. The town is divided into two parts, called Upper and Lower; the former portion, containing the church, a mean structure, the market-place, principal inns, and many tolerable shops. The lower division is adjacent to the quay, and exhibits all the animation that usually attends such places. Here are Baptist and Methodist meeting-houses. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 61*l*. 1*s*.; area of parish, 3120 acres of land. The port of Fishguard, which is constructed by a bar, or sand-bank, is capable of containing 100 sail of merchantmen; probably it would be the best packet station between Holyhead and Bristol, to communicate with the south of Ireland. About 100 vessels belong to this port, and ship-building and repairing are carried on here. The chief exports are oats and butter, and the imports consist of culm from Milford Haven, coals from various places, and the usual luxuries and necessities of life. There is a valuable fishing-ground near the bay, frequented by the small craft from Liverpool. Turbot and John-dory are taken in great quantities. The inhabitants appear to pursue only the salmon and herring fisheries. Here are the ruins of Llanfihangel chapel, and of Llan Fartin and Llanyst churches. The parish is said to have been originally a part of the estate of St. Dogmael's priory, but granted to some private individual at the dissolution of all religious houses. A detachment of French troops made a descent at this place in the year 1797, and were all taken prisoners by Lord Cawdor. A mineral spring was discovered here some years ago, and near it a stone, bearing an inscription in Greek characters.

FISH HOLM, shires of Orkney and Shetland, S.

One of the smaller Shetland isles, forming part of the parish of Delting. It lies in Yell Sound, and is inhabited by only one family.

FISHLAKE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Thorne (166) 3 m. W.
Pop. of Pa. 1274. Of To. 723.

A parish and township in the lower division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 13*l*. 3*s*. 9*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 67*l*.; church ded. to St. Cuthbert; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Durham.

FISHPLEY, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Acle (121) 1 m. N b W.
Pop. with Upton.

A parish in the hundred of Walsham; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk, Dioc.—Vol. II.

ing, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l*.; ann. val. P. R. 110*l*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons (1829) Robert Dundas, Esq. and others.

FISHTOFT, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Boston (116) 3 m. ESE. Pop. 456.

A parish in the wapentake of Skirbeck, parts of Holland; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 19*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*.; church ded. to St. Guthlake; patron (1829) F. Thirkell, Esq.

FISHWICK, shire of Berwick, S.

P. T. Berwick-upon-Tweed 53½ m. WSW.
Pop. with Hutton.

An ancient parish, united at the Reformation to that of Hutton. The ruins of its church are still visible on the northern bank of the Tweed, a little below the village.

FISHWICK, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (217) 2½ m. E. Pop. 284.

A township in the parish of Preston and hundred of Amounderness.

FISKERTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 1½ m. E. Pop. 294.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Lawres, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12*l*. 1*s*. 8*d*.; church ded. to St. Clement; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Peterborough.

FISKERTON-UPON-TRENT, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Southwell (132) 3 m. SE. Pop. 342.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Thurgarton, situated on the bank of the Trent, over which there is a ferry to Stoke; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Faringdon, in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York, not in charge; chapel dedicated to St. Mary; patronage with Faringdon vicarage. Here was anciently a cell of Austin Friars, which was one of the very few houses granted to the laity in the time of Philip and Mary.

FITLING, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (174) 11 m. NE b E. Pop. 119.

A township in the parish of Humbleton and middle division of the wapentake of Holderness.

FITTLETON, co. Wilts.

P. T. Ludgershall (71) 8 m. W b S.
Pop. with Hackleton 298.

A parish in the hundred of Elstub and Everley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 23*l*.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, Magdalen College, Oxford.

FITTLEWORTH, co. Sussex.

P. T. Petworth (49) 3 m. SE b E. Pop. 631.

A parish in the hundred of Bury, rape of Arundel; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; patron, the Bishop of Chichester.

FITZ, co. Salop.

P. T. Shrewsbury (153) 5 m. NW b N.
Pop. 229.

A parish in the hundred of Pimhill; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FITZHEAD, co. Somerset.

P. T. Wiveliscombe (153) 3 m. E. Pop. 300.

A parish in the hundred of Kingsbury; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Wiveliscombe, and a peculiar in the diocese of Bath and Wells; certified value 9*l.* 11*s.* 5*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; patron, the Prebendary of Wiveliscombe in Wells Cathedral.

FIVEHEAD, co. Somerset.

P. T. Langport (128) 5 m. SW b W.
Pop. 320.

A parish in the hundred of Abdick and Bulstone; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 2*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Martin; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Bristol.

FIVE-MILE BRIDGE, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Cork (166) m. Pop. with Pa.
Fairs, June 9, and Oct. 10.

A hamlet in the parish of Carrigaline and barony of Kerri-currihy, situated upon the Conbury river. Here is a strong chalybeate spring, and in the vicinity coal has been raised.

FIVE-MILE TOWN, co. Tyrone, Ulster, I.

Dublin 112 m. N b W. Pop. 429. Fairs,
Jan. 20; second Saturday, O. S. in March; Thursday before Whit Sunday; Third Sat. in August; and Nov. 22.

A post and fair-town in the parish and barony of Clogher, otherwise called Blessingburn; living, a chapelry in Clogher diocese and Armagh archdiocese.

FIXBY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Huddersfield (189) 3½ m. NNW.
Pop. 345.

• A township in the parish of Halifax and wapentake of Morley.

FLADA AND FLADA WHEIN, shire of Inverness, S.

Two small islands of the Hebrides, belonging to the parish of Kilmuir, lying about six miles from the Isle of Skye, and affording fine pasturage for sheep.

FLADBURY, co. Worcester.

• P. T. Pershore (106) 3 m. E. Pop. 1387.

A parish and township in the middle division of the hundred of Oswaldslow, situated in a picturesque part of the county, near the river Avon; living, a rectory with the curacies of Bradley, Throckmorton, and Wire-Piddle, exempt from visitation, in the diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 10*s.*; patron, the Bishop of Worcester. In the church, ded. to St. John the Baptist, are many old monuments, and its steeple forms a pleasing object from many of the adjacent parts of the village. King Ethelred gave this place to Ostforey, bishop of Worcester, in 691.

FLADDAY, shire of Inverness, S.

An uninhabited island of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of Harris. It lies at the mouth of Loch Resort.

FLADDAYS, shire of Inverness, S.

Lat. 56. 50½ N. Long. 7. 17½ W.

Three small uninhabited isles of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of Barra.

FLAGG, co. Derby.

P. T. Bakewell (153) 6 m. W b N. Pop. 220.

A township in the parish of Bakewell, and hundred of High Peak.

FLAMBOROUGH, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Bridlington (206) 4 m. ENE. Pop. 907.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Dickering, situated in the centre of a promontory on the North Sea; it was formerly a place of some consequence; it is now chiefly inhabited by fishermen. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York, of the certified value of 16*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 85*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Oswald; patron, the Archbishop of York and Sir W. Sfrickland, Bart. alternately. The cliffs here of limestone rock, called Flamborough Head, extend nearly five miles, and in many places are three hundred feet high. In the summer these cliffs are the resort of immense numbers of aquatic birds, which assemble here from various regions to build their nests and rear their offspring. On the extreme point of the promontory a lighthouse, with revolving points, was erected in 1808, which has proved of the greatest utility.

FLAMSTEAD, co. Hertford.

P. T. Redburn (25) 3 m. NW. Pop. 1392.

An ancient parish in the hundred of Dacorum; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln, of the certified value of 60*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 60*l.*; patron, University College, Oxford. In the church, ded. to St. Leonard, are many old monuments. This place is said to have been once a market town. In the reign of the Conqueror it was so infested by robbers, that the manor was granted to three valiant knights, on condition of their defending the surrounding lands from their depredations.

FLASBY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (216) 5½ m. NW b N.
Pop. with Winterburn, 134.

A township in the parish of Gargrave and east division of the wapentake of Staincliff and Ewcross.

FLASHBROOK, co. Stafford.

P. T. Eccleshall (148) 4 m. W b S. Pop. 127.

A township in the parish of Adbaston and hundred of Pirehill, North.

FLAT-HOLMES-ISLAND, co. Somerset.

A small island, about a mile and half in circumference, in the parish of Uphill and hundred of Winterstoke. The land bears good grass, which serves the sheep of one or two farms in this island. In the summer it is visited by many people for the pleasure of its delightful prospects of the Channel and coast for many miles in extent. Here is a lighthouse, eighty feet in height, for the guidance of ships coming up the Channel. The tide rises at this island to the height of thirty-six feet.

FLAUDEN, co. Hertford.

P. T. King's Langley (20) 4 m. WSW. Pop. 277.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Hemel Hempstead and hundred of Dacorum; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicar of Hemel Hempstead, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln, of the certified value of 6*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*; chapel ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Hemel Hempstead vicarage.

FLAVELL FLYFORD, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) 8 m. E b S. Pop. 159.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Pershore; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 4*s.* 9½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 108*l.* 14*s.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) Thomas Sheldon, Esq.

FLAWBOROUGH, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Newark (124) 7 m. S b W. Pop. 85.

A hamlet partly in the parish of Staunton-in-the-Vale, and partly in the parish of Orston and south division of the wapentake of Newark.

FLAWITH, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Easingwold (213) 4½ m. SW. Pop. 91.

A township in the parish of Alne and partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Bulmer.

FLAXBOURTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Bristol (111) 5½ m. WSW. Pop. 192.

A parish in the hundred of Portbury; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Wraxall, in the archdeaconry of Bath and diocese of Bath and Wells, not in charge; patronage with Wraxall rectory.

FLAXBY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Knaresborough (202) 3½ m. E b N. Pop. 78.

A township in the parish of Goldsborough and upper division of the wapentake of Claro.

FLAXLEY, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Newnham (120) 2 m. N. Pop. 196.

A parish in the hundred of St. Briavells; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Hereford and diocese of Gloucester; certified value 8*l.*; patron (1829) Sir T. Crawley. Here was formerly an abbey of Cistercian monks, founded in the reign of King Stephen, by Roger Fitz-Milo, second Earl of Hereford, on the spot where his brother had been accidentally killed by an arrow whilst hunting.

FLAXTON-ON-THE-MOOR, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (196) 8 m. NE. Pop. 290.

A township, partly in the parish of Bossald, and partly in the parish of Foston, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Bulmer.

FLAXWELL, co. Lincoln.

Pop. 529.

A hundred, lying on the western side of the county, north of Sleaford, containing thirteen parishes.

FLEATHAM, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Belford (322) 6½ m. SE. Pop. 91.

A township in the parish of Bambrough and north division of Bambrough ward.

FLECKNEY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market-Harborough (83) 7 m. NW b W. Pop. 450.

A parish in the hundred of Gartree; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 41*l.* 14*s.* 10½*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) T. C. Bowey, Bart.

FLECKNOE, co. Warwick.

P. T. Southam (82) 6 m. ENE. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Wolphmacote and Southam division of the hundred of Knightlow.

FLEDBOROUGH, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Tuxford (137) 5 m. E b N. Pop. 75.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Thurgarton, which by some has been supposed formerly to have been much larger than at present; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*, patron (1829) Earl Manvers. The church, ded. to St. Gregory, is a spacious building, containing many painted windows, which originally were very fine specimens of that art; but time has made sad devastation among them, being now so defaced that the subjects are with difficulty distinguishable.

FLEET, co. Dorset.

P. T. Weymouth (128) 4 m. W b N. Pop. 132.

A parish in the hundred of Uggescomb, Dorchester division; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 70*l.*; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron (1829) J. Gould, Esq.

FLEET, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Holbeach (107) 1½ m. E b S. Pop. 776.

A parish in the wapentake of Elloe, parts of

F L E

Holland; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Joseph Dodds, gent.

FLEGG, EAST, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 2773.

A hundred on the eastern coast of the county, between Yarmouth and Wintertonness, containing eight parishes.

FLEGG, WEST, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 3713.

A hundred on the eastern coast of the county, lying between Yarmouth and Wintertonness, containing twelve parishes.

FLEMINGSTONE, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Cowbridge (173) 5 m. S. Pop. 90.

A parish in the hundred of Cowbridge, not far from the Bristol channel. Here is a poor village, which derives its name from the Flemings, followers of Fitzhamon, the Norman proprietor of the lordship of St. George. The living is a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 150*l.*; patron, the Wyndhams. Area of parish, 600 acres.

FLEMPTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury-St.-Edmunds (71) 5 m. NNW. Pop. 129.

A parish in the hundred of Thingoe; living, a rectory with that of Hengrave, in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.*; church ded. to St. Catherine; patron (1829) the Rev. R. S. Dixon.

FLENDISH, co. Cambridge.

Pop. 2308.

A hundred in the centre of the county, bounded on the west by the river Cam, containing five parishes.

FLETCHING, co. Sussex.

P. T. Uckfield (43) 4 m. NW b W. Fairs, Mon. bef. Whit.-Sun. for pedlery. Pop. 1690.

A parish in the hundred of Rushmonden, rape of Pevensey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; patron, the Earl of Sheffield. In the church, ded. to St. Andrew and St. Mary, are several monuments to persons of distinction; among which is one to the late Earl of Sheffield, and another to Edward Gibbon, the celebrated historian, with a Latin inscription, from the pen of the Rev. Dr. Parr. Sheffield Place, the seat of the Earl of Sheffield, is a very handsome Gothic mansion, of various dates; but scarcely any thing of the original is now remaining, it having received so many alterations and additions. A beautiful Gothic frieze is carried round the building, in which are introduced the arms of all its possessors, since the Conquest.

FLETON, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Peterborough (81) 1 m. S b E. Pop. 159.

A parish in the hundred of Norman Cross; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron (1829) the Earl of Carysfort.

F L I

FLEXBOROUGH, co. Sussex.

Pop. 1305.

A hundred in the rape of Pevensey, on the south side of the county, containing three parishes, and including the Cinque Port of Seaford.

FLIMBY, or FLEMINGBY, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Workington (300) 3½ m. NNE.

Pop. 376.

A parish in Allerdale ward below Darwent, abounding in coals; it was formerly a chapelry in the parish of Cammerton, from which it was separated in the reign of Henry VIII.; living, a curacy with that of Cammerton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle; certified value 2*l.* 4*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 40*l.* This living has thrice received 200*l.* from Queen Anne's bounty; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Landowners of the parish.

FLINT, co. of, N. W.

N to S 33m. E to W 10 m. No. of acres 197,760. Hundreds 5. Boroughs 2. Market-Towns 1. Parishes 28. Pop. 53,781. Memb. of Pt. 2. Diocese of St. Asaph and Chester. Province of Canterbury.

The smallest, though not the poorest, of the six counties into which North Wales is divided. It is bounded on the north and east partly by the Irish sea and the estuary of the Dee; on the west and south by Denbighshire; and on the remaining part of the east by Cheshire. The sea-side all along is fertile and sheltered: a mountain range, parallel to the Dee, and extending throughout the county, rises to an average height of 500 feet. Of this range, one mountain, Mael-y-Gaer, attains an elevation of 1020 feet above sea level, and Pentre Halkill 992. The residue of the county is comparatively flat. Many small but valuable streams descend from the hills and benefit the lands and inhabitants on the sea-side; but the chief rivers which water the county are the Clwyd, famous for the beauty of the vale to which it lends its name; the Allen, which passes through Mold; the Prestatyn and Falaere, less important; and the Dee, which may fairly lay claim to the gratitude of the inhabitants of this county for benefits conferred: the Terig, the Wheler, and the Elwy, are small but useful streams. The soil and surface are much diversified; the hills generally fall into gentle slopes, descending into fertile and well-watered vales, and the land is argillaceous and abundantly productive of corn and grass. The mineralogical importance of the county being paramount to the agricultural, may be more fully adverted to. Mr. Pennant, who was a native, divides the mineralogical district of Flint into two parts, the Highland and Lowland. The former commences at Dyserth, and, taking a southerly direction, crosses the pass of Bodfari, and appears near Mold, Northross, and Halkin. The second division is separated from the first by a depression of the elevated line commencing in the vicinity of Rhos-Esmor. The coal strata extend to the river Dee, and pass thence into the hundred of Wirral in Cheshire. Limestone is found both on the sea-side and in various places, and at great depths. In this mineralogical region are raised lead-ores of various qualities and species. Lapis calaminaris, and another species of zinc, pseudogalena, called by the miners Black Jack, a substitute for calamine. One lead-mine at Pont-y-Pwll, yielded the enormous return of one million sterling in thirty years. The hundreds of Colleshill and Rhuddlan abound with coal and lead, and were granted to Sir Richard Grosvenor, in the reign of Char. I. The coal district is considered to commence at Llanasa, and to pass through the parishes of Whiteford, Holywell, Flint, and Northross, terminating at Hawarden. The collieries of Mostyn and Byemuth have been worked since the time of Edward I. Petrosilex accompanies the limestone strata in immense masses; it is valuable in the manufacture of porcelain. Among the curiosities of the mineral kingdom of this place may be mentioned the beautiful double-reflecting spar, the rock-oil, or fairies'-butter, and various fossils in the limestone of secondary formation. There are iron-works at Hawarden; brass, iron, lead-works, &c. at Holywell; and lead-works at Flint. A considerable export of coal is made annually from the coal-works on the shores of the estuary of the Dee. A constant reciprocal trade exists between Liverpool and Holywell, and steam-packets sail from Rhyl, now a fashionable bathing-place, and from Bagitt to Liverpool, and to Chester. The famous Well of St. Winifred at Holywell, though visited by hundreds who enjoy the superstitious ceremony of bathing there, does not possess any mineral property. Flintshire is divided into five hundreds, called Colleshill, Maclor, Mold, Prestatyn, and Rhuddlan. The chief towns are Holywell; Flint, a borough, returning one member to Parliament; Rhuddlan, famous for its ancient castle, the oldest English edifice in Wales; St. Asaph's, the residence of the bishop of that see; Mold, a busy town, engaged in mining transactions wholly; at Northross are potteries, and Hawarden possesses several iron foundries. There is much inland connexion preserved to this county by the transit of the Chester coaches and vans through Bangor and Carnarvon; but the line of road is miserably bad for such an era in road-making as the present. There are many remnants of military and ecclesiastic antiquities in this county: the castles of Rhuddlan and Flint, and the chapel of St. Winifred, are, probably, the most remarkable. Two members are returned to Parliament, one for the county and one for the borough of Flint.

FLINT, co. of Flint, N. W.

London 200 m. N.W. Pop. 1612.
Fairs, Feb. 14; June 24; Aug. 10; and Nov. 30. Memb. of Pt. I.

An ancient town in the parish of Flint and hundred of Colleshill, agreeably placed on the estuary of the river Dee. It was formerly the capital of the county, but the assizes are now held at Mold. It retains the county-goal, a well designed building, of which Turner was the architect, and the accomplished Pennant is the author of the inscription over the gate. The guildhall, chapel, and meeting-houses, are the only other modern buildings to be seen here. It is generally believed that this was a Roman-British town, from the coins and fibula frequently dug up in the vicinity; and there can be little doubt that it was a seaport of some consequence before the unfortunate retreat of the sea, and influx of sand into the mouth of the Dee. The moorings are still visible in the old walls, to which vessels were fastened in the days of the maritime importance of the town. In 1283, this place was constituted a free borough. The corporation consists of a mayor (who is by patent governor of the castle) two bailiffs, and subordinate officers. In conjunction with Rhuddlan, Overton, Caergwrle, and Caerwys, it sends one member to Parliament; the mayor being the returning officer. The living is a curacy, not in charge, to the parish of Northop in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph's; valued in P. R. 145*l.* per annum. This is now a deserted place, except during the summer season, when it is visited for the advantage of bathing. The castle, which belongs to the crown, was probably begun by Henry II. and perfected by Edward I. It was granted to Percy, Earl of Northumberland, by the unfortunate Richard II.; which ungrateful lord inveigled his benefactor within its walls, and there surrendered him to Bolingbroke. During Cromwell's usurpation, it was garrisoned for the king by Sir Roger Mostyn, but ultimately surrendered to the Parliamentary forces. The ruins are still considerable, and though, doubtless, it originally stood in the sea, it now appears to occupy a lofty rock in the centre of a disagreeable marsh.

FLINTHAM, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Newark (124) 6½ m. SW. Pop. 540.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Bingham; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; val. in K. B. 6*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Austin; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge. Flintham Hall, in this parish, is a handsome seat on the road from Bingham to Newark.

FLINTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (174) 9½ m. NE.]
Pop. 125.

A township in the parish of Humbleton and middle division of the wapentake of Holderness.

FLISK, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Cupar of Fife (30) 6 m. N b W.
Pop. 301.

A parish in the district of Cupar, three miles in length, one in breadth, and bounded on the north by the river Tay. The surface is even and well cultivated, excepting Norman's Law, a lofty eminence crowned with an ancient camp. To the westward are the ruins of Ballinbriek castle, the ancient residence of the family of Rothes, and Birk Hill, the seat of the Wedderburns, is beautifully situated amidst fine plantations. The living is in the presbytery of Cupar and synod of Fife; patron, Lord Dundas.

FLITCHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Castle Rising (100) 4½ m. E b N.
Pop. 310.

A parish in the Lynn division of the hundred of Freebridge; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; certified value 20*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 35*l.*; patron (1829) Thomas W. Coke, Esq. Here was formerly a priory of Augustin monks, which was a cell to the priory at Walsingham, and was founded in the reign of Henry III.; some of its remains are now used as stables and barns to a farm-house.

FLITT, co. Bedford.

Pop. 10,362.

A hundred at the south east extremity of the county bordering on Hertfordshire, containing thirteen parishes, including the town of Luton.

FLITTON, co. Bedford.

P. T. Silsoe (40) 1 m. W. Pop. 1069.

A parish and township in the hundred of Flitt; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacy of Silsoe, in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.*; patron, Christ Church, Oxford. In the church, ded. to St. John the Baptist, is a record of a singular instance of longevity in Thomas Hill, who died in 1601, aged 128; he was receiver-general to three Earls of Kent, and was a most charitable and beneficent character. Near the church is a mausoleum of the Greys, consisting of a centre and four wings, in one of which is interred Henry, the fifth Earl of Kent, who sat in judgment on Mary Stuart.

FLITWICK, co. Bedford.

P. T. Ampthill (45) 3 m. S b W. Pop. 489.

A parish in the hundred of Redbourne-Stoke; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 17*s.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron (1829) the Duke of Bedford.

FLIXBOROUGH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Gleanford Bridge (150) 11 m. NW.
Pop. 210.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Mauley, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory with the vicarage of Burton-upon-Statber, in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, Sir R. Sheffield, Bart.

FLIXTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 7 m. WSW.
Pop. of Pa. 2249. Of To. 1601.

A parish and township in the hundred of Salford, seated on the banks of the Mersey, and extending to the angle, where it is joined by the Irwell; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; certified value 34*l.* ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Prebendary of Flixton, in Lichfield cathedral.

FLIXTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Lowestoff (114) 3 m. WNW. Pop. 34.

A parish in the hundred of Mitford and Lothingland, said to have derived its name from Felix, the first bishop of the East Angles; living, a dis. rectory united to that of Blundeston, in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 14*l.*; patronage with Blundeston rectory. The church is now in ruins, having been unroofed by the great storm of November, 1703.

FLIXTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bungay (106) 3 m. SW. Pop. 209.

A parish in the hundred of Wangford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 125*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) A. Adair, Esq.

FLIXTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Scarborough (217) 6 m. S b E.
Pop. 267.

A township in the parish of Folkton and wapentake of Dickering. Flixton Wolds are celebrated for their annual coursing matches.

FLOCKTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Huddersfield (188) 6 m. E b S.
Pop. 988.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Thornhill and lower division of the wapentake of Agbrigg; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Thornhill, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 31*l.* 5*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; patronage with Thornhill rectory.

FLODDAY, shire of Inverness, S.

An island of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of Barray, with which the population is included. Flodday Sound, which is sheltered by numerous small isles, affords good security for the largest ships at all seasons, and is much resorted to by those in the Baltic trade.

FLOOKBOROUGH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Ulverston (273) 5 m. ESE.
Pop. with Lower Holker.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Cartmel and hundred of Lonsdale, north of the sands; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 9*l.* 12*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 93*l.* 1*s.*; chapel ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) Lord George Cavendish. Here was formerly a market, by charter, obtained by the Abbot of Cartmel, in the reign of Edward I.

FLOORE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (86) 7½ m. W. Pop. 861.

A parish in the hundred of Nobottle Grove; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 17*s.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, Christ Church, Oxford.

FLORDON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. St. Mary Stratton (100) 3 m. N b W. Pop. 159.

A parish in the hundred of Humbleyard; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) Sir W. R. Kemp, Bart.

FLORENCE-COURT, co. Fermanagh, Ulster, I.

Dublin 108 m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Cleenish and barony of Glenawley. Here is the noble demesne of the Earl of Enniskillen.

FLORENCE, ST. co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Tenby (261) 3 m. W. Pop. 366.

A parish in the hundred of Castle-Martin, situated upon the Tenby river; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of St. David's and province of Canterbury; charged in K. B. 11*l.* 10*s.* 5*d.*; valued in P. R. 60*l.*; patrons, St. John's College, Cambridge; area of parish, 2000 acres.

FLOTTA, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

Lat. 58, 41 N. Long. 2, 55½ W.
Pop. including South Faira, 297.

One of the Orkney islands, which, with that of South Faira, now forms part of the parish of Waas, though anciently they formed a distinct vicarage. Flotta is three miles long, one broad, and lies in the Sound, between Waas and South Ronaldshay, distant three miles from each. The Pan-Hope, which took its name from a salt-pan, now neglected, and in ruins, is a deep bay, almost dividing the island into two parts, and well known for its excellence to all who navigate this sea. The ground around it is entirely covered with heath, among which vast numbers of moor-fowl find shelter, and the rest of the surface being fertile, produces more corn than twice its extent in any other of the islands. The cliffs upon the coast are of great height, and chiefly composed of sandstone. The living is in the presbytery of Cairston and synod of Orkney. The materials for the work, termed Codex Flottensis, were collected by a Norwegian, who took up his residence here.

FLOTTERTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Rothbury (303) 5½ m. W b N. Pop. 92.

A township in the parish of Rothbury and west division of Coquetdale ward, the property of Christopher Weallans, Esq., who has a handsome and commodious mansion here.

FLOWTON, co. Suffo

P. T. Ipswich (69) 6 m. WNW. Pop. 150.

A parish in the hundred of Bosmere and Claydon; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 3*l.* 9*s.* 9½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.* 12*s.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) H. S. Thornton, Esq.

FLURRY-BRIDGE, co. Louth, Leinster, I.

Dublin 57 m. N. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish and barony of Dundalk, situated upon the Flurry river, which takes its rise in the celebrated Sleight-Gulien Mountains, and discharges its waters into Dundalk Bay.

FOAL, co. Stafford.

P. T. Uttoxeter (135) 4 m. NW.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Checkley and south division of the hundred of Totmonslow.

FOBBING, co. Essex.

P. T. Horndon on the Hill (21) 3½ m. E.
Pop. 107.

A parish in the hundred of Barstable; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 21*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the King.

FOCHABERS, shire of Elgin, S.

Edinburgh 158½ m. N. Pop. with Pa.
Market, weekly. Fairs, three annually.

A market, post-town, and burgh of barony in the parish of Bellie, situated on the west bank of the river Spey, which has a valuable salmon fishery, and is crossed by an elegant stone bridge of four arches. It is a neat town, newly founded on an eminence, with a square in the centre, from which four streets diverge at right angles, the site of the ancient town being about a mile to the northward, near Gordon castle. Most of the inhabitants are occupied in the manufacture of cotton, sewing-thread, and worsted hose, and upon the whole this may be deemed a thriving place. It is governed by a baron-baillie, appointed by the Duke of Gordon, who is chief heritor. About three miles hence is a Society School, convenient for a number of children residing at a distance from the parochial one.

FOCKERBY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Howden (189) 10 m. S b E. Pop. 106.

A township in the parish of Adlingfleet, and lower division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross.

FODDERTY, shires of Cromarty and Ross, S.

P. T. Dingwall (174) 4 m. W. Pop. 1952.

A parish intersected by the boundary line of the two counties, and by the Peffer, a rivulet that gives the name of Strath Peffer to a valley two miles in length by half a mile in breadth; from the northern side of which rises Ben Wyvis, one of the loftiest mountains in Scotland, and from the opposite side that of Knockfallarie, which is of a conical form, and crowded with an extensive vitrified ruin, said to be the remains of one of Fingal's castles. Here are indications of the existence of coal; and several mineral springs of a powerful sulphurous quality, in the vicinity, are in high repute for the cure of scorbutic and cutaneous disorders. The parochial school is well supported, and has a very commodious schoolhouse. Living, in the presbytery of Dingwall and synod of Ross; patron, Mackenzie of Cromarty. The Gaelic language is chiefly used here.

FOGGATHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Howden (185) 6½ m. N. Pop. 137.

A township in the parish of Bubwith and Holme Becon division of the wapentake of Harthill.

FOGO, shire of Berwick, S.

P. T. Dunse (40½) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 369.

A parish about six miles in length by three and a half in breadth, and intersected by the Blackadder and several of its tributary streams; across this river is an ancient stone bridge kept up by the county to the great convenience of the neighbouring districts. The parish is, for the most part, enclosed, and, excepting a small swamp, entirely arable; it includes the village of Chesters, where are still some vestiges of a Roman camp, though its ramparts have been nearly obliterated by the plough. Living, in the presbytery of Dunse and synod of Merse and Tiviotdale; patron, the Crown. The church was repaired in 1776.

FOHANAGH, or FOHENAGH, or FOHINA, co. Galway, Connaught, I.

P. T. Castleblakeney (105) 5 m. SE. Pop. 1069.

A parish in the barony Kilconnell; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Clonfert and Kilmacduagh and archdiocese of Tuam, producing, by commutation for tithes, 156*l.* 3*s.* 0¾*d.* per annum, and is one of five benefices constituting the union of Ballymacward.

FOLESHILL, or FOLKESHULL, co. Warwick;.

P. T. Coventry (91) 2½ m. NE b N. Pop. 4037.

A parish in the county of the city of Coventry; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge; church ded. to St. Lawrence; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FOLEY ISLAND, co. Cork, Munster, I.

An island in the barony of Barrymore, situated in the haven or harbour of Cork.

FOLKE, co. Dorset.

P. T. Sherborne (117) 3 m. SE b S. Pop. 260.

A parish in the hundred of Sherborne, Sherborne division; living, a rectory and a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 12*s.* 3¼*d.*; church ded. to St. Lawrence; patrons (1829) the Rev. W. Chaffin and the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury, alternately.

FOLKINGTON, co. Sussex.

P. T. Hailsham (59) 4 m. SW b S. Pop. 186.

A parish in the hundred of Longbridge, rape of Pevensey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 12*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Duke of Dorset.

FOLKSTONE, co. Kent.

Pop. 7714.

A hundred in the lathe of Shepway, at the south-western extremity of the county, containing nine parishes and the town of its own name.

FOLKSTONE, co. Kent.

London 70 m. ESE.

Pop. 4511. M. D. Thurs. Fair, June 28, for pedlars' ware.

A market and sea-port town and parish, being a member of the cinque port of Dover, in the hundred of Folkstone, lathe of Shepway. The town, consisting chiefly of three irregularly-built streets, is seated on the declivity of a hill. The market was first granted by King John, but is now not much frequented. The market-house was newly erected by the late Earl of Radnor, and it displays his arms with numerous quarterings. The harbour here is extensive and convenient, capable of receiving vessels of 300 tons burden. The fish brought in here are regarded as a superior kind, and the boats employed are numerous; they are engaged during the season in catching mackerel for the London markets; and at Michaelmas, turn their attention to the herring-fishery on the Norfolk and Suffolk coasts: soles, whiting, conger-eels, and other fish, are obtained here in the highest perfection. From the salubrity of the air, and its delightful scenery, Folkstone is much frequented by respectable company, for the pleasure of sea-bathing; hot and cold baths are provided, and every other accommodation for the visitors. The cliffs here command very fine sea-views, and in clear weather, the French coast is distinctly visible. Here is a custom-house, belonging to the out-port of Dover, to which belong several riding-officers, on account of the many smugglers frequenting this coast. On the heights is a strong battery, and the coast is additionally defended by three martello-towers. This is a corporation by prescriptive right, and is governed by a mayor, twelve jurats, and twenty-four common-councilmen, with a recorder, chamberlain, town-clerk, and other officers. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. at 10*l.* 0*s.* 2½*d.*; non. val. P. R. 140*l.*; patron the Archbishop of Canterbury. The church, ded. to St. Mary and St. Eansworth, is seated on the most elevated part of the cliffs towards the sea, and is the only remaining one of the five which this town is said anciently to have possessed; the others have been destroyed by the encroachments of the sea. Here was formerly a nunnery, founded by King Ethelbert, but which shared the same fate as the above-mentioned churches. Besides the established church, the Baptists, Quakers, and Methodists, have each their places of public worship here. Sir Eliab Harvey founded a freeschool here in 1674, for twenty poor children; and a school-house was erected, with a bequest of 200*l.*, made by Dr. William Harvey, the celebrated individual who made the important discovery of the circulation of the blood, and who was born in this town in 1578. Various donations have also been made for the occasional relief of the poor of the parish. About a mile and a half from hence, on the summit of an eminence, called Castle Hill, is an ancient camp, comprising about two acres; on the most accessible sides of which is a triple ditch; on one side, also, is only a single ditch; and on another, a double one, according as the nature of the place requires defence. Within this area, it is said, there was anciently a castle, the foundation of which has been ascribed to King Ethelbert.

FOLKSWORTH, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Stilton (75) 1½ m. WNW. Pop. 203.

A parish in the hundred of Norman Cross; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 6*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. Helen; patron (1829) the Rev. William Wilkinson.

FOLKTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Scarborough (217) 6 m. S b E.
Pop. of Pa. 411. Of To. 131.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Dickering; living, a rectory and dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; the former valued in K. B. 15*l.*, the latter 8*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. John the Evangelist; patron (1829) H. Osbaldeston, Esq.

FOLLISTOWN, or FOLNESTOWN, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Navan (30) 3 m. SE. Pop. 120.

A small parish in the barony of Skyrne. The living is an inappropriate curacy in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh, forming a part of the union of Skyrne; patron, the King.

FOLLYFOOT, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Wetherby (194) 5 m. NW b W.
Pop. 203.

A township in the parish of Strafforth and upper division of the wapentake of Claro.

FONSTOWN. See Ballintobber.

FONTHILL GIFFORD, co. Wilts.

P. T. Hindon (94) 2 m. SE. Pop. 471.

A parish in the hundred of Dunworth; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patrons (1829) the Trustees of John Farquhar, Esq. In this parish was the celebrated and magnificent seat of Fonthill Abbey, built by W. Beckford, Esq.

FONTMELL, MAGNA, co. Dorset.

P. T. Shaftesbury (101) 4 m. S.
Pop. with Hartgrove 733.

A parish in the hundred of Sixpenny-Handley, Shaston division; living, a vicarage with the curacy of West Orchard in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patroness (1829) Mrs. Salkeld.

FONTSTOWN, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

P. T. Killeullen (26) 7 m. SW. Pop. 993.

A parish in the baronies of Naragh, Rheban, and West Ophaly, and partly also in the barony of Upper Philipstown, in the King's county; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin; patron, the Marquis of Drogheda. It possesses a church, a glebe-house, and a glebe of about twenty-five acres. There is a school here on the Lancasterian system, consisting of eighty-one children.

FOOKS-MILL, co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Taghman (103) 1½ m. SW. I
Pop. with Pa. Fals. East. Tues.; and Nov. 2.

A village in the parish of Taghman and barony of Shelmalier, situated upon a tributary to the river Bannow. Near to this are the ruins of Rathgoury Castle.

FOOLOW, or FOWLOW, co. Derby.

P. T. Tideswell (169) 3 m. ENE. Pop. 298.

A hamlet in the parish of Eyham and hundred of High Peak.

FOOTDEE, shire of Aberdeen, S.

Pop. 7055.

A very considerable village in the parish of St. Nicholas, within the jurisdiction of the city of New Aberdeen, containing an elegant chapel, in the patronage of the Town-Council. This place is seated on the northern bank of the Dee, and is chiefly occupied by merchants and owners of vessels employed in the trade of that port.

FOOTHOG, co. Hereford.

P. T. Abergavenny (146) 10 m. NNW.
Pop. 87.

A township in the parish of Cumyoy and hundred of Ewyas Lacy.

FORBES, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Alford (123) 2½ m. WNW.
Pop. with Tullynessle.

An ancient parish, now united to that of Tullynessle, and extending about two miles along the river Don. 'It contains 4075 acres, the soil of which produces early crops. Excellent limestone is quarried here, and peat for fuel is plentiful. It gives the title of Baron to the family of Forbes, premier barons of Scotland, who have been its sole proprietors for centuries past, and who still reside at their ancient seat, Driminner Castle, within the parish. The church has been long in ruins.

FORCETT, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Richmond (233) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. N b E.
Pop. of Pa. 417. Of To. 86.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Gilling West; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Gilling in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 58*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 38*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Cuthbert; patron, the Vicar of Gilling.

FORD, co. Devon.

P. T. Oakhampton (195) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. ESE.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Throwley and hundred of Wonford. Here is a charitable institution, which was founded by Lady Lucy, wife of Sir Richard Reynell, originally for four widows of clergymen, with an allowance of 5*l.* each annually, but now two only are admitted with 10*l.* annually.

FORD, shire of Edinburgh, S.

P. T. Dalkeith (6) 4 m. SE. Pop. with Pa.

A small village in the parish of Borthwick, noted as the place of residence of James Small, the ingenious inventor of the plough, which still bears his name, also of other new and useful implements of agriculture.

FORD, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Winchcombe (99) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. E b N.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Temple Guyting and lower division of the hundred of Kiftsgate.

FORD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Liverpool (206) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. N b W.
Pop. with Orrell 217.

A township in the parish of Sephton and hundred of West Derby.

FORD, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 7 m. NNW. Pop. 2164.

An extensive parish in the west division of Glendale ward, situated on an eminence rising from the east margin of the river Till, over which there is a good stone bridge; the land here is very fertile, and contains many valuable veins of coal, slate, freestone, and limestone. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 24*l.*; patron (1829) the Marquis of Waterford. Besides the established church, which is ded. to St. Michael, there are three places of worship for the dissenters. Here is a school attended by about seventy children, of whom thirteen boys and thirteen girls are clothed and educated by the Marquis of Waterford. A court-leet and baron is held here annually about Easter, before the lord of the manor's steward, for the recovery of small debts, &c. Ford Castle, the occasional residence of the Marquis of Waterford, was built in 1287, by Sir William Heron, and was restored by the late Lord Delawar. Two old towers are the only remains of the original structure, which are retained in the present one, but its ancient style is well preserved in the modern erections. Ford Castle was several times besieged, and in 1385 was demolished by the Scots under the Earls of Fife, March, and Douglas. It was also taken by King James's troops previously to the battle of Flodden.

FORD, co. Salop.

Pop. 6344.

A hundred on the western side of the county, adjoining Montgomeryshire, containing six parishes.

FORD, co. Salop.

P. T. Shrewsbury (153) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. W b N.
Pop. 212.

A parish in the hundred of Ford; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 75*l.* 2*s.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) W. E. Tomline, Esq.

FORD, co. Sussex.

P. T. Arundel (55) 2 m. SSW. Pop. 83.

A parish in the hundred of Avisford, rape of Arundel; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; patron, the Bishop of Chichester.

FORD, co. Wilts.

P. T. Salisbury (81) 2 m. NNE.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Laverstock and hundred of Alderbury, seated on the river Bourne.

FORD, co. Wilts.

P. T. Salisbury (81) 6 m. NE b N. Pop. 20.

A tithing in the parish of Idmiston and hundred of Alderbury.

FORD-ABBEY, co. Devon.

P. T. Beaminster (141) 9 m. WNW.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Thorncombe and hundred of Axminster. Ford Abbey is a handsome seat, consisting of the original walls of the abbey, with various additions and different styles of architecture; the only perfect part remaining is the fragment of a cloister, consisting of eight windows, facing the south, with light buttresses between them. The original abbey was founded in 1140, for monks of the Cistercian order.

FORD, HIGH and LOW, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Sunderland (268) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. W. Pop. 791.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Bishop Wearmouth, and north division of Easington ward, situated on the south side of the river Wear, where is a ferry for passengers, horses, and carriages. Here are two large ship-yards, copperas-works, and an earthenware manufactory. The living is a curacy, subordinate to the rectory of Bishop Wearmouth, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham, not in charge; patron, the Rector of Bishop Wearmouth. The chapel was built and endowed by Captain Thomas James Malins, R.N. in 1817, to whom most of the property here belongs.

FORDEN, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Montgomery (168) 2 m. N.E. Pop. 880.

A parish in the hundred of Cawns, situated upon the river Severn; living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Bangor; certified value 30*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 63*l.*; patrons, the Grocers' Company of the city of London. In 1705, an expensive building was erected here, as a House of Industry for the districts of Montgomery and Pool, and includes eighteen parishes and townships in the counties of Salop and Montgomery. These places are incorporated by Act 32d of George III., chap. 38 and 96. The management is vested in twenty-one directors, chosen out of the guardians, seven of whom are changed every year. There are also nine honorary directors elected annually, four of whom are bailiffs, a chief magistrate of Montgomery and Pool. A committee of two or more directors visit the House of Industry daily, and a board of three or more directors meet every Wednesday. The poor are employed in making coarse flannel, linen, and shoes; and also in cultivating the garden and farm lands, the latter amounting to 172 acres. All expenses are defrayed by the treasurer, out of a general fund, raised off the eighteen places in the district, in the proportion of a perpetually fixed quota.

FORDHAM, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Newmarket (61) 5½ m. NNW.
Pop. 1012.

A parish in the hundred of Staplehoe; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Jesus' College, Cambridge. Here was formerly a small priory, founded in the reign of Henry III.

FORDHAM, co. Essex.

P. T. Colchester (51) 5 m. NW b W.
Pop. 696.

A parish in the Colchester division of the hundred of Lexden; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patroness (1829) the Countess de Grey.

FORDHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Downham-Market (84) 3 m. S.
Pop. 136.

A parish in the hundred of Clackclose; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge;

ann. val. P. R. 54*l.*; patron (1829) E. R. Pratt, Esq.

FORDINGBRIDGE, co. Southampton.

Pop. 4093.

A hundred on the western extremity of the county, bordering on Dorsetshire, containing six parishes, including the town from which it takes its name.

FORDINGBRIDGE, co. Southampton.

London 92 m. SW b W. Pop. with Godshill tithing 2002. M. D. Sat. Fair, Sept. 9, for pedlery and forest-colts.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Fordingbridge, New Forest, West division, situated on the borders of the forest, and north-west side of the river Avon, over which there is a good stone bridge of seven arches. The chief manufactures of this town consist in tickings and calico-printing. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 30*l.* 2*s.* 3½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, King's College, Cambridge. The town was formerly much larger than at present, having suffered severely by fire at different periods; it is governed by a constable, chosen at the annual court-leet, held by the lord of the manor. On an eminence, about two miles hence, called Godshill, is an ancient encampment, defended on one side by a double trench and ramparts, on the other, by the steepness of the hill, which is overgrown with oaks.

FORDINGTON, co. Dorset.

Pop. 1910.

A liberty in Dorchester division, at the south-western side of the county, containing four parishes.

FORDINGTON, co. Dorset.

P. T. Dorchester (119) ¼ m. ESE. Pop. 1275.

A parish in Fordington liberty, Dorchester division, which, in the reign of Edward III., was held of the duchy of Lancaster by Isabella, the queen-dowager, who had the grant for a weekly market and an annual fair of three days; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 145*l.* 1*s.*; patron, the Prebendary of Fordington in Salisbury cathedral. The church, ded. to St. George, is an ancient edifice; over the porch of the southern entrance are the effigies of St. George and the Dragon, rudely carved in stone. The east end of the parish has been called Icen Town from time immemorial, probably from its proximity to the Ikenield way. The road leading into the village was formerly very dangerous, from passing over a moor, which in wet seasons was very much flooded; this inconvenience was remedied by the public spirit of Mrs. Lora Pitt, of Kingstone House, who in the year 1747, made a causeway at an expense of 1500*l.*; and also built a bridge of three arches over a branch of the river Frome. In making the causeway a Roman hypocaust was found; some of the bricks have the marks of fire, but none of them were perfect.

FORDLEY, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Saxmundham (89) 4 m. NE b E.
Pop. with Middleton.

A parish in the hundred of Blything; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; patronage with Middleton vicarage.

FORDON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (190) 12½ m. N b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Hummanby and wapentake of Dickering; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Hummanby, in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York, not in charge; patronage with Hummanby vicarage.

FORDOUN, shire of Kincardine, S.

P. T. Laurence Kirk (70) 4 m. N.
Pop. 2375.

A parish ten miles in length and seven in breadth, bounded on the north by the Grampian Hills, and having on the south, the fine plains termed the Strathmore and the How of the Mearns, both of which extend into this district. It includes also the villages of Auchinblae, Kincardine, Paldie, and vestiges of a Roman camp. The living is in the presbytery of Fordoun and synod of Angus and Mearns; patron, the Crown. The church was rebuilt in 1788. John of Fordoun, author of the ancient and curious Scoto-Chronicon, and James, Lord Monboddo, a celebrated writer on Metaphysics and the origin and progress of languages, were born here. This parish is also remarkable as having been the residence of St. Palladius, in the fifth century, when sent by the pope to oppose the Pelagian heresy.

FORD'S BRIDGE, co. Hereford.

P. T. Leonminster (137) 4 m. SE b S. Pop. 31.

An extra-parochial liberty in the hundred of Wolphy; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 80*l*.

FORDWICH, co. Kent.

P. T. Canterbury (35) 2 m. E b N. Pop. 212.

A member of the town and port of Sandwich, locally situated in the hundred of Downhamford, lathe of St. Augustin. It enjoys the same privileges as the cinque ports, and is governed by a mayor, jurats, and commonalty, to which are added a high steward, treasurer, and town-clerk. The mayor, who is coroner, by virtue of his office, and the jurats, who are justices within these liberties exclusive of all others, hold a general sessions of the peace and gaol-delivery, together with a court of record. The living is a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 5*l*. 15*s*. 2*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Earl Cowper. The river Stour is navigable for small vessels up to the town, and the large haven at the entrance of the river is noted for its excellent trout, and is supposed to have been the Portus Trutulensis of the Romans.

FORDYCE, shire of Banff, S.

P. T. Portsoy (171½) 3 m. SW. Pop. 3245.

A parish about five miles square, intersected by the great road between Banff and Cullen, and bounded on the north by the Moray Firth, the coast of which is bold and rocky, except in the bays of Portsoy and Sandcpd, where various kinds of fish, also seaweed, used as manure, are very plentiful. Fordyce, which includes the seaport and market-town of Portsoy (which article see), with the villages of Sandend, and Newmills, was made a burgh of barony in 1499, and has the privilege of a weekly market, and an eight-days fair at Hallow-tide. Here are extensive quarries of limestone, and of a species of jasper, termed Portsoy marble, well adapted for chimney-pieces; there are also indications of coal, though none has yet been raised; but a peat, known by the name of greasy clods, probably a bitumen, is plentiful, and has been much used by spinners, to give light in winter. The hill of Durn is crested with an ancient triple intrenchment, and arrow-heads of flint are sometimes found here. Many Druidical remains of tumuli are also to be met with in different parts of the parish. Living, in the presbytery of Fordyce and synod of Aberdeen; patron, the Earl of Seafield. The Gaelic is the only language spoken here.

FORE, or FOWRE, or ST. FEIGHAN'S, co. Westmeath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Castle-Pollard (62) 3 m. E. Pop. 2502.
Fairs, Jan. 30; and Aug. 21.

An ancient corporate town in the parish of Fore and barony of Demifore. It is governed by a portreeve, and sent two members to the Irish Parliament, but is now disfranchised. The living is a curacy in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh, and one of eight benefices which constitute the union of Rathgraff. There was anciently a college at this place; a monastery, once occupied by 3000 monks, was founded here by St. Feighan, about the year 630. He governed them for some time, and died of the plague in 665. The ruins of three churches, the remains of an Anchorite's cell, and the splendid ruins of the abbey, bear an interesting testimony to the devotional and literary character of that early age.

FOREHOE, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 12,192.

A hundred in the centre of the county to the west of Norwich, containing twenty-three parishes, including the towns of Wymondham and Decipham.

FOREMARK, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (120) 7 m. SSW. Pop. 203.

A parish and township in the hundred of Repton and Gresley; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge;

ann. val. P. R. 24^l; church ded. to St. Saviour; patron (1829) Sir Francis Burdett, Bart.

FOREST, co. Brecon, S. W.

P. T. Hay (156) m. Pop. 173.

A hamlet in the parish and hundred of Talgarth.

FOREST AND FRITH, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Middleton (255) 1½ m. NW. Pop. 723.

A township in the parish of Middleton in Teasdale and south-west division of Darlington ward, situated near the source of the Tees. Here are several lead-mines, and the scenery from the numerous cascades, formed by the river, is the most romantic and beautiful in the county. In this township the Marquis of Cleveland has a sporting-seat, called Grass Hall.

FOREST-HILL, co. Oxford.

P. T. Oxford (51) 5 m. ENE. Pop. 137.

A parish in the hundred of Bullington; living, curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; certified value 25^l; ann. val. P. R. 33^l; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, Lincoln College, Oxford.

FOREST-ROW, co. Sussex.

P. T. East Grinstead (28) 2½ m. Pop. with Pa. Fairs, June 25, for pedlers' ware, and Nov. 8, for cattle and pedlery.

A hamlet in the parish of East Grinstead and hundred of Burley-Arches, rape of Pevensey, on the borders of Ashdown Forest.

FORFAR, shire of, S.

E to W 48 m. N to S 42 m. No. of statute acres 503,920. Parishes 56. Royal Burghs 5, besides one Market-town. Pop. 113,130. Memb. of Pt. I.

This shire, with the principal part of that of Kincardine, was in the time of the Romans occupied by the Venricones. The same district also constituted a part of the Pictish kingdom, upon the extinction of which, Kenneth II., about 518, divided it into two shires, bearing the names of his two brothers, Angus and Mearns, upon whom, respectively, he bestowed them; but subsequently, at a much later period, they were again united under the general appellation of Forfar, derived from that of the town where the courts of justice are held. It is bounded on the east by the North Sea and Kincardineshire; on the west by the Grampian Hills and Perthshire; on the north by the North Esk river and shire of Aberdeen; and on the south by the Firth of Tay. This is a beautiful and well-cultivated county, which for agriculture, trade, commerce, and opulence, rivals almost every other in Scotland. It abounds in freestone; and besides the Tay and North Esk, is watered by numerous fine trout-streams. It has several fine harbours around the coast, the principal of which are the ports of Aberbrothick, Dundee, and Montrose; and trade with the interior is now greatly facilitated by a canal, cut from the former to Forfar, the shire-town. Various manufactures are carried on, the chief of which are sail-cloth, linen, osnaburghs, shoes, &c., and there are flax spinning-mills erected in different parts of the county. So extensive too are the breweries, that porter is exported hence in immense quantities to London and other parts of the kingdom, and even to the West Indies, in return for colonial produce. Coal is supplied from the Firth of Forth, Newcastle, and Sunderland, there being a scarcity of fuel throughout the shire.

FORFAR, shire of Forfar, S.

Edinburgh 70 n. N b E. Dundee 13 m. N b E. Pop. 587. M. D. Sat. Fairs, last Wed. in Feb. and Sept.; June 26; 1st Tues. in July and Aug.; and 1st Wed. in Nov. Memb. of Pt. I, with Perth, &c.

A royal burgh, capital of the shire, market, post-town, and parish; the town is a place of considerable antiquity, consisting of several irregular streets of neat and well-built houses, with the church, a handsome and commodious pile; in the centre, and near it, a new and elegant town-house, the basement of which is used as a prison, and the upper apartments for the town and county meetings and public assemblies. Here are also an episcopalian chapel, a place of worship for anti-burghers, and three public schools. The ancient charters and privileges of this burgh were confirmed in 1669, by a royal writ of novodamus, by Parliament; it is governed by a provost, two bailiffs, twelve councillors, four deacons of crafts, and fifteen burgesses, and conjointly with Perth, Dundee, St. Andrew's, and Cupar of Fife, sends one member to Parliament. The revenues are considerable, and here the sheriffs' courts are held, its central situation being most convenient for the administration of justice. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of canvass, sheeting, and other coarse linen, also in making the shoes, called brogues. The parish is of an irregular figure, from four to six miles long, by three to five broad, and the surface, except the hill of Balnashinar, mostly level and fertile, the soil having been much enriched by the manure from Loch Restenet, which has been lately drained, and on the banks of which are the ruins of a priory, formerly subject to that of Jedburgh. The ancient castle of Forfar is totally demolished. The living is in the presbytery of Forfar (of which it is the seat), and synod of Angus and Mearns; patron, the Crown. Forfar gave title of Earl to a branch of the family of Douglas, now extinct.

FORGAN, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Cupar of Fife (30) 9 m. NE. Pop. 937.

A parish in the district of St. Andrew's, four miles long and two broad, lying along the southern side of the Firth of Tay, where are the small fishing-villages of Newport and Woodhaven, from whence a constant communication is kept up with Dundee, on the opposite shore, by means of ferry-boats. The soil is well cultivated and productive, and the inhabitants of the several small villages within the parish are employed in the salmon-fisheries, and in the manufacture of coarse linen, which find a ready market at Dundee. The living is in the presbytery of St. Andrew's and synod of Fife; patron, the Crown.

FORGANDENNY, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Perth (40½) 3 m. S. Pop. 913.
Fairs, last Thurs. O. S. in May and Oct.

A parish and village, the former extending into the shire of Kinross, and comprising about 8000 Scotch acres, is watered by the May and Earn, the latter being crossed by a bridge, about two miles east from the village, where it is navigable for vessels of forty tons burden. The upper district, though rugged, produces an abundance of oats; and the lower, stretching from the beautiful river Earn to the foot of the Ochil Hills, is a fine level, equal in fertility to the celebrated earse of Gowrie, and mostly enclosed. The living is in the presbytery of Perth and synod of Perth and Stirling; patron, the Crown. The church is surrounded with stately trees. Here is a neat and well-endowed school. A lofty hill, called Castl Law, is crowned with an extensive old fortification, besides which there are several others in the parish.

FORGLEN, shire of Banff, S.

P. T. Turrell (155) 3½ m. NW. Pop. 750.

A parish, three miles and a half long, two and a half broad, and delightfully varied with gentle undulations, terminating in an easy slope to the southward, where flows the river Doveron along its boundary. The soil is mostly cultivated and fruitful, and there are two mineral springs much resorted to; one of them, called the Red-gill Well, rises near Whitfield Moss, and the other in the wood of Carnousie. The living is in the presbytery of Turrell and synod of Aberdeen; patron, Sir George Abercrombie. The church was formerly dedicated to St. Eunan, by which name the parish was sometimes called, as it now is termed Fore-Glen, in contradistinction to Back-Glen, by which the adjoining parish of Alvah is usually known.

FORGNEY, co. Longford, Linst. I.

P. T. Ballymahon (68) 1 m. SE. Pop. 2374.

A parish in the barony of Abbeyshrewel; living, a chapelry in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh. St. Munis founded a monastery here in 486.

FORGUE, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Hundley (140) 8 m. NE. Pop. 2000.

A parish in the district of Heathbogic, nine miles in length, and six in breadth, the northern part of which has a rich and productive soil, while the southern is still in a state of nature and covered with extensive heaths. The living is in the presbytery of Turrell and synod of Aberdeen; patrons, the Morrisons, whose elegant seat, near the burn of Frendraught, occupies a site, enchanting by nature, and still more enriched by the taste of its owner. Several other mansions grace the neighbourhood.

FORTHAMPTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Tewkesbury (103) 3 m. W. Pop. 171.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Tewkesbury; living, a curacy and a peculiar of Deerhurst, in the diocese of Gloucester, of the certified value of 13*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 145*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Mary; patroness (1829) the Hon. Mary Yorke.

FORKHILL, co. Armagh, Ulster, I.

Dublin 57 m. NW. Pop. of Pa. 661.
Of Vil. 128. Fair, Sept. 29.

A village in the parish of the same name and barony of Orior, situated at the base of the great Sliebh-Gullien Mountain, upon the river Mullybawn; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese and archdiocese of Armagh; producing, by commutation for tithes, 650*l.* per annum; and possessing a church, with a glebe-house, upon a glebe of 158 acres. There are seven freeschools in this parish, two called the Churchill Schools, under the trustees of the late Richard Jackson, one consisting of 189 boys and 74 girls, the other is a sewing-school of 60 girls. Two schools are under the trustees of the Forkhill Charities, one of which contains 120 boys and 50 girls, and the second is a sewing-school of 30 girls; two more educating respectively 139 and 80 pupils; the seventh is a sewing-school. The yearly salary of the master of each school is 40*l.*, and of the mistress 20*l.*

FORMARTEN, shire of Aberdeen, S.

An ancient division of the county, stretching along the coast, from the river Don to the Ythan, and bounded on the west by a ridge of low hills, which separate it from the district of Gavioch. The southern part, near the Don, is rugged, boggy, and barren; but on approaching the Ythan to the northward, the soil is good, and capable of high culture. Formarten gives title of Viscount to the Earl of Aberdeen.

FORMBY, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Ormskirk (219) 8 m. W. Pop. 1257.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Walton-on-the-Hill and hundred of West Derby, where formerly a weekly market was held, but which has long since been discontinued; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 23*l.* 2*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 111*l.* 12*s.*; chapel ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Rector of Walton.

FORNCEY ST. MARY, co. Norfolk.

P. T. St. Mary Stratton (100) 3 m. WNW. Pop. 274.

A parish in the hundred of Depwade; liv.

ing, a rectory with that of St. Peter Forncet, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 20*l.*; patron (1829) the Duke of Norfolk, to a Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge.

FORNCET, ST. PETER, co. Norfolk.

P. T. St. Mary Stratton (100) 3 m. W.
Pop. 633.

A parish in the hundred of Depwade; living, a rectory with that of St. Mary Forncet, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. with St. Mary's; patron (1829) the Duke of Norfolk, to a Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge.

FORNHAM, ALL SAINTS, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmund's (71) 3 m. N b W.
Pop. 305.

A parish in the hundred of Thingoe, near which a battle was fought, by Edward, son of King Alfred, with Ethelwold, his cousin, over whom he gained a complete victory; living, a rectory with that of Westley, in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 19*l.* 10*s.* 5*d.*; patron, Clare Hall, Cambridge. Out of lands in this parish, Penelope, Countess Rivers, gave a rent-charge of 8*l.* per annum, that a sermon might be preached four times a-year against popery.

FORNHAM, ST. GENEVE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmund's (71) 4 m. N b E.
Pop. 141.

A parish in the hundred of Thedwestry, famous for the decisive victory gained here in 1173, by Robert de Lucy, chief justice of England, at the head of the army of Henry II., over the Earl of Leicester, the general of the foreign troops, employed by his rebellious son; on the road to Thetford, about six miles from Bury, the places of their interment are still visible. The living is a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 1*s.* 0½*d.*; patron (1829) Lord Berwick. The church of this parish was accidentally destroyed by fire in 1782, having been ignited by the discharge of a gun.

FORNHAM, ST. MARTIN, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmund's (71) 3 m. N.
Pop. 222.

A parish in the hundred of Thedwestry; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; patron (1829) George Hogg, Esq. In this neighbourhood are some very evident tumuli.

FORRABURY, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Bossiney (230) 3 m. NE. Pop. 223.

A parish in the hundred of Lesnewth; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 12*s.* 8½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 80*l.*; church ded. to St. Simphorian; patron (1829) the Rev. R. Winsloe.

FORRES, shire of Elgin, S.

Edinburgh 157 m. N b W. Elgin 12 m. W.
Pop. 3349. M. D. Wed. Fairs, first Wed. O. S. Feb.; second Wed. O. S. April; June 25 and 26, O. S.; Aug. 10, O. S.; second Wed. and Thursd. O. S. Nov.; and St. John's Day, O. S. Dec.; Mem. of Pt. 1, with Fortrose, &c.

A royal burgh, market-town, post-town, and parish, the former of which is pleasantly seated on elevated ground between two lofty hills, at the distance of about three miles from the mouth of the Loch or Bay of Findhorn, its seaport, and consists of one principal street about a mile in length, containing many neat and well-built houses, with the Town-hall and gaol in the centre. It was a place of considerable note so early as the thirteenth century, is governed by a provost, two bailiffs, and a dean of guild, who are annually elected; and jointly with Fortrose, Nairn, and Inverness, sends one member to Parliament. The river Findhorn abounds with salmon, and the markets are abundantly supplied with good and cheap provisions. Here are a grammar-school of some repute, an English school, and another for ladies, noted for the variety, elegance, and propriety of the accomplishments they there inculcate. This is thought to have been the Roman station Varis, from some coins found upon the spot; and Shakspeare has celebrated it as the place to which Macbeth was journeying when met by the Weird Sisters. The parish is four miles long, two miles and a half broad, and towards the south-east hilly and barren, though in other parts the soil is rich and fruitful. On Clunie Hill are traces of a British camp, and near the town a rude column, termed Sucho's Stone, set up to commemorate the final departure of the Danes from Scotland. Living, in the presbytery of Forres (of which it is the seat), and synod of Moray; patron, the Earl of Moray. The church was dedicated to St. Laurence and rebuilt in 1745.

FORSBROOK, co. Stafford.

P. T. Cheadle (146) 3 m. WSW. Pop. 665.

A township in the parish of Dilhorne and north division of the hundred of Totmoulow.

FORSCOTE, co. Somerset.

P. T. Bath (106) 7½ m. SSW. Pop. 115.

A parish in the hundred of Wellow; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) Sir Hugh Smith, Bart.

FORT AUGUSTUS. See Augustus, Fort.

FORT GEORGE. See George, Fort.

FORT-STEWART, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

P. T. Ramelton (156) 2 m. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Aghnesh and barony of Kilmacrennan, agreeably situated upon the banks of Lough Swilly. Here is the beautiful and improved demesne of Sir James Stewart, Bart.

FORT WILLIAM. See William, Fort.

FORTEVIOT, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Perth (40½) 6 m. SW. Pop. 797.

A parish extending eight miles along the banks of the rivers Earn and May, which uniting are crossed by a stone bridge of six arches; it is about two miles in breadth, and comprises some of the loftiest of the Ochil hills, with the detached district of Hilltown and Mailler, distant three miles and a half. Living in the presbytery of Perth and synod of Perth and Stirling; patrons, St. Andrew's College and the Belshes of Invermay, which mansion is situated in a most romantic spot, surrounded by natural wood and beautiful plantations. Besides the ancient parish church, there are ruins of another at Mailler, and a place of worship at Muckarsey, both having burial grounds still used. On Holyhill stood a palace successively occupied by the Pictish and Scottish kings, and where Kenneth II. died. Numerous relics of antiquity may be traced here, among which are the Standing Stone of Bankhead and the Cross of Dronochy, the latter bearing curious carved devices. Edward Baliol encamped here just before the sanguinary battle of Duplin, in 1332.

FORTH, co. Carlow, Leinster, I.

Pop. 10,039.

One of the six baronies into which the county is divided. It contains six parishes and three villages, but no market-town. It is a fertile agricultural district.

FORTH, co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

Pop. 20,301.

One of the eight baronies into which the county is divided. It contains twenty-two parishes, all in the diocese of Ferns, and includes the town of Wexford. The inhabitants are descendants from the first English settlers, who came into Ireland; their language is a dialect of the Anglo-Saxon, totally unmixed with the Irish, and they possess many customs which sufficiently distinguish them from their neighbours, and stamp them with a character of originality. The soil is fertile, and the barony is separated from the rest of the county by the Forth and other mountains on the west, while it is bounded by the sea on the east and south, whereby it enjoys a sort of insular position as regards other baronies.

FORTH, S.

One of the most considerable and important rivers in Scotland. It derives its source from a spring on the north side of the mountain Ben Lomond, in Stirlingshire, whence it runs from west to east, through nearly the whole breadth of the kingdom, forming that firth, or estuary, into the German Ocean, to which it gives its name. In its course it receives many tributary streams, and its meanders are so extensive and frequent as to form various beautiful peninsulas; on one of which, immediately opposite to Stirling, stands the ruinous tower of the Abbey of Camluskenneth. So sinuous is the navigation, that were the mariner to trust entirely to sails, he would require the aid of every wind of the compass. Its mouth contains several small islands, particularly that of May, on which is erected a lighthouse. The Forth is navigable for vessels of eighty tons as far as Stirling bridge, and for vessels of 300 tons as far as Alloa. At Grangemouth it is joined by the great canal of communication from the Clyde; it also possesses several good harbours, and the whole river forms one of the safest roadsteads in Great Britain. Inverkeithy Bay, Leith Roads, Burnt Island Roads, and Ely, are, in particular, places of good anchorage. It contains white fish of all kinds, and high up the river are several valuable salmon-fisheries; it is also generally visited by an annual shoal of herrings. The length of its course, in a direct line, is ninety miles, but its windings extend to 250 miles.

FORTINGULL, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Aberfeldy (77½) 8½ m. WSW.
Pop. 3189. Fair, Dec. 6.

An extensive highland parish, thirty-seven miles in length by seventeen in breadth, containing several fine lakes, the principal of which are Errach, Lyon, and Runnoch, all well stored with fish, and the source of two considerable rivers, viz. the Lyon, which waters a very fertile valley, and the Tummel, with many smaller streams. The narrow and romantic Glen-Lyon, which is twenty-eight miles in length, is skirted by lofty mountains, affording excellent pasture for sheep, but during the winter months totally eclipsing the sunshine from the numerous villages at their base; of these, the Schiebellien rises 3550 feet above the level of the sea. The living is in the presbytery of Dunkeld and synod of Perth and Stirling; patron, the Duke of Athol, and Sir R. Menzies, Bart. alternately. The Gaelic is the common language, and the Christian Knowledge Society has established four schools in different parts of the district, which, previously to 1745, was the noted receptacle of those daring freebooters, who levied black mail upon all the inhabitants of the country lying between Cupar of Angus and Stirling; present, however, no part of the united kingdom contains a more industrious and orderly population than this. Here are many ancient forts, and the remains of a Roman camp, on the site of which urns have been found.

FORTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Garstang (229) 4 m. N. Pop. 587.

A township in the parish of Garstang and hundred of Amounderness.

FORTON, co. Southampton.

P. T. Whitchurch (56) 3½ m. SW.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Longparish, and hundred of Wherwell, Andover division. Near Forton Lake, a creek of Portsmouth Harbour, about a mile distant from Gosport, is the Military Hospital, connected with the establishment at Portsmouth. On the north side of the lake is the magazine where nearly all the powder is stored for the service of this port. Not far hence are the ruins of an ancient castle, called Borough Castle, and said to have been built by King Stephen.

FORTON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Newport (142) 1½ m. NNE.
Pop. with Mere, 702.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Cuttlestone; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 20. 19s. 2d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) R. Stonehewer, Esq.

FORTROSE, shire of Ross, S.

Edinburgh 166 m. NNW. Pop. with Pa. Feirs, 1st Wed. in April; 3d Wed. in June; and 2d. Wed. in Nov. Memb. of Pt. 1, with Forres, Nairn, and Inverness.

A royal burgh and post-town in the parish of Rosemarkie and comprising the towns of Rosemarkie and Chanonry, united by charter of James VI., under the common term of Fort-Ross, from which is derived its present name, Fortrose. It is pleasantly situated on the northern shore of the Moray Firth, and though now an inconsiderable place, was formerly spoken of as the northern seat of divinity, law, and physic; and still possesses some importance from a celebrated public academy, lately established by the neighbouring gentry, and conducted by a rector and two masters, who teach the Greek, Latin, French, and English languages, mathematics, and geography, every branch of commercial knowledge, their salaries being paid from a considerable bequest of Thomas Forbes, baillie of the burgh, in 1699. Dr. James Mackenzie author of "The Art of Preserving Health," taught in this school. The town of Rosemarkie, was erected into a royal burgh so early as the reign of Alexander II.; and Chanonry was anciently the seat of the bishops of Ross, as it now is that of the presbytery. The small remaining portion of the cathedral is still the burial-place of many old families, and the vestry has been converted into a court-house and prison for the burgh. The bishop's palace, said to have been a most sumptuous edifice, was pulled down in the time of Cromwell, and the materials used in the erection of a fort then bearing his name, near Inverness, but now called Fort George, to which there is a ferry of eight miles across the Firth. In the neighbourhood is an ancient castle of the Earls of Seaforth, once occupied by the learned compiler of "The Lives of Eminent Scotch Writers," Dr. George Mackenzie. The Black Isle farming society meet here and at Cromarty alternately.

FORVIE, shire of Aberdeen, S.

The name of an ancient parish in the district of Torow. Dict.—VOL. II.

tract of Ellon; it has the North sea on the east, and, excepting two farms, is overwhelmed with sand blown up by tempests, to which it has long been subject. It is now comprehended in the parish of Sains, but there are no traces of any building, save the slight remains of its church.

FOSS, shire of Perth, S.

A detached district of the parish of Dull, lying on the south side of the river Tummel. It has a small chapel, served by the minister of Rannoch every third Sabbath.

FOSSDYKE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Holbeach (107) 8 m. NNW. Pop. 421.

A parish in the wapentake of Kirton, parts of Holland; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Algar Kirk, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; chapel ded. to All Saints; patronage with Algar Kirk rectory.

FOSSEY, Queen's co., Leinster, I.

P. T. Stradbally (49) m. Pop. 1941.

A parish, partly in Cullinagh, and partly in Maryborough barony; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Leighlin and archdiocese of Dublin, forming part of the union of Timogue.

FOSSHAM, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hornsea (188) 9 m. S. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Aldbrough and middle division of the wapentake of Holderness.

FOSSOWAY, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Kinross (25) 6 m. WSW. Pop. 1311.

A parish separated into two divisions by the intervention of the ancient parish of Tullibole, to which it is now united. The northern part, extending into the Ochil hills, is six miles in length by three in breadth, and the southern eight by about two and a half. The surface is elevated, and though some of the hills are barren, most of them are verdant their very summits, and afford shelter for game and good pasturage. Coal, freestone, nestone, and peat-moss, are abundant, and recent plantations add much to the natural scenery of the country, which is watered by the river Doan, forming in its course several cascades, of which the Devil's Mill, the Rumbling Bridge, and the Cauldron Inn, are noted for their romantic beauty. The burghs of barony, Blairingore and the Crook of Doan, are within this parish, each enjoying the privilege of an annual fair. The living is in the presbytery of Auchterarder, and synod of Perth and Stirling; patron, Graham of Kinross. The church was erected in 1729, in a convenient situation for both parishes, the churchyard being in that of Tullibole. Palace-Brae, Monk's-Grave, Gallow-Know, Trooper's-Dubb, and the Reformation-Clogg, are names of certain places here that must have been of ancient importance.

FOSTON, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 11½ m. W b S.
Pop. with Pa.

• A township in the parish of Scropton and hundred of Appletree.

FOSTON, co. Leicester.

• P. T. Leicester (96) 6 m. S b E. Pop. 24.

A parish in the hundred of Guthlaxton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 117. 2s. 3½d.; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patron (1829) Thomas H. Lamb, Esq.

FOSTON, co. Lincoln.

• P. T. Grantham (110) 6 m. NW b N.
Pop. 420.

A parish in the wapentake of Lovedon, parts of Kesteven; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Long Bennington, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Peter; patronage with Long Bennington vicarage.

FOSTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (190) 12 m. NE b N.
Pop. of Pa. 202. Of To. 91.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Bulmer; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 147.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FOSTON-UPON-THE-WOLDS, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (196) 5 m. ESE.
Pop. of Pa. 681. Of To. 300.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Dickering; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 157. 8s. 6½d.; ann. val. P. R. 367.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FOTHERBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (140) 4 m. N b W. Pop. 193.

A parish in the wapentake of Ludborough, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 37. ann. val. P. R. 1147.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FOTHERINGAY, or FORDRINGHAY, co. Northampton.

P. T. Oundle (81) 3 m. NNE. Pop. 309.
Fair, the 3d Mon. aft. July 6, for horses.

A parish, and formerly a market-town, in the hundred of Wilbybrook, pleasantly seated on the river Nen. It is particularly famous for the castle which it formerly possessed, now in ruins, and which has been the scene of many important events. This structure was originally founded by Simon St. Liz, second Earl of Northampton, in the time of William the Conqueror. This fortress was rebuilt by Edmund, Duke of York, son of Edward III.; the keep was built in the form of a fetterlock, which, with the addition of a falcon in the centre, was the emblem of the family of York. The same figure, in stained glass, was emblazoned in most of the castle windows. By marriage, it became the property of the Scottish kings; but in the reign of John, David, King of Scotland, was summoned to surrender the castle to crown of England; and refusing to comply, the sheriff was directed, by royal mandate, to force him to submission. In this castle Richard III. was born; and Mary, Queen of Scots, after having suffered a long imprisonment, was tried and condemned in the Hall, in the year 1586, and shortly afterwards executed. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 1407. 2s.; patron (1829) Thomas Belsey, Esq. The church, ded. to St. Mary and All Saints, was built in the reign of Henry V., by Edward, Duke of York, whose body was brought from Agincourt, in France, where he was slain, and interred here. Richard, Duke of York, and his wife, Cecilia Neville, are also buried in this church; the former was first interred at Pontefract, in Yorkshire, but afterwards taken up and brought hither. Queen Elizabeth rebuilt the monuments of these princes. Here is a grammar-school, which was founded by Queen Elizabeth, and endowed with 207. per annum, to be paid out of the exchequer, for the maintenance of a master, who has a house in the church-yard, and other advantages.

FOTHERLEY, HIGH, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Corbridge (275) 3 m. Pop. 92.

township in the parish of Bywell, St. Peter, and east division of Tindale ward.

FOULA, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

Lat. 60. 9 N. Pop. with Walls.

One of the Shetland isles, the supposed Ultima Thule of the Romans, lying about twenty-four miles west of Mainland. It is about three miles long and half a mile broad, and consists chiefly of three conical hills, from 800 to 900 feet above the level of the sea. The only landing-place is termed Ham, on the east side, which, in summer, is a tolerable fishing-station, the western side presenting to the Atlantic a continuity of bold and awful precipices, resorted to by myriads of aquatic fowl; in taking which, the fowlers, like those of Norway, succeed only at the hazard of being either drowned or dashed to pieces amongst the hideous rocks below. This is the principal breeding-place of the larus cataractes, or skua-gull, termed here the bonxie. Granite, quartz, sandstone, and micaceous schistus, abound here; but tillage is not sufficiently attended to, even for the support of the natives, who, notwithstanding their lonely situation, are so much attached to their home as scarcely to think of emigration.

FOULDEN, shire of Berwick, S.

P. T. Berwick-upon-Tweed (53½) 5 m. NW b W. Pop. 396. Fairs, two annually.

A parish, village, and burgh of barony, the former two and a half miles long by about two broad, is mostly enclosed, highly cultivated, and intersected by the river Whit-tadder, which, in its course, runs through a ravine from forty to fifty yards deep. Though a maritime district, the coast affords neither harbour nor creek. The living is in the presbytery of Chirnside and synod of Merse and Tiviotdale; patron, James Wilkie, Esq. The church was rebuilt in 1786, on the site of an ancient structure, remarkable as the place where the excuses of Elizabeth for the execution of the hapless Mary were received by the Scottish commissioners, March 24, 1587. Among other remains of ancient fortifications, is an old ruin, called Foulden, said to have been a place of great importance and strength during the border warfare.

FOULDON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Stoke-Ferry (88) 5 m. E b S. Pop. 167.

A parish in the hundred of South Greenhoe; living, a dis. vicarage, with the rectory of Oxburgh, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with Oxburgh rectory.

FOULDREY, or THE PILE OF FOULDREY, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Ulverston (273) 12 m. SSW.

• Pop. with Pa.

A small rocky island in the parish of Dalton in Furness and hundred of Lonsdale north of the sands. The name, Pile, signifies a castle, and Fouldrey, an Island of Fowls, it being the resort of many aquatic birds. The castle, which was formerly strong and spacious, consisting of several towers, surrounded by two ditches, is now in ruins, forming a picturesque ruin, seen many miles out at sea. It is said to have been built by the abbot of Furness, in the reign of Edward III., as a retreat for the monks, in the event of the Scots renewing their incursions, so fearfully experienced in the preceding reign. The port of the Pile of Fouldrey is large and commodious, and would float a large man-of-war at low water; its entrance was well guarded by the erection of the castle.

FOULIS, EASTER, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Dundee (40½) 5½ m. WNW. Pop. 408.

A parish with the ancient parish of Lundie, united in 1618. It contains about 1950 acres, of which about two-thirds are rich arable, mostly enclosed, and highly cultivated, while the remainder is appropriated chiefly to pasturage. The living is in the presbytery of Dundee and synod of Angus and Mearns. The church, which was formerly collegiate, is a beautiful remain of ancient architecture of hewn stone, still in good preservation, though erected during the crusades, so long ago as 1142. In the church-yard is an old cross; and a few years since, there was another, about a quarter of a mile distant to the northward.

FOULIS, WESTER, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Cricell (56) 4½ m. NE. Pop. 1316. Fairs, March 11 and 19; Aug. 19; and Nov. 6.

A parish and village on the high road between Perth and Cricell, and watered by the river Almond, which, in its course, forms several fine cascades. The parish is eight miles in length by six in breadth, and mostly appropriated to pasture, a small portion only being enclosed. Peat, the only fuel, is plentiful. The living is in the presbytery of Auchterarder and synod of Perth and Stirling; patron, Sir William Murray, Bart., whose seat, Abercainry, is a most commodious mansion, surrounded with noble plantations. At Castleton, are the remains of a castle, anciently the residence of the Earls of Strathearn.

FOULMIRE, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Royston (37) 5 m. NNE. Pop. 541.

A parish in the hundred of Thriplow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Hardwicke.

FOULNESS-ISLAND, co. Essex.

P. T. Rochford (40) 9 m. E b N. Pop. 565. Fair, July 10, for toys.

A parish in the hundred of Rochford, the principal one of several islands, at the eastern extremity of the hundred; its circumference is upwards of twenty miles, containing about 5000 acres, disposed into several farms. The living is a dis. rectory exempt from visitation, in the diocese of London; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; ann. val. R. 98*l.* 12*s.*; patron (1829) the Earl of Inchilsea. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a small edifice, nearly in the centre of the island, originally founded as a chapel of ease; the floods having frequently prevented inhabitants from attending their respective places of worship on the main land. The best oysters in England are taken here from the mouth of the Crouch.

FOULRIDGE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Colne (219) 2 m. N. Pop. 1307.

A township in the parish of Whalley and hundred of Blackburn, adjoining the county of York. Here is a basin, which supplies the Leeds and Liverpool canal, being the highest point in the course of that extensive undertaking.

FOULSHAM, co. Norfolk.

London 111 m. NNE. Pop. 835. M. D. Tues. Fairs, Easter Tues., for petty chapmen; and 1st Tues. in May.

A small market-town and parish in the hundred of Eynesford, which in 1770 was almost totally destroyed by fire; it was afterwards rebuilt on a more convenient plan, and the houses of a more respectable character than previously to that catastrophe. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 271. 14s. 9½*d.*; patron (1829) Sir J. D. Astley, Bart. The church, dedicated to the Holy Innocents, was rebuilt at the same period as the town; in the churchyard is a curious old tomb.

FOULSTONE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Huddersfield (188) 4 m. SE.
Pop. 1261.

A township in the parish of Kirkburton and upper division of the wapentake of Aghbrigg.

FOUNTAIN'S EARTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Ripon (212) 4 m. SW b W.
Pop. with Middlemoor.

A township in the parish of Kirkby Malzerd, lower division of the wapentake of Claro.

FOVANT, co. Wilts.

P. T. Wilton (81) 6 m. W b S. Pop. 523.

A parish in the hundred of Cawdon and Cadworth; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 171; church ded. to St. George; patron (1829) the Earl of Pembroke.

FOVERAN, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Aberdeen (121½) 12 m. N. Pop. 1531.

A parish in the district of Ellon, four miles in length, two in breadth, and intersected by the river Ythan, which falls into the North Sea at the village of Newburgh, and near that place are the ruins of Knock Hall Castle, the ancient seat of the Udnys. The surface rises gently from the shore, the soil rich, and abundantly fruitful. The living is in the presbytery of Ellon and synod of Aberdeen; patron, the Crown. There are vestiges of another old castle, and of several chapels in this parish.

FOWBERRY, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 3 m. NE. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Chatton and east division of Glendale ward, containing the seats of Fowberry Park and Fowberry Tower; the latter is pleasantly seated on the south side of the river Till.

POWEY, co. Cornwall.

London 213 m. SW b W. Pop. 1455.
M. D. Sat. Fairs, Shrove-Tues.; May 1;
and Sept. 10, for cattle. Mex. of Pt. 2.

A borough, market, and seaport town, in the western division of the hundred of Powder, but having separate jurisdiction, situated on the western banks of the river Fowey, which here expands its waters into a secure and spacious harbour, capable of containing vessels of 1000 tons at all times of the tide. The rocks on both sides of the river are composed of a hard bluish slate, containing broad veins of fat quartz, so called by mineralogists, from its greasiness to the touch. On the rocks upon the sides of the harbour opposite to the town are the ruins of two square stone towers, erected for the protection of the entrance in the reign of Henry IV.; both were provided with port-holes and cannon, and the walls are six feet in thickness. Between these forts, a chain originally extended across the entrance of the harbour, as an additional security, but was removed during the reign of the same monarch. The harbour is now defended by two small batteries of modern erection, and St. Catherine's Fort, built by the townsmen, in the reign of Henry VIII. The latter fortress stands on the summit of a steep and magnificent pile of rocks, bounding one of the creeks of the river. From the elevated stations of these fortresses, it is quite impossible for any ship to bring her guns to bear upon them. The houses are built chiefly of stone, and extend more than a mile along the banks of the river; the streets are so narrow and full of angles, that a carriage of any description passes through them with great difficulty. The inhabitants carry on a very extensive trade in pilchards, upwards of 28,000 hogsheads being brought into this port every season. The spacious market-house, the upper parts of which are used as the town-hall, was erected by Philip Rashleigh, Esq., and Lord Valletort, representatives of the town. The corporation consists of a mayor, eight aldermen, a recorder, and two assistants. The mayor, the preceding mayor, the recorder, and senior alderman, are justices of the peace. The recorder was first chosen under a charter, granted in the reign of James II., before which period the chief magistrate was a portreeve. The toll of the market and fairs, as well as the quayage of the harbour, are vested in the corporation, on the payment of a fee-farm rent of 40*s.* This town sends two members to Parliament, which privilege it has used since the thirteenth year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth; the electors are the inhabitants, paying scot and lot, and prince's tenants, eligible to serve the office of portreeve, consisting in all of about two hundred. It is a feudal tenure, under the King, as Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; patron (1829) J. B. Austin, Esq. The church is dedicated to St. Fimbarrus, an Irish saint, and reputed Bishop of Cork, in the fifth century; it is a handsome and lofty structure, having one large and two small aisles, and a beautiful tower, ornamented with rich carvings, and strengthened by buttresses, terminating in puffed pinnacles. From the style of architecture, and the rose observable on the key-stones of some of the arches, it is supposed to have been built in the reign of Edward IV.; within are many sculptured marble monuments to the Freffry, Rashleigh, and Graham families, the workmanship of which is very indifferent. The principal charitable institutions of this town, are two good freeschools, and an almshouse for eight decayed widows. Fowey was famous for its exploits and piracies, as early as the reign of Edward I.; and having become rich in its number of vessels, turned its attention to trading in all parts of the world. In the reign of Edward III. it furnished forty-seven vessels for assisting in the wars, a greater proportion than was supplied by any other port in the kingdom. During the same reign it was made a member of the cinque-ports; and from its successful attack on the vessels of Rye and Winchelsea, occasioned by refusing to strike colours when passing those places, it obtained the appellation of the Gallants of Fowey; and the corporation afterwards bore their arms mixed with those of these two cinque-ports. Plau, or Treffry House, is an ancient castellated mansion, mentioned by Leland, and for many ages the seat of the Treffrys; one of this family was knighted by Edward, the Black Prince, for having taken the chief standard of the French, at the battle of Crécy. Menabilly, long the seat of the Rashleighs, is a handsome stone building, standing on an eminence near the sea, about three miles distant from hence, commanding a fine view over the British Channel. Here is a very curious grotto, built by Philip Rashleigh, Esq., containing a most extensive and valuable collection of minerals, fossils, and innumerable specimens of ores of tin, lead, iron, and copper, found in this county, and each kind separately classed. In this cabinet also are the two links of the ancient chain of the harbour, which were picked up there by some fishermen in 1776; the iron is much corroded, and incrustated with shells and corals. The scenery from the various rocks and eminences of Fowey is of the most beautiful and sublime description.

FOWNHOPE, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 7 m. S.E. Pop. 866.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Greytree, pleasantly situated on the east bank of the Wye; living, a vicarage with the curacy of Fawley in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 9*s.* 9½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Hereford. In the neighbourhood are two ancient camps, one of which, on Capler Hill, called Wolbury, has a double trench, the other has not any appellation. From the summit of Capler Hill, which is finely wooded, may be obtained some most beautiful, rich, and extensive prospects; in which the contiguous channel of the Wye forms a very striking feature.

FOXALL, or FOXHALL, co. Longford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Edgeworthstown (60) m. Pop. 1125.

A parish in the barony of Ardagh; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Ardagh, forming a part of the union of Killglass.

FOXCOTT, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Buckingham (55) 2 m. N.E. Pop. 110.

A parish in the hundred of Buckingham; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 9*s.* 4½*d.*; church ded. to St. Leonard; patron (1829) the Duke of Buckingham.

FOXCOTT, or FOSCOTT, co. Southampton.

P. T. Andover (63) 2 m. N.W. Pop. 96.

A chapelry in the parish and hundred of Andover, Andover division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Andover in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; patronage with Andover vicarage.

FOXEARLE, co. Sussex.

Pop. 3076.

A hundred in the rape of Hastings, nearly in the centre of the county, containing three parishes.

FOXEARTH, co. Essex.

P. T. Sudbury (54) 3½ m. N.W. Pop. 436.

A parish in the hundred of Hinkford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 4*s.* 4½*d.*; patron (1829) the Rev. J. Pemberton.

FOXFORD, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

Dublin 173 m. N.W. Pop. 1021. From Killala 19 m. From Swinford 15 m. Fairs, May 15; June 25; Oct. 3; and Dec. 10.

A post, fair, market-town, and parish, in the barony of Gallen, pleasantly seated upon the river Moy. It is adorned by a handsome church, built by an ingenious architect, Mr. O'Hara; an elegant market-house, and a spacious permanent barrack, this being an established military station. Here is an improving linen-market. The trade of this place could be placed upon a valuable and solid footing, by improving the navigation of the Moy, which is obstructed by two falls, the one at Foxford, of nine feet, the second at Ballina, of twenty-two; and a little more expense would open Lough Conn to the inhabitants of Ballina and Foxford.

FOXHALL, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Ipswich (69) 4 m. E. b. S. Pop. 217.

A parish in the hundred of Carleford; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Brightwell in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; patronage with Brightwell rectory.

FOXHAM, co. Wilts.

P. T. Chippenham (93) 4½ m. N.E. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Bremhill and hundred of Chippenham; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Bremhill in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; patronage with Bremhill vicarage. The chapel, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, was built by a branch of the Hungerford family, to whom the manor formerly belonged.

FOXHOLES, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (196) 11 m. N.

*Pop. of Pa. 202. Of To. with Boythorpe, 169.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Dickering; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 22*l.*; patron (1289) D. Sykes, Esq.

FOXLEY, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Reepham (111) 4½ m. W. Pop. 250.

A parish in the hundred of Eynesford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Thomas; patron (1829) E. Lombe, Esq.

FOXLEY, co. Wilts.

P. T. Malmesbury (96) 2 m. WSW. Pop. 71.

A pleasantly situated parish in the hundred of Malmesbury; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 3*l.* 17*s.* 8½*d.*; patron (1829) Lord Holland. Some parts of the church of this parish are of great antiquity.

FOXTON, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Cambridge (50) 6 m. SW. Pop. 308.

A parish in the hundred of Thriplow; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 2*s.* 11*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 75*l.*; church ded. to St. Laurence; patron, the Bishop of Ely.

FOXTON, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Stockton-upon-Tees (211) 6½ m. NW. b W. Pop. with Shotton, 63.

A township in the parish of Sedgfield and north-east division of Stockton ward. This manor belonged to the Knights of Jerusalem, but on their dissolution it passed to the Crown, and was subsequently parcelled out to several proprietors.

FOXTON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market Harborough (83) 3 m. NW b W. Pop. 383.

A parish in the hundred of Gartree; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 70*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FOY, co. Hereford.

P. T. Ross (120) 4 m. N. Pop. 203.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Wormelow; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patroness (1829) Mrs. Jones.

FOYLE. See Lough Foyle.

FOYLE RIVER, co. Londonderry, Ulster, I.

A river which takes its rise in Lough Dearg, and being joined by the Fir and the Mourn falls into the estuary of Lough

Foyle. It is naturally navigable for a length of nine miles to a place called St. Johnston, above the city of Derry, and from that point to the town of Strabane, a distance of three miles and a half, a navigation has been opened at the expense of the Marquis of Abercorn. At Derry this noble river is crossed by a wooden bridge, 1068 feet in length, constructed in the year 1791, after the design of Lemuel Cox, an American engineer.

FRADLEY, co. Stafford.

P. T. Lichfield (119) 4 m. NE. Pop. 426.

A township in the parish of Alrewas and north division of the hundred of Osflow.

FRADSWELL, co. Stafford.

P. T. Stone (111) 6 m. ESE. Pop. 219.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Colwich and south division of the hundred of Pirchill; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Colwich and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield, of the certified value of 12*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*; patronage with Colwich vicarage.

FRAMFIELD, co. Sussex.

P. T. Uckfield (43) 1½ m. SE. Pop. 1137.

A parish in the hundred of Loxfield Dorset, rape of Pevensey; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Thomas-à-Becket; patron (1829) the Earl of Thanet.

FRAMLAND, co. Leicester.

Pop. 15,311.

A hundred on the north-east point of the county adjoining Lincolnshire, containing forty parishes, including the town of Melton Mowbray.

FRAMLINGHAM, co. Suffolk.

London 87 m. NE. Ipswich 18 m. NE b N. Pop. 2327. M. D. Sat. Fairs, White Mon.; and Oct. 11, for cattle, sheep, and cloths.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Loes, pleasantly seated on an eminence near the source of the river Ore, which rises on the hills to the north, falls into a lake of some extent, and passing through the town, flows southward to Orford. Framlingham is a place of great antiquity, and derives its name from the Saxon words, Fremdling and Ham, signifying the habitation of strangers. The market-place is very spacious, and in the centre formerly stood an ancient market-cross, which was taken down some years ago. The inhabitants are engaged, for the most part, in trade and manufactures. The principal ornament of this town is its ancient and majestic castle, now in ruins; the outer walls are, however, nearly perfect, and at a distance it has not the appearance of being in ruins. It is supposed to have been founded in the time of the Saxons, and was effectually defended on the west side by the lake, and on the others by two broad and deep ditches communicating with it. This fortress was the retreat of King Edmund the Martyr, when he fled from Dunwich; being pursued by the Danes, he attempted his escape, but was overtaken at Hoxon Angl beheaded; his body was interred at Bury. On the death of Edward VI., his sister, Mary having asserted her claim to the throne, in opposition to the partisans of Lady Jane Grey, repaired to this castle for the security of her person, where she remained until her removal to London, to take possession of the crown. A ruinous apartment is still called Queen Mary's room. The living is a rectory, with the curacy of Saxtead, in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 43*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*.; patron, Pembroke Hall, Cambridge. The church, ded. to St. Michael, is a large handsome structure, built with black flints; it has a tower, ninety-six feet high, containing a clock, chimes, and a peal of eight bells, and is seen to great advantage from many neighbouring parts of the county. In this church are many monuments to persons of distinction, among which is a very beautiful one to the Earl and Countess of Surrey, and for the repair of it the Earl of Northampton directed the annual payment of forty shillings by Trinity Hospital, at Greenwich, which he founded. There is a free-school, which was founded by Sir Robert Hitcham, with a salary of forty pounds for the master, to instruct forty of the poorest children of the town in reading, writing, and arithmetic, and ten pounds each to apprentice them. The same individual, in 1615, founded an almshouse for twelve of the poorest persons in the town; to each of whom he allotted two shillings a week, and forty shillings per annum, for a gown and firing; the allowance has subsequently been augmented to four shillings a week, and an additional chaldron and a quarter of coals. They are to attend church morning and evening; therefore the founder left 20*l*. per annum for the clergyman to perform the duty, and 5*l*. for a clerk and sexton. Another charitable institution of the same description was founded by the trustees of Thomas Mills, of this town, who died in 1703, and left his property for that purpose. This establishment is calculated to receive eight poor persons, who are allowed half-a-crown weekly, and thirty shillings a-year for firing. Two of the apartments were built by William Mayhew, servant to Mr. Mills, at his own expense. Framlingham also has a Sunday-school, besides some minor charities.

FRAMLINGHAM, EARL'S, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Norwich (108) 5 m. SE b S. Pop. 56.

A parish in the hundred of Henstead; living, a dis. rectory with Bixley, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 3*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patronage with Bixley.

FRAMLINGHAM, PIGOT, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Norwich (108) 5½ m. SE b S. Pop. 304.

A parish in the hundred of Henstead; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 3*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*.; patron, the Bishop of Norwich.

FRAMLINGTON, LONG, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Rothbury (303) 5 m. E b S. Pop. of Pa. 815. Of To. 503. Fairs, &c. Tues. in July; and Oct. 25, for sheep, black cattle, &c.

A parochial chapelry and township in the east division of Coquetdale ward, pleasantly situated on the branch of the north road, leading by way of Coldstream to Edinburgh. It was formerly very poorly supplied with water, but in 1821, a pump-well was sunk, by subscription, from which the inhabitants now obtain that necessary article in abundance. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham, not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Felton. Here is a Presbyterian chapel, built in 1739, by a congregation which has existed here since 1640. The late Mrs. Tate bequeathed, in 1825, the interest of 500*l*. for the education of twenty poor children of the place. Hall Hill, in this neighbourhood, is supposed to have been the site of a Roman station, and the remains of a triple intrenchment are still distinguishable. The road, called Devil's Causeway, passes very near this parish, and is very perfect in the neighbourhood. The chief mineral productions are coal, limestone, and freestone; but as each freeholder is lord of his own manor, very little of the former has been brought to the surface.

FRAMPTON, or FROMETON, co. Dorset.

P. T. Dorchester (119) 5 m. NW b W. Pop. 118.

A parish in the liberty of Frampton, Bridport division, situated on the river Frome, over which there is a good stone bridge. From its site it was formerly called Frome Town, now corrupted to Frampton. This part of the river abounds in excellent trout. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 11*l*. 9*s*. 7*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 109*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*.; patron (1829) F. I. Browne, Esq. The church, ded. to St. Bartholomew, is a substantial edifice, with a handsome and lofty tower. Here was formerly a priory of Black Monks, a cell to St. Stephen at Caen, in Normandy.

FRAMPTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Winchcombe (99) m. adjacent. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Winchcombe and lower division of the hundred of Kiftsgate.

FRAMPTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Boston (116) 3 m. SSW. Pop. 688.

A parish in the wapentake of Kirton, parts of Holland; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; va-lined in K. B. 18*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 80*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) C. K. Tunnard, Esq.

FRAMPTON, COTTERELL, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Chipping Sodbury (108) 4 m. W.
Pop. 1610.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Langley and Swineshead; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 16*s.* 0*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Duke of Beaufort.

FRAMPTON-ON-SEVERN, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Dursley (108) 5½ m. N. Pop. 990.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Whitstone, pleasantly situated near the banks of the river Severn, the tides of which run up with great violence and rapidity, and formerly occasioned considerable damage by overflowing its banks and inundating the neighbouring villages. This inconvenience was remedied by the Earl of Berkeley, who erected a great bulwark, called the Hockcrib, which contains the waters within their proper channel. At spring-tides part of the village is still frequently under water, and from its consequent dampness the inhabitants are, during some seasons, much subject to the ague. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 11*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 101*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) J. Dunsford, Esq.

FRAMSDEN, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Framlingham (87) 6 m. WSW.
Pop. 702.

A parish in the hundred of Thridling; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 0*s.* 2½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Lord Dysart.

FRANKBY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Great Neston (191) 7 m. NNW.
Pop. 66.

A township in the parish of West Kirkby and hundred of Wirrall.

FRANKFORD, or KILCORMUCK, King's County, Leinster, I.

P. T. Balliboy (75) 4 m. W. Pop. 810.
Fairs, May 28, and Nov. 8.

A town in the parish and barony of Balliboy. The charter-school of this place, endowed by James Frank, Esq., has been discontinued. A Carmelite monastery was founded here by Odo, the son of Nellan, chief of the sept of the O'Molloys. Nellan O'Molloy died in 1451, and lies interred before the high altar in this abbey.

FRANKLEY, co. Worcester.

P. T. Hales Owen (117) 3 m. SE b S.
Pop. 189.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Halfshire; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Hales Owen, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Leonard; patronage with Hales Owen vicarage.

FRANKTON, co. Warwick.

P. T. Eunchurch (80) ½ m. W b S. Pop. 253.

A parish in the Rugby division of the hundred of Knightlow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 26*l.* 16*s.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas.

FRANSIAM, GREAT, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Swaffham (93) 6 m. NE b E. Pop. 322.

A parish in the hundred of Launditch; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. at 7*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) F. R. Reynolds, Esq.

FRANSIAM, LITTLE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Swaffham (93) 5 m. ENE. Pop. 228.

A parish in the hundred of Launditch; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. at 5*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) E. Swatman, Esq.

FRANT, or FANT, cos. Kent and Sussex.

P. T. Tunbridge-Wells (30) 2 m. S b E.
Pop. 1727.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Waslingstone, lathe of Aylesford, and partly in the hundred of Rotherfield, rape of Pevensey; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 5*s.* 5*d.*; patron (1829) the Rev. R. Crawley.

FRASERBURGH, shire of Aberdeen, S.

Edinburgh 163½ m. NNE. Pop. 2831.

A seaport, market, and post-town, and parish, in the district of Deer; the former situated on a small bay or roadstead, near Kinnaird's Head, at the entrance of the Murray Firth, upon which are the remains of an ancient building, called the Wine Tower, overhanging the sea, and the castle of Kinnaird's Head, built in 1600, and since converted into a lighthouse. It has a good harbour, protected by piers, constructed at a great expense, which affords secure anchorage for ships of 300 tons burden, employed in the Baltic trade, and is subject to the jurisdiction of the custom-house of Aberdeen, though distant forty-two miles. All vessels frequenting the port pay certain shore and harbour dues to the Feuars, who are obliged to uphold its public works. The town, which consists of several spacious streets, meeting at right angles, contains a number of elegant houses, a town-house, and a tolbooth, under a noble cross, crowned with the royal arms. At the west-end of the place is the suburb, or small fishing-village of Broadsea; also an old quadrangular tower, erected about 1592, by Sir Alexander Fraser, as part of a college or university, for which he had previously obtained a charter of endowment, but never fulfilled his intention. Fraserburgh was erected into a burgh of regality in 1613, the government being vested in Lord Saltoun, as superior, with the authority of provost, two bailies, a dean of guild, a treasurer, and a council. By the charter the Feuars are constituted burgesses and incorporated brethren of the burgh. Here, and in the neighbourhood, are considerable manufactures of linen, yarn, and kelp; and limestone, granite, and ironstone, are quarried in abundance. The parish was anciently called Philorth, and retained that name till the middle of the sixteenth century, when the town was founded upon the estate of the Frasers, and thus obtained the appellation of Fraserburgh, by which also the parish has ever since been known. It contains more than 10,000 acres, and is rich and productive along the coast; but the interior is poor land, interspersed with mosses and muirs. The living is in the presbytery of Deer and synod of Aberdeen; patron, Lord Saltoun. The church was built in 1575. At a little distance from the town, are the ruins of a monastic edifice; also a well, at which a custom still obtains of leaving a trifle in return for drinking its waters.

FRATING, co. Essex.

P. T. Colchester (51) 6 m. E b S. Pop. 263.

A parish in the hundred of Tendring; living, a dis. rectory with that of Thorington, in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 10*l*.; patronage with Thorington rectory.

FRAYSTHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Bridlington (206) 5 m. SSW. Pop. with Awarbn Township 91.

A parish in the wapentake of Dickering living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; certified value 3*l*.; patron (1829) Sir W. Strickland.

FRECKENHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Mildenhall (70) 3 m. SW b W. Pop. 306.

A parish in the hundred of Lackford; livings, a rectory and vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B., the former, 16*l*. 11*s*. 5½*d*.; the latter, 3*l*. 15*s*. 2½*d*.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, Peter House, Cambridge.

FRECKLETON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Kirkham (225) 2 m. S. Pop. 875.

A township in the parish of Kirkham and hundred of Amounderness. Here is a sack-making manufactory, which gives employment to many of the inhabitants.

FREDERICKSTOWN, co. Tyrone, Ulster, I.

P. T. Strabane (136) m. Pop. not specified. Fairs, Jan. 3; March 3; June 3; and Oct. 3.

A small town in the parish and barony of Strabane.

FREEBRIDGE-LYNN, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 10,537.

A hundred on the north-west side of the county, lying on the shore of Lynn Wash, and bounded on the south by the river Lynn, containing thirty-four parishes, including the borough of Castle Rising.

FREEBRIDGE-MARSH-LAND, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 9991.

A hundred at the west end of the county, nearly surrounded by the river Ouse, and an arm of the sea, consisting of low damp lands, often suffering by inundations, containing seventeen parishes, including the borough of Lynn.

FREEBY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Melton Mowbray (105) 4 m. E b N. Pop. 110.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Melton Mowbray and hundred of Framland; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 20*l*.; chapel ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Melton Mowbray vicarage.

FREEFOLK, co. Southampton.

P. T. Whitechurch (56) 1 m. ENE. Pop. 68.

A parish in the hundred of Evingar, Kingsclere division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Whitechurch, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; patron, the Bishop of Winchester. Here is a paper-mill, where the paper for the Bank of England notes has been manufactured ever since the reign of George I.

FREEFORD, co. Stafford.

P. T. Lichfield (119) 2 m. SE. Pop. 14.

A hamlet in the parish of St. Michael and north division of the hundred of Odflow.

REETHORPE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Acle (121) 4 m. S. Pop. 301.

A parish in the hundred of Blowfield; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; certified value 12*l*.; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with Reepham rectory.

FEIRSTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Boston (116) 3 m. E. Pop. 862.

A parish in the wapentake of Skirbeck, parts of Holland; living, a dis. vicarage with that of Butterwick, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 16*l*. 11*s*. 10*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 137*l*. 17*s*. 2*d*.; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) G. Scholey, Esq.

FREMINGTON, co. Devon.

Pop. 7811.

A hundred at the western extremity of the county, lying between the rivers Taw and Torridge, which discharge themselves into Bideford Bay, containing eleven parishes.

FREMINGTON, co. Devon.

P. T. Barnstaple (192) 3 m. WSW. Pop. 1099.

A parish in the hundred of Framington; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 0*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Rev. Charles Hill. FRENCH, co. Southampton.

P. T. Romsey (73) 7 m. NW. Pop. 44.

A tithing in the parish of Broughton and hundred of Thorngate, Andover division.

FRENCH-PARK, co. Roscommon, Connaught, I.

Dublin (117) m. N. b. W. Pop. with Pa.

Fairs, May 21; July 21; and Sept. 21.

A village in the parish of Nihoola and baron of Boyle. Here is the noble demesne — French, Esq. the head of the ancient family of that name.

FRENSHAM, co. Surrey.

P. T. Farham (33) 4 m. S. Pop. 1431.

An extensive parish in the hundred of Farham; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 95*l.*; patron (1829) Mr. Bishop. The church, ded. to St. Mary is a low building, with a square tower, in the vestry-room of which is a large ancient copper cauldron, concerning which many legendary tales have been told. It has puzzled the antiquary to determine the use of this vessel, or by what means it came here. In this parish is a large piece of water, about three miles in circumference, called Frensham-Great-Pond; large quantities of wild fowl assemble here during the winter.

FRENZE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Scote (90) 1 m. NW b. N. Pop. 60.

A parish in the hundred of Diss; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 73*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) James Smith, Esq.

FRESHFORD, co. Somerset.

P. T. Bath (100) 4 m. SE. Pop. 367.

A parish in the hundred of Bath Forum; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Bath and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 7*s.* 8½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 146*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) G. H. Tugwell, Esq.

FRESHWATER, co. Southampton.

P. T. Yarmouth (97) 2 m. SW b. S. Pop. 876.

A parish in the hundred of West Medina liberty, Isle of Wight; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, St. John's College, Cambridge. Freshwater House is an agreeable seat in this parish, surrounded by pleasant and extensive grounds. This was the birthplace of Dr. Robert Hooke, the ingenious inventor of the pendulum spring for watches. He was born in 1635.

FRESHWELL, co. Essex.

Pop. 6205.

A hundred in the north part of the county, extending northwards to Haverhill, in Suffolk, and Linton, in Cambridgeshire, containing ten parishes.

FRESSINGFIELD, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Harleston (99) 4 m. SE. Pop. 1231.

A parish in the hundred of Hoxne; living, a vicarage with that of Withersdale, in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 17*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron, Emanuel College, Cambridge. Here Dr. William Sancroft, Archbishop of Canterbury, was born and died; he was buried in the churchyard, where a handsome monument was erected to his memory. From religious scruples he had retired from his high dignity to his seat in this parish, where he peacefully ended his life. He settled an estate, in the fee-farm rents, to the amount of 52*l.* per annum, on the vicar and his successors, for ever, on condition that he should pay 10*l.* per annum to the master of school, which his lordship had founded here, and 6*l.* per annum to the parish-clerk, for whom, and his successors for ever, he built a commodious habitation.

RESTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Saxmundham (99) 3 m. SE. Pop. 452.

A parish in the hundred of Plomesgate; living, a dis. vicarage with that of Snape, in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 132*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Snape vicarage.

FRESTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Ipswich (69) 3½ m. S. Pop. 189.

A parish in the hundred of Samford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) E. Hassall, Esq.

FRETENHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Coltishall (116) 2 m. SW b. W. Pop. 249.

A parish in the hundred of Taverham; living, a rectory with Staninghall, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Lord Suffield.

FRETHERN, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Stroud (101) 9½ m. WNW. Pop. 210.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Whitston; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. J. H. Dunsford.

FREUCHIE, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Falkland (24) 1½ m. E b. S. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Falkland and district of Cupar, possessing a manufacture of coarse linen, but chiefly remarkable for the depredations committed upon it by Rob Roy, in 1716.

FREYSTROP, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Haverford West (451) 3 m. S.E.
Pop. 478.

A parish in the hundred of Rhos; living, a dis. rectory in the diocese of St. David's and province of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor. Area of parish, above 1000 acres.

FRICKLEY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnesley (172) 9 m. ESE.
Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Clayton and lower division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 17*l.* 3*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; patron (1829) St. Andrew Ward, Esq.

FRIDAYTHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. P. Pocklington (212) 8½ m. NE b N.
Pop. 275.

A parish, partly within the liberty of St. Peter, of York, and partly in the wapentake of Buckrose; living, a dis. vicarage, and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; patron, the Prebendary of Wetwang, in York Cathedral.

FRIENDSTOWN, co. Wicklow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Ballytone (35) m. Pop. 343.

A parish in the barony of Upper Talbotstown; living, a curacy in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin; valued, by commutation for tithes, at 25*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.*, and constituting a part of the union of Dunlavin.

FRIERN BARNETT, co. Middlesex.

London 9 m. NW. Pop. 531.

A parish in the Finsbury division of the hundred of Ossulston; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London, not in charge; church ded. to St. James; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's.

FRIERNING, co. Essex.

P. T. Ingatestone (23) 1 m. WNW. Pop. 612.

A parish in the hundred of Chelmsford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 9*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Wadham College, Oxford.

FRILFORD, co. Berks.

P. T. Abingdon (50) 1 m. W. Pop. 152.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Marcham and hundred of Ock; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Sparsholt, in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; patronage with Sparsholt vicarage.

FRILSHAM, co. Berks.

P. T. East-Illey (54) 6 m. SSE. Pop. 171.

A parish in the hundred of Faircross; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B.

8*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 131*l.* 15*s.*; church ded. to St. Frideswide; patron (1829) R. Hayward, Esq.

FRIMLEY, co. Surrey.

P. T. Hagsbot (26) 4 SW b S. Pop. 1231.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Ash and hundred of Godley and Chertsey, situated near the Blackwater, over which is a bridge, leading into Hampshire; living, a curacy, subordinate to the rectory of Ash, in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 41*l.*; patron (1829) Winchester College.

FRINDSBURY, co. Kent.

P. T. Rochester (29) 2 m. NW. Pop. 1562.

A parish in the hundred of Shamwell, lathe of Aylesford; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 3*s.* 11½*d.*; patron, the Bishop of Winchester. The church, ded. to All Saints, is an ancient building, with a substantial tower, from which rises an octangular spire; it is supposed to have been built by Paulinus, the sacrist of Rochester, in the early part of the twelfth century.

FRING, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Burnham Westgate (117) 8 m. SW b W. Pop. 139. Fairs, May 10, and Dec. 11, for horses, &c.

A parish in the hundred of Smithdon; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; certified value 35*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 67*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Norwich.

FRINGFORD, co. Oxford.

P. T. Bicester (51) 3 m. NNE. Pop. 289.

A parish in the hundred of Ploughley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 16*s.* 0½*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FRINSTED, co. Kent.

P. T. Charing (47) 5½ m. NNW. Pop. 152.

A parish in the hundred of Eyborne, lathe of Aylesford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; church ded. to St. Dunstan; patron (1829) S. T. Patterson, Esq.

FRINTON, co. Essex.

P. T. Manningtree (60) 12½ m. SE. Pop. 15.

A parish in the hundred of Tendring, a great part of which has been swallowed up by the encroachments of the sea; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; patron (1829) W. Lushington, Esq.

FRISBY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (90) 8½ m. E b S. Pop. 18.

A hamlet in the parish of Gaulby and hundred of Gartree.

FRISBY-UPON-THE-WREAK, co. Leicester.

P. T. Melton-Mowbray (105) 5 m. WSW.
Pop. 376.

* A parish in the hundred of East-Goscote; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; church ded. to St. Thomas-à-Becket; patron. (1829) Joseph Wallas, Esq. Here is an ancient stone cross, with ornamental mouldings on the shaft, and elevated on three steps.

FRISKNEY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Boston (116) 12½ m. NE. Pop. 1268.

A parish in the Marsh division of the wapentake of Candleshoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. at 15*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) W. H. Booth, Esq.

FRISTHORPE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Market-Raisen (148) 5 m. SW b S.
Pop. 45.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Laures, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory, exempt from visitation, in the diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 95*l.*; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln.

FRISTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (110) 9 m. N b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Craythorpe and wapentake of Laveden, parts of Kesteven.

FRISTON, co. Sussex.

* P. T. East Bourne (61) 3 m. W b S. Pop. 62.

A parish in the hundred of Willington, rape of Pevensey; living, a vicarage, with that of East Dean, in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 7*l.*; patronage with East Dean vicarage.

FRITH, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Nantwich (161) 6 m. SW b W.
Pop. with Wrenbury township.

A township in the parish of Wrenbury and hundred of Nantwich.

FRITH-VILLE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 3½ m. W. Pop. 272.

* An independent township in the western division of the soke of Bolingbroke.

FRITHELSTOCK, co. Devon.

P. T. Great Torrington (191) 2 m. W.
Pop. 632.

A parish in the hundred of Shebbear; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; certified value 14*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 54*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary and St. Gregory; patrons (1829) H. W. Johns, Esq. and others.

FRITTENDON, co. Kent.

P. T. Cranbrook (18) 4 m. NE b N. Pop. 799.

A parish in the hundred of Cranbrook, lathe of Scray; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons (1829) J. Bowles, Esq. and Miss Bagnal.

FRITTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. St. Mary Stratton (100) 2½ m. E b S.
Pop. 275.

A parish in the hundred of Depwade; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 9*l.*; church ded. to St. Catherine; patron (1829) the Rev. T. Howes.

FRITTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Lowestoft (114) 7 m. NW. Pop. 174.

A parish in the hundred of Mutford and Lothingland; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Edmund; patroness (1829) Miss Buckle.

FRITWELL, co. Oxford.

P. T. Bicester (51) 5 m. NW b N. Pop. 476.

A parish in the hundred of Ploughley; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. at 7*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; church ded. to St. Olave; patron (1829) J. F. Willes, Esq.

FRIZINTON, or FRISINGTON, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Whitehaven (294) 3 m. E b S.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Arlesdon, in Allerdale ward, above Darwent. Here is a chalybeate spring, possessing the same qualities as that at Harrowgate, and surprising cures have been effected by its use. Considerable quantities of iron-stone are quarried in this township. Frizington Park has yielded large quantities of iron-ore, but the mines are now discontinued.

FROCESTER, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Dursley (108) 4 m. NE b N. Pop. 437.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Whitstone; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Lord Ducie, who has considerable and extensive property in this part of the county; the manor-house here, the seat of his lordship, is of the age of Elizabeth, who in her progress through this county, in the year 1574, made it her residence for one night. The abbots of Gloucester formerly had a sumptuous residence here, and it is also said to have been the site of a college of prebendaries.

FRODESLEY, co. Salop.

P. T. Much Wenlock (148) 8 m. W b N.
Pop. 179.

A parish in the hundred of Condover; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 14*s.*; church ded. to St. Mark; patron (1829) the Rev. T. R. Gleadow.

FRODINGHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Glanford Bridge (156) 9½ m. NW b W.
Pop. 400.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Mabley, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 127. 16s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 1247. 10s.; church ded. to St. Laurence; patron (1829) Mr. Healey.

FRODINGHAM, NORTH, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (196) 5½ m. SE b E.
Pop. 575. Fairs, July 10; and Oct. 2, for toys and pedlery.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Holderness, formerly a market-town, but the market has for some time been disused. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 5L; church ded. to St. Elgin; patron (1829) the Rev. Francis Drake.

FRODINGHAM, SOUTH, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (174) 19½ m. E b S. Pop. 71.

A township in the parish of Owthorne and south division of the wapentake of Holderness.

FRODSHAM, co. Pal. of Chester.

London 191 m. NW. Pop. 3556. M. D. Wed. Fairs, May 16, 17, and 18; Aug. 21, 22, and 23, for cattle and pedlery; and Dec. 13, 14, and 15.

A market-town, parish, and township, in the hundred of Eddisbury, pleasantly situated on an eminence at the foot of the hills forming the northern extremity of Delamere Forest, and near the junction of the Weaver with the Mersey; over the latter, about a mile east from the town, is a bridge, near which on the banks of the river are some salt-works, which give employment to many of the inhabitants, a considerable number of whom are also employed in the cotton-manufacture. The town consists chiefly of two large and well-paved streets, which intersect each other at right angles. A graving dock and yard have been erected here for building and repairing vessels. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 234. 13s. 11½d.; patron, Christ Church, Oxford. The church, dedicated to St. Lawrence, is a fine ancient building, seated on a lofty eminence at the extremity of one of the principal streets. Near the church is a well-endowed free-school, with a house for the master, on the summit of which is a cupola, used as an observatory. On Beacon Hill, upon which was formerly placed a signal beacon, are cut some very pleasant walks, commanding fine views of the Dee and parts of Lancashire. At the west-end of the town formerly stood a castle, which was bestowed by Edward I. with the town, on David Llewelyn, the last sovereign Prince of Wales; it was afterwards held by the Earls Rivers, but was consumed by fire in the year 1642; its site is now occupied by a handsome modern mansion. Here are several excellent springs which supply the town with water; one of these discharges 1700 gallons in a minute, and is used as a cold-bath. In this neighbourhood large quantities of potatoes are cultivated, chiefly for the consumption of the Lancashire manufacturers. The parish of Frodsham comprehends eight townships, and is about thirty miles in circumference.

FRODSHAM LORDSHIP, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 11 m. NE b N.
Pop. 973.

A lordship in the parish of Frodsham and hundred of Eddisbury.

FROGGAT, co. Derby.

• P. T. Stoney Middleton (161) 2 m. NE b E.
Pop. 179.

A township in the parish of Bakewell and hundred of High Peak.

FROME, co. Somerset.

Pop. 20,563.

A hundred on the east side of the county bordering upon Wiltshire, containing eighteen parishes and the town from which it takes its name.

FROME, or FROME-SELWOOD, co. Somerset.

London 103 m. W b S. Pop. 32,411. M. D. Wed. and Sat. Fairs, Feb. 21 (when on a Sat., held the Mond. following); July 22, for cattle and cheese; Sept. 14, for cheese; and Nov. 25, for cattle and cheese.

A large and populous market-town and parish in the hundred of Frome, seated on several abrupt hills, on the river Frome, over which, at the lower part of the town, is a good stone bridge of five arches. Its name is derived from the river which runs through it; and a wood, which formerly existed here, upwards of fifteen miles in extent, the only remains of which are the Woodlands, at a short distance from the town, the neighbourhood of which, however, is still called Selwood Forest. The first account of Frome commences with the reign of Ina, King of the West Saxons, a kinsman of whom, Aldhelm, monk of Malmesbury, and afterwards Bishop of Sherborne, built a priory here in 705. The inhabitants of this establishment, from the inroads and persecution of the Danes, where compelled to disperse themselves, and appear never to have reassembled, although the building existed for many ages afterwards; and fragments are even now distinguishable in the walls of some old buildings, converted into humble cottages. The town consists of thirty-eight streets, the greater part of which are narrow and irregularly built; the principal street and chief thoroughfare is, however, of modern erection, and constitutes the best part of the town; by the erection of a new market-house and various other buildings, it has latterly received very great improvements. The houses are generally built with small rough stones, and covered with thin stones, dug in the neighbourhood, which answer the purpose of slates. The inhabitants are, for the most part, engaged in the manufactures of broad-cloths and kerseymers, which are carried on here to a very great extent; here also is a considerable trade in card-making for the wool-combers. On the banks of the Frome, which after passing on the east side of Bath, falls into the Avon, are many mills for fulling, rolling iron, and various other manufactures. The waters of that river abound with excellent trout and eels. Frome has long been celebrated for its ale; and at one of the inns is shown an immense cask, said to be capable of containing 600 puncheons. The town was formerly governed by a bailiff, but is now under the direction of two constables, chosen annually at the court-leet of the Marquis of Bath and the Earl of Cork and Orrery, who are lords of the manors. The livings are a vicarage and two curacies, in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; the vicarage, with the curacy of the new church, in the Woodlands, is valued in K. B. 22*l.*; the curacy of the free-church not in charge; patrons (1829) of the former, the Marquis of Bath, and of the latter, the Vicar of Frome. The original church, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, is a handsome and spacious structure, with a square embattled tower, from which rises an octagonal spire 120 feet high. The church in the Woodlands also is a good substantial building. The free-church was built by subscription in 1817. Besides the national establishments, there are places of worship belonging to the Baptists, Independents, Presbyterians, Quakers, and Methodists. The principal charitable institutions of this town, are a free-school, founded by Edward VI.; a large charity-school for boys, which is a handsome building of freestone; an asylum for girls; a hospital for old men; and an almshouse for widows; the latter is a good building, and was erected by subscription in 1720. There are also numerous Sunday-schools, at which nearly 2000 children are instructed. The neighbourhood of Frome is adorned by many handsome seats. This town, besides the advantage of its river, has the additional one of a canal, from Stalbridge, in Dorsetshire, and of a branch to Wells and Bradford.

FROME, ST. QUINTIN, or LITTLE FROME, co. Dorset.

P. T. Beaminster (111) 9½ m. E. Pop. 120.

A parish in the hundred of Tollerford, Dorchester division; living, a rectory with the curacy of Evershot, in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 7*s.* 1*d.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FROME VAUCHURCH, co. Dorset.

P. T. Dorchester (119) 8 m. NW b W. Pop. 105.

A parish in the hundred of Tollerford, Dorchester division; living, a rectory united with that of Batcombe, in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 11*s.* 0½*d.*; patron (1829) Lord Bolton.

FROMEHAMPTON, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 5½ m. NNE. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Marden and hundred of Broxash.

FROSTENDEN, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Southwold (105) 5 m. NNW. Pop. 300.

A parish in the hundred of Blything; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 12*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Sir Thomas Gooch, Bart.

FROWLESWORTH, co. Leicester.

P. T. Lutterworth (89) 5 m. NW b N. Pop. 301.

A parish in the hundred of Guthlaxton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas, patron (1829) the Rev. S. L. Noble.

FROXFIELD, co. Southampton.

P. T. Petersfield (54) 1 m. NW b N. Pop. 518.

A parish in the hundred of East Meon, Alton south division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of East Meon, and a peculiar in the diocese of Winchester, not in charge; church ded. to St. Peter; patronage with East Meon vicarage.

FROXFIELD, co. Wilts.

P. T. Hungerford (61) 3 m. W b S. Pop. 508.

A parish in the hundred of Kinwardstone; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 39*l.* 5*s.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Dean and Canons of Windsor. Here is the celebrated almshouse which owes its foundation to the munificent bequest of Sarah, widow of John, fourth duke of Somerset. This lady left considerable landed property and other funds to erect a suitable building for the accommodation of thirty widows, who were to receive a certain yearly allowance, and were to be increased to fifty in number as soon as the revenues of the trust should exceed 400*l.* per annum. This having taken place in 1775, twenty additional apartments were erected to the former buildings, which had originally been planned with a view to augmentation; the whole structure now forms an oblong quadrangle, surrounding a court with a small chapel in the interior. The persons entitled to this charity are thirty widows, of clergymen, and twenty widows of laity, not having an income of more than 20*l.* per annum; the former are eligible from any part of England, but the latter must be persons of this county only. The original allowance was 8*l.* per annum to each person, but it was gradually augmented, and since 1801, has been 21*l.*, which enables the inmates to live comfortably. The government of this establishment is vested in twelve trustees, chosen from the nobility and gentry of the county, who nominate a steward, chaplain, apothecary, and porter. The chaplain has a salary of 70*l.* per annum, besides which, in conformity to the duchess' will, he is presented, on the first vacancy after his appointment, with the rectory of Hewish, yielding about 150*l.* per annum.

FROYLE, co. Southampton.

P. T. Alton (47) 4 m. NE. Pop. 731.

A parish in the hundred of Alton, Alton north division; living, a dis. vicarage, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir T. C. Miller, Bart.

FRUMFIELD, co. Wilts.

Pop. 1382.

A hundred on the south-east point of the county adjoining Hampshire, containing two parishes.

FRYSTON FERRY, or WATER FRYSTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Ferrybridge (177) 1 m. WNW. Pop. 777.

A parish and township in the lower division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 113*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patrons, the Sub-Chanter and Vicars Choral of York Cathedral.

FRYSTON MONK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Ferry Bridge (177) 4 m. NNE. Pop. of Pa. 860. Of To. 400.

A parish and township in the lower division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of York, not in charge; patron, the Prebendary of Winstow, in York Cathedral.

FRYTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 7 m. WNW. Pop. 62.

A township in the parish of Hooveringham and wapentake of Ryedale.

FUERY, co. Roscommon, Connaught, I.

P. T. Roscommon (85) 4 m. NW. Pop. 5325. Fairs, first Wed. O. S. May; Aug. 4; and Nov. 21.

A parish, including a hamlet of the same name, in the barony of Athlone; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Elphin and archdiocese of Tuam, producing annually, by commutation for tithes, 240*l.*, of which the vicar receives 83*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.* It is united to the vicarages of Athleague and Killbegnet, and possesses a church with a glebe of thirty-five acres.

FUGGLESTONE, ST. PETER, co. Wilts.

P. T. Wilton (84) 1 m. ENE. Pop. with Bemerton, 528.

A parish in the hundred of Branch and Dole, seated on a branch of the river Wilty, which separates it from Wilton; living, a rectory with that of Bemerton, in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 21*l.*; patron (1829) the Earl of Pembroke. Here was formerly a hospital for poor leprous brethren and sisters, said to have been founded by Adeliza, second queen of Henry I.; but which appears to have been of much earlier origin, as Leland says, that Ethelbert, who died in 827, was buried in that place. It is therefore probable, that Adeliza was only the refounder of the original establishment, and that she converted it from a monastery into a hospital. The institution still exists, and supports a master, who must be a clergyman, and four poor people, who have a yearly allowance. The buildings, however, have all fallen to decay, with the exception of the chapel, which is now converted into a few humble dwellings for the poor. In this chapel the body of Adeliza is said to have been deposited, and over the door is a stone, with an inscription describing her to have been the foundress of the institution.

FULBECK, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (110) 10 m. N b E. Pop. 555.

A parish in the wapentake of Loveden, parts of Kesteven; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 15*s.* 7½*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) Colonel Henry Fane.

FULBOURN, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Cambridge (50) 5 m. E b N. Pop. 1023.

A village comprehending the parishes of St. Vigors and All Saints, in the hundred of Flendish; livings, a rectory and dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B., the former, 25*l.* 15*s.* 2½*d.*, the latter, 14*l.* 17*s.*; patrons of the rectory, St. John's College, Cambridge; of the vicarage, the Bishop of Ely. The churches were formerly both in one churchyard, but one having been much dilapidated, it was taken down. All the parochial assessments are united for the common benefit, but each parish appoints its own officers. Here also is a small almshouse.

FULBROOK, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Winslow (49) 1 m. SSW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Hogshaw and hundred of Ashenden.

FULBROOK, co. Oxford.

P. T. Burford (72) 1 m. NE b N. Pop. 351.

A parish in the hundred of Chadlington; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Burford, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford, not in charge; church ded. to St. James; patronage with Burford vicarage.

FULBROOK, co. Warwick.

P. T. Stratford-upon-Avon (93) 4 m. NE b N.
Pop. 77

A parish in the Snitterfield division of the hundred of Barlichway; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 14s. 2d.; the church is demolished. In this parish, which was formerly of much greater extent than at present, John, Duke of Bedford, third son of Henry IV., built a small castle, which was surrounded by an extensive park. In the reign of Henry VIII. this edifice having become much dilapidated, it was taken down by Sir William Compton, who with the materials built his mansion at Compton Wyngate.

FULFORD, co. Stafford.

P. T. Stone (141) 4½ m. NE. Pop. with Pa.

A chapelry in the parish of Stone and south division of the hundred of Pirehill; living, a curacy with that of Stone in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; certified value, 25*l.* 17*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 56*l.* 11*s.*; chapel ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) Thomas Allen, Esq.

FULFORD-GATE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. York (196) 2½ m. S W E. Pop. 812.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Ouse and Darwent; living, a curacy with that of St. Olave in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; certified value, 6*l.* 15*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 115*l.*; patron (1829) Thomas Key, Esq. Here are the York barracks, and the Quakers' Asylum for lunatics, called the retreat. This village, and the township of Fulford Water, are sometimes called Fulfords Ambro.

FULFORD, LITTLE, co. Devon.

P. T. Crediton (180) 1½ m. E b N.
Pop. with Crediton.

A township, partly in the parish of Crediton, and partly in the parish of Shobrooke, partly in the hundred of Crediton, and partly in the hundred of West Budleigh.

FULFORD WATER, E. R. co. York.

P. T. York (196) 3 m. S b E. Pop. 35.

A township in the parish of Fulford, and partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Ouse and Darwent.

FULHAM, co. Middlesex.

London 5 m. SW b W. Pop. 15,301.

A parish in the Kensington division of the hundred of Ossulston, situated on the banks of the Thames, opposite Putney, with which it is connected by a wooden bridge, built in 1729. The principal manufactory here is in stone jars, pots, &c. Many of the inhabitants are employed in the market-gardens and nurseries, which are numerous in this neighbourhood, and send large quantities of fruit and vegetables to the London markets. The fishery here is a source of some local profit; the principal fish taken are barbel, eels, and lampreys, roach, dace, flounders, and shad; the dace are chiefly valuable for their scales, which are used by the Jews in the manufacture of false pearls. On the banks of the river, a little to the west of Fulham, is the Episcopal Palace, occupying a low spot of ground, and surrounded by a moat. The ancient parts formed a quadrangle of brick, and were built by Bishop Fitz-James, in the reign of Henry VII. It has, however, received many additions and improvements, and is now much more convenient and handsome than formerly. The grounds comprise about thirty-seven acres, and have long been celebrated for the rarity of the plants they contain. They obtained their first celebrity during the prelate of Bishop Grindall, one of the earliest encouragers of botany in this country, and who first imported the tamarisk-tree, about 1560. The livings are a rectory and vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. the former 26*l.*, the latter 10*l.*; the rectory is a sinecure; patron, the Bishop of London. The church, ded. to All Saints, is a large stone building of irregular construction, in which are many monuments to persons of distinction; and amongst these, to eight of the Bishops of London, since the Restoration. Here also was interred Sir A. S. Douglas, who was captain of the Queen Charlotte, in the ever-memorable action of June 1, 1794.

FULKING, co. Sussex.

P. T. Hurst-Pierpont (46) 3½ m. SW.
Pop. 177.

A hamlet in the parish of Edburton and hundred of Poynings, rape of Lewes.

FULLAWAY, co. Wilts.

P. T. Devizes (89) 4 m. E b N. Pop. 14.

A tithing in the parish of Allcannings and hundred of Swanborough.

FULLETTY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Horncastle (136) 3½ m. NE. Pop. 254.

A parish in the hundred of Hill, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 21*l.* 2*s.* 8½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew.

FULL SUTTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Pocklington (212) 6 m. NW. Pop. 125.

A parish in the Wilton Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 12*s.* 8½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 310*l.*; patron (1829) Lord Faversham. The parish church is extremely ancient, and is said to have been a chantry to the priory, of Watton, near Beverley.

FULMERE, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Beaconsfield (23) 4½ m. SE. Pop. 340.

A parish in the hundred of Stoke; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln, of the certified value of 61*l*. 13*s*.; ann. val. P. R. 122*l*.; church ded. to St. James; patrons, the Dean and Canons of Windsor.

FULMODESTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Fakenham (109) 5 m. E.
Pop. with Croxton, 331.

A parish in the hundred of Gallow; living, a rectory with that of Croxton, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10*l*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

FULNETBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Wragby (111) 3 m. NW. Pop. 52.

A parish in the West division of the wapentake of Wraggæ, parts of Lindsey; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Rand, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; patronage with Rand rectory.

FULSHAW, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Macclesfield (167) 6 m. NW. Pop. 256.

A township in the parish of Wilmslow and hundred of Macclesfield.

FULSTOW, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (149) 8 m. N b E. Pop. 389.

A parish in the wapentake of Bradley Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l*. 10*s*. 3*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 80*l*.; church ded. to St. Laurence; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FULTON, shire of Roxburgh, S.

P. T. Jedburgh (45) 4 m. SSW.
Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Bedrule and district of Jedburgh, situated on the river Rule, near which are the remains of an old tower, now used as a bught for sheep.

FULWELL, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Sunderland (268) 2 m. NNW.
Pop. 118.

A township in the parish of Monkwearmouth and east division of Chester Ward. At Fulwell Hill in this township, some workmen discovered, in 1759, the skeleton of a human body, of the extreme length of nine feet six inches, and near it two Roman coins.

FULWOOD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (217) 3 m. N. Pop. 430.

A township in the hundred of Amounderness. This was a part of the ancient and royal forest of Fulwood, most of which is now enclosed. Preston race-ground was also a part of the forest.

FUNDENHALL, co. Norfolk.

P. T. St. Mary Stratton (100) 4½ m. NW b N.
Pop. 307.

A parish in the hundred of Depwade; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 21*l*. 12*s*.; chapel ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) T. T. Berney Esq.

TOPOG. DICT.—VOL. II.

FUNTINGTON, co. Sussex.

P. T. Chichester (62) 4½ m. WNW. Pop. 847.

A parish in the hundred of Bosham, rape of Chichester; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; certified value 40*l*.; ann. val. P. R. 54*l*.; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Chichester.

FURLAND, co. Somerset.

P. T. Crewkerne (132) m. adjacent.
Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish and hundred of Crewkerne.

FURNAUGHTS, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

P. T. Naas (19) 2 m. E b N.
Pop. not specified.

A parish in the barony of Salt; living, a chapelry united to that of Hainstown, having neither church nor glebe.

FURTHO, co. Northampton.

P. T. Stouy-Stratford (52) 2 m. NNW.
Pop. 12.

A parish in the hundred of Cleley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 7*l*.; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patron, Jesus College, Oxford.

FYFIELD, co. Berks.

P. T. Abingdon (56) 5 m. WNW. Pop. 407.

A parish in the hundred of Ock; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 92*l*.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, St. John's College, Oxford.

FYFIELD, co. Essex.

P. T. Chipping-Ongar (21) 3 m. NE b N.
Pop. 583.

A parish in the hundred of Ongar; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. at 25*l*. 7*s*. 6*d*.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the King. Here is a public school, which was founded and endowed by Dr. Walker in 1692. In this parish antiquities have several times been discovered; among which were a number of Celts in 1749, and also a large quantity of metal for casting them.

FYFIELD, co. Southampton.

P. T. Andover (63) 5 m. W b N. Pop. 201.

A parish in the hundred of Andover, Andover division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 11*l*. 12*s*. 11*d*.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

FYFIELD, co. Wilts.

P. T. Marlborough (74) 2 m. W.
Pop. with Pa.

A chapelry in the parish of Overton and hundred of Selkley; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Overton, in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; patronage with Overton vicarage.

FYFIELD, co. Wilts.

P. T. Ludgershall (71) 9 m. W b N.
Pop. 138.

A tithing in the parish of Endford and hundred of Elstub and Everley.

G A D

FYLINGDALES, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Whitby (230) 5½ m. SSE. Pop 1702."

A parochial chapelry in the liberty of Whitby Strand; living, a curacy with that of Whitby in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; certified value 211.; ann. val. P. R. 1061.; chapel ded. to St. Stephen; patron, the Archbishop of York. In this parish is Raven Hill, which derived its name from the Danish general, Hubba, having planted his standard there, bearing the raven, after he had disembarked his troops in Dunsley Bay in 867.

G A I

FYVIE, shire of Aberdeen, S.

• Aberdeen (121½) 25 m. NNW. Pop. 3202.
Fair, Fasten's Even O. S. Feb.

A parish in the district of Turreff, intersected by the river Ythan. The living is in the presbytery of Turreff and synod of Aberdeen; patrons, the Gordons of Fyvie castle, a noble mansion in the neighbourhood. On the banks of the river is the church, a venerable structure, and contiguous to it the ruins of a priory, said to have been founded by Fergus, Earl of Burhan in 1179, and afterwards subject to the abbey of Aberbrothock.

G.

GAASKEIR, shire of Inverness, S.

An island of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of Harris, and lying about twelve miles north-west from Taransay. It is extensive and verdant, though uninhabited, except by myriads of wild geese, from which circumstance it has its name, signifying in Gaelic, the Rock of Geese.

GABALFFA, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Llandaff (183) m. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Llandaff and hundred of Kibbor.

GADDESBY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Melton Mowbray (105) 9 m. S.W.
Pop. 289.

A parish in the hundred of East Goscote; living, a curacy and peculiar of Rothley; certified value 40*l.*; church ded. to St. Luke; patronage with Rothley vicarage.

GADDESSEN, GREAT, co. Hertford.

P. T. Hemel Hempstead (23) 3 m. N.W. & N.
Pop. 1000.

A parish in the hundred of Dacorum; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patroness (1829) Mrs. Halsey, who is the lady of the manor, and has a handsome mansion, built by the late Thomas Halsey, Esq. in 1773.

GADDESSEN, LITTLE, co. Hertford.

P. T. Berkhamstead (20) 4 m. N. & E.
Pop. 531.

A parish in the hundred of Dacorum; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.*; patrons (1829) the Trustees of the late Earl of Bridgewater. The church, dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, is a small building, and contains several monuments to the Egertons, lords of the manor, who have been interred here. John de Gaddesden, a famous physician, who flourished in the beginning of the fourteenth century, was a native of this place.

GAER, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Llanfair (183) m. Pop. 340.

A township in the parish of Llanfair and hundred of Mathrafel.

GAINFORD, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Barnard Castle (246) 9 m. ESE.
Pop. of Pa. 6503. Of To. 600.

A parish and township in the south-west division of Darlington ward, pleasantly situated on the north bank of the river Tees; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 39*l.* 6*s.* 0*d.*; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, was built by Egfrid, Bishop of Durham, in the eighth century; it has a tower, containing a clock and three bells. Here also is a small chapel belonging to the Wesleyans.

GAINSBOROUGH, co. Lincoln.

London 149 m. N. & W. Pop. 6761. M. D:
Tues. Fairs, Easter Tues. and Oct. 20 (if the latter falls on a Tues. is kept the Tues. after), for shows, toys, cattle, &c.

An ancient market-town and parish in the south division of the wapentake of Corringham, parts of Lindsey, situated on the eastern bank of the Trent, over which there is a good stone bridge, erected in 1791. The town consists chiefly of one long street, running parallel with the river, and is clean, well paved, and lighted. The town-hall is a substantial brick building, situated in the market-place, and having shops beneath; it is occasionally used as an assembly-room. Courts leet and baron are holden here, and also a court for the recovery of small debts; the sessions for this part of the county formerly holden in this building, have been removed to Riton. The theatre here, which is of modern erection, is small and neat. Gainsborough is a place of considerable foreign as well as inland trade, for which, from its situation and the advantage of canals, it is so well adapted. The former is carried on by means of the Trent, which falls into the Hummer, twenty-miles below the town, thus opening a communication with the sea for vessels of 200 tons burden. The tide rises here very rapidly, and produces the wonderful phenomenon called the Mygre. By inland navigation, this town possesses the advantage of communications with all the interior parts of the country. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 22l. 16s. 8d.; annexed to the prebendary of Corringham, in Lincoln cathedral. The church, dedicated to All Saints, is a neat structure, of modern erection, having been rebuilt at the expense of the inhabitants. Here also are several places of public worship for different congregations of dissenters. The children of the poor are taught the rudiments of education at the charity-school, which is calculated to receive a considerable number. At the north-west end of the town is a singular old mansion, often called John of Gaunt's House, though it is evidently of a later date. It consists of three sides of a quadrangle, open to the south, and is chiefly constructed of oak-timber framing. At the north-east corner is an embattled tower, with small windows, coped with stone. This town is famous in history, as being the place where the Danish ships were anchored, when the tyrant Sweyne laid waste many parts of the country, and who was killed in this neighbourhood when on the point of returning. Alfred the Great celebrated his nuptials here in 868. On the bank of the river are some embankments, called Castle Hills, supposed to have been constructed during the civil wars between Charles I. and the Parliament, from which the town greatly suffered; a few years ago, a considerable number of bodies was discovered, which appeared to have been promiscuously buried, probably of those slain in the contest. The Noel family takes the title of Earl from this town. Among the distinguished individuals to whom this town has given birth, are William de Gainsborough, who was bred a Franciscan friar at Oxford, and afterwards became ambassador to Edward I.; and also the learned and pious Simon Patrick, Bishop of Ely, born here in 1626.

GAIRLOCH, or GEIRLOCH, shire of Ross, S.

P. T. Poolew (2324) 5 m. SSW. Pop. 4518.

An extensive parish, thirty-two miles long, and eighteen broad, lying on the coast of the Minsh channel, opposite to the Hebrides, having several fine harbours, with safe anchorage for ships of any burden, and lochs abounding with cod and herrings. The surface is diversified with hills, mosses, and fertile valleys; and the picturesque freshwater Loch Maree, twelve miles long, and about one in breadth, formed by the union of two rivers, and studded with numerous islands, beautifully wooded; one of which, Maree, has some Druidical remains, also a very fine and salubrious spring; and is still, as it has been for ages, the burial-place of the northern portion of the inhabitants. The living is in the presbytery of Loch Carron and synod of Glenelg; patron, the Crown. The church is a neat edifice, and there are chapels-of-ease at Ken-Loch-Ew, Sand, and the Croft of Jolly. The Mackenzies, who are the chief heritors, have several mansions in this parish, the prevailing language of which is the Gaelic.

GAIRNEY-BRIDGE, shire of Kinross, S.

P. T. Kinross (25) 24 m. S B E. Pop. with Pa.

A thriving little village in the parish of Cleish, having a small school, which was formerly conducted by Michael Bruce, the Scottish poet.

GAIRSAY, shires of Orkney and Shetland, S.

Pop. 79.

One of the Orkney islands, forming part of the parish of Rendal, in Mainland, from which it is separated by a strait of about one mile and a half across. It is two miles long, one broad, and rises from the sea in a conical shape of great altitude, steep on the west and north, but on the east and south sufficiently plain to admit of cultivation. It has a good harbour, sheltered by an islet at the entrance; and on the southern shore are the ruins of a once-stately mansion of the Cragies.

GALBALLY, or NAHARLOWE, co. Limerick, Munster, I.

P. T. Tipperary (127) 10 m. S W.

Pop. of Pa. 4590. Of Vil. 412. Fairs, May 4, 12, and Oct. 15.

A parish in the barony of Coshlea; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Emlu and archdiocese of Cashel, forming part of the union of Killenellick. The O'Briens founded a monastery here for Grey Friars; the ruins of which, as well as those of several other religious houses, are still remaining. The monastery and certain lands were granted, in capite, to John, Earl of Desmond, thirty-fifth Henry VIII.

GALE, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Cashel (100) m. Pop. 1543.

A parish in the barony of Middlethird; living, a rectory entire in the diocese and archdiocese of Cashel, having neither church nor parsonage.

GALE, RIVER, Munster, I.

A river, rising in the county of Limerick, flowing thence into Kerry, and uniting ultimately with the picturesque river of Feale.

GALEY, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

P. T. Tralee (187) m. Pop. 2500.

A village and parish in the barony of Iraghticonnor; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Ardferd and Aghadoc, united to nine other vicarages, which, taken together, constitute the union of Aghavillin; amount of commutation for tithes, 203l. 1s. 6d.; the vicar receiving only 10l. 10s. 9d. of that sum.

GALGOM, or GALGORM, or GALGORAM, co. Antrim, Ulster, I.

P. T. Ballymena (132) 1 m. W.
Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Aghoghill and barony of Toome, situated upon the river Maine, and in a district covered with bog and swamp.

GALLASHIELS, shire of Selkirk, S.

Edinburgh 30½ m. SE b S. Pop. 1545.
Fairs, 3d Wed. in March; July 8; Sept. 10;
Oct. 10; and 3d Wed. in Nov.

A burgh of barony, post-town, and parish, a small part, called Lindean, extending into the shire of Roxburgh, being separated from the rest by the river Tweed. This place, though still in a thriving condition, was formerly of more importance, having had, so recently as 1722, its tolbooth, market-cross, and weekly market on Wednesday. It has long been celebrated for the manufacture of coarse gray woollens, bearing its name; as well as for worsted yarn and stockings; and a hall has been erected by the trades, to facilitate the disposal of their goods. The parish, which comprises the ancient parishes of Bolside and Lindean, is, besides the Tweed, intersected by the Etterick and the Gala, both celebrated among the beautiful pastorals of Burns. It contains about 8000 acres, the surface of which is hilly, and in some parts mountainous; Meg-Hill, rising to the height of 1480 feet above the level of the sea, but affording the finest pasture for sheep, in rearing which, principally for the sake of the wool, great attention is paid by the proprietors. Schistus and whinstone abound here; and the presence of red ochre, chalybeate springs, &c., indicate also the existence of iron. The living is in the presbytery of Selkirk and synod of Merse and Tiviotdale; patron, the Scots of Gala, which was anciently called Waedale, from some sanguinary battles fought there. The church here, was deemed one of the four parish churches of the shire of Selkirk, but many of the inhabitants still bury at Lindean.

GALLATON, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Dysart (14) 1 m. N. Pop. 909.

A considerable village in the parish of Dysart and district of Kirkaldy, in which the manufacture of nails and that of linen, particularly checks and ticks, are extensively carried on. There is also a pottery; and a fair for linen-cloth is annually held.

GALLEN, or GALEN, or GILLEN, King's co. Leinster, I.

P. T. Ferbane (72) m. Pop. 4821.

A parish in the barony of Garrycastle, situated upon the Brosna river. The living is a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh, united to the half rectory of Rynagh, producing, by commutation for tithes, 415*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.*; the lay impropriator receiving 207*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* of that amount. It is said that a college was anciently established here by a Welsh colony, whence the present name appears to have been derived. The monastery of Gallen was erected about the year 492, by St. Canoc. Here are at this day some interesting ruins, and a cemetery held in great veneration.

GALLON, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Killecock (18) 3 m. NW. Pop. 651.

A parish in the barony of Upper Dece; living, a rectory in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh; producing, by commutation for tithes, 129*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*, and constituting part of the union of Balrodden.

GALLOON, co. Monaghan, Ulster, I.

P. T. Clones (85) 3 m. SE. Pop. not returned.

A parish in the barony of Dartry; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Clogher and archdiocese of Armagh, forming the corps of the chancellorship of the diocese.

GALLOW, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 7034.

A hundred, situated in the north-western part of the county, containing thirty-one parishes, including the town of Fakenham.

GALLOW-HILL, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 9 m. WSW. Pop. 74.

A township in the parish of Bolam and west division of Morpeth ward. It derives its name from having been the place of execution of the Balam barony.

GALLOW-HILL, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Cupar of Angus (53½) ¼ m. SW.
Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Cargill, near which is Gallow-shade, a place of execution in feudal times. The parish school is here.

GALLOWAY, district of, S.

A tract of country, comprising part of the shires of Ayr and Lanark, the shire of Wigtown and stewartry of Kirkcudbright, with Nithsdale and Carrick; it includes also the noted promontory, termed the Mull of Galloway, the most southern land of Scotland; and its extensive line of coast is so conveniently indented with lochs, bays, and harbours, as to render it peculiarly adapted for commerce in all its branches. The small horses, known by the name of Galloways, are bred here. This large district was anciently independent, both of the Picts and Scots; but after the conquest of the former, the kings of Scotland assumed a feudal superiority over its lords, who, for many ages, disputed their claim; but, by intermarriage with the Comyns, the lordship descended to the powerful family of Douglas, in whom it remained till James, the sixth Earl, by his rebellion in 1455, against James II., forfeited it to the crown; when, by an act of the Scottish Parliament, it was declared a province of Scotland. Galloway now gives the title of Earl to the ancient family of Stewart, so created in 1623.

GALLOWAY, NEW, stewartry of Kirkcudbright, S.

Edinburgh 80 m. SW b W. Pop. with Pa. Fairs, 1st Wed. O. S. in April and Aug. Memb. of d't. 1, with Wigtown, &c.

A royal burgh and market-town in the parish of Kells, situated in the beautiful vale Glenkens, so called from the river Kens, which winds through it, and on the great cross-roads from Edinburgh to Portpatrick, and from Glasgow to Kirkcudbright. It is a neat town, the streets being regular, and the houses well built, but it has no manufactures, and scarcely any trade; yet, from its central position, there is a good weekly market for barley and oatmeal; and an institution of great importance to agriculturists, denominated The Farmers' Club. This burgh, by charter of Charles I., is governed by a provost, two baillies, and fourteen councillors; and jointly with Wigtown, Whitehorn, and Stranraer, sends one member to Parliament. On a fine elevation, at the head of Loch Ken, distant half a mile south of the town, is Kennure Castle, anciently the seat of the Lords of Galloway, and since of John Baliol, King of Scotland; but now the residence of the Gordons, who have lately repaired and embellished the building, and augmented its valuable library by many thousand volumes.

GALSTON, shire of Ayr, S.

P. T. Kilmarnock (65) 4 m. ESE. Pop. 3442. Fairs, June and Dec.

A parish and village in the district of Kyle; the latter of which is situated where the high roads from Edinburgh to Ayr, and from Glasgow to Dumfries, intersect each other, and is inhabited chiefly by silk-weavers. The parish, which lies along the southern side of the river Irvine, is thirteen miles in length by about four and a half in breadth, and contains the large Lochs Gait and Bruntwood, the former being the source of the Avon, and the latter the resort of numerous wild fowl. Game and fish also are plentiful, and coal and limestone are obtained in abundance. The living is in the presbytery of Ayr and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patroness, the Duchess of Portland. Here are many Druidical remains, with some vestiges of old fortifications; and at a place called Water-Haugh, is an ancient burial-place, where a number of silver coins have been discovered. The grounds around the venerable castles Barr and Cessnock are finely wooded, and among the several mills on the Irvine, is Peattie's mill, so sweetly celebrated by Allan Ramsay, the Scottish poet.

GALTIES, or GAULTIES, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

A remarkable and picturesque chain of mountains in the barony of Clanwilliam in Tipperary, and also in Coshlea barony, in the county of Limerick. The range extends from Seefin mountain, near Charleville, to the River Suir: occupying an area of twenty-five miles long, by about nine in breadth. The loftiest attains an elevation of 2500 feet above sea-level, and is usually called Galtimore. The whole group, externally, is composed of old red sandstone, resting upon Graywacke, or transition slate. The surface on every side of this is limestone of the latest formation. On the north of Galtimore lies the famous golden vale, and to the south the vast estates of the Earl of Kingston.

GALTON-SIDE, shire of Roxburgh, S.

P. T. Melrose (35) 1 m. N b W. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Melrose and district of Castletown-Melrose, where are the remains of a handsome chapel of freestone. Most of the inhabitants of this place still hold their possessions in feu according to ancient custom.

GALTRES, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (199) 7 m. NNW.

A forest in the wapentake of Bulmer, which formerly extended from the walls of York to Aldborough. Toll was then taken at Bootham Bar, for the payment of guides, who conducted passengers through the forest, and protected them from wild beasts and robbers. The earth here abounds in coal, the working of which employs most of the inhabitants.

GALTRIM, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Trim (32) 5 m. SE. Pop. 621.

A parish in the barony of Lower Deece; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh, yielding, by commutation for tithes, 142*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.*, of which the impropriator receives 21*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.* It possesses a church and parsonage. This district was anciently a palatinate, and gave title of baron to the family of Hussey. There is an Association School here, of twenty-three boys and fifteen girls.

GALTWAY, stewartry of Kirkcudbright, S.

P. T. Kirkcudbright (984) 2 m. SE.

An ancient parish, but now united with that of Kirkcudbright, with which the population is included. The old cemetery is still in use, though the church has been long in ruins.

GALWAY, co. Connaught, I.

N to S 54 m. E to W 96. No. of Acres 1,255,362. Baronies 17. Market Towns 7. Parishes 173. Pop. 300,500. Mem. of Pt. 3. Diocese of Clonfert. Archdiocese of Tuam.

The second county in Ireland as to superficial extent. It is bounded on the west by the Atlantic Ocean; on the north by the counties of Mayo and Roscommon; on the east by Roscommon, Westmeath, and the King's counties; and on the south by parts of Clare and Tipperary; and by the Bay of Galway. The eastern and southern parts, between Lough Corrib and the river Shannon are, with little interruption, level, productive, and thickly peopled. The western division, called Ireconnaught, and included between Lough Corrib and the Atlantic, is an elevated district, wholly occupied with mountains, the most conspicuous of which are those called the twelve pins. This vast tract of country has latterly undergone considerable improvements by the opening of new roads; the link from Galway to Clifden has proved the most valuable. Few counties are so well supplied with navigable rivers and spacious lakes. The Suck and the Shannon form the eastern boundary, the latter expanding into a great lake below Portumna; the Moyne, Ballinahinch, Carnamact, and Gort rivers are less valuable. Loughs Mash, Corrib, Derg, Contra, Ballinahinch, and several others, afford valuable inland navigation and beautiful sites for the residences and demesnes of gentry, and yield quantities of the most delicious fish: the gillaroo trout is found in many of them. The agricultural produce of the county is varied, the eastern part producing wheat and other heavy crops; the western, oats, &c.; the latter is remarkable for a hardy breed of small horses. Much of the surface is occupied by bog, which is necessary here for fuel. The mountains generally are of granite formation, and contain the beautiful species, called porphyritic. Limestone is found in the low country everywhere, and alternating in the granite district; quarries of beautiful serpentine are worked at the estates of Mr. Darcy and Mr. Martin. Blocks and slabs of large dimensions can be raised with ease in these quarries, and there is a tolerable export trade of choice pieces for the London market. Lead and copper-ore are found in many parts of the county; ironstone near Gort, manganese at Slichi-an-air. Little advantage has hitherto been derived from the metalliferous districts. The ancient divisions of Joyce's country, Irconnaught &c., are now abandoned, and the county is divided into seventeen baronies, called Arran, Athenry, Ballymoe, Ballinahinch, Clare, Clonmacnoon, Dunkellin, Dunmore, Kilconnel, Kilian, Kiltartan, Leitrim, Longford, Loughrea, Moycullen, Ross, and Tynaquin. The principal towns are Galway, the county town; Athenry, Clifden, Tuam, Heasford, Ballinasloe, Dunmore, Abascragh, Gort, Portumna, and Loughrea. The inhabitants of Connemara are engaged in breeding small horses, small black cattle, and sheep; they have a wollen-manufacture of a domestic nature, and their wollen-stockings are famous for their warmth and durability. The marble quarries, if worked with spirit, would prove a source of great wealth to the county, and to the proprietors; and the manganese and lead-mines are totally neglected. But the great prospect of improvement and amelioration of the condition of the inhabitants, appears to arise in the encouragement of the fisheries, erection of small piers, and establishment of towns on the noble harbours which indent the entire coast of the county from Galway to Clew Bay. The Fishery-board have already done much to advance the great national object, under the judicious advice of Mr. Nimmo; and the success consequent upon their operations fully justifies the wisdom of that gentleman's counsel. Roads, however, are still much wanted, and plantations ought to be more generally made by proprietors. The islands of Arran are the most remarkable of the many which are scattered along the coast of the county. See Arranmore. The county returns two members to the Imperial Parliament, and there is one returned for the town of Galway.

GALWAY, co. Galway, Connaught, I.

Dublin 133 m. W. Pop. 27,775.

Fairs, May 31; April 21; and Oct. 21.

Membr. of Pt. 1.

A large and flourishing town of very ancient foundation, having a separate jurisdiction, situated at the north-eastern angle of Galway Bay. It was originally encompassed with walls, flanked with bastions, and was one of the strongest fortifications in the kingdom. It was, however, invested, and taken by General Ginkle, after the battle of Aughrim. The walls are now nearly demolished; and the old habitations, each independent castles, have been succeeded by handsome modern houses. The town is governed by a mayor, who is a county magistrate ex-officio, a recorder, warden, and two sheriffs; and returns one member to the Imperial Parliament. It has also a military governor. The general appearance of the town has been lately much improved. The church of St. Nicholas is a handsome building. The county hospital reflects credit upon its conductors. The new court-house is erected after a beautiful design by Morrison. Extensive stores, having the aspect of public buildings, have been built by spirited private individuals. There are barracks for 1500 men; and Roman Catholic chapels. A noble bridge has just been built, after a design of Mr. Behan's. New markets were opened in 1802; and a fish-market, built by subscription, in the year 1800. Here are also four breweries, three distilleries, eight salt-works, one paper-mill, twenty-three flour-mills, and new quays and convenient docks just finished. The living is a wardenship in the diocese and archdiocese of Tuam, consisting of the rectories of Galway, St. Nicholas, Rahoon, Moycullen, Kilcummin, Oranmore, Ballinacourty, and Shruel. The warden is elected annually, and the vicars for life, by the corporation. There is much trade and manufacture carried on by the population of the town and liberties. In the year 1615, this port supplied the principal part of the kingdom with wines; the present imports consist of coal, salt, and iron; and the exports are wheat, oats, barley, spirits, cured fish, kelp, &c. The fisheries here are important modes of occupation; a part of the town, called the Claddagh, is entirely occupied by persons engaged in this mode of life. On St. John's day, they elect a mayor and sheriffs from amongst themselves; a ceremony attended with much noise and inebriety. The inland trade is much increased by the construction of roads from here through Connemara, to Ardbear and Clifden; a new line along the north shore of Galway Bay; a new road to Portumna, and an improved line to Limerick. A canal was suggested by Lord Cloncurry to extend from this town to Dublin; and canal is actually commencing, whereby Lough Carrib will be connected with Galway Bay. The classical school is richly endowed, and possesses the advantage of an excellent house. In Rahoon parish is a poor-school of 470 children. In St. Nicholas parish the freeschool admits thirty-six boys, and as many girls; and there is, in the same parish, a subscription-school of 145 boys. In 1296, a Franciscan monastery was founded here by William De Burgh; and in 1381, Pope Urban empowered the guardian of this house to excommunicate every person in Connaught who acknowledged his rival, Clement VII. The tomb of the founder is still to be seen. A nunnery was founded near the west gate, called St. May's-of-the-Hill; it was forsaken by the nuns, and taken possession of by the secular clergy, who were compelled to make way for the Dominicans, by a bull of Pope Innocent VIII. The building was demolished by the townsmen, to prevent Cromwell's converting it into a fortress against themselves. There was also an Augustinian friary near the town, founded in 1508, by Stephen Lynch, and Margaret, his wife. The ancient settlers in this town were divided into thirteen tribes, a distinction not forgotten or despised at the present day; and to these appear to have belonged exclusive commercial privileges. The family of Monckton derive the title of Viscount from this town.

GALWAY BAY, co. Galway, Connaught, I.

A spacious bay in the western coast of Ireland, measuring thirty miles from the Killenly harbour in Arran island to the town of Galway; and its least breadth, that is, from Blackhead, in the county of Clare, to the Connemara littorale, eight miles; the north entrance is rocky and dangerous, but the south free, open, and safe. It abounds in fish of various kinds. It is called the Bay of Hakes, from the vast number of that species which pursue the herrings into it. Turbot, cod, mackerel, and other fish, are also taken in great quantities. On the Connemara side of this vast bay the Fishery-board have constructed boat harbours at Spiddal, Barna, Cladagh, Ardfry, Ballinacourty, and St. Kitt's; and on the Clare side, at St. Durass, Agh-Inish, and Glimnagh, all possessing great natural advantages. The harbours on the east side of the bay, are convenient landing-places, and good market stations for the fishermen of Cosleah, and other western coasts. There is a lighthouse within Galway bay, upon Mutton Island, exhibiting a fixed bright light.

GAMBLESBY, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (233) 10 m. NE. Pop. 279.

A township in the parish of Addingham, in Leath ward. Here are two chapels belonging to the Independents and Wesleyan Methodists.

GAMLINGAY, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Caxton (49) 5 m. SW. Pop. 1256.

A parish in the hundred of Long-Stow; livings, a rectory and vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B., the former, 15*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*; the latter, 5*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, of the former, Merton College, Oxford; of the latter, the Bishop of Ely. The charities of this parish consist of an alms-house, and a charity-school. Sir George Downham, who bequeathed his estates to found a new college at Cambridge, had a mansion here, which has been taken down.

GAMPSTON, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Nottingham (124) 3 m. SE. Pop. 102.

A hamlet in the parish of West Bridge and south division of the wapentake of Bingham.

GAMRIE, shire of Banff, S.

P. T. Aberdeen (121½) 6½ m. W. Pop. 3716.

A parish, extending about nine miles and a half along the southern shore of the Moray Firth, and prescoting to the sea a bold and precipitous chain of rocks, in some places exceeding 600 feet above its level. The two promontories, Gamrie and Troup, stretch a considerable way into the sea, by which a commodious bay, affording good anchorage, is formed, and near the latter headland is a stupendous rock, the haunt of numerous kiltieawks; also two remarkable subterraneous passages from the shore to the house of Troup. In the river Deveron, which bounds the parish on the west, is a profitable salmon fishery; and by the inhabitants of the fishing villages, Crovie, Gardens-town, and Macduff, great quantities of fish are caught in the firth and cured for exportation. The living is in the presbytery of Turreff and synod of Aberdeen; patrons, the Gordon family. The church, according to the date on the steeple, was founded in 1001; it is composed of limestone, with a number of skulls worked in, said to be those of the Danes who fell in battle with the Thane of Buchan on this spot, which still bears the name of Bloody Pits, and exhibit traces of ancient fortifications. Some tumuli also remain in different parts of the parish.

GAMSTON, or GAMELESTON IDLE, co. Nottingham.

P. T. East Retford (145) 3 m. S & E. Pop. 365.

A parish in the South Clay division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 16*s.* 5½*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The Baptists, of whom the greater part of the population of this parish consists, have chapel here.

GANEREW, co. Hereford.

P. T. Monmouth (129) 3 m. NE b N.
Pop. 118

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Wormelow; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 14. 10s.; church ded. to St. Swithun; patronage with Whitechurch rectory.

GANFIELD, co. Berks.

Pop. 3285.

A hundred at the north-western extremity of the county, and bordering upon Oxfordshire, containing seven parishes.

GANILLY, GREAT and LITTLE.

Two of the Scilly Islands, lying to the north-east of St. Mary's. They are appropriated to pasturage, the former containing twenty acres, and the latter six.

GANNICK, GREAT and LITTLE.

Two other of the Scilly Islands, lying to the northward of St. Mary's, the first containing eighteen acres, and the last five. These are also appropriated to pasturage.

GANOL. See Rhandir-Ganol.GANSTEAD, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (174) 4½ m. NE b N. Pop. 61.

A township in the parish of Swine and middle division of the wapentake of Holderness.

GANTHORPE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 7 m. W b S.
Pop. 106.

A township in the parish of Terrington and wapentake of Bulmer.

GANTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Scarborough (217) 8 m. SSW.
Pop. with Brompton, 278.

A parish in the wapentake of Dickering; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 51. 2s. 6d.; patron (1829) Sir Thomas Legard, Bart. In the church, dedicated to St. Nicholas, are several monuments to the different branches of the ancient family of the Legards. Granton Hall, in this parish, is the seat of Sir Thomas Legard, Bart.

GAP-HILL, shire of Kincardine, S.

P. T. Bervie (82½) 4 m. NNE. Pop. with Pa.

A small fishing-village in the parish of Kinnell, situated in Bradden Bay, a little cove to the northward of Tod Head, where coasting-vessels usually land coal and lime for the supply of the neighbourhood.

GARAN-HILL, shire of Ayr, S.

Edinburgh 51 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Muirkirk and district of Kyle, situated on the side of an eminence rising from the water of Ayr. It is a thriving and neatly-built place, possessing extensive coal, tar, and iron-works, which are carried on according to the system of the Earl of Dundonald.

GARBOLDESIAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. East Harling (80) 4½ m. S. Pop. 700.

A village, comprising the consolidated parishes of All Saints and St. John the Baptist, in the hundred of Gutteross. The livings are two rectories in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 191. 16s. 0½d.; patron (1829) C. M. Montgomery, Esq. Only one of the churches now remains, which is that dedicated to St. John the Baptist, the other having fallen to decay.

GARDENHILL, co. Fermanagh, Ulster, I.

P. T. Enniskillen (100) m.
Pop. not specified.

A parish in the barony of Glenawly; living, a chapelry in the diocese of Clogher and archdiocese of Armagh.

GARDENTOWN, shire of Banff, S.

P. T. Aberdour (8) 6½ m. W. Pop. with Pa.

A considerable village in the parish of Gowrie, situated on the southern coast of the Moray Firth, in a neighbourhood abounding with fish, of which the inhabitants take and cure large quantities for exportation.

GARE. See Ballingarry.GARENDON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Loughborough (100) 2 m. W. Pop. 43.

An extra-parochial liberty in the hundred of West Goscote.

GARFINAGH, or GARFINEY, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

P. T. Dingle (214) 3 m. NE. Pop. 785.

A parish in the barony of Corkaguiney; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Ardferd and Aghadoe and archdiocese of Cashel. No church or glebe-house in this parish; producing, by commutation for tithes, 138*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.*, of which 92*l.* 6*s.* 1*d.* are payable to the lay impropriator.

GARFORD, co. Berks.

P. T. Abingdon (56) 5 m. W b S. Pop. 192.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Marcham and hundred of Ock; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Marcham in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; patronage with Marcham vicarage.

GARFORTH, CHURCH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Leeds (180) 6½ m. E. Pop. 731.

A parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Skyrack; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 81. 17*s.* 8½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. J. Whitaker.

GARFORTH MOOR, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Leeds (180) 7 m. E b N. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Church Garforth and lower division of the wapentake of Skyrack.

GARFORTH WEST, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Leeds (180) 6 m. E b S. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Church Garforth and lower division of the wapentake of Skyrack.

GARGRAVE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (216) 5 m. WNW.
Pop. of Pa. 1639. Of To. 972. Pairs, Dec.
11 and 29, for horned cattle and toys.

A parish and township in the east division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross, pleasantly situated on the Aire, which abounds with good fish. A cotton manufactory on the banks of the Leeds, and Liverpool canal, which passes here, gives employment to many of the inhabitants. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; val. in K. B. 12l. 13s. 11½d.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) John Mar-den, Esq. A court for the recovery of small debts is held here under the Duke of Devonshire. Gargrave is much frequented by sportsmen during the sporting-season.

GARGUNNOCK, shire of Stirling, S.

P. T. Stirling (35½) 6 m. W. Pop. 862.

A parish and village, the latter of which, situated on a slope in the line of the great military road from Stirling to Dumbarton, has a extremely pretty appearance, though the houses are thatched; and it possesses one of the most commodious inns in this part of the country. The parish, which is six miles in length, and three and a-half in breadth, is bounded on the north by the river Forth, the beautiful meanderings of which afford a fine prospect from the eminence whereon the village stands. The higher grounds consist of extensive muirs, but the lower have been recently much improved by cultivation, and adorned with thriving plantations. The living is in the presbytery of Stirling and synod of Perth and Stirling; patrons, the family of Eidington, whose mansion, with a tower attached, occupying an elevated site, presents a stately aspect in various points of view. The Carse of Micklewood, anciently a forest, was cleared by the Romans when the opposing army of Scots took refuge within its recesses. Among various other superstitions still prevailing here, marriages usually take place in April and November, and in May never; and from the decease till the funeral of a person the house is thronged day and night by the living. Poor old females are also looked upon as witches to this day by the ignorant, who fear their evil eye among the cattle.

GARIOCH, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Inverary (137) 5 m. NW. Pop. 1616.

A parish in the district of the same name, the latter of which comprises an extensive and fertile vale, twenty miles in length, and ten in breadth. It is sheltered by surrounding hills, and forms the summer resort of many invalids, who retire hither for the benefit of its congenial air. The parish anciently bore the name of Logie-Durno, but changed its appellation to the present, on the translation of the church to Garioch. It is eight miles in length, seven in breadth, and watered by the rivers Ury and Don. The surface is rather hilly, but highly cultivated, bearing luxuriant and early crops. Living, in the presbytery of Garioch and synod of Aberdeen; patron, Elphinstone of Logie House, which, with those of Pittodry and Balquhain, are embosomed in extensive plantations. The church was built early in the seventeenth century, half a mile from which is the "Maiden Stone," covered with hieroglyphics; and near the ruins of Balquhain castle there are the remains of a Druidical temple and a remarkably fine echo.

GARLIES-TOWN, shire of Wigtown, S.

P. T. Whitehorn (116) 4½ m. NNE.
Pop. with Pa.

A considerable village and seaport in the parish of Sorby, situated at the head of a fine bay of the same name, which abounds with fish, and affords excellent anchorage on a deep bed of soft clay. It was founded by Lord Garlies, now Earl of Galloway, is daily improving, and the buildings are pleasantly ranged in the form of a crescent, facing the sea. The passage hence to the Isle of Man is made in three hours, to Whitehaven in four, to Liverpool or Dublin in twenty-four, and to Greenock in thirty hours. Garlies gives the title of Viscount to the Earls of Galloway.

GARMISTON, shires of Orkney and Shetland, S. See Stemess.GARMONDSWAY-MOOR, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (258) 7 m. SEb S. Pop. 35.

A township in the parish of Bishop's Middleton and north-east division of Stockton ward. It is said that Canute, the Dane, walked from hence to Durham barefooted, to visit the tomb of St. Cuthbert.

GARMOUTH, shire of Elgin, S.

P. T. Fochabers (154½) 3½ m. N.
Pop. with Pa.

A considerable fishing-village and burgh of barony in the parish of Speymouth, situated on Spey Bay, in the Moray Firth. Its harbour, from the great fall and rapidity of the river Spey, is subject to the inconvenience of being frequently almost choked with gravel; but a number of vessels are built here, from the timber obtained in the forests of Strathspey and Badenoch, and many are employed in freighting salmon, taken here in considerable quantities, to London and other places. The streets are neat and regular, though the houses are principally made of clay; and here are two saw-mills, extensive sales of timber, and an annual fair. Here is a school at this place, endowed by Peter Gorton, a watchmaker of Edinburgh, with 2000 merks.

GARN, co. Merioneth, N. W.

P. T. Bala (191) m. Pop. 178.

A township in the parish of Llan-fawr and hundred of Penllyn.

GAROMNA ISLAND, co. Galway, Con-nacht, I.

P. T. Galway (153) m. Pop. 1281.

An island in the parish of Carungunagh, off the barony of Moycullen, containing about 210 houses. The inhabitants are occupied in the fisheries.

GARRAN. See Burnchurch.

GARREL, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Lochmaben (85) 7 m. NW b N.
Pop. with Kirkmichael.

An ancient parish, united in 1660 to that of Kirkmichael, though much against the will of its inhabitants. The church, which has been suffered to fall to ruin, was built in 1617.

GARRETT, co. Surrey.

London 7½ m. SW b S. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Wandsworth, and hundred of Brixton. It is famous for having been the scene of a mock election, which took place for many years upon the meeting of every new parliament. This piece of burlesque was performed for the last time, after the general election in 1796, and is the subject of Foote's celebrated comedy, called the "Mayor of Garrett."

GARRIGILL, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (283) 18½ m. NE b E.
Pop. 1288.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Aldstone, Leath ward; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Aldstone, in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham, not in charge; patronage with Aldstone vicarage. Divine service is only performed here every third Sunday by the Vicar of Aldstone; but there are three chapels of the dissenters, namely, the Independents, the Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists. Most of the inhabitants are employed in the lead-works of the London Lead Company. Part of a charitable bequest, to the amount of 7*l.*, is annually distributed among the poor of Garrigill.

GARRISON, co. Fermanagh, Ulster, I.

P. T. Church Hill (112) 8 m. W. Pop. with Pa. Fairs, May 21; July 19 Oct. 19; and Dec. 21.

A village in the parish of Ennismacsaint and barony of Magheraboy, situated in a mountainous district, and on the banks of Lough Melvin. Coals have been found in the vicinity, but no effort is used to raise them for sale. The living is a chapelry in the diocese of Clogher and archdiocese of Armagh. Here are the ruins of a church and a barrack.

GARRISON-SIDE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (174) m. Pop. 173.

An extra parochial liberty in the county part of the town and county of Kingston-upon-Hull.

GARRISTON, or GATHERSTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Middleham (232) 4 m. NNE. Pop. 52.

A township in the parish of Hawkeswell and wapentake of Hang West.

GARRISTOWN, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

P. T. Balbriggan (19) m. W. Pop. of Vil. 512. Of Com. 317. Of Pa. 1157. Fairs, May 5; Aug. 15; and Nov. 1.

A village and parish in the barony of Balrothey upon the Garristown river, and in the centre of an extensive bog and common. The living is a vicarage in the diocese of Dublin and Glendolagh and archdiocese of Dublin, possessing a church, a glebe-house, and about nineteen acres of land; patron, Lord Kingsland.

GARRON-GIBBON, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Carrick-on-Suir (110) 5 m. N.
Pop. with Grange-Mockler.

A parish in the barony of Sliebhaddagh; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Lismore and archdiocese of Cashel, being part of the union of Grange Mockler.

GARRYNOE, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Bandon (186) 6 m. SW.
Pop. not specified.

A parish in the barony of Carbery, situated upon the Bandon river; living, an entire rectory in the diocese of Cork and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the rectory of Kileooney, not enjoying the advantage of church or glebe; patron, Lord Kinsale.

GARRYNOE, or GARRYNOW, co. Limerick, Munster, I.

P. T. Kilmallock (140) m. Pop. 48.

A town in the parish of St. Peter and St. Paul and liberties of Kilmallock, and in the barony of Castlemore.

GARRYVOE, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Castlemartyr (61) 6 m. SE. Pop. 737.

A parish in the barony of Imokilly, situated upon the sea-coast; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel, a part of the union of Ighinterurragh.

GARSDALE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Settle (235) 23 m. NNW. Pop. 670.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Sadbergh, and west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 17*l.* 5*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 80*l.* 2*s.*; chapel ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GARSDEN, co. Wilts.

P. T. Malmesbury (96) 2½ m. E. b N.
Pop. 183.

A parish in the hundred of Malmesbury; living, a rectory with that of Lea, in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 9*s.* 2½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) P. C. Methuen, Esq.

GARSINGTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Oxford (54) 5 m. SE b E. Pop. 595.

A parish in the hundred of Bullington; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 19*s.* 9½*d.*; annexed to the headship of Trinity College, Oxford. On a screen in the church, ded. to St. Mary, are the arms of Sir Thomas Pope, the founder of Trinity College, who, during the plague, built a house in this parish for the accommodation of the students, who carried on their studies here, as when at college.

GARSTANG, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

London 229 m. NW b N. Pop. of Pa. 7103. Of To. 936. M. D. Thur. Fairs, Holy Thurs. for cattle and pedlery; July 9, for cattle, cloth, wool, and pedlery; and Nov. 21, for cattle, horses, cloth, onions, and pedlery.

A market-town, parish, and township in the hundred of Amounderness, situated on the banks of the Wye, which abounds with trout, chub, gudgeon, and smelts. The town is very irregularly built, and has rather a mean appearance; the town-hall is the best building it possesses. It was incorporated by Charles II. and is governed by a bailiff and seven capital burgesses, who have power to try misdemeanors committed in the liberty. It is supposed to derive its name from an ancient Saxon, to whom it once belonged. The chief manufactures of this town are in hats and sackings; many of the inhabitants are also employed in flax-dressing, and the cotton-trade is carried on to a considerable extent in the neighbourhood, though not directly within the town. The livings are a vicarage and a curacy, in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, the former valued in K. B. 147. 3s. 4d. the latter not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 977. 18s.; patrons 1829 of the vicarage, the Rev John Pedder; of the curacy, the Vicar of Garstang. The parish church, ded. to St. Helen, is situated a mile and a half distant from the town, at a part of the parish called Garstang Church-town; but the chapel-of-ease is within the town, as also several places of worship for different denominations of dissenters. Here are several charity schools. The petty-sessions for the hundred are holden here and at Preston alternately. The country in this vicinity is famous for its fine breed of cattle which, though smaller than what are called the Lancashire breed, are of very elegant shape. On the north-east side of the town are the ruins of Greenhaugh Castle, consisting now of only one tower; it was built by Stanley, first earl of Derby. This town, by means of the Lancaster and other canals, has communication with all the principal rivers of the country.

GARSTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Liverpool (206) 6 m. SE. Pop. 871.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Childwall and hundred of West Derby; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 904; patron (1829) Richard Watt, Esq. On the banks of the Mersey, in this township, are some extensive salt-works, which give employment to a considerable number of persons.

GARSTON, EAST, co. Berks.

P. T. Lambourn (69) 2½ m. ESE. Pop. 637.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Lam-bourn, partly in the hundred of Moreton, and partly in the hundred of Wantage; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 137. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, Christ Church, Oxford.

GARSTONES, or GEARSTONES, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Settle (235) 12 m. N. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Low Bentham and wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross. A large market is held here every week for flour and corn.

GARTAN, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

P. T. Letterkenny (150) 7 m. NW. Pop. 1630.

A parish in the barony of Kilmacrennan; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Raphoe and archdiocese of Armagh, having a church, with a glebe-house, upon a glebe of sixty-four acres. In the year 521, was born at this place, the famous St. Columb, the disciple and pupil of St. Finian, of Clonard. The monastery, founded here by the patron saint, is now converted into the parish church.

GARTH, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Welsh Pool (171) m. Pop. 767.

A township in the parish of Guilsfield and hundred of Pool. The name is derived from Garth, the ancient seat of the Wynnes, who are descended from Griffith Vaughan, called Y Marchog Gwyll, or the Wild Knight. The heiress of the last of the race married a Mytton of Shropshire.

GARTH, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Cardiff (160) m. Pop. 427.

A hamlet in the parish of Llan-fabon and hundred of Caerphilly.

GARTH AND YSTRAD, co. Cardigan, S. W.

P. T. Lampeter (209) 6 m. NW. Pop. 102.

A township in the parish of Llan-dewi-brell and hundred of Penarth. The chapel of Ystrad stands on the banks of the Aeron.

GARTH-BRENGY, co. Brecon, S. W.

P. T. Brecon (171) 3 m. NE. Pop. 183.

A small parish in the hundred of Merthyr, situated upon the river Honddu; living, a perpetual cure and prebend in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 347. 10s. Neither church nor parsonage in the parish.

GARTHBEIHO, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Llanfair (183) 7 m. W b N. Pop. 319.

A parish in the barony of Mathrafal, situated upon the Twrch river; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph; valued in P. R. 1032. 0s. 3d.; patron, the Bishop. Area of parish about 2500 acres.

GARTH-ELY, co. Cardigan, S. W.

P. T. Lampeter (209) 6 m. N. Pop. 277.

A parish in the hundred of Penarth, situated upon the Aeron river; living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, attached to Llan-dewi-brefi, in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 77l. 9s. 6d. per annum.

GARTHEWIN, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Denbigh (205) 7 m. W. Pop. with Pa. A township in the parish of Llanfair-tal-hairn and hundred of Isdulas. Here is a fine seat of the Wynnes.

GARTH-GARMON. See Capel-Garmon.

GARTH-GYNYD, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Cardiff (160) m. Pop. 121.

A hamlet in the parish of Gelli-Gaer and hundred of Caerphilly. This is altogether a mineral district.

GARTHORPE, co. Leicester.

P. T. Moulton Mowbray (105) 6 m. ENE. Pop. 115.

A parish in the hundred of Framland; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7l. 5s. 2d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Lord Sondes.

GARTHORPE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Barton upon Humber (107) 13½ m. W b S. Pop. 500.

A township in the parish of Luddington and west division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey.

GARTLY, shires of Aberdeen and Banff, S.

P. T. Huntley (140) 3½ m. S. Pop. 979.

A parish, twelve miles in length, six in breadth, and intersected by the river Bogie; that part of it in the former shire is in the district of Strathbogie, which insulates the portion belonging to the latter; and the entire parish is subject only to the magistracy of Aberdeen. The surface is principally covered with heath and moss, yet the valleys, where cultivated, are very fertile. A fine blue slate and excellent limestone are quarried here. The living is in the presbytery of Strathbogie and synod of Moray; patron, the Duke of Gordon. The church was built in 1621. A ruin in the neighbourhood, termed The Place of Gartly, appears to be very ancient.

GARTMORE, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Kippen (41) 8 m. W b N. Pop. with Pa. Fairs, Jan. 8; May 10; July 7; and Oct. 19.

A village in the parish of Kippen, situated on the northern bank of the river Forth; where also is the delightful residence of the Graham family.

GARTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (174) 13 m. NE. Pop. of Pa. 299. Of To. 100.

A parish and township in the middle division of the wapentake of Holderness; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 6l. 1s. 0½d.; ann. val. P. R. 114l. 7s. 2d.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Lord Chancellor. Grimston Garth, the seat of Charles Grimston, Esq., is a handsome castellated mansion of modern erection, situated in a pleasant part of this parish, and commanding a delightful prospect.

GARTON-UP-THE-WOLDS, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (196) 3½ m. WNW. Pop. 357.

A parish, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Dickerling; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East-Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 5l. 6s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 110l.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GARTREE, co. Leicester.

Pop. 16,000.

A hundred at the south-eastern side of the county, near the borders of Northamptonshire, from which it is divided by the river Welland, containing thirty-six parishes, including the town of Market Harborough.

GARTREE, co. Lincoln.

Pop. 6501.

A wapentake in the Lindsey division; and nearly in the centre of the county, bounded on the east by the river Witham, containing thirty parishes.

GARVAGH, co. Londonderry, Ulster, I.

Dublin 141 m. N b W. Pop. 675.

Fairs, May 23; July 26; and Nov. 5.

A market, post, and fair-town, in the parish of Argill and barony of Coleraine, situated upon the Aghirey river, which is here crossed by two stone bridges. The family of Canning take the title of Baron from this place.

GARVAGHY, co. Down, Ulster, I.

P. T. Dromore (81) 4 m. S. Pop. 4853.

A parish in the barony of Iveagh; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Dromore and archdiocese of Armagh. Here is a church and a glebe-house, with about 120 acres of land. The subscription-school in this parish consists of twenty-two pupils.

GARVALD, shire of Haddington, S.

P. T. Haddington (16) 5 m. SE. Pop. 797.

A parish, to which was united in 1702 that of Barra; it is nine miles in length, five in breadth, and includes the village of Garvald, which is pleasantly situated on the little river Hopes; and in its vicinity freestone is quarried in abundance. It extends considerably into the Lammermuir Hills, among which are the ruins of White Castle, erected to defend a pass from England. The living is in the presbytery of Haddington and synod of Lothian and Tweeddale; alternate patrons, the Crown and the Marquis of Tweeddale, whose mansion at Nun-Raw exhibits marks of high antiquity. The church of Garvald serves both parishes, that of Barra, from neglect, having become unfit for use. Other elegant mansions and plantations grace this district, and within its limits are vestiges of several ancient camps and tumuli.

GARVELOCH, shire of Argyll, S.

A small island of the Hebrides, forming a part of the parish of Kilbrandon, and situated to the south-west of Easdale. Here are quarries of schistose marble.

GARVESTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. East Dereham (100) 5 m. SSE.
Pop. 330.

A parish in the hundred of Mitford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 16*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 143*l.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron (1829) Sir W. Clayton, Bart.

GARVOCH, shire of Kincardine, S.

P. T. Laurence Kirk (70) 2 m. SE. Pop. 413.
Fair in Aug., for horses and cattle.

A parish containing 8006 English acres, two-thirds of which are covered with heath, and the other arable. The living is in the presbytery of Fordoun and synod of Angus and Mearns; patron, the Crown. The church was built in 1782.

GARVAY, co. Hereford.

P. T. Monmouth (129) 8 m. NNW. Pop. 522.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Wormelow; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; certified value 14*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 45*l.*; patrons (1829) Lord Viscount Southwell, and R. Canning, Esq.

GASK, NETHER, or FINDOGASK, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Auchterarder (54½) 5½ m. NE.
Pop. 522.

A parish, forming a square of about two miles, highly cultivated and fertile, and abounding in game. It is bounded on the south by the river Earn, in which salmon-trout, pikes, &c., are plentiful, and is intersected by a Roman road, on the line of which are the remains of several ancient encampments. Freestone and a greyish slate are quarried here; and there are some extensive marl-pits in the parish. The living is in the presbytery of Auchterarder and synod of Perth and Stirling; patron, the Crown. The church is an ancient structure.

GASK, TRINITY, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Auchterarder (54½) 4 m. N b E.
Pop. 070.

A parish, comprising the three ancient parishes of Wester-Gask, Kinkel, and Chapel Hill, which union gave rise to the term, Trinity-Gask, its present appellation. It lies along both sides of the river Earn, for several miles, the northern district being rather hilly, and the southern plain and extremely fertile, and is intersected by the Roman road, leading from Stormont to their celebrated camp at Ardoch. The living is in the presbytery of Auchterarder and synod of Perth and Stirling; patron, the Earl of Kinnoul. The church was rebuilt a few years ago. Here is a well, of which it was formerly said by the superstitious, that whoever should be baptised with its waters would never be seized with the plague.

GASPER, co. Somerset.

P. T. Wincanton (108) 4 m. NE. Pop. 312.

A hamlet in the parish of Stourton and hundred of Norton Ferris.

GASTHORPE, or GATESTHORPE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. East Harling (89) 4 m. SSW.
Pop. 113.

parish in the hundred of Guiltcross; living, a dis. rectory with that of Riddlesworth, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patronage with Riddlesworth rectory.

GATCOMBE, co. Southampton.

P. T. Newport (89) 4 m. SSW. Pop. 247.

parish in the hundred of West Medina bert, Isle of Wight; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 28*l.* 15*s.*; church ded. to St. Olave; patron, the University of Oxford, in trust for the principal of St. Edmund Hall.

GATE-BURTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Gainsborough (149) 5 m. SSE.
Pop. 110.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Well, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 84*l.* 17*s.*; church ded. to St. Helen; patron (1829) William Hutton, Esq.

GATSFORTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Selby (181) 4½ m. SW b W. Pop. 102.

A township in the parish of Brayton and over division of the wapentake of Barkston sh.

GATEHOUSE, or GATEHOUSE OF FLEET, stewardry of Kirkcudbright, S.

Edinburgh 101 m. S b W. Kirkcudbright 5 m. Pop. with Pa. Market, weekly.
Fairs, eight successive Fridays in winter, for black cattle.

A market, post-town, and burgh of barony, seated in a delightful vale, on the eastern bank of the river Fleet, which is navigable for vessels of eighty tons, and is crossed by a handsome bridge, communicating with a large suburb on the opposite side. The river falls into Wigtown Bay, about three miles below the town, whence vessels constantly trade to the west of Scotland, the north of England for coals, and a few with London; in consequence of which many branches of commerce, with the manufactures of cotton and leather, have been established, and are in a thriving condition. Sixty years ago, one house only, an inn for the accommodation of travellers, on the Dumfries and Portpatrick road, stood here; but the town has so much increased since that period, that it now consists of three streets, which run parallel with the Fleet, and contain many well-built houses, with a public subscription library, and other useful institutions. It was erected into a burgh of barony in 1795, and is governed by a provost, two baillies, and four councillors. A branch of the Paisley Bank transacts business here to a great amount.

GATELEY, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Fakenham (100) 5 m. SE b S.
Pop. 101.

A parish in the hundred of Launditch; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 3*l*. 2*s*. 8*d*.; church ded. to St. Helen; patronage with Brisley rectory.

GATESGILL, or GATESKALE, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 6 m. S.
Pop. with Raughton, 204.

A township in the parish of Dalston, in Cumberland ward, which, at the Conquest, was part of Inglewood Forest. At a short distance hence, is the site of a Roman station.

GATESHEAD, co. Pal. of Durham.

London 272 m. N b W. Pop. 11,767.

An ancient borough and parish in the east division of Chester ward, situated on the south side of the river Tyne, opposite Newcastle, to which it is a suburb, and connected by a handsome stone bridge. It has been supposed, that it was once a fortified Roman station, and many antiquities have been discovered. The town consists of two streets; one of which, descending to the bridge, is very steep; the other is a new street, built in a curved direction, in order to avoid the dangerous descent. The chief manufactories here are of cast and wrought iron and whiting. At Gateshead-Fell, there is a large quarry for grind-stones, which are exported to all parts of the kingdom; at this place, William the Conqueror gained a decisive victory over Malcolm, king of Scotland. Great numbers of the inhabitants are employed in the coal-mines in the neighbourhood, which are numerous and extensive. The town was formerly governed by a bailiff, under the Bishop of Durham. The livings are a rectory and curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; the former valued in K. B. 27*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*., the latter not in charge; patrons, the Bishop of Durham and the Rector of Gateshead. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a fine ancient building, of a cruciform construction, with side aisles; its tower, which is lofty and handsome, is seen to a considerable distance. The chapel is ded. to St. John, and was erected in 1825. Here also are several chapels, belonging to the different denominations of dissenters. The charities of Gateshead are numerous, consisting of a free-grammar, and several other schools; an almshouse for six poor women, and various bequests from which the poor are periodically relieved. Here was formerly an extensive monastery, to which was attached a hospital; these afterwards having been converted into a Roman Catholic chapel, were burnt down by the populace.

GATTON, co. Surrey.

London 21 m. S. Pop. 135.
Memb. of Pt. 2.

An ancient borough by prescription, in the hundred of Reigate, though now only a small village, is supposed by some to have been formerly a considerable town; and from the many Roman coins and other antiquities discovered here, to have been a Roman station. It is situated under the range of chalk-hills above Reigate, and obtained its name of Gate-tun, or the town on the road, from being built on an old Roman way; whence, by corruption, the name of Gatton. It has sent members to Parliament since 1451, in the reign of Henry VI. The electors consist only of about eight, being inhabitants, paying scot and lot; the constable is the returning-officer, who is chosen annually at the lord of the manor's court, who, in fact, nominates the member. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 9*l*. 2*s*. 8*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 125*l*. The lord of the manor has a beautiful residence, called Lower Gatton, surrounded by an extensive park, tastefully arranged, and containing a large lake, in which are two islands, planted with shrubs, and the resort of the wild fowl with which the lake abounds. The parish church, which is a small ancient building, is within the limits of the park. Upper Gatton, also, is a handsome mansion in this parish, seated in the centre of a park, on the hill near Chipstead.

GAULBY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (06) 8½ m. ESE. Pop. 114.

A parish in the hundred of Gartree; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 18*l*. 2*s*. 6*d*.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Rev. Henry Greene.

GAULSKILL, or KILTOLEGAN, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Waterford (94) 5 m. Pop. 448.

A parish in the barony of Ida; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the parishes of Dunkitt and Kilcollum. In the cemetery, surrounding the church, is an ancient monument, to the memory of the family of the De Burgos, formerly the proprietors of Gaulstown, in this parish. This noble park passed from the De Burgos to the Earls of Belvidere, and now belongs to Lord Kilmaine.

GAUTBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Horncastle (136) 6 m. WNW. Pop. 118.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Gartree, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 83*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GAYINTOWN, shire of Berwick, S.

P. T. Dunse (10½) 2 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A thriving village in the parish of Langton, recently erected, near the site of the ancient village of Langton. It received its name from the founder, David Gayn, Esq.

GAWCOTT, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Buckingham (55) 1½ m. SW. Pop. 566.

A hamlet and chapelry within the parish and liberty of Buckingham; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; patrons, the Trustees.

GAWSWORTH, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Macclesfield (167) 3½ m. SW b S. Pop. 801.

A parish in the hundred of Macclesfield; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. at 7*l.* 4*s.* 4½*d.*; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) the Earl of Harrington.

GAYDON, co. Warwick.

P. T. Kington (83) 3 m. NE. Pop. 187.

A parish in the Kington division of the hundred of Kington; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Bishop's Itchington, and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield, not in charge; church ded. to St. Giles; patronage with Bishop's Itchington vicarage.

GAYHURST, or GOTHURST, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Newport-Pagnoll (50) 3 m. NW. Pop. 90.

A parish in the hundred of Newport; living, a rectory, with that of Goldington, in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 0*s.* 2*d.*; patroness, Miss Wright. The church, ded. to St. Peter, is a modern structure, having been rebuilt, pursuant to the will of George Wright, Esq., son of Sir Nathan Wright, the lord keeper. Gothurst, the seat of Miss Wright, is a venerable mansion, of the style of architecture which prevailed in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The surrounding grounds are very extensive, and pleasantly laid out.

GAYLES, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Greta Bridge (242) 5 m. SE b S. Pop. 218.

A township in the parish of Kirkby-Ravensworth and wapentake of Gilling-West.

GAYTENBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Bedale (223) 4 m. E. Pop. 88.

A township in the parish of Burneston and wapentake of Hallikeld.

GAYTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Great Neston (194) 3 m. NW b N. Pop. 153.

A township in the parish of Heswall and hundred of Wirrall.

GAYTON, or GEYTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Lynn Regis (96) 7½ m. E b S. Pop. 545.

A parish in the Lynn division of the hundred of Freebridge; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Bishop of Norwich.

GAYTON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Towcester (60) 1 m. N b E. Pop. 389.

• A parish in the hundred of Towcester; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 5*s.* 2½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Sidney College, Cambridge.

GAYTON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Stafford (141) 3½ m. NE. Pop. 281.

1 A parish in the south division of the hundred of Pirehill; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; certified value 11*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 36*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patroness (1829) Mrs. Brown.

GAYTON-IN-THE-MARSH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Alford (141) 4½ m. N b W. Pop. 276.

A parish in the Marsh division of the hundred of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 10*s.* 2½*d.*; church ded. to St. George; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GAYTON THORPE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Swaffham (93) 8 m. NW b N. Pop. 187.

A parish in the Lynn division of the hundred of Freebridge; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 90*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) A. Hamond, Esq.

GAYTON-ON-THE-WOLDS, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (149) 6 m. W. Pop. 122.

A parish in the Wold division of the hundred of Louth Eske, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 11*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 102*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GAYWOOD, co. Norfolk.

1 P. T. Lynn Regis (96) 1 m. E b N.

Pop. 474. Fairs, June 22, for horses; Oct 17, for cheese; the latter kept at Lynn Custom-House quay.

A parish in the Lynn division of the hundred of Freebridge; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Faith; patron (1829) W. Bagg, Esq.

GAZELEY, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Newmarket (61) 5 m. E. Pop. 644.

A parish in the hundred of Risbridge; living, a dis. vicarage with Kentford, in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with Kentford vicarage.

GEALE. See Gale.

GEASHIL, King's co. Leinster, I.

Dublin 65 m. W. Pop. of Pa. 9157. Of Vil. 315. Fairs, May 1; Oct. 6; and Dec. 20.

A village in the parish and barony of the same name. It was anciently a place of some consequence, as the ruins of its stately castle indicate. Here was fought the decisive battle between Helier and Heremon, the sons of Milesius, which ended in the destruction of the former, and complete establishment of Heremon on the throne of Ireland. The living is a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Kildare and archdiocese of Dublin, producing, by commutation for tithes, 129*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.*; and is united to the chapelry of Killeigh, constituting thereby the corps of the prebend of Geashil; patron, Lord Digby. Here are two churches, one of them in the village, and the parsonage stands upon a glebe of eighty acres. The poor-school consists of thirty-nine boys and thirty-four girls. The family of Digby take the title of Baron from this place.

GEDDINGTON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Kettering (74) 4 m. NE b N. Pop. 751.

A parish in the hundred of Corby; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 11*s.* 0½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen. In this parish is a good charity school. Here was formerly a royal mansion, in which Henry II. held a Parliament in 1188, in order to raise money for a crusade; here, also, is one of those crosses which Edward I. set up to the memory of his Queen Eleanor, whose remains stopped here on the road to London for interment.

GEDGRAVE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Orford (00) 2 m. SW b W. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Orford and hundred of Plomesgate.

GEDLING, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Nottingham (124) 3½ m. ENE. Pop. 2017.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Thurgorton; livings, a rectory and vicarage in mediocres; valued in K. B., the former, 14*l.* 6*s.* 0½*d.*; the latter, 6*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Earl of Chesterfield.

GEDNEY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Holbeach (107) 1½ m. E. Pop. 1786.

A parish in the wapentake of Elloc, parts of Holland; livings, a rectory and vicarage; the former is a sinecure, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 23*l.* 11*s.* 0½*d.* and 30*l.* 11*s.* 10½*d.*; patrons (1829) the King, two turns, and the Clayton family one, for the rectory; the King, for the vicarage. The church, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, is an ancient building, and remarkable for the beauty and lightness of its architecture, particularly of the tower, which is very high. In some of the windows, which amount in all to the number of fifty-three, there are some fine specimens of painted glass.

GEDNEY-HILL, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Crowland (87) 6 m. E. Pop. 344.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Gedney and wapentake of Elloc, parts of Holland; living, curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 38*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 70*l.*; chapel ded. to the Holy Trinity; patrons, the Feoffes. In a field, called the High Doles, in this hamlet, is an ancient encampment with a double foss, where many Roman coins have been discovered; and it is supposed to have been a Roman castellum.

GELDESTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Beccles (109) 2 m. NW b W. Pop. 284.

A parish in the hundred of Clavering; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Lord Chancellor. In digging the foundations of Geldeston Hall, about sixty years since, a curious Roman bracelet, of pure gold, was discovered.

GELLI-GAER, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Cardiff (160) 14 m. NW. Pop. 1247. Fair, April 3.

A parish in the hundred of Caerphilly, in which are the hamlets of Brith-dir, Cefn, Garthgynydd, Hengoed, and Ysgwyddgwn. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 60*l.* per annum; patron, the Marquis of Bute. It is watered by the rivers Rhymny, Taf and Clydach; abounds in coal and iron, which principally employs the inhabitants, and is capable of much agricultural improvement. In Brith-dir hamlet is a chapel-of-ease, and a freeschool, founded and endowed by Edward Lewis, Esq., in 1715, where fifteen poor boys are clothed, taught, and apprenticed. Roman bricks have been dug up in a field near the church, in which are the ruins of an oblong building, the origin and use of which are nowhere explained.

GELSTON, stewardry of Kirkcudbright, S.

P. T. Castle-Douglas (87) 3½ m. S b E. Pop. with Kelton.

An ancient parish, now consolidated with that of Kelton, and in which numerous relics of antiquity have been discovered.

GEMBLING, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (106) 6 m. E b S. Pop. 87.

A township in the parish of Foston and wapentake of Dickering.

GENEVA, co. Waterford, Munster, I.

P. T. Passage (East) (160) 2 m. S. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Crook and barony of Gaultier, situated upon Waterford Haven. It was built at the expense of the government, as an asylum for the reception of the expatriated citizens of Geneva, who had at that time requested a settlement in Ireland; they, however, did not take advantage of the intended kindness of the British government. Here are spacious barracks, and the place is governed by a fort-major.

GENNYS, ST. co. Cornwall.

P. T. Camelford (223) $9\frac{1}{2}$ m. N b E.
Pop. 690.

A parish in the hundred of Lesnewth; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.*; patron (1829) Sir W. Milesworth, Bart.

GEORGE, co. Dorset.

Pop. 2051.

A central hundred in Dorchester division, bearing to the south side of the county, containing six parishes.

GEORGE, FORT, shire of Inverness, S.

Edinburgh 161 $\frac{1}{2}$ m. N b W. Inverness 10 m. NE.

The most regular fortification in Great Britain, having six bastions, mounting about eighty pieces of heavy ordnance, with barracks for 3000 men. It is situated on the peninsulated point of Ardersier, covers ten Scottish acres, and commands that bay on the Moray Firth which communicates with the Caledonian canal. The works were commenced in 1747, under the direction of General Skinner, and were finished at the expense of 160,000*l.* This fortress was used as a state prison, for the confinement of several of the leaders of the last Irish rebellion, and has a governor, usually a general officer of distinction, a lieutenant-governor, and other officers, with a garrison of invalids, which, in war time, is augmented by one or two regiments of the line, for the better security of the post. From this spot are most picturesque views of the Firth, bounded by lofty heights, and of Inverness, the capital of the Highlands, with stupendous mountains, rising on each side of the town.

GEORGE, ST., or LLAN ST. SIOR, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Abergelle (220) 3 m. SE. Pop. 315.

A parish in the hundred of Isdulas; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph; patron, the King. In this parish is the ancient military station of Pen-y-Pare, said to have been occupied by Owen Gwynedd, after his skilful retreat before Henry II.

GEORGE, ST. co. Gloucester.

P. T. Bristol (114) 2 m. E. Pop. 5334.

A parish in the hundred of Barton Regis; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 5*s.* 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.; patron (1829) H. Llewellyn, Esq. The church is a spacious and plain modern building, with a large square tower, seventy-two feet high. In the neighbourhood is a small dwelling-house, formerly a Roman Catholic chapel; it is still called St. Anthony's chapel.

GEORGE, ST., co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Cardiff (160) 6 m. W. Pop. 235.

A parish in the hundred of Dinas Powis, situated upon the river Elwy; living, a rectory in the diocese of Llandaff and province of Canterbury; valued in P. R. at 105*l.* 17*s.*; patron, the Trustees under the will of J. Llewellyn, Esq. Here are the ruins of a castle, and a venerable parish church, containing some very ancient monuments.

GEORGE-HAM, co. Devon.

P. T. Barnstaple (192) 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ m. NW b W.
Pop. 811.

A parish in the hundred of Braunton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 40*l.* 17*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to St. George; patron (1829) Sir A. Chichester, Bart.

GEORGE'S TOWN, shire of Perth, S.

A small village in the parish of Fortingal, containing military barracks. It is situated at the west end of Loch Rannoch.

GERARD'S-TOWN, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Navan (30) m. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Trevel and barony of Ratoath. An English colony formerly settled at this place.

GERMAINS, ST. co. Cornwall.

London 227 m. WSW. Pop. 2404. M. D. Frid. Fairs, May 28; and Aug. 1, for cattle. Memb. of Pt. 2.

A borough, market-town, and parish in the south division of the hundred of East, situated on an eminence near the river Tidi, a branch of the Lynher Creek. The town consists chiefly of one street, running, from the nature of the ground, nearly parallel with the roof of the church; and the greatest part of the inhabitants derive their support from fishing. It is governed by a portreeve, the only officer of the town, who is annually elected at a court-leet, held by the lord of the manor; he is also bailiff of the borough, and can make any house in it the prison of the person whom he arrests. It sends two members to Parliament; and the right of election is possessed by the proprietors of what are denominated the burgrave tenements, consisting of about sixty, although the number of voters is now said not to amount to more than twenty. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; patrons, the Dean and Canons of Windsor. The parish church, ded. to St. German, was formerly conventual, and now contains an episcopal choir, and the prebends' stalls. It is said to have been included within the body of a priory, founded by King Athelstan, and ded. to St. German, bishop of Auxerre, a famous preacher, and opposer of the Pelagian heresy; for which purpose he came over into Britain with Lupus, bishop of Troy, in 429. It is a fine old specimen of Saxon architecture, consisting of two aisles and a nave; the west front has two towers, which evidently have been both octagonal, although one is now square, and surmounted with embrasures; between these is the entrance, an ancient door-way, with a fine circular receding arch. This church was formerly of greater extent than at present, the chancel having fallen down in 1592; it is even now the principal object worth notice in the town. St. German's was formerly a bishop's see, that of Bodmin having been translated hither in 981, when the bishop's house and cathedral church there were destroyed by fire. The remains of the palace are discoverable in a farm-house in this parish about a mile distant from the town. Here is a free grammar-school, supported by the Eliot family, who have a handsome seat, called Port Eliot, situated near the church, and surrounded by delightful grounds, the beauty of which is greatly heightened by a part of the river Tiddi, which spreads itself into a lake at the north front of the house. This parish is the largest in the county, its circumference being more than twenty miles. The farmers here greatly excel in the cultivation of turnips.

GERMAN'S, WEEK, co. Devon.

P. T. Oakhampton (195) 11 m. W b S. Pop. 321.

A parish in the hundred of Lifton; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter, of the certified value of 6*l.*; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Bristol.

GERMOT, ST. co. Cornwall.

P. T. Holstone (272) 5 m. W b N. Pop. 830.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Kerrier; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of St. Breage, in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 27*l.* 3*s.*; patronage with St. Breage vicarage.

GERNONSTOWN, co. Louth, Leinster, I.

P. T. Castlebellingham (43) m. Pop. with Kilsaran.

A parish in the barony of Ardee, situated upon the bay of Dundalk; living, a rectory in the diocese and archdiocese of Armagh, united to the rectory of Kilsaran; patron, J. M. Clintock, Esq.

GERNONSTOWN, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Slane (38) 23 m. W. Pop. 798.

A parish in the barony of Upper Slane; living, a rectory in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh; producing, by commutation for tithes, 230*l.* 15*s.* 24*d.* It is united to the rectories of Stackallen and Dunmoe.

GERRANS, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Tregony (253) 8 m. SW b S. Pop. 732.

A parish in the east division of the hundred of Powder; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; church ded.

o St. Gurons; patron, the Bishop of Exeter.

HESTINGTHORPE, co. Essex.

P. T. Castle-Headingham (17) 3 m. NE. Pop. 691.

A parish in the hundred of Hincford; livings, a rectory and vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. the former 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; the latter 7*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 146*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary. The rectory is a sinecure; patron (1829) J. T. H. Elwes, Esq.

GIANT'S CAUSEWAY, co. Antrim, Ulster, I.

A singular basaltic promontory on the coast of the county; it is a part of a stratum of basalt, which crops out in the cliffs of this singular coast, and here dips into the sea. The major part of the county is underlaid by basalt, and the construction generally is remarkable, the surface dipping from the sea towards the centre, in the form of a basin. The entire northern shore, as well as the island of Rathlin, is of basaltic formation, and even at some distance inland columnar basalt appears. The various kinds which present themselves are the unformed species in the Whyndykes, a sort of natural wall, passing in a perpendicular position through the strata; secondly, the Basaltic Onion, a rock of spherical form, aptly called onion-shaped, and from which a third species, columnar basalt, in its incipient state, is frequently found protruding. They are all accompanied with augite, calcareous spar, steatite and zeolite, and in the cliffs is found a light porous substance, called cinders, which will float upon water. These are the most remarkable mineralogical specimens found here. The basaltic area of Antrim is said to be more extensive than any yet discovered, although this singularly-formed substance occurs in various parts of the world, but chiefly in the regions of extinct volcanoes, as in Iceland, the Isle of Bourbon, &c. The basaltes of Sicily and of Germany are columnarized but imperfectly; that of Staffa in Scotland more perfectly; but the columns of the Giant's Causeway possess an accuracy of formation, an exactness and closeness in position, which, the variety of angles being considered, could not be attained by art. The portion of the vast mineralogical district to which the name of Giant's Causeway is expressly applied, consists of three distinct piers or quays, extending from the foot of a precipitous cliff, full 100 feet above the sea. The chief pier may be seen extending to a length of 1000 feet at low-water, the other to a less distance; its miraculous structure instantly strikes the visiter who walks over it. A surface is presented paved, with polygonally-formed stone, so closely united and fitted together, that it is a matter of difficulty to introduce the blade of a knife into the interstices, or joints. The flooring is formed of the summits of the mass of columns, apparently buried in the ground, or built up in the sea; and although the blocks forming the surface possess every number of angles from three to nine, yet the surface is most exactly contiguous. The flooring, as it may be termed, swells into an apex called the Honeycomb, near the centre of the Causeway, and here one pillar is seen of a triangular form. The pillars may be denominated prisms of an unequal number of sides, none having been found to exceed nine, and most of them possessing six. Each column is composed of joints, the articulation of which has excited the admiration of mankind, and the astonishment of the most learned philosophers. A joint is a polygonal block, whose angles are sharp and unworn. If the upper surface be concave the under is found to be convex, the form of one always determining the shape of the other; and the angles of the inferior joints sometimes overlap those of the upper so closely and tenaciously, that the separation is usually attended with the fracture of the stone. These singularly-formed joints have another curious character; the concave surface bears the impression of a circle, inscribed within a polygon, caused by the resting of a ball upon it in a liquid state; and the same ball appears to describe the circle upon the opposite surface by its protrusion. The polygons, throughout the Causeway, are irregular; but the contiguous sides of the columns being always equal, no space, however small, is left unoccupied. The Causeway is a continuation of an extensive stratum of columnar basalt, the most accurately crystallized in the world, which may be traced up the cliffs to the east, where it culminates at an elevation of 250 feet above the sea, and ultimately emerges at Portmore. Though more curious to examine, it is less magnificent to behold, than the stratum called the Organs; and its depth, or rather the height of its columns, does not much exceed thirty feet. To see the formation of the cliffs, the visitor should sail along the coast for a distance of about ten miles. In this voyage many curiosities are viewed. The columns, called the Chimney-tops, which are said to have been mistaken by one of the ill-fated Armada vessels, for the towers of some castle, overlooking the colonnades of a vast city, which the continued ranges of lofty columns resemble from the sea, and caused the wreck of the vessel. Basaltic islands are here and there detached from the shore, and present grotesque forms. But probably the most interesting objects to the mere visiter of these wild and wonderful scenes, are the caves with which the cliffs are penetrated. Dunkerry Cave is only accessible from the sea; it is formed in the rude basalt, and probably penetrates a mile within the land; Port Coon may be entered from the land side, and is also of rude basalt, and both resemble the lofty and narrow lateral aisles of some great abbey, being lofty, pointed, and gloomy. They are less interesting than Fingal's Cave, in Staffa, where the basalt is columnar, but afford a much more picturesque retrospect. As a subject of curiosity, the Causeway and its accompanying scenery are unequalled—as a field for the exercise of philosophic inquiry, inexhaustible. The theories put forward to explain the formation of basalt, are called the Neptunian, which attributes to it an aqueous origin; the Vulcanic, an igneous origin; and the Volcanic, which decides it to be the product of a volcano. When it was not known that basalt existed elsewhere, it was natural that the philosopher should endeavour to investigate the origin of so remarkable a production; but since it has been found to be a substance common to most countries of Europe, the origin of its formation may cease to excite our wonder in any greater degree than that of any other part of the creation.

GIANTS' GRAVE, co. Antrim, Ulster, I.

A townland in the parish of Glenavy and barony of Massareen, the correct name of which is Pitmave. A collection of human bones was found here of enormous dimensions.

GIDDING, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Stow Market (69) 7 m. W. Pop. 114.

A parish in the hundred of Thedwestry; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 98*l.* 18*s.*; patron, the Corporation of Ipswich.

GIDDING, GREAT, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Stilton (75) 5 m. SW. Pop. 496.

A parish in the hundred of Leightonstone; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 5*s.* 2*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 114*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) Lord Soudes.

GIDDING, LITTLE, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Stilton (75) 5½ m. SW b S. Pop. 61.

A parish in the hundred of Leightonstone; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 128*l.*; church ded. to St. John; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GIDDING, STEEPLE, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Stilton (75) 5½ m. SW b S. Pop. 93.

A parish in the hundred of Leightonstone; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 17*s.* 8½*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) J. Heathcote, Esq.

GIDLEY, co. Devon.

P. T. Oakhampton (195) 7½ m. SE b E. Pop. 121.

A parish in the hundred of Wonford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 19*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 75*l.*; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron (1829) Henry Rat-tray, Esq.

GIFFORD, shire of Haddington, S.

P. T. Haddington (10) 1 m. S. Pop. with Pa. Fairs, 1st Tues. in June and October.

A village in the parish of Yester, where the first flax-mill was established, and where a considerable manufacture of linen is carried on. There are also extensive bleaching-grounds.

GIGGLESWICK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Settle (235) 1 m. W b N.
Pop. of Pa. 2817. Of To. 746.

A parish and township in the west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross, situated at the base of a limestone rock, rising 300 feet above the level of the village, the summit of which being approached by a winding ascent, commands a very fine prospect. About a mile hence, is a remarkable ebbing and flowing well of beautiful water; it sometimes ebbs and flows three or four times in an hour, and at others not more than the same number of times in the course of a day; the extremity, from rise to fall, is about half a yard. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 217. 3s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 75*l*.; patrons (1829) J. Coulthurst, and J. Hartley, Esqrs., alternately. The church, dedicated to St. Alkald, is a handsome and spacious structure. Here is the famous free grammar-school, founded by Edward VI., in 1553, which admits pupils from all parts of the globe, the number being only limited for want of room; and to it are attached six scholarships, at Christ College, Cambridge. The father of the celebrated Archdeacon Paley was upwards of fifty years master of this seminary. In this neighbourhood are several good quarries of slate and stone.

GIGHA, shire of Argyll, S.

Pop. 373.

An island and parish (with the Isle of Cara united) off the coast, and forming part of the district of Kintyre, from which it is separated by a channel, three miles and a half across. It is seven miles in length and three in breadth, with a bold and rocky coast, indented by several bays and creeks, affording secure anchorage for small vessels. The surface is plain and fertile, except towards the west and in the centre, where it rises into mountains of great height. The coast abounds with fish, particularly various kinds of shell-fish; and there are extensive banks of a fine sand, much in request for the manufacture of glass. Among the rocks many curious caverns and several cairns, marking the scenes of battle between Fingal's heroes and the sons of the kings of Lochlin, are met with here. The living is in the presbytery of Kintyre and synod of Argyll; patrons, the Duke of Argyll, and Macneil of Gigha, alternately. Gaelic is the language in common use.

GIGULUM, shire of Argyll, S.

A small uninhabited island, lying between those of Gigha and Cara, off the coast of Kintyre. Large ships may moor in this sound by iron rings fixed in the rocks here.

GILBERDIKE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Howden (180) 2 m. E b N. Pop. 610.

A township in the parish of Eastrington and wapentake of Howdenshire.

GILBERTSTOWN. See Bendenstown.GILCAH, or GILCO, co. Waterford, Munster, I.

P. T. Carrick-on-Suir (110) 6 m. SE.
Pop. 826.

A parish in the barony of Upper Third, situated upon the river Clolough; living, a rectory inappropriate and vicarage in the diocese of Lismore and province of Cashel; yielding, by commutation for tithes, 148*l*. 7s. 1*d*.; of which the vicar receives 44*l*. per annum. It is united to the vicarages of Dunhill and Newcastle; patron, the Corporation of Waterford.

GILCRUX, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Cockermouth (300) 5 m. N b W.
Pop. 377.

A parish in Allerdale ward, below Darwent, situated on the south side of the river Ellen; the houses are disposed in a triangular form, and opposite to almost every one rises a fine spring, which, when united, form a considerable stream. In a field, in the village, is also a spring of salt water, called Tom Tack. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle; valued in K. B. 5*l*. 14s. 2*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 90*l*. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, was formerly rectorial; patron, the Bishop of Carlisle. Here is a freeschool, endowed with 21*l*. per annum, arising from 800*l*., left in 1799, by Joseph Tordiff, for the education of twenty-four poor children. This parish abounds with coal and lime; freestone is also to be obtained here.

GILDEN-WELLS, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Worksop (146) 5 m. N. W. Pop. 83.

A township in the parish of Loughton-en-le-Morthen, partly in the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the west division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill.

GILDERSOME, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Leeds (180) 5 m. SW b W. Pop. 1502.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Batley and wapentake of Morley; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of York, not in charge.

GILES, ST., co. Devon.

P. T. Great Torrington (191) 3½ m. E b S.
Pop. 786.

A parish in the hundred of Fremington; living, a rectory with that of Black Torrington, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; patronage with Black Torrington rectory.

GILES, ST. ON-THE-HEATH, co. Devon.

P. T. Launceston (211) 5 m. N b E.
Pop. 301.

A parish in the hundred of Black Torrington.

ton; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; certificate value 42*l.* 18*s.* 8½*d.*; patron (1829) C. Rashleigh, Esq.

GILESTONE, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

(173) 6 m. S b W. Pop. 77

A parish in the hundred of Cowbridge, situated in a retired district, and upon the Bristol Channel. The living is a discharged rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; valued in P. R. at 63*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.*

GILFORD, co. Down, Ulster, I.

Dublin 82 m. N. Pop. with Pa. Fairs, June 21, and Nov. 21.

A post and fair-town in the parish of Tullylish and barony of Iveagh, agreeably and beautifully situated upon the river Bann. There is a considerable manufacture of linen cloth conducted here; and several extensive bleach-greens. Here is a strong chalybeate spa. The family of Meade take the title of Baron from this place.

GILL, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (283) 6 m. W. Pop. with Motherby, 112.

A hamlet in the parish of Greystock, Leathward.

GILL-STREET, or GELL-STREET, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

P. T. Carmarthen (218) adjacent. Pop. 2348.

A ward in the county of the borough and parish of Carmarthen.

GILLIMOOR, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Helmesley (222) 6¼ m. NE b N. Pop. 195.

A township in the parish of Kirkby Moorside and wapentake of Ryedale.

GILLING, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Richmond (233) 4 m. N b E. Pop. of Pa. 2002. Of To. 921.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Gilling West, of considerable antiquity, which gives name to two wapentakes; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 23*l.* 11*s.* 5½*d.*; church ded. to St. Agatha; patron (1829) John Wharton, Esq. Gillingwood Hall was formerly the residence of the Wharton family; it was destroyed by fire about a century ago, and the site is now occupied by a farm-house. In this parish is a very extensive quarry of freestone. A castle formerly existed here, of which there are now no visible remains. King Oswy was murdered here, and Queen Ethelfleda founded a monastery in this neighbourhood, which was afterwards destroyed by the Danes.

GILLING, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Helmesley (222) 5 m. S. Pop. of Pa. 329. Of To. 168.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Ryedale; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to Holy Cross; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge. Gilling Castle, the seat of C. G. Fairfax, Esq., is a pleasant residence, seated on an eminence at the west side of the village.

GILLING EAST, N. R. co. York.

Pop. 7180.

A wapentake, situated on the northern side of the county, containing fifteen parishes, including the town of Catterick, three chapelries, and twenty-five townships.

GILLING WEST, N. R. co. York.

Pop. 17,812.

A wapentake, situated at the north-western point of the county, containing nineteen parishes, one chapelry, and thirty-eight townships.

GILLINGHAM, co. Dorset.

Pop. 8672.

A liberty in Shaston division, at the northern extremity of the county, containing two parishes.

GILLINGHAM, co. Dorset.

P. T. Shaftsbury (101) 4 m. NW b W. Pop. 3050. Fairs, Trinity Mond. and Sept. 12, for bullocks, horses, and sheep.

A parish in the liberty of Gillingham, Shaston division, of greater extent than any other in the county, being forty miles in circumference; situated on the river Stour, over which there are two stone bridges. In the neighbourhood are some silk-mills, but the place is principally famous for its grazing-lands and dairies. The living is a vicarage with the curacies of East Stour and West Stour, in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*; patron, the Bishop of Salisbury. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, a very ancient edifice; it possesses a large freeschool of early foundation. About half a mile hence formerly stood a palace of the Saxon and Norman kings. Here also Edmund Ironside vanquished the Danes in 1016. In this neighbourhood was formerly White Hart Forest, so called from the favourite white stag of Henry I., which having been accidentally killed by T. De-la-Lynde, a heavy impost was laid on his estate, which, to the present day, pays an annual fine to the Treasury, called White Hart Silver. It was disafforested and enclosed in the reign of Charles I., to the great dissatisfaction of the peasantry.

GILLINGHAM, co. Kent.

P. T. Chatham (30) 1¼ m. E b N. Fair, East-Mon. Pop. 6363.

A parish in the hundred of Chatham and Gillingham, lathe of Aylesford, pleasantly situated on a rising ground, commanding a fine view of the Thames and Medway, in every direction. The streets are wide, and from the sloping nature of the ground, remarkably clean. The greater part of the inhabitants are employed in the dock-yard at Chatham, and the remainder in different trades. The whole of the neighbourhood is well fortified, as being the outposts of the arsenal of Chatham. Near Brompton, are some extensive barracks for infantry and marines, where, in time of war, it is customary to have an encampment of militia and regulars. The living is a vicarage, with that of Uphery and the curacy of Lydsing, and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 13*s.* 11*d.*; patron, Brannenose College, Oxford. The church, ded. to St. Mary Magdalen, is a spacious building, consisting of a nave, aisles, and chancel; on each side of the latter is a chapel, and at the west end is a square tower. In this church are several ancient monuments; and in a niche formerly stood the image of the famed lady of Gillingham, to whom many pilgrimages were made. The archiepiscopal palace formerly stood on the south side of the churchyard; the only remaining part of which is a building, said to have been the hall, but now converted into a barn. Gillingham, from its proximity to the Medway, was much exposed to the incursions of the Danes; and it is mentioned in history, that six hundred noblemen, who came over in the retinue of Alfred and Edward, were here murdered by Earl Godwin. William Adams, an enterprising seaman, and the first Englishman who effectually discovered Japan, was a native of this place; he commenced his voyage to that island in 1598. William de Gillingham, a Benedictine monk of Canterbury, was also born here, and gained great celebrity for the history of Britain, which he wrote in the reign of Richard II.

GILLINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Beccles (100) 1 m. N b W. Pop. 369.

A village, consisting of the united parishes of All Saints and St. Mary, in the hundred of Clavering; livings, two dis. rectories, with those of Winston and Windale, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B., the former 5*l.*, the latter 5*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; patron (1829) Wolf Lewis, Esq. The church, ded. to St. Mary, now the only remaining one, is a small building, with a square tower rising from the centre, ornamented near the top with a series of semicircular arches. The church, ded. to All Saints, was taken down in 1748, but the tower in ruins, and covered with ivy, is a very pleasing object.

GILLMANBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnard Castle (216) 5 m. SW b W. Pop. 175.

A township in the parish of Bowes and wapentake of Gilling West.

GILLMORTON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Lutterworth (80) 3 m. NE b N. Pop. 718.

A parish in the hundred of Guthlaxton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 17*l.* 14*s.* 9½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Rev. D. J. Burdett.

GILLTOWN, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

• P. T. Kilcullen (26) 2 m. SE. Pop. 1041.

A parish in the barony of South Naas; living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin; producing, by commutation for tithes, 69*l.* 4*s.* 7½*d.*; and united to the curacy of Tubber. No church or glebe.

GILMERTON, shire of Edinburgh, S.

Edinburgh 4 m. S. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Liberton, inhabited by persons employed in the neighbouring limestone quarries, in the collieries, and in carting coals to the metropolis. At the northern extremity of the place are several apartments cut in the solid rock, by a blacksmith named Paterson, about a century ago, also a curious well.

GILROE, co. Leicester.

Pop. 5.

An extra-parochial liberty in the hundred of West-Goscote.

GILSTON, or GOLDESTON, co. Hertford.

P. T. Sawbridgeworth (25) 3½ m. W. Pop. 213.

A parish in the hundred of Braughin; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.*; patron, the Bishop of London.

GIMINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. North-Walsham (123) 4 m. N. Pop. 300.

A parish in the hundred of North Erpingham; living, a rectory, with that of Trunch, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 11*s.* 10½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, Catherine Hall, Cambridge.

GIPPING, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Stow-Market (89) 1 m. NE b N. Pop. with Stowmarket hamlet, 107.

A parish in the hundred of Stow; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. at 4*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.*; patron (1829) C. Tyrrell, Esq.

GIRLEY, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Athboy (30) 2½ m. N. Pop. 1374.

A parish in the barony of Upper Kells; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh; producing, by commutation for tithes, 203*l.* 1*s.* 7*d.*, the lay impropriator deducting 101*l.* 10*s.* 9½*d.* It forms part of the union of Athboy.

GIRSBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (149) 8 m. WNW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Burgh-upon-Bane and east division of the wapentake of Wragg, parts of Lindsey. Here is a handsome modern seat, surrounded by delightful pleasure-grounds.

GIRSBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Yarm (237) 6½ m. SW b W. Pop. 85.

A township in the parish of Sockburn and wapentake of Allertonshire, seated on the south side of the river Tees, over which the inhabitants have to cross in boats to their parish church.

GIRTFORD, co. Bedford.

• P. T. Biggleswade (43) 4 m. NNW.
• Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Sandy and hundred of Biggleswade.

GIRTHON, shire of Kirkcudbright, S.

P. T. Gatehouse (101) 2 m. S. Pop. 1895.

A parish, twenty miles in length, about four in breadth, and including the populous village of Gatehouse, which is seated on the banks of the river Fleet. To the northward the surface is bleak and hilly, but the remainder presents a pleasing level abundantly fertile. It contains several lakes well stocked with fish, and game of various kinds is plentiful in the extensive natural wood of Castramont. The living is in the presbytery of Kirkcudbright, and synod of Galloway; patron, the Crown. The entire parish belongs to the Murrays of Cally, a princely mansion on the river Fleet, below Gatehouse.

GIRTON, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Cambridge (50) 3 m. NW b W.
Pop. 320.

A parish in the hundred of North Stow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; val. in K. B. 18l. 4s. 4½d.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Sir St. V. Cotton, Bart.

GIRTON, or GRETTON, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Tuxford (137) 7 m. SE b E. Pop. 182.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Newark; living a curacy in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York.

GIRVAN, shire of Ayr, S.

Edinburgh 97 m. SW. Pop. 4490.

A seaport, burgh of barony, post-town, and parish in the district of Carrick, having a commodious harbour formed by the conflux of the river Girvan with the Irish Sea. The town is well-built and chiefly inhabited by persons employed in the manufacture of cotton, which has of late years considerably increased. It is governed by two bailiffs and ten councillors; but, till 1785, the privilege of electing magistrates was never exercised, though its charter existed long before the reign of William III. The parish stretches about nine miles along the Atlantic Ocean, and is on an average four miles in breadth. Two-thirds of its extent afford excellent pasture for sheep, and the rest is well cultivated and very productive in corn. Limestone, gypsum, and whinstone, are obtained in abundance, and there are indications of coal in various parts of the parish. Considerable quantities of salmon are caught in the river. The living is in the presbytery of Ayr and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, the Crown.

GISBURN, W. R. co. York.

London 221 m. Pop. of Pa. 2530. Of Township 690. M. D. Mon. Fairs, East. Mon.; Mon. fortnight aft. East.; Mon. month aft. East.; Sat. aft. Mon. month from East. for horned cattle; Mon. five weeks aft. East. for pedlery; Sept. 18 and 19, for horned cattle and pedlery.

A market-town, parish, and township, in the west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross. The town is neat, pleasant, and airy, and seated upon the river Ribble. It possesses no manufactures or particular trades, but the neighbourhood consists of rich meadows, where immense flocks and herds are fattened for different markets. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; val. in K. B. 11l. 6s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 120l.; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a very ancient structure. Gisburn Park, the seat of Lord Ribblesdale, is situated in a very delightful part of the parish, near the confluence of the Ribble and Stockbeck. The mansion contains a number of excellent portraits, among which is one of Sir Oliver Cromwell, by Sir Peter Lely. In the park is a herd of wild cattle, descendants of that race which formerly peopled the great forests of Lancashire; they are white all over, except the nose, which is black, rather mischievous, but breed with tame cattle.

GISBURN FOREST, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (210) 10½ m. W b S. Pop. 457.

A township in the parish of Gisburn and west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross.

GISLEHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Lowestoff (114) 4½ m. SW b S.
Pop. 222.

A parish in the hundred of Mutford and Lothingland; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 3l. 6s. 8d.; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church, ded. to the Holy Trinity, is an ancient structure, both the body and chancel of which are thatched; it has a steeple, containing four bells.

GISLINGHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Eye (81) 5 m. W b S. Pop. 620.

A parish in the hundred of Hartismere; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 26l. 1s. 5½d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Nathaniel Collyer, Esq.

GISSING, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Diss (80) 4 m. NNE. Pop. 544.

A parish in the hundred of Diss; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 14l. 6s. 5½d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir W. R. Kempe, Bart.

GITTESHAM, co. Devon.

P. T. Honiton (148) 3 m. SW b W.
Pop. 351.

A parish in the hundred of East Budleigh; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 21l. 8s. 11½d.; patron (1829) the Rev. T. Pitt

GIVENDALE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Rippon (212) 2 m. SE. Pop. 31.

A township in the parish, and within the liberty of Rippon."

GLADSMUIR, shire of Haddington, S.

P. T. Haddington (10) 3½ m. W. Pop. 1023.

A parish containing nearly 6000 acres, an including the villages of Gladsmuir, Cotts and Trabrowne. It is bounded on the north by the Firth of Forth, and on the south by the river Tyne, the surface rising gradually from the banks of each to a ridge of barren moor, whereon the church is placed. The entire parish abounds with coal, of which several mines are now open. The living is in the presbytery of Haddington and synod of Lothian and Tweeddale; patrons, alternately, the Crown, and the Earl of Hoptown. George Heriot, the founder of the celebrated hospital in Edinburgh, was born here.

GLAMMIS, shire of Forfar, S.

Edinburgh 52 m. N. Pop. 2000. Fairs, 1st Wed. in May; after May 20; and after Nov. 22.

A small town and parish; the former comprising what is termed the old and new towns, in which the manufacture of linen has been introduced to great advantage. The parish, which includes six other villages, is twelve miles in length, from one to five in breadth, and lies principally in the fertile vale of Strathmore, though it extends into the Sidlaw hills. It is watered by Loch Forfar, and the rivers Dean and Kerbet, and contains quarries of excellent freestone and blue slate. The living is in the presbytery of Forfar and synod of Angus and Mearns; patron, the Earl of Strathmore, to whom Glamis gives the title of Baron, and whose venerable castle and chief residence in Scotland, which was formerly a royal palace, stands pleasantly on the banks of the Dean. In this parish are two curious obelisks, on which are carved various symbols, in allusion to the murder of King Malcolm, by Macbeth. On the top of a hill in the neighbourhood, are the remains of an encampment, termed Denoon Castle, encompassed with a lofty rampart 340 yards in circuit, entered from the south-east and north-west, and traces of buildings are still visible within the area.

GLAMORGAN, co. of, SW.

N to S. 26 m. E to W. 48 m. No. of Acres 326,690. Hundreds 10. Borough 1. Market-Towns 8. City 1. Parishes 118. Pop. 101,737. Memb. of Pt. 2. Diocese of St. David's and Llandaff, and Province of Canterbury.

One of the six counties into which South Wales is divided. Its form is very irregular, and the surface much varied. Its boundaries are, on the north, the great mountains of Brecon; on the east, the river Rumney; and the Bristol Channel encloses it upon the west and south. The north and north-east districts are altogether mountainous, wild, and rocky; the south is level, fertile, much improved and beautified, and is known generally by the name of the Vale of Glamorgan, although not included between hills, but stretching directly from the base of the mountains to the sea. This rich and beautiful plain is sometimes, and not undeservedly, styled the garden of Wales. The mail-coach road from London to Milford passes through the whole length of the vale, and travellers enjoy on this route a noble and extensive view, not only of this rich and picturesque county but also of the graceful windings of the shore, the broad expanse of the Bristol Channel, with the hills of Devon and of Somerset rising from its surface in the distance. Few countries in the principality present a scene equally extended or sublime. The most northern of the mountains possess but little pasture adapted to the feeding of black cattle, but sustain large flocks of sheep; luxuriant woods clothe the sides of many, and overhang glens and vales of the most romantic description; the soil consists of a black peat, interspersed occasionally with a brown gravelly earth, varying little from rubble stone. The little valleys owe their fertility to the presence of a rich loam, which produces excellent crops of corn, and supplies verdant and sheltered pastures; and in the great vale, as it is styled, the soil though varied, is deep and rich, and the climate remarkable for its salubrity and mild temperature; myrtles, magnolias, and other delicate plants grow here unprotected in the open air. The substratum of the soil generally is stratified limestone of the lias kind, which crops out on the seashore in the noble cliffs of Dunraven, and at Lotherndown. The sea-shore, between Cardiff and Portkerry, possesses the advantage of a delightful sandy beach, from which rises a perpendicular cliff of stratified limestone of secondary formation, containing vast quantities of organic remains, and broken into deep and lofty caverns. Those at Tresyllon are the best known; and in one of them is the Fairy Arch, with whose history many legends are connected. The bays of Swansea and Oxwich, besides the estuary of the Burry river, are the most spacious sinuosities of the coast, but harbours are formed in other places, as at Penarth, Portkerry, and elsewhere. Almost all the rivers of the county derive their origin from the Breconshire hills; there the Tame takes its rise, and running southward falls into the Bay of Swansea; theoughor is, so far as it runs, the boundary between Carmarthen and this county. The Neath river also has its fountain in Brecon. The Avon lies wholly within this county, as well as the Llanry and Ogmor, the latter of which flows through Bridgend. The Taff rises north of Merthyr Tydvil; and after a meandering course passes the elegant town of Cardiff, and falls into the mouth of the Severn. The Rumney, which has been already named as the county boundary on the east, runs nearly parallel to the Taff, and empties itself into the Severn's mouth also, at the distance of a few miles only from Pennarth Harbour. The varieties of fish found in these rivers resemble those common to most of the rivers of Wales, but the Severn is a species peculiar to the rivers of this country. Near to the town of Caerphilly is the famous Pont-y-prydd, thrown across the river Taef, which enjoyed the merit of having the most spacious stone arch in the kingdom until the erection of Chester-Dee bridge in 1830. The span of Pont-y-prydd is but 140, while that of its rival is 200 feet. Testaceous fish are caught in quantities along the sea-coast of the county, but deep sea-fishing is by no means encouraged or pursued in proportion to the extent of the line of coast. The agricultural productions are not different from those common to other counties, but owing to the dense population in the mining districts, not sufficient to supply the home consumption. The horses are rather small but very hardy; the black cattle are improved by crosses with English breeds, and the sheep are larger than the breed of Breconshire. But the agricultural character of the county has become secondary to its mineral reputation, and the extensive mineralogical regions of the county have within the last fifty years considerably increased the population, and augmented their wealth. The mineral field, commencing at Pontipool, in Monmouthshire, extends 100 miles in a westerly direction, entering Glamorganshire, with a breadth of about twenty miles, from Risga to Llangaddor, to the north of Merthyr-Tydvil. The vein thence passes Llantrissant, and crossing Swansea Bay, from Margam to the Mumbles, includes the entire of the bay within the great mineralogical basin, and then bisects the promontory of Gower. The northern boundary stretches westward towards Llandibby, and encloses all Glamorganshire towards the north, with the parts of Brecon and Carmarthen counties to the north and west. It takes an abrupt turn southward to Kidwelly, and diminishes the breadth of the basin to an interval of a few miles only. All the coal and ironstone of South Wales may be said to recline within this great concavity, and being placed in parallel strata around the sides and along the bottom, exhibit a remarkable regularity, are found distributed through the whole county, and afford greater facilities for working than any other mines in the kingdom. The minerals are found at depths sufficiently small, and the unequal surface presents infinite opportunities of cheap and ready extraction. The adits piercing the sides of the hills, carry off the waters from the works without further cost or trouble, and the valleys conduct them to the larger rivers. These great natural advantages have been attended with the success which must result from spirit and industry, in the management of them, and they have now placed Glamorganshire in the position of a great mining and manufacturing county, where trade and commerce are in a most healthy condition, and a dense population actively employed. The coal here is of various sorts. On the north-east side of the mineral basin, towards Pontipool, it is of a coaking quality; on the south and east it is bituminous, and on the west of Glamorganshire, of the non-flaming, or stone kind. The residue of the county rests upon limestone of various kinds, and interspersed with different minerals. The great limestone-bed forms the southern boundary of the basin, and continuing parallel to it, in a belt of a few miles in breadth, from the promontory of Gower on the west, which it occupies entirely, to Caerphilly, near the eastern county boundary. This species is usually termed the white limestone, not from the colour of the tone in its natural state, which is much varied, and affords black, white, and green marbles, but from the uncommon whiteness of the lime produced by its calcination. This lime is better adapted for agricultural uses than for the purposes of masonry, and is much preferred for whitewashing. Beds of calcareous freestone are found in the limestone district. The lias limestone of this county is much esteemed beyond that of other places for its property of becoming hard under water, which renders it a valuable submarine cement. The cliffs of Pinarthance Lavernac rest upon a deep bed of red silicious earth resembling tripoli. In this earth are found beds of gypsum, the finest yet discovered in Great Britain; and in the white limestone of Sully, lead ore, calamine, manganese, and copper, have also been discovered. The only mineral spring of value is at Swansea. The county is divided into ten hundreds, viz., Caerphilly Low Bridge, Dinas-Powis, Kibber, Llangwelach, Miskin, Neath, Newcastle, Ogmore, and Swansea. The chief towns and remarkable places are the ancient city of Llandaff, now a contemptible village; Caerdiff, the capital of the county, a handsome, neat, flourishing place, and a contributory borough; Swansea, the most prosperous town perhaps in South Wales; besides the market-towns of Cowbridge, Neath, Bridgend, Llantrissant, Caerphilly, (famous for its leaning tower), Loughor, and the populous town of Merthyr Tydvil. The chief iron-works, and probably the most extensive in Great Britain, are in the immediate vicinity of Merthyr Tydvil; there are others at Neath, Swansea, Aberdare, and Abernant. Extensive coal-fields are worked at Neath and Swansea; and the most extensive smelting-houses in Europe are established at the latter place, whither copper ore is imported from Ireland, North Wales, Cornwall, &c., for the purpose of being smelted. Tin plate manufactories are formed at Merlin Gruffyd and elsewhere. Coals constitute an article of continued and profitable export from several places; and limestone is exported in large quantities from the peninsula of Gower and elsewhere. The export of flags and marble for chimney-pieces gives employment to numbers; and the manufacture of coarse pottery at Ewenny and a few other districts, adds somewhat to the great variety of occupation. Woollen, soap, and other commodities are also manufactured in the county; and the timber trade is encouraged, as the best mode of employing the steep sides of many beautiful glens amongst the mountains, but the produce of all these is consumed at home. An improved and improving inland navigation assists in transporting the manufactures of the mountainous and inland districts to the sea-side, and its passage through the county, has given facilities to the agricultural interest of offering their produce cheaply and expeditiously at the most populous places. The Glamorganshire canal extends from Merthyr Tydvil to Caerdiff, a distance of twenty-five miles in a direct line that keeps parallel to the course of the Taff river. The Abefdare navigation is supplied from the Cyrian river, and unites with Glamorganshire canal at New Bridge. A canal commencing at the north-west end of the Aberdare railway, runs parallel to the Neath river to the town of Neath, and so opens communication with the noble bay of Swansea. Another canal unites the Brecon hill with Swansea bay, obeying the course the Tame river and passing the busy town of Swansea. The county returns one member to Parliament, and the boroughs of Caerdiff, Swansea, Neath, Cowbridge, Llantrissant, and Loughor, send a second. The name Glamorgan may be derived either from Glath-morganwg, the county of Morgan, or from More, the sea, from its marine position. Before the arrival of the Romans it was inhabited by the Silures, but upon the overthrow of Caractacus, they readily yielded to the power of that great nation. Neath was the Nidum, and Bridgend the Bovium of the Romans. British, Roman, and Norman antiquities lie scattered over the surface of the county. Many beautiful ecclesiastical remains adorn the landscape; those of Margam and Ewenny stand pre-eminent. Noble castles present their mouldering turrets in every direction, all now yielding in the merit of deep interest to the beautiful and perfect military residence at St. Donatts.

GLANBANE, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Tipperary (127) 8 m. N.W.
Pop. not specified.

A parish in the barony of Clanwilliam; living, a rectory in the diocese of Emly and archdiocese of Cashel, being a constituent part of the corps of the deanery of Emly.

GLANBETRY, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

P. T. Kenmare (230) m. Pop. 1821.

A parish in the barony of Iveragh; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Ard-fert and Aghadoc and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the rectories of Cahir and Killanear, and three other parishes; producing, by commutation for tithes, 180*l.* per annum; it possesses a church and parsonage; patron, the King. There is a poor-school here, under the patronage of Lord Headly.

GLADESTRY, co. Radnor, S. W.

P. T. Kington (155) 3 m. W. Pop. 355.

A parish in the hundred of Radnor, situated upon the river Gwyddel; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. Area of parish about 4000 acres.

GLANDORE, co. Cork, Munster, I.

A small but safe bay, on the coast of the barony of Carbery, at the extremity of which is seated a hamlet, surrounded by scenery of the most picturesque description. On the east side of the bay, copper-ore is found, and slate-quarries are worked here, from which a considerable export is made.

GLANEALY, co. Wicklow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Wicklow (32) 4 m. SW. Pop. 2214.

A village and parish, partly in the barony of Arklow, and partly in that of Newcastle; living, a chapelry in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin. Here is a spacious church, standing in a romantic situation, on the edge of a rivulet, and at the foot of a lofty and wooded hill. There are two poor-schools in the parish, one of which consists of sixty-seven pupils, the other of forty-four.

GLAN-EITHAN, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Newtown (175) 3 m. NE.
Pop. with Bettws.

A township in the parish of Bettws and hundred of Newtown.

GLANFORD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Clay (123) 1½ m. S.
Pop. with Bayfield, 93.

parish in the hundred of Holt; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Blakeney, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Martin; patronage with Blakeney rectory.

GLANFORD BRIDGE, or BRIGGE, co. Lincoln.

London 156 m. N b W. Pop. 1674.
M. D. Thurs. Fair, Aug. 5, for horses

A market-town, township, and chapelry, in the parish of Wrawby-with-Kettleby, and south division of the wapentake of Yarbrough, parts of Lindsey, situated on the banks of the river Ancholme, over which it has a small but strong stone bridge; this river is navigable from the Humber to Bishop-bridge, about ten miles above the town. The chief trade of this town is in corn, coals, and timber, which with Hull is very considerable. The living is a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Wrawby-with-Kettleby, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, of the clear yearly value of 14*l.*; patron, Clare Hall, Cambridge. The chapel, dedicated to St. Mary is a neat commodious building. The petty sessions are holden here. In this neighbourhood was formerly an hospital, subordinate to the abbey of Selby, Yorkshire, a monk of which house was master. No remains of this building are now visible.

GLANINAGH, co. Clare, Munster, I.

P. T. Ennistimon (103) 11 m. N. Pop. 406.

A parish in the barony of Burren, situated upon the southern coast of Galway Bay; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Kilfenora and archdiocese of Cashel, constituting a part of the corps of the treasurer-ship of Kilfenora.

GLANKEEN, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Burros-Heigh (94) m. Pop. 5661.

A parish in the barony of Kilnemanagh; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese and archdiocese of Cashel, the rectory being the corps of a prebend. The vicarage possesses a church and glebe-house.

GLANMIRE, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Cork (100) 5 m. NE. Pop. 2780.

A parish in the barony of Barrymore, divided into upper and lower, otherwise denominated Caherlog, and situated upon the Glanmire river, a tributary to the river Lee. The hamlet of Glanmire, which is adorned by a handsome church, with a spire, is placed in a sequestered glen, remarkable for its romantic situation. In its vicinity are many beautiful villas.

GLANORE, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Fermoy (112) m. Pop. with Ballyhea.

A parish in the barony of Fermoy; living, a rectory in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel, constituting part of the corps of the prebend of Ballyhea. The church is in Rathgogan parish.

GLANOGR, or GLINOGR, co. Limerick, Munster, I.

• P. T. Six-Mile-Bridge (130) 3 m. SW. Pop. 1610. Fairs, May 31, and Oct. 28.

A hamlet in the parish of Glanogra and barony of Small County; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Limerick and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the vicarage of Fedamore.

GLANTON, or GLENTON, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Mallow (103) 5 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Ballyclough and barony of Duhallow.

GLANTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Felton (299) 4 m. NW b N. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Felton and east division of Coquetdale ward.

GLANTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alnwick (308) 9 m. W b N. Pop. 474.

A township in the parish of Whittingham and north division of Coquetdale ward. Here is a presbyterian chapel, erected in 1786. Glanton House is a handsome seat in this neighbourhood, near to which, Glanton Pike rears its lofty head, and on it was formerly placed a beacon, used to alarm the country in times of danger. In 1716, several stone coffins and urns were found here; and also some weapons, supposed to have belonged to the ancient Britons.

GLANWORTH, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Mitchelstown (132) 5 m. SW.

Pop. of Pa. 8128. Of To. 842. Fairs, March 16; May 13; Aug. 10; Sept. 21; and Nov. 30.

An ancient corporate town, the privileges of which are now obsolete, in the parish of Glanworth, partly in Coddons and Clongibbons barony, but the greater part in that of Fermoy. It stands upon the river Panchon, over which a stone bridge is thrown at this place. The living is a rectory and prebend in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel, and united to four other benefices. It possesses a church, a glebe-house, and about four acres of land. There is a poor-school in the town of fifty-one boys and twenty-nine girls. Here are the ruins of a Dominican friary, founded by the Roches, in 1227, and the magnificent ruins of a castle, which appears to have been regularly and strongly fortified, even according to the modern system of circumvallation.

GLAPTHORNE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Oundle (81) 2 m. NW b N. Pop. 354.

A parish in the hundred of Wilbybrook; living, a dis. vicarage, with that of Cotterstock, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; church ded. to St. Leonard.

GLAPTON, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Nottingham (121) 4½ m. SSW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Clifton and north division of the wapentake of Rushcliffe.

GLAPWELL, co. Derby.

P. T. Mansfield (138) 5 m. NW. Pop. 110.

A township in the parish of Bolsover and hundred of Scarsdale.

GLASBURY, co. Brecon, S. W.

P. T. Hay (156) 4 m. SW. Pop. 1123.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Talgeuth, in Brecon county, and partly in the hundred of Paine's Castle, in the county of Radnor, situated upon the banks of the Wye, and including the most fertile land in Breconshire; living, a vicarage belonging to the diocese of Gloucester, and possessing a church and vicarage-house. The chapel of Felindre, in this parish, is in ruins, as well as the church of the adjoining parish of Aber Llyfni. The petty sessions for Talgeuth hundred were usually held here.

GLASCOED, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Usk (112) 4 m. SW b W. Pop. 201.

A hamlet in the parish and lower division of the hundred of Usk.

GLASCOTE, co. Warwick.

P. T. Tamworth (114) 1½ m. SE. Pop. with Bollhall, 414.

A township in the parish of Tamworth and Tamworth division of the hundred of Hemlingford.

GLAS-CWM, co. Radnor, S. W.

P. T. Bualt (173) 8 m. E. Pop. 549.

A parish in the hundred of Colwyn; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 62l. 2s. 5d.; patron, the Bishop of St. David's, who is also lord of the manor. The area of the parish covers about 4000 acres, divided between the township of Dreweil and Faenor Glas. Here are the wells of Blaen Eddu, efficacious in curing cutaneous diseases. In the year 1806, a number of silver pieces, of the reign of King William III., were discovered here, in a small hillock resembling a mole-hill.

GLASFORD, shire of Lanark, S.

P. T. Strathaven (11) 3 m. N.E. b. N.
Pop. 1501.

A parish in the Middle ward, eight miles in length and two in breadth, the soil of which is very productive though stony. Here is a manufacture of cotton. The living is in the presbytery of Hamilton and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, Lady Montgomery. The church was built in 1633. Glasford gave the title of Baron to the family of Abercrombie, now extinct.

GLASGOW, shire of Lanark, S.

Edinburgh 43 m. W. b. S. Pop. of City 72,765. Of Suburbs 76,278. Total 147,043.
Memb. of Pt. with Renfrew, Rutherglen, and Dumbarton, I.

A large and important city, which may be considered as the metropolis and grand emporium of the west of Scotland. It is situated in the Nether ward of Lanarkshire, on the north bank of the river Clyde, here navigable, and affording the advantage of maritime communication for the purposes of commerce. This is one of the most ancient places in North Britain, as its existence may be traced to the middle of the sixth century, when St. Mungo, or Kentigern, founded here the see of a bishop, and erected a cathedral, in the neighbourhood of which numbers of people gradually settled, and the buildings became numerous and considerable. About 1172, William I., surnamed the Lion, king of Scotland, erected Glasgow into a burgh, and the privileges, granted by his charter, were confirmed and extended by his royal successors. James II., in 1450, constituted the city and barony of Glasgow a regality, at the request of the bishop, who endeavoured to strengthen his authority over his tenants, vassals, and the inhabitants in general, by bestowing the office of baillie of the regality on some of the most powerful of the nobility. For a considerable period, the office was held by the dukes of Lennox, who, in 1621, obtained a confirmation of the appointment by an absolute grant from the bishop; but subsequently resigned it to the crown, and till the revolution the baillies were appointed by the sovereign. In 1611, a most ample charter was granted by James VI. (of Scotland) erecting the city into a royal burgh, to be holden by the tenure of free burgage under the crown; and in 1636, Charles I. bestowed additional privileges, confirming the right of electing a baillie for the river Clyde, vested with maritime, civil, and criminal jurisdiction, within his district; and this grant was ratified by act of Parliament, in 1661, and again in 1690, with the addition of further privileges. By this last act, the city council acquired the power of nominating and choosing their magistrates and other municipal officers, as fully and freely as the city of Edinburgh, or any other royal burgh. The government of Glasgow is vested in a provost and three baillies, a dean of guild, a deacon-convenor, and a treasurer, with a common council, consisting of thirteen merchant-councillors, and twelve trades-councillors. The chief magistrate is by courtesy, styled Lord Provost; and he is head of the police of the city, president of the corporation, and a justice of the peace within the liberties of the Burgh, by virtue of his office. The baillies, whose office corresponds with that of aldermen, hold a court every week, for the summary decision of causes relative to sums under 20s. sterling. The revenues of the city are under the control of the council. They are derived from certain duties on goods or merchandise, imported or exported, from the rents of lands, and from other sources; and the annual amount has been rated at 16,060*l*. From these funds are defrayed the expenses of lighting, paving, and cleaning the streets, and various charges connected with the government of the city. The police is said to be extremely strict; and in 1789 a bridewell was established, for the custody and punishment of petty criminals. Glasgow sends one member to the House of Commons. The principal part of the city stands in a plain, on the north of the river Clyde, and the buildings extend to its border. Among the suburbs of Glasgow, are Anderston, Finniestown, Camlachie, and Bridgetown, north of the Clyde; and Hutcheson's Town, Gorbals, and Tradestown, on the south; and with these last, a communication is preserved by two handsome bridges of stone, and one of wood-work. The general plan of the city is regular, the principal streets meeting in the centre, and the houses have a noble and elegant appearance. The main street, under different appellations, extends from east to west, through the entire length of the city. Eastward of the cross, it is named the Gallowgate; and westward, the Trongate and Argyle Street; towards the south, branches off the Salt Market; and to the north, the High Street; and the Trongate, near its centre, is crossed by a street, the north part of which is called Candlerigg's Street; and the south part, King Street. There are also several other streets, containing handsome buildings; and there are three spacious and elegant squares: St. Andrew's Square, in which stands the church of St. Andrew; St. Enoch's Square, in which is likewise a church; and George's Square, situated at the west end of George Street. The city and suburbs are supplied with water of excellent quality, raised from the Clyde, by means of engines; and after purification, by rest, in a reservoir and filtration, it is distributed by pipes, to the houses of the inhabitants, at a moderate expense. The cathedral, or high church of Glasgow, is a large edifice, situated on an eminence, at the north end of High Street, and it is reckoned the most perfect specimen of Gothic ecclesiastical architecture remaining in Scotland. The erection of the present structure was commenced in 1123, by John Achains, then bishop of this see, and continued by succeeding prelates till the body of the building was completed as it now stands; but the transepts or cross aisles, which formed parts of the original plan were never erected; though contributions were collected from various parts of the kingdom towards defraying the expenses of the building. Its total length is 284 feet, the breadth sixty-five feet, the height within the walls ninety feet; and there are two towers, on one of which a spire was raised about 1420, whose summit is 220 feet from the pavement. This edifice is divided into two places of worship, an arrangement which interrupts the grand perspective view of the interior with its massive pillars, bold and lofty arches, and the long extent of its groined and vaulted roof. About twelve years since an improvement of this ancient structure was effected, by opening and repairing the great western window and doorway which had been walled up for more than a century. Westward of the cathedral formerly stood the castle or bishop's palace, a very large edifice, the last remaining tower of which was removed to make way for the Infirmary, now occupying its site. Glasgow was changed from a bishopric to an archbishopric in 1484, within the jurisdiction of which was the bishopric of Galloway, Argyll and the Isles: it extended over two hundred and forty parishes, and included the entire shires of Dunbarton, Renfrew, Ayr, and Lanark, with portions of some other shires. At the reformation the revenues of the see were stated at 987*l.* 8*s.* 7½*d.*, besides 168 salmon, and certain quantities of different kinds of corn. There are several churches besides the high church; but they require no notice on account of architectural merit, except St. Andrew's and St. George's, both which have handsome fronts and fine steeples. The livings are in the presbytery and synod of Glasgow. The grand ornament of Glasgow is its college, or university, an extensive and venerable edifice, situated on the east side of the High Street. It owes its origin to William Turnbull, bishop of Glasgow, who in 1450 laid the foundation of the institution by establishing a teacher of theology, an three professors of philosophy; and Pope Nicholas V. at the request of James II. issued a bull licensing the college as a school for theology, canon, and civil law and the liberal arts, with privileges to the professor and students similar to those of the university of Bologna; and he vested the office of chancellor of the institution in the successive bishops of Glasgow. Ample endowment was bestowed on the new seminary by the founder, and James II. granted it many privileges and immunities. The Scottish reformation in 1560, involving the overthrow of the ecclesiastical hierarchy, proved almost ruinous to the university. The professors and other officers, who belonged to the clerical order, fled from the violence of the Presbyterians, and the chancellor, archbishop James Beaton, going to France, carried away the charters and records, and deposited them in the Scot's College at Paris. The university continued in a very depressed state till James VI. granted a new charter, and endowed it with valuable property; since which it has acquired high reputation as a school of science, especially since the middle of the past century. The college buildings, though dislaying but little architectural decoration, nevertheless interest the observer by their venerable and classic appearance, while their general arrangement deserves the praise of convenience and usefulness of structure. The front towards the street is 100 feet in length, and has an elevation of three stories. At the northern extremity is a gateway leading to an area or court-yard of considerable extent, in which are the houses of the different professors; and a corresponding gateway at the southern extremity leads to the residence of the principal. The grand entrance is through a gate in the centre, surrounded by the royal arms; and this opens into a large court, on one side of which is a stone staircase leading to the faculty-hall, an extensive and splendid room, in which the professors assemble to transact the private business of the college. Passing onwards through another gateway we reach a second court, surrounded by the different lecture-rooms of the university; and on the outer side of this area, on the second story, is the common hall of the college, in which public meetings of the students are held, and public worship takes place on Sundays. Another gateway passes under the common hall, and leads to a third area, one side of which is formed by the Hunterian museum, an elegant edifice erected in 1805, under the direction of Mr. Starke, for the reception of the valuable collection of anatomical preparations, shells, insects, and fossils, with a cabinet of coins and medals, bequeathed to the university by the celebrated Dr. William Hunter. The college library, which occupies another side of this area, is likewise a modern building. The collection of books is large and valuable, including the library of Dr. Robert Simson, the translator of Euclid's Geometry; and medical books given by Dr. Hunter. There is also an observatory, well fitted up, and furnished with instruments for the use of the professor of practical astronomy. The government of this institution is intrusted to a lord chancellor, a lord rector, a dean of faculty, the principal, and the faculty of professors, sixteen in number, namely—one for law, four for theology, five for medicine, and the sciences connected with it, and the remainder for the faculty of arts. The chancellorship is a permanent office; and the rector is appointed annually by votes of the professors and the public students. The emoluments of the professors are derived, partly from the funds of the college, arising from landed property in the town and neighbourhood, now extremely valuable, and partly from fees paid by the students. There are two descriptions of the latter—the public students, who undergo the ceremonies of matriculation, attend the five classes of Latin, Greek, logic, moral and natural philosophy, keep regular terms, submit to the restraints of college discipline, vote on questions relative to the concerns of the university, contend for prizes, and are eligible to degrees; and the private students, who attend one or more courses of any of the professors, without any views to college advantages. The former are distinguished by wearing a scarlet gown or toga. The average number of students of both sorts is 1200. Anderson's Institution is a seminary for scientific instruction, founded in 1796, by Mr. Anderson, professor of natural philosophy in the university, who left to trustees his philosophical apparatus, his library and museum, as well as his other property, for the establishment of this useful undertaking. From the funds thus provided, together with liberal subscriptions, a handsome and commodious building was erected, including a lecture-room and apartments for the instruments and museum. The object of this institution is to afford instruction by lectures in natural and experimental philosophy, mathematics, chemistry, botany, and natural history, to persons who do not obtain the advantages of academical education, the lectures being open to individuals of both sexes. A class has been established for mechanics, in which the abovementioned sciences are taught on terms which render the lectures generally accessible, and and which has been the means of diffusing information very extensively through this manufacturing city. The town-house is a noble and magnificent building, ornamented in front with a range of Ionic pilasters, elevated on rusticated pillars and arches, forming an arcade below; and the top of the edifice is crowned with a balustrade and vases. It contains a large assembly-room and a town-hall, besides apartments for the municipal records and other purposes. Eastward of this building, formerly stood the tolbooth, which was taken down about twelve years since, with the exception of its steeple. In the green, at the foot of the Salt-market, is a large square structure, surrounding an interior area, and having a handsome front, with a portico of Corinthian columns. Within it, are various court-rooms and offices, for the transaction of public business relating to the city and county; with a prison, both for debtors and felons. Opposite to the Tontine buildings, nearly in the centre of the street, is placed a fine equestrian statue of William III. In the street, called Bridge-gate, is the guildhall or merchants' house, ornamented with a lofty spire. The Tontine coffee-room is stated to be one of the most elegant and complete apartments of the kind in Britain; and adjoining it is a tavern of corresponding style, built with funds raised by subscription on the system of survivorship. The new theatre in Queen Street is said to be the largest in Scotland, and its front is elegantly ornamented. Among the numerous charitable institutions, one of the most important is the town-hospital or poor-house, for the support of the aged poor and children, having a revenue of about 2400*l.* a-year. Hutcheson's hospital, which has been re-erected in Ingram Street, is a handsome structure, with a spire 120 feet high. It was originally founded by George and Thomas Hutcheson, for twelve poor men and twelve boys; and in consequence of subsequent donations, old women have been admitted, and the number of the boys who are educated, has been augmented to forty-eight. Other institutions for the indigent are, the Trades' Hospital and the Infirmary for the sick; and there are several endowed freeschools. The earliest kind of commerce carried on at Glasgow was the exportation of salmon, which were taken in the Clyde as early as 1420. It appears that in the following century the spirit of naval enterprise prevailed here, as the citizens, in 1546, during a war with England, fitted out ships of war and captured our vessels. About 1680 the merchants of Glasgow sent large quantities of cured herrings and salmon to France, and obtained in return wine, brandy, and salt. The union in 1707, opened to the inhabitants the previously interdicted trade with North America and the West Indies, which gave rise to a commercial intercourse, more especially with Virginia and Maryland, whence tobacco was imported largely in return for Scottish goods sent to those colonies. This trade was first carried on in chartered vessels from Whitehaven, Bristol, and other ports of South Britain; and it was not till 1718 that the first vessel belonging to Glasgow sailed from the Clyde to America. Dunbarton was then the harbour for ships belonging to the merchants of this city, and store-houses for goods were afterwards built at Greenock and New Port, Glasgow. The trade with America gradually increased and was thus carried on till 1750, when a new system was adopted by the establishment of agents on the other side of the Atlantic; which contributed to the further advance of commerce, so that previously to the war with the Americans, more than half the tobacco imported into Great Britain, was consigned to the merchants of Glasgow. The war not only destroyed this trade but also occasioned great injury to those who were concerned in it, and for a while checked the prosperity of the city. New fields for industrious speculation however were opened, by the extension of commerce to the West Indies, and the continent of Europe; and on the conclusion of hostilities with the United States, the intercourse with them was renewed and a greater trade carried on than before. Linen became a considerable article of merchandise. The manufacture commenced at Glasgow in 1725, and it was for a long period the staple production of the place; but at length it was greatly superseded by the manufacture of cotton goods, the value of which in 1791 amounted to 1,500,000*l.* a-year, and is now supposed to be double that sum. Pottery and delft-ware glass, ropes and cordage, and tanned leather, are made here in large quantities; and the founding of types for printing has been long practised and brought to a high degree of excellence. In 1783 a society was formed called the Chamber of Commerce and Manufactures. Its object was to unite the influence of the merchants and the manufactures, and by forming a general fund to support measures which might tend to the public advantage. A royal charter was obtained for the incorporation of the society under the government of thirty directors; and this body has been of essential service in affording encouragement and protection to trade. The Clyde is navigable for vessels drawing seven or eight feet water as high as the first bridge; and a quay extending a quarter of a mile along the bank of the river, supplies the necessary accommodation for shipping. Large vessels discharge their cargoes at Greenock or Port Glasgow; but those of one hundred tons burden can come up to the quay. The number of vessels which arrived at Glasgow between July 10, 1809, and July 10, 1810, was 2021, and their burden 101,316 tons; besides boats and small craft under fifteen tons; and the number of vessels belonging to this port in 1829 was 235 of 41,121 tons burden. The parish of the barony of Glasgow and the city were formerly included in one parochial district; but in consequence of the increase of the population, they were separated, and the landward part of the parish, as distinguished from the town, was denominated the barony. This parish extends from two to six miles around the city, on all sides except the south, where it is bounded by the Clyde. The soil in general is fertile, being in some parts a rich clay, and in others a light sand; but the surface is principally occupied by the buildings of the large and populous villages, which constitute the suburbs of the city. At these places, besides the manufactures already mentioned, is that of the article called cudbear, a kind of dye stuff, prepared from the corcur, or lichen omphalocides, a species of rock-moss found in the Scots Highlands, and also in Sweden and Lapland. Within this district likewise are several cotton printing-fields and extensive bleaching-fields. The parish is intersected by a side cut from the great canal and the Monkland canal, which advantageously facilitate commercial intercourse. Freestone and whinstone are found in great abundance; as also is coal, the quantity of which raised annually amounts in value to more than 30,000*l.* Some of the mines yield ironstone of good quality, which is smelted in the neighbourhood.

GLASHANE, or GLESHANE, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Rathdowney (75) 5 m. SE. Pop. 761.

A parish in the barony of Galmoy; living, a rectory in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the benefice of Rathdowney and Kilaclgy.

GLASLOUGH, co. Monaghan, Ulster, I.

Dublin 30 m. N b W. Pop. 847.

Fairs, last Sat. in every month.

A village in the parish of Donagh and barony of Trough. Here is a noble castle and mesne, the seat of C. P. Leslie, Esq. M. P.

GLASNEVIN, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Dublin 2 m. N. Pop. of Pa. 428. Of Vil. 823.

village and parish in the barony of Coock, situated upon an eminence, overhanging the Tolka river. The village is pleasantly situated, and has at all times been inhabited by persons of respectability. On the summit of the hill stands Delville, once the residence of Dr. Delany, the friend of Swift; and immediately adjoining is the elegant palace of the Bishop of Kildare. At the entrance to the village from the Dublin side, and extending along the banks of the river, are the spacious and beautiful botanic gardens, belonging to the Royal Dublin Society. The entrance-gates, which are costly and handsome, were erected at the expense of the late Mr. Pleasants, a gentleman remarkable for the number and magnitude of his charitable and useful donations. The living is a curacy in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin; and yielding, by commutation for tithes, 184*l.*, half of which is received by the curate. It possesses a church, but no residence. Near to this is an institution for the education of the deaf and dumb children of the poor.

GLASS, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Huntley (140) 5 m. W. Pop. 888.

A parish, chiefly in the district of Strathbogie, but extending into the shire of Banff. It is five miles long, four broad, and intersected by the river Deveron, on the banks of which the soil is very productive, and the harvests early. The distant hills afford little else than pasture for cattle and sheep, of which numbers are annually reared in this parish. The living is in the presbytery of Strathbogie and synod of Moray; patron, the Duke of Gordon. The church was rebuilt a few years ago.

GLASSARY, or KILMICHAEL-GLOSRY, shire of Argyll, S.

P. T. Loch-Gilp-Head (125½) 4 m. N b W. Pop. 4383.

A parish in the district of Argyll, twenty-two miles in length and twelve in breadth. The surface gradually rises to the centre, and terminates in an extensive tract of muir land; but the soil on the banks of Loch Fine, which bounds it on the east, and on the river Ad, in its course through the parish, consists of a rich loam, lying on a bed of limestone. The living is in the presbytery of Inverary and synod of Argyll; patron, Campbell, of Knockbury, the elegant residence of the family. The village of Loch-Gilp-Head, in this parish, has greatly increased, from its contiguity to the Crinan canal. Among several other schools in this district, is one supported by royal bounty, and another by the Christian Knowledge Society. The Gaelic language still prevails here.

GLASSBROOK, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Warrington (184) 6 m. ENE.
Pop. with Rixton township.

A hamlet in the parish of Warrington and hundred of West-Derby; to the north-west of which is a bog, called Glassbrook Moss.

GLASSERTON, shire of Wigtown, S.

F. T. Whitehorn (110) 1½ m. SW. Pop. 1057.

A parish lying along the eastern side of the bay of Luce, the coast presenting a bold and rugged face, and the interior an unequal surface, mostly covered with heath. It is seven miles and a half in length, and averages two in breadth. On the shore is found an abundance of marine plants for manure and for making kelp; the rocks are the resort of myriads of aquatic fowl, and the bay furnishes a variety of fish. The living is in the presbytery of Wigtown and synod of Galloway; patron, the Crown. The church, which is embosomed in thick and beautiful woods, was built in 1752; and the parish is further graced by Castle Stewart, and several elegant seats of the family of that name.

GLASSON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Lancaster (210) 1 m. SSW.
Pop. with Thurnham township.

A hamlet in the parish of Lancaster and hundred of Lonsdale, south of the sands. Here is a wet dock, communicating with the Lune, capable of receiving twenty-five sail of large merchant vessels, the cargoes of which are sent in barges to Lancaster; here also is a short cut, uniting the Lancaster canal with the river Lune.

GLASSONBY, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (283) 8 m. NE & N.

A township in the parish of Addingham, in Leath ward.

GLASSTOOLE, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Dublin 6 m. S & E. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Monkstown and barony of Rathdown, situated upon the bay of Dublin.

GLASTON-TWELVE-HIDES, co. Somerset.

Pop. 5772.

A hundred in the centre of the county, seated between the Polden and Mendip Hills, containing eight parishes, including the town of Glastonbury.

GLASTONBURY, co. Somerset.

London 124 m. W & S. Pop. 2630. M.D.
Tn. Fairs, Sept. 19, usually called Tor
Fair, for horses and fat cattle, and Oct. 11.

A market-town, comprehending the two parishes of St. Benedict and St. John the Baptist, having separate jurisdiction, but locally situated in the hundred of Glaston-Twelve-Hides, near the centre of the county, in a spot encompassed by branches of the river Parret, and called by the Britons Yniswytriū, or the Glassy Island, and by the Saxons Avalon. It was formerly famous for its Benedictine abbey, the foundation of which was fabulously ascribed to Joseph of Arimathea, but which really owed its origin to David, a British prelate, in the fifth century, or to Ina, king of Wessex, who began his reign in 689, and by whom, according to William of Malmesbury, the monastery was erected and adorned with great splendour, and at a vast expense, and also richly endowed and favoured with various franchises and privileges, to which additions were made by several succeeding monarchs and other benefactors. It was constituted one of the parliamentary mitred abbeys, and the revenues, at its dissolution under Henry VIII., amounted to 3508*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* A series of abbots, sixty-one in number, presided here during a period of nearly six centuries; and the last of them, Richard Whiting, though he surrendered the abbey, was executed as a traitor, together with two of the monks, for refusing to acknowledge the king's supremacy. Many illustrious persons were interred in the church of this monastery, among whom is supposed to have been the famous king Arthur, whose tomb, with a Latin inscription, is stated, by Giraldus Cambrensis, to have been discovered here in the reign of Henry II. Some fine ruins of the abbey church are still remaining, as likewise a building called the Abbot's Kitchen; and a tower on a hill, near the town, named Glastonbury Tor, a noted sea-mark for ships sailing in the Bristol Channel. The town was anciently a parliamentary borough, but has long ceased to enjoy that privilege; it is governed by a corporation, under a charter from Queen Anne, consisting of a mayor, a justice, eight aldermen, and sixteen burgesses. The livings are a donative and a curacy, peculiars in the diocese of Bath and Wells; certified value 24*l.*; patron, the Bishop of Bath and Wells. The church, ded. to St. Benedict, is situated in West Street, and was built by Abbot Beer; near this structure, are the ruins of St. Joseph's chapel, some parts of which are in tolerable preservation. The church, ded. to St. John the Baptist, is a handsome building, with a fine lofty tower, which is no inconsiderable ornament to the town. In this church are many niches, which appear to have been occupied by statues; only five of which now remain, and appear to be of the clerical order. Here are two meeting-houses for dissenters, and a freeschool, for thirty boys. Besides the relics of ecclesiastical buildings, here is an ancient market-cross; and the George Inn, supposed to have been an hospitium for pilgrims who visited the abbey, has its front curiously decorated with figures and other carved work. Glastonbury was long famous for a kind of thorn, which was said to blossom annually on Christmas-day; and the circumstance was turned to account by the monks, and the branches sold as miraculous relics. The original thorn-bush has been long since destroyed, but many plants have been propagated from cuttings; and these, which bear flowers frequently in the month of December, are found to belong to a variety of the crataegus monogyna, or common hawthorn, probably brought originally from Palestine by the crusaders.

GLATTON, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Siltton (75) 2 m. SSW. Pop. 358.

A parish in the hundred of Norman Cross; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 21*l.* 8*s.* 11½*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) the Rev. J. Hopkinson.

GLAYSTON, co. Rutland.

P. T. Uppingham (89) 2 m. ENE. Pop. 188.

A parish in the hundred of Wrangdike; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 16*s.* 10½*d.*; patronage annexed to the mastership of Peter House, Cambridge, without institution. The church, ded. to St. Andrew, is a neat edifice, with a low tower, and spire in the centre. Here is a handsome seat, which was built by the Earl of Harborough, in the seventeenth century, it consists of a centre and two wings, of white stone.

GLAZEDALE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Whitby (236) 10 m. WSW. Pop. 1013.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Danby and east division of the liberty of Langbaugh, situated in a fertile valley, watered by the river Eske; living, a curacy, in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; of the certified value of 9*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 38*l.* 16*s.* 10*d.*; patron, the Archbishop of York.

GLAZELEY, co. Salop.

P. T. Bridgenorth (139) 3¼ m. SW. Pop. 40.

A parish in the hundred of Slottesden; living, a dis. rectory with Deuchell, in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford, not in charge; patronage with Chetton rectory.

GLEMHAM, GREAT, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Saxmundham (89) 4 m. W b S. Pop. 413.

A parish in the hundred of Plomesgate; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich, of the certified value of 20*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Dudley Long North, Esq.

GLEMHAM, LITTLE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Market Wickham (81) 3 m. NE b E. Pop. 319.

A parish in the hundred of Plomesgate, which gave name to a family, a branch of which having studied military tactics, in the German school, was of the greatest assistance to Charles I. in the civil war; he took York and Carlisle by storm, and never surrendered any town or city but on the most honourable terms. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Dudley Long North, Esq.

GLEMSFORD, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Clare (53) 4 m. ENE. Pop. 1275.
Fair, June 24, for toys.

A parish in the hundred of Babergh; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 30*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Bishop of Ely.

GLEMSHOLM, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

One of the Orkney islands, forming part of the parish of Burray. It is small and uninhabited, being only one mile long, and about half as much in breadth, but affords good pasturage for cattle and sheep.

GLENARM, co. Antrim, Ulster, I.

Dublin 133 m. N. Pop. 695.
Fairs, May 20, and Oct. 29.

A post and fair-town in the parish of Tickmacranan and barony of Glenarm, situated in a romantic glen, opening upon the sea-coast. The village is neat, and possesses an air of comfort and cheerfulness. Here is a market-house, a handsome church, a spacious meeting-house of dissenters, a new stone bridge; and adjoining the town is the noble castle of Edmund M'Donnell, Esq., consort of the Countess of Antrim, the representative of that ancient family. Here are the remains of a Franciscan friary, founded in the year 1465, by Robert Bisset, a Scotchman, who was compelled to fly from his own country, for having been concerned in the murder of the Duke of Athol. The monastery and lands were granted to the M'Donnells. A new line of road has been opened from Lame to this place, along the shore, whereby the steep hill has been entirely avoided.

GLEN MAGNA, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (90) 6 m. SE. Pop. 714.

A parish in the hundred of Gartree; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacy of Stretton Magna, in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 139*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Cuthbert; patron (1829) Sir George Robinson, Bart.

GLEN PARVA, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (96) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 128.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of

Ayleston and hundred of Guthlaxton; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Aylestone, in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; patronage with Aylestone rectory.

GLENARY, shire of Argyll, S.

P. T. Inverary (114) 1 m. Pop. 1077.

A parish, annexed to that of Inverary, in the district of Argyll, and lying along the banks of the river Aray; living, in the presbytery of Inverary and synod of Argyll: patron, the Duke of Argyll. The church is an elegant structure, containing two places of worship, one for the Highland or Glenary charge, and the other for Inverary or the Lowland, each having its own minister.

GLENAVY, co. Antrim, Ulster, I.

Dublin 96 m. N. Pop. of Pa. 6391. Of To. 375. Fairs, May 14, and Oct. 29.

A fair and post-town in the parish of Glenavy and barony of Massareene, situated adjacent to Lough Neagh. The parish is a vicarage in the diocese of Connor and archdiocese of Armagh; worth, by commutation for tithes, 172*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.*; and united to the vicarages of Camlin and Tullyrush; patron, the Marquis of Hertford. The church is handsome, and adorned with a steeple and spire; and the glebe-house modern. The noble proprietor has made the river here of a uniform depth of seven feet for a length of two miles, whereby 837 acres have been recovered from the inundation, and are now let for a rent of 500*l.* per annum. There are eight Sunday-schools in the parish, whereat about 500 children receive instruction. Area of the parish 15,889 acres.

GLENCOE, shire of Argyll, S.

P. T. Appen (133) 17 m. N.E. Pop. with Pa.

A vale, near the head of Loch Etive, disgracefully distinguished in the annals of Britain, as the scene of an atrocious massacre of its inhabitants, in 1691. After the revolution, William III. published a proclamation, inviting those Highlanders who had taken arms in favour of James II. to submit to the newly-established government, offering a complete and general amnesty to all who should claim it previously to the 1st of January, 1691, but threatening those who delayed beyond that period with military execution. Mac Jan Macdonald, Laird of Glencoe, accordingly went to Fort William, on the 31st of December, 1690, offering to surrender to the governor of that fortress, when he was told that he must tender his submission to the civil magistrate. He therefore proceeded with all possible speed to the county-town of Inverary, and surrendered in form to the sheriff, one day of the prescribed period having elapsed. The sheriff, however, accepted his submission, in consequence of his previous offer to the governor of Fort William; and Macdonald returned home, in full confidence of safety for himself and his dependants, but he was cruelly deceived. Early in the following month, a party of soldiers, under the command of Captain Campbell, of Glenlyon, entered the vale of Glencoe, under the pretext of levying hearth-money and other taxes; and when Macdonald inquired if his intention was friendly, the captain assured him, on his honour, that it was so. Accordingly, during a fortnight, the unsuspecting inhabitants of the valley treated their visiters with confidence and friendship; but at length, on the 13th of February, after Macdonald and Campbell had spent the night at cards, and parted on terms of mutual civility, the signal was given, and the massacre began. Thirty-eight persons were murdered in their beds, among whom were the laird himself and his guest, Macdonald, of Achtrichatain, though the latter had made his submission three months previously, and had in his pocket the royal protection. The plan had been laid to destroy all the male population of Glencoe; but fortunately for some of them, the detachments did not all arrive in time to secure the passes, and about 150 of the destined victims escaped. The houses were demolished, and the castle seized by the assassins. The women and children, though not put to the sword, were turned out naked in a cold frosty night, and many of them were found starved to death in the morning. Smollett, in his History of England, ascribes this miserably barbarous transaction to the personal hatred of the Earl of Breadalbane, who is said to have concealed from the English government the knowledge of the surrender of Macdonald. But whoever was the instigator of the massacre, he must have had credit at court sufficient to stifle inquiry, as none effectually took place, and the sanguinary deed remains an indelible blot on the character of the prince, who first authorized it, and then screened the immediate contrivers from the punishment due to their perfidy. Glencoe is said to have been the birthplace of Ossian, the Gaelic bard, and the surrounding scenery is frequently referred to in the poems published under his name.

GLENCOLLUMBKILL, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

P. T. Killybegs (158) 14 m. NW. Pop. 3050.

A parish in the barony of Bannagh, situated on the sea-side; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Raphoe and archdiocese of Armagh, possessing a church, rectory, and sixty-four acres of glebe.

GLENCREE, co. Wicklow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Bray, (12) 8 m. W.

A military station in the parish of Stagonil and barony of Rathdown, situated in a noble vale at the foot of the Kippure mountains, and upon the river issuing from Lough Bray. It is adjacent to the great line of road which passes through the Wicklow mountains, as far as Aughavanagh, constructed by the military in the year 1799.

GLENBERVIE, shire of Kincardine, S.

P. T. Laurence Kirk (76) 7 m. NNE. Pop. 1277.

A parish, situated in a fertile vale or glen, containing 13,965 English acres, and intersected by the river Bervie, whence its name. It includes the manufacturing village of Drumlithie, and gives the title of Baron to the family of Douglas. The living is in the presbytery of Fordoun and synod of Angus and Mearns; patroness, Mrs. H. M. Nicolson.

GLENBUCKET, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Strathdon (132) 2 m. NE. Pop. 479.

A small parish in the district of Alford, four miles in length and three quarters of a mile in breadth, comprising a fertile vale, bounded on all sides by considerable heights, and watered by the Bucket, a stream tributary to the river Don. Living, in the presbytery of Alford and synod of Aberdeen; patron, the Crown. The church has been recently rebuilt. Here are the remains of the house of Badenyon, celebrated by the favourite song "John of Badenyon."

GLENCAIRN, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Minnichive (66) 2½ m. E. Pop. 1881.

A parish eleven miles in length and averaging four in breadth, bounded on the south-east by Loch Orr, and watered by several streams, from the principal of which, the river Cairn, and the glen through which it flows, it obviously takes its name. The lowlands are very fertile, and the hills afford fine pasturage for cattle, and shelter for a variety of game. This parish includes the thriving villages of Dunreggan and Minnichive, and contains two public schools, one for Latin, and the other for English knowledge. The living is in the presbytery of Penpont and synod of Dumfries; patron, the Marquis of Queensbury. The once strong castle of Jerburgh has now only the fragment of a wall remaining, near which are the Inglesstone Moats, or Bow Butts, where the Fergusons, the ancient lords of the barony, used to exercise their retainers in archery, and of whom tradition relates a variety of marvellous stories.

GLENCAPLE, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Dumfries (71½) 5 m. S. Pop. with Pa.

A port and considerable village in the parish of A'erlaverock, situated on the eastern bank of the river Nith, which here forms a harbour, at all times, for coasting vessels of ninety tons burden, and which, at spring and neap-tides, rises no less than twelve feet. Timber, in considerable quantities, is imported from the Baltic; but the ships so employed discharge their cargoes at the Carse, six miles below Glencaple Quay. In the neighbourhood was the ancient chapel of St. Columba; and there is still a well, of which no one was anciently allowed to drink without making a donation either in food or money to the saint.

TOROE. Dict.—VOL. II.

GLENCOE.

GLENCOLUMBKILL.

GLENCREE.

} See preceding page

GLENCROSS, shire of Edinburgh, S.

P. T. Penycuick (9) 1½ m. N. Pop. 681. Fairs, March, April, and Oct. for sheep.

A parish erected in 1616, from portions of the ancient parishes of Pentland and Penycuick, and so called from the glen in which it lies, and a remarkable cross there placed for some ancient pious purpose. The soil is better adapted for pasturage than tillage, and the sheep fairs held at the House of Muir are generally well attended. Coal and limestone abound here, and public works for the supply of Edinburgh with water have been recently constructed here. Living, in the presbytery of Dalkeith and synod of Lothian and Tweddale; patron, — Tytler, Esq. of Woodhouselee. The ruins of the ancient chapel of St. Catherine of the Hopes are still visible on the north side of Logan Water. At Castle Law may be traced the remains of a Roman camp, and on Rullian Green is a rude stone, commemorating the battle of Pentland Hill, fought in 1666. The scene of the beautiful pastoral "The Gentle Shepherd" was laid near Woodhouselee, and "To haunted Woodhouselee" Sir Walter Scott conducts his Grey Brother.

GLENDALÉ, co. Northumberland.

Pop. 11,441.

A ward in the north-western part of the county, bounded on the west by Scotland, and on the north by Islandshire and Northamshire, containing ten parishes, including the town of Wooler, and seventy-three townships.

GLENDALOUGH, co. Wicklow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Rathdrum (23) 6 m. NW. Pop. 1405. Fairs, Sept. 20, annually.

A noble vale in the parish of Glendalough and barony of Ballinacor, in which are two beautiful lakes, whence the name Glendalough, or the Valley of the Two Lakes. The valley is overhung by lofty and grand mountains, and is considered to be the most sublime scene in this beautiful, wild, and romantic county. The Churches Mountain, the most conspicuous of the great masses which throw so great a gloom over this sequestered place, stands 2268 feet above sea level, and 1567 above the surface of the lakes in the valley. Here is a poor hamlet, occupying the site of an ancient city; and part of the paved road, which passed into the west of the county, and probably laid down 1200 years ago, may still be seen. This valley was anciently called Glenade, but is now usually styled Glendalough, and frequently The Seven Churches. The abbey and the many churches, whose ruins are still interesting, were founded by St. Kevin, or St. Coemgen, descended from the Messingcorbs, a noble race. He was a learned man, author of several tracts, which sufficiently evince the fact, and the friend of St. Columb, St. Cannie, and other pious and learned persons. He was born in the year 498, lived to the advanced age of 120, and died on the 3d of June, 618, on which day in each year a patron, as it is vulgarly styled, is kept, or observed, in the vale of Glendalough. The bishopric which St. Kevin established he did not continue to administer, but resigned it to his nephew Molibha, reserving the abbacy to himself, which he held to the period of his death. For 600 years Glendalough continued a distinct see, but was united to that of Dublin in the year 1214, upon the decease of William Piro, a union never since dissolved. Glendalough is also an archdeaconry in the united diocese, the incumbent enjoying a seat in the chapter of St. Patrick's cathedral. The O'Toole's, the ancient princes of the district, did not yield a ready acknowledgment to this union of the sees, nor was it until the year 1497 that the see of Glendalough was fully resigned to the archbishop of Dublin, by the surrender of Friar Denis White. The ruins of the Seven Churches, and the various legends connected with the patron saint, added to the sublime scenery which encompasses them on every side, have rendered these great solitudes objects of curiosity to the lovers of the picturesque, and to the inquisitive tourist and antiquary. The ivy church, on the north side of the vale, is much dilapidated; it appears to have been stone-roofed, and at one end of it is the stump of an ancient pillar-tower. The ruins of the city, a college established by Mccorag, are not now visible; but it is certain that a school of high repute existed here for ages. The cathedral was the most extensive of the churches; its situation is conspicuous, its walls were lofty, but its ruin is so complete, that without the interest which belongs to it as a work of other days, it would be contemptible. It did not exceed fifty feet in length, and had a breadth of thirty. Our Lady's church appears to have been built with much architectural skill; the walls are standing, and from the tenacious quality of the cement likely to endure for ages. They are faced with cut stone. St. Kevin's Kitchen is quite perfect, it is roofed with stone, and from the western end of the roof a small round tower issues. The interior was lighted by one window, the architecture of which was richly carved. The dimensions of the chancel are twenty-two feet nine inches in length by fifteen in breadth; the height twenty feet, and the thickness of the walls three feet six inches. At the eastern end is a small apartment, ten feet long, by nine broad. The tower rises from the roof which it is based, and is entered by an aperture in the arched interior ceiling opening into the void between this ceiling and the outer roof. This church is the more remarkable, from the circumstance of the rarity of stone-roofed buildings amongst the ecclesiastical ruins of the kingdom; perhaps none are now extant, except the Crypt of Killaloe, Molaise's Chapel, St. Dulough's Church, Cormac's Chapel, and St. Kevin's Kitchen. Beyond the river, lie the fragments of a building called Rhecart, i. e. the Sepulchre of Kings. These ruins are unimportant, except the tomb of the Mac Tooles, bearing the following inscription, in the Irish character, the translation of which is Behold the resting-place of the body of King Mac Thuil, who died in Christ, 1010.

The O'Toole's were kings of Inail, in which petty kingdom Glendalough was included. The church, called Teampull-na-Skeellig, i. e. the Church of the Rock, was situated at the base of Lugduff Mountain, on the margin of the lake, and is scarcely accessible by land; scarcely any vestiges of the building remain. The abbey, which was dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, was finished in a masterly style of architecture. Here St. Kevin is believed to have been buried. Besides the many churches mentioned, there is a beautiful and perfect pillar-tower, in the centre of the vale, which raises its tapering figure to a height of 110 feet. Amongst the curiosities with which the vale abounds, all in some degree connected with the biography of the patron saint, the little cavern, in the front of Lugduff, is the most celebrated. It is an excavation in the rock, the front of which is perpendicular, and the entrance is thirty feet above the surface of the lake. The approach to it is attended with difficulty, perhaps with danger; and the guides, who conduct visitors thither, have found the retreat of the pious Coemgen a source of continued profit. Crosses, holy wells, and other relics, lie scattered around the valley, all subject matter for legendary lore. The road through Glendalough has been much improved, and a new line constructed to Holywood. The Archbishop of Dublin has leased 30,000 acres of land in the vicinity, to the Mining Company of Ireland, who are working leadmines here with spirit and advantage.

GLENDON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Kettering (74) 3 m. NW b N. Pop. 37. A parish in the hundred of Rothwell; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 87; church ded. to St. Helen; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge.

GLENDONVAN, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Auchterarder (51½) 6 m. SE b S. Pop. 130.

A parish six miles in length and four in breadth. It is situated in the midst of the Ochil hills, and includes a beautiful glen watered by the river Dovon, but by far the greater part of its surface is hilly, and affords only pasturage for sheep. Living, in the presbytery of Auchterarder and synod of Perth and Stirling; patron, the Crown. The church is very ancient. Whitehill's Castle, erected by the Crawfords, has been converted into habitations for the peasantry.

GLENELY, shire of Inverness, S.

• Edinburgh 1883 m. NW. Port Augustus 42 m. W. Pop. 287.

A parish forming a square of about twenty miles in every direction, bounded on the north-west by the navigable sound that divides the Isle of Skye from the mainland of Great Britain. It includes several villages, some situated on the sea-side and others on the various streams by which it is intersected. The soil of the lower grounds yield corn and potatoes in abundance, while the hills, covered with verdure to their very summits, afford fine pasturage for numerous herds of cattle. The now almost deserted military road, from Fort Augustus to the Isle of Skye, passes through the parish, as well as the new line of road from the bridge of Doe to the ferry of Kyle Rhea. Game, aquatic fowl, and fish, are obtained here in great plenty. The living is in the presbytery of Loch Carron and synod of Glenely; patron, Macleod, of Macleod. Of the many castles and circular towers, scattered over this extensive district, two are still in tolerable preservation, and the old barracks of Bernera, erected after the battle of Glen Shiel, in 1722, have been unoccupied for many years.

GLENFIELD, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (96) 3½ m. WNW. Pop. 932.

A parish in the hundred of Sparkenhoe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 134. 9s. 9½d.; church ded. to St. Peter; patrons (1829) L. Fosbrooke, Esq. and others.

GLENFIELD FRITH, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (96) 3½ m. W b N. Pop. 4.

A liberty in the parish of Glenfield and hundred of Sparkenhoe.

GLENGAIRN, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Kincardine O'Neil (112) 16 m. W. Pop. with Glenmuick.

An ancient parish, now united to the parish of Glenmuick, in the district of Kincardine O'Neil. It is intersected by the river Gairn, and bounded on the north by the Dee; and at the junction of these rivers is situated the church, formerly dedicated to St. Mungo. Game is plentiful, particularly in the hill of Morven, and though limestone is found throughout the entire district, but little of it is burned, from the scarcity of fuel. Here are two society-schools. Near the pass of Ballatar is the ancient castle of the family of Forbes.

GLENGARIFF, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Bantry (221) m. Pop. with Pa.

A wild and picturesque bay on the coast of Kilmacomaque parish and barony of Bantry. The scenery of this vicinity is preferred to the boldest passages amongst the lakes of Killarney. Here is the beautiful demesne of S. White, Esq., brother of Lord Bantry.

GLENHOLM, shire of Peebles, S.

P. T. Beild (35) 7 m. N. Pop. 230.

A parish about four miles in length by nearly two in breadth. It is intersected by the post-road to Dumfries, and is watered by the Holm, a stream tributary to the Tweed. The surface is chiefly hilly and well adapted for sheep-walks. Peats, though excellent and plentiful, are difficult of access, being nowhere to be obtained but on the summits of the steepest heights. The living is in the presbytery of Biggar and synod of Lothian and Tweeddale; patron, the Marquis of Queensbury. The church was rebuilt in 1775. The place termed Chapel Gill is the site of an old chapel. Here are various ancient camps and tumuli, also the remains of six strong towers, erected during the border wars, in different parts of the parish.

GLENISLA, shire of Forfar, S.

P. T. Alyth (61) 10 m. N. Pop. 1144.

A parish comprising a narrow vale, eighteen miles long by about two broad, through which flows the river Isla. The soil is productive, and limestone abundant. The Christian Knowledge Society has established a school at Folda in this parish. The living is in the presbytery of Meigle and synod of Angus and Mearns; patron, the Crown. The church is very ancient. Here are the remains of the castles of Forter and Newtown, which belonged to the Ogilvies, but were demolished by the Marquis of Argyll in 1641. 'Glenisla gives the title of Viscount to the Duke of Argyll.

GLENLUCE See Luce, Old.

GLENMALURE, or GLEMOLAU, co. Wicklow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Rathdrum (39) m. 6 m. W. b N.

A great défilé in the Wicklow Mountain, in the parish of Rathdrum and barony of Bal-linacor. It is singularly wild, is situated by the river Avonbeg, and contains valuable mines of lead. In the centre of the vale stands the Barrack of Drumgoff, capable of lodging 100 infantry, and near the bridge is a comfortable inn.

GLENMORISTON, shire of Inverness, S.

P. T. Fort-Augustus (131) 7 m. N. Pop. 600.

A chapelry in the parish of Urquhart, through which runs the new line of road, communicating with that lately constructed from Inverness to Fort-William, by the side of the Caledonian Canal, and along the great valley of Scotland, termed Glenmore, which crosses the entire kingdom, from sea to sea. It is in the presbytery of Abertarf and synod of Glenelg; patron, Earl of Seafield. The chapel is dedicated to St. Richard. There are two cemeteries, one of which, called Clachan-on-Inair, i. e., "the burial-place of the lower part of the valley," lies where the river Moriston falls into Loch-Ness. Here is a manufacture of linen. Dr. Johnson visited the small village, Anoch, in this glen, and has recorded the civil reception he met with from the landlord.

GLENMUICK, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Kincardine O'Neil (112) 16 m. WSW.
Pop. 2223.

A parish, with the ancient parishes of Glegairn and Tullich united, in the district of Kincardine O'Neil, stretching about fifteen miles along the southern side of the river Dee, and watered by its tributary stream, the Muick, which is crossed by an elegant stone bridge. The extent of surface under tillage is extremely small, in proportion to the distant and more mountainous tracts, these being entirely appropriated to sheep pastures. The living is in the presbytery of Kincardine O'Neil and synod of Aberdeen; patron, Earl of Aboyne. The church, which is very ancient, is thatched with heath, and from an old custom still kept up by the inhabitants of meeting on Candlemas-day, was probably dedicated to the Virgin Mary. The celebrated chalybeate waters of Pananich are in this parish, as are excellent accommodations for the numerous visitors who resort to them. Here are the ruins of two ancient castles, one called the Cnoc and the other Candacorl.

GLENPROSEN, shire of Forfar, S.

P. T. Kirriemuir (66) m. Pop. with Pa.

A chapelry, comprising the entire northern district of the parish of Kirriemuir, and containing from twenty-five to thirty square miles. It is watered by the river Prosen, and is said to have been anciently one continued forest, an appellation which the upper part of it still retains. Here are fine natural woods of birch, and good pasturage for sheep. The chapel is open for divine service only five or six times a-year.

GLENSHEE, shire of Perth, S.

Edinburgh 76 m. N b W. Cupar of Angus 22 m. Pairs, 3d Tues. in Feb.; 1st Tues. O. S. in June; and 3d Tues. O. S. in Oct.

A chapelry in the parish of Kirkmichael, containing a stage and inn, on the great road to Fort George. The chapel is open for divine worship about once a-month, and a school has been established and endowed by the Christian Knowledge Society. In the neighbourhood is the mountain Bhein-Ghulbhuin, the scene of the hunting that terminated fatally for Diarmid, as sung by Ossian.

GLENSHIEL, shire of Ross, S.

P. T. Glenelg (188½) 7 m. E b N. Pop. 768.

A parish, sixteen miles in length, and averaging about two and a quarter in breadth, situated at the head of that noted arm of the sea, called Loch Duich, from which it rapidly rises to a prodigious height, affording little else than peats and pasture for black-cattle, the staple commodity of the inhabitants. The living is in the presbytery of Loch Carron and synod of Glenelg; patron, the Crown. Here is a stage-house, called Shiel Inn, on the military road, from Fort Augustus to Bernera. Glen Shiel was the scene of a battle in 1719, between the English troops and the Scottish adherents of James II., in which the latter were defeated. This vale was inhabited by the Macraes, a clan originally subordinate to the Maclellans; but in the reign of Charles I. they were almost all destroyed in a battle, under the heroic Montrose, upon which the females united themselves to their servants, and subsequently became a considerable race.

GLENTANAR, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Kincardine O'Neil (112) 9 m. WSW.
Pop. with Aboyne.

An ancient parish, now united to Aboyne. It is a mountainous district, bounded on the north by the river Dee, and is watered by one of its tributary streams, the Tanar. Here is a noble forest of natural oak; and the climate being salubrious, the glen has become the resort of invalids, for the benefit of drinking the whey of goats' milk.

GLENTIAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Market Raisen (148) 8½ m. W b N.
Pop. 372.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Aslaoce, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage, exempt from visitation, in the diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 87; ann. val. P. R. 1127; church ded. to St. Peter; patrons the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln.

GLENTIS, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

P. T. Nairn (173) m. Pop. with Nairn.
Fair, May 12.

A village in the parish of Iniskeel and barony of Bannagh and Boyleagh, situated upon the Amdrass river.

GLENURCHAY, or GLENORCHAY, shire of Argyll, S.

P. T. Inverary (102) 16 m. N. Pop. 1122.

A parish with that of Irishail, united in the district of Lorn, extending twenty-four miles in length, and intersected by the great military roads from Stirling to Inverary, and from Tyndrum to Fort William. The river Urchay winds through the vale of Glenurchay, a beautiful narrow plain, three miles long, and falls into that noble expanse of water Loch Awe, whose banks are fringed with tracts of natural wood and fine plantations. The greater proportion of the surface is rugged and mountainous, though there are a few fertile patches, such as the Glens of Auch, Auchallader, and Hayfield, that yield abundantly, when the rains are not excessive, as is often the case. Limestone is obtained in various parts of the parish, but a lead-mine formerly wrought, is now deserted. Living, in the presbytery of Lorn and synod of Argyll; patron, the Duke of Argyll. The church stands upon an oblong island in the river opposite to the inn of Dalmally. Besides the parochial school there is one established by the Christian Society. Here are several elegant seats, also the ruins of three ancient castles, viz., Kilchurn, Auchallader, and Fraoch-Elan; the former stands on a peninsula, at the east end of Loch Awe, and the latter on an island near it. In Glenyrchay the chief of the powerful clan, Macgregor, had his residence till proscribed, and the name suppressed by act of Parliament in the minority of James VI., but which act a subsequent legislation has seen fit to repeal. This district gives the title of Viscount to the Earl of Breadalbane.

GLENWILLIAM, Isle of Man.

Pop. with Pa.

A considerable village in the parish of Kirk-michael, situated on the sea-coast.

GLENWORTH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (32) 11 m. N b W. Pop. 275.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Aslaoce, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacy of Spittall on-the-Strees, in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 56*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) the Earl of Scarborough.

GLINTON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Market Deeping (89) 3 m. SSE. Pop. 372.

A parish in the liberty of Peterborough; living, a rectory with that of Peykirk, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 38*l.*; church ded. to St. Benedict; patronage with Peykirk rectory.

GLODDEATH, co. Carnarvon, N. W.

P. T. Conway (223) 3 m. NE. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Eglwys Rhôs and hundred of Oreuddyn. The inhabitants find occupation in the Llandudno mines. Here is an ancient seat of the Mostyn family, and a valuable library of Welsh MSS. and printed books, collected by Sir Roger Mostyn.

GLOOSTON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market Harborough (83) 5½ m. N b E. Pop. 142.

A parish in the hundred of Gartree; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 102*l.* 14*s.*; church ded. to St. John; patron (1829) the Earl of Cardigan.

GLORORUM, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Belford (322) 4 m. E b S. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Bambrough and north division of Bambrough ward.

GLOSSOP, co. Derby.

P. T. Chapel-in-le-Frith (107) 10½ m. W b N. Pop. of Pa. 13,776. Of To. 1351.

A parish and township in the hundred of High Peak, situated on a rising bank of one of the deepest valleys in the county. The inhabitants are employed in the cotton-manufacture, which is carried on here to a considerable extent. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 109*l.* 6*s.*; patron (1829) Earl Fitzwilliam. In the church, dedicated to All Saints, is a tablet and bust, by Bacon, to the memory of Joseph Hague, Esq., who bequeathed the annual interest of 100*l.* for ever, towards clothing twenty-four poor men and women out of the eight townships of Glossop-Dale.

GLOUCESTER, co. of.

NE to SW greatest length, 70 m. E to W. about 40 m. No. of Acres, 1,100,000. Pop. 342,600. Hundreds, 28. Parishes, 320. City, 1. Boroughs, 2. Market-towns, 26. Memb. of Pt. S. Oxford Circuit. Diocese of Gloucester. Province of Canterbury.

An inland county, bounded on the north by Herefordshire, Worcestershire, and Warwickshire; on the east, by Warwickshire and Oxfordshire; on the south, by Wiltshire and Somersetshire; and on the west, by the river Severn, and the counties of Monmouth and Hereford. It is divided by the Severn into two unequal portions; and by means of that river communicating with the Bristol channel, it obtains, in a great degree, the advantages of a maritime situation. Before the Roman conquest of Britain, this county is supposed to have been the seat of a tribe of people, called Dobuni or Boduni; and after that event, it was included in the province, named Flavia Cæsariensis. The Dobunian Britons were among the earliest clans who submitted to the authority of the Romans, the traces of whose establishments are numerous and important. Gloucester and Cirencester were two of their principal stations; the county was intersected by their roads, called Ryknield Street, Akeman Street, Foss Road, and Via Julia; and Roman pavements have been discovered at Woodchester, Great Witcombe, Cirencester, Cromhall, and other places, equal in beauty and extent, if not superior to any yet found in other parts of the kingdom. When the Anglo-Saxons invaded South Britain, this county became one of the principal seats of the warfare they carried on with the ancient inhabitants, who were defeated with great slaughter at Dirham, in the latter part of the sixth century. Gloucestershire was wrested from the Britons by the kings of Wessex; but it subsequently belonged to Mercia, the Lower Avon, on its southern border, forming the boundary-line of the two kingdoms. During the existence of the Heptarchy, a battle was fought at Kempsford, between the Mercians and the West Saxons; and about the end of the ninth century, Edward the Elder defeated the invading Danes, at Cambridge, near Berkeley. Several important military transactions have occurred within the limits of the county since the Norman Conquest. In the beginning of the reign of Henry IV., an ill-concerted conspiracy of the partisans of his deposed rival was suppressed, and some of the conspirators were put to death at Cirencester; and in 1471, took place the sanguinary battle of Tewkesbury, which terminated the civil war between Henry VI. and Edward IV. The contest between Charles I. and the Parliament was distinguished by the sieges of Bristol, Gloucester, and Cirencester, and the battle of Toghill Field, in the southern part of the county; and Campden House, Beverstone Castle, and Sidney House, were garrisoned by the royalists. On the landing of the Prince of Orange, in 1688, in opposition to James II., a skirmish took place at Cirencester, between a party of the county militia and a small body of cavalry, under Lord Lovelace, who was about to join the prince, when Captain Lorange, who commanded the militia, was killed, though his troops proved victorious, and Lovelace was made a prisoner; circumstances which are interesting, as this appears to have been the first, if not the only instance of bloodshed in the field, in the progress of the revolution in South Britain. The general aspect and soil of this county are greatly diversified; and it may be arranged in three districts, respectively termed the hill, the vale, and the forest. The eastern district, which is the most extensive, stretching from the border of Worcestershire on the north, to Wiltshire and Somersetshire on the south, is a mountainous tract, called the Cotswolds, or Cotswold Hills, the heights of which are generally bleak and bare, yet affording, in many places, short fine grass, for the feed of sheep, a peculiar breed of which useful animal derives its appellation from this district. These hills form a connecting chain between those of Malvern and Mendip. The most remarkable eminences are, Cleve Cloud, Lickhampton Hill, and Churchdown, near Cheltenham; Robinhood's Hill, near Gloucester; Longdown and Pikedown, near Dursley; Sponebed, near Painswick; and St. Vincent's Rock, at Clifton. The next district is the Vale of Gloucester, terminating in that of Berkeley, or rather forming with it one continuous valley on the eastern bank of the Severn. Opening into this comparatively champaign tract of country, are many beautifully-enclosed winding dales, provincially termed "Bottoms," which accompany the course of the various streams, falling from the eastern heights, and flowing westward to the Severn; and the prospect of these heights over the low country, with the river Severn and the Welsh coast in the distance, is grand and diversified, presenting such masses of picturesque scenery as seldom occur. The western district, which is the most limited, consists principally of the Forest of Dean, divided from the other parts of the county by the Severn. It comprises alternations of hill and dale, and was formerly well furnished with timber, so as to be reckoned the chief support of the English navy, and it is said that its destruction was one of the express objects of the Spanish Armada; but it is now greatly thinned by frequent felling, and curtailed by the increase of cultivation. Among the rivers of this county, may be reckoned the Thames, to which it gives origin; the Severn here terminating; the Warwickshire Avon, which enters it to join the Severn; the Lower Avon, forming the boundary between Gloucestershire and Somersetshire; the Wye, dividing this county from Hereford and Monmouth; the Frome, called also Stroudwater, famed for its excellence in dyeing scarlet cloth; the Milt, which flows by Cheltenham; the Churn, rising near Coberley, and after a course of about ten miles to Saperton, uniting with the Thames, of which some are disposed to reckon it the principal source or head; besides the Lech, the Leden, the Coln, the Windrush, and others of less importance. There are several spas, or mineral springs in Gloucestershire. The saline aperient springs of Cheltenham are among the most noted in the kingdom; and water, possessing similar virtues, was discovered in 1814, at Gloucester. It is probable that the salts, chiefly sulphate of magnesia, with which these waters are impregnated, are widely diffused through a stratum of blue clay, which forms the sub-soil of an extensive portion of the centre of this county. At Clifton, near Bristol, are hot wells, the water of which, containing carbonic acid, with some earthy and saline matter, has long been reputed a remedy for diseases, accompanied with debility. The canal, connecting the Thames with the Severn, and others in this county, will be described in a separate article. The soil of the Cotswolds is in general a calcareous loam, with a mixture of gravel and fragments of limestone, provincially termed stonebrash. It varies in quality from a light sandy loam to a strong tenacious clay, the latter chiefly on the sides of the hills. The average depth does not exceed five or six inches, the sub-soil being a calcareous rubble; and stone of various kinds is found almost everywhere, not far from the surface. Within the last half century, great agricultural improvements have taken place in this district. The downs, formerly unclosed, and almost bare of herbage, or only producing furze and a few of the hardier grasses, are now in general converted into arable fields, in which corn, turnips, &c., are regularly cultivated. There are still, however, some sheep-walks and cow-downs, and the low land, as well as the sides of the hills, are laid out in meadows and pastures. Sheep constitute the principal stock of the Cotswold farmer; black-cattle being of secondary consideration, and comparatively few in number; while swine, as well as horses, are kept for the immediate purposes of husbandry. The chief produce for the market consists of wheat and barley; but oats, peas, beans, vetches, turnips, saintfoin, and other artificial grasses, are raised for home consumption. The vale of Gloucester has long been famous for the produce of the dairy, the pastures, especially in the southern part, being rich and fertile. Various breeds of cattle have been introduced, but the predominant variety takes its name from the county, and the long-horned Staffordshire, the Welsh, and the Herefordshire kind have been introduced, the two latter, however, rather for the purpose of fattening them for the dairy. Here was first made the cheese, called double Gloucester, as it is still in considerable quantities; but this article of farm produce has been rivalled in the London market by the cheese of North Wiltshire. According to William of Malmesbury, this district was anciently famous for the culture of the vine; he says, "No county in England has more numerous or richer vineyards, nor is there any which yields grapes more abundantly or of better flavour, the wine made from them being but little inferior in sweetness to that of France." It may be inferred from this passage that wine was manufactured from grapes here in the middle of the twelfth century, and that the fruit must have ripened more perfectly than it does at present; but whether this was owing to some peculiar management, or to the culture of an earlier variety of the vine than any now known, is uncertain. Several of the towns and villages in this district are noted for their share in the woollen-manufacture, especially that of broad-cloth; but this branch of industry has declined considerably within the last twenty years. In the southern part of the county, towards Bristol, there are many coal-mines; and near Sodbury is a lead mine. The forest of Dean is a district rich in mineral productions, particularly coal and iron, and of the latter is here found a curious stalactitic variety, called brush-iron-ore: near Colford are copper-works. The diocese of Gloucester includes the whole county, except the chapelrys of Icomb, and Cow Honeybourn, belonging to Worcester; and the city of Bristol, and the hundred of Barton Regis, belonging to the see of Bristol. There are ten deaneries and one archdeaconry. Gloucestershire, before the Reformation, contained four of the great mitred abbeys, Gloucester, Tewkesbury, Winchcomb, and Cirencester, besides several smaller convents. The twenty-eight hundreds are Barton Regis, Berkeley, Bisley, Blidesloe, Botloe, Bradley, St. Briavels, Brightwells Barrow, Cheltenham, Cleeve, Crowthorne and Minety, Deerhurst, Dudstone and Kings Barton, Grumbald's Ash, Henbury, Kiffsgate, Duffry of Lancaster, Langley and Swineshead, Longtree, Puck-lechurch, Rapsgate, Slaughter, Tewkesbury, Thornbury, Tibaldstone, Westbury, Westminster, and Whitstone. Besides Bristol, partly in Somersetshire, this county contains the city of Gloucester, its capital; the boroughs of Cirencester and Tewkesbury; and the market-towns of Berkeley, Bisley, Blakeney, Campden, Cheltenham, Colford, Dursley, Fairford, Lechlade, Marshfield, Micheldean, Minchinhampton, Moreton, Newent, Newnham, Northleach, Painswick, Sodbury, Leonard Stanley, Stow-on-the-Wold, Stroud, Tetbury, Thornbury, Wickwar, Winchcomb, and Wotton Underedge; but the markets of Bisley, Blakeney, and Leonard Stanley are disused.

GLOUCESTER, co. Gloucester.

London 101 m. WNW. Pop. 9774. M. D. Wed. and Sat. Fairs, Apr. 5, for cheese; July 5; Sep. 28; and Nov. 28; for cattle, pigs, horses, and cheese. Memb. of Pt. 2. Mail arr. 8.45 f. Mail dep. 5.45 a.

A city of high antiquity, the capital of the county to which it gives name, but having separate jurisdiction, as being a county of itself, though locally within the hundred of Dudstone and Kings Barton. It stands in a plain on the eastern bank of the Severn, where that river is divided into two channels by the island of Alney; and the choice of its site seems to have been decided by the increasing breadth of the river, this being the most southern point affording a safe and convenient transit to the western part of the county. Its origin is ascribed to the Britons, by whom it is said to have been called Caer Gloew, or the Bright City; and being one of the first places surrendered to the Romans, on the invasion of the country under the Emperor Claudius A. D. 44, it was fixed on for a grand military station, the name of which was Glevum, or Glebon. Many remains of buildings and utensils of Roman origin have been discovered in the city and its vicinity, especially the northern suburb called Kingsholm, which is supposed to have been the more immediate site of the Roman settlement. Tessellated pavements have been found in making excavations, particularly a very beautiful specimen in July 1806, while preparing the foundation of a new building for the Blue-Coat Hospital, in Eastgate Street; and coins, urns, drinking-vessels, patera, and a lamp and a balance both of brass are among the relics procured from this place, and described in the Transactions of the Society of Antiquaries. During the short independence of the Britons, after the Romans quitted this island, this city is said to have been governed by an Earl, who, according to Nennius, was the sole survivor of the British nobles who were treacherously assaulted by the Saxons under Hengist, at the conference held on Salisbury Plain; and he subsequently, in 488, took Hengist a prisoner and put him to death. The kings of Wessex seized this place after the battle of Dirham in the sixth century; but at length, together with the rest of the county, it was annexed to Mercia; and about 680, Wulpher, the first Christian king of Mercia, founded the monastery of St. Peter; and he is stated to have repaired and greatly improved the city, which received the Saxon name of Gloucester. Among the events which occurred here after the close of the Heptarchy, were the death of king Athelstan in 940; and the cruel punishment and consequent death of Elgiva, the banished mistress of King Edwy, who on her return from Ireland in 956 was seized and hamstrung by a party of soldiers. In 997 this place was taken and burnt by the Danes; but it was soon restored; and Edward the Confessor held his court here in 1051, and again in 1053, as did William the Conqueror in 1084 and the following year. During the contest between William II. and his brother Robert, Gloucester was nearly destroyed by fire in 1087; and in 1091 it suffered greatly from the ravages of the Welsh. The practice which long generally prevailed of constructing dwellings of timber occasioned numerous conflagrations in cities and large towns; and this place suffered extensively from fire several times in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. It increased notwithstanding in wealth and importance, was often visited by royalty, and parliaments were held here in the reigns of Richard II., and Henry IV. Gloucester was the scene of important events during the civil-war under Charles I. After the battle of Edgehill, the citizens having previously repaired their fortifications and raised a band of volunteers, declared in favour of the Parliament, and defeated several attempts of the Royalists to gain possession of the city. Colonel Massie the governor, displayed much courage, address, and military skill in various offensive and defensive operations, previously to the siege of Gloucester, which commenced August 10, 1643, the king himself commanding the besieging army, consisting of 30,000 men. Their attacks were conducted with great vigour, but were successfully repelled by the besieged, and at length the approach of the Earl of Essex obliged Charles, greatly to his mortification, to raise the siege, after it had lasted somewhat less than a month; and though several attempts were afterwards made to recover the city for the king, they were frustrated by the talents of the governor and the spirit and resolution of the parliamentary army. The failure of the enterprise against Gloucester was one of the earliest occurrences which led to the overthrow of the royal cause; and on the restoration of Charles II., the walls of the city were razed by order of the king. Gloucester was visited in 1687 by James II., then on a progress through the kingdom; in July, 1788, George III. honoured the city with his presence, as did his late majesty when Prince of Wales in October, 1807. The chief magistrate of Gloucester in 1022 had the title of Prefect, which in the reign of Henry II. was changed for that of Provost, and John constituted this place a borough under the government of two bailiffs. Henry III. granted a charter of incorporation under bailiffs or provosts, of whom there was a succession till the issue of a new charter, dated 1st of Richard III., appointing a mayor, two sheriffs, and other officers, to be annually elected by twelve aldermen, and twelve other of the most legal and discreet burgesses; and constituting the hundreds of Dudstone and Kings Barton a distinct county, to be called the county of the town of Gloucester. Henry VII. confirmed all previous grants and privileges; and Henry VIII. on establishing the bishopric in 1541, directed that Gloucester should thenceforth be a city. Edward VI., Elizabeth, James I., and Charles I., granted charters of confirmation, but the charter which last extended the liberties, rights, and franchises of the city, and under which the corporation now acts, was granted April 18, 24th of Charles II. in consideration of payment to the king of the sum of 679*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* The corporation consists of a mayor, high steward, recorder, twelve aldermen (including the mayor), common-councilmen (not less than thirty nor more than forty), two sheriffs, a town-clerk, treasurer, chamberlain, sword-bearer, and several inferior officers. The mayor, sheriffs, chamberlain, and coroner, are chosen annually by the aldermen and senior common-council; and the recorder is elected by the mayor and aldermen. The mayor, bishop, recorder, dean, aldermen, and two of the prebends are justices of peace within the city; and the mayor is clerk of the market, and steward or marshal of the king's household during royal visits to the city. The Tolsey court is held before the sheriffs; the county court once a-month, on a Tuesday; and a law-day twice a-year, one month after Easter and Michaelmas. A court of requests for debts under forty shillings is held under act of Parliament of the 1st of William III. The charter gives authority to the judges to hold assizes for the whole county, quarter sessions, commissions of sewers, and for charitable purposes within the city. There were anciently twelve guilds or companies connected with the corporation, but their privileges are nearly obsolete. The custom of Borough English, whereby estates descend to the youngest son, exists in this city. Gloucester has sent members to Parliament ever since the 23d of Edward I.; the mayor is the returning officer, and the right of election is vested in the inhabitants and freemen, about three thousand in number. Like many other places of Roman origin, Gloucester consists of four principal streets diverging from a common centre; and it had anciently four gates, which gave name to the streets which they respectively terminated, namely Eastgate Street, Southgate Street, Westgate Street, and Northgate Street. None of the gates are standing; and the last of them, the West Gate, was taken down preparatory to the recent erection of a new bridge over the Severn. These streets, except the Westgate Street are continued far beyond their original terminations. The continuation of the Eastern Street is called Barton Street, in which a large fair is held annually in the month of September. From the main streets several lanes and streets of communication branch off laterally; but these require no particular notice, the streets already mentioned containing the chief public buildings, except the cathedral, which occupies one side of an area called the College Green, to which there are avenues from the Westgate Street; and the county gaol standing on the site of the ancient castle on the bank of the Severn. Many improvements have been made in this city in modern times; and several years since an Act of Parliament was obtained for that purpose, under the authority of which the High Cross, a handsome Gothic structure in the centre of the city was taken down, and also a row of houses in the middle of the Westgate Street; the thoroughfares in general were widened and cleared from obstructions, and other beneficial alterations were effected. The streets are well lighted with gas and paved; and the inhabitants are supplied with water conveyed by pipes from reservoirs at the foot of Robinhood's Hill, about two miles distant. Since the discovery of the mineral spring in 1814 a considerable number of new buildings both private and public have been erected in a style of elegance which adds greatly to the architectural ornament of the city and its vicinity. The Shire Hall, situated on the south side of the Westgate Street, is a noble edifice, with a portico of four Ionic columns in front, erected by Robert Smirke, R. A., in 1814, and properly fitted up in the interior for the sessions of the courts of judicature. The Tolsey, near the middle of the city, on the site formerly occupied by the parish church of All Saints, was built in pursuance of an Act of Parliament of the 23d of George II., for the use of the corporation; and the front is ornamented with a pediment, bearing the city arms. In the council chamber are portraits of the late Duke of Norfolk, long high steward of this city, and of the present Duke of Gloucester. The county gaol, already mentioned, is a spacious structure, erected on the plan recommended by Howard, at the expense of nearly 40,000*l.*, and containing 203 separate cells. The city gaol, in the Southgate Street was built in 1782, and has been recently enlarged and improved. The theatre is a neat and convenient building in the Westgate Street. In the lower part of the Southgate Street is the county infirmary, opened in 1755, built and supported by voluntary contribution. There is also a lunatic asylum, erected a few years since, about half a mile from the city, on the London road. The market-house in Eastgate Street was built in 1786, for the sale of corn, butchers' meat, &c.; and there is another in the Southgate Street, for vegetables, fish, butter, &c. Among the principal architectural improvements are the bridges over the two channels of the Severn; two noble structures of stone, each being a single arch, distinguished for simplicity of style, and the absence of unnecessary ornament. They are connected by a causeway, extending across the isle of Alney. A rail-road has been constructed to Cheltenham, for the conveyance of coal and other heavy articles. A quay, with wharfs for the loading and unloading of shipping, extends along the banks of the Severn, from the county gaol towards the Westgate Bridge. Gloucester is the first port on the river that has its peculiar officers, namely—a collector, a comptroller, a surveyor, a searcher, and other custom-house agents. The number of the trading vessels belonging to this port, according to the parliamentary returns for 1829, amounted to 247, altogether of 13,026 tons' burden. The importance of Gloucester as a port, has been recently much increased by the facilities afforded by the Gloucester and Berkeley canal, which extends in a course of eighteen miles from the Severn nearly to Berkeley, to the south of Gloucester. Iron-works formerly subsisted here, and the ore on which they were employed is said to have been procured from Robinhood's Hill; but these works have long been discontinued: and cap-making, sugar-refining, and glass-working, which were once carried off very extensively, have given place to other manufactures. Of these, pin-making was for a long time almost confined to this city, where the art was introduced in 1625, by John Tilsby. Many of the workmen have emigrated, and carried a share of the trade to other places; but there are still several manufactories, which furnish employment for about 1500 persons. There is a bell-foundry in Oxbody Lane, which has been conducted for nearly 150 years, by individuals of a family named Rudhall, by whom between 3000 and 4000 bells have been cast during that period. Woolstapling, once a considerable branch of trade here, has greatly declined. A manufactory of shawls from fine English wool, has been established in the Northgate Street; there is an iron-foundry in that part of the city, called the Island; and there are also extensive brush-manufactories, and one of some note for making edge-tools. The monastery previously noticed as the foundation of one of the Mercian kings having been destroyed by the Danes, a Benedictine abbey was established here in the beginning of the eleventh century, which was governed in succession by thirty-two abbots, from Edric, who died in 1058, to William Parker, who was elected in 1514, and resigned his office at the Reformation, under Henry VIII. It was one of the richest and most considerable monastic establishments in the kingdom, the abbot being a mitred parliamentary baron; and the revenues belonging to it, at its dissolution, amounting to 1946*l.* 5*s.* 9*d.* The conventual church, now the cathedral, is one of the noblest buildings of the kind in England, though the various parts of it were built successively, under the direction of different abbots, during a period of about 400 years. The oldest parts, consisting of the crypt and aisles of the choir, were erected in 1058, by Aldred, who became Bishop of Worcester; the nave, except the vaulted ceiling, and a portion of the transepts, were built by Abbot Serle, who died in 1104; Abbot Thokey, in 1329, rebuilt the south aisle and the vaulting of the nave; the west end of the church was the work of Abbot Horton, who died in 1378; his successor, John Boyfield, rebuilt the choir; the next abbot, Walter Frowcester, finished the beautiful cloisters, which had been commenced by Horton; Abbot Sebroke, who died in 1457, projected the tower, the design of which may be probably ascribed to Robert Tully, a monk, who was made bishop of St. David's, and by whom it was completed; and the Lady Chapel, the latest part of the edifice, was built by Abbot Parleigh, about 1490. It is remarked, in the account of this cathedral, published by the Society of Antiquaries, that "The disposition of this conventual edifice differs in a very essential point from almost every other in this kingdom. The cloisters and claustral buildings were generally placed on the south side of the church, for the obvious advantage both of shelter and sunshine: at Gloucester, the whole of them are now, and appear always to have been, on the north of the church. The great elevation of the vault, the richness of its design, the elaborate tracery which covers the walls, and the vast expanse of the eastern window, render the choir an almost unrivalled specimen of the florid style of architecture. The aisle, surrounding the choir, has nothing uncommon in its form or disposition below; but above this aisle, the great peculiarity of the church occurs. The side aisles and eastern chapels are, in fact, including the crypts, three stories high, and all vaulted; and the upper range of chapels, surrounding the choir, is perhaps not to be met with in any other church in Europe. In the nave, the uniform and lofty range of columns is remarkable, and scarcely to be found in any other church in this country, except the conventual one of Tewkesbury. Of the southern aisle, the external elevation cannot be surpassed in lightness or richness of decoration." The interior of the Lady Chapel is unusually elegant, and in its union with the church extreme delicacy is displayed; since, although close to it, the light of the great window is not at all obscured by the building; and the line of junction, which is one of its transverse mullions, is almost imperceptible from within the choir. A gallery of communication is also most artfully managed from above, which connects the upper side-aisles of the choir, passing between the great east window and the western window of the chapel, without touching either. This passage, which is a narrow stone gallery, seventy-five feet long, about three broad, and eight feet high within, is commonly known as the whispering gallery, and has the property of transmitting sound along its walls in a very extraordinary degree. The lowest whisper, if the mouth be applied close to the wall, or the slightest scratch with a pin on the stone, is heard distinctly from one end of the gallery to the other. The stately and magnificent tower rises from the centre of the church. "The ornamental members and perforated pinnacles are of the most delicate tabernacle-work, very full, but preserving an air of chasteness and simplicity. Its peculiar perfection, which immediately strikes the eye, is an exact symmetry of component parts, and the judicious disposition of ornaments.

The shaft of the tower is equally divided into two stories, correctly repeated in every particular; and the open parapet and pinnacles are examples of the Gothic in its most improved state." The following are the dimensions of the principal parts of this edifice: Total length, four hundred and twenty feet; greatest breadth, one hundred and forty-four feet; length of the nave, one hundred and seventy-one feet; breadth, eighty-four feet; length of the choir, one hundred and forty feet; breadth, thirty-four feet; length of each transept, sixty-six feet; breadth, forty-three feet; length of the Lady Chapel, ninety feet; breadth, thirty feet; height of the nave, sixty-seven feet; of the choir, eighty-six feet; of the side aisles, forty feet; of the Lady Chapel, forty-seven feet; and that of the tower, two hundred and twenty-five feet. The sepulchral monuments are very numerous; a few of the more remarkable, are those of Robert Carthorse, Duke of Normandy, with a recumbent effigy, carved in oak; of Edward II., one of the finest works of the middle ages in the kingdom; of John Gower, an architect of the church; with those of Abbot Parker, Alderman Blackleach and his lady, Bishop Nicholson, Judge Powell, Mrs. Morley, Sir George Onesiphorus Paul, Bart., Charles Brandon Trye, an eminent surgeon, Dr. Edward Jenner, and Robert Raikes, the founder of Sunday-schools. After the suppression of the monastery, Henry VIII., by letters patent, dated September 3, 1541, and subsequently by Act of Parliament, erected the city of Gloucester into a bishopric; and John Wakeman, who had been Abbot of Tewkesbury, was appointed the first bishop of Gloucester. The king gave the conventual church for a cathedral, and endowed the bishopric from the property of the dissolved monastery. It is valued in K. B. 315*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.* The ecclesiastical establishment includes a dean, an archdeacon, a chancellor, six prebendaries, four minor canons, a bishop's chaplain, and a registrar. Besides the precinct of the cathedral, there are within the city and suburbs the following parishes: St. Mary de Crypt, St. Owen's, All Saints, united in 1648 to St. Mary de Crypt, St. John the Baptist, St. Michael, St. Mary de Grace, St. Aldates, St. Nicholas, St. Mary de Lode, Holy Trinity, and St. Catherine's. The living of St. Mary de Crypt is a dis. rectory, united with that of All Saints and chapelry of St. Owen; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 17*s.* 11*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor; that of St. John the Baptist a dis. rectory, united to the chapelry of St. Aldates, valued in K. B. 14*l.* 1*s.* 1*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 125*l.* and 91*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor; that of St. Mary de Lode, a dis. vicarage, united with the chapelry of St. Catherine and Holy Trinity; charged in K. B. 22*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; patron, the Dean and Chapter of Gloucester; that of St. Michael a dis. rectory united to the chapelry of St. Mary de Grace; charged in

K. B. 8*l.* 16*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor; that of St. Michael, a perpetual curacy, not in charge; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Gloucester. The churches of St. Owen, All Saints, St. Mary de Grace, Trinity, and St. Catherine's, have been destroyed, and in St. Aldate's parish there is only a chapel. The church of St. Mary de Crypt, so called from its crypts or vaults, is a good Gothic edifice, with a central tower, situated on the east side of the Southgate Street. St. Michael's in Eastgate Street, is a large building, with a square tower at the west end. St. John's, in the Northgate Street, was rebuilt in 1734, except the steeple tower, which belonged to the former church. The church of St. Nicholas, on the north side of the Westgate Street, consists of a handsome nave and aisles, with a tower and spire at the west end. The church of St. Mary de Lode, or St. Mary de Port, standing in a small square to which it gives name, is supposed to be a very ancient edifice; but in 1826 it was considerably enlarged, and nearly rebuilt. In the north wall is an old mural monument, traditionally reported to have been erected in memory of Lucius, a Christian king of Britain in the second century; and in the churchyard is a recently erected memorial of the death of Bishop Hoper, who suffered at the stake near this spot in the reign of Queen Mary, as a martyr to Protestantism. In 1823 a handsome church, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, was erected near the newly-discovered spa. At Gloucester are places of worship for Wesleyan and Whitefieldite Methodists, Independents, Unitarians, Baptists, and Quakers, besides a Catholic chapel and a Jewish synagogue. There are several endowed schools, namely, a classical seminary, called the College School, founded by Henry VIII., and kept in an apartment adjoining the cathedral, formerly the convent library; the Free Grammar School of St. Mary de Crypt, founded by John Cooke, or Coke, alderman of Gloucester, with an exhibition worth 50*l.* per annum, for a scholar at Pembroke College, Oxford; the Blue-Coat School, for twenty boys, founded in pursuance of the will of Sir Thomas Rich, in 1666, and for which a new building was erected by the corporation in 1806, at the expense of 5000*l.*; the National School, opened in 1817, the Gloucester Poor School, on the Lancasterian plan, opened in 1813; besides numerous Sunday Schools, St. Bartholomew's Hospital, now an almshouse for twenty-two men and thirty-six women, is endowed with the property of a religious house, founded in the reign of Henry II. The hospitals of St. Margaret and St. Mary Magdalen are also endowed almshouses of ancient foundation; and there is a similar establishment called Kimburgh's Hospital. In the parish of St. Mary de Crypt was a convent of Black Friars or Dominicans, and another of Grey Friars or Franciscans, and in the Northgate Street, a college of White Friars, or Carmelites; but of these religious foundations, and likewise of the Priory of St. Oswald in St. Catherine's parish, all traces have disappeared. Two newspapers are published here, the "Gloucester Journal" and the "Gloucester Herald"; the former of which is one of the oldest and most respectable of the provincial journals. This city has produced several eminent men, among whom were Robert of Gloucester, the author of a Metrical Chronicle of English History, written in the thirteenth century; Miles Smith, bishop of Hereford, one of the translators of the Bible, in the reign of James I.; John Taylor, called the Water Poet, who died in 1654; and the famous George Whitefield. Gloucester has given titles of nobility to persons greatly distinguished in our national history, particularly Robert Fitzroy, the natural son of Henry I., Gilbert de Clare, one of the baronial leaders of insurrections against Henry III.; Thomas of Woodstock, younger son of Edward III., assassinated at Calais, by order of his nephew, Richard II.; Humphrey Plantagenet, the son of Henry IV.; and Richard III. before he ascended the throne. The title of Duke of Gloucester is now borne by the nephew of his late majesty George III.

GLOUCESTERHILL, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alnwick (308) 8½ m. SE. Pop. 31.

A township in the parish of Warkworth and east division of Morpeth ward.

GLOVERSTONE, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) m. adjacent.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of St. Mary-on-the-Hill and hundred of Broxton.

GLUNN-CORWG, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Neath (198) 8 m. E. b. N. Pop. of Pa. 351.
Of Hamlet 124.

A hamlet and parish in the hundred of Neath, situated upon the Corwg river, a little above its junction with the Afon; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's, not in charge to the chapelry of Blaen Gwrach; valued in P. R. 59*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* Area of parish 10,000 acres, the greater part of which is mountainous. Coal is raised here for home consumption only. The Carn Mosen in this parish, is the most elevated point in the county.

GLUSBURN, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (210) 4½ m. S. Pop. 747.

A township in the parish of Kildwick and east division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross.

GLUVIAS, ST., co. Cornwall.

P. T. Penryn (265) ½ m. E. ;
Pop. with Penryn, 3478.

A parish in the east division of the hundred of Kerrier; living, a vicarage, with that of Budock, in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 21*l.* 6*s.* 104*d.*; patron, the Bishop of Exeter.

GLYMPTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Woodstock (92) 4 m. N. b. W. Pop. 141.

A parish in the hundred of Wootton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 6l. 16s. 0½d.; patron (1829) the Rev. T. Nuccella. In the church, ded. to St. Mary, is a monument to Thomas Teasdale, Esq., who was a liberal benefactor to Balliol College, Oxford, and the freeschool at Abingdon. He died here in 1616, at the age of sixty-three years.

GLYND, co. Sussex.

P. T. Lewes (50) 3 m. ESE. Pop. 250.

A parish in the hundred of Ringmer, rape of Pevensey, pleasantly situated on the river Ouse; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 5l. 1s. 3d.; ann. val. P. R. 97l. 5s. 4d.; patrons, the Dean and Canons of Windsor. The church, which is of the Grecian style, was built in 1765, by the Bishop of Durham. Here is the ancient seat of Lord Hampden. In this parish also is Glynd Bourn, long the seat of the Hay family, and the birthplace of William Hay, Esq., celebrated for the deformity of his body, and the elegance of his mind.

GLYNN, co. Antrim, Ulster, I.

P. T. Larne (123) 2 m. S.

Pop. of Pa. 2153. Of To. 314.

A village in the parish of Glynn and barony of Belfast, situated upon the bay, or Lough of Larne; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Connor and archdiocese of Armagh; patron, the Marquis of Donegal. No church or globe-house in the parish.

GLYNN, co. Brecon, S. W.

P. T. Treacastle (182) m. Pop. 191.

A hamlet in the parish and hundred of Defynnock.

GLYNN, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

P. T. Llanelly (217) m. Pop. 801.

A hamlet in the parish of Llanelly and hundred of Carnwallan, a little to the north of the Burry river.

GLYNN, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

P. T. Llanelly (217) 1 m. N. Pop. 401.

A hamlet in the parish of Llan-non and hundred of Carnwallan, near to the river Gwilly, and in a district abounding with coal and lime.

GLYNN, co. Limerick, Munster, I.

P. T. Tarbert (159) 4 m. E. Pop. 808.

Fairs, 1st Wed. O. S. in Sept., and Dec. 3.

A town in the parish of Kilfergus and barony of Connello, situated upon the river Shannon. Here is a strong bridewell, a large Roman Catholic chapel, and the parish church of Kilfergus stands in the town. At this place is Glyn House, the seat of — Fitzgerald, Esq., the Knight of Glynn.

GLYNN-CAERIG, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Machynllaeth (208) 3 m. NE. Pop. 458.

A township in the parish of Llan-wrin and hundred of Machynllaeth. See Llan-wrin.

GLYNN-COLLWM, co. Brecon, S. W.

P. T. Merthyr Tydyl (171) 3 m. N.

Pop. 289.

A hamlet in the parish of Llanfugan and hundred of Penkelly, situated upon the river Carnafan, and close by the head of the Rumney river; living, a perpetual curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's and province of Canterbury; valued in P. R. 64l. per annum.

GLYNN-CONNON, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Llantrissaint (171) m. S b N. Pop. 308.

A hamlet in the parish of Llanwonno and hundred of Miskin, situated upon the canal of Aberdare, in a coal and lime country.

GLYNN-FACH, or GLYNN-VACH, co. Brecon, S. W.

P. T. Hay (150) 2 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Llan-Igon and hundred of Talgarth.

GLYNN-LIFFON, co. Carnarvon, N. W.

P. T. Carnarvon (235) 6 m. S b W.

Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Llan-dwrog and hundred of Uwch-Gorfai, situated upon the coast of Carnarvon Bay. Here is the fine demesne of Lord Newborough.

GLYNN-RUMNEY, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Caerphilly (100) m. N b W. Pop. 254.

A hamlet in the parish of Llan-fabon and hundred of Caerphilly, upon the Rumney river, an insignificant stream.

GLYNN-TAFF, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Caerphilly (100) 4 m. N b W. Pop. 517.

A hamlet in the parish of Eglwys-Ilan and hundred of Caerphilly, situated adjacent to the Glamorganshire canal, in a country abounding in iron and coal.

GLYNN-TAWY, or CRAVIN-GLYN-TAWY, co. Brecon.

P. T. Treacastle (182) 3 m. SE. Pop. 102.

A chapelry in the parish and hundred of Defynnock.

GLYNN-TRAIAN, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Llangollen (182) m. Pop. 875.

A township in the parish of Llangollen and hundred of Chick. This district abounds in lime, coal, and ironstone.

GNOSALL, or GNOUSHALL, co. Stafford.

P. T. Stafford (141) 5½ m. WSW. Pop. 2671.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Cuttleshon, situated on the banks of the Rowley water, which flows into the Trent; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 108l.; patron, the Bishop of Lichfield. The church, ded. to St. Laurence, which was formerly a college of secular canons, is an extensive building, and consists of a nave and two aisles, a chancel and a cross-aisle, with a tower rising to the centre. The architecture is a mixture of the Saxon and latest style of Norman English. The minister and churchwardens annually choose a jury of twelve persons, who join them and the sidesmen in making the presentments to the official, as it is a peculiar, and deliver a verdict on all ecclesiastical matters, concerning which any dispute may arise during the following year,

GOADBY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market-Harborough (83) 8 m. N b R.
Pop. 66.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Nillesdon and hundred of Gartree; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Billesdon, in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; patronage with Billesdon vicarage.

GOADLAND, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Whitby (236) 10 m. SW. • Pop. 335.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Pickering and Pickering Lythe; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Glazedale, in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 41.; ann. val. P. R. 42l. 12s. 6d.; patronage with Glazedale vicarage. The inhabitants were anciently obliged to attend to the breed of hawks, which built their nests in a cliff called Killing Nab Scar, in order to secure them for the king's use; these hawks are of large size and still frequent their ancient place of resort.

GOATHILL, co. Somerset.

P. T. Sherborne (117) 2½ m. E. Pop. 20.

A parish in the hundred of Horethorne; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 3l. 11s. 10½d.; ann. val. P. R. 90l.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Earl Digby.

GOATHURST, co. Somerset.

P. T. Bridgewater (139) 3 m. SW b W.
Pop. 342.

A parish in the hundred of Andersfield, which derives its name from the woods formerly in this parish abounding with goats; it is still famous for the growth of very fine trees. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 9l. 10s. 7½d.; patroness (1829) Lady Tynte, who has an elegant seat here, surrounded by beautiful grounds, exhibiting some very fine scenery. The church ded. to St. Edward, is an ancient structure, with a handsome embattled tower at the west end, sixty-three feet high, containing a clock and six bells.

GODALMING, co. Surrey.

Pop. 9068.

A hundred at the south-western point of the county, on the borders of Sussex, containing ten parishes, including the town from which it takes its name, and the borough of Haslemere.

GODALMING, co. Surrey.

London 33 m. SW. Guilford 4 m. SSW.
Pop. 4098. M. D. Sat. Fairs, Feb. 12, for horses, cattle, sheep, and hops; July 10, for horses, cattle, sheep, and store-pigs.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Godalming, pleasantly seated in a valley upon the river Wey, navigable from hence to London. It derives its name from Godhelm, a Saxon to whom it belonged at an early period, and the Saxon word ing, signifying a meadow or valley. The town consists of one principal street, and several smaller ones; the former running nearly from east to west. The roads to Portsmouth, Petworth, and Chichester, run through this town, from which it is much benefited. The manufacture of cloths and kerseymeres formerly flourished here; those chiefly attended to at the present time are of stockings and the patent hosiery; many of the inhabitants are also employed in wool-combing and worsted-spinning. It was incorporated by Queen Elizabeth, and is governed by a warden and eight assistants, with a bailiff; the warden is annually elected, out of the assistants, on Michaelmas-day. Godalming has a tolerable trade also in flour, timber, and iron, by means of the Wey, on the banks of which are three corn-mills, three paper-mills, and a grist-mill; the waters abound with good fish, and are particularly famous for their pike. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 23l. 17s. 11½d.; patron, the Dean of Salisbury. The church, ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul, is a spacious building, with a steeple containing eight bells. Besides which there are two chapels for Dissenters and a Quaker's meeting. On the border of the common, about a mile from the town, is an almshouse founded and endowed for ten poor men, by Richard Wyatt of London, in 1622. Henry Smith gave in his lifetime 1000l. to this parish; the produce of which is distributed half-yearly to the resident poor. Here is also a good charity-school. The market was first granted by charter, in the reign of Edward I. which was confirmed by Queen Elizabeth.

GODDARDSTOWN. See Lichfn.

GODDER-THORNE, co. Dorset.

Pop. 1591.

A hundred in the Bridport division at the south-western extremity of the county, bounded by the British Channel, on the south and south-west, containing three parishes.

GODDINGTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Bicester (54) 5½ m. NE. Pop. 110.

A parish in the hundred of Ploughley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 7l. 18s.; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron, Corpus Christi College, Oxford.

GODESTOW, co. Oxford.

P. T. Oxford (31) 2 m. NNW. Pop. with Pa.

The site of a celebrated nunnery, richly endowed by Henry II., on account, it is thought, of its having been the burial-place of his favourite mistress, Rosamond Clifford, the "Fair Rosamond" of romance. On the dissolution of monasteries, it was granted by Henry VIII. to his physician Dr. George Owen.

GODLEY, or GODLEIGH, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Stockport (176) 7 m. NE b E. ;
Pop. 514.

A township in the parish of Mottram in Longden Dale and hundred of Macclesfield.

GODLEY, co. Surrey.

Pop. 13,018.

A hundred on the north-western point of the county, divided on the north from Buckingham and Middlesex, by the Thames, by which it is also bounded on the west; containing nine parishes.

GODMANCHESTER, co. Huntingdon.

London 59 m. Pop. 1853. Fair, Easter Tues., for cattle of all sorts.

A parish in the hundred of Toseland, situated on the river Ouse, over which there is a handsome stone bridge. It is a place of great antiquity, and from the various Roman coins dug up here, is supposed to have been a Roman station, and by some to have been a city of considerable consequence. The inhabitants have always been famed for their attention to agriculture; and James I. passing through it, was met by a procession of the farmers, with seven ploughs, drawn by a like number of teams of horses. It is said that his majesty was so pleased on this occasion, that granted them a charter, to be governed by two bailiffs and twelve assistants; they have not, however, had the privilege of sending members to Parliament. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 177. 0s. 5d.; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Westminster. The church ded. to St. Mary, is a large and light building, consisting of a nave, chancel, and aisles, with an embattled tower, surmounted by a spire. Here is a free grammar-school, supposed to have been founded by Queen Elizabeth. Some curious old customs prevail here, among which, that of borough English, and the inhabitants are of age, the males at twenty, and the females at sixteen.

GODMANSTONE, co. Dorset.

P. T. Dorchester (119) 6 m. NNW. Pop. 129.

A parish in the hundreds of Cerne, Totcombe, and Modbury; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 137. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron (1829) J. Goodenough, Esq.

GODMERSHAM, co. Kent.

Ashford (53) 6 m. N E b N. Pop. 414.

A parish in the hundred of Felborough, lathe of Scray; living, a vicarage with the curacy of Challock, exempt from visitation, in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 97. 3s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 1437. 4s.; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury. The manor-house, still called the priory, was a residence of the priors of Canterbury, and yet retains many vestiges of its ancient character. Godmersham Park is a delightful seat, on the high road from Canterbury to Ashford; the grounds are extensive, and well stocked with deer.

GODNEY, co. Somerset.

P. T. Glastonbury (125) 3 m. NNW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Meare and hundred of Glaston-Twelve Hides; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 844.

GODOLPHIN, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Helstone (272) 5 m. NW b N. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of St. Breage and west division of the hundred of Kerrier, an ancient manor of the Godolphin family, who resided there at the Conquest. A branch of this family, namely, Sir William Godolphin, was created a Baronet, by Charles II., in 1663; and Sir Sydney, his son, being chosen Burgess of Helston, evinced great abilities in the House of Commons; having come into favour at court, he was employed in several embassies, appointed commissioner of the treasury, and filled other offices, in the reign of Charles, James II., and William III. In the reign of Queen Anne, he was made lord high treasurer, and afterwards knight companion of the order of the garter. Godolphin has long been famed for its tin-mines, which were worked with great spirit and success in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, by Sir Francis Godolphin, who is said to have paid 1000*l.* per annum customs.

GODSFIELD, co. Southampton.

P. T. Alresford (57) 3 m. NW. Pop. 8.

An extra-parochial liberty in the hundred of Bountisborough, Fawley division.

GODHILL, co. Southampton.

P. T. Fordingbridge (92) 2 m. E b N. Pop. 158.

lithing in the parish of Fordingbridge 1 hundred of New Forest, New Forest, st division. Here is an ancient encampment, defended on one side by a double ditch and ramparts, and on the other by steepness of the hill, which is overgrown with oaks.

GODSHILL, co. Southampton.

P. T. Newport (80) 5 m. SSE. Pop. 1211.

A parish in the hundred of East Medina liberty, Isle of Wight; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacy of Whitewell, united to Niton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 374. 17s. 6d.; patron, Queen's College, Oxford. The church, dedicated to All Saints, occupies the summit of an eminence, commanding some fine views; it is built in the form of a cross, and contains many monuments to the Worsleys and other ancient families.

GODSTONE, co. Surrey.

London 19 m. S b E. Pop. 1210.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Tandridge, containing many pleasant seats, the chief of which is Marden Park, situated in a valley, at the foot of the chalk-hills, where there is a quarry which yields a singular kind of freestone, being very durable, if either kept constantly wet or dry. It is used for wet-docks, ovens, and other purposes. The living is a rectory annexed to the vicarage of Walkinstead, in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 11*s.* 5½*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) Henry Hoare, Esq. On Godstone Green, are two small barrows, and also two in some adjoining fields. About three miles hence, is a spring, called Iron Pear-Tree Water, which has been found very efficacious in curing the gout.

GODWICK, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Fakenham (109) 6 m. SSW.
Pop. with Tittleshall.

A parish in the hundred of Launditch; living, a dis. rectory with that of Tittleshall, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 1*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*; patronage with Tittleshall and Wellingham rectories.

GOGOYAN, co. Cardigan, S. W.

P. T. Tregaron (201) m. S. Pop. 107.

A township in the parish of Llandwi-brefi and hundred of Penarth, situated adjacent to the Tivy river.

GOGYR, shire of Edinburgh, S.

P. T. Costorphine (4) 2½ m. SW.
Pop. with Costorphine.

An ancient parish, now included in that of Costorphine. It has a small chapel, with a cemetery, but the latter only has been in use for many years past.

GOLBORNE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Newton-in-Makerfield (133) 12 m. Eb N.
Pop. 1310.

A township in the parish of Winwick and hundred of West Derby.

GOLBOURN BELOW, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 6½ m. SE b S. Pop. 80.

A township in the parish of Tattenhall and hundred of Broxton.

GOLBOURN DAVID, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 7 m. SE b S. Pop. 76.

A township in the parish of Handley and hundred of Broxton.

GOLCAR, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Huddersfield (183) 4 m. W b S.
Pop. 2800.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Huddersfield and upper division of the wapentake of Agbrigg; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of York, not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Huddersfield. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the woollen-manufacture. In the neighbourhood are some Druidical remains.

GOLD CLIFF, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Newport (118) 3½ m. SE. Pop. 268.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Caldicot, which derives its name from the glittering appearance of a high rock here, when the sun shines upon it; it is a peninsulated rocky hill, rising abruptly from the sea to the height of about sixty feet, and is remarkable as being the only natural barrier to the waves for an extent of more than sixteen miles; inundations being elsewhere prevented by artificial mounds. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 105*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron, Eton College. On the cliff are the ruins of a priory, which was founded in 1113 for Benedictine monks.

GOLDEN, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

Dublin 105 m. Pop. 616. Fairs, May 18; Aug. and Oct. 26; and Dec. 13.

A village in the parish of Religimurry and barony of Clanwilliam, situated upon the river Suir. Not far from this are the picturesque ruins of Athassel Abbey.

GOLDHANGER, co. Essex.

P. T. Maldon (37) 4 m. ENE. Pop. 450.

A parish in the hundred of Thurstable; living, a rectory with the curacy of Little Totham, in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 25*l.* 14*s.* 9½*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) N. Westcombe, Esq.

GOLDINGTON, co. Bedford.

P. T. Bedford (30) 2 m. NE b E. Pop. 426.

A parish in the hundred of Barford; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 9*s.* 4½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Duke of Bedford.

GOLDSBOROUGH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Knaresborough (202) 2½ m. ESE.
Pop. of Pa. 385. Of To. 105.

A parish and township in the upper division of the wapentake of Claro; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 1*s.* 0½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Harewood.

GOLDSBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (140) 6 m. WSW. Pop. 244.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Gartree, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 0*s.* 2*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) M. B. Lister, Esq.

GOLDSHAW BOOTH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Burnley (211) 5 m. SW b S. Pop. 810.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Whalley and hundred of Blackburn; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Whalley.

GOLDSPUR, co. Sussex.

Pop. 3267.

A hundred in the rape of Hastings, at the east end of the county, containing five parishes.

GOLFTYN, co. Flint, N. W.

P. T. Northop (107) 2 m. E. Pop. 209.

A township in the parish of Northop and hundred of Coleshill.

GOLON, or GOLLAN, co. Radnor, S. W.

P. T. Knighton (165) m. W. Pop. 332.

A township in the parish of Llanbister and hundred of Knighton, close by the river Ithon.

GOLSPIE, shire of Sutherland, S.

Edinburgh 228 m. N b W. Pop. 1036.

A pa-t-town and parish lying on the coast of the North Sea, and inhabited chiefly by fishermen and manufacturers of kelp. The parish is ten miles in length, and averages one mile and a half in breadth, and the soil, though in some parts much injured by the sand blown up from the shore, is generally of good quality and tolerably productive. The living is in the presbytery of Dornoch and synod of Sutherland and Caithness; patroness, the Countess of Sutherland, whose ancient seat Dunrobin Castle, founded in 1000, by Robert, the second earl, is finely situated on an elevated spot overlooking the sea.

GOLTHO, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Wragby (144) 1 m. S. Pop. 95.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Wraggoc, parts of Lindsey; living, a curacy with that of Bullington, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 20*l*.; patron (1829) T. Mainwaring, Esq. Here are the remains of Goltho Hall, formerly the family residence of the Granthams.

GOLYN, shire of Haddington, S.

P. T. North Berwick (22) 5½ m. SW b W. Pop. with Dirleton.

An ancient parish, now included in that of Dirleton. There are still some remains of the church, the vicar of which, it is said, was deprived of his living by James VI. for smoking tobacco; near it was a small Cistercian nunnery, founded by David I. The village of Godyn is situated on the coast of the Firth of Forth, and its inhabitants are principally employed in fishing.

GOMELDON, co. Wilts.

P. T. Salisbury (81) 6 m. NE b N. Pop. 50.

A tithing in the parish of Jameston and hundred of Alderbury.

GOMERSALL, GREAT and LITTLE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Bradford (196) 5 m. SE b S. Pop. 5052.

A township in the parish of Birstall and wapentake of Morley, the inhabitants of which are chiefly employed in the woollen manufacture. By a singular arrangement this township includes the village of Birstall, as there is no township of that name.

GOMETRAY, shire of Argyll, S.

Pop. with Pa.

A small basaltic island of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of Kilninian in the district of Mull, from which it is separated by Loch Tuadh. It has two commodious harbours frequented by coasters.

GONALDSON, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Southwell (132) 4½ m. SSW. Pop. 96.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Thurgarton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 7*l*. 19*s*. 2*d*.; church ded. to St. Laurence; patron (1825) William Leland, Esq. Here is a small charity-school.

GONERBY, GREAT, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (110) 1½ m. NNW. Pop. 743.

A parish in the soke of Grantham, parts of Kesteven; living, a vicarage, with that of North Grantham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; church ded. to St. Sebastian; patronage with North Grantham vicarage.

GONERBY, LITTLE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (110) ½ m. N. Pop. with Manthorpe township.

Avill in the parish and soke of Grantham; living, a vicarage, with that of South Grantham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; patronage with South Grantham vicarage.

GOODBY MARWOOD, co. Leicester.

P. T. Melton-Mowbray (105) 6 m. NNE. Pop. 171.

A parish in the hundred of Framland; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 16*l*.; church ded. to St. Denis; patroness (1829) Amy Stafford.

GOODERSTON, or GOODESTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Stoke-Ferry (88) 4 m. ENE. Pop. 439.

A parish in the hundred of South Greenhoe; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l*. 12*s*.; ann. val. P. R. 109*l*. 5*s*. 6*d*.; church ded. to St. George; patron (1829) E. Horrex, Esq.

GOODLEIGH, co. Devon.

P. T. Barnstaple (192) 3½ m. E b N. Pop. 351.

A parish in the hundred of Braunton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 14*l*. 19*s*. 4½*d*.; church ded. to St. Gregory; patron (1829) the Rev. William Churchward.

GOODMANHAM, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Market-Weighton (192) 1½ m. NNE. Pop. 240.

A parish partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the Holme-Beacon division of the wapentake of Hart-hill; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 12*l*. 11*s*. 8*d*.; patron (1829) the Rev. William Blow. The church, ded. to All Saints, is a very ancient structure. This was the once famous place of idol-worship, destroyed when Edwin, king of Northumberland, was converted to Christianity.

GOODNESTON, co. Kent.

P. T. Feversham (47) 2 m. E b N. Pop. 60.

A parish in the hundred of Feversham, lath of Scray; living, ~~and~~ rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patronage with Gravney.

GOODNESTON, co. Kent.

P. T. Wingham (62) 2½ m. SE. Pop. 432.

A parish in the hundred of Wingham, lathe of St. Augustin; living; a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury, not in charge; patron (1829) Sir B. W. Bridges, Bart.

GOODRICH, co. Hereford.

P. T. Ross (120) 5 m. SW b S. Pop. 711.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Wormelod; living; a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; church ded. to St. Giles; patron, the Bishop of Hereford. Here are the ruins of the ancient castle, built by the Talbots, soon after the Conquest; from an old tower, which is the most perfect part remaining, may be obtained a fine view of this most beautiful and romantic part of the county, which is greatly improved by the windings of the river Wye, which nearly encircles this parish. At Flansford, a short distance hence, the Talbot family also founded a priory of black canons, in 1347.

GOOLE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Howden (180) 5 m. S. Pop. 450.

A township in the parish of Snaith and lower division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross, situated at the junction of the Dutch river with the Ouse; from the extent of navigation and the late increase of new buildings, it is becoming of some importance.

GOOSEY, co. Berks.

P. T. Wantage (60) 4 m. NW.
Pop. with Circourt, 150.

A tithing in the parish of Stanford, in the Vale and hundred of Ock; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Stanford-in-the-Vale, in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; patronage with Stanfield-in-the-Vale vicarage.

GOOSNAGH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (217) 5 m. NNE.
Pop. with Newsham, 1852. •

A township and chapelry in the parish of Kirkham and hundred of Amounderness; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 3*l.* 18*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 109*l.* 18*s.*; patron, the Vicar of Kirkham. Four miles from hence is the elevation called Beacon Fell. Here is the establishment, endowed by William Bushel, M. D., in 1735, for decayed persons of the better order of society, of both sexes. The building has the appearance of a gentleman's house, and has a fine garden in front.

GOOSTREY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Middlewich (167) 6 m. NE b E.
Pop. with Barnshaw, 298.

A township and chapelry in the parish of, TOROG. Dict.—Vol. II.

Sandbach and hundred of Northwich; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Sandbach, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 10*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 82*l.* 11*s.* 11*d.*; patron, the Vicar of Sandbach.

GOPSALL, or GOPPESHULL, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market-Bosworth (106) 4 m. NW b W.
Pop. 7.

An extra-parochial liberty in the hundred of Sparkenhoe.

GORBALS, shire of Lanark, S.

P. T. Glasgow (43) m. Pop. 22,359.

A parish and considerable suburb to the city of Glasgow, with which it is connected by an ancient bridge (whence the village was formerly called Bridge-end), and by another of more modern erection over the Clyde. It was anciently a chapelry to the rectory of Govan, and was erected into a distinct parish in 1771. The living is in the presbytery of Glasgow and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patrons, the Parishioners. Besides the ancient chapel, which is used as a school and a prison, there are two churches, one built in 1732, the other, an elegant structure, in 1811. Near the bridge, an hospital for lepers was founded in 1350, by a lady named Campbell, the only remaining traces of which is a place termed the Lepers' Churchyard. Coal abounds in the neighbourhood. See Glasgow.

GORDON, shire of Berwick, S.

• P. T. Greenlaw (36) 5½ m. SW. Pop. 740.

A parish and village, the former seven miles in length and about three in breadth, is watered by the rivers Eden and Blackadder, on which are several corn-mills. The hills are under cultivation, but the lower grounds, comprising extensive bogs and mosses, afford little else than fuel. Living, in the presbytery of Lauder and synod of Merse and Ti-viotdale; patron, the Crown. The church is at the village of West Gordon, and near it is an ancient fortification; other traces of fortifications appear in different parts of the parish, also the remains of two chapels, one at Huntley Wood, and the other at Spottiswoode. Gordon and Huntly give the titles of Duke and Marquis to the family of Gordon.

GORE, co. Middlesex.

Pop. 9806.

A hundred on the north-western side of the county, containing seven parishes, including the town of Edgeware.

GORE-FIELDS, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Newport Pagnell (50) 3 m. NW.
Pop. with Gayhurst.

An extra-parochial liberty in the hundred of Newport.

GORES-BRIDGE, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

Dublin 68 m. W b S. Pop. 807.

A village in the parish of Grange-Sylva and barony of Gouran, situated upon the river

Barrow, and advantageously placed for the growth of an inland trade.

GOREY, or KILMACHEALOGUE, or CHRISTCHURCH NEWBOROUGH, co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

Dublin 61 m. S. Pop. of To. 2,132. Fairs, June 1; July 10; Aug. 31; and Oct. 27.

A post, market, and fair town, in the parish of Kilmachealogue and barony of Gorey. It is an irregularly built place, lies on the mail-coach road from Dublin to Wexford, and formerly returned two members to Parliament. It is governed by a sovereign, a recorder, and a town-clerk.

GORING, co. Oxford.

P. T. Wallingford (40) 6 m. S b W. Pop. 867.

A parish in the hundred of Langtree; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 7*2*l.; church ded. to St. Thomas-à-Becket; patron (1829) S. Gardener, Esq. Here was formerly a nunnery of Augustines, founded in the reign of Henry II. some remains are yet visible. Near this place the Ikeneild Street quitted Oxfordshire. In this vicinity, on the bank of the Thames, is a medicinal water called Springwell, which at one time was very much resorted to for the cure of cutaneous diseases.

GORING, co. Sussex.

P. T. Worthing (56) 3 m. W. Pop. 476.

A parish in the hundred of Poling, rape of Arundel; living, a dis. vicarage, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 7*1* 10*s*.; ann. val. P. R. 130*l*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) W. W. Richardson, Esq.

GORLESTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Great Yarmouth (124) 2 m. S. Pop. 1923.

A parish in the hundred of Mutford and Lothingland, situated on the river Yare; living, a dis. vicarage with the rectory of South Town, in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 11*l*.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patroness (1829) Mrs. Astley.

GORMANSTOWN, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Balbriggan (19) 2 m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the barony of Duleek. Here is a noble castle, the seat of Lord Gormanstown, who derives title of Viscount from this place.

GORRAN, ST., co. Cornwall.

P. T. Tregony (253) 6 m. ESE. Pop. 1203.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Powder; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 20*l*.; patron, the Bishop of Exeter.

GORT, co. Galway, Connaught, I.

Dublin 124 m. W. Pop. 2036. Fairs, May 10; Aug. 11; and Nov. 7.

A market-town in the parishes of Kiltarta-and Kilmacduagh. The streets are broad, and the houses well-built, and the appearance of the place remarkably cheerful. The church is built after a handsome design by Paine, and cost 1400*l*. and there is a gloce-house attached to it, which was raised at an expense of 800*l*. The town is the great thoroughfare from Galway into Clare and Roscommon, and possesses a brisk inland trade. Here is Loughcontra Castle, beautifully seated between Loughcontra and the river Gurtinmacken, which is subterraneous for part of its course, and surrounded by scenery the most delightful. It is a permanent military station. The ruins of Kilmacduagh monastery, and of a pillar-tower, much declined from perpendicularity, are at the distance of two miles from the town. This place gives title of Viscount to the family of Vereker.

GORTIN, co. Tyrone, Ulster, I.

P. T. Newtown-Stewart (126) m. Pop. 459. Fair, Easter Monday.

A village in the parish of Lower Badony and barony of Strabane, situated on the Gortin river, which unites with the Camagon at Newtown.

GORTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 3½ m. ESE. Pop. 1604.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Manchester and hundred of Salford; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 8*l*. 15*s*.; ann. val. P. R. 130*l*.; chapel ded. to St. James; patron, Manchester College church. Here is a reservoir, formed by the proprietors of the Manchester and Salford works, in order to increase the supply of water to Manchester.

GORTROE, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Rathcormack (141) 3 m. SE. Pop. 7291.

A parish in the barony of Barrymore; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel, producing, by commutation for tithes, 415*l*. 7*s*. 8*d*.; and united to the rectory and vicarage of Desert. It possesses a church, glebe-house, and eight acres of land.

GORWYDD, co. Cardigan, S. W.

P. T. Tregaron (204) m. S. Pop. 522.

A township in the parish of Llandeuf-brefi and hundred of Penarth, near the banks of the Tivy.

GOSBECK, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Needham (74) 5 m. E b N. Pop. 308.

A parish in the hundred of Bosmere and Claydon; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 8*l*. 5*s*. 5*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) John Vernon, Esq.

GOSBERTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spalding (96) 6 m. N b W. Pop. 1618.

A parish in the wapentake of Kirton, parts of Holland; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 45*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 76*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron, the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln.

GOSCOTE, EAST, co. Leicester.

Pop. 17,501.

A hundred on the most northern part of the county, containing thirty-eight parishes.

GOSCOTE, WEST, co. Leicester.

Pop. 40,788.

A hundred situated on the north-eastern point of the county, containing twenty-four parishes including the town of Loughton. The hundreds of East and West Goscote comprise about one-third part of the county.

GOSFIELD, co. Essex.

P. T. Halsted (16) 2½ m. WSW. Pop. 599.

A parish in the hundred of Hincford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; church ded. to St. Catherine; patron (1829) the Duke of Buckingham.

GOSFORD, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (271) 2½ m.

N E b N. Pop. 3,295.

A parish in the east division of Castle ward, in which are several coal-mines, affording employment to the inhabitants; the living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham, not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Newcastle. The church, ded. to St. Nicholas, is a small neat structure, with a square tower, terminated by an octagonal spire; it was rebuilt in 1798.

GOSFORD, NORTH, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 4 m. N.

Pop. 141.

A township in the parish of Gosford and east division of Castle ward.

GOSFORD, SOUTH, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (271) 3 m. NNE.

Pop. 174.

A township in the parish of Gosford and east division of Castle ward.

GOSFORTH, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Egremont (293) 7 m. SE. Pop. 888.

A parish in Allerdale ward, above Darwent; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 17*l.* 11*s.* 7*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; patroness (1829) Mrs. Senhouse. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a neat edifice, consisting of a nave, chancel, and tower; freestone is obtained here in great abundance.

GOSPORT, co. Southampton.

London 73 m. S b W. Pop. 6181. M. D. Tues., Thurs., and Sat. Fairs, May 4 and Oct. 10, for toys.

A market and seaport town and chapelry in the parish of Alverstoke and liberties of Alverstoke and Gosport, Portsdown division, seated on a projecting point of land on the west side of Portsmouth harbour, over which there is a ferry. This town, now a place of extensive trade, was, in Leland's time, only a small fishing-village; but from its contiguity to Portsmouth, it is, in times of war, a most busy scene. The town consists of one large street, running westward from the harbour to the works, and many smaller ones, both crossing and running parallel with it. On the shore, also, are many extensive ranges of buildings, consisting chiefly of dwelling-houses. From its growing importance, it was some years ago irregularly fortified on the land side by a line of bastions, redoubts, and counterscarps, extending from Weovil to Alverstoke lake. Within these works are the king's brewery and cooperage, with a large range of store-houses for wine, malt, hops, and various other commodities. This place communicates with the sea by means of a large basin and canal, where vessels of almost any burden can take in their stores. Near the same spot are also the barracks, calculated to receive a great number of men. Across the lake is Priddy's Hard, an extensive magazine of powder, for the use of the army and navy; also a large iron-foundry, where are manufactured anchors, and various other articles for the navy. The chief sources of amusement of the inhabitants, are the assembly-rooms and theatre. The town has an excellent supply of water from the works at Forton. The approach to Gosport by water is extremely fine, as the town, forts, and various buildings in the vicinity, are then seen to great advantage. The living is a curacy, and a peculiar in the diocese of Winchester, not in charge; patron, the Rector of Alverstoke. The church, ded. to the Holy Trinity, is a spacious and neat edifice, standing in the centre of a well-planted cemetery to the south of the town. Here also is a chapel for Dissenters, and a Roman Catholic chapel; the former body have an academy, where they bring up those young men intended for the pulpit. Several charity-schools have been established by subscription; also some almshouses for poor widows. At Hasler, in this neighbourhood, is the Royal Hospital, that excellent institution for the reception of the seamen wounded in his majesty's service. The building consists of an extensive front, with two detached wings, and is capable of receiving at once two thousand patients; besides the various wards for the sick, are buildings for the governor, lieutenants, and other officers and servants connected with the establishment; it also has a neat chapel.

GOSTROW, co. Sussex.

Pop. 1350.

A hundred in the rape of Hastings, at the east end of the county, containing two parishes.

GOTHAM, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Nottingham (124) 7 m. SSW. Pop. 625

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Rushcliffe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 19l. 8s. 6½d.; church ded. to St. Laurence; patrons (1829) the Duke of Portland, Earl Howe, and another, alternately.

GOTHERINGTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Winchcombe (90) 4 m. W b N.
Pop. 348.

A hamlet in the parish of Bishop's Cleeve and hundred of Cleeve.

GOUDHURST, co. Kent.

London 43 m. SE b E. Pop. 2579.
Fair, Aug. 20, for cattle.

A parish, and formerly a market-town, in the hundred of Marden, lathe of Scray; it formerly had a good clothing-trade, which has long since gone to decay. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 26l. 19s. 2d.; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Rochester. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a spacious handsome building, consisting of a nave, aisles, and chancel, with a strong low tower, the spire of which was destroyed by lightning. Here are two good free-schools.

GOULDIE, shire of Forfar, S.

P. T. Dundee (40½) 10½ m. NE.
Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Monikie, situated on the road from Dundee to Brechin.

GOURDON, shire of Kincardine, S.

P. T. Bervie (82½) 1½ m. S. Pop. with Pa.

A fishing-village in the parish of Bervie, with a small harbour, rather exposed to south-east winds, and within the jurisdiction of the port of Montrose.

GOUROCK, shire of Renfrew, S.

P. T. Greenock (65) 2 m. W b N.
Pop. with Pa.

A large village in the parish of Innerkip, situated on a spacious bay in the Firth of Clyde, and containing a chapel of ease, and an extensive rope-walk. The bay affords secure anchorage for ships of any burden. This was erected into a burgh of barony by Charles I.

GOURTON, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Wrexham (179) m. Pop. 52.

A township in the parish of Wrexham and hundred of Bromfield. The inhabitants in this vicinity, generally, are engaged in iron and coal works.

GOVAN, shire of Lanark, S.

P. T. Glasgow (43) 2½ m. W. Pop. 4325.

A parish, mostly in the under-ward of Lanark, but extending into the shire of Renfrew. It is five miles in length, from three to four in breadth, and intersected by the navigable river Clyde, which here receives the Kelvin, and has its banks adorned with several elegant villas, five plantations, and extensive bleaching-grounds. On an eminence, rising from the margin of the Kelvin, are the ruins of Bishop's Castle, once the palace of the diocesan; and in another part of the parish are the remains of an old castle, formerly the seat of the Pollock family. Coal, freestone, and brick-earth, abound here; and many of the inhabitants are employed in the manufacture of linen and cotton. The living is in the presbytery of Glasgow and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, Glasgow University.

GOWDALL, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Snaith (173) 1½ m. W. Pop. 213.

A township in the parish of Snaith and lower division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross.

GOWRAN, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

Dublin 66 m. SW b S. Pop. of Pa. 1620.
Of To. 903. Fair, Dec. 8.

A town and parish in the barony of Gowran, governed by a portreeve, recorder, and town-clerk; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin; amount of commutation for tithes, 507l. 13s. 10½d. It possesses a church, glebe-house, and sixteen acres of glebe. The inhabitants of this parish are remarkably poor. Here is the seat of Lord Clifden, and the family of Fitzpatrick take the title of Baron from this place.

GOWRIE, CARSE OF, shire of Perth, S.

A rich and fertile plain, fifteen miles in length, and averaging three in breadth. It stretches along the northern bank of the river Tay, between Perth and Dundee, extends northward to the foot of the Sidlaw hills, and is said to have been anciently covered with water; Gowrie gave the title of Earl to the family of Ruthven, attainted in 1600.

GOWTHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Pocklington (212) 4 m. NW. |
Pop. with Youghthorpe 111.

A township in the parish of Bishop's Wilton, and partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the Wilton Beacon division of the wapentake of Hart-hill.

GOXHILL, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Barton-upon-Humber (167) 5½ m. E b S.
Pop. 736.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 14l. 18s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 148l.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GOXHILL, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Beverley (183) 12 m. NE b E.
Pop. 70.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Holderness; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 8l.; church ded. to St. Giles; patron (1829) the Rev. C. Constable.

GOYTREE, or COEDTREY, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Usk (142) 5 m. NNW. Pop. 513.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Abergavenny; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; valued in K. B. 41. 7s. 6d.; ann. val. P. R. 150*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter patron (1829) the Earl of Abergavenny.

GRABY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Folkingham (106) 4 m. S. Pop. 21.

A hamlet in the parish of Aslackby an wapentake of Aveland, parts of Kesteven.

GRACE DIEU, co. Leicester.

P. T. Ashby-de-la-Zouch (115) 5 m. E b N. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Belton and hundred of West Goscote. Francis Beaumont, the celebrated dramatic poet, born in 1586 was a native of this place.

GRACE HILL, co. Antrim, Ulster, I.

P. T. Ballymena (132) 2 m. Pop. 400.

A settlement of Moravian brethren, in the townland of Ballykenedy, in the parish of Aghogill and barony of Toome, situated upon the river Maine. One hundred and sixty acres are enclosed, and extensive accommodations erected thereon for the reception of pupils. The school was founded by John Cennick, in the year 1755. Near this is one of the seats of Lord Mountcashel.

GRACES COUNTRY, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

This ancient district comprehended the three contiguous baronies of Crannagh, Galmoy, and Shillelogher. It extended north to the liberties of Kilkenny and the Nore, to the borders of the Queen's County, south by the Tipperary and Munster river, to the liberties of Callan; its area occupied 129,586 acres. Many places in this district commemorate their former noble proprietor, by the introduction of the name Grace, as a prefix or affix. The Graces held more extensive possessions here at one period than even the noble family of Butler.

GRADE, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Helstone (272) 10½ m. SSE. Pop. 355.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Kerrier; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 111. 1s. 5½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; church ded. to Holy Cross; patron (1829) John Peter, Esq.

GRAEG, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Newport (118) 3 m. W. Pop. 439.

A hamlet in the parish of Bassaleg and hundred of Wentloog.

GRAFFHAM, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Kimbolton (63) 4 m. E b N. Pop. 267.

A parish in the hundred of Leightonstone; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 161. 14s. 4½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patroness (1829) Lady C. Sparrow.

GRAFFHAM, co. Sussex.

P. T. Midhurst (50) 4 m. SE. Pop. 343.

A parish in the hundred of Easebourne, rape of Chichester; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 91. 10s. 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Giles; patron (1829) John Sargent, Esq.

GRAFTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Whitchurch (163) 10 m. NW b N. Pop. 21.

A township in the parish of Tilston and hundred of Broxton.

GRAFTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Tewkesbury (103) 7 m. NE b E. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Beckford and hundred of Tibaldstone. In 1764, a tract of nearly sixteen acres of land fell from the side of Brendon Hill, and entirely covered several pasture-grounds, at the foot of the hill. The accident was attributed to the incessant rains which fell about that time.

GRAFTON, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) m. adjacent. Pop. 45.

A township in the parish of All Saints and hundred of Webtree.

GRAFTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Lechlade (76) 3½ m. ENE. Pop. 81.

A township in the parish of Longford and hundred of Bampton.

GRAFTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Aldborough (207) 2½ m. SSE. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Marden, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the upper division of the wapentake of Claro.

GRAFTON-ARDENS, co. Warwick.

P. T. Alcester (103) 3 m. SE. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Temple-Grafton and hundred of Barlichway, Stratford division.

GRAFTON FLYFORD, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) 7 m. E. Pop. 241.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Pershore; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 201. 0s. 10*d.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) the Earl of Coventry.

GRAFTON-MANOR, co. Worcester.

P. T. Bromsgrove (116) 2 m. WSW. Pop. 45.

An extra-parochial manor in the upper division of the hundred of Halfshire. Here was formerly a fine old hall, destroyed by fire in 1710.

GRAFTON-REGIS, co. Northampton.

P. T. Towcester (60) 5 m. ESE. Pop. 214.

A parish in the hundred of Cleley, most of the inhabitants of which are employed in lace-making; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 91. 9s. 4½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GRAFTON-TEMPLE, co. Warwick.

P. T. Alcester (103) 3 m. SE b E. Pop. with Grafton-Ardens, 336.

A parish in the hundred of Barlichway, Stratford division; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester, of the clear yearly value of 5*l.* 5*s.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) F. F. Bullock, Esq.

GRAFTON, UNDERWOOD, co. Northampton.

P. T. Kettering (74) 4 m. ENE. Pop. 283.

A parish in the hundred of Huxloe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 16*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. James.

GRÆMSAY, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

P. T. Stromness 1½ m. S. Pop. 220.

One of the Orkney Islands, forming part of the parish of Hoy. It is a beautiful plain, one mile and a half in length, by one mile in breadth, and produces corn as well as pasturage for sheep. Beneath the soil lies a bed of slate, used for roofing houses. The inhabitants, who are noted for strength and extraordinary stature, are principally employed in fishing, and making kelp in considerable quantities.

GRAHAMSTON, shire of Stirling, S.

P. T. Falkirk (24) m. Pop. with Pa.

A considerable village in the parish of Falkirk.

GRAHAMSTOWN, shire of Lanark, S.

See Glasgow.

A populous village, in the barony parish, within the jurisdiction of the city of Glasgow, and forming one of its most considerable suburbs.

GRAIGUE, Queen's County, Leinster, I.

P. T. Carlow (40) 2 m. W b N. Pop. 1701.

A town in the parish of Killeslin and barony of Lleumargy, situated near the river Burrow.

GRAIGUE, or GRAIGUENEMANAGH, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

Dublin 75 m. Pop. of Pa. 3172. Of To. 1540.

A town and parish in the barony of Gowran, situated upon the river Barrow, which is here crossed by a bridge, and having the advantage of the tide flowing up to it, although the sea is twenty-five miles distant. Here are the ruins of a fine abbey and a noble castle. The living is a rectory in the diocese of Leighlin and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the parish of Ullard; and producing, by commutation for tithes, 440*l.* per annum.

GRAINE, ISLE OF, co. Kent.

P. T. Sheerness (48) 2 m. WNW. Pop. 251.

A parish in the hundred of Hoo, lath of Aylesford, situated opposite to Sheppey, at the mouth of the Thames; it is about three miles and a half long, and two and a half broad, and is formed by the Yantlet creek running from the Medway to the Thames. This creek was filled up, and had a road across it for forty years, until 1823, when the lord mayor ordered it to be again opened, so as to give about eight feet navigation for barges at spring tides; thus saving a distance of fourteen miles into the Medway, and avoiding the danger of going round by the Nore. The living is a vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patroness (1829) Miss Smith. Here are some salt-works.

GRAINSBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Great Grimsby (165) 7½ m. S b E.

Pop. 1119

A parish in the wapentake of Bradley-Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a disrectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) T. Sands, Esq.

GRAINTHORPE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (149) 8 m. NE.

Pop. with Ludney and Wragholme 503.

A parish in the Marsh division of the hundred of Louth Eske, parts of Lindsey; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 19*l.* 14*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 60*l.*; church ded. to St. Clement; patron, Magdalen College, Cambridge.

GRAISLEY, co. Berks.

P. T. Reading (34) 3½ m. SW b S. Pop. 99.

A tithing in the parish of Sulhampstead and hundred of Reading.

GRAITNEY, GREAT-KNOW, or GRETNA, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Longtown (314) 4 m. W. Carlisle 12 m. N. Pop. 1945. Tryst, 2d Thurs. in June. Fairs, Sept. 15; Thurs. aft. Falkirk Tryst in Oct.; and 2d Thurs. in Nov.

A parish and village, the latter better known by the name of Greta Green, a place celebrated for the clandestine marriages there solemnized between fugitive English lovers, which practices have, of late years, considerably diminished, the parties so offending being now liable to the penalty of banishment. The parish stretches about six miles along the Solway Firth, which is here more than four miles in breadth, and has many harbours, besides other landing-places, with very productive fisheries; and at Red-Kirk point are extensive breweries. Though there are several tracts of moss and bog land, the soil in general is fertile, highly cultivated, and watered by the Sark and Kirtle. It includes also the villages of Rig and Springfield, the latter of which is situated on the great roads from England to Edinburgh, Glasgow, Port-Patrick, &c.; and is fast rising into importance, as a manufacturing station. The living is in the presbytery of Annan and synod of Dumfries; patron, the Earl of Mansfield. The church was erected in 1790. The site of a Druidical temple here is distinguished as the place where treaties were formerly concluded between the English and the Scots. Remains of several old border towers may still be traced in the neighbourhood.

GRALLAGH, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

P. T. Balbriggan (10) m. Pop. 106.

A small parish in the barony of Balrothery; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the vicarage of Hollywood and Naas; it possesses neither church nor glebe; patron, the Marquis of Drogheda.

GRAMPOUND, co. Berks.

P. T. Oxford (51) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish of St. Aldate and hundred of Hormer.

GRAMPOUND, co. Cornwall.

London 248 m. WSW. Pop. 608. M. D. Sat. Fairs, Jan. 18; March 25; and June 11, for cattle.

A borough and market-town in the parish of St. Creed and west division of the hundred of Powder, situated on the river Fal, here of considerable breadth, and over which is a good stone bridge. Its name is said to have been derived from Grand Pont, which it was called when the bridge was first erected, but this is far from being certain. The only manufactory in this town is one of gloves, which is of no great extent. The privilege of a market was granted John, Earl of Cornwall, and brother to Edward III., who, after the death of the former, confirmed the first charter, and made the town a borough; it did not, however, send members to Parliament until the reign of Edward VI., and has been recently disfranchised for bribery and corruption, now only enjoying that privilege, in conjunction with some adjacent places. It is governed by a mayor, eight magistrates, a recorder, and town-clerk. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; patronage with St. Creed's rectory. The chapel, dedicated to St. Nunn, stands nearly in the centre of the town, but the parish church is more than half a mile distant. The remains of a famous caedfula, or felon-wood, which was granted with all its lands to this town, by Edward I., are still distinguishable. Trewithan, in this neighbourhood, is a handsome seat, occupying a high spot of land, commanding some very fine views.

GRANARD, co. Longford, Leinster, I.

Dublin 75 m. WNW. Pop. of Pa. 8093. Of To. 2531. Fairs, May 3, and Oct. 1.

A town in the parish and barony of Granard. It is entirely inland, but is not far removed from the Royal Canal, and is a permanent military station; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Ardagh and archdiocese of Armagh, united to four other benefices. There are four churches in the union, but no glebe-house. The quantity of glebe amounts to 355 acres. Here is a remarkable rath, of great elevation, on whose summit stood formerly a fort or castle; it is commonly called the Moat of Granard. The name of this place is probably derived from Grianard, the height, or hill of the sun, and was formerly the residence of the chiefs of North Fessia. It now gives the title of Earl to the family of Forbes.

GRANBY, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Nottingham (124) 13 $\frac{1}{2}$ m. ESE. Pop. 380.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Bingham; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 67. 3s. 0 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.; ann. val. P. R. 1207; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Duke of Rutland. This parish gives the title of Marquis to the Rutland family.

GRANDBOROUGH, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Winslow (40) 2 m. S. Pop. 286.

A parish in the hundred of Ashenden; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of St. Alban's and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 87; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GRANDBOROUGH, co. Warwick.

P. T. Dunchurch (90) 3 m. S. Pop. 483.

A parish in the Southam division of the hundred of Knightlow; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 57; church ded. to St. Paul; patron, the Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry, by lapse.

GRANDHEME, shire of Aberdeen, S.

Pop. with Aberdeen.

A village, adjacent to Aberdeen, on the banks of the river Don. A considerable vein of magnesia has recently been discovered, and is worked here.

GRANDTULLY, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Aberfeldy (774) m. Pop. with Pa.

A district of the parish of Dull, in which there is a chapel served occasionally by the parochial minister.

GRANEY, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

P. T. Castledermot (43) 2 m. SE. Pop. with Castledermot.

A parish in the united baronies of Kilkea and Moone; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin, being one of five benefices constituting the union of Castledermot. In the year 1200 a nunnery was founded here, under the invocation of the Virgin Mary, for canonesses of the order of St. Augustin or of St. Brigid. The ruins are particularly noticed by the learned traveller, Bishop Pocock. The cemetery adjoining is held in much veneration.

GRANEY, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Waterford (94) m. N. Pop. with Pa. Fairs, April 12; May 14; Sept. 4; and Dec. 11.

A town in the barony of Iverk. Here are the magnificent ruins of the castle, built by that famous lady, Margaret, Countess of Ormond.

GRANGE, co. Armagh, Ulster, I.

P. T. Armagh (82) 2 m. N. Pop. with Armagh.

A parish in the barony of O'Neilland; living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese and archdiocese of Armagh. It possesses a church, with a residence, upon a glebe of thirty-seven acres.

GRANGE, shire of Banff, S.

P. T. Keith (150) 4 m. E b N. Pop. 1482.

A parish, six miles in length, by about five in breadth, containing 16,000 acres, and watered by the river Isla. The northern part, on account of the extensive mosses, is unproductive; but the southern, even to nearly the summit of the hills, is in general highly cultivated. Here are large quarries of the best limestone, much of which is burned with peats into lime, and a great proportion of the population is employed in spinning and manufacturing coarse linen, particularly at the village called Nether Mills. The living is in the presbytery of Strathbogie and synod of Moray; patron, Sir William Forbes, Bart. The church, which was dedicated to the Virgin Mary, is much dilapidated. This parish was separated from that of Keith, in 1618, and took its name from the Davoch of Grange, added to it by the abbots of Kinloss, who resided in the castle, now a ruin, and had a place of execution, still bearing the name of Gallow Hill, whereon criminals condemned at their regality court were usually executed.

GRANGE, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Great Neston (194) 9½ m. N.
Pop. with Caughton 119.

A township in the parish of Bidstone and hundred of Wirrall.

GRANGE, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Great Neston (194) 8½ m. NW b N.
Pop. 125.

A township in the parish of West Kirkby and hundred of Wirrall.

GRANGE, co. Limerick, Munster, I.

P. T. Limerick (119) m. Pop. not specified.

A parish in the barony of Connello; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Limerick and archdiocese of Cashel.

GRANGE, co. Sligo, Connaught, I.

P. T. Sligo (132) m. SE. Pop. 187. Fairs,
May 1 and 2; Aug. 23; Oct. 28; and Dec.
10 and 11.

A fishing-village in the parish of Ahamlish and barony of Carbury, situated on the north side of Sudare Bay.

GRANGE, co. Tyrone, Ulster, I.

P. T. Cookstown (109) m. Pop. with Pa.
Fairs, March 28, and Nov. 12.

A village in the parish of Derryloran and barony of Dungannon. It is otherwise called Mount Hamilton.

GRANGE, co. Waterford, Munster, I.

P. T. Dungarvan (122) 6 m. S. Pop. 2593.

A parish in the barony of Decies-within-Drum; it is sometimes called Lisginan or Lisenan, is situated upon the river Licky, near to the sea-coast; living, a rectory inappropriate and a vicarage, in the diocese of Lismore and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the vicarage of Kinsalebeg.

GRANGE. See Kill of the Grange.

GRANGE-GAETH, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Slane (38) 3 m. N. Pop. 1585.

A parish in the barony of Upper Slane; living, a chapelry in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh.

GRANGE-GORMAN, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Pop. 6072.

A manor and parish in the liberties of the city of Dublin. The manor-court is held with regularity. The seneschal is aided in his decisions by a jury, according to a late act of Parliament. The living is a chapelry in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough, and archdiocese of Dublin, possessing a church and glebe-house, both recently erected. In this district are the Richmond Bridewell, the House of Industry, where 158 poor children are educated, and the Female Orphan House, in which 153 receive support and instruction.

GRANGE-MOCKLER, or NINE-MILE HOUSE, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Carrick-on-Suir (110) m. Pop. 2609.

A parish in the barony of Slievardagh; living, a rectory inappropriate in the diocese of Lismore and archdiocese of Cashel. No church or glebe.

GRANGE-MONACHORUM, or GRANGERNOSILVIN, or GRANGEROSNOLVIN, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

P. T. Castledermot (43) m.
Pop. with Castledermot.

A parish in the barony of Kilkea and Moone; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin, and one of five benefices, forming the union of Castledermot.

GRANGE-MONK, co. Carlow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Carlow (49) 5 m. E b S.
Pop. not specified.

A parish in the barony of Catherlough, adjoining the Slaney river; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Leighlin and archdiocese of Dublin; valued by commutation at 18*l.* 9*s.* 2½*d.*; not possessing either church or glebe; patron, George Hentpole, Esq.

GRANGE-MORE, co. Westmeath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Killucan (42) m. Pop. not specified.
Fairs, May and Nov. 7.

A village in the parish of Killucan and barony of Farhill.

GRANGE, NEW, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

An extraordinary mount in the barony of Slane, in which a heathen temple has been found. The entrance is through an aperture in the side of the hillock, conducting into a passage covered overhead with large flags. At first the passage is only four feet high, but it increases in height, as it approaches the temple. This curious place of worship, or cemetery, is in the form of a dome, the altitude of which is about twenty feet, and the diameter of its base just thirty. There are two altars or tombs, one on each side, and the walls are formed of large stones sculptured with various devices.

GRANGE OF ST. JOHN BAPTIST, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Fethard, T.p. (109) 2 m. S. Pop. 884.

A parish in the barony of Middlethird; living, a rectory inappropriate and vicarage in the diocese of Lismore and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the vicarage of Cahir; patron, the King. See Cahir.

GRANGE SYLVÆ, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Gowran (66) 4 m. SE. Pop. 1496.

A parish in the barony of Gowran, situated upon the river Barrow, which is here navigable by means of lockage. The living is a rectory in the diocese of Leighlin and archdiocese of Dublin. Here is a very beautiful church, erected in the year 1811, from a design of the late Francis Johnston, Esq., President of the Royal Hibernian Academy. Area of the parish about 2500 acres.

GRANGEFORTH, co. Carlow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Carlow (49) 3 m. NE. Pop. 712.

A parish in the barony of Catherlough; living, a rectory in the diocese of Leighlin and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the parishes of Urglin and Killerigg.

GRANGEMOUTH, shire of Stirling, S.

P. T. Borrowstowness (18) 2 m. E.
Pop. with Pa.

A sea-port and considerable village in the parish of Falkirk, situated near the Firth of Forth, on the angle formed by the junction of the river Carron with the Forth and Clyde canal. The village, with its quay to the eastward, arose out of the immense traffic passing to and fro through the great canal, having been founded in 1777, by Sir Lawrence Dundas, the proprietor of the estate, who cut and removed the first spadeful of earth taken from the canal, and in memory of which the spade is preserved in the House of Kerse by his descendants. This port carries on both a coasting and foreign commerce of some extent, particularly with the Baltic. Considerable inconveniences were formerly attached to its mercantile pursuits by their subjection to the custom-house of Borrowstowness, but these have been lately obviated by the erection of a custom-house here. There are also a dry-dock and a rope-walk, with every other facility for fitting out ships, so that Grangemouth bids fair to continue rising in wealth and importance.

GRANGEPANS, shire of Linlithgow, S.

P. T. Linlithgow (16) 4 m.
Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Carriden at which there is a manufacture of salt.

GRANSDEN, GREAT, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. St. Neot's (36) 7 m. SE b E. Pop. 643.

A parish in the hundred of Toseland; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 5l. 7s. 3½d.; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patron, Clare Hall, Cambridge.

GRANSDEN, LITTLE, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Caxton (49) 3 m. SW b S. Pop. 261.

A parish in the hundred of Long-Stow; living, a rectory exempt from visitation and in the diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 18l. 15s. 2½d.; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron, the Bishop of Ely.

GRANSHAW, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

P. T. Milltown (190) m. Pop. with Pa.
Fairs, May 15 and 16; and Nov. 1 and 2.

A village in the parish of Kilcoleman and barony of Truaghanackmy.

GRANSMOOR, or GRANSMEER, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (190) 7 m. ENE.
Pop. 85.

A township in the parish of Burton Agnes and wapentake of Dickering.

GRANSTON, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Merthyr Tydyl (170) m. Pop. 208.

A parish in the hundred of Dewisland; living, a dis. vicarage attached to the vicarage of Merthyr, in the diocese of St. David's and province of Canterbury; valued in P. R. at 29l. 18s. 7½d.

GRANTCHESTER, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Cambridge (30) 2 m. SW b W.
Pop. 344.

A parish in the hundred of Wetherley; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 7l. 14s. 4½d.; church ded. to St. Mary and St. Andrew; patron, Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. This parish is said to have been very anciently a city.

GRANTHAM, co. Lincoln.

London 110 N b W. Pop. 6077. M.D. Sat. Fairs, 5th Mond. in Lent, for horned cattle, horses, and sheep; Holy Thurs., for sheep and horses; July 10; Oct. 26; and Dec. 17, for horned cattle and horses. Mem. of P. 2.

A borough and market-town in the soke of Grantham, parts of Kesteven, but having separate jurisdiction, situated near the river Witham on the great road from London to York and Edinburgh. It is a place of considerable antiquity, and was a strong Roman station; it has been said that Gorbomannus, king of Britain, built it three hundred years previously to the Christian era, though this is little to be credited. The town consists chiefly of four streets called Castlegate, Westgate, Watergate, and Swinegate Streets, from which the town was evidently once surrounded by a wall, although no vestige is now discoverable. It is reported that this town formerly possessed a castle, but the only foundation for this supposition is the name of one of the principal streets. On St. Peter's Hill, near the south entrance of the town, was one of those beautiful crosses which Edward I. set up to the memory of his Queen Eleanor. In 1642 Charles I. was here taken prisoner by the forces under the command of Colonel Charles Cavendish.

Grantham anciently had several monastic institutions, and the Angel Inn was a commandery of the knights templars. The guild-hall was built in 1787, by a rate levied upon the soke; in addition to which the Duke of Rutland and Earl Brownlow each gave 300*l.* in order to erect a large apartment for the occasional use of the corporation, and also to serve the inhabitants as an assembly-room. This town was first incorporated under a charter granted by Edward IV. in 1463, and is governed by an alderman, recorder, twelve common burgesses, a coroner, an escheator, twelve second-men, who are the common-council, and six constables. The aldermen and burgesses act as justices of the peace for the town and soke which comprises twelve villages. It sends two members to Parliament, who are chosen by the freemen of the corporation; who have used this privilege since the reign of Edward IV. The livings are two vicarages in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; that of North Grantham, valued in K. B. 19*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*; that of South Grantham 17*l.* 15*s.* 7*d.*; patrons, the prebendaries of North and South Grantham in Salisbury cathedral, alternately. The church, dedicated to St. Wolfran, is a beautiful stone structure with a very fine tower terminated by an octagonal spire, 273 feet in height, the style of architecture is that prevailing in the thirteenth century. The vestry is fitted up as a public library, the contents of which were left by the will of the Rev. John Newcombe, D. D. master of St. John's College, Cambridge, who was a native of this town. Here is a good free-school, built of stone, which was founded by Richard Fox, bishop of Winchester, and further endowed by Edward VI.; it is remarkable as having been the place of education of Sir Isaac Newton, who studied the classics there for several years. About two miles to the north of Grantham is Belton House, the seat of Lord Brownlow; it is delightfully situated in a finely-wooded valley which is rendered extremely picturesque by the river Witham, which flows through it. A navigable canal passes from this town to Nottingham, where it joins the Trent, and thence runs to Cromford, in Derbyshire.

GRANTLEY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Rippon (212) 5*l.* m. W b S. Pop. 233.

A township in the parish and within the liberty of Rippon; living, a curacy, and a peculiar of Rippon, in the diocese of York, not in charge; patronage with Wincksley curacy. The seat of Lord Grantley, called Grantley Hall, is seated in a low but pleasant situation, well sheltered with wood.

GRANTOWN, shire of Elgin, S.

Edinburgh 135 m. N b W. Pop. with Pa. Fairs, 1st Tu. O. S. in Jan.; last Tu. O. S. in April; 1st Fri. O. S. in June and Aug.; 3d Tu. O. S. in Sept.; and 1st Thurs. O. S. in Nov.

A post-town in the parish of Cromdale, situated on the great road to Fort-George, near the river Spey, which is crossed by a handsome bridge. This place is of recent erection, and, possessing several useful manufactures, is in a very thriving state. It arose under the auspices of the noble family of Grant, and is neatly built, with an elegant town-house and prison, and two public schools; one for the instruction of boys in the Latin and French languages, supported by the Earl of Seafield and the Christian Society; the other for girls, who are early initiated in the necessary rudiments of female education. In the neighbourhood, are extensive peat-mosses, whence fuel is obtained. GRAPPENHALL, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Warrington (184) 3 m. SE.

Pop. of Pa. 1652. Of To. 400.

A parish and township in the west division of the hundred of Bucklow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 11*s.* 10½*d.*; church ded. to St. Wilfrid; patron (1829) the Rev. J. B. Stewart.

GRASMERE, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Ambleside (278) 4 m. NW b W.

Pop. 1778.

A parish pleasantly situated at the head of the lake from which it takes its name; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. at 28*l.* 11*s.* 5½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 139*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. Oswald; patron (1829) Sir R. Fleming, Bart. An annual sheep-fair is held here on the first Tuesday in September. Behind the village, is the lofty pyramidal hill, called Helm Crag, the summit of which is composed of vast rocks.

GRASSBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Caistor (162) 3½ m. NW. Pop. 290.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. at 5*l.* 17*s.* 8½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patroness (1829) Mrs. Wilkinson.

GRASSINTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (216) 10 m. N. Pop. 983.

Fairs, March 4, for horned cattle; April 21; June 20, for sheep; and Sept. 20, for horned cattle.

A township in the parish of Linton and east division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross. A small market is held here on Tuesday. Some lead-mines have been worked in this parish since the time of James I., which are rich in ore, and occasionally have yielded very abundantly.

GRASSTHORPE, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Tuxford (137) 4½ m. SE b E. Pop. 97.

A township in the parish of Markham and wapentake of Thurgarton north division.

GRATELEY, co. Southampton.

P. T. Andover (63) 0½ m. WSW. Pop. 142.

A parish in the hundred of Andover, Andover division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Leonard; patron (1829) the Rev. J. Constable.

GRATEWICH, co. Stafford.

P. T. Uttoxeter (120) 4 m. WSW. Pop. 115.

A parish in the south division of the hundred of Totmonslaw; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Earl Talbot.

GRAVELEY, co. Hertford.

P. T. Stovenage (31) 2 m. N. Pop. 316.

A parish in the hundred of Broadwater; living, a rectory with the curacy of Chivesfield, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) John Green, Esq.

GRAVELTHORPE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Rippon (212) 6 m. NW b W. Pop. 527.

A township in the parish of Kirkby-Malzeard and lower division of the wapentake of Claro. Here are the celebrated pleasure-grounds of Hackfall, which are scarcely to be surpassed, either for their natural or artificial beauties.

GRAVELY, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Caxton (49) 5 m. NW. Pop. 242.

A parish in the hundred of Papworth; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Botolph; patron, Jesus' College, Cambridge.

GRAVENEY, co. Kent.

P. T. Faversham (17) 3 m. NE b E. Pop. 194.

A parish in the hundred of Boughton-under-Blean, lathe of Scray; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 12*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons (1829) J. H. Lade, Esq. and the Archbishop of Canterbury, alternately.

GRAVENHANGER, co. Salop.

P. T. Drayton (153) 4 m. NE. Pop. 200.

A township in the parish of Muckleston and Drayton division of the hundred of Bradford North.

GRAVENHURST, LOWER, co. Bedford.

P. T. Silsoe (40) 2 m. E. Pop. 63.

A parish in the hundred of Flitt; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. at 7*l.* 12*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GRAVENHURST, UPPER, co. Bedford.

P. T. Silsoe (40) 2 m. E b N. Pop. 291.

A parish in the hundred of Flitt; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 25*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 13*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Giles; patrons, the Trustees.

GRAVESEND, co. Kent.

London 22 m. E b S. Pop. 3118. M. D. Wed. and Sat. Fairs, May 3, toys, &c.; Oct. 24, for horses and all kinds of goods, clothes, and toys.

A market-town, manor, and parish, having separate jurisdiction, locally situated in the hundred of Tottingtrough, lathe of Aylesford, on the banks of the Thames, and the great road from London to Chatham and Canterbury. It is the first port on the river, within the jurisdiction of the corporation of London. The town consists of several streets, built on a declivity, leading down to the river side, which are well paved, and lighted with gas. At the termination of the High Street, is a spacious quay, of modern erection, built of stone, and encompassed by strong iron railings, where goods and passengers are landed. The market-place is convenient and roomy, near the centre of which stands the town-hall, a good substantial building, supported in front by six columns, and at the back by three arches; the space beneath is used as the poultry-market. Owing to its pleasant distance from the metropolis, and the convenience of the steam-boats, which leave different wharfs in the neighbourhood of London-bridge every morning, and return the same evening, Gravesend has, during the summer season, a considerable number of visitors, who come here to enjoy the salubrity of the air and the bathing; there being on the banks of the river a convenient bathing-house, provided with machines, and with hot and cold baths. Windmill Hill, just above the town, is also one of its attractions, owing to the fine views of the Thames and Medway, and the pleasant walks in its vicinity. Here also is a small neat theatre. All outward-bound vessels are obliged to stop at Gravesend until they have been examined by the custom-house officers, and received their clearances; the custom-house office is contiguous to the town-quay. Most of the East and West India ships receive here their supplies of live and dead stock, and vegetables; a large portion of the land in the neighbourhood being cultivated for that purpose. The asparagus, large quantities of which are sent to the London markets, is famous for its size and flavour. The inns in the town are very numerous, from the continual influx of strangers and seamen, occasioned by the number of ships and vessels always lying off the town. Many smacks belonging to this place, are employed in the cod and herring fishery, there being a good fish-market held every Sunday morning. The inhabitants are employed in various trades and maritime pursuits; and vessels of large burden, and occasionally men of war, have been built at Northfleet, just by. Gravesend was incorporated by Queen Elizabeth, but the principal charter was granted by Charles I., in 1632. The chief officer was previously a portreeve, but was then called a mayor, by whom, with twelve jurats, twenty-four common-council men, and a high steward, the town is now governed; the markets and fairs were granted at the same period. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church, dedicated to St. George, was erected in 1732, by an act of the fourth of George II., which granted 5000*l.* for the purpose; it is one of the fifty churches ordered to be erected by Queen Anne in and near London. The original church, which stood on the site of the present, was destroyed by fire, with a considerable part of the town, in 1727. Here are several almshouses for poor and aged persons. Opposite to the Block House, on the Essex shore, is Tilbury Fort, having a strong battery, built by Henry VIII., to guard against any attack of the French; he also built one at Gravesend, which has been suffered to go to decay, so that even its site is not at present known with certainty; but some modern works have been thrown up east of the town, by the Board of Ordnance, which, in concert with the fort opposite, command the channel. The town is rapidly increasing, both to the east and west. In the latter direction the Earl of Darley, the proprietor of Cobham Hall, and a considerable estate in the neighbourhood, is now erecting a great number of handsome houses, which, when completed, will materially increase the beauty, as well as the size of the place. The eastern end of the town is in the parish and manor of Milton, the church of which forms a pleasing object in the landscape. It is said that Gravesend may possibly receive the name of Williamstown, in honour of his present Majesty.

GRAY ABBEY, or GREY ABBEY, co. Down, Ulster, I.

P. T. Newtown Ards (110) m.
Pop. of Pa. 3614. Of To. 510. Fairs, March 28; 2d Tues. O. S. in June; and Oct. 29.

A small but neat town in the parish of Gray Abbey and barony of Ardes, situated upon Straungford Lough; living, an inappropriate cure in the diocese of Down and archdiocese of Armagh, to which a church is attached; patron, W. Montgomery, Esq., the proprietor of this interesting place. Here are the extensive ruins of a Gothic cathedral, founded in 1193, by Africa, the wife of John De Courcy, and daughter of Godred, King of Man. The foundress was interred here, on the left side of the high altar; and her effigy, carved in freestone, the hands closed in a devotional position, may yet be seen. The whole is in alto-relievo, beneath an ornamented canopy. The eastern window was a noble piece of workmanship; it was divided into three compartments, each twenty-five feet in height by six in breadth; and on each side of the altar were windows of large dimensions and beautiful proportions. In the abbey gardens, a holy well is enclosed within an arch of richly-carved freestone. Several antiquities have been found in the vicinity of the abbey, amongst which was a jug, made of a species of bell-metal, and having a spout and handle resembling a modern coffee-pot. It is preserved in the museum of Trinity College, Dublin.

GRAYINGHAM, co. Lincoln.

• T. P. Glanford Bridge (156) 8½ m. SW b S.
Pop. 141.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Corringham, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Ebor and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 25*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Radegund; patron (1829) Sir J. H. Thorold, Bart.

GRAYRIGG, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kerdal (262) 5½ m. NE b E. Pop. 229.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Kirkby in Kendal, Kendal ward; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 92*l.* 18*s.*; patrons, the Land Owners. Here is a free-school, erected by subscription, in 1818, which receives thirty-three pupils, and is endowed with eleven acres of land.

GRAYSOUTHEN, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Cockermouth (300) 4 m. WSW. •
Pop. 416.

A township in the parish of Brigham, Alledale ward above Darwent. Here are two collieries, in which many of the inhabitants are employed. About a mile hence, is also a flax-mill, where linen-thread is manufactured. Fifteen acres of land have been appropriated for the education of the poor of the township; they let for 21*l.* per annum.

GRAYSTONES, co. Wicklow, Leinster, I.

T. Bray (12) 4 m. S. Pop. 40.

A fishing-village in the parish of Kilmacraig and barony of Rathdown, situated upon the Irish Sea. It stands upon a headland, composed of slate-rock, and having a considerable depth of water close to the shore; a harbour might readily be constructed here at a moderate expense. This is the station of a party of the preventive water-guards. The ruins of Rathdown Castle stand close to the shore; and at a short distance is an unroofed chapel, called St. Crispin's Cell.

GRAYSTOWN, or SKORNAN, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Killenaule (96) 2 m. SW. Pop. 1687.
Fairs, July 12, and Dec. 6.

A town and parish in the barony of Slew-ardagh; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese and archdiocese of Cashel, being part of the union of Templeineiry, which constitutes the corps of the precentorship of Cashel.

GREAN, or PALLAS-GREEN, co. Limerick, Munster, I.

Dublin 140 m. W b S.
Pop. of Pa. 4565. Of To. 102.

An ancient corporate town in the parish of Grean and baronies of Coonagh and Clanwilliam. Its corporate rights are lost, and no vestiges are to be found of its collegiate church; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Emly and archdiocese of Cashel, possessing a church and a parsonage, with a glebe of about fifty-six acres.

GREASBOROUGH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Rotherham (100) 2 m. N b W.
Pop. 1252.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Rotherham and upper division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Rotherham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 5*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; chapel ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron (1829) Earl Fitzwilliam.

GREASBY, or GRAYSBY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Great Neston (194) 7 m. NNW.
Pop. 235.

A township in the parish of West Kirkby and hundred of Wirrall.

GREASLEY, or GREYSLEY, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Nottingham (124) 7½ m. NW.
Pop. 4241.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Broxtow, nearly twenty miles in circumference, and the largest in the county; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Nottingham, and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 5*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 51*l.*; patron (1829) Viscount Melbourne. The church is a handsome building, with a lofty embattled tower, containing four bells.

GREAT CONNELL. See Connell.GREATFORD, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Market Deeping (89) 5 m. NW b W.
Pop. 360.

A parish in the wapentake of Ness, parts of Kesteven; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 18*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to St. Thomas-a-Becket; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GREATHAM, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Stockton-upon-Tees (241) 7 m. NE b N.
Pop. of Pa. 434. Of To. 446.

A parish and township in the north-east division of Stockton ward, pleasantly situated on a small river, to which it gives name; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*; patron, Greatham Hospital, an excellent institution, founded by Robert de Strichell, Bishop of Durham, in 1272, for thirteen poor men; it is governed by a master, who must be a bachelor of laws, or a master of arts. The present master is the Honourable Augustus Barrington, D.C.L. The Vicar of Greatham reads prayers twice a-day, for which he receives 12*l.* per annum. The late Earl of Bridgewater, during his mastership, rebuilt the hospital, and laid out the grounds and plantations with great taste and beauty. The church here was pulled down and rebuilt at the same period. There is also a charitable institution in this parish, for six widows or spinsters, called Parkhurst's Hospital, as it was rebuilt and endowed by Dormer Parkhurst, Esq., the then master, but the original founder is unknown.

GREATHAM, co. Southampton.

P. T. Petersfield (51) 5 m. N b E. Pop. 177.

A parish in the hundred of Alton, Alton north division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 92*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) the Rev. Edmund White.

GREATHAM, co. Sussex.

P. T. Arundel (55) 6 m. N b E. Pop. 71.

A parish in the hundred of West Easwirth, rape of Arundel; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Wiggentholt, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester, not in charge; patronage with Wiggentholt rectory.

GREAT HAMLET, co. Derby.

P. T. Chapel-in-le-Frith (107) 10 m. N b W.
Pop. 705.

A township in the parish of Glossop and hundred of High Peak.

GREAT-ISLAND, or BARRYMORE ISLAND, co. Cork, Munster, I.

An island in the barony of Barrymore. It is situated in Cork Harbour, and includes the parishes of Clonmell, Kilgarvan, and Temple-Robin. Its chief town is Cove, and the area of the whole island is about 30 square miles. The advantage of navigable communication for the disposal of its produce, and supply of its wants, has rendered the district populous, and tended to the improvement of its chief town, Cove, before which, and close to the shore, first-rate men-of-war may anchor safely at all times. See Cove, Cork Harbour.

GREAT MAN'S BAY, co. Galway, Connaught, I.

A bay on the coast of the barony of Moycullen, where the Fishery Board have recently constructed a harbour.

GREAT-SKELLIGS ISLAND. See Skelligs.GREATWORTH, co. Northampton.

P. T. Brackley (63) 5 m. NW b N. Pop. 213.

A parish in the hundred of Chipping Warden; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 0*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Rev. H. Bradridge.

GREENACH, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Dublin 12 m. N b W. Pop. with Clonmethon.

A parish in the barony of Balrothery; living, a curacy, forming part of the union of Clonmethon, in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin. See Clonmethon.

GREENAGH, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Cloyne (186) m. NW. Pop. 3049.

A parish in the barony of Barretts; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the rectory and vicarage of Garrycloyne. Mr. Croft has established a spinning-school in this parish.

GREENS, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Felton (200) 4 m. NW b N.
Pop. with Glantles, 76.

A township in the parish of Felton and east division of Coquetdale ward.

GREEN'S NORTON, co. Northampton.

Pop. 4900.

A hundred situated in the southern part of the county, containing eleven parishes.

GREEN'S NORTON. co. Northampton.

P. T. Towcester (60) 2½ m. NW b W.
Pop. 740.

A parish in the hundred of Green's Norton; living, a rectory with the curacies of Silverston and Whittlebury, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 38*l.*; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patron, the King.

GREENSTEAD, co. Essex.

P. T. Chipping Ongar (21) 1 m. W b S.
Pop. 131.

A parish in the hundred of Ongar; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; patron, the Bishop of London. The church, ded. to St. Andrew, is supposed to be the most ancient in the kingdom, and almost entirely constructed of wood.

GREENSTED, co. Essex.

P. T. Colchester (31) 1 m. E. Pop. 510.

A parish within the liberties of the town of Colchester; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 5*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, the King.

GREENWICH, co. Kent.

London 5 m. ESE. Pop. with Deptford, 40,574. M. D. Wed. and Sat. Pairs, Easter and Whit Mond. Tu. and Wed.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Blackheath, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone. It is pleasantly situated on the south bank of the Thames, opposite to the Isle of Dogs, and a short distance eastward of Deptford, or West Greenwich, whence it was formerly called by way of distinction East Greenwich. There was probably a royal residence here in the time of Edward I., and in 1433, Henry VI. granted the manor of East Greenwich to his uncle Humphrey, Duke of Gloucester, with licence to fortify the manor-house and enclose a park of two hundred acres. The duke, in consequence of this grant, built himself a palace, called Placentia, and commenced the erection of a tower on Greenwich Hill, which was completed by Henry VII., and which occupied the site of the royal observatory. On the attainder of the Duke of Gloucester the manor reverted to the crown, and the palace became the frequent residence of the royal family. Henry VIII. was born here, as also were his daughters Mary and Elizabeth, and here took place the death of Edward VI. Queen Elizabeth often held her court at Greenwich, and it was occasionally visited by James I. and Charles I. It was subsequently much neglected, till Charles II. enlarged and planted the park, and gave directions for building a new palace, on a scale of great magnificence, from a design of Inigo Jones. This edifice, which was not finished till the reign of Anne, was converted by grant from William III. into a royal hospital for old disabled seamen, for the widows and children of those who have lost their lives in the naval service, and for the general encouragement of navigation. The hospital, which was completed by Sir Christopher Wren, stands on an elevated terrace, about 865 feet in length, fronting the Thames. It consists of four distinct piles of building, respectively designated from their dates as King Charles's, Queen Anne's, King William's, and Queen Mary's. The interval between the two northern buildings, namely, King Charles's and Queen Anne's, forms the grand square, about 273 feet in width, in the centre of which is a fine statue of George II. executed by Rysbrack, from a single block of white marble, eleven tons in weight; and on the sides of the pedestal are inscriptions, one of which states that the statue was erected in 1735, by Sir John Jennings, governor of the hospital. King Charles's building, on the west side of the great square, has in the centre of the east front a portico of four Corinthian columns, and at each end is a pavilion composed of four columns of the same order, surmounted by an attic story with a balustrade. It contains fourteen wards. Queen Anne's building, on the opposite side of the square, is of corresponding architecture, and it includes several of the officers' apartments, and twenty-four wards. In the north fronts of both these buildings are two pediments, each supported by ranges of coupled Corinthian semi-columns; and pilasters of that order are continued along the building. In the centre of King Charles's building, between the ranges of columns is a doorway with ornaments of the Doric order, and a tablet and pediment. Within the height of these lofty columns are two series of windows, giving light to two stories, and the lowermost have rustic cases crowned with pediments; over these the entablature of the Corinthian columns and pilasters supports a regular attic course, the pilasters of which surmount each column and pilaster of the Corinthian order below, and between the latter the windows are regularly disposed, and the top is finished with a balustrade. To the south of these buildings are the other two, with a colonnade on that side of each building which faces the grand square. These colonnades are 115 feet asunder, and are composed of three hundred duplicated Doric columns and pilasters of Portland stone, twenty feet in height, with an entablature and balustrade. Each colonnade extends 347 feet, having a return pavilion at the north end, seventy feet in length. Queen Mary's is the easternmost of the south buildings. It includes the chapel, the roof of which having been destroyed by fire in January, 1779, was restored from the design of James Stuart, who contributed greatly to the revival of a taste for Grecian architecture in this kingdom. Of this edifice, the Rev. James Dallaway says, "For truly classical design, in which no ornament is applied but from antique example, the chapel of Greenwich Hospital, as restored by the Athenian Stuart, has no rival in England, I had almost said in Italy." Just before the entrance to this chapel is an octangular vestibule, in which are the statues of Faith, Hope, Charity, and Meekness, in separate niches, executed in artificial stone, from designs by West. From this vestibule a flight of fourteen steps leads to the portal, or great door of the chapel, ornamented with an architrave, frieze, and cornice of statuary marble, with sculpture on the frieze, the work of Bacon. In the chapel is a fine organ, made by Samuel Green; the altarpiece is a painting by West, of the Shipwreck of St. Paul at Melita; the pulpit is decorated with carvings in bold relief of scriptural subjects, designed by the artist last mentioned; and the walls are richly adorned with paintings in chiaro scuro. Queen Mary's building likewise comprehends thirteen wards for pensioners. King William's building, opposite to the preceding, contains the Great Hall, 106 feet in length, fifty-six in breadth, and fifty in height, which is profusely decorated with paintings by Sir James Thornhill; and over the doors are tablets inscribed with the names and donations of the principal benefactors to this institution; including King William III., 19,500*l.*; Queen Anne, 6172*l.*; Robert Osboldston, 20,000*l.*; and John Evelyn, 3000*l.* This building comprehends eleven wards for pensioners. King William's and Queen Mary's buildings are both surmounted by domes, of which the tambour is formed by circles of duplicated Corinthian columns, with projecting groups of columns at each of the quoins; and the Attic above each is a circle without breaks, covered with the dome, and terminated by a turret and a vane. There are many portraits and other paintings in various parts of the buildings. The advantages of this noble institution were at first restricted to sailors in the king's service; but a contribution of sixpence a month having, since 1712, been levied on the wages of every mariner, whether in the king's or the merchant service, toward the support of the hospital, its benefits have been extended to merchant seamen, wounded in defending or capturing any ship, or in fight against a pirate. The other sources of the revenue of this hospital arise from the profits of Greenwich market, given by the Earl of Romney in 1700; the profits of the North and the South Foreland lighthouses; 6000*l.* from the duty on coal; the forfeited estates of the Earl of Derwentwater, given in 1732; and other estates, bequeathed at different periods. The government of the hospital is vested in seven commissioners, incorporated by royal charter in 1775. The principal officers are a governor, and lieutenant-governor, four captains, eight lieutenants, a treasurer, a secretary, an auditor, two chaplains, a physician, a surgeon, and others of subordinate degree. The number of the pensioners is 2360, who are provided with clothes, diet, and lodging, besides certain allowances termed tobacco-money. There are, likewise, 150 nurses, who are seamen's widows. In 1763, a detached hospital was erected for the sick pensioners; and in 1783, a school-house was founded, separate from the principal buildings, with a school-room for 200 boys; the latter is a very handsome structure, consisting of a centre and wings, connected by colonnades. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; charged in K. B. 21*l.*; patron, the King. The church, dedicated to St. Alphage, was erected in 1718, in place of an ancient church; and it was one of those raised in pursuance of the act of Parliament passed in the reign of Anne, for building fifty new churches in the metropolis and its vicinity. It is a substantial and handsome structure, with a square tower at the west end, surmounted by a cupola and spire, resting on Corinthian columns. In the interior are painted portraits of Queen Elizabeth, Charles I., Queen Anne, and George I. Another church, of more recent erection, stands on the north side of the hospital, with an adjoining cemetery, in which is a sepulchral monument for Sir Thomas B. Thompson, Bart. Living, a curacy, not in charge, subordinate to the vicarage. The chapelry of the Hospital is also a curacy, not in charge; patronage with the Governors. Here are various places of worship for Dissenters. At one end of the town, near the Thames, is Trinity Hospital, founded in 1613, by Henry Howard, Earl of Northampton for twenty decayed old housekeepers, twelve to be chosen from Greenwich, and eight from the parish of Shottisham, in Norfolk; and it is endowed with property worth about 11,000*l.* per annum, under the management of the Mercers' Company of London. Another almshouse, called Queen Elizabeth's College, was founded in 1560, by Lambard, the Kentish antiquary, for twenty pensioners, under the direction of the Master of the Rolls and the Drapers' Company. In Greenwich Park is the ranger's lodge, commenced by order of the queen consort of James I., and finished for Charles's queen, Henrietta Maria, in 1635, Inigo Jones being the architect. On the summit of the hill, in this park, is likewise the royal Observatory, founded by Charles II. The building was completed in August, 1676; and it is amply furnished with mathematical, chronometrical, and optical instruments, for making astronomical observations, under the direction of a salaried officer, called the Astronomer Royal. Since the year 1767, the observations have been published annually by the Royal Society; and those previously to that year in separate works. The first royal astronomer was Flainstead; and his successors, Dr. Halley, Bliss, Bradley, Maskelyne, and Pond. GREET, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Winchcombe (99) 2 m. Pop. with Pa. A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Winchcombe and lower division of the hundred of Kiftsgate; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Winchcombe, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester, not in charge; patronage with Winchcombe vicarage.

GREET, co. Salop.

P. T. Tenbury (130) 3 m. WNW. Pop. 79.

A parish in the hundred of Overs; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 5*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 114*l.*; patron (1829) Sir H. Edwards, Bart.

GREETHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Horncastle (130) 3½ m. ENE. Pop. 118.

A parish in the hundred of Hill, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Bishop of Lincoln.

GREETHAM, co. Rutland.

P. T. Oakham (95) 6 m. NE. Pop. 541.

A parish in the hundred of Alstoe, an extensive and somewhat important place in the Saxon times, but now only a small, though very pleasant village; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 127*l.*; patron (1829) the Earl of Winchelsea. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a good structure, with a handsome Gothic tower and spire of much more remote a period than the body, and which is seen to great advantage from the surrounding parts of the village. One of the Earls of Nottingham bequeathed 10*l.* per annum to the parish, for the instruction of the poor children in reading the Bible and learning the catechism.

• GREETLAND, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Halifax (197) 3 m. S.

Pop. with Elland township.

A township in the parish of Halifax and wapentake of Morley, a considerable part of which has been reclaimed from the moors. Here was discovered a votive altar, in Camden's time, dedicated to the tutelary god of the city of the Brigantes, of the date of the Emperor Severus.

GREETWELL, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 2 m. E. Pop. 45.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Laures, parts of Lindsey; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 20*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 40*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln.

GREGORY, ST., co. Kent.

P. T. Canterbury (55) m. adjacent. Pop. 372.

An extra-parochial vill in the hundred of Westgate, lathe of St. Augustin.

GREINTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Glastonbury (121) 6½ m. WSW. Pop. 237.

A parish in the hundred of Whitley; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) S. Kikewick, Esq.

GRENCHE, or THE GRANGE, co. Kent.

P. T. Chatham (30) 2 m. S. Pop. 112.

A member of the town and port of Hastings, but locally situated in the parish of Gillingham, and hundred of Chatham and Gillingham, lathe of Aylesford.

GRENDON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Wellingborough (67) 5½ m. S b W. Pop. 597.

A parish in the hundred of Wymersley; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 85*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge.

GRENDON, co. Warwick.

P. T. Atherstone (105) 3 m. N b W. Pop. with Whittington, 551.

A parish in the Tamworth division of the hundred of Hemlingford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Sir G. Chetwynd, Bart.

GRENDON, BISHOP'S, co. Hereford.

P. T. Bromyard (125) 4 m. WNW. Pop. 212.

A parish in the hundred of Broxash; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Bromyard, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; certified value 6*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 61*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, the Vicar of Bromyard.

GRENDON, UNDERWOOD, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Bicester (64) 7 m. E b S. Pop. 312.

A parish in the hundred of Ashendon; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Leonard; patron (1829) W. Pigott, Esq.

GRENDON WARREN, co. Hereford.

P. T. Bromyard (125) 5 m. W. Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Pencombe and hundred of Broxash; living, a curacy with that of Bishop's Grendon, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 2*l.*; patronage with Bishop's Grendon curacy.

GRESFORD, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Wrexham (179) 5 m. NE.

Pop. of Pa. 3166. Of To. 487. Fairs, 2d Mond. in April; last Mond. in Aug.; and 1st Mond. in Dec.

A township and parish, partly in the hundred of Bromfield, and partly in the hundred of Mold, in the county of Flint, situated in a rich and fertile district, on the banks of the Alen river, near to its junction with the river Dee. It is mostly occupied by the seats of gentry; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph; charged in K. B. 21*l.* 2*s.* 3*d.*; patron, the Bishop.

The church is an elegant piece of architecture; the steeple contains the finest ring of bells in North Wales, and within the chancel is the tomb of Maeloc-ap-Llewellyn-ap-Gryffyd, who died in 1313. There are besides several handsome pieces of modern monumental sculpture, one of which, to the memory of John Parry, Esq., is by Westmacott.

GRESHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Cromer (132) 4½ m. SW b W. Pop. 351.
A parish in the hundred of North Erpingham; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Rev. J. Spurgin.

GRESSINGHALL, co. Norfolk.

P. T. East Dereham (100) 2 m. NW. Pop. 861. Fair, Dec. 6, for toys, &c.
A parish in the hundred of Launditch; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) John Hill, Esq.

GRESSINGHAM, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Lancaster (240) 9 m. NE. Pop. 201.
A township and chapelry in the parish of Lancaster and hundred of Lonsdale, south of the sands; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 9*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 93*l.*; patron, the Vicar of Lancaster.

GRETTY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Nantwich (161) 4 m. ESE. Pop. with Shavington Township.
A township in the parish of Wybunbury and hundred of Nantwich.

GRETA BRIDGE, N. R. co. York.

London 212 m. NNW. Pop. with Pa.
A hamlet in the parish of Brignall and wapentake of Gilling West, which takes its name from a bridge of one arch, over the river Greta, rising in Stainmoor Forest, and falling into the Tees, not far hence; on each side the bridge is a good posting-inn. The vestiges of a Roman camp are visible in this neighbourhood.

GRETNA GREEN. See Graetna.

GRETTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Winchcombe (99) 2 m. NW b N. Pop. 211.
A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Winchcombe and lower division of the hundred of Kiftsgate; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Winchcombe, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester, not in charge; patronage with Winchcombe vicarage.

GRETTON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Rockingham (83) 3 m. NE. Pop. 687.
A parish in the hundred of Corby, with the curacy of Duddington, and a peculiar in the archdeaconry of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 19*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. James; patron, the Prebendary of Gretton, in Lincoln cathedral.

GREWELL, co. Southampton.

P. T. Odiham (40) 2 m. W. Pop. 230.
A parish in the hundred of Odiham, Basingstoke division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Odiham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; patronage with Odiham vicarage.
GREY'S FOREST, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 4 m. Pop. 54.
A township in the parish of Kirk Newton and west division of Glendale ward.

GREYSTOCK, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (283) 5 m. W. Pop. of Pa. 2419. Of To. 255.
A parish and township in Leath ward, beautifully situated in a fine country, near the source of the river Peterhill; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle; valued in K. B. 40*l.* 7*s.* 8½*d.*; patron (1829) William Moor, Esq. The church, ded. to St. Andrew, is a fine spacious edifice, consisting of a choir, chancel, and side aisles, and in which is a fine alabaster tomb of some of the barons of Greystock. In 1383 it became a collegiate with a master and six canons, whose stalls still remain. Here is a handsome castle, situated in an extensive park, finely decorated with wood and water. This estate was greatly improved by the late Duke of Norfolk.

GREYTREE, co. Hereford.

Pop. 11,021.
A hundred on the south-eastern extremity of the county, bounded on the west by the river Wye, and bordering upon Gloucestershire, containing nineteen parishes.

GRIBTHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Howden (180) 5½ m. N b E. Pop. with Willifloft, 115.
A township in the parish of Bubwith and Holme Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill.

GRIMLEY, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) 5 m. N b W. Pop. 668.
A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Oswaldslow; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacy of Hallow, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 13*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to Bartholomew; patron, the Bishop of Worcester.

GRIMOLDBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (140) 6 m. E. Pop. 228.
A parish in the Marsh division of the hundred of Louth Eske, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 116*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. Edith; patron (1829) Lord Middleton.

GRIMSARGH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (217) 5 m. NE. Pop. with Brockholes, 343.
A township and chapelry in the parish of Preston and hundred of Amounderness; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 112*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Vicar of Preston. Here are several pleasant seats.

GRIMSAY, shire of Inverness, S.

Pop. with Pa.

An island of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of North Uist. It is two miles in length, and only important for the quantity of kelp made on its shores, the surface, being covered with heath and extremely barren. It is a peninsula at low water.

GRIMSBY, GREAT, co. Lincoln.

London 165 m. N. Pop. 3061. M. D. Wed. Fairs, June 17, for sheep; and Sept. 15, for horses. Memb. of Pt. 2.

A borough, market, and seaport town, consisting of the parishes of St. James and St. Mary, having separate jurisdiction, but locally situated in the wapentake of Bradley Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey, near the mouth of the river Humber. It is said by some historians that this town was founded by a merchant named Gryne, who became very wealthy in consequence of having brought up an exposed child, who proved to be of royal Danish blood; this, though by many considered fabulous, is emblematically acknowledged in the corporation seal. The town consists of several good streets, the houses in which are for the most part well-built; it was formerly of much greater extent, trade, and consequence than at present. A considerable time since, it almost lost its trade, in consequence of the harbour having become choked up; but it has been improved, and a dock constructed at a considerable expense, which caused the trade again to revive, which is now carried on chiefly with the Baltic and Humber, in coals and salt, the manufactures here being of little importance. Grimsby is one of the most ancient boroughs in the kingdom, and was a mayoralty in the reign of King John, when the charter was granted for the market and fairs. It is governed by a mayor, recorder, eleven aldermen, a high steward, twelve common-councilmen, two coroners, two bailiffs, two chamberlains, a townclerk, and three serjeants-at-mace. The mayor, with two of the aldermen, who are annually elected justices of the peace, holds a court every Tuesday; the bailiffs every Friday. It sends two members to parliament, which privilege it has used since the reign of Edward I.; the right of election is in all the free burgesses paying scot and lot. The mayor is the returning officer. Any inhabitant marrying the daughter of a widow of a freeman, is entitled to the freedom of the town. The livings are two vicarages in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* and 7*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 104*l.*; patron (1829) George Robert Heneage, Esq. The church ded. to St. James, the only remaining one of two which Grimsby formerly possessed, is a spacious structure, built in the form of cross, with a tower rising from the centre; it was originally larger than at present, but a part of the choir fell down in 1600. The steeple is considered to be a very fine specimen of English pointed architecture. Here were formerly a monastery of Grey Friars, a convent of Benedictine nuns, and priory of Augustine canons; the latter was founded by Henry I. In this neighbourhood are some of those singular springs called Blow-wells, the water of which always rises to the surface of the ground but never overflows it. The eminently distinguished prelate Dr. John Whitgift, archbishop of Canterbury, born 1530, was a native of this town.

GRIMSBY, LITTLE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (149) 3 m. N. Pop. 67.

A parish in the wapentake of Ludborough, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 78*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Edith; patron (1829) the Duke of St. Alban's.

GRIMSHOE, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 5874.

A hundred, situated at the south side of the county, separated from Suffolk by the Little Ouse, containing sixteen parishes.

GRIMSTEAD, EAST, co. Wilts.

P. T. Salisbury (81) 5½ m. ESE. Pop. 107.

A chapelry in the parish of West Dean and hundred of Alderbury; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of West Dean, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; patronage with West Dean rectory.

GRIMSTEAD, WEST, co. Wilts.

P. T. Salisbury (81) 5 m. ESE. Pop. 161.

A parish in the hundred of Alderbury; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. at 7*l.* 10*s.* 2½*d.*; patron (1829) the Earl of Hereford.

GRIMSTON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Melton-Mowbray (105) 5 m. WNW. Pop. 200.

A parish in the hundred of East Goscote; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Rothley, and a peculiar of Rothley, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 35*l.*; patronage with Rothley vicarage.

GRIMSTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Castle-Rising (100) 4 m. SE b E. Pop. 918.

A parish in the Lynn division of the hundred of Freebridge; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Botolph; patron, Queen's College, Cambridge.

GRIMSTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. York (106) 2½ m. E b S. Pop. 72.

A township in the parish of Dunnington and wapentake of Ouse and Derwent.

GRIMSTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Helmsley (222) 6 m. S. Pop. 56.

A township in the parish of Gilling and wapentake of Ryedale.

GRIMSTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Tadcaster (190) 2 m. S. Pop. 62.

A township in the parish of Kirkby-Wharfe and upper division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash.

GRIMSTON, NORTH, E. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 5½ m. SE b E. Pop. 139.

A parish, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Buckrose; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Prebendary of Langtoft, in York cathedral.GRIMSTONE, co. Dorset.

P. T. Dorchester (110) 4 m. NW b W. Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish of Stratton and hundred of George, Dorchester division.

GRIMSWORTH, co. Hereford.

Pop. 6620.

A hundred in the centre of the county, bounded on the south and west by the river Wye, containing twenty-three parishes.

GRIMTHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Pocklington (212) 3 m. N. Pop. 29.

A township in the parish of Gwendale, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the Wilton Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill.

GRINDALL, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Bridlington (206) 4 m. NW. Pop. 107.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Bridlington, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Dickering; living, a curacy, with that of Bridlington, in the archdeaconry of the East Riding of York and diocese of York; certified value 5*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 95*l.*; patron (1829) John Greame, Esq.GRINDLETON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Clitheroe (217) 3 m. NNE. Pop. 1125.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Mitton and west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Mitton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 4*l.* 3*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 95*l.*; patron, the Vicar of Mitton.GRINDLOW, co. Derby.

P. T. Tideswell (160) 2½ m. NE b E. Pop. 119.

A township in the parish of Hope and hundred of High Peak.

GRINDON, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Wooller (320) 11 m. NNW. Pop. 173.

A township in the parish of Norham, in Northamshire. The interest of 60*l.* was given for the poor of this township by an unknown person, and in 1787 was vestedin the Rev. Mr. Davison, who was to pay 3*l.* per annum for it.GRINDON, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Stockton-upon-Tees (211) 7 m. NW b N. Pop. of Pa. 314. Of To. 255.

A parish and township in the north-east division of Stockton ward; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 11*s.* 5½*d.*; patron, Sherburn Hospital. The church, dedicated to St. Thomas-à-Becket, is a small edifice standing in the fields a short distance from the village.GRINDON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Leek (151) 6 m. E b S. Pop. of Pa. 455. Of To. 219.

A parish and township in the north division of the hundred of Totmonslow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Rev. J. Bradshaw.GRINGLEY-ON-THE-HILL, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Bawtry (153) 6 m. ESE. Pop. 647.

A parish in the North Clay division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, situated on lofty grounds in a very picturesque part of the county; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.*; patron (1829) the Duke of Rutland. The church, dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, is a neat structure with a fine pinnaced tower. In the vicinity are some mounds, said to be the remains of Saxon or Danish works.GRINSDALE, or GREENSDALE, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 2½ m. NW b W. Pop. 138.

A parish in Cumberland ward, situated on the south side of the river Eden; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle, of the certified value of 2*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; patroness (1829) Mrs. Dacre. The church, dedicated to St. Kentigern, is a freestone building, and forms a pleasing object on the banks of the river. The Carlisle canal and site of the old Roman wall cross this parish; near the latter are two large square intrenchments.GRINSHILL, co. Salop.

P. T. Shrewsbury (153) 8 m. NNE. Pop. 211.

A parish in the liberty of the town of Shrewsbury; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; certified value 18*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 62*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) John Wood, Esq.GRINSTEAD, WEST, co. Sussex.

P. T. Horsham (36) 7½ m. S. Pop. 1229.

A parish in the hundred of West Grinstead, rape of Bramber; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 25*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. George ; patron (1829) T. Woodward, Esq.

GRINSTHORPE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Corby (105) 4 m. E b S. Pop. 90.

A hamlet in the parish of Edenham and wapentake of Bettisloe, parts of Kesteven. The seat of the Duke of Ancaster is one of the most beautiful in the county ; it was originally built by Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, to entertain King Henry in his visits to this part of the country.

GRINTON-IN-SWALE-DALE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Richmond (233) 9½ m. W b S. Pop. 5300.

A parish, partly in the wapentake of Hang West, and partly in the wapentake of Gilling West, situated on the river Swale, and extending to the borders of Westmorland ; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester ; valued in K. B. 12l. 5s. 7d. ; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church, dedicated to St. Andrew, is an ancient structure. Fairs were formerly held here, but have been removed to Reeth.

GRISKAY, shire of Inverness, S.

An uninhabited island of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of Barray, and lying at the entrance of Ottervore, a roadstead much frequented by ships employed in trading to and from the Baltic.

GRISTHORPE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Scarborough (217) 6 m. SE. Pop. 212.

A township in the parish of Filey and east division of Pickering Lythe.

GRISTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Watton (91) 2 m. SE. Pop. 198.

A parish in the hundred of Wayland ; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich, valued in K. B. 7l. 8s. 9d. ; church ded. to St. Margaret ; patron, the Bishop of Ely.

GRITTENHAM, co. Wilts.

P. T. Wotton-Basset (90) 2 m. W. Pop. 154.

A tithing in the parish of Brinkworth and hundred of Malmesbury.

GRITTLETON, co. Wilts.

P. T. Chippenham (93) 7 m. NW b N. Pop. 354.

A parish in the hundred of North Damerham ; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury ; valued in K. B. 13l. 10s. ; church ded. to St. Mary ; patrons (1829) Mrs. Pollock and others. Many fossils have been found in this parish, particularly of small shell-fish.

GROAY, shire of Inverness, S.

An uninhabited island of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of Harris, and lying in that sound.

GRONDRE, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Haverford West (251) m. E. Pop. 20.

The smallest and least populous township in the county ; it includes a hamlet of the same name, and is in the parish of Kill-y-men-llwyd and hundred of Dungleddy.

GROOBY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (96) 4 m. NW b W. Pop. 324.

A hamlet in the parish of Ratby and hundred of Sparkenhoe. It was anciently a market-town, and gave title of baron to the Earls of Stamford.

GROOMBRIDGE, co. Kent.

P. T. Tunbridge Wells (36) 4 m. W b S. Pop. with Pa.

A chapelry in the parish of Speldhurst, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone, formerly a possession of the Cobhams, who, in the reign of Edward I., obtained the grant for a market here ; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Speldhurst, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester, not in charge ; patronage with Speldhurst rectory.

GROOMS PORT, co. Down, Ulster, I.

P. T. Bangor (113) 3 m. NE. Pop. 318.

A village in the parish of Bangor and barony of Ardes, situated upon a little bay, on the south side of Belfast Lough. It was in the small bay of Grooms Port that Duke Schomberg cast anchor, on the 13th of August, 1689, bringing with him a force of 10,000 men, to sustain the cause of William III. in Ireland.

GROSMONT, or GRYSMONT, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Abergaveenny (146) 12 m. NE. Pop. 701.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Skenfrith, and though now only a small village, it was anciently a market-town of some consequence. It is still governed by a mayor and burgesses ; living, a dis. rectory with that of Llangua, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff ; valued in K. B. 6l. 5s. 2½d. ; ann. val. P. R. 73l. 19s. 11d. ; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church, ded. to St. Nicholas, is a handsome structure, in the pointed style, with a fine octagonal tower. Here are the remains of an ancient castle, belonging to the Duke of Beaufort, who takes the title of Viscount from this place. The scenery here is very romantic and beautiful, with the river Monnow, rendering it still more picturesque.

GROSMONT, or GRANDIMONT-IN-ESK DALE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Whithy (239) 7 m. WSW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Egton and east division of the liberty of Langbaugh. Here was formerly an abbey, founded in the reign of King John, as a cell to that of Gramont, in France. The remains have been converted into a farm-house.

GROTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Buxford (66) 1 m. N. Pop. 597.

A parish in the hundred of Babergh ; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich ; valued in K. B. 8l. 1s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patrons (1829) J. W. Willm, Esq. and others.

GROVE, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Leighton Buzzard (11) 2½ m. S.
Pop. 18.

A parish in the hundred of Cottesloe; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 4l. 13s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 40l. 12s. 3d.; patron (1829) the Earl of Chesterfield.

GROVE, co. Nottingham.

P. T. East Retford (145) 3 m. ESE.
Pop. 106.

A parish in the South Clay division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, near a line of the Roman road; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 11l. 14s. 2d.; patron (1829) A. H. Eyre, Esq. The church, dedicated to St. Helen, contains some ancient monuments. Grove Hall is a very handsome seat, in an elevated situation, and surrounded by a finely-wooded park. The moat, on Castle Hill, is said to have been occupied by the Romans, although originally a British work.

GROVENING, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Thornbury (120) 3 m. S b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Alveston and lower division of the hundred of Langley and Swineshead. Here, on the brow of a hill, is a large circular encampment, with double ramparts and ditches; near the same spot, is an immense tumulus, which, being opened in the year 1670, was found to contain several stone coffins, with human bones.

GRUMBALD'S ASH, co. Gloucester.

Pop. 879.

A hundred, situated at the south-eastern extremity of the county, bordering on Wiltshire, containing twenty parishes.

GRUNA, shires of Orkney and Shetland, S.

One of the Shetland islands, forming part of the parish of Fetlar, and lying northward therefrom. It is uninhabited.

GRUNDISBURGH, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Woodbridge (37) 3 m. NW b W.
Pop. 815.

A parish in the hundred of Carleford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 17l. 11s. 3d.; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a good building, with a fine steeple, which was rebuilt by the executors of Mr. Robert Thing, who left an estate for that purpose, in the middle of the eighteenth century; the original had fallen down about the time of the Reformation.

GRWYNEY, or GROYNÉ VAWR, co. Brecon, S. W.

P. T. Hay (156) m. SW. Pop. 17.

A hamlet in the parish and hundred of Talgarth, situated upon the river Grwyney.

GRWYNEY, or GROYNÉ VYCHAN, co. Brecon, S. W.

P. T. Hay (156) m. SW. Pop. 100.

A hamlet in the parish and hundred of Talgarth, situated upon the Grwyney river.

GUATHALI, or GUEL.

One of the Scilly islands, lying to the westward of Brechar. It is very small, comprising only ten acres.

GUELDABLE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Thirsk (217) 7 m. N. Pop. 128.

A township in the parish of Leek and wapentake of Birdforth.

GUERNSEY, Island of.

NE to SW, extreme length, 9 m. NW to SE, about 6 m. Pop. 20,827. Parishes 10. 1 Town. Diocese of Winchester, Province of Canterbury.

An island lying within the bay of Mount St. Michael, in the English Channel, near the coasts of the ancient French provinces of Normandy and Bretagne, to which it was probably once united. It is mentioned in the Itinerary of Antoninus, under the name of Sarnia, or, according to some antiquaries, under that of Casarea, which appellation has more commonly been applied to Jersey. This island, together with those of Alderney, Serk, Herm and Jethou, forming one bailiwick, anciently made a part of the duchy of Normandy; and when Henry I. in 1108 wrested that country from his brother Robert, these islands and Jersey, as a part of the duchy, were annexed to the realm of England, and have ever since been attached to it, notwithstanding the loss of Normandy, and the repeated attempts of the French to conquer them. The general form of this island is triangular, and its whole circumference is indented with bays and inlets. The south coast consists of one range of rocky cliffs, continued on the east to St. Peter's Port, and rising almost perpendicularly to the height of 270 feet above the level of the sea. On the north and west the shore is chiefly low, and diversified with a succession of bays, separated by headlands; and off the land at various distances the island is surrounded by sunk rocks and crags, which, in conjunction with the confluence of sea-currents, render the approach extremely dangerous to strangers, and serve as a safeguard against foreign invasion. Every part of the coast is also fortified with batteries and breastworks, besides the regular fort and citadel; the whole manned with a proper military force. Among the curiosities of the coast is La Cave Mahie, on a level with the sea, at the foot of a rock near Prevolet Point. It is more than 200 feet deep, and from the entrance, about ten feet in breadth and six in height, it extends to fifty feet in either direction, and terminates in granite points. The whole foundation of the island appears to consist of granitic rock, and several of the heights are composed of granite columns, which seem to have been raised by the operation of some power acting vertically. The interior of the island is diversified on the surface by hills and valleys, the latter of which are rich and well cultivated, being watered by several small streams, which, collected, turn overshot mill-wheels. The higher ground comprises much good arable land; and the rocky cliffs are covered with herbage, forming fine pasture for sheep. Vegetables in great variety are plentifully produced, and of good quality. Timber is scarce, and the fields are commonly divided by turf-banks, surmounted with furze. Fruit-trees grow luxuriantly, especially the fig-tree; and so genial is the climate, that myrtles and geraniums flourish in the open ground, and even the orange-tree advances to fructification, with the aid of shelter during the severity of winter. The rural economy of Guernsey is chiefly distinguished by the absence of summer fallows, the necessity of which is obviated by manuring the fields with sea-weed, or vrac, an article which is also used for fuel, and is considered of so much importance, that local regulations have been made, prohibiting the collection of this marine plant, except at Midsummer and Michaelmas. Fish is taken on the shores in great abundance, the most common being the mackerel, the sea-needle or gar-pike, whiting, pollack, bream, and rock-fish; besides mullet, soles, plaice, and conger-eels, the lastmentioned of which sometimes weigh thirty or forty pounds. Among the marine productions are likewise the ormer, or sea-ear, a shell-fish regarded as a culinary delicacy; the aphrodita aculeator, or sea-mouse, having a coat of fine down, of a beautiful changeable colour; and those singular zoophytes, called sea-anemonies, or animal-flowers. The only reptiles here are slow-worms and lizards. This island, like Alderney, is famous for its breed of kine, so valuable for the purposes of the dairy; and the swine grow to a large size, and are often fattened for bacon. Here is cultivated in great perfection that beautiful flower the Guernsey lily, Amaryllis Sarniensis, which is supposed to be a native of Japan, and to have been introduced into this island about the middle of the seventeenth century, in consequence of the wreck of a vessel, on board which were some of the roots, which vegetated in the sand on the sea-shore. The inhabitants of this island are principally of Norman or Breton extraction; and their language is a provincial dialect of the French, the higher ranks only speaking English. Their local appellatives are in general derived from the Celtic, except such as are manifestly of modern origin. There are many peculiar customs prevalent among the common people, who still retain the characteristics of temperance and sobriety for which their ancestors were distinguished, as we are informed by William of Malmsbury, in the twelfth century. The exterior of the farm-houses has an imposing appearance, in point of size and ornament, when compared with the interior, where are found plain walls, an earthen floor, and a supply of kitchen utensils in almost every apartment, while the spacious entrance is usually crowded with barrels of cider, large shining brass kettles, and harness and saddles for horses. The ordinary food of the farmers and peasantry is a kind of soup made of cabbage, fat, flour, and undried bacon; and this seemingly uninviting dish, improved with a small portion of beef, is not only the favourite holiday fare, but is also found at the tables of the gentry. One article of furniture deserves notice for its singularity. In one corner of the ordinary sitting-room of every cottage is what is popularly termed a green bed, raised about eighteen inches from the floor, and covered with dry fern, or potatoe-straw, serving the purpose of a common couch, or sofa. The prevailing amusements are dancing, especially on festival days; and riding in parties in the month of August, a custom supposed to be derived from a procession of the Abbot of St. Michael's through the island, in former times. Popular superstitions are fast disappearing, though but a few years have elapsed since the authority of the Royal Court was exerted to discourage witch-finders; and more recently some persons amused themselves by reviving the apparition of the Bete-la-twa, an imaginary spectre, supposed to perambulate the town of St. Peter's Port at Christmas. Guernsey, though annexed to the crown of Britain, is considered by some as appertaining to the sovereign in right of his ancient claim to the duchy of Normandy, and it is therefore contended that the legislative authority is vested in the king in council, and not in the parliament. The judicial and executive power is exercised by different bodies, collectively designated the assembly of the states, consisting of a bailiff, twelve jurats, the procureur or attorney-general of the royal court, the eight rectors of the ten parishes, two constables from each parish, and 132 douzainiers from the whole. The levy of money for public expenses is committed to the states of deliberation, composed of the bailiff, the jurats, the procureur, the rectors, and the constables and douzainiers of each parish, who have each a single vote, making thirty-two votes in all. But, unless in peculiar emergencies, the taxes imposed by this body must receive the royal approval before they can be levied. The revenue consists in general taxes, harbour-dues, and duties paid by licensed victuallers, and retailers of liquors. The royal court consists of the bailiff and twelve jurats, with the procureur, comptroller, provost, or king's sheriff, greffier, or registrar, and king's serjeant. The legal institutions are founded upon the feudal law, derived from Normandy. In criminal cases the assessors are rather guided by their own judgment than by written statutes. Among the peculiarities of judicial usage, are the limitation of children, by the marriage of their parents, subsequently to their birth, as is the case in Scotland; and the exoneration of an insolvent from his debts, on surrendering, on oath, all his property, except his clothes, bed, and arms, and promising to pay his creditors in full if he should ever have it in his power. Formerly, the insolvent, who took advantage of this law, was obliged to wear a green cap, and divest himself of his girdle; but this illiberal custom has been discontinued. With the increase of commerce, the English bankrupt-laws have sometimes been adopted in this island; trial by jury is still entirely unknown here. Commercial pursuits were, in a great degree, superseded by smuggling, both in this and the rest of the Anglo-Norman islands, previously to the act of Parliament, passed in 1807, subjecting these islands to our revenue laws. Since that period, the people have turned their attention to foreign trade, which is chiefly carried on with the Spanish and Portuguese establishments in America, with Newfoundland, and with various European ports. The produce of the island affords but few articles for exportation. Cows are sometimes sent to England, where they fetch high prices; and a considerable quantity of granite, for paving, is shipped for this country. The shipping belonging to Guernsey, in 1813, amounted to ninety-three vessels, collectively, of 10,892 tons burden. Christianity is said to have been introduced into Guernsey by St. Sampson and St. Magloire, Breton bishops, about the middle of the sixth century; and till the reformation the island was subject to the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Constance, in Normandy; but in the reign of Elizabeth it was transferred to the see of Winchester, to which it has ever since belonged. But though the established religion is that of the church of England, yet the religious services are not unmarked by traits of Calvinistic discipline, which prevailed here till the time of Charles II. There are ten parishes: St. Sampson's, the dedication of the church of which took place in 1111; St. Michael's, or the Vale Church, dedication 1117; St. Philip's of Torteval, dedication 1130; St. Saviour's, dedication 1154; St. Margaret's of the Forest, dedication 1163; St. Peter's of the Wood, dedication 1167; St. Martin's, dedication 1199; Our Lady of the Deliverance of the Castle, dedication 1203; St. Andrew's, dedication 1284; and St. Peter's Port, dedication 1312. The livings are said to be of small value, from the loss of the greater tithes, which, having been appropriated to Norman monasteries, were seized by the crown at the Reformation. St. Michael's of the Vale is held with the benefice of St. Sampson; and St. Margaret's of the Forest with that of Torteval. The churches are all in the Gothic style, and were probably erected in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, except that of St. Sampson, which has the appearance of greater antiquity. In the Vale parish was a small monastery, or priory, of Benedictines, founded about 962, by the monks of Mount St. Michael, Normandy; and in St. Saviour's parish was the priory of Lihou, founded in 1114, on a small island of that name, which, at low water, has a communication with the mainland. Here are Calvinistic and Wesleyan Methodists, the latter said to be very numerous, Quakers, and Baptists, and likewise Roman Catholics. The island contains some cromlechs, and other antique remains, supposed to be Druidical. There were also anciently four castles, the principal of which is Castle Cornet, situated on a rock, about a quarter of a mile from the shore, opposite the town of St. Peter's. Its foundation has been ascribed to the Romans, but it may with more probability be attributed to Duke Robert, the father of William the Conqueror. In the reign of Edward I. it was taken by the French; and during the civil war, Sir Peter Osborne held it for some time against the Parliamentary forces in possession of Guernsey. It formerly consisted of a keep, now made into casemates, and an outer wall of great thickness, flanked by several machicolated towers; but in 1672 it was greatly injured by an explosion of the magazine during a thunder-storm; and it has been much altered by modern engineers. Here the governor of the island resided at a former period; but it is now only occupied by a party of soldiers. The castle in the marshes appears to have been a Norman structure; the site is laid out in garden-ground belonging to the governor. The Vale Castle, occupying a commanding eminence, near St. Sampson's Harbour, has still its ramparts, mounted with cannon, and barracks for troops. Of the Castle du Grand Geoffrey, which stood in the parish of Our Lady of the Deliverance, there are no remains. The only town on the island is St. Peter's Port, situated on the eastern coast, with a good harbour, formed by a pier, extending towards the north 469 feet, and towards the south 757 feet; the entrance being defended by Castle Cornet. Its origin is uncertain; but from the date of the foundation of the church, it may be inferred that the town was in a flourishing state in the beginning of the fourteenth century. Within the barriers are only about 235 houses, but the suburbs are extensive, and the population has been estimated at more than 11,000. The streets are narrow and inconvenient, but considerable improvements have been recently made, and others are projected. There are but few public buildings, among which is the new court-house, a neat granite edifice; and there is a town-hospital, or workhouse, a useful institution for the employment of the indigent, and the correction of offenders. The education of youth is, in some degree, provided for by a college, or free grammar-school, founded by Queen Elizabeth. The town has a small theatre, which is opened during a few months periodically, for dramatic performances. At a short distance from the town, towards the south, is Fort George, seated on an eminence; and in other part of the island are fortresses and barrack of modern erection. The government Guernsey is vested in a military governor appointed by the king; and the executive duties are usually delegated to a lieutenant governor, also of royal appointment.

GUESTLING, co. Sussex.

Pop. 2059.

A hundred in the rape of Hastings, at the east end of the county, containing four parishes.

GUESTLING, co. Sussex.

P. T. Winchelsea (64) 4 m. WSW.

Pop. 607.

A parish in the hundred of Guestling, rape of Hastings; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 0*s.* 7½*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Sir W. Ashburnham, Bart., who has a handsome sea here.

GUESTWICK, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Reepham (111) 5 m. NW. Pop. 171.

A parish in the hundred of Eynesford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 88*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) W. E. Bulwer, Esq.

GULDEN MORDEN, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Biggleswade (45) 5½ m. E. Pop. 570.

A parish in the hundred of Armingford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Jesus College, Cambridge.

GILDEN SUTTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 3 m. ENE. Pop. 131.

A parish in the hundred of Broxtow; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 12*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 50*l.*

GUILDFORD, co. Surrey.

London 29 m. SW. Pop. 3161. M. D. Tu Fairs, May 4, and Nov. 22, for horses, cattle, sheep, and hogs. Memb. of Pt. 2.

A borough and market-town, having separate jurisdiction, and comprising the three parishes of St. Mary, St. Nicholas, and St. Trinity, in the hundred of Woking, pleasantly situated on the side of a chalk hill, on the high road to Portsmouth, and east side of the river Wey, which was made navigable about the year 1656, and over which there is a bridge of five arches. The town consists chiefly of one long and wide street, which is remarkably clean and well-built. Here is an elegant town-hall, and also a council-chamber. An elegant county-hall, with suitable offices, and a theatre, were built in 1789. The gaol was rebuilt with stone in 1765. At a short distance from the town is a circular race-course, where a plate of the value of 105*l.*, left by William III., is annually run for in Whitsun-week; three subscription-plates, besides private matches, are also run for, which draw a very fashionable company of visit-ers to Guildford. The ancient cock-pit has been converted into a butter and poultry-market. From hence is a road to Horsham, opening a communication with Brighton and the Sussex coast; and another to Farnham, running along a high and narrow ridge of chalk hills, commanding a very picturesque view of this part of the country. By means of the river, the town carries on a considerable trade in timber, corn, malt, and beer, with the metropolis. The clothing-trade formerly flourished here, but has now quite declined. Guildford is a borough by prescription, but it is uncertain in what reign it was incorporated, though by some believed to have been in that of Henry I.; the earliest of its written charters is of the date of 1256, and reign of Henry III. The corporation consists of a mayor, recorder, seven magistrates, and twenty bailiffs, who hold a court every third week, and have the power of adjudging criminals to death at their sessions. The mayor, recorder, and two of the bailiffs are justices of the peace for the corporation and liberties of Soke-above-Bar. The town has sent two members to Parliament since the reign of Edward I. The electors consist of the free-men and freeholders of the borough, paying scot and lot, and resident within its limits, which do not include more than half the town. The mayor is the returning-officer. The livings are three rectories in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. - St. Mary's, 12*l.* 5*s.* 5*d.*; St. Nicholas', 21*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.*; St. Trinity's, 11*l.* 11*s.* 0½*d.*; patrons, of St. Mary's and St. Trinity's, which are united, the Lord Chancellor; of St. Nicholas, the Dean of Salisbury. The parish churches, three in number, are all ancient structures; that of St. Trinity is situated on the top of the hill to the south of the High Street. The Baptists, Presbyterians, Quakers, and Roman Catholics, also have chapels here. Here were formerly two monastic institutions, one of which was founded for Dominican friars by Queen Eleanor, consort of Henry III. The remains of one serve the judges at the time of the assizes, which are held here, at Kingston, and at Croydon, alternately. Here is a large free grammar-school, founded by Edward VI. In 1691, Joseph Nettle, a native of the town, who had been brought up at this school, left seven acres of land towards the maintenance of a scholar at Cambridge or Oxford. The town possesses also a charity-school, in which twenty-five boys are educated and annually clothed. Guildford has been the residence of many of our sovereigns, and formerly had a fine castle, now in ruins; the square tower, which is the principal remaining part, and has been a place of great strength, is built of flints, ragstone, and Roman bricks. On the declivity of a hill so are the remains of a once extensive palace. Among the distinguished individuals to whom this town has given birth, are Robert and George Abbot, the former Bishop of Salisbury, the latter Archbishop of Canterbury; John Parkenhurst, Bishop of Norwich; and the eminent artist, John Russell, R. A. Guildford gives the title of Earl to the North family.

GUILSBOROUGH, co. Northampton.

Pop. 9377.

A hundred situated on the north-western side of the county, and separated from Leicestershire by the river Avon, containing seventeen parishes.

GUILSBOROUGH, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (66) 10½ m. NW b N.
Pop. 950.

A parish in the hundred of Guilsborough, supposed to derive its name from a large Roman encampment, of nearly eight acres, in the form of a parallelogram, situated between the sources of the Nen and the Avon, being surrounded by a single foss and vallum. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 17l. 3s. 4d.; patron (1829) the Rev. Thomas Sykes. The church, ded. to St. Etheldred, has a fine lofty spire, forming a pleasing object from some parts of the neighbourhood. Near the church is Guilsborough Hall, a large mansion, seated on an eminence, and appealing to much advantage. Here are two schools, the one a freeschool, another a free grammar-school; the latter was founded and endowed by Sir John Langham in 1688.

GUILSFIELD, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Welshpool (171) 3 m. N. Pop. 3121.

A parish in the hundred of Pool. It contains six townships, and the chapelry of Llanfechan, the inhabitants being a good deal employed in the manufacture of flannel; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph. Here is a freeschool, having an endowment of 10l. per annum for education, and 5l. for clothing. Area of the parish, 13,684 acres.

GUILTCROSS, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 6539.

A hundred on the south side of the county, divided from Suffolk by the river Ouse, and containing twelve parishes.

GUISBOROUGH, or GISBOROUGH, N. R. co. York.

London 245 m. N b W. Pop. of Pa. 2189.
Of Po. 1912. M.D. Mond. Fairs, last Tu. in March; last Tues. in April; 3d Tues. in May; 3d Tues. in Aug.; 3d Tues. in Sept. and 2d Tues. in Nov.

A market-town, parish, and township, in the east division of the liberty of Langbaugh, situated in a narrow but fertile and romantic vale, situated at a short distance from the river Tees. The town, which is ancient, consists chiefly of one large broad street, the houses of which are neatly and substantially built. The first alumn-works in England were established here, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, by Sir Thomas Chaloner, who brought his art from Rome. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 100l.; patron, the Archbishop of York. The church is dedicated to St. Nicholas. Here are a grammar-school, and an almshouse, for six poor persons, founded in 1561. Here was formerly a priory of Austin friars, now in ruins; one large window still remains, which is considered very beautiful.

GUISLEY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Otley (205) 2 m. S b W.
Pop. of Pa. 8409. Of To. 1213.

A parish and township in the upper division of the wapentake of Skyrack; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 26l.; patrons (1829) J. L. Fox, Esq. two turns, and Trinity College one turn. The church, ded. to St. Oswald, though of a singular mixture of architecture, is very beautiful, and of great antiquity.

GUIST, or GEIST, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Reepham (111) 7 m. WNW. Pop. 308.]

A parish in the hundred of Eynesford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5l. 15s. 5d.; ann. val. P. R. 95l.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) the Rev. W. Norris. Here is a bridge over the river Wensum.

GULBERWICK, shires of Orkney and Shetland, S.

Pop. 331.

An ancient parish, united to that of Lerwick, in Mainland Shetland. It is five miles in length, and two in breadth, very mountainous, and almost covered with heath; a few spots only by the sea-side being verdant. The inhabitants are mostly fishermen.

GULVAL, or LANISLEY, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Penzance (281) 1½ m. NE. Pop. 1353.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Penwith, pleasantly situated at the bottom of Mount Bay; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 6l. 11s. 0½d.; church ded. to St. Gulval; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

GUMFRESTON, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Tenby (261) 1½ m. W. Pop. 133.

A parish in the hundred of Narberth, occupying an area of about 1000 acres; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 117l. 4s. 3d.; patron, John Meyrick, Esq.

GUMLEY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market-Harborough (83) 4 m. NW b W.
Pop. 289.

A parish in the hundred of Gartree; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 16l. 2s. 6d.; church ded. to St. Helen; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln.

GUNBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Colsterworth (102) 3 m. SW b S.
Pop. 149.

A parish in the wapentake of Beltisloe, parts of Kesteven; living, a rectory united to that of Stainby, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patronage with Stainby rectory.

GUNBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 4 m. E. Pop. 69.

A parish in the Wold division of the wapentake of Candleshoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 3*l.* 10*s.* 2½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Duke of Rutland.

GUNBY, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Selby (181) 6 m. E. Pop. 179.

A township in the parish of Bubwith and Holme Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill, situated on the river Derwent.

GUNHOUSE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Glanford Bridge (156) 10 m. NW.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of West Walton, wapentake of Manly, and parts of Lindey.

GUNISTER, shires of Orkney and Shetland, S.

Pop. with Pa.

One of the Shetland islands, forming part of the parish of North Masca, and appropriated to the pasturage of cattle and sheep.

GUNNA, shire of Argy'l, S.

Pop. with Pa.

An island of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of Tivy, in the district of Mull. It lies in Coll Sound, is about three miles in circumference, and has immense quantities of sea-weed upon the shore.

GUNNERTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (278) 7 m. N b W.
Pop. with Chipchase 409.

A township in the parish of Chollerton and north-east division of Tindale ward. In the vicinity are the traces of a Roman entrenchment, and a large barrow called Money Hill, from coins having been frequently found there.

GUNTHORPE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Holt (119) 5 m. WSW. Pop. 317.

A parish in the hundred of Holt; living, a dis. rectory with that of Bale, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 13*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. Charles Collyer.

GUNTHORPE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Peterborough (81) 3 m. N b W.
Pop. 43.

A hamlet in the parish of Paston and liberty of Peterborough.

GUNTHORPE, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Nottingham (124) 7 m. NE b E.
Pop. 370.

A township in the parish of Lowdham and south division of the wapentake of Thurgarton, situated near the river Trent, across which there is a ferry.

GUNTHORPE, co. Rutland.

P. T. Oakham (95) 2 m. S b E. Pop. 7.

A lodge in the parish of Belton, [soke of Oakham].

GUNTHWAITE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnesley (172) 7 m. W. Pop. 86.

A township in the parish of Penniston and upper division of the wapentake of Staincross.

GUNTUN, co. Norfolk.

P. T. North Walsham (123) 5 m. NW.
Pop. 59.

A parish in the hundred of North Erpingham; living, a dis. rectory with the vicarage of Hanworth, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Lord Suffield.

GUNTUN, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Lowestoft (114) 1½ m. N. Pop. 87.

A parish in the hundred of Mutford and Lothingland; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 145*l.* 16*s.* 1*d.*; patrons (1829) R. Dundas, Esq. and others. The church, dedicated to St. Peter, is a plain structure, rebuilt in 1700, at the expense of James Boyce, to whose memory there is a small mural tablet.

GUNVILLE TARRANT, co. Dorset.

P. T. Blandford Forum (103) 6 m. NNE.
Pop. 487.

A parish in the hundred of Cranborne, Shaston division, situated near the river Tarrant, from which it takes its second appellation, as do also six other parishes in the same county. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 19*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, University College, Oxford.

GUNWALLO WYNNYTON, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Helstone (272) 5 m. S. Pop. 252.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Kerrier, seated on the coast, a short distance from Lizard Point; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of St. Breage, in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; church ded. to St. Wynwallo; patronage with St. Breage vicarage.

GURRANE, or GARRANE-KENNEFECK, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Cloyne (186) 3 m. W b S.
Pop. with Aghada.

A parish in the barony of Imokilly, situated upon Cork harbour; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the parishes of Aghada and three others, appropriated to the support of the bishop's mensal.

GUSSAGE ALL SAINTS, co. Dorset.

P. T. Cranborne (93) 5 m. WSW. Pop. 313.

A parish in the hundred of Knowlton, Shaston division; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.*; patron, the Archdeacon of Dorset.

GUSSAGE ST. ANDREW, co. Dorset.

P. T. Cranborne (93) 6½ m. WNW.
Pop. with Pa.

A tithing and chapelry in the parish and hundred of Sixpenny Handley, Shaston division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Iwerne Minster, in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol, not in charge; patronage with Iwerne Minster.

GUSSAGE ST. MICHAEL, co. Dorset.

P. T. Cranborne (93) 6 m. W. Pop. 246.

A parish in the hundred of Badbury, Shaston division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 107. 0s. 2½d.; patron (1829) W. Long, Esq.

GUSTON, co. Kent.

P. T. Dover (71) 3 m. NNE. Pop. 206.

A parish in the hundred of Bewsborough, lathe of St. Augustin; living, a curacy exempt from visitation and in the diocese of Canterbury; certified value 147.; church ded. to St. Martin; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

GUTHLANTON, co. Leicester.

Pop. 20,528.

A hundred forming the southern extremity of the county, and bordering upon Warwickshire, containing thirty parishes, including the town of Lutterworth.

GUTHRIE, shire of Forfar, S.

P. T. Aberbrothock (54) 8 m. NW. Pop. 555.

A parish containing 2700 acres, two-thirds of which are under cultivation. It is divided into two parts, six miles from each other, by the intervention of other parishes. The living is in the presbytery of Aberbrothock and synod of Angus and Mearns; patron, John Guthrie, Esq., of which ancient family Henry, bishop of Dunkeld, wrote a "History of the Civil Wars;" and John, bishop of Moray, a divine of distinguished ability and resolution in the reign of Charles I., was the only Scottish prelate who did not renounce episcopacy at its abolition. The church, a very ancient structure, was made collegiate in the time of James III., by Sir David Guthrie, and the castle of Guthrie, which is still entire, is a venerable memorial of the taste and grandeur of its founder, Sir Alexander.

GUY'S CLIFF, co. Warwick.

P. T. Warwick (90) 1½ m. NNE.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Leek Wootton and Kenilworth division of the hundred of Knightlow, situated in a very delightful part of the county, rendered extremely picturesque by the windings of the Avon; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge. The church, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, a neat and substantial structure, was founded by Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, in the reign of Henry VI. Here in Saxon times were an oratory and a cell for a hermit; and here the fantastic Guy, Earl of Warwick, is said to have retired after his duel with the Danish Colebrand. On the cliff, not far from the church, is a gigantic figure cut out of the rock by Richard Beauchamp, in memory of his ancestor Guy. In this village is a very delightful seat, which was visited by Henry V., who determined to found two chantries here, but died before he could carry his desires into effect.

GUYSON, or GYSNES, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alnwick (308) 6 m. S b E. Pop. 173.

A township in the parish of Shilbottle, Coquetdale ward.

GUYTING POWER, or LOWER, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Winchcombe (99) 6 m. SE b E.
Pop. 629.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Kiftsgate; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 147. 19s. 5d.; ann. val. P. R. 1207.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) Francis Lawson, Esq.

GUYTING TEMPLE, or UPPER, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Winchcombe (99) 5 m. E b S. Pop. 510.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Kiftsgate; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; certified value 207. 5s.; ann. val. P. R. 807. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a small but handsome structure; patron, Christ Church College, Oxford.

GWAEN-ESGOR, co. Flint, N. W.

P. T. Holywell (203) 8 m. NW. Pop. 204.

A parish in the hundred of Prestatyn. The situation is much elevated, and the vicinity abounds in lead and coal. The living is a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph; valued in P. R. 1447. 19s. 4d.; area of parish 1000 acres. The register preserved here has the reputation of great antiquity.

GWARAFOG, co. Brecon, S. W.

P. T. Buallt (173) m. W. Pop. 57.

A hamlet in the parish of Llan-leon-voel and hundred of Buallt, situated near to the river Camauk.

GWAREDOG, co. Anglesea, N. W.

P. T. Llanerchymed (253) 2 m. NW.
Pop. with Pa.

A small parish in the hundred of Tal-y-bolion, situated upon the Llantrissaint river; living, a chapelry in the diocese of Bangor and province of Canterbury, not in charge, to the rectory of Llandewssant.

GWAREDOG, co. Anglesea, N. W.

P. T. Amlwch (260) 2 m. S b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Bodewryd and hundred of Twrcelyn, adjacent to the great copper-mines, in Parry's Mountain.

GWASTEDDYN, co. Radnor, S. W.

P. T. Rhayadar (131) m. Pop. 385.

A township in the parish of Nant-Mel and hundred of Rhayadar, situated near Llyn Gwyn and Dulas river. Here is a cairn of great size, on the summit of Gwasteddyn Hill.

GWAWNUNOG, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Llanfair (183) m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Llanfair and hundred of Mathra, situated in a remote district, and between two tributaries to the river Vyrnw.

GWHEHLOG, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Usk (112) adjacent. Pop. 340.

A hamlet in the parish and hundred of Usk.

GWENDALE, GREAT, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Pocklington (212) 3 m. N.
Pop. of Pa. 89. Of To. 60.

A parish and township, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the Holme Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill; living, a dis. vicarage at a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York valued in K. B. 4*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*; patron, the Dean of York.

GWENDDWR, co. Brecon, S. W.

P. T. Buallt (173) 5 m. SW. Pop. 549.

A parish in the hundred of Tularth, situated upon the banks of the river Wye, and divided into two districts, called North and South; living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the diocese of St. David's and province of Canterbury; valued in P. R. 65*l.* 5*s.*

GWENNAP, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Redruth (261) 3½ m. E b S. Pop. 6291.

A parish in the east division of the hundred of Kerrier; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 18*s.* 11½*d.*; church ded. to St. Wenap; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Exeter.

GWENYLT, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Wrexham (170) 5 m. SW. Pop. 783.

A township in the populous parish of Gresford and hundred of Bromfield, situated on the banks of the Alen river.

GWERNESNEY, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Usk (142) 2½ m. ENE. Pop. 69.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Usk; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; valued in K. B. 2*l.* 18*s.* 6½*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) the Duke of Beaufort.

GWERN-Y-BWLCH, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Machynlleth (208) m. Pop. 491.

A township in the parish of Cemmaes and hundred of Machynlleth, near to the banks of the Dyfi river.

GWERN-Y-HOWEL, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Cerrig-y-Druidion (204) m. S b E.
Pop. 67.

A township, said to be in the parish of Corwen and hundred of Isaled, although immediately adjoining the parish of Cerrig-y-Druidion. It is returned as extra-parochial.

It lies in the great parliamentary road from Holyhead to Shrewsbury, and is elevated nearly 1000 feet above the level of the sea.

GWESTYDD, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Newtown (175) m. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Llanllwchaearn, adjoining the town of Newtown. The flannel manufacture here is very prosperous, and the opening of the canal in the vicinity has contributed to benefit this district, even more than was contemplated by the projectors.

GWITHION, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Redruth (261) 7¼ m. W. Pop. 412.

A parish in the east division of the hundred of Penwith; living, a rectory with that of Phillack, in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; patronage with Phillack rectory.

GWNNWS, co. Cardigan, S. W.

P. T. Aberystwith (208) m. SE. Pop. 777.

A parish, containing two townships of the same name, called Upper and Lower, in the hundred of Har (upper division) situated upon the south bank of the Ystwith river. The living is a curacy, not in charge, in the archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of David's; valued in P. R. at 36*l.* 0*s.* 4*d.*; tithes, the families of Crosswood and Richester, alternately. The tithes are partitioned amongst three proprietors, the Earl of Lisburn, the Chichester family, and the cumbe.

GWYDELWERN, co. Merioneth, N. W.

P. T. Corwen (194) 3 m. N. Pop. 1375.

A village and parish in the hundred of Ederion, situated upon a rivulet which is tributary to the Alwen. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph's; valued in P. R. at 80*l.* The Vicars Choral of the diocese possesses the rectory.

GWYDYR, co. Carnarvon, N. W.

P. T. Llanrwst (218) 1 m. SW. Pop. 362.

A township in the parish of Llanrwst and hundred of Nant Conway, situated on the banks of the Conway. Here are two ancient mansions, called Upper and Lower Gwydyr, built by the Wynnes, the descendants of Sir John Wynne, whose biography forms an interesting and valuable addition to Cambrian history. These old mansions, and the estates which accompany them, are now the property of Lord Willoughby de Eresby, into whose family they have descended.

GWYN-DU, or GWYNDY, co. Anglesea, N. W.

P. T. Llangefni (247) 5 m. N b W.

The old half-way house between Bangor and Holyhead, in the parish of Llandrygarn and hundred of Llyfon. The new parliamentary road has occasioned the desertion of this line, and Gwyndŷ is now a private residence. The living is a chapelry, not in charge, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Bangor.

GYNEAR, or ST. WYNWAR, co. Cornwall

P. T. Redruth (261) $7\frac{1}{2}$ m. SW b W.
Pop. 2386.

A parish in the east division of the hundred of Penwith; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 127; patron, the Bishop of Exeter.

GWYNFE, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

P. T. Llangadock (189) m. Pop. 859.

A hamlet in the parish of Llangadock and hundred of Perfedd; living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, to the vicarage of Llangadock, in the archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. at 567 per annum.

GWYNFILL, co. Cardigan, S. W.

P. T. Tregarn (202) m. S b W. Pop. 278.

A township in the parish of Llan-dewi-brefi and hundred of Pennarth; living, a chapelry, not in charge, in the archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's.

GWYTHERRH, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Llanrwst (218) 5 m. SE. Pop. 421.
Fair, May 9.

A small hamlet in the parish of the same name and hundred of Isaled, situated in a highland district, and having a good horse-fair annually; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph; valued in P. R. at 1267. 3s. It is supposed that a nunnery existed here in the early ages.

GYFFFIN, co. Charnarvon, N. W.

P. T. Conway (222) 1 m. SW. Pop. 630.

A parish in the hundred of Isaf, upon a rivulet named from the parish, and falling into the Conway close by the old castle; living, a stipendiary curacy, usually united to the living of Conway, the tithes belonging to the deanery of Bangor. It is in the archdeaconry and diocese of Bangor; valued in P. R. at 507. The church is situated in a sequestered glen, and the area of the parish contains about 3000 acres. Dean Jones bequeathed 100*l.* towards the maintenance of a charity-school in this parish. In 880 was fought at this place a desperate engagement between Anarawd, prince of North Wales, and Edred, duke of Mercia, in which the former was victorious.

GYFFYLILOG, or CYFFYLILOG, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Ruthin (195) m. S. Pop. 578.

A parish in the hundred of Ruthin, situated in a mountainous district, and on the banks of a rivulet, which derives its name from the parish, and contributes its waters to swell those of the river Clwyd. The living is a chapelry, not in charge, to the vicarage of Llan-Ynys, in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph.

GYHERNE, co. Cambridge.

P. T. March (83) $5\frac{1}{2}$ m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry of St. Mary Wisbeach and hundred of Wisbeach, Isle of Ely; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of St. Mary Wisbeach, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 75*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron, the Vicar of Wisbeach.

H.

HAAV, shire of Inverness, S.

One of the smaller islands of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of Harris. It lies in the sound, and is uninhabited.

HABBERLEY, co. Salop.

P. T. Shrewsbury (153) 9 m. SW. Pop. 151.

A parish in the hundred of Ford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 0*s.* 2½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) John Milton, Esq.

HABERGHAM EAVES, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Burnley (211) 2 m. SW. Pop. 4612.

A township in the parish of Whalley and hundred of Blackburn; formerly possessing an old mansion, called Habbergham Hall, occupied by a family of the same name for nearly four centuries. Here are also two pleasantly situated seats, called Hood House and Gawthorp. The inhabitants are for the most part employed in the cotton manufactures.

HABROUGH, or HARBROUGH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Great Grimsby (165) 9 m. NW. Pop. 286.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.*

HABTON, GREAT, N. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 4 m. NW b N. Pop. 136.

A township in the parish of Kirkby Misperton and west division of the wapentake of Pickering Lythe.

HABTON, LITTLE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 5 m. NW b N. Pop. 50.

A township in the parish of Kirkby Misperton and west division of the wapentake of Pickering Lythe.

HACCOMBE, co. Devon.

P. T. Newton Bushel (188) 4 m. ESE. Pop. 27.

A parish in the hundred of Wonford, exempted from all duties and taxes by a royal grant from the crown; in consequence of some services done by an ancestor of the Carews, to which family it belonged for a long period. No proceedings in this parish can be taken cognizance of by any officer, either civil or military. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Devon and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 25*l.*; patron (1829) Sir H. Carew, Bart. In the church, ded. to St. Blaze, are several monuments to the Hacrombe and Carew families.

HACEBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (110) 5*l.* m. ENE. Pop. 65.

- A parish in the wapentake of Avcland, parts of Kesteven; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 2*s.* 11*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 97*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; patron (1829) W. S. Welby, Esq.

HACHESTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Wickham Market (81) 2 m. N. Fair, Nov. 12, for boots, shoes, upholstery, and joiners. Pop. 534.

A parish in the hundred of Loes; living, a dis. vicarage with that of Parham, in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with Parham vicarage.

HACKENSALL, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Garstang (220) 8 m. NNW. Pop. with Preesall.

A township in the parish of Lancaster and hundred of Amounderness.

HACKETSTOWN, co. Carlow, Leinster, I.

Dublin 60 m. S b W. Pop. of Pa. 3210. Of To. 905. Fairs, 1st Thurs. in Feb.; March 12; May 4; Thurs. aft. Trinity-Sunday; Aug. 21; Sept. 18; 3d Thurs. in Nov.; and Dec. 21.

A town and parish, the former in the barony of Rathvilly, and the latter partly in that barony, but partly also in the barony of Ballinacor and county of Wicklow; living, a rectory in the diocese of Leighton and archdiocese of Dublin; producing, by commutation for tithes, 553*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* It is united to the vicarage of Haroldstown, and possesses a church and parsonage, with a glebe of three acres.

HACKFORD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Reepeham (111) 2 m. W. Pop. 613.

A parish in the hundred of Eynesford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 10*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patronage (1829) George Hunt Holley, Esq.

HACKFORD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Wymondham (100) 4 m. W b N. Pop. 222.

A parish in the hundred of Forehoe; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 15*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) George Hunt Holley, Esq.

HACKFORTH, or HACKFORD, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Catterick (220) 4 m. S. Pop. 134.

A township in the parish of Hornby, and partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Hang East. Cuthbert Tunstall, successively bishop of London and Durham, was born here. After weathering the violence of the storm attending the Reformation, he died in confinement, at a very advanced age, for denying the supremacy of Queen Elizabeth. HACKINGTON, or ST. STEPHEN'S, co. Kent.

P. T. Canterbury (55) 1½ m. N. Pop. 310.

A parish in the hundred of West-Gate, lathe of St. Augustin; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 2*s.* 3½*d.*; church ded. to St. Stephen; patron, the Archdeacon of Canterbury. Here a college was begun by Archbishop Baldwin, for secular priests, but the chapel was razed to the ground by order of the pope, in a short time after it was built.

HACKLESTON, or HAXTON, co. Wilts.

P. T. Ludgershall (71) 8 m. W b S. Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish of Tittleton and hundred of Elstub and Everley.

HACKLETON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (66) 5 m. SE b S. Pop. 492.

A hamlet in the parish of Piddington and hundred of Wymersley.

HACKNESS, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Scarborough (217) 5 m. WNW. Pop. of Pa. 632. Of To. 143.

A parish and township in the liberty of Whitby Strand, situated in a fine romantic valley, in a very picturesque part of the county; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of the North Riding and diocese of York; of the certified value of 21*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 88*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Sir J. V. B. Johnstone, Bart. M. P., who has a very handsome mansion here, surrounded with finely wooded grounds, and scenery of the most beautiful description.

HACKNEY, co. Middlesex.

London 4 m.

A large and populous village and parish, in the hundred of Ossulstone, which, by the rapid increase of modern buildings around the metropolis, has become so connected with it as almost to form a part of its north-eastern suburb. It is supposed this place gave name to Hackney coaches, and that they were first established here, for the purpose of affording a conveyance from London to Hackney, which seems to have been a favourite country residence for the citizens at an early period. The only historical event connected with the village, occurring in our national annals, is the assembling of the Duke of Gloucester and his adherents in arms against Richard II., when they remained here to await the return of a deputation sent to lay their grievances before the king. Both the Knights Templars and the Hospitallars anciently had property here. To the former belonged the Temple Mills, a little to the south of Lea Bridge, which several years ago were used for the manufacture of sheet lead; and in Wells Street was a building, now destroyed, called St. John's Palace, having been a residence of the prior of the Knights Hospitalers, or Knights of St. John. In the reign of Charles II. a water-mill was erected on Hackney Marsh, for practising a method of boring guns, discovered by Prince Rupert; and on his death the establishment was ruined, as he neglected to divulge the peculiar process which he had invented. The principal manufactures carried on here in more modern times, have been those of crape, silk, calicoe-printing, calendering, and colour-making. The parish, which contains 3227 acres, includes the hamlets of Clapton, Homerton, Dalston, Shacklewell, Kingsland, and part of Stoke Newington. The land is principally occupied by brick-makers, cow-keepers, and nursery-men. Among the latter are Messrs. Loddiges, whose hot-houses, green-houses, and grounds for the cultivation of exotic and other ornamental plants and trees, are arranged on a most magnificent scale, and richly furnished with the rarest vegetable productions from every quarter of the globe. There are within the parish four manors, in two of which, those of Lord's Hold and King's Hold, the descent of landed property is regulated by the custom of gavelkind. The living is a vicarage, in the archdeaconry of Middlesex, and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 20*l.*; patron (1829) Samuel Tyssen, Esq. The church, dedicated to St. Augustine, but sometimes erroneously called the church of St. John of Jerusalem, was taken down, in pursuance of an act of Parliament passed in 1791, and a new and spacious edifice has been erected instead of it, in which some of the ancient monuments belonging to the old church have been placed, particularly the highly ornamented monumental structure, commemorating Christopher Urswicke, rector of Hackney, and almoner to King Henry VII. Hackney has been recently divided into three parochial districts, under the authority of the commissioners for the erection of new churches and chapels; and there are three chapels belonging to the establishment at Hackney South, Stamford Hill, and Hackney West; patron of the former two, the Rector of Hackney, and of the latter (1829) Samuel Tyssen, Esq. and Mr. Alderman Birch, alternately. There are also various places of worship for Dissenters, one of which, now occupied by the Unitarians, has had among its ministers, Dr. William Bates, one of the most learned of the early nonconformist divines; Matthew Henry, the author of a voluminous but very popular "Commentary on the Bible;" Dr. Richard Price, a distinguished writer on political economy and finance; the celebrated Dr. Joseph Priestley; and the late Thomas Belsham.

TOPOG. DICT.—VOL. II.

At Homerton there is an academy for the education of Independent ministers which originated in 1769. A free-school for twelve boys was founded in 1616, by Mrs. Margaret Audley, and endowed with 20*l.* per annum; a charity-school, supported by subscription, was instituted in 1714; there are parochial schools, containing two hundred boys and one hundred girls, one hundred of each sex being clothed at the expense of the institution, which is supported by voluntary contributions and collections at charity sermons; and here is a school of industry for thirty boys and the same number of girls. Almshouses were founded here and endowed with lands by the Rev. William Spurstowe, who died in 1665; Monger's almshouses for six poor men were founded in 1669; and Dr. Thomas Wood, Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry, in 1692, established almshouses for ten poor aged widows, and settled on them an endowment of 50*l.* a-year; besides these there are several other benefactions for charitable purposes. A savings' bank has existed here ever since 1819. A handsome building is also erected in this parish, for that excellent charity, the London Orphan Asylum. Among the natives of Hackney may be enumerated Sir Ralph Sadleir, a distinguished statesman and diplomatist, who died in 1587, at the age of eighty; Dr. Robert South, an eminent divine, born in 1634; and Howard, the philanthropist, whose father had a house in the parish, but no authentic record of his birth has been discovered.

HACKTHORNE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 7½ m. N. b. E. Pop. 256.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Aslaoce, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage, in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 4*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 141*l.* 12*s.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) R. Cracroft, Esq.

HACONBY, or HACKENBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Bourne (97) 3 m. N. Pop. 321.

A parish in the wapentake of Aveland, parts of Kesteven; living, a dis. vicarage united with that of Morton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patronage with Morton vicarage.

HACTHORNE, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Peurith (283) 5 m. SSE.

Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Lowther, west ward; at the ancient Hall, now converted into a farm-house, was born John, first Viscount Lowther.

HADDENHAM, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Thame (44) 3 m. NE b. E. Pop. 1294.

A parish in the hundred of Aylesbury; living, a vicarage with the curacy of Cuddington, in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Rochester.

HADDENHAM, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Ely (97) 6 m. SW. Pop. 1725.

A parish in the hundred of Witchford, South, Isle of Ely; living, a curacy, exempt from visitation, in the diocese of Ely, not in charge; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patrons, the Archdeacon and Rector of Ely.

HADDINGTON, shire of, S.

E to W 21 to 27 m. N to S 10 to 15 m.

Parishes 25. Royal burghs 3. Pop. 35,127.

Membr. of Pt. 1.

A county of Scotland, termed also East Lothian; bounded on the east by the North Sea; on the west by the shire of Edinburgh, or Mid Lothian; on the north by the Firth of Forth; and on the south by the Lammermuir Hills, which separate it from the county of Berwick. It is watered by numerous rivers, the principal of which is the Tyne, and is accounted one of the most fertile and highly-cultivated districts in North Britain, the soil producing corn in great abundance, and a plentiful supply of food, particularly turnips, for numerous flocks of sheep, bred upon its extensive farms. Excellent coal, limestone, and freestone, are found in all parts of the shire; and there are also some iron and lead-mines. Various branches of manufacture are carried on in the several towns and villages, particularly those of linen and woollen, and large quantities of salt are made and exported. At Preston Pans there are a vitriol and sal-ammoniac works. The royal burghs are Haddington, and the sea-ports of Dunbar and North Berwick; the former possessing a good foreign commerce, and the latter, in common with many other places on the coast, a productive fishery and considerable coasting-trade. The seats of the nobility and gentry, which are numerous and elegant, are generally fixed in the midst of beautiful and luxuriant plantations; and from the mild and temperate nature of the climate, are exceedingly pleasant retreats. All criminal offences committed in this shire are tried at Edinburgh.

.. HADDINGTON, shire of Haddington, S.

Edinburgh 16 m. E. London 373 m. N.

Pop. 5255. M. D. Frid. Fairs, 2d Tues. in July; 2d Thurs. in Oct. Membr. of Pt. 1, with Dunbar, &c.

A royal burgh, market, post-town, and parish, the capital of the shire, and seat of the county and sheriffs' courts, as well as of the presbytery. The town is situated on the river Tyne, and is connected with one of its suburbs, Nungate, by a substantial bridge of three arches, on the great road from Edinburgh to London, at the first stage. It is a pleasant well-built place, consisting principally of four spacious streets, intersecting each other at right angles, with a venerable church, formerly collegiate, and belonging to a Franciscan monastery, founded here in the twelfth century; a very elegant episcopal chapel, commodious county and town-halls; excellent grammar, English, and music-schools, with suitable apartments for the masters, whose stipends are supplied from the public revenue of the burgh, arising chiefly from feu duties, petty customs, and the rental of mills, altogether amounting to about 400*l.* per annum. It is governed by a provost, two merchant-baillies, one trades-baillie, a dean of guild, a treasurer, eleven merchant-councillors, one trades-councillor, and seven deacons of crafts, and jointly with Dunbar, Jedburgh, North Berwick, and Lander, sends one member to Parliament. Haddington, from the remaining vestiges of its ancient fortifications, was doubtless at some remote period a post of great strength and importance; for ages also it had a sort of claim to the title of "The Commercial Metropolis" of this part of Scotland, it being the place where the court of "The Four Burghs" used to assemble, under the presidency of a chamberlain, for the purpose of deciding all disputes regarding traffic. Its principal trade now consists in corn, the market for which is the best in Scotland; the manufacture of woollen cloth, introduced under the auspices of Cromwell, after his decisive victory at Dunbar; and the tanning of hides. The business of the two latter branches is chiefly carried on in the suburb of Giffordgate, noted as the birthplace of the celebrated reformer, John Knox; and in that of Nungate, remarkable for the ruins of its once magnificent abbey, or nunnery, founded in 1173, by Ada, mother of Malcolm IV. This abbey, during the siege of Haddington, in 1548, was the seat of the Parliament that resolved upon giving Queen Mary in marriage to the Dauphin, and caused her to be educated at the French court. Haddington suffered greatly from an accidental fire in 1598; and in 1775, Nungate was totally laid under water, with the most considerable portion of the town, by a terrible rise and inundation of the river. The parish, which lies on both sides of the Tyne, comprises 12,000 acres, well inclosed, and arable, with a few exceptions, on the borders of Glades-Muir, where the soil is exceedingly sterile, but has lately been planted with oak and other wood. The living is in the presbytery of Haddington and synod of Lothian and Tweeddale; patron, the Earl of Hopetown. Haddington gives the title of Earl to the noble family of Hamilton, the present head of which is one of the representative peers of Scotland in the Imperial Parliament.

HADDINGTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 8½ m. SW b S. Pop. 108.

A hamlet in the parish of Aubourn and lower division of the wapentake of Boothby Graffo, parts of Kesteven.

HADDLESEY, CHAPEL, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Selby (181) 4½ m. SSW. Pop. 100.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Birkin and lower division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Birkin, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. John the Baptist; patronage with Birkin rectory.

HADDLESEY, EAST, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Selby (181) 5 m. S b W.
Pop. with Haddlesley Chapel.

A hamlet in the parish of Birkin and lower division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash.

HADDLESEY, WEST, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Selby (181) 5 m. SW. Pop. 293.

A township in the parish of Birkin and lower division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash.

HADDO, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Tarves (139) 2 m. N b E. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Methlick and district of Ellon, situated near the noble mansion and on the extensive domain of the Earl of Aberdeen, to whom it gives the title of Baron.

HADDON, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Stilton (75) 3 m. NW b N. Pop. 112.

A parish in the hundred of Norman Cross; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 117. 5s.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Aboyne.

HADDON, EAST, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (66) 7½ m. NW. Pop. 617.

A parish in the hundred of Nobottle Grove; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 157; ann. val. P. R. 147; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) W. Sawbridge, Esq.

HADDON, UPPER, co. Derby.

P. T. Bakewell (153) 2 m. SW. Pop. 268.

A township in the parish of Bakewell and hundred of High Peak. Here is the seat of the Duke of Rutland, called Haddon Hall; it is a fine old building, pleasantly situated on the river Wye, and is said to be the most complete of our ancient baronial residences now remaining.

HADDON, WEST, co. Northampton.

P. T. Daventry (72) 8 m. NNE. Pop. 893.

A parish in the hundred of Guilsborough; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 137. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) S. Spence, Esq.

HADFIELD, co. Derby.

P. T. Chapel-in-the-Frith (167) 11 m. N b W. Pop. 659.

A township in the parish of Glossop and hundred of High Peak.

HADHAM, GREAT, co. Hertford.

P. T. Bishop's Stortford (30) 5 m. WSW. Pop. 1293.

A parish in the hundred of Edwinstree, pleasantly situated in a valley near the river Ash; living, a rectory with the curacy of Little Hadham, in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 667. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, the Bishop of London.

HADHAM, LITTLE, co. Hertford.

P. T. Bishop's Stortford (39) 4½ m. W b S. Pop. 787.

A parish in the hundred of Edwinstree; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Great Hadham, in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London, not in charge; patron, the Bishop of London.

HADISCOE, or HADDISCOE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Beccles (169) 5 m. NNE. Pop. 316.

A parish in the hundred of Clavering, situated in a marshy district near the river Waveney; living, a dis. rectory with that of Monk's Toft, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 127; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Monk's Toft rectory. Here was formerly a preceptory of knights-templars, to which Henry III. was a great benefactor.

HADLEIGH, co. Essex.

P. T. Leigh (37) 2 m. W b N. Pop. 329.

A parish in the hundred of Rochford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 117. 14s. 7d.; church ded. to St. James; patron, Lincoln College, Oxford. Here are the ruins of Hadleigh Castle, built by Hubert de Burgh, Earl of Kent, consisting of two towers, nearly covered with small shrubs and moss, but exhibiting some traces of ancient grandeur.

HADLEIGH, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Hadleigh (61) m. adjacent. Pop. 201.

A hamlet in the parish of Boxford and hundred of Cosford.

HADLEIGH, co. Suffolk.

London 61 m. NE. Pop. 2929. M. D. Mond. Fairs, Whit. Mond., for toys; Oct. 10, for butter, cheese, and toys.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Cosford, situated on the north side of the river Breton. It formerly enjoyed the privileges of a corporation, and was governed by a mayor, aldermen, and common council; but a quo warranto having been brought against them, in the reign of James II., they surrendered their charter. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in yarn-spinning, for Norwich. This town formerly had a woollen-trade of its own, which has long since declined. Here is a venerable gate, with two hexangular towers, built by William Pykenham, rector of the parish, about 1490. The living is a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 457. 2s. 1d.; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a handsome structure, with a fine steeple, and forms the principal ornament of the town; it is famous for being the burial-place of Guthrum, the Danish chief, who, after his defeat by King Alfred, embraced Christianity, and had the government of the East Angles. In this parish a stone is set up to the memory of Dr. Rowland Taylor, who suffered martyrdom in 1555, in the sanguinary persecution of Queen Mary. Here are twelve almshouses, with a small chapel, founded by William Pykenham, in 1497, for decayed housekeepers; also a Sunday-school, supported by subscription.

HADLEY, co. Berks.
P. T. Hungerford (64) 5 m. N.
Pop. with Blagrave 451.

A tithing in the parish and hundred of Larkbourn.

HADLEY, co. Salop.
P. T. Wellington (142) 2 m. NE. E.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Wellington and Wellington division of the hundred of Bradford, South.

HADLEY MONKEN, co. Middlesex.
P. T. Chipping Barnet (11) 1 m. NNE.
Pop. 526.

A parish in the hundred of Edmonton, situated upon the borders of Enfield Chase. A pillar was erected here in 1740, to commemorate the battle, fought in this parish, between the houses of York and Lancaster, in 1471. The living is a donative in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 65*l.* 2*s.* 2*d.*; patron (1829) John Penney, Esq. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is ancient, bearing the date of 1494; on the top of the tower is an iron pitch-pot, formerly used as a beacon, or signal of alarm, in times of danger.

HADLOW, co. Kent.
P. T. Tunbridge (36) 3 m. NE. Pop. 1757.
Fair, Whit. Moud., for cutlery, &c.

A parish in the Lowey of Tunbridge, lathe of Aylesford, near the river Medway; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 13*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. P. Monypenny.

HADNALL, EAST, co. Salop.
P. T. Shrewsbury (153) 5 m. NNE.
Pop. 363.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Middle and liberty of the town of Shrewsbury; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Grinshill, in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 50*l.* 1*s.*; chapel ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patronage with Grinshill rectory.

HADSOR, co. Worcester.
P. T. Droitwich (116) 1 m. SE. Pop. 135.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Halfshire; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 7*s.* 3½*d.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) — Amphlett, Esq.

HADSPEN, co. Somerset.
P. T. Bruton (109) 2½ m. SW. Pop. 246.

A hamlet in the parish of Pitcombe and hundred of Bruton.

HADSTOCK, co. Essex.
P. T. Linton (48) 2 m. S. Pop. 392.

in the hundred of Freshwell, which had the privilege of a market. A road is said to have passed near this village from Royston; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; patron, the Bishop of Ely. The church, dedicated to St. Botolph, is rather an ancient structure; on the door is nailed a skin, covered with a kind of lattice-work, which is said to have been that of a Danish chief, who was flayed as a punishment for sacrilege.

HADSTON, co. Northumberland.
P. T. Morpeth (288) 11 m. NNE. Pop. 88.

A township in the parish of Warkworth and east division of Morpeth ward, situated near the river Coquet.

HAFOD, or EGLWYS NEWYDD, co. Cardigan, S. W.
P. T. Aberystwith (208) 11 m. SE.
Pop. with Pa.

A township and parish in the hundred of Har; living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, to the parish of Llanfihangel-y-Creiddyn, in the archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 27*l.* 17*s.* 8*d.* The church, called Eglwys Newydd, is embosomed in wood, and built upon the side of a steep hill. The old church, which stood at Llantrissaint, was succeeded by an edifice, erected on the present site, for the convenience of the Cwmystwyth miners, and of the Herbert family, in the year 1620; and a third, the present building, was raised from a beautiful design, by Wyatt, at the sole expense of Thomas Jones, of Hafod, Esq., in the year 1803. It is adorned with a spire, and stands in a direction north-east and south-west, a peculiarity which it shares with the church of St. Chad's, in Shrewsbury, but with no other in England. A beautiful altar-piece, by Fuseli, represents Christ and his disciples at Emmaus, and the north-west window is adorned with painted glass. The landholders of Uwch Cell are patrons of the benefice. Hafod is known to the world of letters as the residence of Thomas Jones, Esq., the learned editor of "Proissart's Chronicles." It is remarkable alike for its beauties and misfortunes. The demesne is altogether the creation of the proprietor, and is inferior to none in the kingdom, in variety of grounds, or in the gracefulness and good taste displayed in its numerous and costly embellishments. The accomplished proprietor received Hafod, according to Mr. Cumberland, a wilderness. He planted here 2,065,000 trees, raised one of the noblest mansions in England, added extensive gardens and pleasure-grounds, and gave the most picturesque effect to the different views of waterfall and glen within his grounds, by planting the overhanging rocks, and forming a sort of chamber to each subject. The mansion was in the Gothic style, built under the superintendence of Mr. Baldwyn, of Bath, and contained suites of apartments, appropriated to the seasons of the year. But the great boast of Hafod was the library, wherein was preserved a collection of valuable MSS. and books, made with the greatest care, and at incalculable expense, during a space of forty years, by a gentleman who has satisfactorily proved to the world his competence to the task. The Schright MSS. were amongst those at Hafod. A noble gallery here contained a collection of paintings, by some of the best Italian and English masters, and many valuable and clever busts. A printing-house was erected in the demesne, where the translations of Froissart, Joinville, Brocquiere, and Monstrelet, were printed. These things were—but the friends of literature, lovers of the fine arts and all men of kindly feeling, will unite in general regret at the total destruction of this splendid and valuable accumulation. This lamentable event was occasioned by an accidental fire, which occurred on the 13th of March, 1807. The pecuniary loss sustained is estimated at 70,000*l*. In the vicinity of Hafod, is the curiosity, called the Devil's Bridge, adjacent to which is the Hafod Arms Inn.

HAFODDRYNOG, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Llantrissaint (171) 1 m. N. Pop. 676.

A hamlet in the parish of Llanwonno and hundred of Miskin, situated adjacent to the river Rontha Vach, and in an iron and coal district.

HAFOD-Y-PORTII, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Bridgeend (181) m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Margam and hundred of Newcastle. Here are the ruins of an ancient chapel.

HAGBORNE, co. Berks.

P. T. Wallingford (46) 5½ m. W b S. Pop. 708.

A parish, consisting of two liberties, called East and West Hagborne, in the hundred of Moreton; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 15*l*. 10*s*. 7½*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 136*l*. church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) R. V. Caniford, Esq.

HAGGARD'S-TOWN, co. Louth, Leinster, I.

P. T. Lurgan-Green (47) 3 m. N. Pop. 817.

A parish in the barony of Upper Dundalk, situated upon Dundalk Bay; living, a curacy in the diocese and archdiocese of Armagh.

HAGGERSTON, co. Middlesex.

London adjacent. Pop. with Pa.

A chapelry in the parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, and Tower division of the hundred of Ossulston; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Shoreditch, in the archdeaconry and diocese of London, not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Shoreditch. The church is a neat stone edifice, partly erected by the committee for building churches.

HAGGERSTONE, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Belford (322) 8 m. NNW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet, locally situated in the parish of Kyloe, but esteemed in Islandshire in the county of Durham.

HAGLEY, co. Worcester.

P. T. Stourbridge (122) 2 m. SE. Pop. 505.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Halfshire; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 10*l*. 6*s*. 5½*d*.; patron (1829) Lord Lyttleton, who has an elegant seat here called Hagley Park, highly celebrated in the last century. In the church, ded. to St. John the Baptist, are two beautiful monuments to George Lord Lyttleton, and his first lady Lucinda. The chancel of the church was rebuilt, and the floor paved with marble, at the expense of his lordship in 1754. Many Roman urns and coins have been found in this neighbourhood.

HAGLOE, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Blakeney (123) 1 m. ESE. Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish of Auro and hundred of Blidemoe, situated near that part of the river Severn called Purton Passage.

HAGMOND ABBEY, co. Salop.

P. T. Shrewsbury (133) 4 m. NE.

An extra-parochial district in the Welling-ton division of the hundred of Bradford, South, remarkable only for the venerable and solitary ruins of an abbey, which was founded in 1110, for regular canons, of the order of St. Augustin, by William Fitz Allan, of Clun. Some parts are in tolerable perfection, and much admired by the antiquary, particularly the chapter-house, consisting of some very beautiful arches.

HAGNABY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 5 m. SW b W. Pop. 91.

A parish in the west division of the soke of Bolingbroke, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l*.; church ded. to St. Andrew.

HAGNABY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Alford (141) 3 m. NE b N. Pop. with Hannay, 106.

A parish in the Wold division of the hundred of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey; living, a donative in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 10*l*.; ann. val. P. R. 70*l*.; it is a sinecure, there not being any parish church; patron (1829) J. Grant, Esq. Here was formerly an abbey for canons of the Premonstratensian order, founded by Herbert, son of Alardi de Orreby, in 1175.

HAGWORTHINGHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 1 m. NW b W. Pop. 533.

A parish in the hundred of Hill, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 14*l*. 10*s*. 5*d*.; church ded. to the Holy Trinity.

HAIGH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Wigan (200) 2 m. NNE. Pop. 1300. Fair, June 20; and Nov. 22.

A township in the parish of Wigan and hundred of West Derby, particularly famous for its cannel coal, which runs in beds about three feet in thickness; it is as black as jet, will bear a very fine polish, and will not soil the finest linen. Here are also some very extensive iron-works, the property of the Earl of Balcarras. His lordship has a venerable mansion here, seated on an eminence, from which thirteen counties and the Isle of Man may be viewed without difficulty. It is surrounded by a park and skreened with fine plantations. For many ages this was the seat of the Bradshaigh family, from whom, on the female side, his lordship is descended. The chapel belonging to the mansion is said to be as ancient as the reign of Edward II. In the adjoining grounds is a curious summer-house, built entirely of cannel coal, under the direction of the last Lady Bradshaigh. Several Roman antiquities have been discovered in the village.

HAIGHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (110) 6 m. NNW. Pop. 260.

A parish in the wapentake of Loveden, parts of Kesteven; living, a rectory with that of Marston, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 33*l.* 8*s.* 6½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with Marston rectory.

HAIGHTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (217) 4 m. NNE. Pop. 184.

A township in the parish of Preston and hundred of Amounderness.

HAILEY, co. Oxford.

P. T. Witney (65) 1½ m. N. Pop. 1008.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Witney and hundred of Bampton; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Witney, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 44*l.*; patronage with Witney vicarage.

HAILSHAM, co. Sussex.

London 50 m. SSE. Pop. 1278. M. D. Sat. Fairs, April 5, for horned cattle and pedlery; and June 14, for cattle and pedlery.

A market-town and parish, partly in the hundred of Dell, and partly within the liberty of the corporation of Pevensey, rape of Pevensey; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; patroness (1829) Mrs. Hooper. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a handsome structure, consisting of a nave and two aisles, with a square tower, ornamented by four pinnacles. Here also are the remains of Michaelham Priory, founded in the reign of Henry III., and which, with the church, are the only objects in the town worthy of notice. The most perfect part of these ruins is a fine tower, the entrance to which is by a strong bridge over a square moat filled with water, comprising nearly eight acres, and through which passes a stream that gives motion to a neighbouring corn-mill. Some of the inner apartments of this ancient building exhibit fine remains of vaulted stone roofs.

HAINFORD, cc. Norfolk.

P. T. Coltishall (110) 3 m. W. Pop. 461.

A parish in the hundred of Taverham; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Robert Marsham, Esq.

HAINTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Wragby (144) 6 m. NE. Pop. 223.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Wraggoc, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln. Hainton Hall is a fine and very ancient building.

HAKIN, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Milford (258) 3 m. W. Pop. with Pa.

A small seaport town in the parish of Hubberston and hundred of Rhôs, situated upon a creek, running out of Milford Haven, and directly opposite to Milford. It is commonly the packet station.

HALAM, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Southwell (132) 1½ m. W b N. Pop. 310.

A parish in the liberty of Southwell and Serooby; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Southwell, and a peculiar of Southwell, in the diocese of York; certified value 7*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 80*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Michael; patron, Southwell College Church.

HALBERTON, co. Devon.

Pop. 2620.

A hundred on the east side of the county, bordering upon Somersetshire, and containing four parishes.

HALBERTON, co. Devon.

P. T. Tiverton (102) 3 m. E. Pop. 1508.

A parish in the hundred of Halberton; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 31*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Bristol.

HALDEN, HIGH, co. Kent.

P. T. Tenterden (55) 3½ m. NE b N. Pop. 724.

A parish in the hundred of Blackbourn, lathe of Scray; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 19*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

HALDENBY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Howden (180) 0½ m. SE b S. Pop. with Eastoft, 69.

A township in the parish of Adlingfleet and lower division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross. Here is a handsome seat called Haldenby Park.

HALDON, co. Devon.

P. T. Exeter (161) 4½ m. SW b S. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Kenne and hundred of Exminster. Haldon Hall is a fine building, erected in 1735, containing a good collection of pictures, and surrounded by fine grounds, commanding some beautiful views of the course of the Exe from Exeter to the sea, the Quantock hills, and the English Channel. On the mountainous ridge, called Haldon Hill, which extends nearly seven miles from north-west to south-east, are a number of tumuli, in which have been discovered several urns of baked clay, containing a greasy kind of ashes that smelt like soot, and intermixed with fragments of bones, evidently human remains.

HALE, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Egremont (293) 2½ m. SE.
Pop. with Wilton, 249.

A parish in Allendale ward above Darwent, situated near Copeland forest, and abounding with freestone and limestone. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 7*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 79*l.*; patron (1829) the Earl of Lonsdale. The church is a plain structure, with a small tower and spire.

HALE, co. Kent.

P. T. Wrotham (21) 3 m. SSW.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish and hundred of Wrotham, lath of Aylesford.

HALE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Prescott (198) 7 m. S. Pop. 639.

A township in the parish of Childwall and hundred of West Derby, situated at the most northern point of the county; living, a donative in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 17*l.* 17*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.*; patron (1829) John Blackburn, Esq. Hale Hall is a fine old building, the seat of John Blackburn, Esq., and commands an extensive view over the Mersey. John Middleton, called the child of Hale, was a native of this place, where he was born in 1578; he was nine feet three inches in height, and of extraordinary strength. Being taken to the court of James I., he wrestled with the king's wrestler, and put out his thumb. A portrait of this singularly gigantic individual is preserved at Hale Hall, where he is represented in the fantastic dress in which he was presented to King James.

HALE, co. Southampton.

P. T. Fordingbridge (92) 4 m. NE. Pop. 131.

A parish in the hundred of Fordingbridge, New Forest, west division; living, a donative with the curacy of Beamore, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 92*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Breamore curacy.

HALE, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kirkby Lonsdale (253) 8 m. W.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Beetham, Kendal ward.

HALE, GREAT, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Falkingham (106) 6½ m. NE b N.
Pop. 863.

A parish in the wapentake of Aswardburn, parts of Kesteven; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 6*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 126*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HALE, LITTLE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Falkingham (106) 6 m. NE. Pop. 296.

A township in the parish of Hale and wapentake of Aswardburn, parts of Kesteven.

HALES, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Becc
Pop. 252.

A parish in the hundred of Claverling; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, of the certified value of 10*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 25*l.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron (1829) Sir Thomas Smith, Bart.

HALES, co. Stafford.

P. T. Drayton-in-Hales (153) 2½ m. E b S.
Pop. 252.

A township in the parish of Drayton-in-Hales and north division of the hundred of Pirehill.

HALES OWEN, co. Salop and Worcester.

London 117 m. NW. Pop. 10,919. M. D. Mond. Fairs, Easter Mond., for horses, toys, &c.; and Whit. Mond., for horses, cattle, sheep, and cheese.

A market-town and parish, partly in the Hales Owen division of the hundred of Brimstrey, county of Salop, and partly in the lower division of the hundred of Halfshire, county of Worcester. The town is situated in a delightful valley, surrounded by Worcestershire and Staffordshire; the scenery in this district is extremely fine and picturesque. The manufactures of Hales Owen are chiefly in nails and hardwares. It was formerly noted for its abbey of Premonstratensian canons, built by Peter de Rupibus, Bishop of Winchester, pursuant to a charter granted by King John. From its venerable ruins, still standing, it appears to have been an extensive establishment; a house in the vicinity, now converted into a farm, is supposed to have been the abbot's kitchen. The livings are a dis. vicarage and a donative of Hagley, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 8*s.* 11½*d.*; patron (1829) Lord Lyttleton. The church, dedicated to St. Mary and St. John the Evangelist, is a very fine structure, and much admired for its beautiful spire, which rests upon four arches of singular construction. The chapel, dedicated to St. Kenelm, is an ancient edifice, of the time of Henry III.; but some parts are of much greater antiquity, being remains of the original chapel, erected by the Saxons, soon after the discovery of the body of King Kenelm, son of Kenulph, King of the Mercians, who died in 819. In this neighbourhood is the celebrated and beautiful spot, called the Leasowes, which was the property and favourite retreat of Shenstone, the poet, who was born here in 1714, and died in 1763; in the parish church is a handsome urn, erected to his memory. The learned Adam Littleton, author of a Latin dictionary, and various other works, was also a native of Hales Owen, where he was born in 1627.

HALESWORTH, co. Suffolk.

London 100 m. N.E. Pop. 2166. M. D. Tues. Fairs, Easter Tues.; Whit. Tues.; and Oct. 29, for Scotch beasts.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Blything, situated on the banks of the river Blythe, which is navigable up to the town. It is well built, and a place of some antiquity, but does not possess any thing particularly worthy of notice. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in spinning linen-yarn, considerable quantities of hemp being grown in this neighbourhood. Here are also a sail-cloth manufactory, and an iron-foundry. The principal trade of this town consists in corn, malt, and beer, cheese, butter, lime, and hemp, and which is much facilitated by a navigable canal to Southwold, about nine miles from hence. The living is a dis. rectory with that of Clfedeston, in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 207; patron (1829) James Plummer, Esq. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a handsome Gothic structure. Here is a charity-school, where the children of the poor receive the rudiments of education. In the vicinity is a mineral spring, famous for the cure of diseases in the eyes. Sir Robert Bedingfield, Lord Mayor of London in 1707, was a native of Halesworth.

HALE WESTON, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. St. Neot's (56) 2 m. NW. Pop. 297.

A parish in the hundred of Toseland; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Southoe, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patronage with Southoe vicarage.

HALEWOOD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Prescott (198) 6 m. S. Pop. 931.

A township in the parish of Childwall and hundred of West Derby, situated near the river Mersey.

HALFMORTON, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Langholm (70) 8 m. SSW. Pop. 553.

A parish, formerly a chapelry to that of Langholm, about four miles square, and watered by the rivers Logan and Sark, on the banks of which the soil, sheltered by extensive plantations, is fertile and highly productive. The living is in the presbytery of Langholm and synod of Dumfries; patron, Sir William Maxwell, Bart., by whose liberal exertions good roads and other improvements have been extensively made here.

HALFORD, co. Salop.

P. T. Ludlow (132) 8 m. NW b N. Pop. 51.

A chapelry in the parish of Bromfield and hundred of Munslow; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Bromfield, in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford, not in charge; patronage with Bromfield vicarage.

HALFORD, co. Warwick.

P. T. Shipston-upon-Stour (83) 4 m. N. Pop. 313.

A parish in the Kington division of the hundred of Kington, formerly called Aflford, and derived its name from the Old Ford which it had over the Stour; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 107. 9s. 9½d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Bishop of Worcester.

HALESHIRE, co. Worcester.

Pop. 61,331.

A hundred on the northern extremity of the county, from Droitwich, and on the borders of Staffordshire and Worcestershire, containing thirty-one parishes, including the towns of Hales Owen and Kidderminster.

HALGHTON, co. Flint, N. W.

P. T. Ellesmere (169) 5 m. N.E. Pop. 469.

A township in the parish of Hanmer and hundred of Maclor, lying on the turnpike-road between Wrexham and Whitchurch.

HALIFAX, W. R. co. York.

London 197 m. NNW. York 42 m. SW. Pop. of Pa. 92,850. Of To. 12,628. M. D. Sat. Fair, June 21, for horses.

An ancient and populous manufacturing town in the parish of the same name, and hundred of Morley, situated on a gentle eminence, near a branch of the river Calder, which has been rendered navigable to its junction with the Aire and the Ouse. It is surrounded by hills, and the barrenness of the neighbouring soil is unfavourable to agricultural improvement; but this disadvantage is compensated by the facilities afforded by the numerous streams, for the erection of mills and factories, and the prosecution of trade and commerce. So unimportant was this place in the fifteenth century, that it is said to have contained but thirty houses, in 1443; and it is to the introduction of the woollen manufacture, which became considerable in the reign of Henry VII., that its subsequent prosperity must be attributed. The extent and value of this trade may be estimated from a peculiar local law, designed to afford protection the clothiers of Halifax, against the deductions to which their goods were exposed during the progress of their manufacture. It was customary, as it is still, to stretch the cloth on racks, or wooden frames, in the fields to dry, and being thus left all night, and liable to be stolen, the magistrates were invested with jurisdiction, to try and inflict capital punishment, in a summary manner, on all persons who stole property, valued at more than thirteen pence halfpenny, within the liberties or precincts of the forest of Hardwick. Those charged with this offence were taken before the miller of Halifax, who forthwith summoned, as his assessors, the frith-burgers of the several towns within the forest, who instantly proceeded to trial. They could convict the prisoner on three grounds only, if he was seized in the act of thieving, or with the stolen goods upon him, or lastly, on his own confession; and these three grounds of conviction, were technically termed haul-habend, back-bearand, and confessand. If the culprit was found guilty, he was to be carried within a week, or according to some authorities, within three weeks, to the scaffold, in the market-place of Halifax, and there beheaded, by means of a machine resembling the guillotine used in France after the revolution. The immediate origin of this judicial usage, and the authority on which it was founded, have never been accurately ascertained; but however it arose, it continued to be practised till 1650, when the bailiff relinquished the custom, and the scaffold was taken down. Within a century after the establishment of the woollen-trade, Halifax had become so populous, that 12,000 men were sent from this place to join the army of Queen Elizabeth, during one of the insurrections in the north, which took place in her reign. Some military events of small importance occurred here during the civil war, under Charles I. Halifax was represented in two of the Parliaments, assembled by the authority of Cromwell, in the years 1656 and 1658. The petty sessions are held here. The town contains many handsome buildings, principally stone structures, but there are several of brick; and a few ancient edifices may be still perceived, the architecture of which consists of a frame-work of wood, the intervals being filled with plaster or clay. Among the public buildings is a neat theatre, of modern erection. The parish of Halifax, which is of great extent, contains twenty-six townships, namely, Barkisland, Brighouse, Eland, Eringden, Fixby, Greetland, Halifax, Heptonstall, Hipperholme, Langfield, Linley, Midgley, Northouram, Norland, Ovenden, Rastrick, Rishworth, Stainland, Stansfield, Shelf, Skircoat, Sow-erby, Soyland, Southouram, Warley, and Wadsworth. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 84l. 13s. 6½d.; patron, the King. The church, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, is a spacious and handsome Gothic edifice, erected at different periods, the tower and steeple having been completed in 1470. There is another church, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, which is an elegant structure of Grecian architecture, built by the vicar, Dr. Coulthurst, in 1798, a perpetual curacy, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 100l. as also St. Anne, in the Groves, a curacy certified value 3l., both in the gift of the Vicar of Halifax. In the town are places of worship for the Methodists, Independents, Quakers, and other dissenters. A free-school was founded here by Queen Elizabeth; and there is another, called the Blue-coat School, or hospital for twenty-four poor orphans, founded and endowed in 1642, by Nathaniel Waterhouse, Esq., lord of the manor. An ancient almshouse, for twelve poor widows, was several years ago, enlarged at the expense of the inhabitants, for the reception of twenty-four additional inmates. Here is a weekly market, held by prescription on Saturdays, principally for the sale of woollen cloth. For the accommodation of the traders in this article, there is a large freestone edifice, called the Cloth Hall, occupying an area of 10,000 square yards, and divided into 315 apartments, for the reception of goods, the quantity of which, exposed for sale at one time, generally amounts in value to 50,000l. Commercial intercourse between Halifax and Hull, as well as the eastern parts of England generally, is carried on by means of the Calder navigation; and with Manchester, Liverpool, Lancaster, and the west, a communication is furnished by the Rochdale canal. The manufactories which supply the goods forming the principal object of this trade, are situated in the town and surrounding country, which is covered with thriving villages, inhabited by an industrious population, engaged in the various processes of carding, spinning, weaving, dressing, and dyeing the several kinds of cloth and other articles of commerce. These are chiefly shalloons, taminets, duroys, everlastings, calimancoes, moreens, shags, serges, baizes, coatings, and carpets; with narrow and broad cloths and kerseymeres, both for domestic use and for the army. Ten thousand pieces of shalloon were said to have been made annually in this parish several years ago; considerable quantities of which were sent to Turkey and the Levant. Several cotton manufactories have been erected, and that branch of industry seems to be on the increase. Excellent wool-cards are likewise made at Halifax. In the neighbourhood large quantities of freestone have been dug and sent for sale to the metropolis; slate of a superior quality is also found here; and fuel for domestic purposes, and for the consumption of the various factories, is supplied from coal-mines at a short distance. Sir Henry Saville, Archbishop Tillotson, and other persons of eminence, were natives of the parish of Halifax; and the town gave the title of Marquis to George Saville, a distinguished statesman in the reign of William III.; and that of Earl to Charles Montague, a statesman and poet, celebrated as the patron of Pope and Addison, rather than on account of his own productions.

HALKIN, co. Flint, N. W.

P. T. Holywell (203) 3 m. S. Pop. 1842.

A parish in the hundred of Colleshill; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph. The vicinity abounds in minerals, lead and calamine, interspersed with stratified limestone, and chert, &c.; and coal exists here in abundance. Halkin Mountain, a conspicuous object, rises to an elevation of 992 feet above sea-level. Here is Halkin Hall, a magnificent castellated mansion, one of the seats of Earl Grosvenor.

To the north-east; stands Moel-y-Gaer, 1020 feet in height, on the summit of which is a British fortress, enclosed by a dyke and foss, both of a circular form.

HALLKIRK, shire of Caithness, S.

P. T. Thurso (279) 7 m. S b E. Pop. 2610.
A highland parish and post-town, the former twenty-four miles in length, and averaging ten miles and a half in breadth. It contains no less than twenty-four lakes, some of them of considerable expanse, and all abounding with delicious trout and eels; from Loch-More issues the beautiful river Thurso, which is crossed near the church and post-office by a substantial bridge of three arches. There is a magnificent prospect from the Spital or hill, which derives its name from a hospital of knights-templars, formerly situated at its base. Limestone and marl are plentiful here. The living is in the presbytery of Caithness and synod of Caithness and Sutherland; patron, Sir John Sinclair, Bart. Nine miles from the church is a missionary station, established by the Christian Society, and in different parts of the parish are several ancient chapels in ruins. Near Loch Cathel are the remains of a structure of awful and prodigious extent, and on an eminence rising from the bank of the Thurso is the Castle or Tower of Braal, a fabric of massive masonry, once the seat of the Harolds, Earls of Caithness. Loch-More Castle, on the margin of the lake of the same name, was the hunting-seat of Ronald Chein. Along the shore there are numerous Pictish huts and many sepulchral remains.

HALLAM KIRK, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 9 m. ENE. Pop. 433.

A parish in the hundred of Morleston and Litchurch; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 41*9s.7d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) F. Newdigate, Esq.

HALLAM, NETHER, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Sheffield (162) 1½ m. W. Pop. 3200.

A township in the parish of Sheffield and upper division of the wapentake of Strathforth and Tickhill.

HALLAM, UPPER, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Sheffield (162) 3 m. SW. Pop. 1018.

A township in the parish of Sheffield and upper division of the wapentake of Strathforth and Tickhill.

HALLAM, WEST, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 8 m. NE b E. Pop. 706.

A parish in the hundred of Morleston and Litchurch; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; church ded. to St. Wilfred; patron (1829) C. Kinnersley, Esq.

HALLATON, co. Leicester.

London 90 m. NNW. Pop. 644. M.D. Thurs. Fairs, Holy Thurs.; and Thurs. 3 weeks aft. for horses, horned cattle, powder, brass, and cloths.

A small market-town and parish in the hundred of Gartree, situated in a pleasant valley. Its name is derived from Hallowed or Holy Town. A singular but foolish annual custom prevails here, which arose from a bequest of a piece of land to the rector, who should provide, on Easter-Monday, two large pies, a quantity of ale in wooden bottles, and two dozen penny-loaves, to be scrambled for by the poor of the parish. The living is in the archdeaconry of Leicestershire and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 36*l.*; patrons (1829) J. M. Grimwood and W. Gosling, Esqrs. The church, dedicated to St. Michael, is a large handsome structure, consisting of a nave, aisles, and a chancel, with a tower and spire. Here is a charity-school, which was founded in 1707 by the benefaction of a lady. About a mile from the town is an encampment, called Hallaton Castle Hill; it consists of a circular intrenchment, with a lofty conical keep, a part of which is encompassed with banks and ditches.

HALLBENTH, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Dunfermline (15½) 3 m. NE. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish and district of Dunfermline, near which is a large colliery, whence there is an iron rail-road by which the coal is conveyed to Inverkeithing for exportation.

HALL-GARTH, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (258) 4 m. Eb N. Pop. 304.

A township in the parish of Pittington and south division of the wapentake of Easington. Here is an extensive colliery belonging to the Marquis of Londonderry, whence a line of rail-road is formed to the Wear at Painshaw, about eight miles distant.

HALLIKELD, N. R. co. York.

Pop. 5053.

A wapentake, situated on the south side of the county, and lying between the rivers Swale and Ure, containing ten parishes, twenty-six townships, and two chapelries.

HALLING, co. Kent.

P. T. Rochester (29) 4 m. WSW. Pop. 346.

A parish in the Hundred of Shamwell, in the of Aylesford; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 7*l. 13s. 4d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l. 18s. 2d.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Rochester.

HALLINGBURY, GREAT, or MORLEY, co. Essex.

P. T. Bishop's Stortford (30) 1½ m. SE b E. Pop. 678.

A parish in the hundred of Harlow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 22*l.*; patron (1829) J. A. Houblon, Esq.

HALLINGBURY, LITTLE, or NEVILL, co. Essex.

P. T. Harlow (23) 4 m. NNE. Pop. 470.
154

A parish in the hundred of Harlow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Governors of the Charter-house.

HALLINGTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (119) 1½ m. W b S. Pop. 75.

A parish in the Wold division of the hundred of Louth Esk, parts of Lindsey; living, a vicarage with that of Raithby, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 17*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Laurence; patronage with Raithby vicarage.

HALLINGTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (218) 8½ m. NNE. Pop. 129.

A township in the parish of St. John Lee and south division of Tindale ward. Here, on an eminence called the Mote Law, is an intrenchment, having in its centre a large hearth-stone, upon which fires were formerly kindled for giving alarm in times of danger.

HALLIWELL, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Bolton (197) 3½ m. WNW. Pop. 2288.

A township in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford.

HALLOUGHTON, or HAWTON, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Southwell (132) 2 m. SSW. Pop. 101.

A parish in the liberty of Southwell and Scrooby; living, a curacy and a peculiar of Southwell, in the diocese of York; certified value 10*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 48*l.*; chapel ded. to St. James; patron, the Prebendary of Halloughton.

HALLOW, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) 3 m. NNW. Pop. 1081.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Oswaldslow, situated on a fine eminence rising from the banks of the Severn, and commanding some beautiful views of that river and the Cotswold and Bredon hills. The living is a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Grimley, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester, not in charge; patronage with Grimley vicarage. Here is a chalybeate spring, the waters of which possess the same qualities as those of Cheltenham.

HALLYSTONE, or HOLYSTONE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Rothbury (303) 6 m. W b N. Pop. of Pa. 468. Of To. 132.

A parish and township in the west division of Coquetdale ward, situated between the Dove-Crag-bourn, and the river Coquet, and was probably once a place of some consequence, as it is said that, on the first introduction of Christianity in Northumbria, 3000 persons were baptised here by Paulinus. The living is a curacy with that of Alvington, in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham, of the certified value of 8*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 125*l.* 7*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Alvington curacy. Here was formerly a small priory for Benedictine nuns, very few vestiges of which now remain. Lady's Well, which formerly belonged to the nunnery, has a beautiful basin, into which the water falls, and it is surrounded by a stone wall.

HALMER-END, co. Stafford.

P. T. Newcastle-under-Lyne (150) 4 m. N. Pop. 553.

A liberty in the parish of Audley and hundred of Pirehill, North.

HALSALL, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Ormskirk (219) 3 m. WNW. Pop. of Pa. 3538. Of To. 970.

A parish and township in the hundred of West Derby, in the north-west part of which is Halsall Mose, a large morass, including Gettern Mere, and the two meres called Black and White Otter; a bituminous kind of turf is found here, from which oil is extracted of a very fine quality, and pieces of which are used by the poor inhabitants instead of candle. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 24*l.* 11*s.* 5½*d.*; patronesses (1829) Misses Blundel. The church, ded. to St. Cuthbert, is a fine old building, with a lofty spire. Here is a freeschool.

HALSE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Brackley (63) 3 m. NW b N. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of St. Peter Brackley and hundred of King's Sutton.

HALSE, or HALSE PRIORS, co. Somerset.

P. T. Wivelascombe (153) 1 m. E. Pop. 417.

A parish in the hundred of Williton and Freemaners; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 19*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) Sir J. Langham, Bart.

HALSIAM, E. R. co. York

P. T. Patrington (192) 3½ m. NW. Pop. 315.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Holderness; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 30*l.*; patron (1829) Sir T. Constable, Bart.; church ded. to All Saints. In the church-yard is a fine mausoleum belonging to the Constable family.

HALSTEAD, co. Kent.

P. T. Seven Oaks (23) 1 m. NW b N. Pop. 243.

A parish in the hundred of Codsheath, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone; living, a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 17*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron, the Bishop of London.

HALSTEAD, co. Essex.

London 36 m. NE. Pop. 3858. M. D. Fri. Fairs, May 6; and Oct. 29, for cattle.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Hincford, pleasantly situated on an eminence, rising from the river Colne; it derives its name from two Saxon words, signifying a salubrious spot. The streets are wide and very clean, from the nature of the ground on which the town stands. The market is supposed to have been established in the time of the Saxons, as a hill where it was formerly held is called Cheping Hill; it is now held in the centre of the town. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 17*l.*; patron, the Bishop of London. The church, ded. to St. George, is an ancient building, consisting of a nave, chancel, and side aisles, with a tower and spire. Here is a grammar-school, founded in 1594 by Dame Mary Ramsey, for forty poor children of Halstead and Colne-Engaine parishes; and in case of a deficiency in number, children are to be chosen from a circuit of within eight miles round the town. The Trustees are governors of Christ's Hospital, in whose hands the funds are left the management.

HALSTEAD, co. Leicester.

P. T. Uppingham (89) 10 m. WNW.
Pop. 187.

A township in the parish of Tilton and hundred of East Goscote.

HALSTOCK, co. Dorset.

Pop. 417.

A liberty in the Sherborne division and north-western side of the county, bordering on Somersetshire, containing the parish from which it takes its name.

HALSTOCK, co. Dorset.

P. T. Beaminster (141) 6 m. NE b N.
Pop. 417.

A parish in the liberty of Halstock, Sherborne division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Lyme Regis, and a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 30*l.*; patronage with Lyme Regis vicarage.

HALSTON, co. Salop.

P. T. Oswestry (171) 3½ m. E b N Pop. 39.

A parish in the hundred of Oswestry, formerly a preceptory of the Knights Templars; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Oswestry, in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph's; patronage with Oswestry vicarage.

HALSTOW, HIGH, co. Kent.

P. T. Rochester (29) 5 m. NNE. Pop. 350.

A parish in the hundred of Hoo, lathe of Aylesford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 5*s.* 7½*d.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patroness (1829) Mrs. Sarah Burt.

HALSTOW, LOW, co. Kent.

P. T. Milton (22) 4 m. NW b W. Pop. 220.

A parish in the hundred of Milton, lathe of Seray; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 2*s.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury.

HALTHAM-UPON-BANKE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Horncastle (136) 5 m. S b W.
Pop. 196.

A parish in the soke of Horncastle, parts of Lindsey, situated upon the banks of the river Banke, and near the Tattersale navigation; living, a dis. rectory united to Rough-ton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. Benedict; patron (1829) the Honourable J. Dymoke.

HALTON, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Wendover (35) 2 m. N b E. Pop. 185.

A parish in the hundred of Aylesbury, through which passes the Wendover Canal feeder; living, a rectory and a peculiar, in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) Sir J. D. King, Bart.

HALTON, or HAULTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Frodsham (191) 3 m. NNE.
Pop. 1066. Fair, Sept. 19.

A township in the parish of Runcorn and west division of the hundred of Bucklow, formerly a market-town, with a castle, supposed to have been built by Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester, in 1071. It is now in ruins, having been reduced to that state in the civil wars; the most perfect part remaining is the prison, which, with a court of record, belonged to the Duchy of Lancaster, which has an extensive jurisdiction here, under the name of Halton Free. This manor was a favourite hunting-seat of John of Gaunt's. The scenery from the castle is exceedingly fine, being intersected by the windings of the rivers Mersey and Weaver. An annual duchy-court is held here at Michaelmas, but felons are sent to the sessions at Chester.

HALTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Lancaster (240) 2½ m. NE b N.
Pop. with Aughton, 1027.

A parish in the hundred of Lonsdale, south of the sands, situated on the river Layne; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 0*s.* 7½*d.*; patron (1829) W. B. Bradshaw, Esq.

HALTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (278) 5 m. NE b E. Pop. 60.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Corbridge and east division of Tindale ward; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Corbridge, in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham, not in charge; patronage with Corbridge vicarage. There is a strong oblong structure with four turrets, called Halton Tower.

HALTON, EAST, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Great Grimsby (165) 11 m. NW.
Pop. 468.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*;

ann. val. P. R. 112*l*. 10*s*.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Lord Yarborough

HALTON, EAST, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (216) 6 m. NE b E.
Pop. with Bolton, 141.

A township in the parish of Skipton and east division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross.

HALTON GILL, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Settle (235) 10½ m. ENE. Pop. 111.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Arncliffe and west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 12*l*. 1*s*. 2*d*.; patron the Vicar of Arncliffe.

HALTON HOLGATE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 1½ m. ESE. Pop. 460.

A parish in the east division of the soke of Bolingbroke, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 16*l*. 17*s*. 11*d*. church ded. to St. Andrew.

HALTON SHIELDS, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (278) 7 m. NE b E. Pop. 57.

A township in the parish of Corbridge and east division of Tindale ward, situated on the site of the Great Roman Wall.

HALTON, WEST, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Barton-upon-Humber (167) 10 m. W.
Pop. 374.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory with the curacy of Canesby, in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 16*l*.; church ded. to St. Etheldreda; patron, the Bishop of Norwich.

HALTON, WEST, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Settle (235) 7 m. S b E. Pop. 190.

A township in the parish of Arncliffe and west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross.

HALTREES, shire of Edinburgh, S.

P. T. Stagehall (24) 5 m. N b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Meriot, where are the ruins of a chapel.

HALTWHISTLE, co. Northumberland.

London 285 m. NNW. Pop. of Pa. 3583.
Of To. 707. M. D. Tues. Fairs, May 14, and Nov. 22, for horned cattle, horses, and sheep; chiefly for the first-mentioned; also linen, woollen, and Scotch cloth.

A market-town, parish, and township, in the west division of Tindale ward, pleasantly situated on an immense rising from the north side of the South Tyne, over which there is a wooden bridge, erected in 1826, and about three miles above the town the river is also crossed by a stone bridge. A considerable portion of this parish consists of barren moors, forming a singularly striking contrast, with its highly cultivated lands. The town has a small manufacture of baizes, but the inhabitants are for the most part engaged in various trades. Here is a place called White-Chester, which was a military station of the Romans; it is defended on three sides by steep rugged glens. Near the centre of an eminence, called Castle Banks, at the eastern extremity of the town, is a beautiful spring; the spot has the appearance of having been a military post. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 12*l*. 0*s*. 0½*d*.; patron, the Bishop of Durham. The church, ded. to Holy Cross, is an ancient structure, consisting of a nave, side aisles, and a chancel. The Presbyterians have a chapel here, where they have had a settled congregation since 1735. The charity-school, which receives about eighty scholars, was endowed by the Right Honourable Dorothy Capell, baroness of Tewkesbury, in 1719, at the request of one of her domestics, with the annual sum of 35*l*. At Thelwall, about three miles hence, are the remains of a castle, formerly one of the boundary fortresses between England and Scotland; and through that village passed the great Roman wall.

HALVERGATE, co. Norfolk

P. T. Acle (121) 3½ m. SSE. Pop. 449.

A parish in the hundred of Walsham; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l*.; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron, the Bishop of Ely.

HALWELL, co. Devon.

P. T. Totness (196) 5 m. S b W. Pop. 468.

A parish in the hundred of Coleridge; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Harborton, in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; patronage with Harborton vicarage.

HALWELL, co. Devon.

P. T. Holsworthy (214) 6½ m. SE b E.
Pop. 216.

A parish in the hundred of Black Torrington; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 12*l*. 3*s*. 9*d*.; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HALYBURTON, shire of Berwick, S.

P. T. Greenlaw (36) 3 m. NW.
Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Greenlaw, situated on the river Blackadder, having a chapel served by the minister of Greenlaw. In 1401, this place gave the title of Baron to Sir Walter Halyburton, one of the hostages for James I.

HAM, co. Kent.

Pop. 755.

A small hundred, in the lathe of Shepway, containing two parishes, situated on the south side of the county.

HAM, co. Kent.

P. T. Sandwich (68) 3 m. S. Pop. 26.

A parish in the hundred of Eastry, lathe of St. Augustin; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 5*l*. 6*s*. 5½*d*.; ann. val. P. R.

139*l.* 11*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to St. George; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HAM, co. Surrey.

London 11 m. SW b W.

Pop. with Hatch, 961. Fair, May 29, 30, and 31.

A hamlet in the parish of Kingston-upon-Thames and hundred of Kingston. Ham House was the place where James II. retired, and whence he escaped to France, on the arrival of the Prince of Orange. A chapel has lately been erected here by subscription; living, a curacy in the gift of the vicar of Kingston.

HAM, co. Wilts.

P. T. Hungerford (64) 4½ m. SSW. Pop. 171

• A parish in the hundred of Elstob and Everley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Bishop of Winchester.

HAM, EAST, co. Essex.

London 7½ m. E b N. Pop. 1121.

A parish in the hundred of Becontree; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.*; patron, the Bishop of London. The church, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, is a very ancient structure, having been originally a Pagan temple. Greenstead House, in this parish, is said to have been built by Henry VIII. for Anne Boleyn; in the garden is an old brick tower, fifty feet high.

HAM, HIGH, co. Somerset.

P. T. Langport (128) 3 m. N. Pop. 953.

A parish in the hundred of Whitley; living, a rectory with the curacy of Low Ham, in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 38*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, Worcester, College, Oxford.

HAM PRESTON, or CHAMBERLAYNE, co. Dorset.

P. T. Wimborne Minster (100) 4 m. ESE. Pop. 892.

A parish in the hundred of Cranborne, Shaston division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons (1829) C. and H. Warland, Esqrs.

HAM, WEST, co. Essex.

London 5½ m. ENE. Pop. 9753.

A parish in the hundred of Becontree, situated on the river Lea; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 39*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the King. Here are twelve acres of marshland, appropriated to placing out as apprentices three youths of this parish, and one of East Ham. About a mile from the parish church are the remains of an ancient abbey.

HAMBLE, or HAMBLE-EN-LE-RICE, co. Southampton.

P. T. Southampton (74) 5 m. SE. Pop. 421.

A parish in the hundred of Mansbridge, Fawley division, situated on the river of the same name, which affords a convenient retreat for shipping, having a sufficient depth of water at all times for putting to sea; the scenery in this neighbourhood is extremely beautiful. The living is a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Hound, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 8*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patronage with Hound vicarage. Here was formerly a Cistercian priory. Many small craft are built and repaired in this place, which is noted for its fine lobsters.

HAMBLEDEN, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Henley upon-Thames (35) 3 m. NNE. Pop. 1281.

A parish in the hundred of Desborough; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 35*l.*; patrons (1829) John Wray, Esq. and others. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a handsome and spacious structure, rebuilt in 1721. Here was formerly an ancient manor-house, in which Charles I. took refuge when flying from Oxford to St. Albans, and afterwards escaped from this place by the connivance of Whitelock.

HAMBLEDON, co. Southampton.

Pop. 1880.

A hundred in the Portsdown division and south-east corner of the county, near the borders of Sussex, containing the one parish only from which it takes its name.

HAMBLEDON, co. Southampton.

London 64 m. Pop. 1886. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, Feb. 13, for horses; May 7, for toys; and Oct. 2, for horses.

A small market-town and parish in the hundred of the same name in Portsdown division. Here is a considerable trade in corn. The living is a vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 26*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Bishop of Winchester. This place is famous for its cricket-players.

HAMBLEDON, co. Surrey.

P. T. Godalming (33) 3½ m. S b W. Pop. 381.

A parish in the hundred of Godalming; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Earl of Radnor.

HAMBLETON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Poulton (234) 4 m. NE. Pop. 333.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Kirkham and hundred of Amounderness; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 11*l.* 5*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 96*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.*; patron, the Vicar of Kirkham. At a short distance hence is a ford over the river Wyre.

HAMBLETON, co. Rutland.

P. T. Oakham (95) 4 m. ESE. Pop. 368.

A parish in the hundred of Martinsley; 158 living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln. This parish had, in the reign of Edward II., the grant of a weekly market and annual fair, which have long since fallen into disuse.

HAMBLETON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Selby (131) 4½ m. WSW. Pop. 488.

A township in the parish of Brayton, lower division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash.

HAMBROOK, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Bristol (111) 5 m. NE b N.
Pop. 968.

A hamlet in the parish of Winterbourne, and upper division of the hundred of Langley and Swineshead.

HAMMERINGHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Horncastle (130) 4 m. ESE. Pop. 149.

A parish in the hundred of Hill, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory with that of Scrayfield, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 142*l.* 1*s.*; church ded. to All Saints; patroness (1829) Mrs. Colman.

HAMERTON, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Stilton (75) 6 m. SSW. Pop. 141.

A parish in the hundred of Leightonstone; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) James S. H. Barry, Esq.

HAMFALLOW, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Cheltenham (94) 3 m. S. Pop. 437.

A tithing in the parish and upper division of the hundred of Berkeley.

HAMFORDSHOE, co. Northampton.

Pop. 7931.

A hundred situated on the east side of the county, and to the west of the river Nen, containing eight parishes.

HAMILTON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (98) 4 m. NE b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Barkby and hundred of East Goscote.

HAMILTON, shire of Lanark, S.

Edinburgh 38 m. WSW. Pop. 7613.
Fairs, last Tues. O. S. in Jan.; 2d Thurs. in Feb.; Frid. aft. May 15, O. S.; last Thurs. O. S. in June; 2d Thurs. in July; and 2d Thurs. O. S. in Aug. and Nov.

A market, post-town, and parish in the middle ward; the former, seated at the junction of the river Avon with the Clyde, though irregularly built, is a handsome and populous town, containing a spacious market-place, a good town-house, a prison, several hospitals, a grammar-school of high repute, and other public buildings. In the immediate vicinity is the princely mansion of the Duke of Hamilton, an elegant structure, forming three sides of a quadrangle, and possessing the noblest gallery of paintings in this part of the country; and not far istant is a commodious range of barracks or cavalry, also a well-attended race-course, advantages which have long contributed to render Hamilton a scene of gaiety, and perhaps the most fashionable place of resort in the county. A considerable trade is carried on here in cabinet work; about 800 looms are employed in the manufacture of cotton, and the females find employment in spinning linen-yarn. In 1156, this town was erected into a burgh of barony; in 1518, by charter of Queen Mary, it became a royal burgh, but soon after the restoration it surrendered its rights to the Duke of Hamilton, who, in 1670, restored its possessions, and made it a burgh of regality dependent upon himself and his successors. The parish is six miles length by five in breadth, and is more remarkable for the richness of its scenery than for the productiveness of its soil. Coal, freestone, limestone, and ironstone, are, however, got in abundance. The living is in the presbytery of Hamilton and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, the Duke of Hamilton, who takes his Scottish title from this place. The church, which stands on an eminence above the town, is an elegant fabric erected in 1732, the ancient edifice that stood near the palace having been pulled down, except one aisle still used as the burial place of the family. On a rock overhanging the Avon, are the ruins of Cadzow Castle, by which name this manor and barony was anciently known, and on the opposite side of the river is an imitation of a ruin executed at the expense of the Duke of Hamilton in 1730, to represent the castle of Chatellerault in France, of which the family has long enjoyed the title of Duke. William Cullen, the celebrated physician, was born here.

HAMILTON'S-BAWN, co. Armagh, Ulster, I.

P. T. Market-Hill (76) 1 m. N b E.
Pop. 241. Fairs, May 20, and Nov. 20.

A well-built and neat village in the parish of Mullabrack and barony of Fews. This little place has been rendered somewhat remarkable by its introduction into some humorous verses, by Dean Swift. The barracks, once extensive, are now in ruins.

HAMINIOG, co. Cardigan, S. W.

P. T. Lampeter (204) 14 m. N. Pop. 615.

A township in the parish of Llaurystydd and hundred of Ilar, lower division, situated near to the shore of Cardigan Bay.

HAMMERSMITH, co. Middlesex.

London 4 m. W b S. Pop. 8809.

A large and populous village, deemed a hamlet belonging to the parish of Fulham, in the hundred of Ossulston, situated on the great western road from London, on the northern bank of the river Thames. It comprises Brook Green, Pallenswick, or Stanbrook Green, and Shepherd's Bush, and besides waste ground, contains a considerable portion of pasture land and nursery-gardens. This place has greatly increased in wealth and population since the latter part of the last century; and though the streets of the village, with the exception of that which passes through its centre, are narrow and inconvenient, and the buildings extremely irregular, there are in various parts of the district many handsome villas and detached mansions. Hammersmith is mentioned in history as the intended scene of the projected assassination of Cromwell, for which Sindercombe, the grand conspirator was executed. Here also was the last retreat of the late Queen Caroline, who resided at Brandenburg House, a building so called from its having belonged to the Margrave of Brandenburg, and afterward to his accomplished widow, formerly Lady Craven. The house, which stood at a short distance from the margin of the Thames was purchased by government, and pulled down soon after the death of its royal occupant. The most remarkable structure at this place is the suspension chain-bridge over the Thames, to Barnes, in Surrey. It was commenced in May 1825, and completed in 1828, by Mr. W. Tierney Clarke Engineer, and Captain Brown, of the royal marines. The road-way, suspended by massive iron chains, passes at either end under ornamented arches in the buildings, by which the chains are supported. The living of Hammersmith is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London, and in the patronage of the Bishop. The chapel, dedicated to St. Paul, is a plain brick building, with a low tower. A new district church has been recently erected, under the authority of the commission for building new churches. The religious sects are numerous; there being places of worship for Moravians, Baptists, Independents, Quakers, Unitarians, and Catholics, with some others besides a Jewish synagogue. A nunnery for Roman Catholics has been long established here, which originated in a boarding school for young ladies, founded by Mrs. Beddingfield, in 1669, the governess and teachers of which adopted for themselves the rules of monastic life, and the institution became distinguished as a seminary for education. Here was anciently an hospital or almshouse, of which there are no traces now remaining. National and other charity-schools at Hammersmith are supported by subscription; and at Brook Green is a school for the gratuitous education of Catholics, and also a chapel. This place was formerly noted for a pleasure fair, which, becoming the resort of pickpockets and sharpers, like others near the metropolis, has been within these few years suppressed by the neighbouring magistrates. The West Middlesex Water Works are situated on the banks of the Thames, in this vicinity.

H A M

HAMMERTON, GREEN, W. R. co. York.

T. P. Aldborough (207) 7 m. SE b S.
Pop. 329.

A township in the parish of Whixley and wapentake of Claro.

H A M

HAMMERTON, KIRK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Aldborough (207) 8 m. SE b S.
Pop. of Pa. 504. Of To. 469.

A parish and township in the upper division of the wapentake of Claro; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 16*l*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) Rev. W. Metcalfe.

HAMMERWICH, co. Stafford.

P. T. Lichfield (119) 3 m. SW. Pop. 218.

A township and chapelry in the parish of St. Michael and hundred of Offlow; living, a curacy with the vicarage of St. Mary; certified value 3*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*.; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield.

HAMOON, or HAMMON, co. Dorset.

P. T. Shaftesbury (161) 7 m. SW. Pop. 71.

A parish in the hundred of Pemperon, Blandford division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; charged in K. B. 7*l*. 4*s*. 2*d*.; patron (1829) W. Trenchard, Esq.

HAMPALI, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Doncaster (102) 6 m. NW. Pop. 140.

A township with Stubbs, in the parish of Adwiche-in-the-Street, in the lower division of the wapentake of Strassforth and Tickhill.

HAMPDEN, GREAT, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Great Messenden (31) 3 m. WNW.
Pop. 261.

A parish in the hundred of Aylesbury; living, a rectory consolidated in 1729 with Great Kumble, in the archdeaconry of Bucks and diocese of Lincoln; charged in K. B. 9*l*. 9*s*. 7*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron (1829) the Earl of Buckinghamshire. This estate belonged to the family of Hampden, the most distinguished member of which, the celebrated John Hampden, the spirited opposer of ship-money, in the reign of Charles I., will obtain a lasting place in history. Besides the family mansion, which still exists, the church contains several monuments of the family, including a monument to the memory of John Hampden, the twenty-fourth lord of the manor, who died in 1754, and bequeathed his estates to the Honourable Robert Trevor, a descendant from the patriot, whose son became Viscount Hampden.

HAMPDEN, LITTLE, co. Bucks.

P. T. Great Messenden (31) 3 m. N b W.
Pop. 88.

chapelry in the hundred of Aylesbury; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Bucks and diocese of Lincoln, subordinate to the rectory of Hartwell; certified value 3*l*. 14*s*.

AMPNET, co. Gloucester.

P. T. North Leach (81) 2 m. NW.
Pop. 121.

parish in the hundred of Bradley in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; charged in K. B. 10*l*.; church ded. to St. George; patron (1829) Lord Stowell.

HAMPNET-WEST, co. Sussex.

P. T. Chichester (62) 1 m. NE. Pop. 401.

A parish in the hundred of Box and Stockbridge, and rape of Chichester; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 3*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HAMPSHIRE, HANTS, or SOUTHAMPTON, co. of N to S about 50 m. E to W 40 m. No. of statute acres 1,041,020. Pop. 283,298. Divisions 9, including 39 hundreds and 11 liberties, besides the town and county of Southampton and the borough of Portsmouth. Parishes 253. City 1. Boroughs 11. Market-towns 24. Mem. of Pt. 26. Western Circuit. Diocese of Winchester. Province of Canterbury.

A maritime county, bounded on the north by Berkshire, on the east by Surrey and Sussex, on the west by Wiltshire and Dorsetshire, and on the south by a channel which divides it from the Isle of Wight, or rather by the English Channel, that island forming a portion of Hampshire. Previously to the invasion of Britain by the Romans, the north-western part of this county is said to have been inhabited by the Segontiaci, and the other parts were included in the territories of the Belgæ, who were the most recent and most civilized among the British tribes. It was a portion of the Roman province called Britannia Prima, and contained one of the most important of the Roman settlements, Venta Belgarum, now the city of Winchester. The Saxons made several descents on the coast of this county in the beginning of the sixth century, when Porta, a Saxon chief, made some conquests, and appears to have left his name to the harbour of Portsmouth, the isle of Portsea, and other places. Stulf and Wihtgar attacked the Isle of Wight with similar success; and, at length, in 519, Cerdic, after repeated contests with the Britons, established the kingdom of Wessex, to which this county belonged, and the city of Winchester became the capital of the newly-founded kingdom, as it was also the seat of government for some time after the consolidation of the Saxon Heptarchy. On the conquest of England by the Normans, this county is supposed to have suffered peculiar devastation, in consequence of the formation of the New Forest by order of William I. in 1081, a transaction that has been stigmatized by some historians as a deed of peculiar cruelty and injustice; and the singular circumstance of the accidental deaths of two of the Conqueror's sons, Richard and William Rufus, within the bounds of the forest, have been regarded as the judgments of Heaven on the family of a tyrannical prince. The greater part of the district, however, appears to have been forest-land before the Conquest, and bore the Saxon appellation of Ytene; and though William probably extended the limits of the forest, and seized the estates of some of the landed proprietors, it was rather owing to the severe laws he instituted for the preservation of game than to any other cause, that he has been represented as a harsh and sanguinary tyrant. This county is considered as one of the most agreeable and fertile in the kingdom; and it has, from the earliest time, supported a numerous population. The surface is pleasantly diversified with gently-rising hills and fruitful valleys, adorned with numerous seats and villages, interspersed with extensive woodlands. The principal districts are enclosed, though wide tracts of open heath and waste land still remain on the western border, and the vicinity of Christchurch, the extent of which has been estimated at nearly 100,000 acres. There are several kinds of soil in different parts, but the calcareous soil predominates; and a ridge of chalk-hills may be traced across the county in the parallel of Winchester. In the north the soil is deep and fertile, on the acclivities of the hills towards Basingstoke, the land is deep and strong, with a substratum of chalk; about Andover it is suited to the cultivation of barley; and to the south and south-west of Romsey, in the forest district, the soil is chiefly loam and gravel. In those parts which border on Surrey, the land is principally appropriated to the growth of hops, the plantations of which have been largely extended of late years. Wheat, barley, peas, oats, rye, grass, and trefoil, are also raised in considerable quantities. The most usual manures are peat-ashes, chalk, lime, marl, and sea-weed; and the system of water-meadows is often adopted with advantage. Besides the products already noticed, Hampshire is famous for its wool, bacon, honey, and timber. Exclusive of the New Forest, occupying almost the whole of its south-west angle, this county contains the Forest of Bere towards the south-east, and the woods or forests of Alice, Holt, and Woolmar; the former extending northward from the Portsdown hills, and the latter situated on the borders of Surrey and Sussex. The state of agriculture in this county has been greatly improved by the numerous modern inclosures which have taken place, and by the construction of new turnpike-roads. It is watered by several rivers, some of which rising in the north-east soon leave the county in their course towards the Thames; but the greater cross it from north to south, and fall into the English Channel. The Upper Avon, from Wiltshire, flows near the edge of the New Forest, and passing Fording-bridge and Ringwood, enters the sea at Christchurch Bay. The Test, or Tese, rises in the north-western part of Hampshire, and passing Stockbridge and Romsey, falls into Southampton Bay. The Itchin has its source near the centre of the county, and washing the city of Winchester, empties itself into the bay just mentioned; and which also receives another small river below Titchfield. Besides these may be mentioned the Boldre-water, the Exe, the Anton, and the Hamble. In tracing the sea-coast from east to west, we find several important bays and inlets, the first of which includes Portsca Island, on which is the town of Portsmouth; and opposite to it, on the mainland, is Gosport, situated on the peninsula, which terminates in the point called Spithead. Hence commences that arm of the sea, stretching to the north-west, named Trisanton Bay, or Southampton-water, navigable almost to its head, for vessels of considerable burden. Further westward are the bays of Lymington and Christchurch. The principal manufactures of this county are broad cloth, shalloon, serge, kerseys, and other coarse woollens; malt, large quantities of which are made at Andover; and sea-salt, prepared at Lymington. Sea-fish is plentiful, and lobsters and other marine crustacea are taken off the coasts; and the rivers produce excellent trout. The divisions of this county are those of Andover, Kingsclere, Basingstoke, Alton, Fawley, Portsdown, New Forest, east and west, and the Isle of Wight; the hundreds are Andover, Wherwell, Thorn-gate, King's Sombourn, Barton Stacey, Chuteley, Evingar, Kingsclere, Overton, Pastrow, Basingstoke, Bermondspit, Cron-dall, Holdshott, Odiham, Micheldever, Alton, Bishop's Sutton, Selborne, East Meon, Finch Dean, Bountisborough, Buddlesgate, Fawley, Mainsborough, Mansbridge, Bishop's Waltham, Bosmere, Fareham, Hambleton, Meon Stoke, Portsdown, Titchfield, New Forest, Redbridge, Ringwood, Christchurch, and Fordingbridge; and the liberties are New Alresford, Alverstoke, Havant, Beaulieu, Dibden, Lymington, Breamore, Westover, Stoke, and East and West Medina. The only city is Winchester; the boroughs are Southampton, Portsmouth, Petersfield, Yarmouth, Newport, Newtown, Stockbridge, Andover, Whitechurch, Lymington, and Christchurch; and the market-towns, Alresford, Alton, Basingstoke, Brad-ing, Coves, Fareham, Fordingbridge, Gosport, Havant, Odiham, Ringwood, Romsey, Ryde, and Bishop's Waltham. Two members are returned to Parliament for the county, two for Winchester, and two for each of the eleven boroughs.

HAMPSTEAD, co. Middlesex.

London 4 m. NW. Pop. 7263.

An extensive and populous village and parish in the hundred of Ossulston, situated on the summit and southern declivity of a hill, which affords several fine prospects of the metropolis and the adjacent country. It contains many handsome houses, surrounded with gardens and shrubberies, rendering it, in conjunction with the beauty of the scenery, one of the most agreeable places of residence in the vicinity of London. The streets are exceedingly irregular, several of them forming terraces on the side of the ascent, on which the buildings are placed, and some of the smaller ones are inaccessible for carriages or horses. The living is a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London, and in the patronage (1829) of Lord Arden. The church, dedicated to St. John, was a chapel of ease to Hendon till 1477, since which period it has been attached to the manor; and the edifice which was probably then erected having become ruinous, was taken down in 1747, and the present structure was built by Henry Flitcroft, the architect of St. Giles's-in-the-Fields. In the adjoining cemetery are interred some distinguished persons, among whom are John Harrison, who received a reward from the Board of Longitude for an improved time-piece, and who died in 1776; and John Carter, F.S.A., an eminent architectural draughtsman, whose death took place in 1817. On the eastern side of the village is St. John's chapel, erected a few years ago as a chapel of ease: it is a brick building covered with Roman cement, capable of containing about a thousand persons. There are also places of worship for dissenters. Hampstead, in the early part of the last century, became the favourite resort of persons of all ranks as a fashionable watering-place, partly in consequence of a chalybeate spring, the water of which, for a while, was in great repute for the cure of various diseases, but it has long ceased to be frequented. Among the houses of entertainment in and near the village, which were then the scenes of concerts, ridottos, assemblies, and other amusements, were the Upper and Lower Flasks, Belsize House, and the Spaniards, at the last of which there are still tea-gardens for summer visitors. On the north-eastern side of Hampstead is situated Caen Wood, or Ken Wood, the seat of the Earl of Mansfield, having been the property of the celebrated Lord Chief Justice Mansfield, who erected a new front, and otherwise improved the building, from the designs of Robert and James Adam. On the side of Hampstead Hill, in an ancient structure, called the Chicken House, are small portraits, painted on glass, supposed to represent James I. and his favourite the Duke of Buckingham; and the house is said to have been a hunting-seat belonging to James II. An intention of the lord of the manor to inclose Hampstead with a view to building leases, has produced a considerable opposition on the part of the copyhold owners of villas in the vicinity, and the difficulties have not yet been adjusted.

HAMPSTED MARSHAL, co. Bucks.

P. T. Newbury (56) 4 m. W b S. Pop. 304.

A parish in the hundred of Kentbury Eagle; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; charged in K. B. 12l. 14s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Craven.

HAMPSTEAD NORRIS, co. Berks.

P. T. East Hiley (54) 3½ m. SE. Pop. 1111.

A parish in the hundred of Faircross; living, a dis. vicarage with the chapelry of Langley in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 18*s.* 11*d.*; patron (1829) the Marquis of Downshire.

HAMPSTWHAITE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Knaresborough (202) 6 m. W b N.
Pop. of Pa. 2750. Of To. 400.

A parish and township in the lower division of the wapentake of Claro, pleasantly situated near the river Nidd; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; charged in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Thomas-à-Becket; patron (1829) — Shann, Esq. The parish contains four additional townships.

HAMPTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 11 m. S.E. Pop. 207.

A township in the parish of Malpus and hundred of Broxton.

HAMPTON, co. Middlesex.

London 12 m. S.W. Pop. 2100.

A village and parish in the hundred of Spelthorne, the former of which is agreeably situated on the north bank of the Thames, opposite the mouth of the river Mole, with a bridge across the Thames, leading to East Moulsey; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, is a brick building, consisting of a nave, aisles, and chancel, with a square tower at the west end; and in the interior are numerous sepulchral monuments, one of which is inscribed with a poetical epitaph, commemorating a lady, named Perry, who died in 1562. The village contains a number of gentlemen's seats, among which is the beautiful villa, formerly belonging to the celebrated David Garrick, who had a new front to the house erected from the design of Adam, the architect, and employed his own taste in forming the ornamental plantations around it. About a mile from Hampton is the royal palace of Hampton Court. It was originally built by Cardinal Wolsey, and furnished in a most magnificent style; but that great minister, on the decline of his favour with the king, made him a present of this palace, hoping by this sacrifice to recover his influence over his royal master. Great additions were made to the buildings by that prince, and the apartments were most superbly ornamented in the taste of the age, so that it became the admiration both of Englishmen and foreigners; and the famous Grotius, who visited this country in the reign of James I. rhetorically describes it as a residence fit for the gods. That part of the original structure now standing, constituted the offices of the palace, and cannot therefore afford a just idea of its pristine magnificence. The principal portion of the building was taken down in 1690, by order of William III., and re-erected by Sir Christopher Wren. The grand front towards the garden is 330 feet in length, and that facing the Thames is of somewhat less extent. The edifice comprises three principal quadrangles, respectively named the entrance-court, middle or clock-court, and the fountain-court, the two former of which exhibit the Tudor or later Gothic style of architecture; and from the second a noble colonnade of the Ionic order leads into the third court or square, around which are arranged the royal apartments erected in the reign of William III. On the north side of the middle court is the great hall, which has a rich Gothic roof, ornamented with the arms and cognizances of Henry VIII. It was fitted up as a theatre by George I. in 1718, the scenery and decorations of which were removed in 1798, for the purpose of restoring this noble apartment to its original form and beauty, under the direction of James Wyatt, surveyor-general to the Board of Works. To the north-west of the fountain-court stands the chapel, which forms the south side of a small quadrangle; and which appears to have been a part of the building erected by Henry VIII. and finished about 1537. It was fitted up in its present state in the reign of Anne, and is ornamented with carved work in wood by Grinlin Gibbons. The palace contains many portraits of distinguished personages, and other paintings by eminent artists. The gardens and park surrounding the palace are about three miles in circuit; and the former are laid out in the Dutch style, exhibiting borders and plantations arranged in mathematical figures, which have been suffered to remain unaltered, as corresponding in taste with the building itself. Edward VI. was born at Hampton Court palace, October 12, 1537, two days previous to the death of his mother, who was interred at Windsor on the 12th of November following. Charles I. retired hither on account of the plague in 1625; and to this palace he was brought by the army, August 24, 1647; and he resided here in a state of splendid imprisonment till November 11th, when he made his escape to the Isle of Wight. The manor of Hampton Court, which anciently belonged to the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, was sold by the Parliament in 1651, to John Phelps, for 10,765*l.* 19*s.* 9*d.*; it afterwards came into the possession of Oliver Cromwell, who made it one of his principal residences; and on the recall of Charles II. it was restored to the Crown.

HAMPTON and CLAVERTON, co. Somerset.

Pop. 104.

A small hundred, at the north-east end of the county, containing three parishes.

HAMPTON-IN-ARDEN, co. Warwick.

P. T. Coleshill (104) 6 m. S.
Pop. of Pa. 2772. Of To. 538.

A parish and township in the Solihull division of the hundred of Hemlingford, situated on the river Blythe; living, a vicarage with the chapel of Methurst, in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary and St. Bartholomew; patrons, the Trustees of the Ear of Leicester's Hospital. Here are traces of a castle still visible, and the parish contains several considerable hamlets within its liberties.

HAMPTON BISHOP, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 4 m. SE. Pop. 91.

A parish in the hundred of Grimsworth; living, a rectory and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Hereford; charged in K. B. 13l. 13s. 9d.; patron, the Bishop of Hereford.

HAMPTON, CHARLES, co. Hereford.

P. T. Bromyard (125) 5½ m. NW. Pop. 91.

A hamlet in the parish of Bockleton and hundred of Broseath.

HAMPTON GAY, co. Oxford.

P. T. Woodstock (92) 3 m. E. b. S. Pop. 86.

A parish in the hundred of Ploughley, on the river Cherwell; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Charlbury; in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 20l. 10s.; chapel ded. to St. Giles; patronage with Charlbury vicarage.

HAMPTON, GREAT, co. Worcester.

P. T. Evesham (99) 1 m. W. b. S. Pop. 324.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Blackenhurst, situated on a delightful eminence commanding a very fine prospect of the surrounding country. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; val. in K. B. 7l. 11s. 3½d.; ann. val. P. R. 89l. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, Christ Church, Oxford.

HAMPTON, HIGH, co. Devon.

P. T. Hatherleigh (201) 4 m. W. Pop. 282.

A parish in the hundred of Black Torrington; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Devon and diocese of Totness; valued in K. B. 8l. 19s. 4½d.; church ded. to Holy Cross; patron (1829) J. M. Woolcombe, Esq.

HAMPTON, LITTLE, co. Sussex.

P. T. Arundel (55) 3 m. S. Pop. 1166.

A parish and small sea-port in the hundred of Poling, rape of Arundel, situated upon the river Arun, near the English Channel. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; certified value 16l.; ann. val. P. R. 125l.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Bishop of Chichester. This place is much resorted to during the summer months for the purpose of sea-bathing. Here were formerly a Benedictine monastery and some other religious establishments, some remains of which are still visible.

HAMPTON, LITTLE, co. Worcester.

P. T. Evesham (99) 1 m. W. b. S.
Pop. with Great Hampton.

A township in the parish of Great Hampton and lower division of the hundred of Blackenhurst.

HAMPTON LOVETT, co. Worcester.

P. T. Droitwich (116) 3 m. NW. b. N.
Pop. 176.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Halfshire; living, a rectory, exempt from visitation, in the diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 9l. 16s. 0½d.; church led. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir J. Packington, Bart.

HAMPTON, LUCY, or BISHOP'S, co. Warwick.

P. T. Stratford-upon-Avon (93) 1½ m. ENE.
Pop. 554.

A parish in the Snitterfield division of the hundred of Barlichway, situated upon the river Avon, over which it has a modern cast-iron bridge; the scenery in this neighbourhood is of a very picturesque description. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 51l. 6s. 8d.; patron (1829) George Lucy, Esq. The church, dedicated to St. Peter, is a beautiful specimen of modern Gothic architecture. This structure, as well as the bridge, was built at the sole expense of the Rev. John Lucy, the present incumbent. This parish has the additional name of Lucy, from the family of that name, who have long resided here; and that of Bishop, from having belonged, in the time of the Saxons, to the Bishops of Worcester.

HAMPTON MEYSEY, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Fairford (80) 2 m. W. Pop. 362.

A parish in the hundred of Crowthorne and Minety; living, a rectory with the curacy of Marston Meysey, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 86l. 17s. 3½d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Corpus Christi College, Oxford.

HAMPTON NETHER, co. Wilts.

P. T. Wilton (84) 2 m. SE. Pop. 146.

A parish in the hundred of Cawdon and Cadworth; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Wilton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; church ded. to St. Catherine; patronage with Wilton rectory.

HAMPTON POYLE, co. Oxford.

P. T. Woodstock (62) 4 m. E. b. S. Pop. 153.

A parish in the hundred of Ploughley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 6l. 2s. 8½d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Queen's College, Oxford.

HAMPTON, WELCH, co. Salop.

P. T. Ellesmere (169) 4 m. E. Pop. 478.

A parish in the hundred of Pimhill; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; certified value 6l.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) Sir E. Kynaston, Bart.

HAMPTON-WICK, co. Middlesex.

P. T. Kingston (10) m.
Pop. 1201.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Hampton and hundred of Spelthorne; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Hampton, in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London, not in charge patron, the Vicar of Hampton. A new chapel has lately been built here by subscription.

HAMSEY, or HAMMES SAY, co. Sussex.

P. T. Lewes (50) 2 m. N. Pop. 537.

A parish in the hundred of Barcombe, rape of Lewes; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 12*s.* 8½*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Sir B. W. Bridges, Bart.

HAMSTALL, RIDWARE, co. Stafford.

P. T. Rudgeley (126) 1 m. ENE. Pop. 455.

A parish in the north division of the hundred of Offlow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 1*s.* 0½*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patroness (1829) the Hon. Mrs. Leigh.

HAMSTELS, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (258) 6 m. WNW.
Pop. with Burnop Township.

A township in the parish of Lanchester and west division of Chester ward.

HAMSTERLEY, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Bishop Auckland (218) 6 m. NW & W.
Pop. 552.

A township and parochial chapelry, in the north-west division of Darlington ward, pleasantly situated on the summit of a steep hill; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham, of the certified value of 18*l.* 6*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 63*l.* 3*s.* 8½*d.*; chapel ded. to St. James; patron (1829) W. Chayton, Esq. The Methodists and Baptists have each a chapel here. A public school was founded in 1822, by the voluntary contributions of the inhabitants.

HAMWORTHY, co. Dorset.

P. T. Pool (103) 1½ m. W. Pop. 313.

A parish in the hundred of Cogdean, Shaston division. Here was formerly a chapel subordinate to the vicarage of Sturminster Marshall, which is now in ruins.

HANBOROUGH, co. Oxford.

P. T. Witney (65) 5 m. ENE. Pop. 685.

A parish in the hundred of Wootton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 5*s.* 0½*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron, St. John's College, Oxford. This place is famous for its production of the variety of gypsum, or sulphate of lime called senelites.

HANBURY, co. Stafford.

P. T. Burton-upon-Trent (125) 5½ m. NW & W. Pop. of Pa. 2195. Of To. 147.

A parish and township in the north division of the hundred of Offlow; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge; ded. to St. James; patron, the Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry.

HANBURY, co. Worcester.

P. T. Droitwich (116) 1 m. ENE. Pop. 1042.

A parish in the middle division of the hundred of Oswaldslow; living, a rectory exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 29*l.* 16*s.*; patron (1829) J. S. Vernon, Esq. The church, ded. to St. John the Baptist, is seated on an eminence, from which it is very conspicuous; it contains several ancient and curious monuments. Hanbury Hall is a pleasant seat, in the style of building which prevailed at the early part of the eighteenth century.

HANBURY WOODEND, co. Stafford.

P. T. Burton-upon-Trent (125) 5 m. NW & W. Pop. 256.

A township in the parish of Hanbury and north division of the hundred of Offlow.

HANBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Corby (105) 5 m. NNE. Pop. 32.

A hamlet in the parish of Lavington and wapentake of Beltisloe, parts of Kesteven.

HANDA, shire of Sutherland, S.

Pop. with Pa.

An island forming part of the parish of Edderacthyllis, separated from the mainland by a narrow channel, which is navigable for vessels with good pilots. It is about one mile square, with some fertile patches, though it is principally appropriated to sheep pasturage. The north side presents to the ocean a stupendous and precipitous rock, where, during the periods of incubation, myriads of sea-fowl find shelter and a safe retreat. It contains a few inhabitants, and is noted as having been the residence of Little John Mac Dhoil Mhich Tuishdon, the assassin, who murdered Judge Morison in the reign of James VI.

HANDALE, or GREENDALE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Gulsbrough (215) 6½ m. ENE.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Lofthouse and east division of the liberty of Langbaugh. Here are some small ruins of an abbey of Benedictine nuns, founded in the twelfth century.

HANDCHURCH, co. Stafford.

P. T. Newcastle-under-Lyne (150) 3 m. S.
Pop. 224.

A township in the parish of Trentham and north division of the hundred of Pirehill.

HANDFORD, co. Stafford.

P. T. Newcastle-under-Lyne (150) 2 m. NE.
Pop. 580.

A township in the parish of Stoke-upon-Trent and hundred of Pirehill, north.

HANDFORTH, or HANDFORD, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Stockport (176) 5 m. SW & S.
Pop. with Boxden, 1745.

A township in the parish of Boxden and hundred of Macclesfield.

HANDLEY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 8 m. SE & S.
Pop. of Pa. 332. Of To. 256.

A parish and township in the hundred of Broxton; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 0*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to A Saints; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Chester.

HANDLEY, SIXPENNY, co. Dorset.
Pop. 831.

A hundred in the Shaston division and north-east side of the county bordering upon Wiltshire, containing the parish only from which it takes its name.

HANDLEY, SIXPENNY, co. Dorset.
P. T. Cranborne (93) 5½ m. NW b W.
Pop. 831.

A parish in the hundred of Sixpenny Handley, Shaston division, formerly a market town, and of much greater extent than at present; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Iwerne Minster, in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol, now in charge; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Canons of Windsor.

HANDSWORTH, co. Stafford.
P. T. Birmingham (109) 2 m. NW b N.
Pop. 3859.

A parish in the south division of the hundred of Offlow, pleasantly situated near the banks of the Tame, which are covered with a profusion of fine trees; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.* The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is an ancient Gothic structure, with a tower rising from the centre. In this neighbourhood is the very extensive manufactory of Birmingham wares, called Soho, consisting of the handsomest range of buildings of the kind in England. The dwelling-house is situated at a short distance from the manufactory, and surrounded by beautiful pleasure-grounds.

HANDSWORTH, W. R. co. York.
P. T. Sheffield (162) 4½ m. E b S. Pop. 2173.

A parish, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the upper division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Duke of Norfolk.

HANFORD, co. Dorset.
P. T. Blandford Forum (103) 5 m. NW b N.
Pop. 13.

An extra-parochial district in the hundred of Red Lane, Sherborne division.

HANG, EAST, N. R. co. York.
Pop. 16,111.

A wapentake, situated on the south side of the county, and bounded on the north by the river Swale, containing nine parishes, including the market-towns of Bedale and Catterick, and thirty-four townships.

HANG, WEST, N. R. co. York.
Pop. 14,707.

A wapentake, situated on the south-east corner of the county, and bounded on the north by the river Swale; containing fourteen parishes, including the market-towns of Aysgarth, Brompton and Middleham, and thirty-nine townships and two chapelries. Hang East and West were a part of the ancient county of Richmond, and formerly formed but one wapentake.

HANGLETON, co. Sussex.
P. T. Brighton (51) 1 m. NW b W. Pop. 52.

A parish in the hundred of Fishergate, rape of Lewes; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Helen; patron, the Duke of Dorset.

HANHAM, EAST, co. Gloucester.
P. T. Bristol (114) 5 m. SE. Pop. 1086.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Bitton and upper division of the hundred of Langley and Swineshead; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Bitton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester, not in charge; patronage with Bitton vicarage.

HANHAM, WEST, co. Gloucester.
P. T. Bristol (114) 3½ m. E b S.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of St. George and hundred of Barton Regis.

HANINGFIELD, EAST, co. Essex.
P. T. Danbury (33) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 398.

A parish in the hundred of Chelmsford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 15*s.* 7½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Jos. Nottage, Esq.

HANINGFIELD, SOUTH, co. Essex.
P. T. Danbury (33) 5 m. SSW. Pop. 176.

A parish in the hundred of Chelmsford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) T. Andrews, Esq.

HANINGFIELD, WEST, co. Essex.
P. T. Danbury (33) 5 m. SW. Pop. 408.

A parish in the hundred of Chelmsford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary and St. Edward; patron (1829) T. Andrews, Esq.

HANINGTON, co. Northampton.
P. T. Wellingborough (97) 6 m. NW b W.
Pop. 177.

A parish in the hundred of Orlingbury; living, a rectory with that of Walgrave, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 0*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patronage with Walgrave rectory. Francis Godwin, a learned prelate and distinguished writer, was born here in 1561, and died in 1633.

HANKLOW, co. Pal. of Chester.
P. T. Nantwich (164) 5 m. S b E. Pop. 239.

A township in the parish of Audlem and hundred of Nantwich.

HANKERTON, co. Wilts.
P. T. Malmesbury (96) 3½ m. NE. Pop. 356.

A parish in the hundred of Malmshury living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Wiltshire and diocese of Salisbury; value in K. B. 8*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to Holy Cross patron, the Rev. J. Wiggett.

HANLEY, co. Stafford.

P. T. Newcastle-under-Lyne (150) 2½ m. NE b E. Pop. 5622.

A chapelry in the parish of Stoke-upon-Trent and hundred of Pirehill North; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry not in charge; patrons, the Trustees. The church is a handsome structure, with a fine square tower 100 feet high. Here are also two chapels belonging to the Dissenters.

HANLEY CASTLE, co. Worcester.

P. T. Upton-upon-Severn (111) 2 m. NNW. Pop. 1424.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Pershore; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester. valued in K. B. 12*l.* 15*s.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir A. Lechmere, Bart. Here was formerly a castle, surrounded by a moat, near the banks of the Severn, which was the occasional residence of the Nevilles, Dukes of Warwick.

HANLEY CHILD, or NETHER HANLEY, co. Worcester.

P. T. Tenbury (130) 5 m. SE b E. Pop. 105.

A chapelry in the upper division of the hundred of Doddingtree; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of East-ham, in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford, not in charge; patron, Rev. R. Whitehead.

HANLEY, WILLIAM, or UPPER, co. Worcester.

P. T. Tenbury (130) 6 m. ESE. Pop. 121.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Doddingtree; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Rev. R. Whitehead.

HANLEYS, co. Salop.

P. T. Shrewsbury (153) 2½ m. SW b W. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Brace Meol and liberty of the town of Shrewsbury. A mineral spring was discovered here about the year 1741.

HANLITH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Settle (235) 6 m. ESE. Pop. 46.

A township in the parish of Kirkby, in Malham Dale, and west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross.

HANMER, co. Flint, N. W.

P. T. Ellesmere (169) 5 m. NNE. Pop. of Pa. 2771. Of To. 617. M. D. Wed., first held Feb. 2, 1831.

A parish and township in the hundred of Maelor; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph; patron, Sir Thomas Hanmer, Bart. Here is an endowed freeschool. In the parish church, which is dedicated to St. Chad, there is a noble monument, from the chisel of John Bacon, jun., to the memory of Lord Chief Justice Kenyon. The poet, Davydd-ap-Edmund, who lived in the fifteenth century, was a native of this parish.

HANNAY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Alford (141) 4 m. NE b E. Pop. with Hagnaby.

A parish in the Wold division of the hundred of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey; living, a donative in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 10*l.*

HANNEY, EAST, or PRIOR'S, co. Berks.

P. T. Wantage (60) 3½ m. NNE. Pop. 587.

A township in the parish of Hanney West, partly in the hundred of Ock, and partly in the hundred of Wantage.

HANNEY, WEST, co. Berks.

P. T. Wantage (60) 4 m. N b E. Pop. 1107

A parish in the hundred of Wantage; living, a dis. vicarage with the chapel of Hyford, in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; val. in K. B. 22*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. James; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury.

HANNINGTON, co. Southampton.

P. T. Basingstoke (45) 7½ m. NW b W. Pop. 245.

A parish partly in the hundred of Chutely and partly in the hundred of Kingsclere, Kingsclere division; living, a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 7*s.* 3½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Bishop of Winchester.

IANNINGTON, co. Wilts.

P. T. Highworth (77) 2 m. W b N. Pop. 412.

A parish in the hundred of Highworth, Cricklade, and Staple; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 136*l.* 15*s.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) R. Montgomery, Esq. who has a venerable mansion here, to which are attached some well wooded grounds.

IANSLAPE, or HANSLOPE, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Stony Stratford (52) 4 m. NNE. Pop. 1479.

A parish in the hundred of Newport, situated on the summit of a hill with a gradual descent on all sides, which the name, compounded of two Saxon words, implies. The female part of the inhabitants are chiefly employed in lace-making. The livings are a rectory and a vicarage, with the curacy of Castle-Thorpe, in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; the former valued in K. B. 48*l.*, the latter of the certified value of 16*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 106*l.*; patron, the Corporation of Lincoln. The church, ded. to St. James, is one of the most ancient edifices in the county, and is considered as a rude specimen of early Gothic architecture; it consists of a nave and side-aisles, with a stately hexagonal steeple, nearly 190 feet high. Lady Dowager Pierrepont bequeathed the interest of 200*l.* for the education of a certain number of poor boys of the parish: the money is vested in the minister and churchwardens.

HANTHORPE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Bourne (97) 2 m. N b W. Pop. with Pa. A hamlet in the parish of Morton and wapentake of Aveland, parts of Kesteven.

HANWELL, co. Middlesex.

London 8 m. W. Pop. 977.

A parish in the hundred of Elthorne, pleasantly situated on the Uxbridge road. The most eligible part of it is placed on a gentle rise, in the neighbourhood of the church, where the surrounding scenery is cheerful, and the number of respectable houses considerable. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; charged in K. B. 20*l.*; patron, the Bishop of London. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a neat modern structure, rebuilt chiefly by subscription, in 1782. Dr. George Henry Glasse, an eminent classical scholar, was a long time rector of Hanwell, which contains a charity-school for twenty-seven boys and thirty girls, partly supported by a bequest of 30*l.* per annum, given by Mr. W. Hobbayne, and partly by subscription.

HANWELL, co. Oxford.

P. T. Banbury (69) 3 m. NW. Pop. 286.

A parish in the hundred of Bloxham; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; charged in K. B. 17*l.* 16*s.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patroness (1829) the Duchess of Dorset.

HANWOOD, GREAT, co. Salop.

P. T. Shrewsbury (153) 4 m. SW b W. Pop. 157.

A parish in the liberty of the town of Shrewsbury; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 3*l.*; patron (1829) H. D. Waters, Esq.

HANWORTH, co. Middlesex.

P. T. Hounslow (10) 3½ SW. Pop. 552.

A parish in the hundred of Spelthorne; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. George; patron (1829) John Bastard, Esq.

HANWORTH, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Aylsham (118) 5½ m. N b E. Pop. 250.

A parish in the hundred of North Erpingham; living, a dis. vicarage with Gunton, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patronage with Gunton rectory.

HANWORTH COLD, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 8 m. NNE. Pop. 57.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Aslaoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Slow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 99*l.* 8*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Robert Cracroft, Esq.

HAPPESBURGH, co. Norfolk.

P. T. North Walsham (123) 7 m. E. Pop. 523.

A parish in the hundred of Happing; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Bishop of Norwich.

HAPPING, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 5833.

A hundred on the eastern coast of the county, to the north of Winterton, containing sixteen parishes.

HAPS福德, or HARPFORD, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Frodsham (191) 4 m. SW b W. Pop. 89.

A township in the parish of Thornton-in-the-Moors and hundred of Eddisbury.

HAPTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Burnley (211) 3 m. SW b W. Pop. 568.

A township in the parish of Whalley and hundred of Blackburn. Here formerly stood Hapton Tower, the ancient seat of the Townleys.

HAPTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. St. Mary Stratton (100) 3 m. NW b N. Pop. 186.

A parish in the hundred of Depwade; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron, Christ College, Cambridge.

HARAM, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Helmsley (222) 2 m. ESE. Pop. 461.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Helmsley and wapentake of Ryedale; living, a curacy subordinate to Helmsley, in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York, not in charge; patronage with Helmsley vicarage.

HARBERTON, co. Devon.

P. T. Totness (190) 2 m. SW b W. Pop. 1425.

A parish in the hundred of Coleridge; living, a vicarage with the curacy of Hulwell, in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 49*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Exeter.

HARBLEDOWN, co. Kent.

P. T. Canterbury (55) 1 m. WSW. Pop. 678.

A parish in the hundred of Westgate, lathes of St. Augustin; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury. The church, dedicated to St. Michael, is an ancient structure of Norman architecture, consisting of a nave, chancel, side-aisles, and a square tower. Here is a hospital for fifteen brethren and fifteen sisters, who are inmates, and a like number of out-pensioners, two being chosen out of the former as prior and prioress. This institution was originally erected by Archbishop Lanfranc, in 1034, but was rebuilt in the reign of James II. The inmates of this establishment enjoy the privileges of freeholders.

HARBOROUGH, MAGNA, co. Warwick.

P. T. Rugby (83) 4 m. NNW. Pop. 319.

A parish in Kirby division of the hundred of Knightlow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 14*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*. church ded. to All Saints; patroness (1829) Lady Leigh.

HARBOROUGH MARKET, co. Leicester.

London 83 m. NW. Leicester 15 m. SE. Pop. 1873. M. D. Tuesd. Fairs, Jan. 6; Feb. 16; April 29, and July 31, for cattle; Oct. 10 lasts nine days, for cattle, leather, cheese, and general merchandise. New Fairs, Tuesday after March 2; ditto after Millent Sunday; ditto before Nov. 22; and Dec. 8. Mail arr. 4.50 f. Mail dep. 9.31 a.

A market-town in the hundred of Gartree situated on the southern border of the county. It is a respectable well-built town, consisting of one principal street, with a handsome town-hall, and six small ones which have received considerable additions within the last few years. It is a place of considerable trade, and there are several manufactures of leather, as also of tammies, shalloons, lutestrings, and similar fabrics. The market is well supplied, and at some of the fairs a great deal of business is transacted. Its situation, as a thoroughfare also produces much employment to the inhabitants, the great road passing through it from London to Leicester, Nottingham, Derby, and Manchester. It enters the town by a ford through the river Welland over which there is a bridge for carriages, only used by horse and foot passengers, except when the floods are out. The Leicester canal also passes through Harborough, and falls into the river Welland below it. The living is a perpetual curacy, in the archdeaconry of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 75*l*. 5*s*. 4*d*.; ann. val. P. R 120*l*.; church ded. to St. Dionysius; patrons, Christ Church College, Oxford. Here are three chapels for Dissenters, and a charity-school. Charles I. took up his head-quarters in this town previous to the battle of Naseby. Urns and other Roman vestiges have been found in the vicinity. Harborough gives the title of Earl to the noble family of Sherrard.

HARBORNE, co. Stafford.

P. T. Birmingham (100) 4 m. SW b W. Pop. 3350.

A parish in the south division of the hundred of Offlow, situated on a stream called the Bourne; living, a vicarage and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield; valued in K. B. 4*l*.; church ded. to St.

Peter; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield.

HARBOTTLE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Rothbury (303) 8 m. WNW. Pop. 181. M. D. Tuesd. Fair, Sep. 19, for horned cattle, great quantities of linen, woollen, and Scotch cloth.

A small market-town and township in the parish of Halystone, and west division of Coquetdale ward. Here are a Presbyterian chapel and a freeschool; the latter was founded by William Dixon, Esq., who endowed it with a house in Newcastle, which he directed to be sold, and the proceeds to be applied to the education of twelve boys and girls. The house sold for 350*l*., which is vested in three trustees. Here are the extensive ruins of Harbottle castle; in the reign of Edward I. it was a strong fortress, and in 1296 sustained the desperate, but unavailing attacks of a numerous Scotch army for two days. Margaret, queen dowager of Scotland, retired to this castle in 1515, after her marriage with the Earl of Angus, according to the appointment of her brother Henry VIII., and in three years afterwards was born Lady Mary Douglas. The modern seat called Harbottle Castle, and the residence of Thomas Clennell, Esq. is a handsome building, situated on the margin of the river Coquet, and surrounded by fine grounds and plantations.

HARBRIDGE, co. Southampton.

P. T. Ringwood (90) 3 m. N b W. Pop. 352.

A parish in the hundred of Ringwood, New Forest, west division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Ringwood, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; patronage with Ringwood vicarage.

HARRY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Melton Mowbray (105) 9 m. N. Pop. 457.

A parish in the hundred of Framland; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 20*l*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Duke of Rutland.

HARBURY, or HERBERBURY, co. Warwick.

P. T. Southam (82) 4 m. WSW. Pop. 1015.

A parish in the Kenelworth division of the hundred of Knightlow, which takes its name from a female possessor who held it in the time of the Saxons; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 5*l*.; church ded. to All Saints; patroness (1829) Miss Newsham.

HARCOURT, co. Salop.

P. T. Whitechurch (56) 3 m. Pop. 34.

township in the parish of Stanton upon line Heath and Whitechurch division of the hundred of Bradford North.

HARDEN HUIJSH, co. Wilts.

P. T. Chippenham (93) 1 m. NW. Pop. 70.

A parish in the hundred of Chippenham; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 90*l.*; patrons (1829) A. Guy and W. Unthank, Esqrs.

HARDHAM, co. Sussex.

P. T. Petworth (49) 6 m. SE b E. Pop. 114.

A parish in the hundred of Bury, rape of Arundel; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 32*l.* 14*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to St. Botholph; patron (1829) Sir C. F. Goring, Bart. On the banks of the river Arun in this parish was formerly a priory of Black Canons, founded in the reign of Henry II.; the site is now occupied by a farm-house, and the chapel is converted into a barn.

HARDHORN, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Poulton (231) 1½ m. S. Pop. 392.

A township in the parish of Poulton and hundred of Amounderness.

HARDINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Wymondham (100) 6 m. NW b W. Pop. 461.

A parish in the hundred of Mitford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. George; patron, Clare Hall, Cambridge.

HARDINGSTONE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (66) 2½ m. SSE. Pop. 1012.

A parish in the hundred of Wymersley, situated on the brow of a hill commanding some fine and extensive prospects; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 5*s.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor. In the church, ded. to St. Edmund, are several monuments to the Hervey family, a branch of which is well known by his "Meditations," and other works of a similar religious character.

HARDINGTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Frome (103) 4 m. NW b N. Pop. 31.

A parish in the hundred of Kilmersdon; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 6*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir J. W. Bamfylde, Bart.

HARDINGTON, MANDEVILLE, co. Somerset.

B. T. Yeovil (122) 4½ m. SW. Pop. 537.

A parish in the hundred of Houndshorough, Barwick, and Coker; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 15*s.* 7½*d.*; patron (1829) William Helgar, Esq.

HARDLEY, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Acle (121) 7 m. S b W. Pop. 522.

A parish of the hundred of Loddon; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; certified value 40*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patrons, the Corporation of Norwich.

HARDMEAD, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Newport Pagnell (50) 5 m. NE b E. Pop. 75.

A parish in the hundred of Newport; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 10½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Robert Shadden, Esq.

HARDRES, LOWER, co. Kent.

P. T. Canterbury (55) 3 m. S. Pop. 213.

A parish in the hundred of Bridge and Petham, lathe of St. Augustin; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 19*s.* 9½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HARDRES, UPPER, co. Kent.

P. T. Canterbury (55) 5 m. S. Pop. 243.

A parish in the hundred of Bridge and Petham, lathe of St. Augustin; living, a rectory with the curacy of Stelling, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 19*l.* 13*s.* 1½*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patrons (1829) Lady Hardres' heirs.

HARDROW, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Middleham (232) 18½ m. W b N. Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Aysgarth and wapentake of Hang West; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 65*l.*; patron (1829) Lord Wharcliffe. Hardrow Force, a celebrated waterfall, is formed by a rivulet which joins the Ure, and rushes in a large sheet over a ledge of rocks ninety-nine feet in height. The chasm which extends below the fall, is bounded on each side by huge masses of rock, and is about 300 yards in length; during severe frosts, the water has formed an immense circle of ninety feet in length, and of nearly equal circumference.

HARDSHAW, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Prescott (198) 3½ m. NE b E. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Prescott and hundred of West Derby.

HARDSTAFF, co. Derby.

P. T. Alfreton (130) 6 m. NNE. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Ault Hucknall and hundred of Scarsdale.

HARDWICK, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Caxton (49) 5½ m. ENE. Pop. 131.

A parish in the hundred of Long Stowe; living, a rectory, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Bishop of Ely. It gives the title of Earl to the family of Yorke.

HARDWICK, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Gloucester (104) 4½ m. SW b S. Pop. 446.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Whitston; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Standish, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester, not in charge; patronage with Standish vicarage.

HARDWICK, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Abergavenny (140) 2 m. SSE. Pop. 83.
A township in the parish and upper division of the hundred of Abergavenny.

HARDWICK, co. Norfolk.

P. T. St. Mary Stratton (100) 4 m. SSE.
Pop. 237.

A parish in the hundred of Depwade; living, a dis. rectory with that of Shelton, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patronage with Shelton rectory.

HARDWICK, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Lynn Regis (96) 1½ m. SSE.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Runceton and Lynn division of the hundred of Freebridge.

HARDWICK, co. Oxford.

P. T. Witney (65) 3 m. SSE.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Yelford and hundred of Bampton.

HARDWICK, co. Oxford.

P. T. Bicester (51) 5 m. N. Pop. 98.

A parish in the hundred of Ploughley; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 5*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 90*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir H. W. Dashwood, Bart.

HARDWICK, or HORDWICK-HOUSE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmund's (71) 1 m. S.
Pop. with Hawstead.

An extra-parochial district in the hundred of Thingoe, situated in a delightful part of the county. Hardwick-House, an old mansion, has long been the seat of the Cullum family. Sir Robert Drury founded an almshouse here at the latter end of the sixteenth century, for six poor single women, who have each a yearly allowance of 5*l.*; two eligible from the town of Bury; one from Hawstead; one from Whelpstead; one from Brockley; and one from Chadburgh and Reed, alternately.

HARDWICK, co. Worcester.

Tewkesbury (103) 3 m. NE b E
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Brendon and middle division of the hundred of Oswaldslow.

HARDWICK EAST, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Pontefract (177) 1½ m. N b W.
Pop. 96.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Pontefract and upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of York, not in charge.

HARDWICK HALL, co. Derby.

P. T. Mansfield (138) 5 m. NW.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Ault Hucknall and hundred of Scarsdale. Here is a residence of the Duke of Devonshire, which was erected by Elizabeth, Countess of Salisbury; it is a handsome building, with a lofty tower at each corner, and surrounded by a fine park, famous for its large oaks. Mary, Queen of Scots, passed a considerable portion of her captivity in this mansion, where many articles of furniture are shown, as having belonged to, and been used by her.

HARDWICK PRIOR'S, co. Warwick.

P. T. Southam (82) 6 m. SE b S. Pop. 263.

A parish in the Burton Dasset division of the hundred of Kington; living, a vicarage with the curacy of Prior's Marston, in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 23*l.* 16*s.* 0½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Duke of Marlborough. This was one of the twenty-four towns, given by Leofric, Earl of Mercia, to the monks of Coventry, in the time of Edward, the Confessor.

HARDWICK WEST, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Pontefract (177) 4 m. SW. Pop. 93.

A township in the parish of Wragby and upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross.

HARDWICKE, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Aylesbury (38) 3½ m. N b W. Pop. 627.

A parish in the hundred of Cottesloe, situated near the river Tame; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 39*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, New College, Oxford.

HARDWICKE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Wellingborough (67) 3 m. NW b W.
Pop. 87.

A parish in the hundred of Orlingbury; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Leonard; patron (1829) the Rev. H. Hughes.

HARDY, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 4 m. SW b S.
Pop. 624.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Manchester and hundred of Salford; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester.

HAREBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 4 m. W. Pop. 71.

A parish in the west division of the soke of Bolingbroke, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory with that of Bolingbroke, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron (1829) Earl Brownlow.

HAREBY, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Tuxford (137) 9 m. E. Pop. 267.

A township in the north division of the wapentake of Newark.

HAREFIELD, co. Middlesex.

P. T. Uxbridge (15) 4½ m. N b E. Pop. 1228.

A parish in the hundred of Elthorne; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 25*s*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) C. N. Newdigate, Esq.

HARESFIELD, co. Gloucester.

1½ T. Stroud (101) 5 m. NW b N. Pop. 602.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Whitstone, is sheltered on the east by a high ridge of hills, called Broad Ridge, the site of a singular camp, supposed to have been a British station, after the Roman invasion. The surrounding prospects from this ridge are very fine; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 17*l*; ann. val. P. R. 113*l*. 13*s*. 9*d*; church ded. to St. Peter patron, the Earl of Hardwicke.

HARESCOMBE, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Painswick (105) 2½ m. W b N. Pop. 104.

A parish in the middle division of the hundred of Dudstone and King's Barton; living, a dis. rectory with that of Pitchcombe, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 6*l*. 8*s*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l*. The church, which is dedicated to St. John the Baptist, contains some curious old monuments; patroness (1829) Mrs. Parnell.

HARESTON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Melton Mowbray (105) 11 m. NE b E. Pop. 102.

A parish in the hundred of Frankland; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l*. 1*s*. 8*d*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HAREUP, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alnwick (308) 8 m. NW. Pop. 40.

A township in the parish of Eglington and north division of Coquetdale ward.

HAREWOOD, co. Hereford.

P. T. Ross (120) 5½ m. NW b W. Pop. 80.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Wormelow; living, a curacy and a peculiar in the diocese of Hereford, of the certified value of 10*l*. 2*s*; ann. val. P. R. 10*l*; church ded. to St. Dennis; patron (1829) Sir H. Hoskins, Bart, who has a seat here surrounded by a park, containing some fine timber. It is said that the death of Earl Ethelwold took place here, who is supposed to have been assassinated by King Edgar, for his conduct towards the fair Elfrida.

HAREWOOD, W. R. co. York.

London 109 m. NNW. Leeds 8 m. N. Pop. of Pa. 2348. Of To. 849. Fairs, last Monday in April and second Monday in October.

A parish and township in the upper division of the wapentake of Skyrack, formerly having a market on Monday, which is now almost totally discontinued. The village, consisting chiefly of one street, is entirely built with stone, and leads up to Harewood House, the magnificent mansion of the Earl of Harewood, which was erected in 1760, by Adams and Carr. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 14*l*. 1*s*. 10*d*; patrons (1829) the Earl of Harewood and Mrs. Wheler. The church, ded. to All Saints, is a structure of great antiquity; and contains six altar tombs of white marble to ancient lords of the manor. One of these is an effigy of Sir William Gascoigne, the celebrated judge who committed the Prince of Wales, afterwards Henry V., to prison. On the declivity of a hill are the remains of Harewood Castle, which was founded soon after the Conquest, and remained nearly entire until the civil wars in the seventeenth century.

HARFORD, co. Devon.

P. T. Modbury (208) 6 m. N b W. Pop. 100.

A parish in the hundred of Ermington, living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 11*l*. 14*s*. 4*d*; patrons (1829) Sir J. Rogers, Bart., and heirs of the Rev. H. Julian.

HARGHAM, or HARPHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Attleborough (91) 3½ m. SW b S. Pop. 72.

A parish in the hundred of Shropham; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4*l*. 4*s*. 2*d*; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with Wilby rectory.

HARGRAVE, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 6 m. SE b E. Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Tarvin and hundred of Broxton; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 40*l*. 5*s*; ann. val. P. R. 75*l*; chapel ded. to St. Michael; patrons, the Trustees.

HARGRAVE, co. Dorset.

P. T. Shaftesbury (101) 3 m. SW b S. Pop. with Pa.

A tithing and chapelry in the parish of Fontmell Magna and hundred of Sixpenny Handley, Shaston division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Iwerne Minster, in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Peter; patronage with Iwerne Minster vicarage.

HARGRAVE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Higham Ferrers (65) 5 m. ENE. Pop. 192.

A parish in the hundred of Higham Ferrers; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 13*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) John Baker Esq.

HARGRAVE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury (71) 6 m. WSW. Pop. with Southwell Park, 300.

A parish in the hundred of Thingoe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4*l*. 11*s*. 8*d*; patron (1829) Rev. John White.

HARKSTEAD, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Ipswich (69) 6 m. S b E. Pop. 301.

A parish in the hundred of Sampford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 117. 3s. 9d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. H. D. Berners.

HARLAXTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (110) 4 m. SW. Pop. 390.

A parish in the soke of Grantham, parts of Kesteven; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 257. 6s. 10½d.; patron, the Prebend of South Grantham in Salisbury cathedral. The church, dedicated to St. Mary and St. Peter, is a handsome structure with a very fine spire. Here is an ancient and curious manor-house, built by one of the Blewitt family, who were formerly lords of the manor. Many antiquities have been discovered in this vicinity, the chief of which was a golden helmet set with jewels, found in a field by a man while ploughing; it was supposed to have belonged to John of Gaunt, who had a hunting-seat here. It was first presented to Catharine, dowager queen of Henry VIII., but afterwards deposited in the cabinet at Madrid.

HARLEKIRK, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (278) 12½ m. NNE.
Pop. of Pa. 354. Of To. 192.

A parish and township in the north-east division of Tynedale ward; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 31. 8s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Wilfred; patron (1829) Sir C. Loraine, Bart.

HARLE, LITTLE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 14 m. W b S. Pop. 48.

A township in the parish of Kirk Whelpington and north-east division of Tynedale ward.

HARLE, WEST, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 14½ m. W b S. Pop. 64.

A township in the parish of Kirk Whelpington and north-east division of Tynedale ward.

HARLECH, co. Merioneth, N.W.

London 232½ m. WNW. Pop. with Pa. Fairs, March 4; April 19; 1st Thurs. after Trin. Sund.; June 30; Aug. 21; Sept. 22; Nov. 10; and Dec. 11. M. D. Sat.

An ancient free borough in the parish of Llandanwg and hundred of Ardudwy. The town is a poor inconsiderable place, but enjoys the advantage of a comfortable inn. It is governed by a mayor. The castle of Harlech is as conspicuous for the boldness and beauty of its situation, as for the noble deeds of heroism with which its history is adorned. It was founded by Maelgwyn Gwynedd, prince of North Wales, about the year 350, but rebuilt in its present beautiful form by Edward I. of England. It occupies the summit of a lofty rock, perpendicular on three sides, and supposed to have been formerly washed by the ocean, although now nearly one mile from high water mark; and on the fourth side, approach is interrupted by a deep foss, excavated from the solid rock. The design consists of a square building, having a circular tower at each corner, and spacious bastions on each side of the entrance, commanding the draw-bridge and foss. Light, lofty, and elegant turrets issue from the citadel or keep, in the centre of the square, from the top of which, perhaps, the most magnificent mountain scenery in the principality may be viewed. In the year 1401, this fortress was seized by the brave Owen Glendwr. Margaret of Anjou, found an asylum here after the defeat of King Henry, at Northampton, in 1460. It underwent various fortunes during the civil wars, and was the last fortress in Wales which held out for King Charles I. Sir Robert Vaughan is the present governor.

HARLESTON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (66) 4 m. NW. Pop. 564.

A parish in the hundred of Nobottle Grove; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 207. 9s. 7d.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) R. Andrews, Esq.

HARLESTON, co. Norfolk.

London 99 m. NE. Pop. with Redenhall, 1641. M. D. Wed. Fairs, July 5; Sept. 9, for horses, cattle, and sheep; and Nov. 28, one month, for Scotch cattle.

A small market-town in the parish of Redenhall and hundred of Earsham, situated near the river Waveney, over which it has a bridge on the turnpike-road from Bungay to Diss. It never appears to have been large, nor to have experienced material fluctuation. It is a chapelry to the rectory of Redenhall; living, a curacy, not in charge; church ded. to St. John the Baptist. The market is chiefly for the sale of yarn and linen-cloth.

HARLESTON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Tamworth (114) 4 m. N. Pop. 211.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Clifton Campville and north division of the hundred of Offlow; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Clifton Campville, in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge; patronage with Clifton Campville rectory.

HARLESTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Stow Market (69) 3 m. NW. Pop. 91.

A parish in the hundred of Stow; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 27; ann. val. P. R. 1457. 18s. 6d.; patron (1829) R. Pettitward, Esq.

HARLETHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Howden (180) 6½ m. N b W. Pop. 93.

A township in the parish of Bubwith and Holme Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill.

HARLETON, or HARLESTON, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Cambridge (50) 6½ m. SW. Pop. 221.

A parish in the hundred of Wetherley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 141. 9s. 7d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Jesus College, Cambridge.

HARLEY, co. Salop.

P. T. Much Wenlock (148) 2 m. NW.
Pop. 235.

A parish in the hundred of Condover; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 51. 12s. 1d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Marquis of Bath.

HARLING, EAST, co. Norfolk.

London 89 m. N E b N. Pop. 867. M. D. Tues. Fairs, May 4, for cattle and toys; Tues. after Sept. 13; Oct. 24, for sheep and toys.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Guilt Cross, seated on a small rivulet, and formerly famous for the manufacture of linen, yarns, and cloth, which were largely dealt in on the market-days, but it now has very little trade of any description. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 121. ; patron (1829) John Steward, Esq. The church, dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, is a handsome structure, consisting of a nave, two aisles, and a chancel, with a quadrangular tower, surmounted by a spire.

HARLING, WEST, co. Norfolk.

P. T. East Harling (89) 3 m. WSW.
Pop. 116.

A parish in the hundred of Guilt Cross living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 91. 18s. 4d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) N. W. P. Colborne, Esq.

HARLINGTON, co. Bedford.

P. T. Ampthill (45) 5½ m. S. Pop. 393.

A parish in the hundred of Manshead; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 111. ; ann. val. P. R. 1301. ; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) J. Cooper, Esq.

HARLINGTON, ARLINGTON, or HARLINGDOWN, co. Middlesex.

P. T. Hounslow (10) 4 m. NW. Pop. 472.

A parish in the hundred of Elthorne, in the vicinity of Hounslow Heath; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 241. ; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron (1829) the Rev. E. Davison. One wing of Dawley, or D'Oyley House, the residence of Viscount Bolingbroke, is still remaining. A celebrated yew-tree stands in Harlington churchyard, the body of which measures twenty feet in circumference. The manorial rights are divided between the Countess of Berkeley and Count de Salis. Harlington, or Arlington, gave the title of Earl of Arlington to Henry Bennet, born here, in 1618, and who afterwards figured as one of the cabal cabinet, after the restoration of Charles II. He left a daughter, who married the Earl of Euston, natural son of Charles II., and afterwards Duke of Grafton, whose second title was henceforth Earl of Euston and Arlington. The entrance into the church is through a Saxon arch of great beauty, and in fine preservation.

HARLINGTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Doncaster (162) 6 m. W. Pop. 141.

A township in the parish of Burnall and wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross.

HARLOWE, co. Essex.

Pop. 7515.

A hundred lying on the west side of the county, divided from Hertfordshire by the river Stort, and containing eleven parishes.

HARLOW, co. Essex.

London 23 m. E. Pop. 1928. Fairs, May 13, for wool; Nov. 28, and 29, for horses and cattle; Sep. 9, for the fair so well known as Harlow Bush Fair, held on a common, two miles from the town.

A parish in the hundred of Harlow, formerly a market-town; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of London and Middlesex; charged in K. B. 151. 7s. 11d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Guildford. This place is now chiefly known for its fairs. Here are almshouses for six poor widows.

HARLOWE HILL, co. Northumberland

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 10½ m. WNW. Pop. 124.

A township in the parish of Ovingham and East division of Tynedale ward.

HARMBY, N. R. co. York.

T. Middleham (232) 2 m. N. Pop. 194

A township in the parish of Spennithorne and wapentake of Hang West.

HARMANDSWORTH, or HERMANDES-WORTH, co. Middlesex.

P. T. Colnbrook (17) 2½ m. E b N.
Pop. 1076

A parish in the hundred of Elthorne, living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London, united with that of West Drayton; valued in K. B. 121. ; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) J. G. De Burgh, Esq. This village is noted for one of the largest barns in England, supported by pillars of stone, and of very great antiquity. Formerly there was an alien priory of Benedictine Monks here.

HARMON, properly GARMON, ST. co. Radnor, S. W.

P. T. Rhayadar (181) 3 m. NNE. Pop. 793.

A parish in the hundred of Rhayadar, including the townships of Glascannon, Rhyr-worried, and Kennarth; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 971. 10s. 2d. The prebend of St. Harmon is attached to the collegiate church of Brecon.

HARMSTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 6 m. S. Pop. 333.

A parish in the upper division of the wapentake of Boothby Graffo, parts of Kesteven; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 108*l.* church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) S. Thorold, Esq. •

HARNHAM, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 15½ m. NW b N. Pop. 61.

A township in the parish of Alston, and north-east division of Tynedale ward.

HARNHAM, WEST, co. Wilts.

P. T. Salisbury (81) 1½ m. SW b W. Pop. 267. •

A parish in the hundred of Cawden and Cadworth; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Combe Bisset, and a peculiar in the diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; church ded. to St. George; patronage with Combe Bisset vicarage.

HARNHILL, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Cirencester (89) 4 m. ESE. Pop. 75.

A parish in the hundred of Crowthorne and Minety; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 16*s.* 5½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.* church ded. to St. Michael; patronage with Driffield vicarage.

HAROLD, co. Bedford.

London 53 m. NNW. Pop. 939. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, Tues. before May 13; Tues. before July 6; and Tues. before Oct. 11, for cattle.

A small market-town and parish in the hundred of Willey; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 144*l.* 8*s.*; church ded. to All Saints; patroness (1829) the Countess de Grey. The petty sessions are sometimes held here.

HAROLD'S-CROSS, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Dublin 1 m. S. Pop. 1040.

An agreeable village in the parish of St. Kevin's and barony of Uppercross. It is situated upon the south bank of the canal, contains many elegant villas, and possesses a Roman Catholic chapel and a nunnery, where a number of poor children receive gratuitous instruction. The air in this vicinity has always been considered beneficial in pulmonary affections.

HAROLDSTOWN, co. Carlow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Hacketstown (60) m. Pop. 1092.

A parish in the barony of Rathvilly, containing the village of Coolmanagh; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Leighlin and archdiocese of Dublin. See Hacketstown.

HARPENDEN, co. Hertford.

P. T. Redbarn (23) 2 m. E b N. Pop. 1693.

A parish in the hundred of Dacorum; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Whenthampstead, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patronage with Wheathampstead rectory.

HARPFORD, co. Devon.

P. T. Sidmouth (159) 3½ m. NW b W. Pop. 202.

A parish in the hundred of East Budleigh, living, a vicarage united with that of Fen Ottery, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 18*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 139*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Gregory; patron (1829) Lord Rolle.

HARPHAM, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (190) 5 m. NE b E. Pop. 251.

A parish in the wapentake of Dickering; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Burton Agnes, in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York, not in charge.

HARPLEY, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Castle Rising (100) 9 m. E b N. Pop. 259.

A parish in the Lynn division of the hundred of Freebridge; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 22*l.*; church ded. to St. Laurence; patron (1829) A. Hamond, Esq.

HARPOLE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (66) 5 m. W. Pop. 637.

A parish in the hundred of Nobottle Grove; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 18*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Earl Fitzwilliam.

HARPSDEN, co. Oxford.

P. T. Henley-upon-Thames (35) 2 m. S. Pop. with Holney, 223.

A parish in the hundred of Binfield; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 10*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron, All Souls' College, Oxford.

IARPTON, co. Hereford.

P. T. New Radnor (159) 1½ m. SSE. Pop. 76.

A township in the parish of Old Radnor, partly in the hundred of Wigmore, and partly in that of Radnor.

IARPSWELL, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Gainsborough (149) 8 m. E b S. Pop. 70.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Aslaoce, parts of Lindsey; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 117*l.* 9*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 40*l.*; church ded. to St. Chad; patron (1829) Sir T. Whichcote, Bart.

IARPTREE, EAST, co. Somerset.

P. T. Wells (129) 7 m. N b E. Pop. 627.

A parish in the hundred of Winterstoke; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 3*l.* 15*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 145*l.*; church ded. to St. Laurence; patron (1829) the Prebend of East Harptree in Wells cathedral. A moor in the vicinity contains several mines of lapis calaminaris; and on a hill above the village, called Lamb Hill, is a remarkable cavern, with a perpendicular descent of seventy fathoms, the cavity at the bottom extending nearly thirty fathoms, with other communications to the vaults of smaller description.

HARPTREE WEST, co. Somerset.

P. T. Wells (120) 7½ m. N b E. Pop. 528.

A parish in the hundred of Chewton; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Bath and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 13l. 14s. 9½; ann. val. P. R. 131l. 10s. 6d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the King, as Prince of Wales.

HARPUR HEY, co. Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 3 m. NNE. Pop. 297.

A township in the parish of Manchester and hundred of Salford. In this township is Hendham Hall, the seat of J. Andrews, Esq.

HARRABY, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 2 m. SE. Pop. 46.

A township in the parish of St. Cuthbert, and within the liberties of the city of Carlisle.

HARRATON, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (238) 8½ m. NNE. Pop. 2117.

A township in the parish of Chester-le-Street and middle division of Chester ward.

HARRAY, shires of Orkney and Shetland, S. Pop. 710.

An ancient parish in the island of Pomona, Orkney, now united to that of Birsay. It is intersected by many streams from the hills, and contains several lakes, the soil, however, is wet and swampy, and difficult of cultivation. The living is in the presbytery of Cairston and synod of Orkney. The church underwent a thorough repair in 1778. The Christian Society have established a school here, which is partly supported by a bequest of Nicol Spencer, Esq.

HARRIETSHAM, co. Kent.

P. T. Maidstone (34) 7 m. E b S. Pop. 707.

A parish in the hundred of Eyborne, lathe of Aylesford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 11l. 10s.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, All Souls, College, Oxford.

HARRINGTON, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Workington (306) 2½ m. S. Pop. 1845.

A parish in Allerdale ward above Darwent, is a small flourishing sea-port under Whitehaven, standing in a low situation; the town now consists of several streets. Near the harbour are two yards for ship-building, a ropery, and a vitriol and copperas manufactory. Ironstone of excellent quality has also been got here, and about 2000 tons of it were for many years exported annually. Living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; val. in K. B. 7l. 7s. 3½d.; patron (1829) J. C. Curwen Esq.

HARRINGTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 6 m. NW. Pop. 105.

A parish in the hundred of Hild. parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 9l. 16s. 10½d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patroness (1829) Mrs. Buckworth.

HARRINGTON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Kettering (74) 6 m. W b N. Pop. 184.

A parish in the hundred of Rothwell; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 15l. 9s. 7d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Dysart.

HARRINGWORTH, co. Northampton.

P. T. Rockingham (83) 5 m. NE b N. Pop. 350.

A parish in the hundred of Corby; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 11l. 15s. 10d.; ann. val. P. R. 133l. 8s.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, Christ Church, Oxford.

HARRIS, shire of Inverness, S.

Pop. 3009.

A very extensive parish of the Hebrides, comprehending the southern peninsula of the Isle of Sewis; the inhabited islands of Scalpay, Scarp, and Taransay, to the north, those of Berneray, Ensay, Killigray, and Pabay, to the southward, with numerous others of lesser note, in general uninhabited. Its length, exclusive of these islands, is about twenty-six miles, and its extreme breadth eight miles. It is naturally divided into two districts by arms of the sea, termed East and West Tarbert, which leave an isthmus of no more than a quarter of a mile broad. The northern district is called the forest, because it is the resort of deer, though destitute of foliage of every description; and the southern, which is more fertile, is also more populous. The coast is indented by many harbours and creeks, convenient for the fisheries, which are invaluable, and the shore is lined with seaweed, of which great quantities of kelp are made, and much is used for manure. Fish, of a larger size than usually taken elsewhere, and aquatic birds of almost every species, some of them nameless, abound here. The mountains contain fossil treasures, iron and copper ore, granite, and freestone; there are also many chalybeate springs. The living is in the presbytery of Uist and synod of Inverness; patron, A. Macleod, Esq., sole heritor, whose baron-baillie court is the only court of justice in the whole parish. This district contains seven churches and chapels, which are said to have been formerly dependent on the priory at Rowdhill, where there are two schools, one of them liberally supported by the parish, and the other, for girls, by the Christian Society. Here are many Druidical remains and ruins of ancient monastic edifices, coeval with the introduction of Christianity among the Scots and Picts.

HARRISTOWN, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

P. T. Killecullen (26) 3 m. NE. Pop. with Rathmore.

A hamlet in the parish of Rathmore and barony of North Naas. It was anciently a borough, returning two members to Parliament. It is governed by a sovereign, recorder, and town-clerk. The living is a chapelry in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough, and archdiocese of Dublin, annexed to the vicarage of Rathmore. This place formerly gave title of Baron to the noble family of Eustace. It is now the estate of R. La Touche, Esq.

HARRISTOWN, King's County, Leinster, I.

P. T. Kildare (32) 5 m. SW. Pop. 1037.

A parish of the barony of Philipstown, although locally in Ophaly barony, and county of Kildare. The living forms the corps of a prebend, and is a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Kildare and archdiocese of Dublin. It is without church, parsonage or glebe. Area of parish 3239 acres. The freeschool here consists of twenty-four boys and eight girls.

HAROLDSTON, EAST, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Haverford West (251) 1 m. SE. Pop. 234.

A parish in the hundred of Rhôs; living, perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 331. 2s. 6d.; patron — Higgon Esq. Near to the church, which is dedicated to St. Ishmael, is Caradog's Well with which the legend of the hermit, Caradog, is connected. The ancient family of the Perrots were proprietors here for 300 years; and the ruins of the family mansion in which Sir John Perrot, the unfortunate favourite of Queen Elizabeth, was born may still be seen. The races of Haverford West are held on the common of Poorfield in this parish.

HAROLDSTON, WEST, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Haverford West (251) 5½ m. W. Pop. 170.

A small parish in the hundred of Rhôs, situated in a retired district, and upon the Bay of St. Brides. It was anciently a place of some consequence, as the ruins of many mansions sufficiently prove. Living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 1007. 17s. per annum; patrons, the Masters and Fellows of Pembroke College, Oxford. Area of parish, 1500 acres. The Lords Haroldston formerly held a residence here.

HARROW, co. Middlesex.

London 10 m. NW by W. Pop. 3017.

A parish and village, in the hundred of Gore, situated on a hill, affording a variety of beautiful prospects. It was anciently called Hergh, or Hearge, which sometimes signifies a church, whence probably its present designation. The church may be seen at a distance, for many miles round; and it thus gave rise to a bon mot of Charles II.,

TOPOG. DICTIONARY.—VOL. II.

who cut short some theological discussion, which took place in his presence, relative to the claims of religious sects to the title of the visible church, by declaring that the visible church was the parish church of Harrow, which could be seen every where. This place is called Harrow-on-the-Hill, standing on the loftiest eminence in the county, which is detached and surrounded by a fertile valley. The distant views include London, on the east; Stanmore, towards the north; and on the south and south-west, a varied landscape, extending to Windsor Castle. The parish contains about 13,600 acres; and the soil is chiefly clay, with some sand and brick earth. It includes the hamlets of Pinner, Roxeth, Wembley, Weald, Apperton, Kenton, and Neston. The living is a vicarage and a peculiar of the see of Canterbury; charged in K. B. 331. 4s. 2d.; patron (1829) Lord Northwich. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, was founded in the eleventh century, by Archbishop Lanfranc, some parts of whose building still remain in the present church, particularly the western doorway, with its Norman arch; but the main fabric having a lofty spire, appears, from the style of its architecture, to have been rebuilt in the fourteenth century. In the nave is the tomb of John Lyon, Esq., the founder of Harrow School, who died in 1592; and of Sir Samuel Garth, author of "The Dispensary," a mock-heroic poem, who died in 1719. The free grammar-school, which has long been distinguished as one of the first classical seminaries in England, is under the direction of a body of incorporated governors, who have the management of the estates, left by Mr. Lyon, for the support of this and other charities, the annual income from which was 6697. in 1795, and since that period it has been vastly increased. The salaries of the masters, however, are but inconsiderable, their emoluments chiefly arising from scholars not on the foundation. The founder drew up a set of rules for his institution, regulating the studies and diversions of the pupils, and particularly enjoining the practice of archery, to encourage which they used to shoot for the prize of a silver arrow, annually on the 4th of August, which custom was abolished a few years since. There are four exhibitions of 207. each, for scholars from this school, two to Jonville and Caius College, Cambridge, and two to any college at Oxford. Harrow had formerly a weekly market, now decayed; but a pleasure-fair is still held the first Monday in August. The Marquis of Abercorn has a fine seat in this parish, called Bentley Priory, the estate on which it stands having belonged to a monastery before the Reformation.

HARROWBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (100) 2 m. ESE. Pop. 45.

A township in the parish of Grantham and wapentake of Winnibriggs and Threo, parts of Kesteven.

HARROWDEN, co. Bedford.

P. T. Bedford (50) 1½ m. SE.
Pop. with Eastcotts.

A township in the parish of Cardington and hundred of Wixamtree.

HARROWDEN, GREAT, co. Northampton.

P. T. Wellingborough (67) 2 m. NN W.
Pop. 140.

A parish in the hundred of Orlingbury; living, a dis. vicarage with that of Little Harrowden, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 13l. 3s. 8d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Earl Fitzwilliam.

HARROWDEN, LITTLE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Wellingborough (67) 3 m. NNW.
Pop. 420.

A parish in the hundred of Orlingbury; living, a dis. vicarage with that of Great Harrowden, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; patronage with Great Harrowden. Here is a free grammar-school.

HARROWGATE, HIGH, W. R. co. York.

London 211 m. NNW. Pop. with Pa.

A village and parochial district, formerly included in the parish of Knaresborough, and called High Harrowgate, from its situation, in contradistinction to a neighbouring place, named Low Harrowgate. It owes its sole importance to mineral springs, strongly impregnated with steel sulphur, and much frequented for medicinal purposes. There are different wells, varying in their peculiar properties. The first, or old Spa, in Knaresborough Forest, about three miles from the town of that name, was discovered by Captain Slingsby, in 1620; and a handsome dome was erected over the well, in 1786, at the expense of the Earl of Rosslyn. It is a powerful chalybeate, which may be used with advantage, in diseases accompanied with debility; there are two other chalybeate springs, called the Allum Well, and the Turwhet Well. The most noted of the mineral springs is the sulphureous well, which is of more recent discovery than the preceding. It is distinguished by its strong hepatic odour, arising from the presence of hydro-sulphurous gas, thrown off in part as the water rises, sparkling with air-bubbles, like soda-water. It tinges silver of a dark purple colour, leaves a black precipitate on standing, and a part of the sulphur which it contains rises to the surface. Its taste is nauseous, though it is sometimes administered internally in dyspeptic, dropsical, and arthritic complaints; but it is chiefly employed externally, by bathing, in cases of rheumatism, palsy, scorbutic, and cutaneous diseases, in the cure of which it seems to possess considerable efficacy. The usual season for bathing is from May to the end of September; and there are several inns and houses for the accommodation and entertainment of visitors. The living of Harrowgate is a donative, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 49l. 18s. 8d.; chapel ded. to St. John; patron, the Vicar of Knaresborough. A theatre was erected in 1788, which is open during the season; and here is also an assembly-room, and a circulating library.

HARROWGATE, LOW, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Knaresborough (202) 13½ m. WNW.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Knaresborough and wapentake of Claro.

HARSLEY, EAST, N. R. co. York.

P. T. North Allerton (225) 6 m. NE.
Pop. 420.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Birdforth; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York, of the certified value of 12l. 15s.; ann. val. P. R. 75l.; patron (1829) J. C. Maynard, Esq. At Mount Grace, in this parish, are some picturesque ruins of a priory, founded in the fourteenth century for Carthusian monks, a part of which is now converted into a farm-house.

HARSLEY, WEST, N. R. co. York.

P. T. North Allerton (225) 5½ m. NE.
Pop. 51.

A township in the parish of Osmotherley and wapentake of Allertonshire.

HARSTON, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Cambridge (50) 5½ m. SSW. Pop. 529.

A parish in the hundred of Thriplow; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 5l. 10s. 2½d.; ann. val. P. R. 94l. 10s.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Bishop of Ely.

HARSWELL, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Market Weighton (102) 3¼ m. W b S.
Pop. 78.

A parish in the Holme Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 4l.; ann. val. P. R. 103l.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Sir Thomas Slingsby, Bart.

HART, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Stockton-upon-Tees (241) 11 m. N b E.
Pop. of Pa. 390. Of To. 231.

A parish and township in the north-east division of Stockton ward; situated on a small rivulet; living, a vicarage with that of Hartlepool, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; valued K. B. 11l. 17s. 1d.; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a small ancient structure, with a low tower.

HARTBURN, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 8½ m. W b N.
Pop. of Pa. 1474. Of To. 23.

A parish and township, partly in the west division of Morpeth ward, and partly in the east division of Tindale ward, abounding with limestone; and coal is found in some parts of the neighbourhood. Over the Bourn, a rivulet from which the place takes its name, is a good stone bridge, and the vicinity around is particularly picturesque and beautiful. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; valued in K.B. 20*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.*; patron, the Bishop of Durham. The church is a large ancient Gothic structure, consisting of a nave, chancel, and three aisles, with a square tower. Here is also a curious Gothic tower, which was built by subscription in 1756; it contains a school-room, with a house for the master and stables for the use of the parishioners. The master receives the interest of 90*l.* for teaching four poor children; 50*l.* of which was left by Mr. John Arthur, in 1800, and 40*l.* in 1824 by Mr. John Green. A singular grotto rises above the Bourn, formed in the rock, which serves as a shelter for persons bathing.

HARTBURN, EAST, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Stockton-upon-Tees (241) 1½ m. SW b W. Pop. 121.

A township in the parish of Hartburn and south-west division of Stockton ward.

HARTBURN GRANGE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 0 m. W b N. Pop. 63.

A township in the parish of Hartburn and west division of Morpeth ward, which belongs to Greenwich Hospital.

HARTCLIFFE and BEDMINSTER, co. Somerset.

Pop. 11,410.

A hundred situated in the north-west part of the county, bounded on the south-west by the river Yeo, containing seven parishes.

HARTEST, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Clare (56) 0 m. NE. Pop. 740.

A parish in the hundred of Baberg; living, a rectory with that of Boxted, in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 29*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the King.

HARTFIELD, co. Sussex.

Pop. 2833.

A hundred at the northern extremity of the rape of Pevensey, on the north side of the county, near the borders of Kent, containing three parishes.

HARTFIELD, co. Sussex.

P. T. East Grinstead (28) 6 m. ESE. Pop. 1440.

A parish in the hundred of Hartfield, rape of Pevensey, living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary.

HARTFORD, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Northwich (173) 1½ m. SW b W. Pop. 772.

A township in the parish of Great Budworth and hundred of Eddisbury.

HARTFORD, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Huntingdon (50) 1 m. ENE. Pop. 371.

A parish in the hundred of Hurstingstone; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 1*s.* 0½*d.*; ann. val. 71*l.* 1*s.* The church, which is a substantial building, consists of a nave and aisles, with an embattled tower, having pinnacles at the angles, is dedicated to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HARTFORD-BRIDGE, co. Southampton.

London 35 m. WSW. Pop. with Pa.

A small post-town, partly in the parish of Havetham, and partly in that of Hartley Witney.

HARTFORD, EAST, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 5½ m. SSE. Pop. 15

A township in the parochial chapelry of Horton and east division of Castle ward, situated on the south side of the river Blyth.

HARTFORD, WEST, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 5 m. SSE. Pop. 57.

A township in the parochial chapelry of Horton and East division of Castle ward, situated in a beautiful and picturesque valley on the south side of the Blyth.

HARTGROVE, co. Dorset.

P. T. Cranborne (03) 5 m. NW b W. Pop. 274.

A tithing in the parish and hundred of Sixpenny Handley.

HARTHILL, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Tarporley (173) 6 m. SW b S. Pop. 147.

A parish in the hundred of Broxton; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 18*l.*; ann. val. 140*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) F. T. Drake, Esq.

HARTHILL, co. Derby.

P. T. Bakewell (153) m. adjacent. Pop. 60.

A township in the parish of Bakewell and hundred of High Peak.

HARTHILL, E. R. co. York.

Pop. 42,001.

A wapentake separated into four large divisions, called Bainton, Holme, Hunsley, and Wilton Beacons, and bounded on the west by the river Derwent, and south by the Humber. The wolds are chiefly situated in this wapentake, which contains fifty-nine parishes, including the market-towns of Driffield, Pocklington, Market Weighton, and South Cave, and sixty-four townships, and four chapelries.

HARTHILL, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Rotherham (160) 9½ m. SSE. Pop. with Woodall, 650.

A parish in the upper division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 18*l.* 11*s.* 10½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Duke of Leeds.

HARTHOPE, shire of Lanark, S.

Pop. with Pa.

A village in that part of the parish of Mofat which is in the above county.

HARTING, co. Sussex.

P. T. Petersfield (54) 4 m. ESE. Pop. 1072.

A parish in the hundred of Dumpsford, rape of Chichester; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 267. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir H. Fetherstonhaugh.

HARTINGTON, co. Derby.

P. T. Bakewell (153) 8½ m. SW. Pop. 2218.

A parish in the hundred of Wirksworth; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 107; ann. val. 917. 17s. 5½d.; church ded. to St. Giles; patron (1829) the Duke of Devonshire. This manor gives the title of Marquis to the Duke of Devonshire. Here was anciently a castle, and remains of fortifications may still be discovered. On Hartington Common, the Britons are reported to have had a sharp conflict with the Roman General, Agricola; and on the hills, near the village, the republicans and royalists are asserted to have engaged severely during the civil wars.

HARTINGTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 11½ m. W b N. Pop. 55.

A township in the parish of Hartburn and north-east division of Tindale ward.

HARTINGTON HALL, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 11 m. W b N. Pop. 45.

A township in the parish of Hartburn and north-east division of Tindale ward.

HARTISMERE, co. Suffolk.

Pop. 16,186.

A hundred lying on the north side of the county, containing thirty-two parishes, including the borough of Eye.

HARTLAND, co. Devon.

Pop. 4374.

A hundred on the north-west side of the county, forming Hartland Point, in the Bristol Channel, and containing five parishes.

HARTLAND, co. Devon.

London 214 m. W. Pop. 1908. M. D. Sat. Fairs, Easter Wed., and Sept. 25, for cattle.

A market and sea port, in the hundred of the same name, situated on the coast of the Bristol Channel, on a headland, called Hartland Point, the Herculis Promontorium of Ptolemy. An indentation of the shore from hence to Biddeford, forms Barnstable Bay, forming a port for both the towns. Here was a monastery of Black canons, founded by the lady of the celebrated Earl Godwin. The ancient family of Carew are the principal supporters of the pier. Hartland Abbey, situated in a richly-wooded vale, is now converted into a modern residence. The living is a donative in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church, which is dedicated to St. Nectan, situated on the sea-shore, about a mile from the town, serves as a landmark to mariners. The town has been governed by a portreeve since the reign of Elizabeth. Here is a herding-fishery of some consequence, and the market is much frequented.

IARTLEBURY, co. Worcester.

P. T. Kidderminster (126) 4 m. S b E. Pop. 1556.

A pleasant parish, in the lower division of the hundred of Oswaldslow, situated near the river Severn; its castle has been for many ages the residence of the bishops of Worcester; it is seated on the banks of the river, of which, with the surrounding country, it commands some very fine views; living, a rectory, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 107; patron, the Bishop of Worcester. The church, ded. to St. James, is an ancient Gothic structure. Here is a free grammar-school.

IARTLEPOOL, co. Pal. of Durham.

London 253 m. NW. Pop. 1249. M. D. Sat. Fairs, May 14; Aug. 21; Oct. 9; and Nov. 27, for toys and fish.

A market-town in the parish of Hart, Stockton ward, situated on a promontory, nearly encompassed by the German Ocean. The town consists of a principal street, another in the rear of it, with several cross streets, all sloping towards the west, including several new and commodious erections for the convenience of the numerous visitors for sea-bathing. As a sea-port, it is dependent upon Newcastle, and it formerly possessed a harbour within the walls, defended by two strong towers, which are now decayed, and the harbour is choked up, the modern harbour, which will only admit vessels of light burden, being to the south of the town. In the reign of Edward III. this port furnished five large ships to the royal navy, and was next in rank to the city of Durham. The fishery on the coast forms the principal employment of the inhabitants, which is, however, aided by several extensive coal-works in the vicinity. It is governed by a mayor, aldermen, recorder, and common council, under a charter, granted by King John, who possess a handsome townhall for the transaction of public business. On a moor, near the town, are two batteries, strongly fortified, and on the south of it is a good chalybeate spring. The living is a vicarage subordinate to that of Harts; charged in K. B. 117. 17s. 1d.; ann. val. P. R. 1107; church ded. to St. Hilda. Here are a freeschool for the education of thirty boys, a charity-school, and a custom-house, dependent upon that of Stockton, and a pilot establishment. There are many pleasant walks on the town walls, the moor, and the rocky shore. Here was anciently a monastery of Grey Friars, originally founded on the first conversion of the Northumbrians, in the seventh century.

IARTLEY, co. Kent.

P. T. Dartford (15) 6 m. SE b E. Pop. 161.

A parish in the hundred of Axton, Dartford, and Wilmington, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 77. church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Richard Forrest, Esq.

HARTLEY, co. Northumberland.

London 283 m. NE. Pop. 1705.

A sea-port and township in the parish of Earsdon, Castle ward, Northumberland, situated on a bold rocky shore, about five miles north of North Shields. Its prosperity principally arises from the mineral productions in the vicinity, consisting of salt, copperas, and coal. It is the property of the noble family of Delaval, who possess a beautiful mansion, with extensive grounds, in the vicinity, situated near the site of an ancient castle, of which nothing remains but a chapel of much admired Norman architecture. The coals, known by the name of Delaval's Hartly Main coals, are shipped for the metropolis, from the harbour of Seaton, formed out of the solid rock, at the cost of Lord Delaval. The inlet, nine hundred feet long, thirty broad, and fifty-two deep, forms a safe harbour for vessels of from 200 to 300 tons burden.

HARTLEY, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kirkby Stephen (206) 1 m. E. Pop. 136.

A township in the parish of Kirkby Stephen, east ward, a wild and mountainous district, containing veins of lead and copper, and upon Hartley fell a seam of coal, which has been worked. *

HARTLEY BURN, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Haltwhistle (285) 4 m. SW. Pop. 92.

A township in the parish of Haltwhistle and west division of Tindale ward.

HARTLEY DAMMER, or DONEX, co. Berks.

P. T. Reading (38) 3½ m. SW b W. Pop. 323.

A liberty in the parish of Shinfield and hundred of Theale.

HARTLEY MANDIT, co. Southampton.

P. T. Alton (47) 3 m. SSE. Pop. 56.

A parish in the hundred of Alton, north division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 10l. 1s. 10½d.; patron (1829) R. Hanstoun, Esq.

HARTLEY WESTPOLE, co. Southampton.

P. T. Hartford Bridge (35) 5 m. W. Pop. 272.

A parish in the hundred of Holdshot, Basingstoke division; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 6l. 16s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Windsor.

HARTLEY WINTNEY, co. Southampton.

P. T. Hartford Bridge (35) 2 m. S b W. Pop. 935.

A parish in the hundred of Odiham, Basingstoke division; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 4l. 0s. 7½d.; ann. val. P. R. 109l.; church ded. to St. Mary; patroness (1829) the lady of Sir John Mildmay.

HARTLINGTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (216) 10 m. NNE. Pop. 111.

A township in the parish of Burnsall and wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross.

HARTLIP, co. Kent.

P. T. Chatham (30) 6 m. SE. Pop. 300.

A parish in the hundred of Milton, lathe of Scray; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 9l. 10s. 10d.; church ded. to St. Michael; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Rochester.

HARTOFT, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Pickering (226) 8 m. N. Pop. 134.

A township in the parish of Middleton and west division of the wapentake of Pickering Lythe.

HARTON, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. South Shields (278) 2 m. S b E. Pop. 235.

A township in the parish of Jarrow and east division of Chester ward.

HARTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (196) 9½ m. NE. Pop. 190.

A township in the parish of Bossall and wapentake of Bulmer.

HARTPURY, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Newent (112) 4 m. ESE.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Dudstone and King's Barton; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 16l. 16s. 5½d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron; the Bishop of Gloucester.

HARTSGROUNDS, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Swineshead (113) near. Pop. 67.

An extra-parochial liberty in the hundred of Kirton, parts of Holland.

HARTSHEAD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 9 m. ENE. Pop. 9137.

A township in the parish of Ashton-under-Lyne, and hundred of Salford. On the summit of a hill are the remains of a stone building, in the form of a hart's head, formerly used as a beacon.

HARTSHEAD, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Huddersfield (188) 5½ m. NNE. Pop. with Clifton Township.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Dewsbury and wapentake of Morley; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Dewsbury, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 8l. 9s. 6d.; ann. val. P. R. 95l.; patron, the vicar of Dewsbury. A place is pointed out in this village as being the place where Robin Hood was buried; having applied to the prioress of the Benedictine establishment, which formerly existed here, to let blood, he was suffered to bleed to death.

HARTSHILL, co. Warwick.

P. T. Nuneaton (100) 3 m. NW b W. Pop. 661.

A hamlet in the parish of Manchester and Atherstone division of the hundred of Hemlingford. Michael Drayton, the poet, was born here, in 1563, and died in 1631, when he was buried in Westminster Abbey with the other poets.

HARTSHORN, co. Derby.

P. T. Ashby-de-la-Zouch (115) 4 m. NW.
Pop. 870.

A parish in the hundred of Repton and Gresley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 3*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) R. Pyot Esq.

HARTSIDE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 7 m. S b W.
Pop. with Fawden and Clinton Townships, 80

A township in the parish of Ingram, in north division of Coquetdale ward.

HARTSOP, or LOW HARTSHOPE, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Ambleside (278) 6 m. NNE.
Pop. with Patterdale, 282.

A hamlet in the parish of Barton, west ward.

HARTWELL, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Aylesbury (39) 2 m. WSW. Pop. 133.

A parish in the first division of the hundred of Aylesbury; living, a rectory with the curacy of Little Hampden, in the archdeaconry of Bucks and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 5*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir G. Lee, Bart.

HARTWELL, or WOLD HARTWELL, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (66) 7½ S b E.
Pop. 432.

A parish in the hundred of Cleley; living, dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; certified value 20*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 39*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) Colonel P. Skeene.

HARTWITII, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Knaresborough (202) 8½ m. WNW.
Pop. with Winsley, 675.

A township in the parish of Kirkby Malzerd and lower division of the wapentake of Claro. Here are the celebrated Druidical remains, called Brimham Crags.

HARTY, ISLE, co. Kent.

P. T. Feversham (47) 4½ m. N. Pop. 45.

A parish in the hundred of Feversham, lathe of Scray; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 6*s.* 0½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 40*l.*; church ded. to St. Thomas-the-Apostle; patron (1829) S. Sawbridge, Esq.

HARVINGTON, or HEREFORTON, co. Worcester.

P. T. Evesham (99) 4 m. N b E. Pop. 351.

A parish in the middle division of the hundred of Oswaldslow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded.

to St. James; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Worcester.

HARWELL, co. Berks.

P. T. Wantage (60) 6¼ m. E b N. Pop. 708.

A parish in the hundred of Moreton; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Matthew; patron (1829) Sir J. Chetwode, Bart.

HARWICH, co. Essex.

London 71 m. NE. Pop. 4010. M. D. Tues. and Frid. Fairs, May 1, and Oct. 18, for rags. Mem. of Pt. 2.

A borough, sea-port, and market-town, in the hundred of Tendring, situated on a point of land washed on the east by the German Ocean, and on the opposite side by an inlet formed by the united currents of the rivers Orwell and Stour, which here fall into the sea; and in this estuary a naval engagement took place between the Anglo-Saxon and Danish fleets in 884. The town is supposed to be of Roman origin, but its present appellation is derived from the Saxon terms Hare, an army, and Wick, or Wich, a strong place, importing its having been a fortified station for troops. Harwich was first made a free borough by Edward II. at the request of his brother, Thomas de Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk, who was lord of the manor; but a new charter of incorporation was granted by James I. in the twelfth year of his reign, under which the government of the town is vested in a mayor, recorder, eight aldermen, and twenty-four capital burgesses, with various officers. It returned two members to Parliament previously to the reign of Edward III., when the privilege was suspended, but it was restored by the last charter, and has been since regularly exercised. The aldermen and burgesses are the electors, the mayor is the returning officer, and the patronage of the borough belongs to the Treasury. The church or chapel, dedicated to St. Nicholas, is a chapel of ease to the parish of Dover Court. It is said to have been originally founded in the thirteenth century, by Roger Bigod, Earl of Norfolk; but the old building was taken down, and a spacious and elegant structure of brick, with fine buttresses and a steeple, was erected in its place, and opened for public worship at Christmas, 1821. The town consists of three principal streets, from which branch off several smaller ones: the buildings are of general of brick; and the streets are well paved. There is a neat town-hall, a school, and a custom-house. There is likewise a freeschool for the education of twenty-four boys, with a good house for the residence of the master, and a room for the use of visitors. The town was formerly defended by a wall on the land-side, which had four gates; and there was also a castle and an admiralty-house. The harbour, independent of the bay or inlet, is safe and convenient, whence this place has been selected as the chief port for packets destined for Holland; and it has long enjoyed a considerable trade, and had many vessels engaged in the North Sea fishery. Packets sail hence regularly to Helvoetsluys, the computed distance of which is thirty-six leagues. The number of vessels belonging to this port in 1829, was ninety-six, altogether amounting to 5513 tons burden. Ship-building and other occupations connected with the sea-service, furnish employment for the greater part of the inhabitants. There is a royal dock-yard for building and repairing ships, very commodiously furnished with launches, storehouses, and other accommodations, and here several third-rates have been built, besides other vessels. The harbour is of vast extent, affording good anchorage, and depth of water sufficient for ships of the largest burden; the bay or road will also admit first-rate vessels; and it is stated that 100 sail of men-of-war, and between 3 and 400 sail of colliers, have been riding at anchor here at the same time with much safety and convenience. The east side of Harwich is defended by Landguard Fort, on the opposite coast of Suffolk. It was erected in the reign of James I., and was originally a much more formidable fortress than it is at present, as it had four bastions mounted with cannon; instead of which a small platform was erected by the water-side; but the fort has been since repaired and enlarged, and a range of barracks has been built for soldiers. There are two lighthouses for the direction of vessels entering the harbour, the navigation of which is difficult without an experienced pilot. The scenery of the river is extremely beautiful, and the town is much frequented in the summer-season for the purpose of sea-bathing. Hot and cold baths have been constructed and elegantly fitted up with convenient dressing-rooms; and machines are provided for bathing near the beach, which is well adapted for that healthful exercise. The living of Harwich is a curacy, not in charge, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Colchester; certified value 5*l.*; subordinate to the vicarage of Dover Court; chapel ded. to St. Nicholas.

HARWOOD, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Middleton-in-Teesdale (235) 10 m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Middleton-in-Teesdale and south-west division of Darlington ward; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham, not in charge. The curate educates about twenty poor children, from which he receives an annual stipend from the Marchioness of Cleveland. Here are some extensive lead-mines, in which a great many of the inhabitants are employed.

HARWOOD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Bury (195) 3½ m. W b S. Pop. 1809.

A township in the parish of Bolton and hundred of Salford.

HARWOOD, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 16 m. WNW. Pop. 39.

A township in the parish of Hartburn and north-east division of Tindale ward.

HARWOOD DALE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Scarborough (217) 9 m. NW. Pop. 235.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Hackness and liberty of Whitby Strand; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of the North Riding and diocese of York, not in charge.

HARWOOD, GREAT, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Blackburn (212) 4½ m. NE. Pop. 2104.

A township and chapelry in the parish and hundred of Blackburn; living, a curacy, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 14*l.* 15*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 145*l.* 14*s.* 7*d.*; chapel ded. to St. Bartholomew; patron, the Vicar of Blackburn.

HARWOOD, LITTLE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Blackburn (212) 2 m. NE. Pop. 210.

A township in the parish and hundred of Blackburn.

HARWORTH, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Bawtry (153) 3 m. WSW. Pop. 395.

A parish in the Hatfield division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Mr. Hartley.

HASCOMBE, co. Surrey.

P. T. Godalming (33) 4 m. SE b S. Pop. 253.

A parish in the hundred of Blackheath; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Sir W. C. Morshead, Bart. On the summit of a hill rising above the village are the remains of a Roman encampment. Here is a telegraph forming part of the line between London and Portsmouth.

HASCOSAY, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

Pop. with Pa.

An uninhabited island, forming part of the parish of Yell, and lying to the eastward of that island.

HASELEY, co. Warwick.

P. T. Warwick (90) 3 m. NW b W. Pop. 210.

A parish in the Snitterfield division of the hundred of Barlichway; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 9*s.* 4½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 90*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir E. Antrobus, Bart.

HASELEY, GREAT, co. Oxford.

P. T. Tetworth (42) 3 m. W. Pop. 628.

A parish in the hundred of Ewelme, the name of which is a compound of two Saxon words, signifying a wild uncultivated spot; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 30*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; annexed to the deanery of Windsor. Here is a free school founded and endowed in the seventeenth century. The celebrated, but ill-fated Le land was some time rector of this parish.

HASELEY, LITTLE, co. Oxford.

P. T. Tetworth (42) 3½ m. W b S. Pop. 13.

A township in the parish of Haseley Gre and hundred of Ewelme.

HASELOR, co. Dorset.

Pop. 1139.

A hundred in the Blandford division an south-east point of the county, being th western side of the Isle of Purbeck, con taining six parishes.

HASELOR, co. Stafford.

P. T. Tamworth (114) 4 m. N. Pop. 40.

A township in the parish of St. Michael and north division of the hundred of Offlow.

HASELOR, co. Warwick.

P. T. Alcester (103) 3 m. E. Pop. 397.

A parish in the hundred of Barlichway; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 6l. 13s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 39l.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HASFIELD, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Gloucester (104) 6 m. N. Pop. 237.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Westminster; living, a rectory, and a peculiar of Deerhurst, in the diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 13l. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Mr. Miller.

HASGUARD, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Milford (273) m. NW. Pop. 105.

A parish in the hundred of Rhôs, adjacent to an estuary of Milford Haven; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. This place is of early Norman foundation. There is a tomb in the church to the memory of Catherine Barrett, wife of Rowland Meyrick, bishop of Bangor, bearing date 1598.

HASLBURY BRIAN, co. Dorset.

P. T. Blandford Forum (103) 11 m. WNW. Pop. 574.

A parish in the hundred of Pimperne, Blandford division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 19l. 13s. 9d.; church ded. to St. James, patron (1829) the Duke of Northumberland.

HASKETON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Woodbridge (77) 2 m. NW. Pop. 530.

A parish in the hundred of Carlford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 13l. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patroness, Mrs. Freeland.

HASLAND, co. Derby.

P. T. Chesterfield (150) 1½ m. SSE. Pop. 770.

A township in the parish of Chesterfield and hundred of Scarsdale.

HASLE, or HESSELE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Pontefract (177) 4 m. SW b S. Pop. 130.

A township in the parish of Wragby, and upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross.

HASLEBEECH, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (96) 11½ m. N b W. Pop. 170.

A parish in the hundred of Rothwell; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 13l. 14s. 9½d.; church ded. to St. Michael; patroness (1829) Lady Aprece.

HASLEBURY, co. Wilts.

P. T. Chippenham (93) 6½ m. SW. Pop. 70.

A parish in the hundred of Chippenham; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 1l. 15s. 5d.; patron the Lord Chancellor.

HASLEBURY, or HASELBOROUGH LUCKNETT, co. Somerset.

P. T. Crewkerne (132) 3 m. NE b E. Pop. 768.

A parish in the hundred of Houndsborough, Warwick and Coker; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 7l.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the rebandary of Haslebury. The celebrated saint and hermit Wulfric dwelt here, in all the austerities of an eremitical. His residence was a small cell, at which he was visited by a number of distinguished persons; among whom were the kings Stephen and Henry I. He died at an advanced age and was buried in the church.

ASLEMERE, co. Surrey.

London 42 m. SW. Pop. 881. M. D. Tues. Fairs, May 12; Sept. 25, for horses, cattle, sheep, and hogs. Mem. of Pt. 2.

borough, market-town, and parish, in the hundred of Godalming, originally occupying a spot to the south of the present town, and was a place of considerable extent until devastated by the incursions of the Danes. The living is a curacy, subordinate to the rectory of Chidingfold, in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester, not charge; patronage with Chidingfold rectory. The church, dedicated to St.

Bartholomew, is a small but ancient structure, with a square tower, containing five bells. At a short distance from the town is an almshouse for a few poor persons, who were originally supported from the tolls of the corn-market; but these having much declined, they at present have merely their wellings without any allowance. Haslemere a borough by prescription, and sends two members to parliament; which privilege it has enjoyed from a very early period. The right of election belongs to the holders of burgage tenures; and the bailiff, who is annually chosen at the court-leet, is the returning officer. The chief influence is possessed by the Earl of Lonsdale. The right was obtained by John Waltham, Bishop of Salisbury, in the reign of Richard II.

HASLEWOOD, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Aldborough (94) 2 m. NNW. Pop. 90.

A parish in the hundred of Plomesgate; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge.

HASLINGDEN, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

London 204 m. NNW. Pop. 6505. M.D. Wed. Fairs, May 8; July 1; and Oct. 10, for cattle, horses, sheep, cloth, and pedlery.

A market-town, township, and chapelry, in the parish of Whalley and hundred of Blackburn, pleasantly situated in a valley, under the mountains, bounded on the west by the river Swinnel; the houses are chiefly built of stone. It carries on a very considerable trade, and has very extensive cotton and woollen manufactories. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified val. 17l. 8s. 9d.; ann. val. P. R. 109l. The chapel, which is a modern structure, though the old tower is of the age of Henry VIII. remains, is ded. to St. James; patron, the vicar of Whalley. Here are several meeting-houses for Dissenters of different persuasions, with several schools, and also the grammar-school, which has a small endowment for ten poor boys. A mile south from the town is Holden Hall, now let in tenements, and near it is the quarry called Cold Hutch Bank, from which the finest flag stones and slate are obtained; all the surrounding country abounds in excellent freestone.

HASLINGFIELD, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Cambridge (50) 4 m. SW b S. Pop. 544.

A parish in the hundred of Wetherley; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 8l. 10s. 7½d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) C. Mitchell, Esq.

HASLINGTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Sandbach (102) 4 m. SSW. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Barthomley and hundred of Nantwich.

HASSALL, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Sandbach (162) 2½ m. S b E. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Sandbach and hundred of Nantwich.

HASSINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Acle (121) 4½ m. SW b S. Pop. 103.

A parish in the hundred of Blowfield; living, a dis. rectory with that of Buckenham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4l.; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Buckenham Rectory.

HASTOP, co. Derby.

P. T. Bakewell (153) 3 m. N b E. Pop. 123.

A township in the parish of Bakewell and hundred of Iligh Peak.

HASTINGLEIGH, co. Kent.

P. T. Ashford (33) 6½ m. E b N. Pop. 104.

A parish in the barony of Bircholt, lathe of Scray; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 10l. 5s.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

HASTINGS, co. Sussex.

London 84 m. SE. Pop. 6085. M. D. Wed. Fairs, Whit Tues.; June 26; and Nov. 23, for pedler's ware. Memb. of Pt. 2.

An ancient town, and one of the Cinque Ports, possessing separate jurisdiction, but locally situated in the hundred of Bilstow, soke of Hastings. It is supposed to have derived its appellation from Hasting, a Danish sea-captain, who infested the coasts of England in the reign of Alfred the Great, and who is said to have built a fort here, for the protection of his troops during the winter season. If this, however, was its origin, its increase must have been rapid; for in the time of Athelstone, the grandson of Alfred, it was one of the few places in the kingdom of sufficient importance to be the residence of a mint-master, for the coinage of money. The town was formerly fortified, and there are some slight remains of the wall by which it was protected, as well as traces of its castle, which seems to have been a place of great strength. On a hill, eastward of the town, are the banks and ditches of an entrenchment, supposed by some to have been a Roman camp; but which others ascribe to William the Norman, who near this place gained the memorable victory over Harold II., which put a period to the Saxon dynasty of our kings, and led to important changes in our national government. Hastings is one of the oldest of the Cinque Ports, and was anciently required to furnish, for the king's service, at forty days' notice, twenty-one ships, with their respective crews, to be maintained fourteen days at the charge of the townsmen; but if they were detained longer, the expense was defrayed by the crown. The town is governed by a mayor and twelve jurats; and the right of electing two members of Parliament is vested in the mayor, jurats, and freemen, not receiving alms, in all about 200; the mayor is the returning officer, and the patronage belongs to the Treasury. There are six parishes, two of which only have churches, dedicated to All Saints and St. Clement. The livings form a disunited rectory, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 42l. 19s. 7d.; patron, the Rev. G. G. Stonestreet. There is also the curacy of St. Mary-in-Chapel, not in charge; patron, the Earl of Chichester. The town, which consists of two principal streets, is built in a valley, between two high cliffs, forming a noble and spacious amphitheatre, gradually sloping towards the sea, and defended by hills towards the north, so that the temperature of the air is generally mild, even in the depth of winter. The surrounding country abounds with pleasing walks and rides; and the town has excellent accommodations for sea-bathing, and has been long a favourite resort for that purpose. One mile west is the new town of St. Leonard's, commenced in 1828, upon the plan of the celebrated metropolitan architect, Mr. Burton, on the site of the spot said to be that on which William, the Norman, landed. It partakes of similar advantages with the old town, as respects salubrious air, shelter from the north, a fine beach, and beautiful prospects. Here is a very handsome hotel, extensive ranges of dwelling-houses, adapted for families of consideration, with cottages, villas, and a promenade, commanding the most noble and extensive views. A church and public market are also in progress. The hotel is built where there was previously a small pond, overhung by a large flat stone, which went by the name of the Conqueror's Stone, which is preserved, and is to be placed in some conspicuous situation, as a traditional national monument. Hastings formerly possessed a good harbour, now called the Stade; but the pier having been ruined by a storm, in the reign of Elizabeth, it has never since been restored, and now only receives vessels of from fifty to one hundred tons burden. At the west end of the Stade, is a fort, mounted with eleven guns. From ancient charters, the commerce of Hastings appears to have been formerly considerable; but at present it is chiefly confined to fresh fish sent to London, and herrings which are cured for sale in different markets.

HASWELL, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (258) 7 m. E. Pop. 115.

A township in the parish of Easington and south division of Easington ward.

HATCH, co. Surrey.

P. T. Kingston-upon-Thames (10) near. Pop. with Ham.

A hamlet in the parish of Kingston-upon-Thames and hundred of Kingston.

HATCH BEAUCHAMP, co. Somerset.

P. T. Ilminster (133) 7 m. NW b N. Pop. 245.

A parish in the hundred of Abdick and Bulstone; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 134. 15s. 2½d.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) the Rev. Thomas Exon.

HATCH, EAST, co. Wilts.

P. T. Hindon (94) 4 m. SSE. Pop. with Pa.

A tithing and chapelry in the parish of Tisbury and hundred of Dunworth; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Tisbury, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; patronage with Tisbury vicarage.

HATCH, WEST, co. Somerset.

P. T. Taunton (141) 4½ m. SE b E. Pop. 307

A parish in the hundred of North Curry; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of North Curry, and a peculiar of the dean and chapter of Wells; certified value 54; patronage with North Curry vicarage.

HATCLIFFE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Great Grimby (103) 7 m. SW b S. Pop. 99.

A parish in the wapentake of Bradley Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis-rectory, a peculiar of Southwell and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 54. 4s. 2d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Southwell College Church.

HATFIELD, co. Hertford.

P. T. Bromyard (125) 7 m. NW. Pop. 153.

A parish in the hundred of Wolphy; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; certified value 34. 0s. 6d.; ann. val. P. R. 504; church ded. to St. Leonard; patron (1829) Sir J. G. Cotterell, Bart.

HATFIELD, BISHOP'S, co. Hertford.

London 19 m. NNW. Pop. 3215.1

M. D. Thurs. Fairs, April 23; and Oct. 18, for toys.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Broadwater, which derived its name from being situated on a heath, formerly belonged to the Saxon kings, till it was granted by Edgar to the abbey at Ely. On the conversion of that foundation into a bishopric, it became attached to the new see, and the manor-house becoming a palace of the bishops, the town from that circumstance derived its second appellation. The living is a rectory with the curacy of Totteridge, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 364. 2s. 1d.; patron (1829) the Marquis of Salisbury. The church, which is dedicated to St. Etheldreda, is a handsome fabric, consisting of a nave, chancel, aisles, and embattled tower, with a burial-place of the Earls of Salisbury, erected by Robert Cecil, which contains a curious monument to him. Here are also two charity-schools, one for boys and the other for girls. Hatfield House is a handsome brick building of vast extent, which occupies a beautiful situation in a finely diversified park, and is watered by the river Lea.

HATFIELD, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Thorne (106) 3½ m. SW b S. Pop. of Pa. 2642. Of To. 1918.

A parish and township in the lower division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 154. 5s.; ann. val. P. R. 804. 4s. 3d. The church, which is spacious, with a lofty tower, is dedicated to St. Lawrence; patrons (1829) Lord and Lady Deerpurst. In this place William of Hatfield, second son of Edward III., was born. The extensive level of Hatfield Chase contains 180,000 acres, half of which were formerly covered with water; it was sold by Charles I. to Cornelius Vermuiden, a naturalized Dutchman, who drained and cultivated it at an expense of 400,000*l*. In the centre of the chase stands a farm-house called Landholme, surrounded by an almost impassable morass; on the site was anciently a hermitage, inhabited by William of Lindholme, a personage partaking of the contradictory natures of a hermit and a giant. Edwin, the first Christian King of Northumberland, was slain here in a great battle, by Penda, the turbulent King of Mercia. Near the town are the appearances of many Roman entrenchments.

H A T

HATFIELD, BROAD-OAK, or REGES, co. Essex.

P. T. Harlow (23) 6 m. NE b E. Pop. 1003.
Fair, Aug. 5, for lumb.

A parish in the hundred of Harlow, formerly a market-town and the king's demesne, particularly famous for its fine spreading oaks; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 7*l*. 11*s*.; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is an ancient Gothic structure, in which is a curious effigy carved in wood, by Robert de Vere, third Earl of Oxford, who was buried here in 1221.

HATFIELD, GREAT, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hornsea (188) 4 m. SW. Pop. 127.

A township, partly in the parish of Mapplen, and partly in the parish of Sigglesthorpe and north division of the wapentake of Holderness. In the centre of the village there is a very ancient cross.

HATFIELD, LITTLE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hornsea (188) 4 m. SW. Pop. 25.

A township, partly in the parish of Mappleton, and partly in the parish of Sigglesthorpe, and north division of the wapentake of Holderness.

HATFIELD PEVERELL, co. Essex.

P. T. Witham (38) 3 m. SW. Pop. 1101.

An ancient parish in the hundred of Witham, given by William the Conqueror to Ranulph Peverell, a Norman soldier, who came over to England with him; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 8*l*.; ann. val. P. R. 90*l*.; patron (1829) J. Wright, Esq. The church, dedicated to St. Andrew, is an ancient building with a fine lofty spire. It was originally part of a priory founded by Ingelrica, wife of Ranulph Peverell, who had been the concubine of William the Conqueror.

HATFORD, co. Berks.

P. T. Great Faringdon (08) 3½ m. E b S. Pop. 132.

A parish in the hundred of Ganfield; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 12*l*. 17*s*. 6*d*.; church ded. to St. George; patron (1829) Francis Painter, Esq.

HATHERLEIGH, co. Devon.

London 201 m. W b S. Pop. 1400. M. D. Frid. Fairs, May 9; June 22; Sept. 7; Nov. 9; for cattle. When May 21, or Nov. 8, falls on Sat., Sun., or Mon., fair held on Tues. The great market is Frid. bef. the 3d Sat. in March.

A small market-town and parish in the hundred of Black Torrington, situated upon a branch of the river Torridge, near its confluence with the Oke, which abounds with excellent fish; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 20*l*.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) the Trustees of J. Ireland, Esq. Hatherleigh is a borough-town, governed by a portreeve and two constables, annually elected at a court held by the lord of the manor, but it has not the privilege of sending members to Parliament. Here is a small woollen manufacture giving employment to a portion of the inhabitants. Joseph Mayne, a dramatic writer and divine of the seventeenth century, was a native of this town.

H A T

HATHERLEY, DOWN, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Gloucester (104) 3 m. NE b N. Pop. 170.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Dudstone and King's Barton; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; val. in K. B. 8*l*. 14*s*. 4½*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary and Corpus Christi; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HATHERLEY, UPPER, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Cheltenham (94) 2½ m. SW b W. Pop. 72.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Dudstone and King's Barton.

HATHERN, co. Leicester.

P. T. Loughborough (109) 3 m. NW. Pop. 1144.

A parish in the hundred of West Goscote; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12*l*.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) C. M. Phillips, Esq.

HATHROP, or AITHEROP, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Fairford (80) 3 m. NNE. Pop. 290.

A parish in the hundred of Brightwell's Barrow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 10*l*.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) M. H. Beach, Esq.

HATHERSAGE, co. Derby.

P. T. Stony Middleton (101) 5 m. N b E. Pop. of Pa. 1856. Of To. 653.

A parish and township in the hundred of High Peak; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 7*l*. 0*s*. 5*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 54*l*.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) the Duke of Devonshire.

HATHERTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Nantwich (104) 4 m. SE b S. Pop. 370.

A township in the parish of Wybunbury and hundred of Nantwich. Hatherton lodge in this township is the property and residence of John Twemlow, Esq.

HATHERTON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Penkridge (131) 4 m. SE. Pop. 320.

A township in the parish of Wolverhampton and east division of the hundred of Cuttlestone.

HATLEY, EAST, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Caxton (40) 4½ m. S b E. Pop. 109.

A parish in the hundred of Armingsford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; val. in K. B. 7*l*. 16*s*. 8*d*.; church ded. to St. Dennis; patron, Downing College, Cambridge.

HATLEY, ST. GEORGE, or GREAT HATLEY, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Caxton (40) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 105.

A parish in the hundred of Long-Stow, sometimes, from the nature of the soil, called Hunger. Hatley was the seat of the St. George family from the time of Henry III. One of the family being sent to Gustavus, King of Sweden, by Charles I. with the order of the garter, was honoured with the Swedish arms in addition to his own. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; patron (1829) J. W. Quintin, Esq.

HATTERSLEY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Stockport (170) 6 m. N E b E. Pop. 503.

A township in the parish of Mottram, in Longden Dale, and hundred of Macclesfield.

HATTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Warrington (194) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 397.

A township in the parish of Runcorn and west division of the hundred of Bucklow.

HATTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 6 m. S E. Pop. 157.

A township in the parish of Waverton and hundred of Broxton.

HATTON, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 10 m. W S W. Pop. 225.

A township in the parish of Marston-upon-Dove and hundred of Appletree.

HATTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Wragby (141) 2½ m. E S E. Pop. 165.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Wraggoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 102*l.* 6*s.*; church ded. to St. Stephen; patron (1829) C. W. Sibthorpe, Esq.

HATTON, co. Salop.

P. T. Shifnal (135) 2½ m. S b E. Pop. 589.

A township in the parish of Shifnal and Shifnal division of the hundred of Brimstrey.

HATTON, co. Warwick.

P. T. Warwick (90) 3 m. N W b W. Pop. 806.

A parish in Snitterfield division of the hundred of Barlichway; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.* 15*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron (1829) Mrs. Baker.

HATTON, HIGH, co. Salop.

P. T. Wem (163) 7 m. E S E. Pop. 103.

A township in the parish of Stanton-upon-Nineheath and Whitchurch division of the north part of the hundred of Bradford.

HAUGH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Alford (141) 2 m. W. Pop. 7.

An extra-parochial liberty in the Marsh division of the hundred of Calceworth; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 4*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 38*l.*; church ded. to St. Leonard; patron (1829) W. Horsfall, Esq.

HAUGHAM, or HAYHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (149) 4 m. S. Pop. 100.

A parish in the Wold division of the hundred of Louth Eske, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; val. in K. B. 8*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; held by sequestration. Here is a remarkable hill, called Skirbeck, out of the side of which occasionally rushes an immense torrent of water, where, at other times there is no appearance of a spring.

HAUGILEY, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Stow Market (60) 3 m. N N W.

● Pop. 851. Fair, Aug. 15.

A parish in the hundred of Stow, was formerly a market town, out of the ruins of which Stow seems to have arisen. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. E. Ward. Near the church are the ruins of a very strong and ancient castle, supposed to have been a Saxon edifice, and to be the same which was called Hageneth Castle, which was in the custody of Ralf de Broc, and afterwards demolished by the Flemings, under Robert, Earl of Leicester.

HAUGHTON, or HAIGHTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Tarporley (178) 3 m. S b E. Pop. 175.

A township in the parish of Bunbury and hundred of Eddisbury.

HAUGHTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (278) 6 m. N. Pop. 127.

A township in the parish of Simonburn and north-west division of Tindale ward.

HAUGHTON, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Tuxford (137) 4 m. W N W. Pop. 40.

A parish in the Hatfield division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, formerly a place of some consequence, though at present but a very small village. It gave the title of Baron to the Earls of Clare, of the name of Holles, who had a seat here, long since fallen to decay. The ruins of the parish church, surrounded by trees, present a picturesque appearance. Here is a free-school.

HAUGHTON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Stafford (141) 4 m. S W b W. Pop. 473.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Cuttleston; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. Giles; patron (1829) W. Yonge, Esq.

HAUGHTON, DRAYTON, co. Southampton.

P. T. Stockbridge (60) 2½ m. S W b S. Pop. 363.

A parish and tithing in the hundred of Buddlesgate, Fawley division; living, a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 28l. 2s. 8½d.; patron, the Bishop of Winchester.

HAUGHTON-LE-SKERNE, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Darlington (211) 2 m. NE b E.
Pop. of Pa. 1246. Of To. 466.

A parish and township, partly in the south-east division of Darlington ward, and partly in the south-east division of Stockdale ward, situated on the north bank of the river Skerne. The inhabitants are for the most part employed in weaving coarse linens for the manufactures of Darlington. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 53l. 6s. 3d.; patron, the Bishop of Durham. The church, dedicated to St. Andrew, is a plain ancient structure, consisting of a nave, chancel, and tower. Here is a chapel belonging to the Dissenters, erected in 1825, and a church Sunday-school, attended by 160 children. The poor of this parish are benefited by a considerable number of bequests and benefactions of different individuals.

HAUKSWELL, EAST and WEST, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Richmond (233) 5 m. S.
Pop. of Pa. 334. Of To. 176.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Hang West; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 20l. 14s. 4½d.; church ded. to St. Oswald; patron (1829) Mr. and Mrs. Gale.

HAULGH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Bolton (197) 1 m. S. E.
Pop. with Tong, 1678.

A township in the parish of Bolton and hundred of Salford.

HAUNTON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Tamworth (114) 4 m. NNE.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Clifton Campville and north division of the hundred of Offlow.

HAUTBOIS, GREAT, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Coltishall (116) 1 m. NW b N. Pop. 102.

A parish in the hundred of South Erpingham; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4l. 6s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 125l.; church ded. to St. Theobald; patron (1829) Sir J. W. Lubbock, Bart.

HAUTBOIS, LITTLE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Coltishall (116) 1½ m. NW b N.
Pop. with Lammes.

A parish in the hundred of South Erpingham; living, a dis. rectory with that of Lammes in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7l.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. P. Candler.

HAUXLEY, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alnwick (308) 10 m. SE. Pop. 114.

A township in the parish of Warkworth and east division of Morpeth ward, situated near the sea. The finest fish of almost every description is taken at this village, and lobsters were formerly sent to London in large quantities.

HAUXTON, or HAWKSTON, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Cambridge (50) 3 m. S W. Pop. 236.

A parish in the hundred of Thriplow; living, a dis. vicarage with that of Newton in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; val. in K. B. 16l. 6s.; ann. val. P. R. 96l. 14s. 7d.; church ded. to St. Edmund; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Ely.

HAVANT, co. Southampton.

Pop. 2099.

A liberty in the Portsdown division and south side of the county, bordering upon Sussex, containing the market-town and parish, from which it takes its name.

HAVANT, co. Southampton.

London 66 m. SW. Pop. 2099. M. D. Sat.
Fairs, June 22; Oct. 7, for toys.

A market-town and parish in the liberty of the same name, Portsdown division, situated nearly opposite to Hayling Island. The town, consisting of one long street, crossed by a smaller, is neat and well-built. The living is a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 24l. 6s. 0½d.; patron, the Bishop of Winchester. The church, dedicated to St. Faith, is an ancient structure, built in the form of a cross, with a tower rising from the intersection; it presents specimens of different styles of architecture, some parts being of Saxon, and others of the pointed styles. Besides the established church are two places of public worship belonging to the Dissenters. The privilege of a market was granted to this town in the reign of King John. In 1734 two shocks of earthquake were felt here, each of which lasted for several minutes. At a short distance from Havant are the ruins of Warblington castle, erected previously to the time of Henry IV.

HAVEN, EAST and WEST, shire of Forfar, S.

Pop. with Pa.

Two fishing villages in the parish of Panbride, within the jurisdiction of the port of Montrose, to which each boat pays five marks for the privilege of fishing. They are situated on the North Sea, at the distance of a mile from each other.

HAVENGORE-MARSH, co. Essex.

P. T. Rochford (40) 7 m. E b S. Pop. 23.

An extra-parochial liberty in the hundred of Rochford.

HAVERAH PARK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Knaresborough (202) 8 m. WSW.
Pop. 87.

An extra-parochial district in the lower division of the wapentake of Claro.

HAVERAY, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

The name of two of the Shetland isles, one belonging to the parish of Burray, the other to that of Tigwall; the latter is uninhabited.

HAVERBRACK, co. Westmorland.

P. P. Kirkby Lonsdale (253) 9½ m. W b N.
Pop. 127

A township in the parish of Beetham, Kendal ward, situated near the confluence of the Kent and the Belo. Dallam Tower, the residence of George Wilson, Esq., is a handsome mansion, surrounded by a park well stocked with deer.

HAVERCROFT, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnsley (172) 6 m. NNE.
Pop. with Cold Hundley, 189.

A township in the parish of Felkirk and lower division of the wapentake of Staincliffe.

HAVERFORD WEST, co. Pembroke, S. W.

London 251 m. W b N. by Bristol; 251 m. by Gloucester. Pembroke 10 m. Pairs, April 12; May 12; June 12; July 18; Sept. 4 and 24; and Oct. 18. M. D. Tuesday and Saturday. Pop. 4035. Memb. of Pt. I.

One of the best towns of South Wales, in the county of the town of Haverford West, situated upon the navigable river called the West Cleddare. Its natural position is singularly beautiful, upon an eminence overhanging the river, and presenting a picturesque spectacle to the Narbeth Road, from which the streets appear to rise one above the other to the crown of the hill. The streets are generally narrow, steep, and unsafe for carriages and horses; but some improvements of them are in progress. The Guildhall is a handsome modern structure. The church of St. Mary, at the end of High Street, is a venerable cathedral-like building, adorned with a heavy tower, formerly the pedestal of a lofty spire. In the chancel are some monuments of the Picton family, and one to that singular character, Sir John Pryce, of Newton Hall, Montgomeryshire. St. Martin's church seems to have been appendant to the castle. It consists of a nave, chancel, and south aisle, and is adorned with a tower and spire. In this church the Le Hunts lie buried, and there is a monument, to the memory of Harris, commonly called Parson Vigo, from his having served as chaplain on board of a man of war, at the taking of that place. On the summit of the hill which is occupied by the greater portion of the town, stands St. Thomas's church, said to have been erected in 1225, and there is also a church in the suburb of Pendergrast. Here are the jails of the county of Pembroke, and of the county of the town; meeting-houses for Moravians, Friends, Baptists, &c.; many excellent private dwellings, and two good inns. A dock-yard is constructed within the precincts of the priory of Black Canons, with convenient quays and an agreeable public walk, commanding most extensive views. This place was the ancient capital of the Flemmings, in South Wales. It was protected by a strong castle, erected by Gilbert de Clare, first Earl of Pembroke. James I.

ordained this to be a distinct county, and granted a new charter to the town. The corporation consists of a mayor, twenty-four aldermen, or common-councilmen, a sheriff, two bailiffs, and two serjeants at mace; the latter elected annually from amongst the burgeses, in the first week after Michaelmas. The town sends one representative to Parliament, returning officer, the mayor, who is also admiral, coroner, escheator, and clerk of the market. There are three parishes within the town, all in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's. St. Martin's is a rectory, not in charge; patron, H. W. Bowen, Esq.; valued in P. R. at 47*l.*; St. Mary's is a dis. vicarage; patrons, the Corporation of the town; valued in P. R. at 101*l.* 13*s.* 1*d.*; St. Thomas is a rectory, not in charge; patron, the King. The situation of this town should have rendered it a place of much more commercial importance than it yet possesses. It stands upon a navigable river, and has the advantage of the London and Milford mail-coach road passing through it. The assizes for the county of Pembroke, as well as for the county of the town, are held here. It also possesses paper-mills and cotton and woolen factories were established at different periods. The supply of fish, flesh, and poultry in the markets, is very abundant, and at reasonable prices; but the chief trade consists merely in supplying the surrounding country with English manufactured goods, and necessary imports; vessels of 100 tons being able to reach the town. Here are an endowed freeschool, an almshouse, and a school wherein twenty-four boys and twelve girls are clothed, and educated in reading, writing, and arithmetic, supported by a donation of Mrs. Mary-Howard, in 1684. Of the noble castle little remains, except the keep, on the south side of which there is a singular echo. In Glendowrs wars it was garrisoned for Edward IV. and in the civil war was held for the King, immediately after which the fortifications of the place were destroyed. A priory of Black Canons was founded here by Robert de Hewlford, first lord of Haverford West, a house of Friars Preachers once stood upon the banks of the river.

HAVERHILL, cos. Essex and Suffolk.

London 50 m. NNE. Pop. 1649. M. D. Wed. Fairs, May 12; and Oct. 26, for toys.

A market-town and parish, partly in the hundred of Hinckford, county of Essex, and partly in the hundred of Risbridge, formerly of much greater extent than at present, and possessing a castle, the ruins of which are still visible. The town consists principally of one long and wide street; its manufactures are in checks, cottons, and fustians. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 5*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 105*l.* 17*s.* 8*d.*; patron (1829) Sir G. Beaumont, Bart. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a large ancient structure; here were formerly two, but the other has fallen to decay. This town has also two chapels belonging to the Dissenters, and a charity-school. Dr. Samuel Ward, a celebrated divine of the seventeenth century, and master of Sidney College, Cambridge, was born here.

HAVERHOLME, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Sleaford (115) 7 m. E.
Pop. not returned.

An extra-parochial district in the wapentake of Flaxwell, parts of Kesteven. Here is a beautiful residence, called Haverholme Priory; the house and grounds occupy an area of about 300 acres, which constitute an island, formed by two branches of the river Slea.

HAVERING-ATTE-BOWER, co. Essex.

Pop. 6067.

A liberty, situated in the south western part of the county, containing three parishes, including the town of Romford.

HAVERING-ATTE-BOWER, co. Essex.

P. T. Romford (12) 3 m. N. Pop. 352.

A parish in the liberty of the same name; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 83*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. John the Evangelist; patron (1829) John Heaton, Esq. Here are the small remains of an ancient palace, the residence of several monarchs, said to have been built by Edward the Confessor. Havering Par. consists of nearly 1000 acres, and is now let on lease from the crown.

HAVERINGLAND, or HAVERLAND, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Reepham (111) 3 m. SE b E. Pop. 174.

A parish in the hundred of Eynesford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.*; church dedicated to St. Peter; held by sequestration.

HAVERSHAM, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Newport Pagnell (50) 3½ m. W b S.
Pop. 259.

A parish in the second division of the hundred of Newport; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, (1829) Mr. Kitelee.

HAVERTHWAITE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Ulverston (273) 6 m. NE b N.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Coulton and hundred of Lonsdale, north of the sands.

HAVYAT GREEN, co. Somerset.

P. T. Axbridge (130) 6 m. NE. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet, partly in the parish of Burrington, and partly in that of Wrington and hundred of Brent with Wrington.

HAWARDEN, or HARDEN, co. Flint, N. W.

London 195 m. NW. Pop. of Pa. 5059. Of To. 961. Fairs, last Mon. in Apr. and June.
M. D. Sat.

A town and parish in the hundred of Mold, situated upon a little rivulet tributary to the Dee. It consists of one good street, and possesses a church, meeting-house, and a reputable inn. It lies on the mail-coach road from London to Holyhead, through Chester, and a rail-road connects the town with the banks of the river Dee. Of the fourteen townships, into which this extensive parish is divided, Sealand, an area of 4000 acres, was recovered from the sea, and enclosed in 1732. Saltney township, 2000 acres, was enclosed in 1778; and the Warren Mountain, about 600 acres, in 1798. The river Dee commands an enclosed space of 800 acres, on the north side of the river, which formed part of this parish, and for which they pay 200*l.* per annum into the hands of the lord of the manor and other trustees, for the use of the inhabitants. Any five of the trustees, with the lord, form a quorum, authorized to expend the same. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph; valued in K. B. 66*l.* 6*s.* 5½*d.* but supposed to be worth 3000*l.* per annum. The rector claims an exempted jurisdiction, having the power to grant marriage licences, register wills, give probates, and perform all the acts of a suffragan, ordination and confirmation excepted. Area of parish 13,000 acres; church, a plain structure, dedicated to St. Deiniol; patron, Sir Stephen R. Glynne, Bart. The entire parish abounds in mineral productions. Coal is raised in almost every township, and a profitable trade established in supplying Chester and its vicinity. Extensive beds of fire-clay exist in the townships of Pentre-Hobin, and Euloe, where bricks, hearers, flooring, malt, tiles, and coarse earthenware are manufactured. Glauber salts, sal ammoniac, ivory-black, &c., are made in Saltney; and the iron-foundries in the town are extensive, and possess a high character throughout North Wales. The free grammar-school, for the children of the parish, was founded and endowed in the year 1606. Petty-sessions are held monthly in this town. The ancient castle of Hawarden, little of which now remain, was probably erected, immediately subsequent to the Conquest. It appears to have submitted to many masters; it was at one time in the Crown; at another in the Montalt family, then possessed by the Stanleys, Earls of Derby; and lastly by the ancestors of the present lord of the manor, Sir S. R. Glynne, Bart. In 1643 it was seized by the Parliamentarians, who were driven out again by Colonel Marrow in the same year. On the 17th of March, 1645, it was surrendered to General Mytton, by Sir W. Neal, after a close siege of four weeks continuance, when it was ordered by the Parliament to be dismantled. The ruins of the old castle are within the demesne, but the present castle, as it is called, is an elegant and spacious modern building, in the Gothic style, and the constant residence of the lord of the manor. This place is supposed to have been an ancient British port, and Truman Hill, and other mounds in the vicinity rather strengthen the conjecture. The inhabitant of Hawarden have for ages back been nicknamed Harden Jews, and the origin of this appellation is traced to tradition preserve in the parish, and asserted to be a translation of an ancient Saxon MS., in the year 946, when Cynan ap Ellis ap Anarawd, was king of North Wales. There was a Christian temple at this place, and in a rood loft therein, stood an image of the Virgin Mary bearing a huge cross in its hands, and called the Holy Rood. About this time happened a very hot and dry summer, in so much that all the grass was burned up which caused many persons to go and pray to the Holy Rood for rain. Amongst others Lady Trawst, wife of Sytsylt, governor of Harden Castle, prayed much more fervently and at greater length than all the rest; but, whilst in the act of supplication the Holy Rood fell upon her and killed her. This extraordinary event caused great consternation among the Hardeners, who resolved upon bringing the image to trial for the murder of the Lady Trawst, and empannelled for that purpose a jury, who found it guilty of the murder of the lady, as well as of contumacy in not replying to its numerous petitioners, and, as it was old and decayed, recommended that it should be laid quietly upon the sands of the river below the castle. This advice being adopted, the image was borne by the tide to Chester, and being taken up by the inhabitants, was buried upon the spot where it was found, which land is said to be called Rood Die, or Dee, from this singular event, and the river to have exchanged its name of Usk, for its present appellation Dee. The family of Maude derive the title of Viscount from Hawarden parish.

HAWCOAT, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Ulverston (273) 7½ m. SW. Pop. 710.

A township in the parish of Dalton-in-Furness and hundred of Lonsdale north of the sands, commanding a fine ocean view, which embraces the Isle of Man, the Isle of Anglesa, and the Welsh mountains.

HAWERBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (149) 10 m. NNW.
Pop. with Beesby, 55.

A parish in the wapentake of Bradley Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a disrectory with that of Beesby, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 5*l*. 7*s*. 11*d*.; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HAWES, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Keswick (201) 0½ m. N b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Bassenthwaite, Allerdale ward, below Darwent, situated on a rivulet at the foot of Hawes Rake. An annual feast and races are held here in August.

HAWES, N. R. co. York.

London 249. Pop. 1408. M. D. Tues. Fairs, Whit. Tues., for woollen, &c.; and Sept. 28, for woollen, horned cattle, and horses.

A market-town and township in the parish of Aysgarth and wapentake of Hang West, is pleasantly situated on the south bank of the Ure in a mountainous country, and has a manufacture of knit hose. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 13*l*.; ann. val. P. R. 86*l*. 19*s*.; patrons, the Landowners. Here is a chapel of ease and grammar-school, with a small endowment.

HAWICK, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (278) 14 m. N b E. Pop. 22.

A township in the parish of Kirk Harle and north-east division of Tinedale ward.

HAWICK, shire of Roxburgh, S.

Edinburgh 47 m. SSE. Pop. 4387. M. D. Thurs. Fairs 4 annually; Tryst, for cattle in Oct.

A burgh of barony, market and post-town, and parish, the former situated at the conflux of the river Slitridge with the Tiviot, from which it has received frequent damage by inundations, particularly in 1767. It is a pleasant well-built place, with a commodious town-house, erected by the magistrates, who have also, from the public revenue, caused leaden pipes to be laid through every street for supplying the inhabitants with water. By charter of Mary, granted in 1545, it possesses all the privileges of a royal burgh, except that of sending members to Parliament, and is governed by two bailies and two quartermasters from each of its seven incorporated trades, with a town-clerk and council of fifteen persons, elected for life, who annually choose a treasurer and surveyors of weights, measures, and markets. Here are considerable manufactures of Scotch carpets, inkle, cloth, osiery, and leather, besides which great quantities of wool are spun, the breed of sheep being much attended to in the vicinity. The parish extends fifteen miles from east to west, by four and a half in breadth, and though much undulated, the hills are verdant and noted for the excellence of their pasturage. The living is in the presbytery of Jedburgh and synod of Merse and Tiviotdale; patron, the Duke of Buccleugh. The church is an ancient structure erected in 1214, and dedicated to St. Mary. Here is a very extensive plantation, or nursery, for forest trees, and in various parts of the parish are vestiges of old fortifications, mounds, and a conical hill, called the Mote, or Law, whereon it is supposed the barons of ancient times sat in judgment. Gavin Douglas, Bishop of Dunelm, the translator of Virgil's Æneid, was instituted rector of this parish in 1469.

AWKCHURCH, co. Dorset.

P. T. Axminster (147) 5 m. NE. Pop. 856.

A parish in the hundred of Cerne, Totcombe, and Modbury, Dorchester division; living, rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 23*l*. 2*s*. 11*d*. church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron: (1829) Messrs. Newnham.

HAWKEDON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Glare (36) 5 m. NNE. Pop. 320.

A parish in the hundred of Risbridge; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l*. 10*s*.; patron (1829) the Rev. William Gilly.

HAWKESBOROUGH, co. Sussex.

Pop. 4717.

A hundred in the rape of Hastings and east end of the county, containing three parishes

HAWKESBURY, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Wickwar (111) 3½ m. ESE. Pop. of Pa. 1834. Of To. 389.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Grumbald's Ash; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 20*l*. 14*s*. 2*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 140*l*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Liverpool, to whom it gives the title of Baron.

HAWKESDALE, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 6 m. SSW. Pop. 336.

A township in the parish of Dalston and Cumberland Ward; near here stands Ros Castle, the seat of the Bishop of Carlisle.

HAWK-HILL, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alnwick (308) 3 m. E b S. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Lesbury and south division of Bambrough ward.

HAWKHURST, co. Kent.

P. T. Cranbrook (48) 5 m. SSW. Pop. 2250. Fair, Aug. 10, for cattle and pedlery.

A parish in the hundred of East Barrefield, lathe of Scray; it anciently belonged to Battel Abbey, the abbot and monks of which obtained a grant of a weekly market, and a three days' annual fair in the time of Edward I., but the market has long been disused; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 12*l*. 10*s*.; ann. val. P. R. 120*l*.; church ded. to St. Lawrence; patron, Christ Church, Oxford.

HAWKINGE, co. Kent.

P. T. Folkstone (70) 2½ m. N. Pop. 132.

A parish in the hundred of Folkstone, lathe of Shepway; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 7*l*. 7*s*. 10*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 145*l*. 4*s*. 5*d*.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

HAWKLEY, co. Southampton.

P. T. Petersfield (54) 2½ m. N. Pop. 253.

A parish in the hundred of Selbourne Alton, north division; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patronage with Newton Valence vicarage.

HAWKRIDGE, co. Somerset.

P. T. Dulverton (164) 4 m. NNW. Pop. 50.

A parish in the hundred of Williton and Freemanors; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 13*l*. 8*s*. 4*d*.; patroness (1829) Miss Wood.

HAWKSHEAD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

London 267 m. NNW. Pop. of Pa. 2014. Of To. 829. M. D. Mon. Fairs, Monday before Holy Thursday, for pedlery and horned cattle; and St. Matthew, Sep. 21, for pedlery.

A market-town, parish, and township in the hundred of Lonsdale, north of the Sands, pleasantly situated in a vale, near the lake of Eastwaite, which is nearly three miles long, and sheltered from the north by the Fells of Coniston; it is the principal town in the district called Furness, or the Woody Fells; the woods at the growth of about fifteen years are charred here, for the use of the forges and founderies which abound in the neighbourhood. The mountains, which afford delightful prospects, produce plenty of slate and copper-ore, and their craggy sides furnish food to great numbers of sheep, whose wool gives employment to the poorer inhabitants. The slate-quarries are the most considerable in the kingdom. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 42*l*.; ann. val. P. R. 146*l*.; patron, the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

HAWKSWELL, co. Essex.

P. T. Rochford (40) 2 m. NW. Pop. 362.

A parish in the hundred of Rochford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 3*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) M. Bristow, Esq.

HAWKSWICK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Settle (235) 11½ m. NE b E. Pop. 86.

A township in the parish of Arncliffe and west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross.

HAWKSWORTH, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Newark (124) 7½ m. SW b S. Pop. 215.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Bingham; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 8*l*. 13*s*. 9*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary and All Saints; patron (1829) John Storer, M. D.

HAWKSWORTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Otley (205) 3½ m. SW. Pop. 323.

A township in the parish of Otley, and upper division of the wapentake of Skeyrack.

HAWKWELL, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 12 m. NW b W. Pop. 136.

A township in the parish of Stamfordham and north-east division of Tindale ward.

HAWLBOLINE, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Cove (177) m. Pop. with Rocky, 349.

An island in the parish of Great Island and barony of Barrymore, situated in Cork harbour, and serving all the purposes of a breakwater. Regular and extensive fortifications are erected here, and a garrison constantly stationed; here is also a royal dock-yard. Area of island, about thirty-two acres. It was fortified in the reign of Elizabeth, and some remains of the works are visible. The name, Hawlboline, is compounded of the terms, all, a rock, bul, a sand-bank, and lin, the sea. It is applied frequently to islands analogously situated to this in Cork harbour.

HAWLEY, co. Southampton.

P. T. Hartford Bridge (35) 3 m. E b N.
Pop. 661.

A tithing in the parish of Gateley and hundred of Crondall, Basingstoke division.

HAWLING, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Winchcomb (90) 5 m. SSE. Pop. 227.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Kiftsgate; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 3*s.* 8½*d.*; church ded. to St. Edward.

HAWNBY, N. R. co. York.

• P. T. Helmesley (222) 7 m. NW.
• Pop. of Pa. 620. Of To. 280.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Birdforth; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 18*s.* 6½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 147*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Lord G. Cavendish.

HAWNES, or HAYNES, co. Bedford.

P. T. Ampthill (45) 4 m. NE. Pop. 775.

A parish in the hundred of Flitt; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir J. Osborne, Bart.

HAW PASSAGE, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Tewkesbury (103) 4 m. SW b S.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Tirley and lower division of the hundred of Deerhurst.

HAWRIDGE, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Chesham (27) 3 m. N b W. Pop. 208.

A parish in the hundred of Cottesloe; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 10*s.* 5*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 126*l.* 8*s.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) — Sandby, Esq.

HAWSKER, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Whitby (236) 3½ m. SE b S.
Pop. with Stains-acre, 634.

A township in the parish of Whitby and liberty of Whitby Strand.

HAWSTED, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmunds (71) 3½ m. SW.
Pop. with Hardwick, 404.

A parish in the hundred of Thingoe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 16*s.* 10½*d.*; patroness (1829) Mrs Gosling. The church, ded. to All Saints, is an ancient structure, containing some curious monuments.

HAWTHORN, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (258) 9½ m. E b N. Pop. 140.

A township in the parish of Easington and south division of Easington ward, situated on the German Ocean, and terminated by a rocky shore, presenting in stormy weather a most sublime appearance, but it is extremely dangerous to mariners. On the north side of Hawthorn Creek is an eminence called Beacon Hill, where fires used to be lighted to warn them from the coast. In some seasons as many as fifty vessels have been wrecked here and nearly all their crews lost.

HAWTHORPE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Corby (105) 4½ m. NE b E. Pop. 58.

A hamlet in the parish of Irnham and wapentake of Beltisloe, parts of Lindsey.

HAWTON, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Newark (124) 2 m. S b W. Pop. 210.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Newark, which suffered very much in the civil wars; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 17*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) R. Newdigate, Esq.

HAXBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (190) 4½ m. N. Pop. 417.

A parish within the liberty of St. Peter of York.

HAXEY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Gainsborough (140) 8 m. NNW.
Pop. 1889.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 17*s.* 8½*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Archbishop of York. Here was formerly a castle belonging to the Mowbrays, lords of the manor, and a Carthusian monastery, in the church of which John Mowbray, second Duke of Norfolk, was buried in the reign of Henry VI.

HAY, co. Brecon, S. W.

London 156 m. W b N. Pop. of Pa. 830.
Of To. 1319. Fairs, Mond. before Easter;
May 17; second Monday in June; Aug. 12;
and Oct. 10; M. D. Thursd.

A town and parish in the hundred of Talgarth. It lies in the north-eastern angle of the county, on the southern bank of the river Wye, and near its junction with the river Dulais, the boundary of Hereford and Brecon in this parish. The town consists of a High Street and a cross avenue, and possesses some good houses, a church, romantically situated, at the north-west side of the town, a meeting-house of dissenters, and a good inn. Hay is a borough by prescription, but enjoys no privileges. The tolls are collected by a bailiff appointed by the lord of the manor, who holds here a court-leet annually, and is entitled to hold a court-baron. The living is a discharged vicarage in the diocese of St. David's and province of Canterbury; valued in P. R. at 112*l.* per annum. The parish church of St. John has long since fallen into ruin, and

St. Mary is now used ; it contains some monuments of the Gwyns of Hay Castle, an ancient and benevolent family. In this church is preserved an old silver chalice, having these words engraven upon it : "Our Ladie Paris of the Haia." The trade of this place is but trifling, although it is decidedly well situated for an inland market. The Monday market has long been discontinued, but as the surrounding country is agriculturally rich, the fair, afford opportunities of effecting extensive sales of cattle. Flannel is manufactured here in an extensive way. There is a small endowment of 12*l.* per annum for a schoolmaster, and 2*l.* for books, towards the maintenance of a poor-school. Small annuities of 6*l.*, of 13*s.* 4*d.*, and 10*s.* have been bequeathed to the poor of the parish by benevolent individuals ; and Mrs. Gwyn erected an almshouse for six poor people, and endowed it with the rent of two tenements in the vicinity. The town was anciently encompassed by walls, and had a noble castle, one handsome entrance of which alone remains. Vestiges of a Roman fortification appear near the town, and a castle, anterior to that the ruins of which still survive, is supposed to have been raised by Sir Philip Walwyn, upon whom the manor was conferred by Bernard de Newmarch. It next belonged to Maud de St. Valeri, who built the walls and enlarged the old castle. The Duke of Buckingham was subsequently the lord of the manor, but the family of the present proprietor (Mr. Wellington) appear to have succeeded by purchase to the Gwyns. During the proprietorship of the last of the Gwyns, the different apartments of the castle were let to lodgers, and the once famous George Psalmanazer became a tenant for a short period.

HAY, or HAY-FELL, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kendal (202) 3 m. S.E. b. E.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Kirkby-in-Kendal, Kendal ward.

HAY'S-CASTLE, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Haverford West (251) 3 m. NW.
Pop. 291.

A parish in the hundred of Dewisland ; living, a dis. vicarage with the vicarage of Brawdy, in the diocese of St. David's and province of Canterbury ; valued in P. R. at 20*l.* 0*s.* 3*d.* ; area of parish 2560 acres, much of which is enclosed.

HAYDOCK, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Newton-in-Makerfield (193) 3 m. WNW.
Pop. 916.

A township in the parish of Winwick and hundred of West Derby.

HAYDON, co. Dorset.

P. T. Sherborne (117) 3 m. ESE. Pop. 109.

A parish in the hundred of Sherborne, Sherborne division ; living, a dis. vicarage and peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury ; valued in K. B. 5*l.* ; ann. val. P. R. 116*l.* 17*s.* ; church ded. to St. Catherine ; patron (1829) Earl Digby.

HAYDON, or HEYDON, co. Essex.

P. T. Saffron Walden (12) 7½ m. WNW.
Pop. 272.

A parish in the hundred of Uttlesford ; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London ; valued in K. B. 18*l.* ; church ded. to St. Peter ; patronage with that of Little Chishall.

HAYDON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (278) 6 m. W b N. Pop. 358.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Warden and north-west division of Tindale ward, lying on both sides of the South Tyne, and joined by a fine bridge of five arches.

HAYDOR, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (110) 6½ m. ENE. Pop. 522.

A parish in the wapentake of Winnibriggs and Threo, parts of Kesteven ; living, a vicarage with the curacies of Culverthorpe and Kelby, exempt from visitation, in the diocese of Lincoln ; val. in K. B. 121*6s.* 10*d.* ; church ded. to St. Michael ; patron, the Prebend thereof in Lincoln Cathedral.

HAYES, co. Kent.

P. T. Bromley (10) 2 m. S. Pop. 429.

A parish in the hundred of Ruxley, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone ; living, a dis. rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury ; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 18*s.* In the church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, are the banners that were borne at the public funeral of the great Earl of Chatham, and some curious monuments ; patron, the Rector of Orpington.

HAYES, co. Middlesex.

P. T. Uxbridge (15) 3½ m. SE. Pop. 1530.

A parish in the hundred of Elthorne ; living, a vicarage with the curacy of Norwood, a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury ; valued in K. B. 20*l.* ; ann. val. P. R. 135*l.* The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, is a handsome edifice, containing several curious and ancient monuments ; patron (1829) T. J. Graham, Esq.

HAYFIELD, co. Derby.

P. T. Chapel-in-le-Frith (167) 4½ m. N b W
Pop. with Pa.

A chapelry in the parish of Glossop and hundred of High Peak ; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Glossop, in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry ; certified value 6*l.* ; ann. val. P. R. 106*l.* ; patrons, the Trustees.

HAYLES, or TRAY, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Winchcombe (99) 2 m. NE. Pop. 136.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Kiftsgate ; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Didbrook, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester ; certified value 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* ; patronage with Didbrook vicarage. Here was formerly an abbey for Cistercian Monks, founded by Richard, king of the Romans and Earl of Cornwall.

HAYLING, NORTH, co. Southampton.

P. T. Havant (66) 2 m. S b E. Pop. 293.

A parish in the hundred of Bosmere and Hayling, Portsdown division; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; patron (1829) the Earl of Albemarle.

HAYLING, SOUTH, co. Southampton.

P. T. Havant (66) 4 m. S. Pop. 413.

A parish in the hundred of Bosmere and Hayling, Portsdown division; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Albemarle.

HAYNE, co. Kent.

Pop. 745.

A small hundred in the lathe of Shepway, situated on the south-east side of the county, containing two parishes.

HAYRIDGE, co. Devon.

Pop. 12,315.

A hundred on the east side of the county, to the north of Exeter, containing seventeen parishes.

HAYSTHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Bridlington (206) 4 m. SW b W.
Pop. 109.

A township in the parish of Burton Agnes and wapentake of Dickering.

HAYTON, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Cockermouth (306) 7½ m. N b W.
Pop. with Melay, 211.

A township in the parish of Aspatria and Allerdale ward below Darwent.

HAYTON, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 8 m. E b N.
Pop. 1102. Of To. 491.

A parish and township in Eskdale ward; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle; certified value 9*l.* 5*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 105*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle.

HAYTON, co. Devon.

Pop. 21,032.

A hundred on the south-east side of the county, between the rivers Teign and Dart, bounded on the east by Torbay, and containing twenty-two parishes.

HAYTON, co. Nottingham.

P. T. East Retford (145) 3 m. NE b N.
Pop. 244.

A parish in the liberty of Southwell and Scrooby; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 112*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Archbishop of York.

HAYTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Pocklington (212) 3 m. SE b S.
Pop. of Pa. 416. Of To. 177.

A parish and township in Holme Beacon division and wapentake of Harthill; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar of the dean and chapter of York; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 11*s.* 0½*d.*; church ded. to St. Martin; patron, the Dean of York.

HAYWOOD, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 2 m. SSW. Pop. 75.

An extra-parochial liberty, partly in the hundred of Webtree, and partly in the upper division of that of Wormelow.

HAYWOOD FOREST, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 2½ m. SSW. Pop. 63.

An extra-parochial liberty, partly in the hundred of Webtree, and partly in the upper division of that of Wormelow.

HAYZON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alnwick (308) 6 m. S b E. Pop. 99.

A township in the parish of Shilbottle, and east division of Coquetdale ward.

HAZEL-HATCH, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Dublin 10 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish and barony of New-castle, and the first stage on the canal which extends from Dublin to Shannon harbour.

HAZELEY-HEATH, co. Southampton.

P. T. Hartford Bridge (35) 2 m. W.
Pop. with Mattingley.

A tithing, partly in the parish of Hartley Wintney, and partly in that of Heckfield, and hundred of Holdshott, Basingstoke division.

HAZELEIGH, or HASELEY, co. Essex.

P. T. Maldon (37) 3½ m. SSW. Pop. 128.

A parish in the hundred of Dengey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) Mrs. Irwin.

HAZELTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. North Leach (81) 4 m. NW b N.
Pop. 265.

A parish in the hundred of Bradley; living, a rectory with the curacy of Yarworth, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 19*l.* 5*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HAZELWOOD, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (216) 7 m. ENE. Pop. 209.

A township in the parish of Skipton and upper division of the wapentake of Claro.

HAZELWOOD, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Tadcaster (190) 4 m. SW b S.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Tadcaster and upper division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash. Here is Hazelwood Hall, very celebrated for the beauty and extent of its prospects.

HAZLEBADGE, co. Derby.

P. T. Stoney Middleton (101) 3½ m. N b E.
Pop. 51.

A liberty in the parish of Hoze and hundred of High Peak.

HAZLERIDGE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Belford (322) 4 m. W. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Chatton and east division of Glendale ward.

HAZLEWOOD, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 5 m. N. Pop. 483.

A township in the parish of Duffield and hundred of Appletree.

HEACHAM, or HITCHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Castle Rising (100) 9 m. N b E. Pop. 710.

A parish in the hundred of Smithdon; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary patron (1829) H. Spelman, Esq.HEADBOURNE, WORTHY, co. Southampton.

P. T. Winchester (62) 2 m. N b E. Pop. 176.

A parish in the hundred of Barton Stacey, Andover division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to St. Martin; patrons, the Trustees of Dr. Radcliffe, for a member of University College.HEADCORN, co. Kent.

P. T. Charing (17) 9 m. WSW. Pop. 1191.

A parish in the hundred of Eyhorne, lathe of Aylesford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.HEADFORT, co. Galway, Connaught, I.Dublin 137 m. W b N. Pop. 1228.
Fairs, May 11, and Oct. 11.

A busy, thriving town, in the parishes of Killursa and Kilkilvery, in the barony of Clare, situated near to the east bank of Lough Corrib. This place is the chief pass from Tuam, Mayo, &c. into Connemara; and has a linen and woollen manufacture, encouraged and protected by R. M. St. George, Esq., the principal proprietor here. Here are a handsome church and a parsonage-house, a Roman Catholic chapel and a poor-school. Mr. St. George's demesne occupies an area of about 2000 acres, all enclosed, and commands views of the most magnificent description. Ross Castle, Lough Mash, and the Connemara mountains, are seen from different parts of the grounds.

HEADFORT, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Kells (40) m. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish and barony of Kells, situated upon the river Blackwater. Here is the magnificent mansion of the family of Taylor, who derive the title of Marquis from this place.

HEADGE, co. Derby.

P. T. Alfreton (139) 5 m. SW. Pop. 1742.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Duffield and hundred of Appletree; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Duffield in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; certified value 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; patronage with Duffield vicarage.HEADINGLEY, W. R. co. York.P. T. Leeds (180) 2½ m. NW.
Pop. with Barley, 2154.

A township in the parish of St. Peter, Leeds, and liberty of Leeds, advantageously situated near the river Aire, on which are numerous mills for fulling, scowering, &c. Here is a seat called New Grange, the site of which formerly belonged to Kirkstall Abbey.

HEADINGTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Oxford (51) 3 m. ENE. Pop. 1087.

A parish in the hundred of Bullington; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 121*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew, the body of which is a very ancient structure, but the tower was rebuilt in 1679; in the churchyard is the lofty shaft of a cross; patron (1829) T. M. Worwood, Esq. It is supposed to have contained a royal palace in the time of Etheldred.HEADLAM, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Barnard Castle (240) 9 m. E b S. Pop. 232.

A township in the parish of Gainford and south-west division of Darlington ward.

HEADLEY, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (258) 6 m. N b E. Pop. 40.

A township in the parish of Chester-le-Street and middle division of Chester ward.

HEADLEY, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 11 m. S. Pop. 108.

A township in the parish of Ovingham and east division of Tindale ward.

HEADLEY, co. Southampton.

P. T. Farnham (38) 6½ m. S b W. Pop. 1003.

A parish in the hundred of Bishop's Sutton, Alton north division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 21*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, Queen's College, Oxford.HEADLEY, co. Surry.

P. T. Leatherhead (18) 3 m. ESE. Pop. 191.

A parish in the hundred of Copthorne and Effingham; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Surry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*; patron (1829) the Hon. G. Howard.HEADLEY WOODSIDE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 11 m. S. Pop. 55.

A township in the parish of Ovingham and east division of Tindale ward.

HEADON, co. Nottingham.P. T. East Retford (145) 4 m. SE.
Pop. with Upton, 241.A parish in South Clay division and wapenake of Bassettlaw; livings, a rectory and dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B., the former, 15*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; the latter, 1*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 138*l.* The rectory is a sinecure; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) A. H. Eyre, Esq.

HEADWORTH, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Gateshead (272) 5 m. E b S.
Pop. with Monkton and Jarrow.

A township in the parish of Jarrow and east division of Chester ward, situated on a brook of the same name, over which there is a bridge of two arches.

HEALAUGH, or HELAGH, co. York.

P. T. Tadcaster (190) 3 m. N b E. Pop. 191.

A parish in the lower division of the Ainstey of the city of York; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 6*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 80*l.* to 100*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Evangelist; patron (1829) — Brookshank, Esq. Here was formerly a priory of Black Canons, the site of which is now occupied by Healaugh Hall.

HEALEY, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (278) 8 m. ESE. Pop. 49.

A township in the parish of Bywell St. Peter and east division of Tindale ward.

HEALEY, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 7 m. W b N.
Pop. with Combe Hill, 43.

A township in the parish of Hartburn and west division of Morpeth ward.

HEALEY, or HELAGH, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Bedale (223) 8 m. SW. ♦
Pop. with Sutton, 413.

A township in the parish of Masham and wapentake of Hang East.

HEALING, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Great Grimsby (165) 4 m. W NW.
Pop. 94.

A parish in the wapentake of Bradley Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 131*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron (1829) the Rev. R. Parkinson.

HEANOR, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (120) 9 m. NE. Pop. of Pa. 4981.
Of To. 2364.

A parish and township in the hundred of Morleston and Litchurch; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 95*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HEANTON PUNCHARDON, co. Devon.

P. T. Barnstaple (192) 4½ m. WNW.
Pop. 485.

A parish in the hundred of Branton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 22*l.* 7*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to St. Austin; patron (1829) F. Basset, Esq.

HEAP, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Bury (195) 3 m. SE. Pop. 6352.

A township in the parish of Bury and hundred of Salford.

HEAPEY, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Chorley (208) 3 m. NNE. Pop. 530.

A township and chapelry in the parish and hundred of Leyland; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 7*l.* 9*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 115*l.*; patron, the Vicar of Leyland.

HEAPHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Gainsborough (140) 5 m. ESE. Pop. 112.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Corringham, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Charles Chaplin, Esq.

HEATH, co. Bedford.

P. T. Leighton Buzzard (41) 2½ m. N b E.
Pop. with Pa. 9.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Leighton Buzzard and hundred of Maushead; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Leighton Buzzard, in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln, of the certified value of 11*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Leonard; patronage with Leighton Buzzard vicarage.

HEATH, co. Derby.

T. P. Chesterfield (150) 5 m. SE b E.
Pop. 411.

A parish in the hundred of Scarsdale; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 132*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Duke of Devonshire.

HEATH, co. Hereford.

P. T. Ludlow (142) 9 m. W b S.
Pop. with Jay, 42.

A township in the parish of Leintwardine and hundred of Wigmore.

HEATH, co. Salop.

P. T. Ludlow (142) 9 m. NE b N. Pop. 41.

A township in the parish of Stoke St. Milburgh and hundred of Munslow.

HEATH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Wakefield (182) 2 m. E b S. Pop. 741.

A township in the parish of Warmfield and lower division of the wapentake of Agbrigg, situated on a hill south of the Calder, and one of the most beautiful in the county; it consists of houses built with stone, round a green, some of which have delightful gardens, sloping to the water. Its pleasant situation has induced many elegant seats to be erected in its vicinity. Heath Hall was lately occupied by Benedictine nuns.

HEATHER, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market Bosworth (106) 5½ m. N b W.
Pop. 411.

A parish in the hundred of Sparkenhoe; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 17*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. John; patron (1829) J. Shirley, Esq.

HEATHEROP See Hatherop.HEATHERSGILL, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Longtown (309) 6½ m. E b S. Pop. 776.

A township in the parish of Kirk-Linton, Eskdale ward.

HEATHERSLAW, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 8 m. NNW. Pop. 319.

A township in the parish of Ford and west division of Glendale ward.

HEATHFIELD, co. Somerset.

P. T. Taunton (141) 5 m. WNW. Pop. 131.

A parish in the hundred of Taunton and Taunton Dean; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; val. in K. B. 9*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* patron (1829) — Cornish, Esq. This place gives a title to the Elliot family.

HEATHFIELD, co. Sussex.

P. T. Hailsham (59) 8 m. N b E. Pop. 1613.

A parish in the hundred of Hawkesborough rape of Hastings; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Prebend of Heathfield in Chichester cathedral.

HEATHPOOL, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 5½ m. W. Pop. 42.

A township in the parish of Kirk Newton and west division of Glendale ward.

HEATHWAITE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Hawkshead (267) 6 m. SW b W. Pop. with Woodland Township.

A township in the parish of Kirkby Ireleth and hundred of Lonsdale north of the Sands.

HEATHY LEE, co. Stafford.

P. T. Leek (154) 3 m. E. Pop. 788.

A township in the parish of Ailstonefield and north division of the hundred of Totmonslow.

HEATON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Lancaster (240) 3 m. WSW. Pop. 176.

A township in the parish of Lancaster and hundred of Lonsdale south of the sands.

HEATON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Great Bolton (197) 4 m. W b N. Pop. 826.

A township in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford.

HEATON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 2 m. NE. Pop. 470.

A township in the parish of All Saints and east division of Castle ward, said to have been the retreat of King John, when he visited the north. Heaton Hall is a handsome seat, commanding some fine views of the river Tyne and the surrounding country.

HEATON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Leek (154) 6 m. NW b N. Pop. 391.

A township in the parish of Leek and north division of the hundred of Totmonslow.

HEATON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Bradford (196) 3 m. NW b N. Pop. 1217.

A township in the parish of Bradford and wapentake of Morley.

HEATON, GREAT, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 4 m. N b W. Pop. 224.

A township in the parish of Oldham cum Prestwich and hundred of Salford. Heaton Hall, the seat of the Earl of Wilton, is a handsome structure, built from a design by the late Samuel Wyatt, and situated on an elevated spot in the centre of a rich and well-wooded park.

HEATON KIRK, W. R. co. York.

• P. T. Huddersfield (188) 2 m. E b N. Pop. of Pa. 7968. Of To. 2186.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Agbrigg; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 25*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.*; patron (1829) the Duke of Northumberland. The church, ded. to St. John the Baptist, is an ancient structure. This parish was anciently a dependance of Dewsbury, to which it still pays 1*l.* per annum.

HEATON, LITTLE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 5 m. N. Pop. 630.

A township in the parish of Oldham cum Prestwich and hundred of Salford.

HEATON NORRIS, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Stockport (176) 2 m. NW b N. Pop. 6938.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Manchester and hundred of Salford, separated by the river Mersey from Stockport in Cheshire, to which it forms a suburb; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, not in charge; ann. val. £. R. 108*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Thomas; patron, Manchester College Church.

HEAVITREE, or WONFORD, co. Devon.

P. T. Exeter (164) 1 m. E. Pop. 1233.

A parish in the hundred of Wonford; living, vicarage with the curacies of St. David and Sidwell, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 34*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Dean and Chapter of Exeter.

HEBBURN, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (238) 3 m. N b W. Pop. of Pa. 564. Of To. 93.

A parochial chapelry in the west division of Morpeth ward; living, a rectory subordinate to the rectory of Bothall, in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham, not in charge; patron, the Rector of Bothall. Henry Ogle, Esq. left, in 1761, 140*l.* to the minister and churchwardens, in trust, the interest of which is distributed among the poor of the place. To the north-west of the village stands a lofty hill, called Hebburn Shaw, formerly used as an alarm beacon.

HEBBURN, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 6 m. ESE. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Chillingham and east division of Glendale ward, where considerable quantities of limestone are quarried and burnt.

HEBDEN, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (210) 10 m. N b E. Pop. 377.

A township in the parish of Linton and east division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross.

HEBRIDES, or WESTERN ISLES, S.

Northern extremity, 58. 35 N. Southern extremity, 55. 22 N. Pop. about 70,000.

A cluster of islands, called by the ancients Ebudæ, lying along the western coast of Scotland, and among which was formerly included the Isle of Man. They number about 360, but only from eighty to ninety of them are inhabited, and they extend from the Isle of Sanda, off the Mull of Cantyre, to what is termed the Butt of Lewis. The latter island, with others of lesser note, form part of the shire of Ross, as do Barray, Eigg, Harris, North and South Uist, Skye, and their neighbouring isles part of that of Inverness. Canna, Muck, Rum, Gigha, Cara, Collonsay, Oronsay, Tiry, Coll, Jura, and several smaller islands form part of Argyll; while those lying on the Firth of Clyde, viz. Bute, Arran, Great and Little Cumbray, and Inch Moonock, constitute the shire of Bute. This extensive group, being exposed to the violent storms of the Atlantic, the climate is cold and moist, and, consequently, the soil proportionally unfit for cultivation; a few of the islands, however, are well manured with sea-weed thrown up by the surf, and yield tolerable crops of barley and oats, while others afford pasturage for vast herds of cattle and sheep. The mountainous parts contain lead mines, quarries of marble, freestone, and limestone, with iron, talc, crystals and valuable pebbles of almost equal brilliancy to the South-American topaz. Scarcely a tree or shrub is to be met with excepting the wild myrtle, but these, with a great variety of useful plants, spring up and flourish spontaneously. The bays, harbours, and creeks, abound with prodigious quantities of fish of different kinds, and literally swarm with herrings, which with black cattle, sheep, wool, knit hosiery, tartans and coarse cloth, may be considered the staple commodities of the inhabitants, who use the same language, observe similar customs, and appear in the like costume as the rest of the Highlanders. The first authentic record we have of this archipelago is, that in the year 900, Harold Harfager, King of Denmark and Norway, after many previous descents, got firm possession of most of these islands and placed over them a viceroy, one of whose successors declared himself independent of his sovereign, assumed the style of King of the Isles, and fixed his seat of government in the Isle of Man, where himself and his descendants were at certain times independent and at others tributary monarchs, till the commencement of the twelfth century. About this period, Somerled, a powerful chieftain of Cantyre, formed a matrimonial alliance with the King of the Isles, and subsequently wrested this part of his dominions from that of Man, made himself master of the greater portion of Argyll, declared himself an independent prince, and formed a plan for the entire conquest of Scotland, in which latter attempt, however, he fell in a great battle fought near Renfrew, in 1164, with Malcolm IV. So late as 1335, we find a descendant of Somerled possessed of the sovereignty of the Isles, in the person of Donald, who, having acquired by marriage the earldom of Ross, became the most powerful subject of the Kings of Scotland; but, losing the sovereigns favour, the family were reduced from their former exalted rank to the degree of Baron, a title which has descended from his ancestors to the present Lord Macdonald.

HECK, GREAT and LITTLE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Snaith (173) 1 m. W b S. Pop. 228.

Two townships in the parish of Snaith and lower division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross.

HECKFIELD, co. Southampton.

P. T. Hartford Bridge (35) 4 m. NW b W. Pop. of Pa. 1140. Of To. 636. Fair, Good Friday, for pedlery.

A parish and tithing in the hundred of Holdshott, Basingstoke division; living, a vicarage with the curacy of Mattingley, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 16l. 12s. 11d.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, New College, Oxford.

HECKINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Beccles (109) 6 m. NNW. Pop. 146.

A parish in the hundred of Clavering; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; certified value 6l. 13s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 25l.; chapel ded. to St. Gregory; patron (1829) Thomas Smyth, Esq.

HECKINGTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Sleaford (115) 5½ m. SE b E. Pop. 1438.

A parish in the wapentake of Aswardhurn, parts of Kesteven; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12l. 16s. 3d.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) the Rev. H. B. Benson. The surrounding lands, now in a state of high cultivation, were formerly nothing but fens.

HECKMOND-WIKE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Wakefield (182) 6 m. WNW. Pop. 2579.

A township in the parish of Birstall and wapentake of Morley, situated in a valley commanding several fine views, although the surrounding country generally wears but a dreary aspect; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Birstall, in the archdeaconry of the North Riding and diocese of York, not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Birstall.

HEDDINGTON, co. Wilts.

P. T. Calne (87) 3 m. S. Pop. 206.
200

A parish in the hundred of Calne, which was unquestionably a Roman station, from the many antiquities discovered here; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. St. 14a. 45d.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) the Rev. J. Rogers.

HEDDON, BLACK, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 14 m. NW

A township in the parish of Stamfordham and north-east division of Tindale ward.

HEDDON, EAST, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 8 m. NW b W. Pop. 41.

A township in the parish of Heddon-on-the-Wall, partly in the west division of Castle ward, and partly in the east division of Tindale ward. Here are the ruins of some remarkable tumuli, which have the appearance of an old quarry.

HEDDON-ON-THE-WALL, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 7 m. WNW. Pop. of Pa. 770. Of To. 302.

A parish and township, partly in the west division of Castle ward, and partly in the east division of Tindale ward, situated upon the summit of a lofty eminence, and the site of the great Roman wall; whence its additional appellation. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 35*l.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church, dedicated to St. Philip and St. James, is an ancient structure, built upon a high rock; the chancel is a fine specimen of Norman architecture, but the other parts are of a less remote period. In 1752 a considerable number of gold and silver coins and medals were discovered here by some workmen, some of which were as bright as when first struck.

HEDDON, WEST, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 8½ m. WNW. Pop. 38.

A township in the parish of Heddon-on-the-Wall, and partly in the west division of Castle ward, and partly in the east division of Tindale ward.

HEDENHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Bungay (106) 3 m. NNW. Pop. 293.

A parish in the hundred of Loddon; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary.

HEDGELEY, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alnwick (308) 8 m. NW b W. Pop. 36.

A township in the parish of Eglingham and north division of Coquetdale ward, situated on the banks of the river Breamish. On Hedgeley Moor fell the brave Sir Ralph Percy, in 1463, when fighting for Henry VI., with the forces of Edward IV.; but his companions, the Lords Hungerford and Ross, had fled at the first onset. A monument to his memory, called Percy's Cross, has been erected there.

HEDGERLEY, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Beaconsfield (23) 4 m. SE b E. Pop. 159.

A parish in the hundred of Stoke; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Benjamin Way, Esq. In this neighbourhood is Bulstrode, the seat of the Duke of Portland.

HEDGERLEY DEAN, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Beaconsfield (23) 3 m. SSE. Pop. 109.

▲ hamlet in the parish of Royal Farnham and hundred of Burnham.

HEDINGHAM, SIBIL, co. Essex.

P. T. Castle Hedingham (48) 1 m. SW. Pop. 2060.

A parish in the hundred of Hinckford, supposed to have been connected with that of Castle Hedingham till after the Conquest, as they do not appear to have been distinct parishes till about the time of Henry III. Its situation is very pleasant, the lands being varied by gentle eminences, and watered by numerous small streams. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 22*l.* The church, which is dedicated to St. Peter, is a neat and rather spacious structure, supposed to have been erected about the time of Edward III.

HEDLEY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Tadcaster (109) 3 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Bramham and upper division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash.

HEDLEY HOPE, co. Pal of Durham.

P. T. Durham (258) 8 m. W. Pop. 51.

A township in the parish of Brancepeth and north-west division of Darlington ward.

HEDNESFORD, co. Stafford.

P. T. Rudgeley (126) 4½ m. SW b S. Pop. with Leacroft, 442.

A township in the parish of Cannock and east division of the hundred of Cuttlestone.

HEDON, or HEYDON, E. R. co. York.

London 182 m. N b E. Pop. 902. M. D. Sat. Fairs, every fortnight from Shrove Monday to Midsummer; Feb. 14, Aug. 2, Sept. 22, Nov. 17, and Dec. 6, for pewter, tin, leather wares, and millinery goods. Memb. of Pt. 2.

A borough, market-town, parish, and township in the middle division of the wapentake of Holderness, consisting chiefly of one long street; formerly, it was a port connected with the Humber by a navigable creek, but the old haven having been shoaled up, a new cut has been made on the south-east. It was almost entirely burnt down in 1656, a distressing calamity at the time, but which has rendered the present town more commodious. The living is a dis. curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 18*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 117*l.*; patronage with Preston vicarage. Besides the present church, which is dedicated to St. Austin, here are the ruins of two others. The corporation consists of a mayor, nine aldermen, a recorder, and two bailiffs. It returns two members to Parliament, chosen by the burgesses.

HEDSOR, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Great Marlow (31) 4½ m. E b S.
Pop. with Lillifec, 188.

A parish in the first division of the hundred of Desborough; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 4*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 59*l.* 8*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) Lord Boston alternately.

HEENE, co. Sussex.

P. T. Worthing (56) ½ m. WSW. Pop. 178.

A parish in the hundred of Brightford, rape of Bramber.

HEIGHAM, POTTER, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Acle (121) 6 m. N b E. Pop. 340.

A parish in the hundred of Happing; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 113*l.* 19*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Bishop of Norwich.

HEIGHTINGTON, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Darlington (241) 6½ m. NNW.
Pop. of Pa. 1383. Of To. 557

A parish and township in the south-east division of Darlington ward; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 14*s.* 9½*d.* The church, which is dedicated to St. Michael, is an ancient Gothic structure, and has been recently repaired and beautified; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Durham. Here is a free grammar-school.

HEIGHTINGTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 5 m. ESE. Pop. 396.

A township in the parish of Washingborough and wapentake of Langoe, parts of Kesteven.

HEIGHLEY, HIGH AND LOW, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 2½ m. NNW.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Mitford and west division of Morpeth ward.

HEIGHTINGTON, co. Worcester.

P. T. Bewdley (129) 3½ m. SW.
Pop. with Rock.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Rock and lower division of the hundred of Doddingtree; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Rock, in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford, not in charge; patronage with Rock rectory.

HEISKER, shire of Inverness, S.

An island of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of North Uist, from which it is distant six miles west. It is two miles in length, but very narrow, and is chiefly valuable for its kelp shores.

HEIGHTON, SOUTH, co. Sussex.

P. T. Newhaven (56) 2 m. NNE. Pop. 71.

A parish in the hundred of Flexborough, rape of Pevensey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 8*s.* 6½*d.*; church ded. to St. Martin; patronage with Tarring Neville vicarage.

HELEN'S, ST., co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Prescott (198) 4 m. NE b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Prescott and hundred of West Derby; living; a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 7*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 96*l.*; patrons, the Trustees.

HELEN'S, ST., Scilly Islands.

A small island lying to the westward of St. Martin's, containing about 80 acres. It has a fine basin wherein small vessels find a pleasant shelter. In ancient records it is termed Insula Sancti Ellidii, also Lydes Isle, and its church is the oldest sacred edifice in Scilly.

HELEN'S, ST., co. Southampton.

P. T. Newport (89) 9 m. E. Pop. 804.

A parish in the hundred of East Medina liberty in the Isle of Wight; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 45*l.*; patron, Eton College. The church, which is dedicated to St. Helen, is a small modern edifice; the old one, which had been encroached on by the sea, was taken down, with the exception of the tower, which was suffered to remain as a mark for seamen. This town contains a bay of some consequence as a rendezvous for the royal navy, at the north of which is a cluster of rocks called the Mixen, and in time of war great traffic is carried on with shipping. Here is a beautiful mansion called the Priory, commanding delightful views of the Hampshire and Sussex coasts, and occupying the site of a priory for Cluniac monks founded about the year 1155.

HELEN'S, ST., co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Broadway (103) 2½ m. NE.
Pop. with Kilrane.

A parish in the barony of Forth, situated upon the sea-coast; living, a chapelry in the diocese of Ferns and archdiocese of Dublin.

HELENSBURGH, shire of Dumbarton, S.

P. T. Dumbarton (58) 8 m. W.
Pop. with Pa.

A considerable village in the parish of Row, pleasantly situated on the northern bank of the river Clyde, opposite Greenock, and at the mouth of Loch Gair. Its population has been on the increase for several years past, owing to the great influx of strangers during the bathing-season, for whose accommodation and amusement there are excellent lodging-houses, elegant suites of warm and cold baths, a theatre, &c. Here are also a Missionary chapel and school.

HELLABY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Rotherham (166) 5 m. E b S.
Pop. with Stainton.

A township in the parish of Stainton and upper division of the wapentake of Strafford and Tickhill.

HELLAND, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Bodmin (235) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. N b E. Pop. 261.

A parish in the hundred of Trigg; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.*; church ded. to St. Helena; patron (1829) William Morshead, Esq.

HELLESDEN, or HEYLESDON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Norwich (108) 2 m. NW b W.

Pop. 293.

A parish in the hundred of Faversham; living, a rectory with that of Drayton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 12*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with that of Drayton.

HELLIDON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Daventry (72) 5 m. SW b W Pop. 408.

A parish in the hundred of Fawsley; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; certified value 20*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 118*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patrons (1829) T. and M. Scrafton, Esqrs. Here is a free grammar-school.

HELLIFIELD, or HELGEFELT, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Settle (235) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. SSE. Pop. 270.

A township in the parish of Long Preston and west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross. Here is a curious castellated building of the age of Henry VI., called Hellifield Peel, erected by Lawrence Hamerton.

HELLINGHILL, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Rothbury (303) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 130.

A township in the parish of Rothbury and west division of Coquetdale ward.

HELLINGLEY, co. Sussex.

P. T. Hailsham (50) 3 m. N b W. Pop. 1313.

A parish in the hundred of Dill, rape of Pevensey; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron (1829) the Earl of Chichester.

HELLOUGHTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Fakenham (100) 4 m. SW b W.

Pop. 322.

A parish in the hundred of Gallow; living, a dis. vicarage with the rectory of South Rainham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with South Rainham rectory.

HELL'S SKERRIES, shire of Argyll, S.

A group of islands of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of Small Isles. They lie ten miles west from Rum, and are so called from the dangerous force of the currents running between and around them.

HELMESDALE, shire of Sutherland, S.

Edinburgh 244 m. N. Pop. with Pa.

A small post-town in the parish of Loth, situated on the northern bank of the Helmsdale, which is here crossed by a noble bridge of two arches, each spanning seventy feet; and in which there is a very productive salmon-fishery. This river has its source in Loch Coyn, whence it runs in a rapid stream to a junction with the North Sea, about three miles south from the Ord of Caithness. Here are the remains of a square tower, built by the Countess of Sutherland, some time in the fifteenth century. There is also a chapel, dedicated to St. John the Baptist.

HELMEDON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Brackley (63) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. N. Pop. 486.

A parish in the hundred of King's Sutton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 11*s.* 0*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron, Corpus Christi College, Oxford.

HELMESLEY-UPON-THE-BLACK-MOOR, N. R. co. York.

London 222 m. N b W. Pop. of Pa. 345*h.* Of To. 1520. M. D. Nat. Fairs, May 19; July 10; Oct. 2; and Nov. 6, for horned cattle, horses, sheep, linen, and woollen cloth.

A market-town, parish, and township, in the wapentake of Ryedale, situated on the east side of the Hambleton Hills, near the river Rye. The town is small but well built, the houses being for the most part of white stone. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of linens and cottons. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Lord Feversham. Here are the ruins, consisting of a lofty tower and gateway, surrounded by a double moat, of a castle, supposed to have been founded by Robert de Ross previously to the time of Edward I. It was reduced by Oliver Cromwell to its present ruinous condition.

HELMESLEY-GATE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (196) 6 m. NE b E. Pop. 220.

A parish within the liberty of St. Peter of York; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York; valued in K. B. 2*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Prebendary of Osbaldwick in York cathedral.

HELMESLEY-OVER, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (196) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. NE b E. Pop. 63.

A parish in the wapentake of Bulmer; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 105*l.* 13*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HELMINGHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Woodbridge (77) 8 m. NW b N.

Pop. 325.

A parish in the hundred of Bosmere and Claydon; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 18*l.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor. In the church, dedicated to St. Mary, are some splendid monuments of the Tollemache family. Helmingham Hall, built about the time of Henry VIII., is a quadrangular building, surrounded by a moat having two draw-bridges, by which the mansion is approached. The park attached is well stocked with deer, and remarkable for its fine oaks.

HELMINGSTONE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Needham (74) 5 m. ESE. Pop. 322.

A parish in the hundred of Bosmere and Claydon; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 11*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Gregory; patron (1829) Sir W. F. Middleton, Bart.

HELMINGTON, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Bishop Auckland (218) 2½ m. NNW. Pop. with Hunwick, 160.

A township in the parish of St. Andrew Auckland and north-west division of Darlington ward.

HELPERBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Boroughbridge (200) 4 m. NE b E.; Pop. 611.

A township in the parish of Brafferton and liberty of St. Peter of York.

HELPERTHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 12 m. E. Pop. 157.

A parish in the wapentake of Buckrose; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 19*s.* 7*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of York.

HELPRINGHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Folkingham (100) 5 m. NE b N.

A parish in the wapentake of Aswardhurn, parts of Kesteven; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 99*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patroness (1829) Mrs. Andrews.

HELPSTONE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Market Deeping (80) 4 m. SSW. Pop. 372.

A parish in the liberty of Peterborough; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 0*s.* 5*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 50*l.*; church ded. to St. Botolph; patron, Christ College, Cambridge.

HELSBY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Frodsham (191) 3 m. SW b W. Pop. 378.

A township in the parish of Frodsham and hundred of Eddisbury.

HELSINGTON, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kendal (262) 4 m. SW b W. Pop. 263.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Kirkby in Kendal, Kendal ward; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 138*l.* 2*s.* 9*d.*; patron, the Vicar of Kendal. The curacy has been twice augmented from Queen Anne's bounty, and once by the Countess Dowager Gower, in sums amounting to 600*l.*, which with other sums subscribed purchased an estate. The chapel, dedicated to St. John, is a neat edifice, erected by subscription in 1726. Sizergh Hall is an ancient and perfect Gothic mansion, with two strong towers, having a very formidable appearance; it contains a large apartment called the Queen's Room, from Catharine Parr having lodged there a few nights after Henry the Eighth's death.

HELSTON, co. Cornwall.

London 272 m. WSW. Pop. 2671. M. D. Sat. Fairs, Sat. bef. Mid-Leut Sund.; Sat. bef. Palm-Sund.; Whit-Mond.; July 20; Sept. 0; Oct. 28; and Dec. 30; for cattle. Memb. of Pt. 2.

A borough and market-town, having separate jurisdiction, but locally situated in the west division of the hundred of Kerrier; it is built on the side of a hill sloping towards the river Cober, which, from a singular operation of nature, expands itself into a large lake called the Loo Pool. From the continual rolling of the waves of the British channel upon the shore, an immense bank of sand and pebbles is formed, which, extending itself across the valley, closes the mouth of the channel, and occasions the river to spread its waters over a space of nearly seven miles in circumference. The town, consisting of four streets, is well built and lighted with gas; in the centre, formed by the intersection of the streets, stand the town-hall and market-house. This is one of the ancient stannary towns, although very little tin is now stamped here; and the old coinage-hall is inhabited as a private dwelling. Large quantities of corn are brought to market here, and vessels take in their lading at a harbour a short distance below the town. Helstone has received no less than fourteen charters at different periods, the first of which was granted by King John. It is now governed by a corporation, consisting of a mayor, five aldermen, a recorder, and an indefinite number of freemen. It sends two members to Parliament, which privilege it has enjoyed since the reign of Edward I.; the voters are said to be about thirty-six, who are under the influence of the Duke of Leeds. The market and fairs were granted by Edward III., who at the same time confirmed all former privileges. The living is a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Wendron, in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; patronage with Wendron vicarage. The church, dedicated to St. Michael, is a substantial building, standing on an elevated spot of ground, with a fine pinnacled tower ninety feet high, which is seen to great advantage in many parts of the neighbourhood, forming a conspicuous sea-mark. Here is a chapel belonging to a body of Dissenters, which was erected on the site of an old priory of the knights of St. John of Jerusalem. Helston possesses also a grammar-school, originally endowed with 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, which has lately been considerably augmented. A castle formerly existed in this vicinity, no remains of which are now visible. A singular custom prevails in this town, called Furry Dance; it is an ancient festival, supposed to be from the Roman Floralia, and is held on the 8th of May, which is kept as a close holiday, a procession proceeding through the town accompanied by a musical band during the whole of the day. About four miles hence was a curious rocking-stone, but it was thrown down by the Governor of Pendennis Castle under Oliver Cromwell, on account of the superstitious adoration in which it was held by the ignorant of the neighbourhood. Penrose, the seat of John Rogers, Esq., the lord of the manor, is a fine old mansion, situated about two miles from the town, surrounded by finely wooded grounds and an extensive tract of most beautiful and picturesque scenery, greatly enhanced by the rocks which are seen abruptly rising from the margin of the lake.

HELTON BACON, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Appleby (270) 3½ m. E b N. Pop. 56.

A township in the parish of St. Michael, Appleby, possessing some rich lead mines belonging to the London Lead Company, who have a large smelting-mill here; they are said to produce an average of 141 stone of metal, containing ten ounces of silver in every ton. The country in the neighbourhood is very mountainous and it also contains many moors.

HELTON FLECKET, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Penrith (253) 6 m. S b W. Pop. 162.

A hamlet in the parish of Askham, West ward, situated on a small rivulet flowing eastward to the Lowther.

HELYFIELD, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Stanhope (262) 9 m. N E b E. Pop. 161.

A township in the parish of Lanchester and west division of Chester ward.

HEMESBY, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Caister (126) 4½ m. NNW. Pop. 408.

A parish in the hundred of West Flegg; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) John T. Hales, Esq.

HEMINGBROUGH, or HEMINGBURGH, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Selby (181) 4½ m. E b S.
Pop. of Pa. 1855. Of To. 500.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Ouse and Derwent, and formerly a market-town; living, a dis. vicarage, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of York; certified value 50*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 96*l.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, is a handsome structure, with a lofty spire rising forty-two feet above the battlements of the steeple, and forming a conspicuous object in this level country; it was formerly collegiate, having had a provost and three prebendaries.

HEMINGBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Horncastle (136) 4 m. NNW. Pop. 207.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Gartree, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 17*l.* 8*s.* 6½*d.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron, King's College, Cambridge.

HEMINGFORD ABBOTS, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. St. Ives (59) 2½ m. W. Pop. 400.

A parish in the hundred of Toseland, situated on the south bank of the river Ouse; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; patroness (1829) Lady Olivia Sparrow. The church, which is dedicated to St. Margaret, consists of a nave, chancel, and aisles, with an embattled tower, surmounted by an octagonal spire. The altarpiece, which is a good painting of the miracle of the five loaves and two small fishes, was given by the late Dr. Dickens, who was forty-seven years rector of this parish.

HEMINGFORD GREY, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. St. Ives (59) 2 m. WSW. Pop. 475.

A parish in the hundred of Toseland; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 16*s.* 10*d.*; patron, Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The church, which is dedicated to St. James, stands close upon the south bank of the river Ouse, and consists of a nave, chancel, and aisles, with a substantial tower; the columns and arches appear of Norman origin, but the latter have been altered to the pointed form. It contains some curious old monuments, and early specimens of painted glass.

HEMINGTON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Ashby-de-la-Zouch (115) 10 m. NE.
Pop. 421.

A township in the parish of Lockington and hundred of West Goscote.

HEMINGTON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Oundle (81) 4 m. SE b E. Pop. 131.

A parish in the hundred of Polebroke; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 99*l.* 8*s.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron (1829) Lord Montagu.

HEMINGTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Frome (103) 5 m. NW b N. Pop. 323.

A parish in the hundred of Kilmersdon; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 14*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Hardington rectory.

HEMLEY, or HELMLEY, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Woodbridge (77) 5 m. S b E. Pop. 80.

A parish in the hundred of Colneis; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 41. 19s. 2d.; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HEMLINGFORD, co. Warwick.

Pop. 43,402.

A hundred situated at the northern extremity of the county, containing forty-two parishes, including the towns of Birmingham and Tamworth.

HEMLINGTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Acle (121) 4 m. W b N. Pop. 255.

A parish in the hundred of Walsham; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; certified value 15*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 34*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Norwich.

HEMLINGTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Stokesley (237) 5 m. N b W. Pop. 72.

A township in the parish of Stainton and west division of the liberty of Langbaugh.

HEMLINGTON ROW, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Bishop Auckland (248) 4½ m. N b W. Pop. 154.

A township in the parish of Brancepeth and north-west division of Darlington ward.

HEMPHOLE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Beverley (183) 11 m. NNE. Pop. 93.

A township in the parish of Leven and north division of the wapentake of Holderness.

HEMPNALL, or HEMENHALE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. St. Mary Stratton (100) 3 m. E b N. Pop. 1014. Fairs, Whit-Mond., for horses, cattle, and sheep; Dec. 11, for hogs, and petty chapmen.

A parish in the hundred of Depwade, formerly having a market, which is now disused; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron (1829) John T. Mott, Esq.

HEMPSTEAD, co. Essex.

P. T. Thaxted (44) 5 m. N b E. Pop. 635.

A parish in the hundred of Freshwell; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Great Samford in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London, not in charge; church, dedicated to St. Andrew, contains several monuments to the Harvey family, and also a bust of the celebrated Dr. Harvey, of that family, who discovered the circulation of the blood.

HEMPSTEAD, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Gloucester (104) 2 m. SW b W. Pop. 548.

A parish in the middle division of the hundred of Dudstone and King's Barton, situated on a pleasant eminence; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; patron (1829) Mr. Alderman Jones. The church, which is dedicated to St. Swithin, consists only of a nave and chancel, divided by a low tower, apparently of later construction than the rest of the building, which is supposed to have been erected in the early part of the fourteenth century. The interior is paved with painted bricks, and contains some remains of richly painted glass; the font is rather curious and ancient.

HEMPSTEAD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Holt (110) 2 m. SE. Pop. 280.

A parish in the hundred of Holt; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 2s. 6d.; ann. val. P. R. 84*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Norwich.

HEMPSTEAD, HEMEL, co. Hertford.

London 23 m. NW. Pop. 5193. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, Holy Thursday, for sheep; and third Monday in Sept. statute.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Dacorum, pleasantly situated among hills on the river Gade; the market, which is still a very good one, was formerly reckoned one of the greatest in England for wheat, 20,000*l.* a week having been often returned for meal alone. There are eleven mills within four miles of the place. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 1s. 10½d.; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, in nomination of the Bishop of Lincoln. The church, which is ded. to St. Mary, an ancient Norman structure, has been much altered and enlarged at subsequent periods; it is built in the form of a cross; consists of a nave, chancel, transept, and side-aisles, with an embattled tower, surmounted by a high octagonal spire, rising from the intersection. Here are two endowed freeschools; one for thirteen boys, and the other for fifteen girls. It was incorporated by Henry VIII., and is governed by a bailiff.

HEMPSTON, LITTLE, co. Devon.

P. T. Totness (100) 1½ m. N b E. Pop. 323.

A parish in the hundred of Haytor; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 19*l.* 15s. 2½d.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, the King.

HEMPTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Chipping Sodbury (108) 3 m. Pop. with Patchway, 500.

A tithing in the parish of Almondsbury and lower division of the hundred of Langley and Swineshead.

HEMPTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Fakenham (100) 1 m. S. Pop. 200. Fairs, Whit Tuesday, and Nov. 16, for horses and cattle.

A parish in the hundred of Gallow; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge. The church has now fallen to decay.

HEMPTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Deddington (90) 1½ m. W. Pop. 172.

A township in the parish of Deddington and hundred of Wootton.

HEMSTEAD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. North Walsham (123) 9 m. E b S.
Pop. with Eccles., 212.

A parish in the hundred of Happing, situated on the sea-coast; living, a dis. rectory with those of Eccles and Lessingham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, King's College, Cambridge.

HEMSWELL, or HELMSWELL, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Gainsborough (140) 7½ m. E. Pop. 279.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Alasco, parts of Lindsey; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, of the certified value of 17*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 49*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Corporation of Lincoln.

HEMSWORTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Pontefract (177) 6½ m. SSW. Pop. 930.

A parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Staincross; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 1*s.* 0*d.*; church ded. to St. Helen; patron (1829) W. Wrighton, Esq. Archbishop Holgate was born here, and founded a grammar-school, and also an hospital for ten poor men and the same number of women, who are admitted at the age of sixty. In 1816 a chancery suit restored the master of the school and the pensioners to the profits of the estate of which they had been fraudulently deprived by the trustees, and by this means they rose to a state of affluence, enjoying each not less than 100*l.* per ann. Here are several pleasant residences.

HEMYOCK, co. Devon.

Pop. 5490.

A hundred situated on the north-eastern side of the county, and bordering upon Somersetshire, containing seven parishes.

HEMYOCK, co. Devon.

P. T. Collumpton (100) 9 m. NE b E.
Pop. 1150.

A parish in the hundred of the same name; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 32*l.* 0*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patroness (1829) Mrs. Hutton. Here are the remains of an ancient castle, supposed to have been erected on Roman foundations. During the civil wars this fortress was garrisoned against Charles I., and was demolished shortly after the Restoration.

HENBURY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Macclesfield (167) 2 m. WSW.
Pop. with Pexhall, 420.

A township in the parish of Presbury and hundred of Macclesfield.

HENBURY, co. Gloucester.

Pop. 3170.

A hundred forming the south-western point of the county, near the mouth of the Severn, containing five parishes.

HENBURY, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Bristol (114) 5 m. NNW. Pop. 2283.

A parish partly in the upper division of the hundred of Henbury, and partly in that of Berkeley, situated in a very pleasant and healthy spot; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Gloucester and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 30*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons (1829) Lord Middleton, Sir J. Smith, Bart., E. Colston, Esq., and the Rev. C. Gore, in rotation. Here is a freeschool on an eminence. Near the church stands Blaize Castle, built in the Gothic style. Here was anciently a Roman fortification, and a considerable number of Roman coins and antiquities have been found here at different periods.

HENCOED, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

P. T. Llanelly (221) m. Pop. 1047.

A hamlet in the parish of Llanelly and hundred of Carnwallan, situated close to the estuary of the Burry river. This is one of the best coal districts in South Wales.

HENCOED, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Cardiff (100) m. N. Pop. 267.

A hamlet in the parish of Gelli-Gaer and hundred of Caerphilly, lying upon the mail-coach road to Merthyr Tydvy, adjacent to the Glamorganshire canal, and in an iron and coal district. See Gelli-Gaer.

HENDERSKELF, or HILDERSKILL, N. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 4½ m. WSW.
Pop. 150.

A township in the parish and wapentake of Bulmer.

HENDON, co. Middlesex.

London 7 m. NW b N. Pop. 3100.

A parish in the hundred of Gore, situated on a rivulet called the Brent; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; patron, Rev. C. L. Edridge. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, contains a number of very fine monuments, and the church-yard, the prospect from which is very beautiful, also contains several singular epitaphs. Here are many elegant villas, and Hendon Place, a beautiful mansion, remarkable for a cedar-tree which was blown down January 1, 1779; it is said to have been planted by Queen Elizabeth; it was seventy feet high, and the circumference of the trunk, at seven feet from the ground, sixteen feet, and twelve feet from the ground, twenty feet.

HENDRED, EAST, co. Berks.

P. T. Wantage (60) 4½ m. E b N. Pop. 863.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Wantage, and partly in that of Reading, situated near the Vale of White Horse; it formerly had a market, which is now disused. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 5*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Augustin; patron, the Bishop of Salisbury. It is said, that formerly a piece of land in and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HEMLINGFORD, co. Warwick.

Pop. 43,402.

A hundred situated at the northern extremity of the county, containing forty-two parishes, including the towns of Birmingham and Tamworth.

HEMLINGTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Acle (121) 4 m. W b N. Pop. 235.

A parish in the hundred of Walsham; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; certified value 15*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 34*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Norwich.

HEMLINGTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Stokesley (237) 5 m. N b W. Pop. 72.

A township in the parish of Stainton and west division of the liberty of Langbaugh.

HEMLINGTON ROW, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Bishop Auckland (248) 4½ m. N b W. Pop. 154.

A township in the parish of Brancepeth and north-west division of Darlington ward.

HEMPHOLE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Beverley (183) 11 m. NNE. Pop. 93.

A township in the parish of Leven and north division of the wapentake of Holderness.

HEMPNALL, or HEMENHALE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. St. Mary Stratton (100) 3 m. E b N. Pop. 1014. Fairs, Whit-Mond., for horses, cattle, and sheep; Dec. 11, for hogs, and petty chapmen.

A parish in the hundred of Depwade, formerly having a market, which is now disused; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron (1829) John T. Mott, Esq.

HEMPSTEAD, co. Essex.

P. T. Thaxted (44) 5 m. N b E. Pop. 655.

A parish in the hundred of Freshwell; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Great Samford in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London, not in charge; church, dedicated to St. Andrew, contains several monuments to the Harvey family, and also a bust of the celebrated Dr. Harvey, of that family, who discovered the circulation of the blood.

HEMPSTEAD, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Gloucester (104) 2 m. SW b W. Pop. 548.

A parish in the middle division of the hundred of Dudstone and King's Barton, situated on a pleasant eminence; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; patron (1829) Mr. Alderman Jones. The church, which is dedicated to St. Swithin, consists only of a nave and chancel, divided by a low tower, apparently of later construction than the rest of the building, which is supposed to have been erected in the early part of the fourteenth century. The interior is paved with painted bricks, and contains some remains of richly painted glass; the font is rather curious and ancient.

HEMPSTEAD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Holt (110) 2 m. SE. Pop. 289.

A parish in the hundred of Holt; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 84*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Norwich.

HEMPSTEAD, HEMEL, co. Hertford.

London 23 m. NW. Pop. 5193. M. D.

Thurs. Fairs, Holy Thursday, for sheep; and third Monday in Sept. statute.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Dacorum, pleasantly situated among hills on the river Gade; the market, which is still a very good one, was formerly reckoned one of the greatest in England for wheat, 20,000*l.* a week having been often returned for meal alone. There are eleven mills within four miles of the place. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 1*s.* 10½*d.*; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, in nomination of the Bishop of Lincoln. The church, which is ded. to St. Mary, an ancient Norman structure, has been much altered and enlarged at subsequent periods; it is built in the form of a cross; consists of a nave, chancel, transept, and side-aisles, with an embattled tower, surmounted by a high octagonal spire, rising from the intersection. Here are two endowed freeschools; one for thirteen boys, and the other for fifteen girls. It was incorporated by Henry VIII., and is governed by a bailiff.

HEMPSTON, LITTLE, co. Devon.

P. T. Totness (196) 1½ m. N b E. Pop. 323.

A parish in the hundred of Haytor; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 19*l.* 15*s.* 2½*d.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, the King.

HEMPTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Chipping Sodbury (108) 3 m. Pop. with Patchway, 500.

A tithing in the parish of Almondsbury and lower division of the hundred of Langley and Swineshead.

HEMPTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Fakenham (109) 1 m. S. Pop. 290. Fairs, Whit Tuesday, and Nov. 16, for horses and cattle.

A parish in the hundred of Gallow; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge. The church has now fallen to decay.

HEMPTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Deddington (90) 1½ m. W. Pop. 173.

A township in the parish of Deddington and hundred of Wootton.

HEMSTEAD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. North Walsham (123) 9 m. E b S.
Pop. with Eccles., 212.

A parish in the hundred of Happing, situated on the sea-coast; living, a dis. rectory with those of Eccles and Lessingham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, King's College, Cambridge.

HEMSWELL, or HELMSWELL, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Gainsborough (140) 7½ m. E. Pop. 279.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Alasco, parts of Lindsey; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln, of the certified value of 17*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 49*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Corporation of Lincoln.

HEMSWORTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Pontefract (177) 6½ m. SSW. Pop. 936.

A parish in the lower division of the Wapentake of Staincross; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 1*s.* 0½*d.*; church ded. to St. Helen; patron (1829) W. Wrighton, Esq. Archbishop Holgate was born here, and founded a grammar-school, and also an hospital for ten poor men and the same number of women, who are admitted at the age of sixty. In 1816 a chancery suit restored the master of the school and the pensioners to the profits of the estate of which they had been fraudulently deprived by the trustees, and by this means they rose to a state of affluence, enjoying each not less than 100*l.* per ann. Here are several pleasant residences.

HEMYOCK, co. Devon.

Pop. 5409.

A hundred situated on the north-eastern side of the county, and bordering upon Somersetshire, containing seven parishes.

HEMYOCK, co. Devon.

P. T. Collumpton (100) 9 m. NE b E.
Pop. 1150.

A parish in the hundred of the same name; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 32*l.* 0*s.* 7½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patroness (1829) Mrs. Hutton. Here are the remains of an ancient castle, supposed to have been erected on Roman foundations. During the civil wars this fortress was garrisoned against Charles I., and was demolished shortly after the Restoration.

HENBURY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Macclesfield (167) 2 m. WSW.
Pop. with Pexhall, 428.

A township in the parish of Presbury and hundred of Macclesfield.

HENBURY, co. Gloucester.

Pop. 3170.

A hundred forming the south-western point of the county, near the mouth of the Severn, containing five parishes.

HENBURY, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Bristol (114) 5 m. NNW. Pop. 2223.

A parish partly in the upper division of the hundred of Henbury, and partly in that of Berkeley, situated in a very pleasant and healthy spot; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Gloucester and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 30*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons (1829) Lord Middleton, Sir J. Smith, Bart., E. Colston, Esq., and the Rev. C. Gore, in rotation. Here is a freeschool on an eminence. Near the church stands Blaize Castle, built in the Gothic style. Here was anciently a Roman fortification, and a considerable number of Roman coins and antiquities have been found here at different periods.

HENCOED, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

P. T. Llanelly (221) m. Pop. 1047.

A hamlet in the parish of Llanelly and hundred of Carnwallan, situated close to the estuary of the Burry river. This is one of the best coal districts in South Wales.

HENCOED, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Cardiff (100) m. N. Pop. 267.

A hamlet in the parish of Gelli-Gaer and hundred of Caerphilly, lying upon the mail-coach road to Merthyr Tydvyl, adjacent to the Glamorganshire canal, and in an iron and coal district. See Gelli-Gaer.

HENDERSKELF, or HILDERSKILL, N. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) ¼ m. WSW.
Pop. 150.

A township in the parish and wapentake of Bulmer.

HENDON, co. Middlesex.

London 7 m. NW b N. Pop. 3100.

A parish in the hundred of Gore, situated on a rivulet called the Brent; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; patron, Rev. C. L. Edridge. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, contains a number of very fine monuments, and the church-yard, the prospect from which is very beautiful, also contains several singular epitaphs. Here are many elegant villas, and Hendon Place, a beautiful mansion, remarkable for a cedar-tree which was blown down January 1, 1779; it is said to have been planted by Queen Elizabeth; it was seventy feet high, and the circumference of the trunk, at seven feet from the ground, sixteen feet, and twelve feet from the ground, twenty feet.

HENDRED, EAST, co. Berks.

P. T. Wantage (100) 4½ m. E b N. Pop. 863.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Wantage, and partly in that of Reading, situated near the Vale of White Horse; it formerly had a market, which is now disused. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 5*s.* 2½*d.*; church ded. to St. Augustin; patron, the Bishop of Salisbury. It is said, that formerly a piece of land in this place, of the yearly value of five shillings, was held by the tenure of repeating a paternoster daily for the health of the king's soul, and from this circumstance the holder was called John Paternoster. A road leading to West Hendred is still called Paternoster Banoke.

HENDRED, WEST, or LITTLE, co. Berks.

P. T. Wantage (00) 4 m. E. Pop. 319.

A parish in the hundred of Wantage; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 19*s.* 9½*d.*; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron, Corpus Christi College, Oxford.

HENDREDENNY, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Cardiff (160) 12 m. N b W. Pop. 371.

A hamlet in the parish of Eglwys Ilan and hundred of Caerphilly, the inhabitants of which are occupied in the coal-mines and stone-quarries.

HENDREFIGILT, co. Flint, N. W.

P. T. Holywell (203) m. N b E. Pop. 582.

A township in the parish of Halkin and hundred of Coleshill, abounding in mines of lead and coal, and veins of limestone. See Halkin.

HEN-EGLWYS, co. Anglesea, N. W.

P. T. Llangefnoi (247) m. Pop. 385.

A parish in the hundred of Maltraeth, lying between the old and new lines of road from Holyhead to Menai Bridge. Living, a disrectory with the chapel of Tref-Gwalehmai, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Bangor; area of parish about 2000 acres; church ded. to St. Llwydian.

HENFIELD, co. Sussex.

P. T. Steyning (50) 4 m. NE b N. Pop. 1404. Fairs, May 4; July 5; and Aug. 1; for pedler's ware.

A parish in the hundred of Tipnoak, rape of Bramber; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Bishop of Chichester.

HENFYNYW, co. Cardigan, S. W.

P. T. Llampeter (209) 15 m. NW. Pop. 876.

A parish in the hundred of Ilan, situated upon Cardigan Bay, at the mouth of the Aeron river; living, a perpetual curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. at 58*l.* 16*s.*; patrons, the Canons of St. David's. It was here that St. David spent the early years of his life, and received the rudiments of that learning for which he was afterwards so conspicuous.

HENGRAVE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmunds (71) 4 m. NNW. Pop. 168.

A parish in the hundred of Thingoe; living, a rectory, united with that of Flempton, in the archdeaconry of Sudbridge and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 7*s.* 1*d.*; patronage with Flempton rectory. The church, which has not been used for many years, is remarkable for one of those ancient round towers which seem to be peculiar to this part of the kingdom, and contains several monuments, amongst which is a fine marble tomb to the memory of Sir Thomas Kitson, founder of Hengrave Hall, an ancient and spacious structure, and an admirable specimen of the fine old mansions with which this country abounds.

HENHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Halesworth (100) 4½ m. E b N. Pop. 131.

A hamlet in the parish of Wangford and hundred of Blything.

HENHAM-ON-THE-HILL, co. Essex.

P. T. Stansted Mountfitchet (33) 3½ m. NNE. Pop. 804.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Uttlesford, and partly in that of Clavering; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 17*l.*; patrons (1829) J. S. Feake, Esq. and others.

HENHEADS, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Haslingden (204) 2 m. W. Pop. 246.

A township in the parish of Bury and hundred of Blackburn. Here is a large part of the lofty elevation called Cridden Hill.

HENHULL, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Nantwich (164) 2 m. NW b W. Pop. 90.

A township in the parish of Acton and hundred of Nantwich.

HENHURST, co. Sussex.

Pop. 2746.

A hundred in the rape of Hastings, situated at the east end of the county, and containing three parishes.

HENLEY, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Ipswich (09) 5 m. N. Pop. 24.

A parish in the hundred of Bosmere and Claydon; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 0*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Norwich.

HENLEY-IN-ARDEN, co. Warwick.

London 101 m. NW b W. Pop. 1249.

M. D. Mond. Fairs, Lady-day; March 25; Tuesd. in Whitsun-week; for cattle; and Oct. 20, for horses, cattle, sheep, and hops.

A market-town, hamlet, and chapelry, in the parish of Wootton Waven and Henley division of the hundred of Barlichway, situated near the river Arrow, taking its second appellation from the ancient forest of Arden. The principal manufactories of this town are in nails and needles. In the market-place is an ancient cross in tolerable preservation. The living is a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Wootton Waven; certified value 9*l.* 16*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 87*l.*; patrons, the Parishioners. The chapel, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, was erected by the inhabitants in the reign of Edward III., who had long felt the inconvenience of the distance from the mother church. Henley is said to have been entirely destroyed by fire about the period of the battle of Evesham.

HENLEY-UPON-THAMES, co. Oxford.

London, 35 m. W. Pop. 3509. M. D. Wed. Frid. and Sat. Fairs, March 7, chiefly for horses; Holy Thurs, sheep; Thurs. after Trin. Sun., horses; Thurs. fort. after Oct 10, cheese.

A town in the hundred of Binfield, but having a separate jurisdiction, situated at the base of a cluster of hills on the river Thames, over which there is a fine stone bridge of five arches, forming the approach to the town. The houses are for the most part spacious and well built; the town-hall is a neat building having a piazza, which is used as a market-house. Here also is a small theatre. Henley is a place of considerable antiquity, and from the discovery of ancient relics it is supposed once to have been a Roman station, although it has at present little appearance of antiquity, as the houses have been chiefly rebuilt at a recent period. It formerly sent members to Parliament, and is now a corporate town, governed by a mayor, ten aldermen, sixteen burgesses, a high-steward, and a recorder. The charter of incorporation was granted in 1722. The chief trade consists in corn, flour, malt, and beechwood; which is sent to the metropolis by water in considerable quantities. The neighbourhood produces pyrites, and a black flint used in making glass. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 21l. 1s. 3d.; patron, the Bishop of Worcester. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a handsome Gothic structure, with a lofty tower having four octagonal turrets which surmount the battlements. In the chancel is a monument to Lady Elizabeth Periam, the benefactress to Balliol College. In the churchyard lie the remains of Richard Jennings, who was the master builder of St Paul's Cathedral. Here also is a dissenting meeting-house. Henley has two free-schools founded by James I. and Lady Elizabeth Periam, and an almshouse for twenty poor persons, founded by John Longland, Bishop of Lincoln, who was confessor to Henry VIII. and a native of this town. William Lenthall, speaker of the House of Commons, celebrated in the civil commotions of the seventeenth century, was also born here.

HEN-LLAN AMOGED, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

P. T. Narbeth (240) 5 m. N.E. Pop. 460.

A parish in the hundred of Dcrllys, situated upon the Tavè river; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 80l. 6s.; patrons, the Freeholders of the parish, the area of which extends about two miles in length by one in breadth.

HENLLAN, co. Cardigan, S. W.

P. T. Newcastle-in-Emlyn (229) 4 m. E. Pop. 119.

A parish in the hundred of Troed-yr-aur, situated upon the river Tyvi, in a picturesque and agreeable country. Living, a rectory not in charge, annexed to the rectory of Bangor, in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. at 21l. 2s. 6d. At this place is the beautiful waterfall called Frwdew Hén llun.

HENLLAN, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Denbigh (205) 2 m. NW. Pop. 2435.

A village and parish in the hundred of Is-Aled; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph, being part of the corps of the deanery of St. Asaph. Area of parish 14,000 acres.

HEN-LLYS, co. Cardigan, S. W.

P. T. Aberystwyth (208) 4½ m. N.E. Pop. 434.

A township in the parish of Llanfihangel-gneur-glyn and in the hundred of Gneur-Glyn.

HENLLYS, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Newport (148) 4 m. NW b W. Pop. 209.

A parish in the hundred of Wentloog; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Bassalleg, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; certified value 5l.; ann. val. P. R. 50l.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Vicar of Bassalleg.

HENLOW, co. Bedford.

P. T. Biggleswade (45) 4½ m. S b W. Pop. 688.

A parish in the hundred of Clifton; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 9l. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HENNOCK, co. Devon.

P. T. Chudleigh (192) 3 m. NW b W. Pop. 678.

A parish in the hundred of Teignbridge; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 16l.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Francis Garratt, Esq.

HENNOR, co. Hereford.

P. T. Leominster (137) 4 m. E. Pop. with Eaton.

A township in the parish of Leominster and hundred of Wolphy.

HENNY, GREAT, co. Essex.

P. T. Sudbury (54) 3 m. S b W. Pop. 368.

A parish in the hundred of Hinckford; living, a rectory with that of Little Henny, in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 13l. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) N. Barnardiston, Esq.

HENNY, LITTLE, co. Essex.

P. T. Sudbury (54) 2 m. S. Pop. 50.

A parish in the hundred of Hinckford; living, a rectory with that of Great Henny, in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 13l. 6s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 60l. patron (1829) N. Barnardiston, Esq. The living is a sinecure, the church having fallen to decay.

HENRY'S-MOAT, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Haverford West (200) 10 m. N.E. Pop. 275.

A parish in the hundred of Cemaes; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; val. in P. R. 66l. 2s. 6d.

HENSALL, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Snaith (173) 3½ m. W b N. Pop. 233.

A township in the parish of Snaith and lower division of the wapentake of Osgold-cross.

HENSHAW, co. Northumberland.

F. T. Hexham (279) 11 m. W. Pop. 503.

A township in the parish of Haltwhistle and west division of Tindale ward.

HENSINGHAM, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Whitehaven (201) 1½ m. SSE. Pop. 800.

A township and chapelry in the parish of St. Bees and Allerdale ward, above Darwent, situated upon a lofty eminence, and commands a beautiful view of the town and harbour of Whitehaven. Here is a linen, thread, and check manufactory, which gives employment to the poor inhabitants. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 136*l*.; patron (1829) the Earl of Lonsdale. A parochial school has been built, and is partly supported by subscription.

HENSINGTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Woodstock (62) 2 m. S. Pop. 130.

A township in the parish of Bladon and hundred of Wootton.

HENSTEAD, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 4918.

A hundred situated to the south-east of Norwich, and bounded on the north by the river Yare, containing twenty parishes.

HENSTEAD, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Beccles (100) 5 m. SE b E. Pop. 208.

A parish in the hundred of Blything; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 12*l*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Robert Sparrow, Esq.

HENTHORN, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Clitheroe (217) 2 m. SW b S. Pop. with Little Milton.

A hamlet in the parish of Whalley and hundred of Blackburn.

HENSTRIDGE, co. Somerset.

P. T. Sherborne (117) 6 m. ENE. Pop. 911.

A parish in the hundred of Horethorne; living, a vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 13*l*. 0*s*. 2½*d*.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Prebend of Henstridge in Wells Cathedral.

HENTLAND, co. Hereford.

P. T. Ross (120) 4½ NW b W. Pop.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Wormelow; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Lugwardine, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford, not in charge; church ded. to St. Dubritius; patronage with Lugwardine vicarage.

HENTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Thame (44) 4 m. SE b E. Pop. 338.

A township in the parish of Chinnor and hundred of Lewknor.

IEPPLE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Rothbury (303) 3½ m. W. Pop. of To. 111. Of Dem. 45.

A township and demesne in the parish of Rothbury and west division of Coquetdale ward. Here is a large limestone quarry, which was cut into the site of an ancient British stronghold called Hetchester.

HEPSCOTT, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 2 m. SE. Pop. 161.

A township in the parish of Morpeth and east division of Castle ward.

HEPTONSTALL, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Halifax (107) 8 m. W b N. Pop. 4543.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Halifax and wapentake of Morley, a considerable part of which was destroyed by fire in a skirmish during the civil wars; livings, two curacies subordinate to the vicarage of Halifax, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York, one of which is of the certified value of 10*l*.; ann. val. P. R. 132*l*.; the other not in charge, has lately been erected by the commissioners for building churches; patron, the Vicar of Halifax. Here is a grammar-school, which was founded by the Rev. C. Greenwood, in 1642.

HEPWORTH, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmund's (71) 11 m. N.E. Pop. 523.

A parish in the hundred of Blackbourn; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 13*l*. 17*s*. 3½*d*.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, King's College, Cambridge.

HEPWORTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Huddersfield (188) 8 m. S b E. Pop. 1048.

A township in the parish of Kirk Burton, and upper division of the wapentake of Agbrigg.

HERBRANDSTON, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Milford (273) 2 m. NE. Pop. 223. Fair, Aug. 11, for hiring servants.

A hamlet and parish in the hundred of Rhôs; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HEREFORD, County of.

N to S, greatest length, 36 m. E to W, 35 m. Number of statute acres, 621,440. Pop. 103,423. Hundreds, 11. Parishes, 176. 1 City. 2 Boroughs. 7 Market Towns. 6 Memb. of Pt. Oxford Circuit. Diocese of Hereford. Province of Canterbury.

An inland county, bounded on the north by Shropshire, on the east by Worcester, on the south by the counties of Gloucester and Monmouth, from the latter of which it is separated by the river Munnaw; and on the west by the counties of Brecknock and Radnor. It formed a part of the territories of the Silures, a numerous and powerful tribe of ancient Britons, whose chief or king, Caractacus, long withstood the Romans when they invaded this country. Some antiquaries suppose that his last en-agement with the invaders, under Ostorius Scapula, took place in this county, but others with greater probability conclude that the site of the contest was Caer Caradoc, in Shropshire. After the defeat and capture of Caractacus, A.D. 52, Herefordshire fell under the power of the Romans; subsequently it constituted a part of the province called Britannia Secunda, and within its limits were the stations called Magna and Ariconium, the situations of which have not been satisfactorily ascertained. After the Romans retired from Britain, this country did not long remain in peaceable possession of the ancient inhabitants, who were at length expelled or reduced to slavery by the Angles, and Herefordshire became part of the kingdom of Mercia. Bordering as it does on the territories still held by the Britons or Welsh, it was subject to their frequent incursions and hostile attacks, which were continued, though without any permanent advantage to the invaders, not only during the Heptarchy, and under the Anglo-Saxon kings of England, but after it became subject to the Norman government; till the conquest of Wales by Edward I., and the consequent union of the two countries. Herefordshire was visited by Charles I. during the war with his parliament, and the nobility and gentry in general embraced his cause. Hereford was garrisoned for his service, and successfully defended, when besieged by the Scots; since which the county has not been the scene of any military events of importance. The outline of this county is nearly circular, but varied by irregularities and indentations. The land in general is rich and fruitful, and the face of the country picturesque and romantic; the agricultural plantations consisting principally of hop-grounds and orchards, contributing much to the beauty of the scenery, especially during the vernal season. The rivers by which Hereford is watered may be reckoned among the chief causes of its fertility and pleasantness. Of these the Wye claims pre-eminence; entering the county at its western border, it flows eastward to Hereford, a little beyond which city it takes a southern direction, and after a meandering course, passing Ross, it reaches the boundary of Gloucestershire, and then bending westward, divides the two counties in its way to Monmouth. The romantic beauties of the Wye, which runs in a deep channel between lofty rocks clothed with hanging woods, and at intervals crowned with antique ruins of castellated and monastic buildings, have furnished many subjects for the poet and the painter, and cannot fail to engage the notice of the traveller. The Lug rises in the north-west; in the county of Radnor, and after crossing great part of this county, and receiving many tributary streams, it joins the Wye below Hereford, and influences by its current the future course of that river. The Munnow springs from the Hatterick hills in the south-eastern district, and after uniting with the Doyer flowing out of a valley, from its fertility named the Golden Vale, it borders the county till its junction with the Wye at Monmouth. Among the rivers of minor importance are the Terne, Frome, Lodon, Wadel, and Arrow. The soil of Herefordshire is in general a strong, rich clay, particularly adapted for the growth of fruit-trees. The grand products are cider and wool, each of which has been celebrated in poems, which have long been regarded as forming a part of our permanent national literature. The apples used in making cider grow in greater abundance here than in any other county, being plentiful even in the hedge-rows. There are various sorts, yielding liquors of different strength and flavour: the most noted are the red-streak, said to be peculiar to the county; and the store-apple, which produces cider, which is strong and well-adapted for keeping. Hops are much cultivated in the northern part of the county, and especially around Leominster. The grain here is not inferior to other products: the wheat grown in the vales, and the barley in the high grounds being reckoned as good as any in England. The Herefordshire sheep are a peculiar breed of a small size, affording a fine silky wool, approaching in quality to the Spanish. Leominster has long been famous for its wool, as well as the district called Irchinfeld, near Ross. This county is not much distinguished for manufactures, in consequence of the superior advantages arising from agriculture; but woollen cloth is made at Ledbury and in some other places. The rivers abound in fish, and the salmon taken in the Wye is peculiarly excellent, though it is doubtless a popular mistake that it differs from other fish of the same species in being always in season. The hundreds in Herefordshire are those of Wigmore, Wolfph, Broxash, Stretford, Huntingdon, Grimsworth, Radlow, Greytree, Wormelow, Webtree, and Ewas Lacy. The only city is Hereford; the boroughs are Leominster and Weobley; and the other market-towns are Bromyard, Kington, Ledbury, Pembridge, and Ross. Two members of Parliament are returned for the county, two for the city of Hereford, and two for each of the boroughs.

HEREFORD, co. Hereford.

London 135 m. WNW. Pop. 9000. M. D. Wed. Frid. Sat. Fairs, Tuos. for corn, Feb. 2, horned cattle, horses, and hops; Wed. in Easter Week, horned cattle, and horses; May 19, toys; July 1, horned cattle, and wool; Oct. 20, horned cattle, cheese, and butter; and 1st Wed. and Thurs. in Dec. Memb. of Pt. 2.

An ancient city, and the capital of the county, locally situated in the hundred of Grimsworth, but possessing a separate jurisdiction. It stands nearly in the middle of the county, on low ground, and is bordered on the southern side by the river Wye. The name, which is of Saxon derivation, signifies a ford for an army, and was given to this place, in consequence of the passage here over the Wye. Some writers suppose that this city originated from the Roman station of Ariconium, the site of which has been placed here; but no certain notice of this place occurs till after the foundation of the kingdom of Mercia, of which it seems to have been the capital. Offa, King of Mercia, held his court here, and, in 749, he invited hither Ethelbert, the King of the East Angles, having promised to give that prince his daughter in marriage; instead of which, he caused his royal guest to be assassinated, and united East Anglia to his own dominions. According to the fashion of the age he endeavoured to atone for this act of perfidious cruelty, by procuring the canonization of Ethelbert, and dedicating to him a church which he had erected, now the cathedral of Hereford. In 1055 this city was attacked and burnt by the Welsh Britons; but it was rebuilt and fortified, a large and strong castle being erected by William the Conqueror. In the war between the Empress Maud and King Stephen, this castle was garrisoned by the partisans of the empress, when the king in person laid siege to it, and obliged the garrison to surrender. During the subsequent conquests between Henry III., and the barons, and the disputes between the houses of York and Lancaster, Hereford was repeatedly the seat of hostilities, in which the castle was so much injured, that Leland, who says it had been one of the largest, fairest, and strongest castles in England, represents it in his time, the reign of Henry VIII., as tending fast to ruin. The city was twice besieged during the civil war, under Charles I., for whom it was garrisoned. On the first occasion, in 1643, it was given up almost on the first summons; but the parliamentary party neglecting to keep possession of it, the royalists again put the place in a state of defence, and under the command of Colonel Barnabas Scudamore, in July and August 1645, it held out for several weeks against the assaults of a Scottish army, headed by the Earl of Leven, who was at length forced to raise the siege; and it was one of the last places that surrendered to the parliament when the royal cause became entirely hopeless. The city was anciently surrounded by a wall, with six gates, and fifteen watch towers; but these, as well as the castle, have been entirely destroyed, and the keep having been levelled, no part of the walls is remaining; but the site of those which inclosed the larger ward, is now converted into a public walk, which is deservedly admired. Hereford is governed by a corporation consisting of a mayor, and twelve aldermen, with a high steward, a deputy steward, a recorder, a town-clerk, thirty-one common council men, a sword-bearer, and four sergeants at mace. The mayor and five aldermen are justices of the peace, having power to hold courts for session for the trial of civil and criminal causes within the city. Here also are held the assizes and quarter sessions for the county. This city has sent members to Parliament ever since the reign of Edward I.; the right of election belongs to the freemen resident and non-resident, 1200 in number; and the mayor is the returning officer. The bishopric of Hereford was founded about 680, and has been governed by a succession of prelates, among whom were Edward Fox, almoner to Henry VIII., Francis Godwin, historian of the English hierarchy, and the learned Dr. Benjamin Hoadley. The other members of the cathedral church, are a dean, two archdeacons, six residentiary canons, among whom is the dean, a chancellor of the diocese, a chancellor of the cathedral, a treasurer, a precentor, twenty-eight prebendaries, a chapter-clerk and twelve vicars choral, with other officers. The bishopric is rated in K. B. at 768*l.* 10*s.* 7*d.*; and it is stated by Mr. Duncomb, to be worth 2000*l.* a-year. The cathedral church is a cruciform building, with a small transept towards the east, and a chapel: the north porch has been greatly admired. In 1786, the great western tower fell down, crushing the west front, and a considerable part of the adjoining nave. It was rebuilt by Mr. James Wyatt, at the expense of nearly 20,000*l.*, a sum quite inadequate to the restoration of the fabric in a style corresponding with its original architecture. In the interior are several interesting monuments, particularly the shrine or tomb of Bishop Cantelupe, who died in 1287, and was afterwards canonized: it is an altar-tomb, finely ornamented with trefoil and cinque-foil, headed arches and arcades, and various sculptured figures. Hereford contains six parishes, the benefices of all which are in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford. The livings of All Saints and St. Martin's, are consolidated, both being discharged vicarages, valued in K. B. at 18*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.* 3*s.*; and in the patronage of the Dean and Canons of Windsor. St. John the Baptist's is a dis. vicarage, valued in K. B. at 7*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 146*l.* 10*s.*; and in the patronage of the Dean and Canons of Hereford. St. Nicholas is a discharged rectory, valued in K. B. at 10*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 14*l.*; patron, the King. St. Owen's is a rectory, valued in K. B. at 4*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*; and united to St. Peter's, a discharged vicarage, valued in K. B. 10*l.* 0*s.* 2*d.*; patron, (1829) Rev. H. Gipps. St. John's has no distinct church, being an appendage to the cathedral. There are places of worship for Independants, Methodists, and Quakers, and a Roman Catholic chapel. The college school is an endowed grammar-school, founded or augmented by Queen Elizabeth. It shares with the schools of Manchester and Marlborough, in the presentation to fifteen scholarships at Brasenose College, Oxford, of 17*l.* per annum each; and presents, in preference to any other school or seminary, to fifteen scholarships at St. John's College, Cambridge, of from 19*l.* to 26*l.* per ann. There is also a charity-school for fifty boys and thirty girls, with some endowment, but chiefly supported by subscription. Among the charitable institutions, are Coningsby's hospital, founded by Sir Thomas Coningsby, in 1614, for a chaplain, master, and ten servitors, who have all pensions or salaries; St. Giles's Hospital, for five poor men; Trinity Hospital, and Lazarus's Hospital, besides some others. This city has several good streets, which are broad and well paved, with many others of an inferior description. Great improvements have taken place within the last half century; the buildings in general are handsome; and the vicinity of the city, especially near the banks of the Wye, is extremely pleasant. The most important public structures not noticed, are the bishop's-palace, the shire hall, a modern erection from the design of Mr. Smirke, having in front a Grecian Doric portico; the town-hall, a curious wooden fabric; the Guildhall, the county jail, a small but neat theatre; the infirmary, a handsome building, and an asylum for lunatics. The manufactures here are those of gloves, formerly carried on to a great extent, flannels, and hats; several attempts have been made to introduce the woollen trade, but without success. Cider, hops, and tanners' bark are the grand articles of commerce; and the Wye being navigable here for barges of considerable burden, coal and other articles are brought from the Forest of Dean; but the want is greatly felt of a communication with Gloucester, such as would have been furnished by the Gloucester and Hereford canal, which has been left unfinished. Hereford was the birth-place of John Breton, who became bishop of this see, and is supposed to have been the author of a Treatise on the Laws of England, in the reign of Henry III.; of Dr. Miles Smith, bishop of Gloucester, one of the translators of the Bible; and of the famous Nell Gwynne, an actress, who became the mistress of Charles II. This city gives the title of Viscount to the family of Devereux.

HEREFORD, LITTLE. co. Hereford.

P. T. Tenbury (130) 3*m.* W.
Pop. with Upton, 353.

A parish in the hundred of Wolphy, through which passes the Kingston canal; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar exempt from visitation; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 14*s.*; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron, the Chancellor of Hereford.

HERGEST, co. Hereford.

P. T. Kingston (155) 1½*m.* SW b W.
Pop. 145.

A township in the parish of Kingston and hundred of Huntingdon.

HERIOT, shire of Edinburgh, S.

P. T. Middleton (12) 4*m.* S b E. Pop. 298.
Fair, 1st Frid. aft. May 26.

A parish and village, the former including also the villages of Carcant, Chapel, Crookstown, Dewar, and Gala-Hill; it is ten miles in length, by six in breadth, and is principally appropriated to sheep pasture, the surface being rather mountainous, excepting near the Gala, and Heriot waters, the latter of which is crossed by a bridge. There are vestiges of several circular camps, and an immense cairn, nearly eighty feet in diameter. A considerable quantity of Ewe cheese is made in this parish. The living is in the presbytery of Dalkeith and synod of Lothian and Tweeddale; patron, Sir John Dalrymple, Bart. There is a large stone in the neighbourhood, bearing the name of an unfortunate female, Mary Gib, who was burned upon it for alleged witchcraft.

HERMITAGE, co. Dorset.

P. T. Sherborne (117) 7*m.* S b E. Pop. 143.

A parish in the liberty of Fordington, Sherborne division; living, a vicarage with Ryme Intrinseca, and a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 108*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HERNE, co. Kent.

P. T. Canterbury (55) 5*m.* NE b N.
Pop. 1675.

An ancient parish in the hundred of Blean Gate, lathe of St. Augustine, supposed to have been formerly the site of a Roman pottery. In the channel opposite Horn Bay, is the Pan Rock, so called from the fragments of Roman earthenware, and occasionally whole pans found there by the oyster-dredgers. The living is a vicarage, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 16*s.* 3*d.* The church, dedicated to St. Martin, is ancient, and has six stalls, and the choir divided from the nave by a screen of carved oak; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

HERNE HILL, co. Kent.

P. T. Faversham (47) 4*m.* ENE. Pop. 477.

A parish in the hundred of Boughton-under-Blean, lathe of Scray; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

HERRIARD, co. Southampton.

P. T. Basingstoke (45) 5*m.* SSE. Pop. 369.

A parish in the hundred of Bermondspit, Basingstoke division; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 6*s.* 5½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 105*l.* 7*s.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Lord Bolton.

HERRINGBY, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Acle (121) 3½*m.* E b S.
Pop. with Stokesby, 294.

A parish in the hundred of East Flegg; living, a rectory with that of Stokesby, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.*; church ded. to St. Ethelbert; patronage with Stokesby rectory.

HERRINGFLEET, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Lowestoft (114) 6 m. NW. Pop. 168.

A parish in the hundred of Mutford and Lothingland; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; church ded. to St Margaret; patron (1829) John Leathers Esq. Here was formerly a ferry across the river Waveney, which was replaced by a bridge in the reign of Henry VII. In the reign of Henry III. Roger Fitz Osbert founded here a priory of Black Canons, some parts of which are still discoverable.

HERRINGSTON WINTERBOURN, co. Dorset.

P. T. Dorchester (110) 2 m. S b W. Pop. 88.

A parish in the hundred of Colliford Free, Dorchester division. Herringston has no church, and claims to be extra-parochial.

HERRINGSWELL, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Mildenhall (70) 3 m. S b E. Pop. 215.

A parish in the hundred of Lackford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 91. 9s. 9½d.; church ded. to St. Ethelbert; patron (1829) H. Sperling, Esq.

HERRINGTON, EAST AND MIDDLE, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Sunderland (268) 4 m. SW b W. Pop. 133.

Two townships in the parish of Houghton-le-Spring and north-east division of Easington ward.

HERRINGTON, WEST, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Sunderland (208) 4½ m. WSW. Pop. 320.

A township in the parish of Houghton-le-Spring, and north division of Easington ward, where are some quarries of excellent freestone and limestone.

HERTFORD, county of.

NE. to SW. 31 m. NW. to SE. 26 m. No. of statute acres 337,920. Pop. 129,714. Hundreds 8. Parishes 135. Boroughs 2. Market-towns 18. Memb. of Pt. 6. Home Circuit. Partly in the diocese of London, and partly in that of Lincoln. Province of Canterbury.

An inland county, bounded on the north by Cambridgeshire and Bedfordshire, on the east by Essex, on the south by Middlesex, and on the west by the counties of Buckingham and Cambridge. It is partly separated from Essex by the rivers Lea and Stort, but on the other sides the boundary lines are not marked by nature. While the Britons were independent, this county was part of the territory of the Cassii, or Catteuchlani, whose chief, Cassibelanus, distinguished himself as commander of the confederated Britons, who opposed Julius Cæsar, in his memorable invasion about half a century before the beginning of the Christian era. This county was not again invaded till the reign of the Emperor Claudius, when this part of it was subdued by his lieutenant Aulus Plautius; and, on the final arrangement of the Roman provinces, Hertfordshire was included in that called Flavia Cæsariensis. Under the Anglo-Saxons it was divided, the western part of it belonging to the kingdom of Mercia, and the eastern to that of Essex. The northern skirt of this county is hilly, forming part of a great chalk ridge, which extends in this direction across the kingdom. The climate is mild and healthy, and the general appearance of the county pleasing; being well-wooded, and watered, containing numerous seats and fine parks, and affording an agreeable variety of hill and dale. Flint stones are scattered in profusion over the surface of the land, and beds of chalk are of frequent occurrence. The soil is found, under proper cultivation to be extremely favourable to corn, both wheat and barley growing in great perfection. The western part is in general tolerably rich land, and is extremely well cultivated. The principal river is the Lea, which has its source at Leagrave Marsh, in the south of Bedfordshire, and flowing obliquely eastward, it passes the towns of Hertford and Ware, from the last of which places, it is navigable to the Thames. On the south side of the county is the Coln, which, after receiving several streams in its passage, makes its exit near Rickmansworth. Besides these there are the Ver and the New River. The principal productions of the county have been already mentioned, and these, wheat and barley, when made into meal and malt, form the grand articles of trade. The flour of Hertfordshire has long been noted for its extraordinary whiteness and excellence, whence it is known by the appellation of Hertfordshire Whites. Malt is also made in large quantities, particularly for the London market; it is not, however, all made from the barley grown here, a great deal being purchased in the surrounding counties. The Grand Junction Canal, passing through the western part of the county, affords great facilities for the conveyance of these and other articles of trade to the metropolis. The names of the hundreds in Hertfordshire are Hitchin and Pirton, Broadwater, Odsey, Edwinstree, Braughin, Hertford, Dacorum and Cashio. The boroughs are Hertford and St. Alban's; and the market-towns Baldock, Barnet, Berkhamstead, Bishop Stortford, Buntingford, Hatfield, Hemel Hempstead, Hitchin, Hoddesdon, Redbourn, Rickmansworth, Royston, Stevenage, Tring, Ware, and Watford. Two members of Parliament are returned for the county, and two each for the boroughs of Hertford and St. Alban's.

HERTFORD, co. Hertford.

Pop. 12,451.

A hundred encircling the county-town, from which it takes its name, and separated from the county of Essex by the river Lea, containing thirteen parishes.

HERTFORD, or HARTFORD, co. Hertford.

London, 21 m. N. Pop. 4265. M. D. Sat. 214

Fairs, Sat. fort. before East.; May 12; July 5; and Nov. 8; for horses and other cattle. Momb. of Pt. 2. Mail arr. 10. 28 a. Mail dep. 3. 10 f.

A considerable borough and market-town the capital of the county, locally situated in the hundred of Hertford, but possessing separate jurisdiction. It is supposed by some antiquaries that the Britons had a settlement here, which gave rise to the Roman station called Durocobrivæ; but this is probably a mistake, and the origin of Hertford may be attributed to the Anglo-Saxons. An ecclesiastical council is said to have been held here in the seventh century. Alfred the Great erected a fortress to defend the town and neighbouring country from predatory attacks of the Danes, who had sailed up the river Lea to Ware, two miles south of Hertford, and their intrenched themselves and made a depot for their plunder. The lordship and castle of Hertford belonged to the crown, and in the war of the barons against King John the latter was taken by their forces, but it was restored in the reign of Henry III. Edward III. gave to the town a charter for holding two weekly markets; and he bestowed the earldom, or honour of Hertford, on his son John of Gaunt. Queen Mary granted a charter of incorporation for the government of the town by a bailiff and burgesses, and another charter was given by Elizabeth, in the twenty-fifth year of whose reign the courts of law, during Michaelmas term, were removed hither, on account of the plague raging in London, as was the case again ten years afterwards. James I. bestowed a new charter on the corporation, under the style of the mayor, burgesses, and commonalty of the borough; and at present the corporation consists of a mayor, a high-steward, a recorder, ten aldermen (including the mayor), a town-clerk, ten capital burgesses and sixteen assistants, with two sergeants at mace. The mayor, recorder, and one of the aldermen are empowered to act as justices of the peace; and likewise to hold a court of record weekly for the recovery of sums not exceeding 60*l*. The assizes for the county, and the petty sessions for the division of Hertford, are held in this town. The borough first sent members to Parliament in the reign of Edward I., and continued to do so till the 7th of Henry V., when the bailiff and burgesses petitioned to be relieved from the burden of returning representatives on the score of poverty, which was granted, and they continued unrepresented till the 22d of James I., when the elective franchise was restored, and has been since regularly exercised. The right of voting is now vested in the inhabitant householders, and the freemen resident and non-resident, altogether 700 in number: the mayor is the returning officer; and the patronage of the borough is held chiefly by the Marquis of Salisbury. Here are five parishes, All Saints, St. Andrew's, St. John's, St. Mary's, and St. Nicholas; but the churches belonging to the last three are demolished, and the benefices are annexed to the others: they are all in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln. The living of All Saints is a vicarage, valued in K. B. 10*l*. 8*s*. 6½*d*., with the vicarage of St. John's united; in the patronage of the King. St. Andrew's is a rectory, valued in K. B. 12*l*. 7*s*. 3½*d*., with those of St. Mary and St. Nicholas, in the patronage of the King as Duke of Lancaster. St. Andrew's church, standing on the south side of the town, consists of a nave, transepts, and chancel, with a square western tower, surmounted by a spire; and at the west end of the nave is a spacious gallery for the boys belonging to the establishment at Hertford connected with Christ's Hospital; and here also is a handsome organ. The Quakers and the Independents have chapels in this town. A free grammar-school was founded here and endowed with a rent-charge of 40*l*. a-year, by Richard Hale, Esq. in 1616, under the government of the mayor and chief burgesses. There is also a charity-school, called the Green-coat School, founded and endowed by Gabriel Newton, in 1760, for the education of twenty-five boys; besides other schools, partly supported by subscription. At the east end of the town is the school belonging to Christ's Hospital, London, a large building, in which are accommodations for about five hundred of the younger children admitted into that establishment, who are sent hither from the metropolis. Four almshouses at Butchery Green, near the town, were built and endowed with 50*l*. a-year by Lady Harrison, who died in 1706. The town lies in a low valley, watered by the river Lea, near its junction with the Mimeram; and its outline approaches to the shape of the letter Y; the castle being placed between St. Andrew's Street on the north, and West Street and Castle Street on the south, forming the horns of this figure; while the remaining part consists chiefly of Maidenhead and Back Streets, extending in one line east and west, and Fore Street, which runs in a parallel direction with them. Among the principal edifices are the castle, founded by Edward the Elder about 905, but rebuilt and probably enlarged after the conquest. In the reign of Edward II., John, King of France, taken prisoner at the battle of Poitiers, was an occasional resident in this fortress, as also was another captive prince, David, King of Scotland. It is now the property of the Marquis of Salisbury. Other public buildings are the shire-house, or town-hall, erected from a design of Mr. Adams, and completed in 1771; a neat sessions-house, where the assizes are held; a gaol, and penitentiary-house, built on the plan of Howard; and a market-house. The commerce of Hertford chiefly depends on the navigation of the Lea; and the most important articles of trade are wheat, flour, malt, and wool, much of which is sent to London, whence coal and other heavy commodities are brought in exchange. Here is held one of the largest provincial corn-markets in this part of the kingdom. A Benedictine priory for monks was founded here about 1087, by Ralph de Limesi, in subordination to the abbey of St. Alban's; and it subsisted till the Reformation; when its revenues were 72*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*; but there are no remains of the monastic buildings. At the distance of two miles and a half from the town, on the London road, stands the East India College, founded in May 1806, for the purpose of educating young men for the company's service, in co-operation with the college of Calcutta. It is capable of accommodating one hundred students, who on entering at the age of sixteen are instructed for two years or longer, at the discretion of the East India Directors, in the usual branches of collegiate study, and also in the oriental languages. About thirty students are annually drawn off for the civil service of the company. The situation of the establishment is pleasant and healthy; and the building which is elegant, large, and convenient, was erected at the expense of 70,000*l.* This place gives the title of Marquis to the family of Seymour.

HERTINGFORDBURY, co. Hertford.

P. T. Hertford (21) 2 m. WSW. Pop. 827.

A parish in the hundred of Hertford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

HERTS MONCEAUX, co. Sussex.

P. T. Hailsham (50) 3 m. E. Pop. 1318.

A parish in the hundred of Foxeal, rape of Hastings; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 20*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Robert Hare, Esq. Here are the ruins of a very ancient castle built of brick, in the reign of Henry VI. It was formerly surrounded by a deep moat, which has long been dry.

HESKET-IN-THE-FOREST, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (283) 9 m. N b W. Pop. 1709.

A parish in Leath ward, situated on the east side of Tarn Wadulyno, a lake, consisting of 100 acres, which is famed for its fine carp. The river Peterill also runs through this parish and abounds with trout and silver eels. It is crossed in different places by six stone bridges. The living is a curacy with that of St. Mary Carlisle, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle, of the certified value of 22*l.* 15*s.*; ann. val. P. R. was 44*l.* 15*s.*; which has been augmented by sums from private individuals to the amount of 600*l.*, from Queen Anne's bounty 300*l.*, from government 600*l.*, making in all, 1500*l.*, with which land was purchased in Inglewood Forest; chapel ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle. Here is an endowed free-school. In Heskett Moor are four small tumuli. In the neighbourhood is a quarry of excellent freestone.

HESKET, NETHER, and UPPER, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 7½ m. SE. Pop. 780.

A township in the parish of Heskett-in-the-Forest and Heath ward.

HESKETH, co. Pal. Lancaster.

P. T. Ormskirk (219) 10½ m. N b E.
Pop. with Becconsall, 476.

A township in the parish of Croston and hundred of Leyland.

HESLEDON, COLD, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Sunderland (268) 7 m. S b W.
Pop. 55.

A township in the parish of Dalton-le-Dale and north division of Easington ward.

HESLEDON MONK, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Stockton-upon-Tees (241) 12½ m. N b E.
Pop. of Pa. 503. Of To. 161.

A parish and township in the south division of Easington ward; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Durham. The parish contains five additional townships.

HESLERTON, EAST, E. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 10 m. ENE.
Pop. 190.

A township and chapelry in the parish of West Heslerton; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of West Heslerton in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York, not in charge.

HESLERTON, WEST, E. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 9 m. ENE.
Pop. of Pa. 469. Of To. 273.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Buckrose; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 21*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, the King.

HESLEY HURST, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Rothbury (303) 3½ m. SSE. Pop. 46.

A township in the parish of Rothbury and west division of Coquetdale ward.

HESLINGTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. York (106) 1½ m. SE.
Pop. of Pa. 513. Of To. 221.

A parish and township, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Ouse and Darwent; living, a curacy and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York, of the certified value of 6*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 58*l.* 2*s.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron, the Prebendary of Ampleforth, in York Cathedral. Here is an hospital for nine poor persons. Heslington Hall is a magnificent building of the style prevailing in the time of Queen Elizabeth.

HESSAY, E. R. co. York.

P. T. York (196) 5½ m. W b N. Pop. 161.

A township in the parish of Moor Monkton, and upper division of the ainstey of the city of York.

HESSETT, or HEDGSETT, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmund's (71) 6 m. ESE. Pop. 393.

A parish in the hundred of Thedwestry; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 17*s.* 11*d.*; patron, the King. The church ded. to St. Ethelbert is a handsome structure, containing several monuments to the Bacons, by which family it was built.

HESSLE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (174) 5 m. WSW. Pop. 1021.

A parish in the county of the town of Kingston-upon-Hull, situated near the river Humber. Ship-building is here carried on to a considerable extent; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York: valued in K. B. 10*l.* 7*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor. Here is an ancient ferry to the opposite town of Barton, in Lincolnshire.

HEST, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Lancaster (210) 3 m. N b W: Pop. with Styne, 317.

A township in the parish of Bolton-by-the-Sands and hundred of Lonsdale South-of-the-Sands, which has latterly become a small bathing-place.

HESTERCOMBE, co. Somerset.

P. T. Taunton (141) 4 m. N. Pop. 16.

A hamlet in the parish of Kingston and hundred of Taunton and Taunton Dean.

HESTON, stewardry of Kirkcudbright, S.

A beautifully smooth and verdant island, forming part of the parish of Rerrick, and lying at the entrance of Auchencarn Bay. It is elevated far above the level of the sea, affords the sweetest pasture for sheep, contains numerous rabbits, and abounds with shell-fish all around the coast.

HESTON, co. Middlesex.

P. T. Hounslow (10) 1½ m. N b W. Pop. 2810.

A parish in the hundred of Isleworth; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 11*l.*; church ded. to St. Leonard; patron, the Bishop of London. This parish is celebrated for the production of remarkably fine wheat, with which the table of Queen Elizabeth is said to have been served.

HESWALL, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Great Neston (194) 3 m. NW b N. Pop. of Pa. 366. Of To. 233.

A parish and township in the hundred of Wirrall; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 18*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*; patron (1829) James Penny, Esq.

HETHE, co. Oxford.

P. T. Bicester (54) 4 m. N b E. Pop. 330.

A parish in the hundred of Ploughley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 9*s.* 4½*d.*; church ded. to St. George and St. Edmund; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HETHERSET, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Wymondham (100) 4 m. NE b E. Pop. 927.

A parish in the hundred of Humbleyard; living, a rectory in medietyes with that of Cantelose, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; church ded. to St. Remigius; patron, Caius College, Cambridge.

HETHILL, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Wymondham (100) 4 m. E b S. Pop. 209.

A parish in the hundred of Humbleyard; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Sir T. Beevor, Bart.

HETT, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Bishop Auckland (218) 2 m. E b N. Pop. 233.

A township in the parish of Merrington and south-east division of Darlington ward. Near here is Hett Mill, situated in Tursdale, on the Thinford Beck, on which stream there are five other paper-mills and four corn-mills.

HETTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 4 m. ENE. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Chatton and east division of Glendale ward. A good bridge has lately been erected by subscription, over the Hettonbourn, where the ford was often very dangerous.

HETTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (216) 6 m. NNW. Pop. with Bordley, 180.

A township in the parish of Burnsall and east division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross.

HETTON HALL, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 4 m. NE. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Chatton and east division of Glendale ward.

HETTON-LE-HOLE, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (258) 6 m. NE b E. Pop. 919.

A township in the parish of Houghton-le-Spring and north-east division of Easington ward. Here is a very large colliery, and the most remarkable and extensive of the colliery railways runs from this place to Sunderland. In this township are four places of worship belonging to different bodies of dissenters.

HIEUGH, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 13½ m. NW. Pop. 512.

A township in the parish of Stamfordham and north-east division of Tindale ward.

HEVENINGHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Halesworth (100) 5 m. SW b W. Pop. 411.

A parish in the hundred of Blything; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron, the Lord Chancellor. Here is Heveningham Hall, a most magnificent residence, and justly considered one of the finest seats in the county. At the old mansion, on the site of which the present structure was erected, it is said that Queen Elizabeth was entertained by Lord Hunsdon who was then possessor of it.

HEVER, co. Kent.

P. T. Tunbridge (30) 7½ m. W b S. Pop. 600.

A parish in the hundred of Somerden, lath of Sutton-at-Hone; living, a rectory and peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 15l. 7s. 3½d.; patron (1829) the Rev. T. Streatfield. The church, which is dedicated to St. Peter, contains a handsome marble tomb in memory of Sir Thomas Boleyn, who died in March 1538, and is represented in the robes and collar of the order of the Garter by a full-sized brass. Here is Hever Castle erected in the time of Edward III., a very fine and venerable structure surrounded by a moat, crossed by a draw bridge, and supplied by the river Eden, the entrance gateway, which consists of a centre, flanked by round towers, is embattled and defended by a portcullis. This was the principal residence of the Boleyns, and Henry VIII. is said to have spent some of the happiest of his days here.

HEVERSHAM, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kendal (202) 7 m., S b W. Pop. 3096.

A parish in Kendal ward; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 36l. 13s. 4d. The church, which is dedicated to St. Peter, is a fine Gothic structure, with side aisles and a square tower with three bells; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge. Here is an endowed grammar-school.

HEVINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Aylesham (118) 3 m. S b E. Pop. 1853.

A parish in the hundred of South Erpingham; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10l. 16s.; church ded. to St. Botolph; patron (1829) George Anson, Esq.

HEWICK BRIDGE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Rippon (212) 2 m. ESE. Pop. 77.

A hamlet in the parish and liberty of Rippon and wapentake of Claro.

HEWICK COPT, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Rippon (212) 2 m. E. Pop. 131.

A township in the parish and liberty of Rippon and wapentake of Claro.

HEWISH, co. Wilts.

P. T. Pewsey (70) 3 m. NNW. Pop. 112.

A parish in the hundred of Swanborough; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 8l. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patrons, the Trustees of Froxfield Almshouses.

HEWORTH, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (106) 1 m. NE. Pop. 159.

A township, partly in the parish of St. Cuthbert, partly in that of St. Giles, and partly in that of St. Saviour, in York, and in the wapentake of Bulmer.

HEWORTH NETHER, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Gateshead (272) 2 m. ESE.

* Pop. with Upper Heworth, 3021.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Jarrow and east division of Chester ward; living, a curacy with that of Jarrow, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 27l. 1s. 8d.; patron (1829) Cuthbert Ellison, Esq. The church is a modern Gothic edifice with a square tower.

HEWORTH, UPPER, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Gateshead (272) 2 m. SE.

Pop. with Nether Heworth.

A township in the parish of Jarrow and east division of Chester ward.

HEXHAM, co. Northumberland.

London 278 m. NNW. Pop. 5136.

M. D. Tu. and Sat. Fairs, Aug. 5, and Nov. 8, for cattle, sheep, hogs, and woollen cloth.

A market-town and parish in the south division of Tyndale ward; seated on an eminence near the confluence of the rivers North and South Tyne, anciently a place of importance, and the see of a bishop. Some have supposed it to have been the site of the Roman station called Axelodunum; but its origin may with greater probability be ascribed to the period of the Saxon Heptarchy, when a bishopric was founded here, and a large and splendid monastery erected called Hagulstadt, or Hextoldesham, from the Hextold, a small stream in its vicinity. The district in which it is situated was formerly a county palatine, subject to the Archbishop of York; but in the reign of Elizabeth it was by act of Parliament annexed to Northumberland, though in ecclesiastical matters, it is still under a separate jurisdiction. The municipal government is under the direction of a bailiff appointed annually by the lord of the manor. The bishopric of Hexham was founded in 674, by Wilfrid, Archbishop of York, and was governed by a succession of prelates till 821, when Tydfrith, the last having been driven away by the Danes, died during a journey to Rome. After a considerable vacancy, the see, united to that of Lindisfarne, was in 883 fixed at Chester-le-Street, and subsequently removed to Durham. In 1112 Thomas, Archbishop of York, rebuilt the ruined church, and founded here a priory of canons regular of St. Augustin, the revenues of which, at the dissolution of monasteries, amounted to 33l. 1s. 9d. The living is a perpetual curacy, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Archbishop of York; certified value 13l. 6s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 113l.; with the chapel of Whitley, in the patronage (1829) of Mr. and Mrs. Beaumont. The church, dedicated to St. Andrew, consists of the choir of the priory church, originally founded in the reign of Henry I., the nave having been burned by the Scots when they invaded England in 1296. It retains some portions of Norman architecture, mixed with the Gothic or pointed style of a later period : it is richly ornamented both within and without, and contains some fine sepulchral monuments, and other curious sculptures. Here were formerly an hospital, dedicated to St. Giles, and another, called the Spittle, stood about a mile west from the town, on an eminence near the Tyne. A free grammar-school was founded here by Queen Elizabeth in 1598, and placed under the direction of an incorporated body of governors : it has some endowment, arising from various benefactions, and it is open to boys born within the parish of Hexham. There is a Roman Catholic chapel, besides various places of worship for Protestant dissenters. The town is not large, but it contains some good buildings, though the streets are narrow and irregular ; in the centre is the market-place, a spacious and handsome quadrangle, on the south side of which are piazzas and other buildings ; on the east, an ancient stone tower, forming the courthouse of the manor of Hexham ; and on the west, are the remains of the cathedral and conventual buildings. The peculiar manufacture of this place is tanned leather, for gloves, shoes, boots, &c. Many Roman inscriptions, altars, bas-reliefs, and other monuments of antiquity have been discovered in the neighbourhood, which also contains ruins of castles and other works of the middle ages. Near the town, in 1463, was fought the sanguinary battle of Hexham, in which Lord Montacute, brother of the Earl of Warwick, at the head of an army of Yorkists, utterly defeated the Lancastrians, when the Earl of Somerset, and several other men of rank, were taken prisoners, and immediately executed. In 1761, Hexham was the scene of domestic discord, an insurrection of the miners having taken place ; they were opposed by the North York militia, and were not suppressed till after numbers of them had been killed and wounded by the troops. Several eminent persons have been connected with this place. Among the bishops of Hexham, were Cuthbert and John of Beverley, both canonized, and Acca, the friend of Bede ; John of Hexham and Richard of Hexham, two monastic historians, were priors of the monastery ; and Joseph Richardson, a comic writer of some eminence, was born here in 1758 ; John Tweeddale, a learned and ingenious traveller, who died at Athens in 1799, was likewise a native of this place or its vicinity.

HEXTHORPE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Doncaster (162) 2 m. SW.
Pop. with Balby.

A township in the parish and soke of Doncaster and lower division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill.

HEXTON, co. Hertford.

P. T. Hitchin (31) 6 m. NW b W. Pop. 338.

A parish in the hundred of Cashio ; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of St.

Alban's and diocese of London ; valued in K. B. 7l. 13s. 4d. ; ann. val. P. R. 105l. ; church ded. to St. Faith ; patron (1829) William Young, Esq. Near the churchyard is a fountain called St. Faith's Well. Here are the remains of several military encampments.

HEYBRIDGE, co. Essex.

P. T. Maldon (37) 1 m. NNE. Pop. 368.

A parish in the hundred of Thurstable ; living, a vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of London ; valued in K. B. 10l. ; ann. val. P. R. 75l. 3s. 7d. ; church ded. to St. Andrew ; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's.

HEYDON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Reepham (111) 3 m. NNE. Pop. 333.

A parish in the hundred of South Erpingham ; living, a rectory with that of Irmingland, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich ; valued in K. B. 9l. 16s. 10½d. ; church ded. to St. Peter ; patron (1829) W. W. Bulmer, Esq.

HEYFORD, NETHER, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (60) 7 m. W b S.
Pop. 422.

A parish in the hundred of Nobottle Grove ; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough ; valued in K. B. 8l. 10s. 5d. ; patron (1829) the Rev. J. L. Crawley. The church, which is ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul, contains some very curious and ancient monuments, amongst which is one to the memory of Francis Morgan, Esq., who pronounced sentence of death on the unfortunate Lady Jane Grey. Here is an endowed free-school.

HEYFORD, PURCELL, or LOWER, co. Oxford.

P. T. Bicester (54) 6 m. WNW. Pop. 495.

A parish in the hundred of Ploughley ; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford ; valued in K. B. 10l. 13s. 1d½. ; church ded. to St. Mary ; patron, Corpus Christi College, Oxford.

HEYFORD, UPPER, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (66) 7 m. W. Pop. 122.

A township in the parishes of Bugbrook, Flower, and Nether Heywood and hundred of Nobottle Grove.

HEYFORD, WARREN, or UPPER, co. Oxford.

P. T. Bicester (54) 16 m. NW b W. Pop. 257.

A parish in the hundred of Ploughley ; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford ; valued in K. B. 13l. 16s. 0½d. ; church ded. to St. Mary ; patron, New College, Oxford.

HEY HOUSES, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Clitheroe (217) 4 m. SE. Pop. 197.

A township in the parish of Whalley and hundred of Blackburn, and the first that was built in the wild forest of Pendle.

HEYNSTOWN, or HAINSTOWN, co. Louth, Leinster, I.

P. T. Dundalk (51) 2 m. S. Pop. 473.

A parish in the barony of Dundalk; living, a rectory in the diocese and archdiocese of Armagh. It does not possess church, parsonage, or glebe.

HEYOP, co. Radnor, S. W.

P. T. Knighton (165) 3 m. W. Pop. 164.

A parish in the hundred of Knighton, situated upon the river Temè; living, a disrectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 103*l.* 6*s.* The area of the parish extends over a space of four miles in length by three in breadth, and is all under cultivation.

HEYSHAM, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Lancaster (240) 4½ m. W. Pop. 540.

A parish in the hundred of Lonsdale, south of the Sands; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Rev. T. Clarkson. Here are the remains of a chapel ded. to St. Patrick, which appears to have been of Norman architecture, the entrance door-way having a semicircular arch, ornamented with fluted mouldings.

HEYSHOT, co. Sussex.

P. T. Midhurst (50) 2½ m. SSE. Pop. 300.

A parish in the hundred of Easebourne, rape of Chichester; living, a rectory with that of Stedham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester, not in charge; patronage with Stedham rectory.

HEYTESBURY, co. Wilts.

Pop. 5145.

A central hundred verging to the south-western corner of the county, and to the west of Salisbury Plain, containing fourteen parishes, including the borough from which it takes its name.

HEYTESBURY, co. Wilts.

London 92 m. WSW. Pop. 1329. Fairs, May 11, for horned cattle, sheep, and toys; and Sept. 25, for toys. Memb. of Pt. 2.

A borough and parish in the hundred of the same name, situated near the river Willy, and on the borders of Salisbury Plain. The town, consisting of one long street, is neat and well built, most of the old buildings having been destroyed by fire in 1766. A considerable woollen-manufacture established here employs a large portion of the population of this town. It formerly had a market, which, from the contiguity of Warminster, has altogether declined. Heytesbury is a borough by prescriptive right, and is governed by a bailiff and burgesses. It sends two members to Parliament, which privilege it has possessed since the reign of Henry VI. The elective franchise is vested in the burgrave holders, and the bailiff is the returning-officer. The petty sessions for the hundred are holden here. The livings are two curacies, and peculiars of the Dean of Salisbury; of the certified value of 15*l.* and 38*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.* The latter belongs to an hospital, founded by Walter, Lord Hungerford, lord high treasurer of England, for twelve poor men and a woman. Patrons of the former, the Dean of Salisbury; of the latter, the Chancellor of Salisbury, if resident, otherwise the Dean and Chapter. The church, ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul, is a massive structure, which was formerly collegiate, still having four prebends in the patronage of Salisbury. Here is a freeschool, with a house adjoining for the master, which was built by Walter, Lord Hungerford. The neighbourhood of Heytesbury is remarkable for its antiquities, consisting chiefly of ancient fortifications of the Britons, Romans, Saxons, and Dances. It has latterly given title to the Acourt family.

HEYTHORPE, co. Oxford.

P. T. Chipping-Norton (71) 3 m. E b N.

Pop. with Dunthorpe, 136.

A parish in the hundred of Wootton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 11*s.* 10½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patroness (1829) Miss Vernon. Here is the seat of the Earl of Shrewsbury, which is a beautiful mansion, surrounded by an extensive park. The approach is planted with fine rows of trees, having a very good effect, and pleasantly screening the road.

HEYWOOD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Bury (195) 3 m. E b S. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Bury and hundred of Salford; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 8*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 111*l.* 10*s.*; patron, the Rev. G. Hornby.

HIBALDSTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Gleanford Bridge (150) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 522.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to St. Hibald; patron, the Rev. J. de Chair.

HICKLETON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Doncaster (102) 4 m. W b N. Pop. 153.

A parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 4*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; church ded. to St. Denis; patron (1829) G. W. Wentworth, Esq.

HICKLING, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Cottishall (116) 11 m. ENE. Pop. 670.

A parish in the hundred of Happing; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) N. Micklethwayte, Esq.

HICKLING, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Nottingham (124) 11 m. SE. Pop. 497.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Bingham, supposed to have been a Roman station, in the neighbourhood of the Fosseyway; in confirmation of which, Roman coins have been discovered here; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 18*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Queen's College, Cambridge.

HIDCOATE BATRIM, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Chipping-Campden (90) 3 m. N. b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Mickleton and upper division of the hundred of Kiftsgate.

HIDE, or HIDE'S PASTURES, co. Warwick.

P. T. Nuneaton (100) 2 m. E.
Pop. with Hinckley, co. Leicester.

An extra-parochial liberty in the Kirby division of the hundred of Knightlow.

HIDE, WEST, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 8 m. ENE. Pop. 193.

A parochial chapelry in the hundred of Radlow; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Stoke Edith, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Bartholomew; patronage with Stoke Edith rectory.

HIGH, co. Radnor, S. W.

P. T. Presteign (151) m. Pop. 561.

A ward in the parish of Presteign and hundred of Radnor, united in the parliamentary returns with the ward of St. David's.

HIGHAM, co. Derby.

London 142 m. NNW. Pop. 591. M.D. Fri.
Fairs, 1st Wed. aft. New Year's day.

A market-town and hamlet in the parish of Shirland and hundred of Scarsdale.

HIGHAM, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Gloucester (104) 2 m. WNW.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Churcham and lower division of the hundred of Dudstone and King's Barton.

HIGHAM, or LILLECHURCH, co. Kent.

P. T. Rochester (29) 4 m. NNW. Pop. 568.

A parish in the hundred of Sharnwell, lathes of Aylesford; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 10*s.*; patron, St. John's College, Cambridge. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, is a spacious structure. Here was formerly a nunnery of the Benedictine order, founded by King Stephen in 1151, and was suppressed in 1521, in consequence of the abandoned character of the sisterhood.

HIGHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Hadleigh (64) 5 m. S. Pop. 202.

A parish in the hundred of Samford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, Feoffees.

HIGHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmund's (71) 7 m. W b N.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Gazeley and hundred of Lackford.

HIGHAM, or HIGHAM BOOTH, co. Pal.

of Lancaster.

P. T. Burnley (211) 4 m. NW. Pop. 891.

A township in the parish of Whalley and hundred of Blackburn.

HIGHAM DYKES co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 10 m.
NW b N. Pop. 23.

A township in the parish of Ponteland and west division of Castle ward.

HIGHAM FERRERS, co. Northampton.

Pop. 7569.

A hundred situated at the eastern extremity of the county bordering upon Bedfordshire and Huntingdonshire, containing thirteen parishes, including the borough from which it takes its name.

HIGHAM FERRERS, co. Northampton.

London 65 m. NNW. Pop. 877. M. D. Sat. Fairs, Tues. before Feb. 5; March 7; or in Leap Year, March 6; Thurs. before May 12; June 28; Thurs. before Aug. 5; for horses and horned cattle; Oct. 11, for horses, horned cattle, sheep, and hogs; St. Catherine, Dec. 6, for horses, horned cattle, and sheep. Memb. of Pt. 1.

A borough, market-town, and parish, in the hundred of the same name, but having separate jurisdiction, situated on a rocky elevation, abounding with springs. The town is small, but from its situation, particularly clean and salubrious; it consists of three streets, one of which is called the Market-stead, and in which is an ancient stone cross, with emblematical figures of the crucifixion. Higham is a borough, by prescriptive right, and sends one member to Parliament, having been incorporated in the reign of Philip and Mary. The elective franchise is vested in all the inhabitants, except paupers. It is governed by a mayor, who is the returning officer, seven aldermen, and thirteen capital burgesses. The aldermen are chosen from the burgesses, and the mayor is annually elected from the aldermen. He holds a court every three weeks, and has the power of determining all actions of debt under the sum of 40*l.* The living is a vicarage with the curacy of Chelveston, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; certified value 33*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.*; patron (1829) Earl Fitzwilliam. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a handsome structure, consisting of a nave, chancel, and aisles, with a fine lofty spire, erected in 1632, the original having fallen down. Here an hospital was founded, in 1422, by Henry Chicheley, Archbishop of Canterbury, who was a native of this place, for eight secular canons. The building has been converted into an inn, and the endowment appropriated to the benefit of the freeschool, which is a handsome stone building. The same beneficent individual founded an almshouse for twelve poor men and a woman. He was also the founder of St. John's and All Souls' Colleges, Oxford. Here was formerly a castle, which is supposed to have been erected by Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, grandson of Henry III., who obtained the lordship in the reign of that monarch.

IIIGHAM GOBION, co. Bedford.

P. T. Silsoe (40) 3 m. SE b S. Pop. 80.

A parish in the hundred of Flitt; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*; patron (1829) R. Lee, Esq. This place is celebrated for having been the retreat and burial-place of the celebrated Dr. Edmund Castell, the great orientalist.

IIIGHAM GREEN, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Newmarket (61) 5 m. E. Pop. 270.

A hamlet in the parish of Gazeley and hundred of Risbridge.

IIIGHAM-ON-THE-HILL, co. Leicester.

P. T. Hinckley (60) 3½ m. W b N.

Pop. with Lindley, 533.

A parish in the hundred of Sparkenhoe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 9*s.* 4½*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Thomas Fisher, Esq.

IIIGHAM PARK, co. Northampton.

P. T. Higham Ferrers (63) 3½ m. SSE.

Pop. 14.

An extra-parochial liberty in the hundred of Higham Ferrers.

IIIGH BRAY, co. Devon.

P. T. South Molton (178) 6 m. N b W.

Pop. 278.

A parish in the hundred of Sherwell; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with the King, by lunacy of the patron.

HIGHCLERE, co. Southampton.

P. T. Whitechurch (56) 8½ m. N b W.

Pop. 437.

A parish in the hundred of Evingar, Kingsclere division; living, a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) the Earl of Carnarvon.

HIGHGATE, co. Middlesex.

London 4 m. NNW. Pop. with St. Pancras and Hornsey Pa.

A populous village or hamlet, in the parishes of Hornsey and St. Pancras, and in Holborn division of the hundred of Ossulston. This place is supposed to have owed its origin and name to the erection of a toll-gate, by order of the Bishop of London, lord of the manor of Hornsey, on a new road being made in this direction from London to Barnet. The time when this happened is uncertain; but it must have been before 1386, when Bishop Braybroke committed the custody of his chapel at Highgate, near the park, to William Litchfield, a poor infirm hermit, for his support. During the insurrection of the common people of Kent, in 1461, Thomas Thorpe, Baron of the Exchequer, was seized and beheaded by the insurgents at Highgate. The church was erected as a chapel of ease to Hornsey, by the Bishop of London and Sir R. Cholmeley, in 1565. Adjoining to it is a freeschool, founded by the latter, and rebuilt in 1819. It was designed as a seminary for instruction in classical literature, by its founder, who endowed it with property now of considerable value; but, like many other institutions for the gratuitous education of youth, it has been greatly perverted from its original purpose. In consequence, however, of the representations of the parliamentary commissions for the investigation of public charities, it is again to be made a free grammar-school, and a new charity-school has been erected at the foot of Highgate Hill, for children of that class, to which the old foundation had been appropriated. Highgate has been the scene of an odd practice of imposing on travellers, at the several inns, a ludicrous kind of oath, accompanied with ceremonies of characteristic absurdity. The oath was to be taken on a pair of stags' horns, to which allusion occurs in the form of swearing, the description of which is unnecessary, it having very properly become obsolete. It is worth notice, however, that the origin of the custom has never been traced, nor can any thing but conjecture be offered relative to its object or intention; and perhaps the most probable one is, that it was meant as a parody on the ancient religious custom of swearing on sanctified relics. A few years since, an act of Parliament was obtained for making a tunnel through Highgate Hill to the east of the village, for the passage of the road from London to Barnet. In the progress of the undertaking, the superincumbent mass fell into the passage; in consequence of which the plan was altered, an open road being cut through the hill, and a bridge or arched way erected over that part of it across which passes the road from Highgate to Hornsey. A little to the south of this arched way stands the Mercers' Hospital, or Almshouse, a handsome modern structure, in the Tudor style of architecture, consisting of three sides of an open quadrangle, with a chapel in the centre.

HIGHLANDS of Scotland.

SW. to NE. 200 m. SE. to NW. 80 to 100 m.

A term applied to the north-west grand division of Scotland, in contradistinction to the other on the south-east, which is designated the Lowlands. It comprehends the whole of that wild and mountainous tract stretching from Dumbarton and the Grampians to the northern extremity of the island, including also the Hebrides; and is subdivided into—1. The North Highlands, which comprise the shires of Caithness, Inverness, Ross, and Sutherland, the ancient districts of Athol and Rannoch; with the isles of Skye, Lewis, and a few of lesser note. 2. The Central Highlands, consisting of the districts of Breadalbane, Marr, and Monteith. And 3. The West Highlands, containing the shires of Dumbarton and Bute, part of Argyll, and Perth, and the rest of the Hebrides. This extensive region is in many places deeply indented by the sea, and intersected by considerable chains of lakes, forming various natural divisions of the country; of these the most remarkable is that through which passes the Grand Caledonian Canal, and which extends seventy miles in almost a right line south-west, from Inverness on the Moray Firth to Fort William, where it joins an arm of the Atlantic, termed Loch Linnhé; and that running in a north-westerly direction also from the Moray Firth, and terminating at Loch Loxford on the same sea. The Highlands have been likened by some to the Moorlands in Yorkshire, though in altitude and general grandeur of scenery, the latter bear no comparison to the former. The principal ridges are the Grampians, running in a north-easterly direction from the Western Ocean to Aberdeen, and the Ardross Hills in Rosshire. Some of the mountains rise to the stupendous height of 4000 feet above the level of the sea, depriving the intervening valleys of the genial influence of the sun for several successive months in the year. Many of these vales are occupied by vast lakes, whence spring some of the largest rivers of Scotland, such as the Forth, the Spey, and the Tay; which precipitating their streams from these immense heights descend with astonishing force and rapidity towards the ocean, into which the Tay discharges a greater quantity of water, perhaps, than any other river of Great Britain. A singular plain, twenty miles square, which from the morassy nature of its soil is incapable of cultivation, and consequently destitute of inhabitants, forms the summit of those lofty mountains that connect the hills of Glen Lyon with Ben Nevis; and there is another district, quite dissimilar to this though equally remarkable, lying about twenty-four miles along the north-west coast as far as Loch Inchord, which is infinitely more rugged than any other to be met with in the island, and conveys the idea of a multitude of mountains rent in pieces and the fragments indiscriminately scattered over its surface. Interspersed among these huge rocks are innumerable lakes, verdant patches studded with a dwarf kind of birch, here and there a cottage, with distant views of the ocean, caught through the various openings in the general mass, exhibiting a combination of romantic scenery, strikingly picturesque and perhaps unrivalled. Of the ancient forests those of Marr and Rannoch now present the most considerable remains, and in many places are to be traced vestiges of volcanic eruptions. Fine specimens of the topaz are met with in the mountains, while, mixed with the sand on the sea-shores, are sometimes discovered rubies, hyacinths, &c., and the rivers abound with the great horse-muscle enclosing pearls of great value. Rough and sterile as is the general character of the country, defying almost every human effort to ameliorate its soil, the principal nobility and gentry have lately formed themselves into what is termed the Highland Society of Scotland, for the encouragement of agriculture and improving the breed of sheep and cattle, and by awarding premiums, &c. to the most industrious, their exertions are likely to be crowned with success. The means of access from the Lowlands so recently as a century ago were extremely limited, and in fact for the greater part of the year impassable, so that the Highlanders enjoyed but little intercourse with their more civilized neighbours till 1726, when, by a commission of George I., the formation of spacious military ways, bridges, &c. commenced under the direction of General Wade, who, with the assistance of only five hundred soldiers, completed in about eleven years three lines of road, entering the mountains respectively at Crieff, Dunkeld and Luss, the length of which taken together is 250 miles, and from which numerous branch-roads, communicating with the firths, lochs, and navigable rivers, have since been constructed so as to render available the produce of the fisheries, mines, and woods, with other natural productions of the country, and the agricultural pursuits of the inhabitants; as well as to facilitate the introduction of the arts and every description of trade and commerce amongst them. The Highlands, in common with the rest of North Britain, were first peopled about 200 B. C. by the Cimbric, from the Cimbric Chersonesus (Denmark) who subsequently gave way to the Caledonians or Picts from Norway, and these, according to the Romans, to the Attacotti, who in the middle of the third century passed from Ireland into Argyll, drove the former southward, and became the germ of the Highlanders as the preceding tribes had already become that of the Lowlanders, in proof of which they have ever used the Scandinavian dialect, while the Highlanders speak only the Celtic, a language hitherto preserved to them by their invulnerable fastnesses amidst the various alterations and convulsions that have occurred in all ages over every other part of Great Britain. The same causes have also secured to them most of their ancient customs, particularly that of dress, which bears a striking similarity to the Roman costume, consisting of a jacket, a kilt, or petticoat, reaching to the knees, with a pouch made of the skin of some wild animal, ornamented with silver trinkets, hanging in front, and used as a depository for money, tobacco, &c.; and over these the plaid of twelve or more yards of cloth, which is tastefully wrapped about the body and fastened round the middle by a girdle, and to the left shoulder by a brooch, or silver pin, the drapery falling gracefully behind to the bend of the knee. These garments are made of a chequered woollen cloth, termed Tartan, woven in various colours, the green predominating, each clan being distinguished by its own pattern, as well as by different symbols worn in the cap or bonnet. The hose which completes this picturesque habili-ment is usually woven in small diamond-like figures, alternately red and white, and is gartered below the knee. Their arms were the broad sword, target, Lochaber axe, and dagger, with pistols, a later addition carried in the belt, until an act passed in 1748 for abolishing the feudal system and disarming them. Addicted to war from the earliest times, the Highlanders have been always deemed a brave and hardy race, and not wanting either in hospitality or other good qualities. They existed chiefly by the chase and in predatory warfare with their neighbours before the reign of Fingal in the second century, but afterwards led a pastoral and more peaceful life, though agriculture was neglected and the breeding of cattle not so much attended to as now. This state of repose, however, was entirely broken in 845, when the conquest of the Picts was effected by Kenneth II., from which period may be dated a woful decline in the virtues of the Highlanders, their country having become the scene of rapine and fraud between hostile clans led on by chieftains, who, each to extend his own authority, formed factions, fomented divisions, and threw it into anarchy and confusion. Thus was the original character of the people completely changed to that of a lawless banditti; but since the abolition of heritable jurisdictions, and the regular establishment of the laws, they have armed themselves, in the true spirit of their ancestors, with justice, benevolence, and friendship, virtues at present nowhere more conspicuous than here. In the family of each chieftain, songs setting forth the valorous achievements of the house, were sung by the bard to the music of his harp, an instrument that has long given place to the more warlike sound of the bagpipe, to which they now dance their favourite strathspeys and use it at their funeral dances, which, with certain other festivals of remote origin, are still kept up. Their games are manly, consisting of feats in which strength and dexterity bear the palm of victory, and they yet labour under many superstitions, and especially retain a belief of fairies, though other ridiculous notions are rapidly wearing away in exact proportion with the manners of their progenitors. The Highlander is of middle size and muscular, remarkably active, persevering, and adventurous; quick and penetrating, capable of bearing almost incessant fatigue, and therefore admirably adapted for the army or navy, in which he ranks with the best soldier or sailor of the empire. Cattle is the staple commodity in the Highlands, and although many farms have been lately converted into sheep-pastures, the country produces grain sufficient for home consumption, including that used in distilling immense quantities of whiskey. The habitations are miserable huts, rudely formed of rough stones and layers of turf, with thatched roofs; they are usually divided by wicker-work into two apartments, one for the use of the family, the other for housing the cattle and poultry, the former having an aperture in the roof to give vent to the smoke issuing from the fire in the centre of the room, where their simple repasts of oatmeal and milk are prepared, flesh, excepting at Christmas, seldom forming a part of their diet.

HIGH LAWS, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 2½ m. NNW.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Mitford and west division of Morpeth ward.

HIGH LAWS, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 9½ m. W b S. Pop. 27.

A township in the parish of Hartburn and west division of Morpeth ward.

HIGH WEEK, co. Devon.

P. T. Abbot's Newton (188) 1½ m. W b N.
Pop. 907.

A parish in the hundred of Teignbridge; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of King's Teignton, in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; patronage with King's Teignton vicarage.

HIGH PEAK, co. Derby.

Pop. 43,136.

A hundred, comprising the north-western part of the county, containing twelve parishes, including the market-towns of Bakewell Chapel-en-le-Frith and Tideswell, thirty-two townships, and nineteen chapelrys.

HIGHLEY, co. Salop.

P. T. Bridgenorth (139) 7 m. S b E.
Pop. 424.

A parish in the hundred of Stottesden, situated near the river Severn; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 5l. 19s. 2d.; ann. val. P. R. 127l. 10s.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) J. Fleming, LL.D.

HIGHLIGHT, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Cardiff (160) 7 m. SW. Pop. 24.

An extra-parochial district in the hundred of Dinas Powis, occupying an area of 400 acres, and adjacent to the parish and church of Merthyr Dofan.

HIGHLOW, co. Derby.

P. T. Tideswell (160) 6 m. N b E. Pop. 36.

A township in the parish of Hope and hundred of High Peak.

HIGHWAY, co. Wilts.

P. T. Calne (87) 4½ m. NE. Pop. 109.

A parish in the hundred of Potterne and Cannings; living, a curacy with the vicarage of Bremhill, in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; patronage with Bremhill vicarage.

HIGHWOOD HILL, co. Middlesex.

London 12 m. NW b N. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Hendon and hundred of Gore. Here is a chalybeate mineral water.

HIL

HIGHWORTH, CRICKLADE, and STAPLE, co. Wilts.

Pop. 11,661.

A hundred at the northern extremity of the county, bordering upon Berkshire and Gloucestershire, containing nineteen parishes, including the towns of Cricklade and Highworth.

HIGHWORTH, co. Wilts.

London 77 m. W b N. Pop. of Pa. 3005. Of To. 1888. M. D. Wed. Fairs, Aug. 13, and Oct. 10 and 20, for all sorts of cattle, pigs, sheep, and horses.

A market-town, parish, and township, in the hundred of Highworth, Cricklade, and Staple, situated on an eminence near the vale of White Horse, and commanding fine views over the adjacent country. It is supposed to have been formerly a borough, and is now governed by a mayor and an alderman; the petty sessions are held here, and a fixed pillory is preserved in the market-place. The living is a dis. vicarage, with the curacy of Sevenhampton, and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 44l. 8s. 4d.; patron, the Prebend of Highworth, in Salisbury cathedral. The church, which is dedicated to St. Michael, is an ancient structure, consisting of a nave two side-aisles, a chancel, and two small oratories or chapels, one of which is hung with pieces of ancient armour, and contains several curious monuments. On Blunsdon Castle-hill, in this parish, are the remains of a Roman encampment; and a Roman road passes close under the hill.

HILARY, ST. co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Cowbridge (172) 1 m. SE. Pop. 168.

A parish in the hundred of Cowbridge, living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; ann. val. P. R. 37l. 14s.; patrons, the Bishop, Archdeacon, and Chapter of Llandaff. Area of parish about 900 acres. It is an agricultural district merely.

HILCOATE, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Chipping-Campden (90) 2½ m. NE. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Ebrington and upper division of the hundred of Kiftsgate.

HILDEN, co. Kent.

P. T. Tunbridge (30) 1 m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Tunbridge and Lowey of Tunbridge, lathe of Aylesford.

HILDERSHAM, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Linton (48) 1 m. N. Pop. 102.

A parish in the hundred of Chilford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 15l. 0s. 5d.; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron (1829) the Rev. Charles Goodwin.

HILDERSTONE, co. Stafford.

P. T. Stone (241) 2 m. ENE. Pop. 1891.

A liberty in the parish of Stone and south division of the hundred of Pirehill.

TOROE. Dict.—Vol. II.

HIL

HILDERTHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Bridlington (206) 2½ m. S b W. Pop. 51.

A township in the parish of Bridlington and wapentake of Dickering.

HILFIELD, co. Dorset.

P. T. Sherborne (117) 0 m. S. Pop. 127.

A parochial chapelry in the hundred of Cerne, Totcombe, and Modbury, Sherborne division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Sydling St. Nicholas, in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol, not in charge; patronage with Sydling vicarage.

HILGAY, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Market Downham (94) 4 m. S b E. Pop. 909.

A parish in the hundred of Clackclose; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10l.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the King, by reason of simony.

HILL, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Thornbury (120) 3 m. NNE. Pop. 209.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Berkeley; living, a donative in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; certified value 32l.; ann. val. P. R. 107l.; church ded. to St. Michael; patroness (1829) Miss Langley.

HILL, co. Lincoln.

Pop. 3175.

A hundred situated on the east side of the county, parts of Lindsey, containing twenty parishes.

HILL, co. Worcester.

P. T. Pershore (106) 3 m. NE b E. Pop. with Moor, 295.

A township in the parish of Fladbury and middle division of the hundred of Oswaldslow.

HILL DEVERILL, co. Wilts.

P. T. Warminster (96) 3½ m. S. Pop. 135.

A parish in the hundred of Heytesbury; livings, a prebend in the church of Heytesbury, and a curacy, peculiars of the Dean of Salisbury; the former valued in K. B. 10l. 4s. 2d., and the latter not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 30l.; patrons, of the former, the Dean of Salisbury, as Dean of Heytesbury; of the latter, the Prebendary.

HILL END, co. Berks.

P. T. Abingdon (56) 5 m. NNW. Pop. 102.

A tithing in the parish of Cumner and hundred of Hormer.

HILL FARENCE, co. Somerset.

P. T. Taunton (141) 4 m. W. Pop. 493.

A parish in the hundred of Taunton and Taunton Dean; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; certified value 12l.; ann. val. P. R. 104l.; patron, Trinity College, Oxford.

HILL HAMPTON, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) 6½ m. NW b W. Pop. 138.

A hamlet in the parish of Martley and lower division of the hundred of Doddingtree.

HILL MARTON, co. Wilts.

P. T. Calne (87) $\frac{3}{4}$ m. NNE. Pop. 787.

A parish in the hundred of Kingsbridge; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Laurence; patron, the King.

HILL MORTON, co. Warwick.

P. T. Rugby (83) 3 m. E. Pop. 770.

A parish in Rugby division of the hundred of Knightlow, situated partly on a hill, and partly on a rivulet, which comes from Crook, in Northamptonshire, and falls into the Avon; the part standing on the bank was anciently called Hull, and the other in the valley, Moreton, from which combination its name is derived. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 88*l.* 14*s.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patroness (1829) Baroness Grey de Ruthyn.

HILLAM, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Ferrybridge (177) $\frac{3}{4}$ m. NNE. Pop. 260.

A township in the parish of Monk Fryston and lower division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash.

HILLARY, ST. co. Cornwall.

P. T. Marazion (281) $\frac{2}{3}$ m. ENE. Pop. 2811.

A parish in the east division of the hundred of Penwith; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 6*s.* 0*d.*; patroness (1829) Mrs. Beard.

HILLBECK, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Brough (261) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. NNE. Pop. 101.

A township in the parish of Brough, east ward, situated at the foot of Hillbeck Fell, and a range of lofty limestone scars, over which the water occasionally rushes down from the hills with tremendous fury. In this neighbourhood is a large coal-mine.

HILLSBOROUGH, or HILBURGH, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Swaffham (93) 6 m. S. Pop. 340.

A parish in the hundred of South Greenhoe; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Earl Nelson.

HILLCOT, co. Wilts.

P. T. Pewsey (76) $\frac{3}{4}$ m. W b S. Pop. with North Newton.

A tithing in the parish of North Newton and hundred of Swanborough.

HILLESDEN, or HILLESDON, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Buckingham (88) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 247.

A parish in the hundred of Buckingham; living, a donative in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 30*l.* 5*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 42*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, Christ Church, Oxford.

HILLESLEY, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Wootton-under-Edge (108) 3 m. S. Pop. 800.

A tithing and chapelry in the parish of Hawkesbury and upper division of the hundred of Grumbald's Ash; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Hawkesbury, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; certified value 6*l.*; patronage with Hawkesbury vicarage.

HILLINGDON, co. Middlesex.

P. T. Uxbridge (15) 1 m. SE. Pop. with Uxbridge, 4030.

A parish in the hundred of Elthorne; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacy of Uxbridge, in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 16*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, the Bishop of London. On the heath is an elegant mansion in the Italian style, built for Count de Salis, an Italian nobleman.

HILLINGTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Castle Rising (100) 4 m. E. Pop. 232.

A parish in Lynn division and hundred of Freebridge; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir W. I. B. Folkes, Bart.

HILLINGTON, or HELGHETON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Norwich (108) 7 m. SE. Pop. 63.

A parish in the hundred of Loddon; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Ashby, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patronage with Ashby rectory.

HILLSBOROUGH, co. Down, Ulster, I.

Dublin 88 m. Pop. of Pa. 4681. Of To. 1428. Fairs, 3d Wed. in Feb., May, Aug., and Nov.

A town and parish in the barony of Lower Iveagh. The town is agreeably situated upon a gentle eminence; it consists of one broad avenue, in which are the market-house, a handsome and spacious inn, the handsomest country church in Ireland, adorned with three spires, a Roman Catholic chapel, and several good dwelling-houses. Here is the mansion of the Marquis of Downshire, one front of which stands in the main street. His lordship and his predecessors have bestowed much attention on the improvement of this place. The church was built by Lord Hillsborough, at an expense of 15,000*l.*; and the many additional and subsequent improvements, effected here by the noble proprietor, have rendered this one of the handsomest little towns in the kingdom. The living is a rectory in the diocese of Down and archdiocese of Armagh, united to the rectories of Drumboe, Drumbeg, and Killelief, composing thereby the corps of the archdeaconry of Down. It possesses a church and a rectory, upon a glebe of thirty-five acres. Linen and muslin are manufactured here. This was formerly a borough, and retains yet its government, consisting of a sovereign and his deputy. The family of Hill take the title of Earl from this place; and the Marquis of Downshire is hereditary constable of the castle, or fort.

HILLTOWN, shire of Ross, S.

Pop. with Pa.

A small fishing-village in the parish of Fearn, situated on the shore of the Moray Firth.

HILPERTON, or HELPRINGTON, co. Wilts.

P. T. Trowbridge (99) 1 m. NE. Pop. 904.

A parish in the hundred of Melksham; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 167.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) E. E. Heathcote, Esq.

HILSTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Kingston-upon-Hull (274) 14 m. ENE. Pop. 39.

A parish in the middle division of the wapentake of Holderness; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 57.; ann. val. P. R. 597.; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron (1829) the Rev. C. Sykes.

HILTON, shire of Berwick, S.

P. T. Berwick-upon-Tweed (337) 8 m. WSW. Pop. with Whitsome.

An ancient parish united in 1735 to that of Whitsome. The church is in ruins and the village depopulated, but the soil is extremely productive.

HILTON, co. Derby.

P. T. Dorby (126) 8 m. WSW. Pop. 533.

A township in the parish of Marston-upon-Dove and hundred of Appletree, situated on a small branch of the river Trent. On a hill of gypsum in this village are the ruins of Tutbury Castle.

HILTON, or HELTON, co. Dorset.

P. T. Blandford Forum (103) 8½ m. WSW. Pop. 610.

A parish in the hundred of Whiteway, Sherborne division; living, a vicarage and a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Bishop of Salisbury.

HILTON, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Sunderland (268) 3 m. WNW. Pop. 320.

A township in the parish of Monk Wearmouth and east division of Chester ward. Hilton Castle is an ancient baronial mansion, situated in a large park, in a beautiful vale on the river Wear, and long the residence of the famous family of that name.

HILTON, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Barnard Castle (90) 8½ m. E b N. Pop. 113.

A township in the parish of Staindrop and south-west division of Darlington ward.

HILTON, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. St. Ives (59) 2½ m. SSW. Pop. 303.

A parish in the hundred of Toseland; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Fen Stanton, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patronage with Fen Stanton vicarage.

HILTON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Wolverhampton (123) 4½ m. NE b N. Pop. 55.

A township in the parish of Wolverhampton and east division of the hundred of Cuttlegate. Here was formerly an abbey of Cistercian monks, in 1223.

HILTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Yarm (237) 3½ m. ESE. Pop. 135.

A parish in the west division of the liberty of Langbaugh; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; certified value 57. 9s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 477.; patron (1829) Lord G. H. Cavendish.

HILTON, LITTLE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Great Bolton (197) 2 m. SW b W. Pop. 2405.

A township in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford.

HILTON, MIDDLE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Great Bolton (197) 2 m. SW b W. Pop. 938.

A township in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford.

HILTON, OVER, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Great Bolton (197) 2 m. SW b W. Pop. 591.

A township in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford.

HIMBLETON, co. Worcester.

P. T. Droitwich (116) 4 m. SE. Pop. 482.

A parish in the middle division of the hundred of Oswaldslow; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 87. 6s. 10½d.; ann. val. P. R. 1357.; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Worcester.

HIMLEY, co. Stafford.

P. T. Dudley (119) 4 m. W. Pop. 379.

A parish in the north division of the hundred of Seisdon; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 37. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) Earl Dudley. Here is a mill where agricultural tools, after being forged, are ground to a fine edge.

HINCASTER, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kendal (202) 6 m. S. Pop. 129.

A township in the parish of Heversham, Kendal ward.

HINCHINBROOK, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Huntingdon (59) ½ m. W. Pop. with Pa.

A liberty partly in the parish of St. Mary, partly extra-parochial, partly within the jurisdiction of the town of Huntingdon, and partly in the hundred of Hurstingstone, situated on an eminence commanding beautiful views over a fine expanse of country. Hinchinbrook House stands on the site of a Benedictine nunnery, and was the residence of Sir Oliver Cromwell, who entertained King James I. in a most sumptuous manner on his journey from Edinburgh to London.

HINCKFORD, co. Essex.

Pop. 35,980.

A hundred in the northern border of the county, being separated from Suffolk by the river Stour, containing forty-eight parishes.

HINCKLEY, co. Leicester.

London 99 m. NW b N. Pop. 6706. M. D. Mon. Fairs, first, second, and third Mon. after Epiphany; Easter Mon.; Mon. before Whit Mon.; for horses, cows, and sheep; Whit Mon. in the morning, for horses, cows, &c., in the afternoon, for toys, &c.; Aug. 28; and Monday after Oct. 28, for cheese, &c.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Sparkenhoe, situated on an eminence near the borders of Warwickshire, and commanding a view of fifty churches; it was formerly surrounded by a wall and deep ditch, traces of which are still to be seen. It has a very extensive stocking-manufacture, which gives employment to nearly 3000 persons. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Westminster. The church, which is ded. to St. Mary, is an ancient and spacious edifice. Here is a Roman Catholic chapel, and four dissenting meeting-houses. The ancient town-hall, school-house and ball-room are very curious, but in a dilapidated condition. Here was formerly a castle on the site of which a noble mansion has been built. Near the river are the remains of a Roman fortification. A priory of Benedictine monks was founded here by the Earl of Leicester about 1173. At a short distance from Hinckley is a spring called the Holy Well, originally dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and formerly known by the name of Our Lady's Well, and several other mineral springs are found in the vicinity.

HINCKLEY BOND, co. Leicester.

P. T. Hinckley (99) m. adjacent. Pop. 4216.

A township in the parish of Hinckley and hundred of Sparkenhoe.

HINDERCLAY, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury-St.-Edmunds (71) 1½ m. NE b E. Pop. 403.

A parish in the hundred of Blackburn; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) G. St. Vincent Wilson, Esq.

HINDERWELL, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Whitby (236) 9 m. NW b W. Pop. of Pa. 1719. Of To. 1483.

A parish and township in the east division of the liberty of Langbaugh; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; church ded. to St. Hilda; patron (1829) Thomas Smith, Esq.

HINDLEY, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Wigan (200) 4½ m. ESE. Pop. 3757.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Wigan and hundred of West-Derby; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 38*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 114*l.* 5*s.*; patron, the Rector of Wigan. Here is the celebrated burning well, the water of which is cold, but on applying a lighted candle to the surface, a large flame is produced, but the water will not burn when detached: carbonated hydrogen is supposed to be the inflammable principle of this phenomenon.

HINDLEY, COLD, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Wakefield (182) 5 m. SE b S. Pop. with Havercroft township.

A township in the parish of Felkirk and lower division of the wapentake of Staincross.

HINDLEY, NORTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnesley (172) 6 m. NE b N. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Felkirk and lower division of the wapentake of Staincross.

HINDLEY, SOUTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnesley (172) 6 m. NE b N. Pop. 166.

A township in the parish of Felkirk and lower division of the wapentake of Staincross.

HINDLIP, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) 3 m. NE b N. Pop. 129.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Oswaldslow; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 16*s.* 0½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) James West, Esq.

HINDOLVESTON, or HILDERSTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Reepham (111) 6 m. NW b N. Pop. 756.

A parish in the hundred of Eynesford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 45*l.*; church ded. to St. George; patron, the Dean and Chapter of Norwich.

HINDON, co. Wilts.

London 94 m. WSW. Pop. 830. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, May 27, and Oct. 29, for cattle, sheep, horses, swine, and cheese. Memb. of Pt. 2.

A borough, market-town, and township, in the parish of East-Knowle and hundred of Downton. The town, consisting of one street of considerable length, is built on the declivity of a gentle eminence. It was formerly noted for its manufacture of silk twist, which has now entirely declined, and it gains its support chiefly from travellers. It is a borough by prescriptive right, and is governed by a bailiff and burgesses. It has returned two members to Parliament since the reign of Henry VI.; the elective franchise is vested in the inhabitants residing within the borough not receiving alms; the bailiff is the returning-officer. The living is a curacy, subordinate to the rectory of East-Knowle, in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; patronage with East-Knowle rectory. The church, ded. to St. John the Baptist, is a neat modern structure. The petty sessions for the neighbouring part of the hundred are holden here. At a short distance from the town are some very evident traces of a considerable British village. Hindon was formerly the lordship of Thomas de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick. In the last century it gave the title of Baron to Henry Hyde, son of the Earl of Clarendon and Rochester.

HINDRINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Little Walsingham (113) 4 m. E b S. Pop. 637.

A parish in the hundred of North Greenhoe; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 9*l.*; church ded. to St. Martin; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Norwich.

HINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

London 100 m. NE b N. Pop. 1442. M. D. Sat. Fairs, March 7; Whit-Tues.; and Oct. 20; for toys, &c.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Forehoe, situated near the source of the river Yare. The town is irregularly built, but the houses are for the most part neat; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 24*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 29*l.* 5*s.*; patron (1829) Lord Wodehouse. The church, dedicated to St. Andrew, is a large handsome structure, with a lofty tower containing eight bells; it formerly had seven guilds, each having a stipendiary chaplain serving at the respective altars constituting a choir.

HINKSEY, NORTH, or LAWRENCE, co. Berks.

P. T. Oxford (54) 1½ m. W. Pop. 182.

A parish in the hundred of Hormer; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Cumner, in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 90*l.*; church ded. to St. Lawrence; patron, Earl Harcourt.

HINKSEY, SOUTH, co. Berks.

P. T. Oxford (54) 1½ m. S. Pop. 142.

A parish in the hundred of Hormer; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Cumner, in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 70*l.*; church ded. to St. John; patron, the Earl of Abingdon.

HINSTOCK, co. Salop.

P. T. Newport (142) 6 m. NNW. Pop. 671.

A parish in Drayton division of the hundred of Bradford, North; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 16*s.*; church ded. to St. Oswald; patron (1829) Sir A. Corbett, Bart.

HIINTLESHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Hadleigh (64) 4 m. E. Pop. 502.

A parish in the hundred of Samford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 33*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) William Deane, Esq.

HINTON, co. Gloucester.

• P. T. Berkeley (114) m. adjacent. Pop. 346.

A tithing in the parish and upper division of the hundred of Berkeley.

HINTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Chipping Sodbury, (108) 4½ m. S b E. Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish of Dirham and lower division of the hundred of Grumbald's Ash.

HINTON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Daventry (72) 9 m. SSW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Woodford and hundred of Chipping Warden.

HINTON, co. Salop.

P. T. Whitchurch (163) 1 m. NNE. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Whitchurch and Whitchurch division of the hundred of Bradford north.

HINTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Wells (120) 3 m. W b S. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Wookey and hundred of Wells Forum.

HINTON, co. Southampton.

P. T. Christchurch (99) 4 m. NE. Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish and hundred of Christchurch, New Forest west division.

HINTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Southwold (105) 4½ m. WSW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Blythburgh and hundred of Blything

HINTON, AMPNER, co. Southampton.

P. T. New Alresford (57) 4 m. S b E. Pop. 325.

A parish in the hundred of Fawley, Fawley division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 19*l.* 11*s.* 10½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Bishop of Winchester.

HINTON, BLEWET, or COLD HINTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Wells (120) 8 m. NNE. Pop. 204.

A parish in the hundred of Chewton; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Bath and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 8*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Rev. George Johnson.

HINTON, DAUBNEY, co. Southampton.

P. T. Petersfield (54) 8 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet, partly in the parish of Catherington, and partly in that of Hambledon.

HINTON, GREAT, co. Wilts.

P. T. Trowbridge (99) 3 m. Eb N. Pop. 202.

A tithing in the parish of Steeple Ashton and hundred of Whorwelsdown.

HINTON-ON-THE-GREEN, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Evesham (90) 3 m. SSW. Pop. 195.

A parish in the hundred of Tibaldstone; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 13*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) J. Baker, Esq.

HINTON-IN-THE-HEDGES, co. Northampton.

P. T. Brackley (63) 1½ m. W b S. Pop. 188.

A parish in the hundred of King's Sutton; living, a rectory with that of Stene, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron (1829) Earl Spencer.

HINTON, LITTLE, co. Wilts.

P. T. Swindon (83) 5 m. E. Pop. 281.

A parish in the hundred of Elstub and Everley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Swithin; patron, the Bishop of Winchester.

HINTON MARTEL, or MAGNA, co. Dorset.

P. T. Wimborne Minster (100) 4 m. N b E. Pop. 237.

A parish in the hundred of Badbury, Shaston division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 18*s.* 6½*d.*; church ded. to St. John; patron (1829) the Earl of Shaftesbury.

HINTON PARVA, or STANBRIDGE, co. Dorset.

P. T. Wimborne Minster (100) 2 m. N. Pop. 25.

A parish in the hundred of Badbury, Shaston division; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 86*l.*; patron (1829) Sir R. Carr Glyn, Bart.

HINTON, ST. GEORGE, co. Somerset.

P. T. Crewkerne (132) 3 m. NW b N. Pop. 737.

A parish in the hundred of Crewkerne; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; patron, Earl Powlett. The church, which is dedicated to St. George, consists of a nave, chancel, and side aisles, with a well constructed tower, containing five bells; it also possesses many ancient monuments. The views from this parish are very extensive and beautiful, and from one part both the North and South Seas are distinctly visible. Here is a large and magnificent seat, called Hinton St. George, surrounded by elegant parks and noble plantations.

HINTON, ST. MARY, co. Dorset.

P. T. Shaftesbury (101) 7 m. SW b W. Pop. 297.

A parish in the hundred of Sturminster

Newton Castle, Sherborne division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Iwerne Minster, in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol, not in charge; church ded. to St. Peter; patronage with Iwerne Minster.

HINTON, TARRANT, co. Dorset.

P. T. Blandford Forum (103) 5 m. NE. Pop. 278.

A parish in the hundred of Pimperne, Blandford division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.*; patron (1829) the Rev. William Pigott.

HINTON, ST. WALERY, co. Berks.

P. T. Great Farrington (63) 6 m. NE b E. Pop. 315.

A parish in the hundred of Gomfield; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 23*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron (1829) the Rev. J. Loder.

HINTS, co. Stafford.

P. T. Tamworth (114) 4 m. W b S. Pop. 250.

A parish in the south division of the hundred of Offlow, beautifully situated on the side of a considerable eminence which commands an extensive and luxuriant prospect. From its Saxon name, Hendon, signifying Old Town, it would appear to occupy the site of some ancient station. The living is a curacy and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield, of the certified value of 1*l.*; ann. val. 51*l.*; patron, the Prebendary of Hansacre in Lichfield cathedral. The church is a modern structure, built in the Grecian style of architecture, and contains several monuments. The original church, which was very ancient, contained a beautiful raised tomb in memory of one of the Bassets.

HINWICK, co. Bedford.

P. T. Higham Ferrers (65) 5 m. SSW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Paddington and hundred of Willey.

HINXHILL, co. Kent.

P. T. Ashford (33) 2 m. E b S. Pop. 146.

A parish in the hundred of Chart and Longbridge, lathe of Scray; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir J. C. Honeywood, Bart.

HINXTON, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Linton (48) 4½ m. WSW. Pop. 312.

A parish in the hundred of Whittlesford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 5*s.* 2½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 125*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Jesus College, Cambridge.

HINXWORTH, co. Hereford.

P. T. Baldock (37) 4½ m. N. Pop. 247.

A parish in the hundred of Odsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B.

16*l.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) Rev. John Lafont.

HIPPENSCOMBE, co. Wilts.

Pop. 46.

An extra parochial district in the hundred of Kinwardstone.

HIPPERHOLME, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Halifax (197) 2 m. ENE. Pop. 3036.

A township in the parish of Halifax and wapentake of Morley. Here is a freeschool, and in the vicinity are several elegant villas.

HIPSWELL, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Richmond (233) 2 m. SE b S. Pop. 273.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Catterick and wapentake of Hang East; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 9*l.* 13*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 55*l.*; patron, the Vicar of Catterick.

HIRNANT, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Llanfyllin (179) 8 m. NW. Pop. 280.

A parish in the hundred of Llanfyllin; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph, covering an extent of 3000 acres. Here is a tumulus, and also a mineral spring, the former probably commemorative, and the latter dedicated to Illog, the patron Saint. There are also two ancient intrenchments, the contributors of which are not known.

HISKEN, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Chorley (238) 4 m. WSW. Pop. 274.

A township in the parish of Eccleston and hundred of Leyland.

HISTON, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Cambridge (30) 4 m. NW b N. Pop. 678.

A village containing the united parishes of St. Andrew and St. Etheldreda, in the hundred of Chesterton; livings, two dis. vicarages in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.*; and 7*l.* 16*s.* 3*d.*; patron (1829) — Michael, Esq.

HITCHAM, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Maidenhead (26) 2 m. NE b E. Pop. 172.

A parish in the hundred of Burnham; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 5*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Eton College.

HITCHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bildeston (63) 2 m. NNW. Pop. 905.

A parish in the hundred of Cosford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the King.

HITCHENDEN, co. Buckingham.

P. T. High-Wycombe (20) 2 m. N. Pop. 1247.

A parish in the hundred of Desborough; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patrons (1829) J. Norris, Esq. and others.

HITCHIN and PIRTON, co. Hertford.

Pop. 9321.

A hundred, forming the north-western point of the county, bordering upon Bedfordshire, containing eight parishes.

HITCHIN, co. Hertford.

London 34 m. NNW. Pop. 4486. M. D. Tu. Fairs, Easter-Tu. and Whit. Tu., for sheep and podlery.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Hitchin and Pirtion, situated in a fertile valley, entirely surrounded by eminences. The town is of considerable antiquity, but is very well built; it is supposed to have had its origin in the time of the Saxons. Its chief trade is in malting, very large quantities of corn being brought to its market, which is free of all tolls by prescriptive right. Hitchin is divided into three wards, each of which is governed by two constables, two headboroughs, two leather-sellers, and two ale-tasters. The living is a vicarage, with the curacy of Missenden, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 25*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge. The church, ded. to St. Mary and St. Andrew, is a handsome structure of stone, the whole being embattled; it consists of a nave, chancels, and side-aisles, with a square tower, terminated by a spire. Over the communion-table there is a fine altar-piece by Rubens; it also contains a considerable number of ancient monuments. Here are three chapels for different congregations of dissenters, a good freeschool for forty-five boys, and a charity-school for thirty-six girls; besides sixteen almshouses for poor men and women, and one for six widows. This town is considerably indebted to John and Ralph Skinner, who, in the latter part of the seventeenth century, founded and endowed the above institution, and left money also for apprenticing poor children. Here was formerly a priory, founded in the reign of Edward II., for White Carmelites; and at a short distance from the town was one for nuns of the Gilbertine order.

HITTESLEIGH, co. Devon.

P. T. Crediton (180) 7 m. WSW. Pop. 163.

A parish in the hundred of Wanford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 80*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) — Calmady, Esq.

HOARCROSS, co. Stafford.

P. T. Lichfield (119) 8 m. N b E. Pop. 611.

A township in the parish of Yoxhall and north division of the hundred of Offlow.

HOATHE, co. Kent.

P. T. Canterbury (35) 6½ m. NE. Pop. 348.

A parish in the hundred of Bleam Gate, lathe of St. Augustin; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Reculver, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Canterbury, not in charge; church ded. to Holy Cross; patronage with Reculver vicarage.

HOATHLEY, EAST, co. Sussex.

P. T. Uckfield (43) 5 m. SE b S. Pop. 510.

A parish in the hundred of Shiplake, rape of Pevensey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 6*s.* 3*d.*; patron (1829) the Earl of Abergavenny.

HOATHLEY, WEST, co. Sussex.

P. T. East-Grinstead (24) 4 m. SW b S. Pop. 943.

A parish in the hundred of Street, rape of Lewes; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 16*s.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HOBENDRED, co. Salop.

P. T. Bishop's Castle (159) 5 m. S b W. Pop. 235.

A township in the parish of Clun and hundred of Purslow.

HOBKIRK, shire of Roxburgh, S.

P. T. Hawick (47) 5½ m. SE. Pop. 652.

A parish and village in the district of Jedburgh; the latter occupies the entrance of one of those little vales to which the term Hope is applied, and is watered by the river Rule. The parish, which is twelve miles in length by three in breadth, is intersected by the great road from Edinburgh to Newcastle, and is noted for the excellence of its pasturage, upon which sheep distinguished for producing wool of a superior quality are bred in great numbers. Here are extensive quarries of freestone and limestone, and in the bed of the river are found agates, somewhat similar to Bristol stones. The mountains Fanna and Winbrough have an ascent of a mile and a half from their bases, and from the summit of the latter are seen the East Seas at the distance of forty miles. The living is in the presbytery of Jedburgh and synod of Merse and Teviotdale; patron, the Crown. The church underwent a thorough repair in 1777. The gallant general Elliot, created Baron Heathfield for his memorable defence of Gibraltar against the combined forces of France and Spain, was born at the family seat, Stob Hall, in this parish.

HOB-LENCH, or ABBE-LENCH, co. Worcester.

P. T. Pershore (106) 6½ m. NE. Pop. 102.

A hamlet in the parish of Fladbury and middle division of the hundred of Oswaldslow.

HOBY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Melton-Mowbray (105) 6½ m. W b S. Pop. 352.

A parish in the hundred of East-Goscote; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 22*l.* 8*s.* 9*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Rev. H. Browne.

HOCKENHALL, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 6 m. E b N. Pop. 38.

A township in the parish of Tarvin and hundred of Eddisbury.

HOCKERING, co. Norfolk.

P. T. East Dereham (100) 6 m. E b S. Pop. 392.

A parish in the hundred of Mitford; living, a rectory, with that of Mattishall Burgh, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patronage with Mattishall Burgh rectory.

HOCKERTON, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Southwell (132) 2 m. NNE. Pop. 115.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Thurgarton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) Admiral Sotherton.

HOCKHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. East Harling (80) 5 m. NW b N. Pop. 525. Fair, Easter Munday, for small toys.

A parish in the hundred of Shropham; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 17*s.* 11*d.*; ann. val. P. 1*l.* 130*l.*; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron (1829) M. Mallett, Esq.

HOCKLEY-SUPER-MONTEM, co. Essex.

P. T. Rayleigh (34) 3 m. NE b N. Pop. 784.

A parish in the hundred of Rochford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, Wadham College, Oxford.

HOCKLIFFE, or HOCKLEY-IN-THE-HOLE, co. Bedford.

P. T. Dunstable (33) 3½ m. NW b N. Pop. 303.

A parish in the hundred of Momshead; living, a rectory with that of Chalgrove, in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) Mrs. Robinson.

HOCKWOLD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Brandon Ferry (73) 4½ m. W b N. Pop. with Wilton, 486.

A parish in the hundred of Grimeshoe; living, a rectory in four portions with Wilton vicarage, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 3*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patronage with Wilton vicarage. This is one of the principal thoroughfares of the north-east road.

HOCKWORTHY, co. Devon.

P. T. Bampton (161) 6 m. ESE. Pop. 354.

A parish in the hundred of Bampton; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; patrons (1829) Agnes Comyns and others.

HODDESDON, co. Hertford.

London 17 m. N b E. Pop. 1354. M. D.
Thurs. Fair, June 20, for toys.

A market-town and chapelry, partly in the parish of Anwell, and partly in the parish of Broxbourn and hundred of Hertford, situated on the river Lea. The town, consisting of one street, nearly a mile in length, is a well-built and pleasant place. In the centre is a fountain which supplies the town with excellent water. The living is a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Broxbourn, in the archdeaconry of St. Alban's and diocese of London, not in charge; church ded. to St. Catherine; patron (1829) R. C. Elwes, Esq. Here are a good grammar-school and two Sunday-schools. In the vicinity is a large cotton-mill.

HODDINGTON, co. Southampton.

P. T. Odiham (40) 3½ m. SW b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish of Upton Grey and hundred of Bermondspit, Basingstoke division.

HODDOM, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Ecclesfechan (72) ½ m. S. Pop. 1640.

A parish including also the ancient parishes of Ecclesfechan and Line. It lies in that delightful part of the shire termed Annandale, being five miles in length by half as much in breadth, and intersected by the rivers Annan, Milk, and Mein, on the banks of which the meadows are rich and very extensive; indeed the entire surface is arable and in a high state of cultivation. Here is a considerable manufacture of cotton. The living is in the presbytery of Annan and synod of Dumfries; patron, the Marquis of Queensbury. On the beautiful hill of Burnswark or Birrenswark, which rises between the Mein and Milk near the town of Ecclesfechan, are vestiges of the first Roman camp to be met with on entering Scotland from the southward; it is of great extent, in good preservation, and commands fine prospects over the shires of Dumfries, East Galloway, Cumberland, and Westmorland. It is the Trimontium of Richard of Cirencester, which, according to Chalmers, had been originally occupied by the Britons. Hall-Guards, erected upon the site of the ancient castle of Hoddom, was formerly the seat of a branch of the family of Bruce, but was razed to the ground, in compliance with a border treaty, several centuries ago.

HODGESTON, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Pembroke (264) 3 m. E b S. Pop. 75.

A small parish in the hundred of Castle Martin; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; ann. val. P. R. 100l. 13s. 10d.; patrons, Sir Hugh Owen, Bart., two turns, and Messrs. Loveden and Robertson, one each.

HODNEL, co. Warwick.

P. T. Southam (82) 3 m. S b W. Pop. 9.

An extra-parochial liberty in Southam division of the hundred of Knightlow. The church, which formerly stood here, is now in ruins.

HODNET, co. Salop.

P. T. Drayton-in-Hales (153) 6 m. SW.
Fairs, May 15, and Oct. 20. Pop. 2117.

A parish in Drayton division of the hundred of Bradford north, situated on the river Terne; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 26l. 0s. 10d.; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron (1829) Richard Heber, Esq.

HODSOCK, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Worksop (140) 5 m. NNE. Pop. 223.

A lordship in the parish of Blythe and Hatfield division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw.

HOFFE, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Appleby (270) 1½ m. SSW. Pop. 93.

A hamlet in the parish of St. Laurence Appleby, east ward, where a great battle is said to have been fought between the English and Scotch, in the reign of Richard II.

HOGHTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Blackburn (212) 6 m. W b S. Pop. 2111.

A township and chapelry in the parish and hundred of Leyland; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Leyland. Here are the remains of Houghton Tower, a very ancient and spacious mansion, in which James I. took up his residence in his return from Scotland.

HOG-ISLAND, co. Clare, Munster, I.

P. T. Kilrush (177) 2 m. S b W. Pop. 7.

An island in the parish of Kilrush and barony of Moyarta, situated at the Shannon Mouth. It is also called Inisbeg.

HOGNASTON, co. Derby.

P. T. Wirksworth (140) 5 m. WSW.
Pop. 202.

A parish in the wapentake of Wirksworth; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; certified value 7l. 3s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 47l.; patron, the Dean of Lincoln.

HOGSHAW, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Winslow (49) 4 m. SW b S.
Pop. with Fulbrook.

A parish in the first division of the hundred of Ashenden; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge. The church, which is now desecrated, was dedicated to St. John the Baptist.

HOGS-ISLANDS, or THE SEVEN HOGS, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

Lat. 51. 45. N. Lon. 10. 15. W.

A cluster of islands, seven in number, in the parish of Killagheny, and off the barony of Corkaguinney, at the entrance of Tralee Bay; they are also called the Magheries, and an approach to them is attended with danger, owing to the number of sunk rocks which encompass them.

HOGSTHORPE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Alford (141) 5 m. E b S. Pop. 501.

A parish in the Marsh division of the hundred of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 101. ann. val. P. R. 541.; church ded. to St. Mary patron, the Bishop of Lincoln.

HOLSTON, or HOGGESTON, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Winslow (40) 4 m. SE b E. Pop. 198.

A parish in the second division of the hundred of Cottesloe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 111. 16s. 3d. church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron, Worcester College, Oxford.

HOLBEACH, co. Lincoln.

London 107 m. N b E. Pop. 3621. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, May 17; Sept. 11; and Oct. 11; for horses.

A market-town and parish in the wapentake of Elloe, parts of Holland, indifferently built, but of great antiquity. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 201. 5s. 10d.; patron, the Bishop of Lincoln. The church, which is ded. to All Saints, is the principal building, and is a spacious, handsome edifice, consisting of a nave, chancel, aisles, porch, and a square tower, surmounted with an octangular spire, and contains some very fine monuments. Here is an hospital, which was endowed by Sir John de Kirton, knight, about the year 1351, and was intended to support a warden, chaplain, and fourteen poor pensioners. A free grammar-school was founded here by Edward III.; and another freeschool was also established by George Farmer, Esq., about the year 1669. Holbeach gave birth to Henry de Rands, called from the name of the town, Holbech; and also to William Stukeley, M.D., C.M.L., F.A.S., and F.R.S.

HOLBECK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Leeds (180) 1½ m. SSW. Pop. 7151.

A township and chapelry in the parish of St. Peter, Leeds, and in the liberty of Leeds, situated on the south bank of the Aire; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Leeds, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 161. 18s. 8d.; patron, the Vicar of Leeds. Here are a great number of manufactories on a very extensive scale.

HOLBECK, or HOLME HOWBECK, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Worksop (146) 4 m. SW. Pop. 239.

A township in the parish of Cuckney and Hatfield division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw.

HOLBECK WOODHOUSE, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Worksop (146) 4½ m. SW b S. Pop. 8.

An extra-parochial farm in Hatfield division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw.

HOLBERTON, or HOLBURTON, co. Devon.

P. T. Modbury (208) 3 m. W b S. Pop. 1083.

A parish in the hundred of Ermington; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 241. 1s. 8d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the King.

HOLBROOK, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 6 m. N b E. Pop. 563.

A township in the parish of Duffield and hundred of Appletree.

HOLBROOK, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Ipswich (69) 5 m. S b E. Pop. 641.

A parish in the hundred of Samford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 111. 11s. 3d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) S. Holmes, Esq.

HOLCOMBE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Bury (195) 4 m. NNW. Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Bury and hundred of Salford; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 1091. 2s. 6d.; patron, the Rector of Bury.

HOLCOMBE, co. Oxford.

P. T. Wallingford (46) 5½ m. N b E. Pop. 110.

A hamlet in the parish of Newington, hundred of Ewelme.

HOLCOMBE, co. Somerset.

P. T. Shepton-Mallet (116) 6 m. NE b N. Pop. 527.

A parish in the hundred of Kilmersdon; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 51. 7s. 8½d.; ann. val. P. R. 101.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) J. D. Greenhill, Esq.

HOLCOMBE BURNELL, co. Devon.

P. T. Exeter (164) 5 m. W b S. Pop. 237.

A parish in the hundred of Wonford, situated near the source of the river Ken; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 81. 9s. 2d.; ann. val. P. R. 1351.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, the Prebend of Holcombe in Wells cathedral.

HOLCOMBE ROGUS, co. Devon.

P. T. Bampton (161) 7 m. ESE. Pop. 829.

A parish in the hundred of Bampton; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 101. 10s. 2½d.; patron (1829) Samuel Wills, Esq. Here is Holcombe Court, a venerable mansion of mestone, having a porch and tower at the entrance.

HOLCOTE, or HULCOTE, co. Bedford.

P. T. Woburn (41) 4 m. N. Pop. 62.

A parish in the hundred of Monshead; living, a rectory, with the vicarage of Salford, in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 71. 15s.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) the Rev. T. O. Smith.

HOLCOTT, co. Northampton.

P. T. Wellingborough (67) 6½ m. WNW. Pop. 412.

A parish in the hundred of Hamfordshire; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary and All Saints; patron (1829) F. Montgomery, Esq.

HOLDEN, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Clitheroe (217) 6 m. NNE.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Bolton-by-Bowland, west division of the wapentake of Staincliff and Eweross.

HOLDENBY, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (68) 6½ m. NW b N.
Pop. 149.

A parish in the hundred of Nobottle Grove; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 2*s.* 11*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the King. Here was Holdenby, or Holmby House, which appears from remaining vestiges to have been a most magnificent structure. It was erected in the reign of Elizabeth by Sir Christopher Hatton, a native of this place, who was bred to the law, and raised to the highest honours and preferments by that queen, who admired his comely person and graceful dancing; and it will be ever memorable for the circumstances attending it previous to its dilapidation, as it formed first a palace, and afterwards a prison for the unfortunate monarch Charles I.

HOLDENHURST, or HOLM-HURST, co. Southampton.

P. T. Christchurch (99) 3 m. WNW. Pop. 580.

A parish in the liberty of Westover, New Forest west division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Christchurch, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; patronage with Christchurch vicarage.

HOLDERNESS, E. R. co. York.

Pop. 27,428.

A wapentake situated on the eastern side of the county, bounded on the east by the German Ocean, and on the south by the Humber, containing forty-eight parishes, including the towns of Aldborough, Heydon, and Patrington, fifty-six townships and three chapelries.

HOLDFAST, co. Worcester.

P. T. Upton-upon-Severn (111) 1 m. S b W.
Pop. 89.

A hamlet in the parish of Ripple and lower division of the hundred of Pershore.

HOLDGATE, or CASTLE HOWGATE, co. Salop.

P. T. Ludlow (142) 12 m. NNE.
Pop. of Pa. 228. Of To. 77.

A parish and township in the hundred of Munslow; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 9*s.* 9½*d.*; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron, the Bishop of Hereford.

HOLDINGHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Sleaford (115) 1 m. NW. Pop. 126.

A hamlet in the parish of New Sleaford and wapentake of Flaxwell, parts of Kesteven.

HOLDSHOTT, co. Southampton.

Pop. 3668.

A hundred on the north side of the county, Basingstoke division, containing seven parishes.

HOLDSHOTT, co. Southampton.

P. T. Hartford Bridge (35) 4 m. WNW.
Pop. with Pa.

A titling in the parish of Heckfield, hundred of Holdshott, Basingstoke division.

HOLFORD, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Northwich (173) 3½ m. E b N.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Great Budworth, partly in the east division of the hundred of Bucklow, and partly in the hundred of Northwich.

HOLFORD, co. Somerset.

P. T. Bridgewater (139) 11 m. WNW.
Pop. 240.

A parish in the hundred of Whitley; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 1*s.* 5½*d.*; patron, Eton College.

HOLGATE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. York (196) 1½ m. WSW. Pop. 83.

A township in the parish of St. Mary Bishophill Junior, and partly within the liberty of St. Peter, partly in the upper division of the Ainstey of the city of York. Lindley Murray, the grammarian, passed the latter years of his life in this village, where he wrote many of his popular works.

HOLKER, LOWER, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Ulverston (273) 5 m. E b S. Pop. 1091.

A township in the parish of Cartmel and hundred of Lonsdale, north of the Sands. Here is Holker Hall, a large irregular edifice, forming two sides of a triangle; the park is finely wooded, and extends to the sands of the Leven.

HOLKER, UPPER, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Ulverston (273) 5 m. NE. Pop. 1120.

A township in the parish of Cartmel and hundred of Lonsdale, north of the Sands, pleasantly situated on a part of the county commanding a fine view over Furness.

HOLKHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Wells (118) 3 m. W. Pop. 810.

A parish in the hundred of North Greenhoe; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 92*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to St. Withburgha; patron (1829) T. W. Coke, Esq., who has a magnificent seat here, long celebrated for its agricultural assemblages, and the great hospitality of its venerable owner.

HOLLACOMBE, co. Devon.

P. T. Holdsworth (214) 2 m. E b S. Pop. 98.

A parish in the hundred of Black Tarrington; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 6*s.* 3*d.*; ann. val. P. R.

731. 0s. 3d.; church ded. to St. Petrock; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HOLLAND, GREAT, co. Essex.

P. T. Manningtree (00) 11½ m. SE b S. Pop. 413.

A parish in the hundred of Tendring; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 171. 13s. 9d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, Corpus Christi College, Oxford.

HOLLAND, LITTLE, co. Essex.

P. T. Colchester (51) 14½ m. SE b E. Pop. 73.

A parish in the hundred of Tendring; living, a donative in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London, of the certified value of 6l.; patron (1829) F. Nassau, Esq.

HOLLAND, UPPER, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Wigan (200) 5 m. W b S. Pop. 3042.
M. D. Wed. Fairs, July 15, for horses, horned cattle, and toys.

A market-town, township, and chapelry, in the parish of Wigan and hundred of West Derby; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 271. 2s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 1011. 12s. 2d.; church ded. to St. Thomas à Becket; patron, the Rector of Wigan. Here was formerly a chantry, or college, afterwards converted into a priory of Benedictine monks, about the year 1319. It was founded by Sir Robert de Holland, whose posterity are celebrated in history both for their grandeur and their misfortunes.

HOLLOWELL, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (06) 9½ m. NW b N. Pop. 379.

A hamlet in the parish and hundred of Guilborough.

HOLLESLEY, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Woodbridge (77) 6 m. SE b E. Pop. 575.

A parish in the hundred of Wilford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 121. 16s. 8d.; church ded. to All Saints.

HOLLETH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Garstang (220) 5 m. N b W. Pop. 43.

A township in the parish of Garstang and hundred of Amounderness.

HOLLINGBOURN, co. Kent.

P. T. Maidstone (34) 6 m. H b S. Pop. 1000.

A parish in the hundred of Eythorne, lathe of Aylesford; livings, a rectory and a vicarage with the curacy of Hucking, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Canterbury; the former valued in K. B. 281. 15s. 5d.; and the latter, 71. 6s. 8d.; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury. The church, which is dedicated to All Saints, is a large handsome structure, containing a number of beautiful monuments.

HOLLINGFARE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Warrington (184) 6½ m. E. Pop. with Pa.

A chapelry in the parish of Warrington and hundred of West Derby; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 61. 2s.; ann. val. P. R. 1291; patron, the Rector of Warrington.

HOLLINGTON, co. Derby.

P. T. Ashborne (130) 5½ m. SE b S. Pop. 314.

A township in the parish of Longford and hundred of Appletree.

HOLLINGTON, co. Sussex.

P. T. Hastings (64) 3 m. WNW. Pop. 272.
Fair, 2d Mon. in July, for pedlery.

A parish in the hundred of Baldstow, rape of Hastings; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 81. 0s. 2d.; church ded. to St. Leonard; patron (1829) W. Eversfield, Esq.

HOLLINGWORTH, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Stockport (170) 7 m. NE b E. Pop. 1303.

A township in the parish of Mottram in Longden Dale and hundred of Macclesfield.

HOLLINSCLOUGH, co. Stafford.

P. T. Lecke (154) 8 m. NE b N. Pop. 560.

A township in the parish of Allstonefield and north division of the hundred of Totmonslow.

HOLLOWAY, co. Middlesex.

London 2 m. N b W. Pop. with St. Mary, Islington.

A hamlet in the parish of Islington, Finsbury division of the hundred of Ossulstone, divided into two parts, Upper and Lower Holloway, now nearly united. The whole village consists of ranges of handsome detached houses with gardens in front, and other buildings, extending along the great north road from Islington to Highgate. At Upper Holloway is an old public-house called the Mother Red Cap, noticed in Drunken Barnaby's Itinerary; and another called the Half Moon, famous a century ago for excellent cheesecakes. A large edifice was erected at Lower Holloway some years since as a chapel of ease to Islington; and a church in the Gothic style has recently been built in Upper Holloway. Within this hamlet are parochial and other schools for the gratuitous education of poor children. At a short distance to the west of the village stands the Caledonian Asylum, or Scots Hospital, a handsome modern building.

HOLLYM, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (274) 21 m. E b S.
Pop. of Pa. 363. Of To. 260.

A parish and township in the south division of the wapentake of Holderness, pleasantly situated near the coast; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 91. 19s. 2d.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Corporation of Beverley.

HOLLYMOUNT, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

Dublin 141 m. W b N. Pop. 450.
Fairs, May 16, and Dec. 11.

A post and fair-town in the parish of Kilcommon and barony of Kilmaine, situated upon the river Robe. Here is a Sunday-school, supported by subscription, consisting of ninety boys and one hundred and seven girls; also a London Hibernian Society's school of forty boys.

HOLLYWOOD, co. Down, Ulster, I.

Dublin 105 m. N. Pop. of Pa. 4035.
Of Townland 900.

A town, townland, and parish, in the barony of Castlereagh, situated upon Belfast Lough; living, an inappropriate curacy in the diocese of Down and archdiocese of Armagh, possessing a church, glebe-house, and about twenty-acres of glebe; patron, Lord Duncannon. A Franciscan friary was founded here, but the date of its erection is uncertain. Quarterly fairs have lately been established here.

HOLLYWOOD, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

P. T. Balbriggan (10) m. W. Pop. 970.

A parish in the barony of Balroderly, upon the Dublin and Naul road. The district is entirely agricultural. The parish is a vicarage in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the vicarage of Naul and Grallagh, and possesses about eight acres of glebe; patron, the Marquis of Drogheda. The church of the union is at Naul. There is no glebe-house.

HOLLYWOOD, co. Wicklow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Blessington (18) 6 m. SW.
Pop. of Pa. 2259. Of To. 217. Fairs, Feb. 1;
May 8; Aug. 1; and Nov.

A town and parish in the barony of Lower Talbotstown, near the base of Sliebh Gadoc Mountain. A new line of road has lately been opened from Glendalough to this town; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin, possessing a church, parsonage, and a glebe of thirty-two acres.

HOLM, shire of Orkney, S.

P. T. Kirkwall (327) 4 m. SE. Pop. 773.

A parish, united to that of Paplay, in the island of Mainland or Pomona, and extending five miles in length by about one in breadth. It is a beautiful and fertile district, and one of the most prosperous in the shire; most of the land under cultivation forms an inclined plane towards the south, and is prettily diversified with farmhouses and neat cottages, each with a garden kept in the best order. A considerable quantity of flax is raised, dressed, and spun here for the English market, where, from its superior fineness, it fetches a high price. About fifty tons of kelp are annually made on the shore, and sea-weed for manure is here very plentiful. At the entrance of the Sound is Lamb-Holm, an island consisting of one farm belonging to this parish; it is three miles in circumference, and with a pier lately constructed forms the harbour of Holm-Sound, affording security for ships of 200 tons. The living is in the presbytery of Kirkwall and Synod of Orkney; patron, Lord Dundas. The church is dedicated to St. Nicholas, and was rebuilt in 1781.

HOLME, co. Bedford.

P. T. Biggleswade (45) 1 m. S b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish and hundred of Biggleswade.

HOLME, co. Derby.

P. T. Bakewell (153) m. adjacent.
Pop. with Great Longston.

A township in the parish of Bakewell and hundred of High Peak.

HOLME, co. Huntingdon.

• P. T. Stilton (75) 2 m. SE b E. Pop. 311.

A parish in the hundred of Norman Cross; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Glatton, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; church ded. to St. Giles; patronage with Glatton rectory.

HOLME, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Glanford Bridge (156) 7 m. W.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Bottesford and east division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey.

HOLME, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Market Downham (81) 4 m. N. Pop. 198.

A parish in the hundred of Clackclose; living, a rectory with that of South Runciton, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; church ded. to St. James; patronage with South Runciton rectory.

HOLME, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Newark (124) 4 m. N b E. Pop. 114.

A township and chapelry in the parish of North Muskham and north division of the wapentake of Thurgarton, situated on the river Trent; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of North Muskham, and a peculiar of Southwell, in the diocese of York; certified value 7l. 10s.; patronage with North Muskham vicarage. The chapel, dedicated to St. Giles, is a curious and ancient structure, containing some old monuments.

HOLME, co. Stafford.

P. T. Cheadle (146) 4½ m. W b N.
Pop. with Weston Coyney, 527.

A township in the parish of Caverswall and north division of the hundred of Totmonslow.

HOLME, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kirkby-Lonsdale (253) 7 m. W.
Pop. 420.

A township in the parish of Burton-in-Kendal, Lonsdale ward, through which passes the Lancaster and Burton-in-Kendal canal. Here are two extensive flax-mills, which afford employment to the greater part of the labouring inhabitants.

HOLME, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Thirsk (217) 3½ m. W b S.
Pop. with Howgrave, 102.

A township in the parish of Pickhill and wapentake of Allertonshire.

HOL

HOLME, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Huddersfield (188) 9 m. SSW. 1
Pop. 459.

A township in the parish of Almondbury and upper division of the wapentake of Aggbrigg.

HOLME BALDWIN, co. Cumberland.

M. T. Carlisle (301) 5 m. W. b S. Pop. 231.

A township in the parish of Orton, Cumberland ward.

HOLME CULTRAM, or ABBEY HOLME, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Wigan (303) 6 m. WNW. Pop. 2772.
Fair, Oct. 29, for horses and horned cattle.

A parish in Allerdale ward, below Darwent, situated on the west side, and near the mouth of that river and Solway Frith; it was formerly a market-town; living, a dis. vicarage, with that of Newton-Arlosh, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 113*l.*; patron, the University of Oxford. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a handsome Gothic structure. At a short distance hence is also a Quakers' meeting-house. Here was formerly an abbey, founded and richly endowed in the year 1150, by Prince Henry, son of David, king of Scotland, for monks of the Cistercian order; the abbots of this establishment were, in the reigns of Edward I. and II., summoned to several Parliaments.

HOLME EAST, co. Dorset.

P. T. Wareham (112) 2½ m. SW b W. Pop. 42.

An extra-parochial ville in the hundred of Hasillor, Blandford division.

HOLME-HALE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Swaffham (93) 5 m. ESE. Pop. 422.

A parish in the hundred of South Greenhoe; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 16*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) the Rev. T. P. Young.

HOLME-NEAR-THE-SEA, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Burnham-Westgate (117) 8½ m. W b N. Pop. 219.

A parish in the hundred of Smithdon; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. at 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Bishop of Norwich.

HOLME, NORTH, N. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 10 m. NW. Pop. 24.

A township in the parish of Kirkdale and wapentake of Ryedale.

HOLME PIERREPONT, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Nottingham (124) 5 m. E b S.
Pop. 205.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Bingham; living, a rectory, with Adbolton, in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.*; patron (1829) Earl Manvers. The church, which is dedicated to St. Edmund, consists of a nave and side-aisle, with a square tower and handsome lofty spire, and contains a great number of beautiful monuments and ancient armorial brasses. Here is Holme Pierrepont House, still a large and ancient building, though much of it has been taken down at different periods.

HOL

HOLME-SCALES, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Burton-in-Kendal (202) 6 m. SE b S.
Pop. with Old Hutton.

A township in the parish of Burton-in-Kendal, Kendal ward.

HOLME, SOUTH, N. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 7 m. NW b W.
Pop. 66.

A township in the parish of Hovingham and wapentake of Ryedale.

HOLME-UPON-SPALDING-MOOR, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Market-Weighton (192) 5 m. SW b W.
Pop. 1318.

A parish, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the Holme Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, St. John's College, Cambridge. Here is a small hill, which commands a very extensive prospect over the surrounding flat country; and also a beacon, formerly used to alarm the surrounding villages, in case of invasions or internal commotions.

HOLME-ON-THE-WOLDS, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Beverley (183) 6½ m. NW. Pop. 138.

A parish in the Bainton Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of St. Mary, Beverley; certified value 8*l.* 19*s.* 7*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 30*l.*; patronage with St. Mary, Beverley.

HOLMEFIRTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Huddersfield (188) 6½ m. S.
Fair, Oct. 30, for horned cattle.
Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Kirk Burton, situated at the base and on the acclivities of three lofty hills; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Kirk Burton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 14*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 123*l.* 2*s.* 7*d.*; patron, the Vicar of Kirk Burton. The inhabitants are for the most part employed in the manufacture of woollen cloths.

HOLMER, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 2 m. N.
Pop. with Shelwick, 524.

A parish in the hundred of Grimsworth; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacy of Huntingdon, and a peculiar of the dean of Hereford; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Hereford.

HOLMESFIELD, co. Derby.

P. T. Chesterfield (150) 6½ m. NW b N.;
Pop. 490.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Dronfield and hundred of Scarsdale; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Dronfield, in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; certified value 3*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 85*l.* 17*s.*; patrons, the Trustees.

HOLMPATRICK, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

P. T. Balbriggan (19) 4 m. S.E. Pop. 402.

A parish in the barony of Balroderly, situated upon the sea-shore; living, an inappropriate cure in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin. It possesses a church, but has neither parsonage or glebe. St. Patrick is supposed to have landed here, after he had been repulsed at Anat-Caltrain. Sitric, son of Murchard, founded a priory for Regular Canons, upon Inis Patrick, an island about one mile south-east of Holmpatrick; but the situation proving inconvenient, the establishment was removed to Holmpatrick, by order of Henry, Archbishop of Dublin, between the years 1213 and 1228. The ruins of the ancient priory upon Inis Patrick are still visible.

HOLMPTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Patrington (102) 4 m. E. Pop. 250.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Holderness; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 135*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HOLMS, THE, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

Pop. with Uist.

Three of the Shetland isles, lying in a groupe to the north-west of Uist, of which parish they form a part.

HOLMSIDE, or HOLMSET, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (258) 6 m. NW. Pop. 228.

A township in the parish of Rufford and west division of Chester ward.

HOLMSTROW, co. Sussex.

Pop. 1739.

A hundred situated in the centre of the county, rape of Lewes, containing five parishes.

HOLMSWOOD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Ormirk (219) 0½ m. N. b. E.

Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Rufford and hundred of Leyland.

HOLMSWORTHY, co. Devon.

London 214 m. W. b. S. Pop. 1410. M. D. Sat. Fairs, April 27; July 10; and Oct. 2; for cattle.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Black Torrington, pleasantly situated between two branches of the river Tamar, and through which passes a canal to the harbour of Bude. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 32*l.* 0*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron (1829) the Rev. R. Kingdon. The inhabitants chiefly derive their employment from the operations of agriculture. The petty sessions are holden here.

HOLNE, co. Devon.

P. T. Ashburton (102) 4 m. W. Pop. 410.

A parish in the hundred of Stanborough; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 5*s.* 5*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 150*l.*; patron (1829) the Rev. Samuel Lane.

HOLNEST, co. Dorset.

• P. T. Sherborne (117) 5 m. S. b. E. Pop. 102.

A parish in the hundred of Sherborne, Sherborne division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Long Burton, and a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury, not in charge; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Long Burton.

HOLT, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Wrexham (170) 5½ m. ENE.

Pop. of Pa. 1432. Of T. 866.

Fairs, June 22, and Oct. 20.

A town, having a distinct jurisdiction, in the parish of Holt and hundred of Bromfield, situated upon the river Dee, here crossed by a bridge. It is governed by a mayor, two bailiffs, and a coroner, in conformity with the charter obtained by Thomas, Earl of Arundel, in the year 1410, and is contributory with Denbigh and Ruthin, in returning one member to Parliament. The living is a chapelry, not in charge, to the vicarage of Gresford, in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Winchester. The castle of Holt was a place of considerable strength, and garrisoned for Charles I. in 1643, but besieged, taken, and utterly demolished, by the Parliamentarians, in 1645. The lordship belongs to the Crown, and its duties are discharged by a steward. Roman antiquities are frequently found in this parish, whence it is conjectured to have been a Roman station.

HOLT, co. Dorset.

P. T. Winborn Minster (100) 3 m. NE.

Pop. 1180.

A tithing in the parish of Wimborne Minster and hundred of Badbury, Shaston division.

HOLT, co. Leicesters.

P. T. Rockingham (83) 2½ m. WNW.

Pop. with Bradley, 63.

A township in the parish of Medbourne and hundred of Gartree.

HOLT, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 9120.

A hundred lying on the coast from Blakeney to Beeston, and northern extremity of the county, containing twenty-six parishes, including the town of its own name.

HOLT, co. Norfolk.

London 119 m. NNE. Pop. 1318. M. D. Sat. Fairs, April 25; and Nov. 25; for horses, &c.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Holt, pleasantly situated on a rising ground; it formerly suffered great inconvenence from want of water, which was fetched from a considerable distance. Great part of the town was destroyed by fire in the year 1708, since which time many good houses have been erected. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 11*l*. 17*s*. 3*d*.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, St. John's College, Cambridge. The sessions-house is a good building, and is occasionally used as an assembly-room. Here is a considerable freeschool, which was founded in the year 1556, by Sir Thomas Gresham, who was a native of the town, and the well-known founder of the Royal Exchange. The surrounding scenery is particularly fine, and the air very salubrious.

HOLT, co. Wilts.

P. T. Bradford (100) 2 m. ENE. Pop. 846.

A chapelry in the parish and hundred of Bradford; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Bradford, in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; church ded. to St. Catherine; patronage with Bradford vicarage. This place is celebrated for a mineral spring, which was discovered upwards of a century ago.

HOLT, or HOLT CASTLE, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) 6 m. NNW. Pop. 637.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Oswaldslow; living, a rectory, with the curacy of Little Witley, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 15*l*. 17*s*. 8*d*.; patron (1829) Lord Foley. The church, which is dedicated to St. Martin, is very ancient, and justly considered the most complete specimen of Saxon architecture in the county. Here are the remains of a very ancient structure, called Holt Castle.

HOLTLEY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (106) 5 m. ENE. Pop. 170.

A parish in the wapentake of Bulmer; living, a rectory, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of York; valued in K. B. 8*l*.; church ded. to the Holy Trinity.

HOLTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Wragby (144) 2½ m. N b W. Pop. with Bickering, 142.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Wraggöe, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory, with that of Bickering, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 17*l*. 10*s*. 10*d*.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Edmund Turnor, Esq.

HOLTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Oxford (54) 6½ m. E. Pop. 200.

A parish in the hundred of Bullington; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 12*l*. 19*s*. 2*d*.; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patron (1829) E. Biscoe, Esq. Here is Holton Park, a fine seat; the old mansion was formerly surrounded by a moat, but the present, a modern building, occupies a different site, and is deeply embowered on one side, while the other commands an extensive and beautiful prospect.

HOLTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Wincanton (105) 2½ m. SW b W. Pop. 235.

A parish in the hundred of Whitley; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 8*l*. 0*s*. 2*d*.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) John Gibbs, gent.

HOLTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Halesworth (100) 1 m. NE. Pop. 390.

A parish in the hundred of Blything; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HOLTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Hadleigh (64) 4 m. SSE. Pop. 213.

A parish in the hundred of Samford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l*. 14*s*. 7*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir William Rowley, Bart.

HOLTON-LE-CLAY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Great Grimsby (165) 6 m. SSE. Pop. 220.

A parish in the wapentake of Bradley Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 4*l*. 8*s*. 4*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 130*l*.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HOLTON-LE-MOOR, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Market-Raisen (148) 5 m. NNW. Pop. 135.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Walshcroft, parts of Lindsey; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Caistor, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; patronage with Caistor vicarage.

HOLVERSTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Norwich (108) 7 m. SE b S. Pop. 26.

A parish in the hundred of Henstead; living, a rectory, in two portions, with the rectories of Burgh, Apton, and Rockland, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge. The church, which is now demolished, was ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Abergavenny.

HOLWELL, or HOLYWELL, co. Bedford.

P. T. Hitchin (34) 3 m. NNW. Pop. 179.

A parish in the hundred of Clifton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l*. 9*s*. 7*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 139*l*. 9*s*. 4*d*.; patron (1829) Mr. Radcliff.

HOLWELL, or HOLYWELL, co. Leicester.

P. T. Melton Mowbray (105) 4 m. NNW. Pop. 132.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Ab-Kettleby and hundred of Framland; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; church ded. to St. Leonard; patronage with Ab-Kettleby vicarage.

HOLWELL, co. Oxford.

P. T. Burford (72) 3 m. SW b S. Pop. 80.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Broadwell and hundred of Hampton; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Broadwell, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford, not in charge; patronage with Broadwell vicarage.

HOLWELL, co. Somerset.

P. T. Sherborne (117) 6 m. SE b E.
Pop. with Buckshaw, 342.

A parish in the hundred of Horethorne, though locally situate in the hundred of Sherborne, county of Dorset; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 14^l. 13s. 9^d.; church dedicated to St. Laurence; patron, Queen's College, Oxford.

HOLWELL, co. Somerset.

P. T. Frome (103) 4 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Cloford and hundred of Frome.

HOLWICK, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Greta-Bridge (242) 18 m. NW.
Pop. 201.

A township in the parish of Ronald Kirk and wapentake of Gilling West. Here is one of the finest cataracts in England, formed by the precipitous descent of the river Tees, amidst much picturesque and beautiful scenery; it is called Great Force.

HOLYBOURN, co. Southampton.

P. T. Alton (47) 1 m. NE b E. Pop. 432.

A parish in the hundred of Alton, Alton north division; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Alton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; church ded. to Holy Rood; patronage with Alton vicarage.

HOLY CROSS, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Thurles (95) 4 m. SW. Pop. 2004.
Fairs, May 11; Sept. 24; and Oct. 18.

A poor village in the parish of Holy Cross and barony of Eliogarty, upon the banks of the river Suir; living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the curacy of Rathkennan, and possessing a church, a glebe-house, and a glebe of thirty-two acres. The cure is augmented by a grant from the trustees of Boulter's bequest. Here are the ruins of a beautiful Cistercian abbey, founded between the years 1181 and 1186, by Donald O'Brien, king of Munster, whose monument is still shown, near to the high altar. The splendid remains, now visible, are the workmanship of different periods, the superior obviously of earlier date. Several chapels, and much of the principal buildings are in tolerable preservation, and exhibit masterly workmanship and design; but the most extraordinary pieces of architecture here, and which are quite perfect, are two small chapels, ten feet square, on the south side of the choir, arched and supported by ogival piers from the sides and aisles, and enclosed on each side by double Gothic arcades, with curiously-twisted pillars, the whole composed of a beautiful dark marble, highly polished. The use of these cells is not satisfactorily explained; they are thought to have been the depositories of reliques, amongst which a piece of the holy cross was enumerated; and they are also conjectured to have been intended for depositories of the bodies of deceased monks, during the ceremony of waking; perhaps they will yet prove to be the tombs of some remarkable benefactors or pious prelates. The great extent of the ancient establishment may be readily ascertained at the present day, from the quantity of space enclosed by the overturned walls which surround the abbey on all sides. The abbot of Holy Cross was styled an Earl, and sat as Baron in Parliament.

HOLY CROSS, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) adjacent. Pop. 1920.

A township and chapelry in the parish of St. Andrew, Worcester, and upper division of the hundred of Pershore; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of St. Andrew.

HOLYFIELD, or HALLIFIELD, co. Essex.

P. T. Waltham Abbey (12) 2½ m. N b E.
Pop. 293.

A hamlet in the parish of Waltham Abbey and hundred of Waltham.

HOLYHEAD, co. Anglesea, N. W.

London 267 m. NW b W.
Pop. of Pa. 4011. M. D. Sat.

A market-town in the parish of Holyhead, partly in the hundred of Llyfon, and partly in that of Tal-y-bolion, situated upon the Irish Sea. The town consists of two good avenues and a few cross streets, and possesses an open market-place around the old cross, with two inns, and several genteel residences. It has lately undergone great improvements, and being the adopted station for the transmission and receipt of the mails between London and Dublin, an asylum harbour has been constructed at the expense of government. It is formed by a pier, nine hundred feet in length, running in a direction west to east, faced with hewn limestone, and having a depth of fourteen feet at the pier-head, at low water. The land extremity of the pier, by the old lighthouse, is connected to the mainland by a cast-iron bridge across Salt Island Sound, and the new road continued thence to the Menai Bridge. There is a light on the pier-head; three leagues, north north-west, is the Skerries light; and a revolving light is placed upon the South Stack, at an elevation of 200 feet above sea level, bearing upon the Skerries light, south-west half west, nearly eight miles. Recently, also, two anchors, of one arm each, connected by a chain cable, of 140 fathoms, have been laid down across the entrance of the harbour, to prevent vessels from being driven upon the rocks to leeward, while attempting to gain the harbour in stormy weather. The ground at the mouth of the harbour having become so broken as to afford no secure anchorage. The South Stack is approached by a suspension-bridge, thrown from the front of a magnificent rock of serpentine to the island. Besides the valuable improvements already mentioned to ensure a safe asylum for shipping here, there is a dry dock, large enough to admit a sixty-four gun ship; and it is in contemplation to enclose an extensive wet dock. The living is a curacy, not in charge, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Bangor; valued in P. R. 120*l.* per annum; patron, Jesus College, Oxford, upon whom the great tithes were bestowed by Rhys Gwynne, Esq., for the maintenance of two free fellows and two scholars. The church is an ancient building, disfigured by an extravagant quantity of whitewashing; it is dedicated to St. Gybi, and on the north side was inscribed Sancte Kybi ora pro nobis. A low wall, enclosing the churchyard, is all that remains of the piece of Roman architecture so much spoken of. This parish is united to Rodedern, Bod Wrog, and Llan Drygarn. The harbour improvements have brought nautical traffic into this place. Ship-building is conducted here skilfully, and repairing of vessels is a source of constant occupation to the inhabitants. A traffic in the export of limestone might easily be established, and the manufacture of chimney-pieces, from the variety of beautiful marbles in the island, might be advantageously extended. The mountain of Holyhead, which rises to an elevation of 709 feet above the sea, is almost wholly composed of beautiful serpentine. The influx of passengers ought to be a greater source of profit also than it has proved to be, but their stay is so short, that the innkeepers alone appear to be enriched by them. In the year 1825, no less than 17,638 persons crossed the channel, between this port and Howth, but since that period, the number has uniformly decreased in each year. In 1821, King George IV. embarked here for Ireland, and a triumphal arch upon the pier commemorates the event. There is an endowed freeschool in the town. St. Gybi founded a monastery here, in the year 380. The Romans are thought to have had an intrenchment here, from the coins of that great nation found in the vicinity; and Druidical remains are yet traceable. The South Stack lighthouse, and the bold cliffs of the Holyhead mountain, are interesting and picturesque objects, and the latter are particularly deserving the attention of the naturalist.

HOLY ISLAND, co. Durham.

P. T. Belford (322) 5 m. NE. Pop. 760.

An island, or rather peninsula, united with Northumberland by a narrow isthmus which is covered by the flow of the tide. It belongs to Islandshire ward, county of Durham, though situated about eight miles South-east of Berwick-upon-Tweed, nearly opposite the mouth of the river Landi or Linde, from which it derives its ancient appellation of Lindisfarne. It is about nine miles in circuit; and at its south-western angle is a village, principally inhabited by fishermen, near which is a commodious haven, which serves as a shelter for merchant vessels in stormy weather. On a precipitous rock in its vicinity stands a castle or block-house, occupied by a detachment of invalids from Berwick. During the rebellion in 1715, it was surprised by the partisans of the house of Stuart, but was speedily recaptured. Exclusive of the castle rock, the island is a continued plain inclining to the south-west, and consisting of about 1000 acres, more than half of which is covered with sand; but the soil of the cultivated portion is rich, producing, in 1796, a rental of 926*l.* per annum. Fish and wild fowl are plentiful here, and there are a great many rabbits. The living is a perpetual curacy in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; certified value 36*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Durham. The church, dedicated to St. John the Evangelist, is an old edifice, consisting of a nave and aisles, situated on the west side of the ruins of the ancient cathedral. On the conversion of the Anglo-Saxons to Christianity by St. Aidan, a native of Scotland, this island was given to him by Oswald, King of Northumbria, in 635, when he founded the bishopric of Lindisfarne, and erected a cathedral church, dedicated to St. Peter. This structure was demolished by the Danes in 795, and again in 867, in consequence of which the island was deserted by Eardulph, the last bishop; and the see was subsequently united with Durham. On the establishment of the monastery at Durham, by Bishop William de Carilepho, in 1082, the episcopal church of Lindisfarne was made a part of the endowment, and thus became a cell to the Benedictine priory of Durham. At the dissolution of monasteries, its revenues were 60*l.* 5*s.* There are considerable remains of the priory church, which display the Norman style of architecture.

HOLY OAKS, co. Leicester.

P. T. Rockingham (63) 3 m. NNW. Pop. 7.

A lordship in the parish of Dry Stoke and hundred of Gartree.

HOLYWELL, co. Bedford.

P. T. Silsoe (40) 3 m. ESE. Pop. 50.

A hamlet in the parish of Shitlington and hundred of Clifton.

HOLYWELL, co. Flint, N. W.

London 203 m. NW. Pop. 9300.

M. D. Friday.

A thriving manufacturing town in the parish of Holywell and hundred of Coleshill, situated upon an eminence on the south of the estuary of the river Dee. The plan of the town is devoid of all regularity or design, and consists of one broad and good avenue, approached at each end by narrow crooked lanes. Several small streets branch off from the main one, the best of which is the approach to the church and well of St. Winifrede. There are many good and substantial private dwelling-houses, two Roman Catholic chapels, meeting-houses of Wesleyans and other sects. An established bank, and two capital inns, but no public buildings of any consequence. The living is a discharged vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph's, the nomination to which is vested in Jesus College, Oxford, and the presentation in the lay rector. The church possesses some beauty; it stands at the foot of the hill on which the town is erected, and was rebuilt in the year 1769, upon the site of a Norman structure, some parts of which are preserved in the interior. A square tower at the west end was added for the suspension of bells, but unluckily it lies so much below the level of the town, and is so immediately overhung by steep hills, that the toll of the bell is not heard in the town. The inhabitants are now summoned to prayers by a person having a good-sized bell suspended by a strap from his neck, and resting upon a cushion, which protects his knee; in this way regular tolls are produced as he walks along, by the advance of the cushioned knee. This town is the most important, as a place of trade, in the county, and its natural advantages are considerable. The celebrated spring, from which the place takes its name, in the short course of one mile, is employed in working eleven mills of various descriptions. The proximity of the Mostyn and other coal-mines, enables a cheap and abundant supply of fuel to be obtained; and the mines of lead and other valuable mineral productions have contributed to augment the rapidly increasing prosperity of the town. Here are four cotton-mills, established by the Holywell Colton and Twist Company; an extensive silk and ribbon manufactory; a copper smelting-house and smithy; a brass-house and foundry; a wire-mill; smelting-houses for lead; a calamine calcinary, besides water corn-mills; all of which are dependent upon the issue of the well for their supply of water-power. The great mine, called the Holywell Level, opened in 1773, is carried into the hill for a length of one mile, the level acting as a canal for the transportation of the ore to the mouth of the Adit. Here are found petrosilex, used in the potteries lead-ore of the cubic and steel-grained kinds; calamine and ore of zinc. The exports consist of copper-sheets and nails for sheathing ships, and copper-bolts; used in ship-building. The copper works belong to the Anglesey Company; besides the various productions of the different factories. Vessels taking in lading lie at the Mark, which is dry at low water, and inconvenient at all times. The freeholders of the town possess certain rights over the Avon Marsh Siamber, which, as well as those of the river Dee Company, were defined by commissioners in the year 1787. The plan and specification are presented by the clerk of the peace for the county of Flint. The navigation still requires much improvement. Steam-packets sail regularly between Bagilt and Chester, which affords an easy and cheap communication to the inhabitants of this town, in addition to the mail and stage-coaches, which pass here daily between Chester and Holyhead. There are private schools for the youth of both sexes, and a freeschool for sixteen boys, having an endowment of 10*l*. per annum. The Well of St. Winifrede, the fountain of prosperity of this place, gushes up within an area of two yards in diameter. It throws up eighty-four hogsheads every minute, has not been known to freeze, yields a supply which forms instantly a tolerable river, nor is it subject to any material increase or diminution from the drought or moisture of the seasons. Over the well, which is inclosed by octagonal sides, stands a temple in an exquisitely enriched Gothic style: the ceiling is of carved stone, ornamented with sculptured pendants, and supported by light coupled pillars, which form a Gothic open arcade around the fountain. The legend of St. Winifrede was represented in the different sculptures, and the arms of the noble house of Stanley emblazoned here and there; but all are now undiscernible, and the ceiling disfigured by a few contemptible reliques, such as hand-barrows and crutches. The temple still is remarkably beautiful, and a choice specimen of the florid Gothic of Henry VIIIth's reign, by whose mother the temple and little chapel over it were erected. The water, after gushing up within the octagonal inclosure, flows rapidly away beneath a low archway into a rectangular bath, twelve feet by seven, in which the superstitious continue to immerge, in the fond hope of miraculous consequences. Two festivals are observed here in honour of the saint: the 22d of June, to commemorate her martyrdom, and the 3d of November, her translation to Heaven. St. James's-day is also observed here as a festival, and called Dydd-Sul-y-Saint, i. e. the Sunday of the Saints. The legend informs us that St. Winifrede was the daughter of Thewith, and niece of St. Beuno, who flourished in the seventh century. She had resolved upon founding a religious house, and devoting her life to prayer and penitence, when Cradocus, the son of King Alen, became enamoured of her charms, and resolved to use violence rather than be disappointed in his lustful passion. Having expressed to her his determination; she fled from his presence, towards the church, where her parents were at prayers; but Cradocus, overtaking her at the descent of the hill, drew his sword, and cut off her head. The head rolled down the hill, nor stopped until it reached the altar in the church, around which the congregation were kneeling, when instantly a fountain of clear water gushed up, and has continued to flow with an undiminished ebullition to the present day. St. Beuno caught up the head, and, mirabile dictu, united it to the body, and restored the beautiful virgin in all her bloom, while Cradocus fell down dead upon the spot, where he committed the impious act. At the bottom of the well, grows the byssus jolithus, a vegetable production of a reddish hue, which superstition points to as drops of blood. The bones of St. Winifrede were removed from Gwytherin, in Denbighshire, where she died abbess, fifteen years after her decapitation, to the abbey church, at Shrewsbury. In excavating the foundation of the Brass House, a Roman hypocaust was discovered. Bryn-y-Castell is thought to be the site of Earl Randal's castle, built in 1210; and from Bryn Dwychwelwch Henry II. sounded his retreat, in 1157. Thomas Penant, Esq., the naturalist and learned tourist, resided at Downing, near this town, and his beautiful seat is now occupied by his descendants.

HOLYWELL, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. St. Ives (50) 2 m. E b N.
Pop. with Needingworth, 792.

A parish in the hundred of Hurstingstone; living, a rectory with the curacy of Needingworth, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 30l. 6s. 3d.; patron, the Duke of Manchester. The church, which is dedicated to St. John the Baptist, consists of a nave, aisles, and chancel, and contains several monuments. At the bottom of the churchyard is a well, which in the days of superstitious credulity was much frequented by religious devotees, which circumstance gave name to the place. It is supposed to have been a Roman station, as various fragments of Roman vessels, pottery, &c., have been dug up within the parish.

HOLYWELL, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Stamford (80) 7 m. NNW.
Pop. with Awnby, 116.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Castle Bytham and wapentake of Beltisloe; parts of Kesteven; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Castle Bytham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; patronage with Castle Bytham vicarage.

HOLYWELL, co. Northumberland.

P. T. North Shields (279) 5½ m. NNW.
Pop. 100.

A township in the parish of Earsdon and east division of Castle ward, and derives its name from St. Mary's Well, which is medicinal, and becomes of a puce colour when galls are infused into it.

HOLYWOOD, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Dumfries (71½) 3 m. NW. Pop. 2004.

A parish in Nithsdale, ten miles in length by only one and a half in breadth, and containing about 7500 acres; most of which are under cultivation and watered by the Nith and Cluden. The living is in the presbytery and synod of Dumfries; patron, — Macmillan, Esq. The church was rebuilt in 1779, with the remains of a Præmonstratensian abbey founded in the thirteenth century by Devorgilda, daughter of Lord Galloway. Here are vestiges of a Druidical temple, around which was formerly a grove of oaks that is said to have given name to the parish. Charles Irvine, Esq. the discoverer of the method of rendering salt-water fresh, for which government granted him 5000l. was born here.

HOM, or HAM LACY, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 6 m. SE. Pop. 380.

A parish in the hundred of Webtree; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 8l.; church led. to St. Cuthbert; patron (1829) General Burr, alternately.

HOME, or HUME, shire of Berwick, S.

P. T. Greenlaw (36) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 401.

A parish and village, the latter, with the ancient castle of Home, a fortress made celebrated in the border wars, occupy the summit of a hill 898 feet above the level of the sea. This castle in 1547, surrendered to the Duke of Somerset; two years afterwards the Scots seized it by stratagem, and put the garrison to the sword; and subsequently Cromwell, with great difficulty, got possession of and almost demolished it. The queen-consort of James II., resided here during the siege of Roxburgh, and accidentally meeting with the bearer of tidings that the king had there met his death by the bursting of a cannon, was prematurely delivered of a child on a neighbouring hill, still called Queen's Cairn. The parish is of much smaller extent than formerly, when it included the greater part of Gordon and West Stratham. The living is in the presbytery of Kelso and synod of Merse and Tiviotdale; patron, the Earl of Dunbar. Here are some remarkable basaltic columns, termed Lurgie Craigs, resembling those of Arthur's Seat near Edinburgh, and the Giant's Causeway in Ireland; and about a mile west from the castle are vestiges of an old fortification, probably an outwork of that fortress.

HOMERSFIELD, or ST. MARY, SOUTH ELMHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bungay (106) 14 m. SW. Pop. 201.

A parish in the hundred of Wangford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5l. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons (1829) Alexander Adair, Esq.

HOMERTON, co. Middlesex.

London 3½ m. E. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Hackney, lower division of the hundred of Ossulstone; by the extension of modern buildings now connected with the village of Hackney, to the east of which it is situated. Homerton Chapel, or Ram's Chapel, was founded in 1723, by Stephen Ram, Esq., and is now a proprietary chapel, vested in trustees, in connexion with the established church. Here is an academy for the education of dissenting ministers of the Independent denomination, established in 1769. The principal manufacture carried on here is colour-making.

HOMINGTON, co. Wilts.

P. T. Salisbury (81) $3\frac{1}{2}$ m. SW b S.
Pop. 177.

A parish in the hundred of Cawden and Cadworth; living, a curacy and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 42*l.* 1*s.*; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, contains a black marble monument to the memory of G. Stanley, Gent. who died in 1719, aged 151.

HONEY CHURCH, co. Devon.

P. T. Hatherleigh (201) 6 m. E. Pop. 66.

A parish in the hundred of Black Torrington; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 90*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Hon. N. Fellowes.

HONILEY, co. Warwick.

P. T. Warwick (90) 6 m. NNW. Pop. 63.

A parish in the Snitterfield division of the hundred of Barlichway; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 105*l.*; patron (1829) Courtney Granville, Esq.

HONING, co. Norfolk.

P. T. North Walsham (123) 4 m. SE b E.
Pop. 268.

A parish in the hundred of Tunstead; living, a dis. vicarage with Dilham rectory, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patronage with Dilham rectory.

HONINGHAM, or. HUNINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Norwich (108) $7\frac{1}{2}$ m. WNW. Pop. 321.

A parish in the hundred of Forehoe; living, a dis. vicarage with that of East Tudenham, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patronage with East Tudenham.

HONINGTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (110) 5 m. NNE. Pop. 156.

A parish in the wapentake of Winnibriggs and Threo, parts of Kesteven; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 0*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Wilfrid; patron (1829) Sir T. H. Apreece. This was formerly a small Roman summer camp, defended by a double foss and vallum; and a vast quantity of coins, contained in urns, have been found here.

HONINGTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmunds (71) $6\frac{1}{2}$ m. NE b N.
Pop. 250.

A parish in the hundred of Blackbourne; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor. This place gave birth to Robert Bloomfield, the poet.

HONINGTON, co. Warwick.

P. T. Shipston-upon-Stour (83) 2 m. N b E.
Pop. 337.

A parish in Brailley division of the hundred of Kington; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 60*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Chandos Leigh, Esq.

HONITON, co. Devon.

London 148 m. WSW. Pop. 3296,
M. D. Sat. Fair, July 20, for cattle. 1
Memb. of Pt. 2.

A borough, market-town, and parish, in the hundred of Axminster, situated in a delightful vale on the south side of the river Otter, and consists principally of one broad handsome street, running from east to west, and another crossing it at right angles: through the former runs a stream of excellent water, from which the inhabitants are supplied by a dipping-place opposite almost every door. The buildings are mostly modern, and covered with slate, an improvement that originated from several fires which nearly destroyed the town at four different periods. The streets are well paved and lighted. It is said that the first manufacture of serge in Devon was established here; but the principal manufacture at present is that of broad lace and edgings: it also supplies the London markets with great quantities of butter. The town is governed by a portreeve and a bailiff, who are chosen annually; it is a borough by prescription, and sends two members to Parliament, the right of election being in the inhabitant-housekeepers not receiving alms, whose number is about 400. The returning-officer is the portreeve. The livings are a rectory and a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; the former valued in K. B. at 40*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*; the latter not in charge; patrons (1829) the Trustees of Viscount Courtenay. The church, which is dedicated to St. Michael, is situated on a bold eminence, a short distance from the town; it was originally a small chapel for mendicant friars, but was enlarged about the year 1482, chiefly at the expense of Courtenay, Bishop of Exeter, who also gave the curious screen which separates the chancel from the nave; it contains several ancient monuments. The chapel-of-ease, which is dedicated to All Saints, was erected by subscription, and is built of flint, with a tower and cupola, with six bells, a clock, and chimes. Here are also three meeting-houses for Protestant Dissenters, an endowed freeschool, and an hospital. Near the town is a hill, which commands one of the most beautiful views in the kingdom.

HONLEY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Huddersfield (188) $3\frac{1}{2}$ m. S b W.
Pop. 3501.

A township in the parish of Almondbury, upper division of the wapentake of Agg-brigg.

HOO, co. Kent.

Pop. 2459.

A hundred in the lathe of Aylesford, situated on the north side of the county, to the west of the Isle of Grain, and bounded nearly on all sides by branches of the Thames, containing six parishes.

HOO, co. Kent.

P. T. Rochester (20) 4 m. NE. Pop. 900.

A parish in the hundred of Hoo, lathe of Aylesford; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 18l. 6s.; church ded. to St. Warburgh; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Rochester.

HOO, co. Norfolk.

• P. T. East Dereham (100) $2\frac{1}{2}$ m. NNE.
Pop. 228.

A parish in the hundred of Launditch; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of East Dereham, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; patronage with East Dereham vicarage.

HOO, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Market-Wickham (81) 4 m. NW.
Pop. 174.

A parish in the hundred of Loes; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; certified value 18l.; val. P. R. 50l.; church ded. to St. Andrew and St. Eustachius; patron, the Bishop of Ely.

HOOD GRANGE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Thirsk (217) $5\frac{1}{2}$ m. E. Pop. 30.

A hamlet in the parish of Kilburn and wapentake of Birdforth. Here was formerly a hermitage, now converted into a farmhouse.

HOOE, co. Sussex.

• P. T. Battle (36) 8 m. SW. Pop. 900.

A parish in the hundred of Ninfield, rape of Hastings; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 7l. 2s. 6d.; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) Sir Godfrey Webster, Bart.

HOOK, co. Surrey.

P. T. Kingston-upon-Thames (10) $3\frac{1}{2}$ m. S b W.
Pop. 222.

A hamlet in the parish of Kingston-upon-Thames and hundred of Kingston.

HOOKE, co. Dorset.

P. T. Breamster (141) 5 m. E b S. Pop. 234.

A parish in the hundred of Eggerton, Bridport division; living in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 9l. 18s. 10d.; ann. val. P. R. 80l. 15s.; church ded. to St. Giles; patron (1829) Lord Bolton.

HOOKE, co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Feathard Wex (105) 6 m. SW. Pop. 411.

• A parish in the barony of Shelburne, situated upon St. George's Channel. Here is an old tower, converted into a lighthouse, exhibiting a fixed bright light to the entrance of Waterford Haven; and this place is also a signal station. The living is a vicarage in the diocese of Ferns and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the parishes of Templetown and Dunbrody; patron, the Marquis of Ely. It does not possess either a church or glebe.

HOOKE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Howden (180) $2\frac{1}{2}$ m. SSE. Pop. 363.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Snaith and lower division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross; living, a curacy with that of Snaith, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 8l. 13s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 48l. 13s. 4d.; chapel ded. to St. John; patron (1829) — Starkie, Esq.

HOOLE, or HOOLE HEATH, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 2 m. NE. Pop. 237.

A township in the parish of Plemonstall and hundred of Broxton.

HOOLE, LITTLE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (217) $6\frac{1}{2}$ m. SW b W.; Pop. 216.

A township in the parish of Hoole Much and hundred of Leyland.

HOOLE, MUCH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (217) 7 m. SW.
Pop. of Pa. 800. Of To. 241.

A parish and township in the hundred of Leyland; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 6l. 14s.; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron (1829) the Rev. M. Barton. Hoole was formerly a township in the parish of Croston, but was made parochial in the reign of Charles I.

HOONE, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 8 m. WSW. Pop. 40.

A township in the parish of Marston-upon-Dove and hundred of Appletree.

HOOSE, or OULSE, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Great Neston (194) 8 m. NW b N.
Pop. 114.

A township in the parish of West Kirkby and hundred of Wirrall.

HOOTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 9 m. N b W. Pop. 112.

A township in the parish of Eastham and hundred of Wirrall, pleasantly situated on the river Mersey. Here is Hooton Hall, still the residence of a branch of the Stanley family.

HOOTON, LEVET, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Bawtry (153) 9 m. W b S. Pop. 85.

A township in the parish of Maltby and upper division of the wapentake of Straf-ford and Tickhill.

HOOTON PAGNELL, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Doncaster (168) $7\frac{1}{2}$ m. NW b W.
Pop. of Pa. 409. Of To. 326.

A parish and township in the lower division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 10*s.* 2½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Governors of Wakefield grammar-school.

HOOTON, ROBERTS, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Rotherham (100) 4½ m. NE. Pop. 190.

A parish in the upper division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) Earl Fitzwilliam, who has a handsome seat here.

HOPCROFT'S, HOLT, co. Oxford.

P. T. Deddington (60) 4½ m. S. Pop. with Pa.

A small hamlet in the parish of Steeple Aston and hundred of Wootton, where the petty sessions are holden for the neighbouring district.

HOPE, co. Derby.

P. T. Tideswell (109) 6 m. NE. Pop. of Pa. 4102. Of To. 518. Fairs, May 12; and Sept. 20; for cattle.

A parish and township in the hundred of High Peak; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar of the dean and chapter of Lichfield; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield. Hope Moor is remarkable for its preservation of human bodies, frequent instances having occurred of their lying for many years, and on examination scarcely any change to have taken place.

HOPE, or QUEEN'S-HOPE, or EAST-HOPE, co. Flint, N. W.

P. T. Wrexham (170) 6 m. NW. Pop. 2498.

A parish and village in the hundred of Mold, near to the banks of the Alen river, and at a short distance from Caergwrle; living, a rectory and vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph; the former belonging partly to the hospital of St. John, in Chester, and partly a sinecure. The vicarage is discharged, the rector enjoying a moiety. This place, with Caergwrle, constitutes a prescriptive borough, which, conjointly with Flint, returns one member to Parliament. The charter was granted by Edward, the Black Prince, in 1351, and dated from Chester; in it the constable of the castle is appointed mayor, and directed to choose annually, out of the burgesses, on Michaelmas-day, two bailiffs. The noble castle of Hope was erected upon the summit of a lofty and precipitous rock; its founder is not known, but in the reign of Owen Gwynedd, it appears to have been in the possession of Gryffydd Maelor. Edward I. granted the castle to Prince David, but subsequently conferred it upon his faithful Queen Eleanor, who settled here upon her journey to Carnarvon, at which latter place she shortly after gave birth to Edward, surnamed Carnarvon. The name, Queen's Hope, is probably derived from the circumstance of the royal visit. In 1307, the castle and manor were granted to John de Cromwell. The ruins are now inconsiderable. In the parish church is an ancient mural monument, to the memory of Sir John Trevor, comptroller of the navy during the remarkable period of the meditated descent of the Spanish Armada. There are two mineral springs in this parish, impregnated with muriate of soda, and believed to be efficacious in scorbutic cases. Some beautiful specimens of entrochi and astroites are found in the limestone of this district; and the uncommon species, usually denominated the Arborescent Sea Star, has also been discovered here. A British post formerly occupied the elevation called Caer Estwn, and the Welsh name of this parish is Estyn.

HOPE, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Welch Pool (171) m. N b W. Pop. 109.

A township in the parish of Buttington, within the jurisdiction of the borough of Pool, and in the hundred of Pool. It is one of the townships incorporated for the sustenance of the poor, in the house of industry at Forden.

HOPE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Greta Bridge (242) 5½ m. SW. Pop. 44.

A township in the parish of Barningham and wapentake of Gilling West.

HOPE, ALL SAINTS, co. Kent.

P. T. New Romney (60) 1 m. W b N. Pop. 46.

A parish within the liberty of Romney Marsh, lathe of Shepway; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 1*s.* 0½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 136*l.* 6*s.* 2*d.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HOPE, BAGOT, co. Salop.

P. T. Ludlow (142) 6 m. E. Pop. 71.

A parish in the hundred of Stottesden; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) the Marquis of Cleveland.

HOPE, BOWDLER, co. Salop.

P. T. Ludlow (142) 16 m. N b W. Pop. 179.

A parish in the hundred of Munslow; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 131*l.* 7*s.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) C. P. Stainer, Esq.

HOPE-UNDER-DINMORE, co. Hereford.

P. T. Leominster (137) 5 m. S b E. Pop. 528.

A parish in the hundred of Wolphy; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; certified value 4*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 93*l.* 8*s.*; patron, the Bishop of Hereford. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, consist of a nave and chancel, and was built by the Coningsbys of Hampton Court. Sir Thomas Coningsby, knight, founder of Coningaby's Hospital, at Hereford, and several others of the family are buried here.

HOPE, MANSELL, co. Hereford.

P. T. Ross (120) 5 m. SE b S. Pop. 146.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Greytree; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 5*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 119*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HOPE, SAY, co. Salop.

P. T. Bishop's Castle (150) 6 m. SE. Pop. 612.

A parish in the hundred of Purslow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. at 16*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) M. Pilkington, Esq.

HOPE, SOLLERS, co. Hereford.

P. T. Ross (120) 7½ m. N b E. Pop. 187.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Greytree; living, a dis. rectory with that of Howe Caple, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patronage with Howe Caple rectory.

HOPLEY, or HOPLER'S GREEN, co. Hereford.

P. T. Weobley (147) 5 m. W. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Almeley and hundred of Wolphy.

HOPPEN, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Belford (322) 4 m. SE b E. Pop. 29.

A township in the parish of Bambrrough and north division of Bambrrough ward.

HOPPERTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Knaresborough (302) 5 m. E.
Pop. with Allerton Maliverer.

A township in the parish of Allerton Maliverer and upper division of the wapentake of Claro.

HOPSFORD, co. Warwick.

P. T. Coventry (91) 7½ m. N b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Withybrook and Kirby division of the hundred of Knightlow.

HOPTON, co. Derby.

P. T. Wirksworth (140) 2 m. W b S.
Pop. 116.

A township in the parish and wapentake of Wirksworth.

HOPTON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Stafford (141) 2 m. NE b N.
Pop. with Coton, 517.

A liberty in the parish of St. Mary and south division of the hundred of Pirehill. A severe action was fought here between the king's forces under the Earl of Northampton, and the parliamentary army, commanded by Sir John Gell and Sir William Brereton. The latter having encamped at this place, the former immediately led his forces against them; and notwithstanding their great superiority in numbers, attacked them with incredible impetuosity; and after an obstinate contest, the earl's horse having been shot under him, he was surrounded and slain; but the royalists continued the battle, and, according to their account, gained a decided victory; the parliamentary army, on the other hand, asserted that, though defeated at first, they were in the end successful.

HOPTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. East Harling (89) 6 m. SW b S.
Pop. 524.

A parish in the hundred of Blackbourn; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 5*s.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HOPTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Lowestoff (114) 5 m. N b W. Pop. 274.

A parish in the hundred of Mutford and Lothingland; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; certified value 100*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Norwich.

HOPTON CASTLE, co. Salop.

P. T. Knighton (165) 6 m. NE. Pop. 150.

A parish in the hundred of Purslow; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 5*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) — Beale, Esq.

HOPTON-IN-THE-HOLE, or HOPTON CANGEFORD, co. Salop.

P. T. Ludlow (142) 5 m. NE b N. Pop. 21.

A parish in the hundred of Munslow; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; certified value 5*l.* 13*s.* 8*d.*; patron (1829) Sir C. N. Broughton, Bart.

HOPTON, MONKS, co. Salop.

P. T. Much Wenlock (148) 4½ m. S. Pop. 168.

A parish in the hundred of Wenlock; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Much Wenlock, in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; certified value 5*l.* 13*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Sir R. Lawley, Bart.

HOPTON WAFERS, co. Salop.

P. T. Teubury (130) 5½ m. NE b N. Pop. 459.

A parish in the hundred of Stottesden; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 16*s.* 5½*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Thomas Botfield, Esq.

HOPWAS, co. Stafford.

P. T. Tamworth (114) 2 m. W b N. Pop. 3.

An extra-parochial liberty in the south division of the hundred of Offlow, situated near the river Tame.

HOPWELL, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 7 m. E. Pop. 31.

A liberty in the parish of Sawley and hundred of Morleston and Litchurch.

HOPWOOD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Rochdale (198) 4½ m. SSW. Pop. 1284.

A township in the parish of Middleton and hundred of Salford.

HOPWOOD, co. Worcester.

P. T. Bromsgrove (116) 6 m. NE.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the par. of Alvechurch and middle division of the hundred of Oswaldslow.

HORBLING, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Folkingham (106) 3 m. E. b N.
Pop. 401.

A parish in the wapentake of Aveland, parts of Kesteven; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, the Bishop of Lincoln.

HORBURY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Wakefield (182) 2½ m. SW b W.
Pop. 2175.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Wakefield, and lower division of the wapentake of Aggbrig; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 7*l.*; patron, the Vicar of Wakefield. The chapel, which is ded. to St. Peter; is a modern structure, erected at the expense and after the design of the late eminent architect, Mr. Carr, who was a native of this place, and is a monument both of his skill and liberality.

HORDD, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

One of the Orkney islands, forming part of the parish of Burray. It is one mile in length, half a mile in breadth, and though uninhabited, affords excellent pasturage for cattle and sheep.

HORDERLEY, co. Salop.

P. T. Bishop's Castle (159) m. adjacent.
Pop. with Edgton.

An extra-parochial liberty in the hundred of Purslow.

HORDLE, or HORDWELL, co. Southampton.

P. T. Lymlington (38) 4½ m. WSW. Pop. 517.

A parish in the hundred of Christ Church, New Forest, east division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Milford in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with Milford vicarage.

HORDLEY, co. Salop.

P. T. Ellesmere (160) 5 m. SSW. Pop. 308.

A parish in the hundred of Pimhill; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 3*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) J. K. Powell, Esq.

HORE ABBEY, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Cashel (100) 1 m. SW.
Pop. with Cashel.

A parish in the barony of Middlethird; living, a rectory entire in the diocese and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the rectory and vicarage of Brickendown, and yielding, by commutation for tithes, 166*l.* 3*s.* 1*d.* Here are the remains of a splendid abbey, founded originally for Benedictine monks, the professors of which order were dispossessed, and the abbey and its possession conferred upon Cistercian monks, by archbishop Mac-Carvil, in consequence of his having dreamt that the Benedictines attempted to cut off his head.

HORETHORNE, co. Somerset.

Pop. 6000.

A hundred in the south-eastern extremity of the county, containing fourteen parishes, including the borough of Milbourn-Port.

HORETOWN, co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Taghmon (103) 3 m. SW. Pop. 1007.

A parish in the barony of Shelmalier; living, a rectory in the diocese of Ferns and archdiocese of Dublin; producing, by commutation for tithes, 213*l.* 16*s.* 10*d.* It is united to the parishes of Kilgarran, Ballingly, Dononey-Inch, and Ballyhenon. A Carmelite friary was founded here sometime in the fourteenth century, by — Furlong, Esq.

HORFIELD, or HAREFIELD, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Bristol (114) 2½ m. N. Pop. 198.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Berkeley; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Gloucester and diocese of Bristol; certified value 3*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 80*l.*; patron, the Bishop of Bristol.

HORHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Eye (81) 4½ m. ESE. Pop. 423.

A parish in the hundred of Hoxne; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 7*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Lord Huntingfield.

HORKESLEY, GREAT, co. Essex.

P. T. Nayland (57) 2 m. SSW. Pop. 623.

A parish in the Colchester division of the hundred of Lexden; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patroness (1829) the Countess de Grey.

HORKESLEY, LITTLE, co. Essex.

P. T. Nayland (57) 2½ m. SW b S.
Pop. 238.

A parish in the Colchester division of the hundred of Lexden; living, a donative in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 40*l.*; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patrons (1829) Mrs. Warren and E. C. Warren, Esq.

HORKSTOW, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Barton-upon-Umber (107) 4½ m. SW b W. Pop. 200.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 1*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Maurice; patron (1829) Lord Yarborough. Many Roman antiquities have been discovered in this parish, chiefly consisting of tessellated pavements.

HORLEY, co. Oxford.

P. T. Banbury (60) 3½ m. NW. Pop. 846.

A parish in the hundred of Bloxham; living, a rectory with that of Hornton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Etheldreda; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HORLEY, co. Surrey.

R. T. Reigate (21) 6 m. SSE. Pop. 1003.

A parish in the hundred of Reigate; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 1*s.* 0½*d.*; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patron, Christ's Hospital.

HORMEAD, GREAT, co. Hertford.

P. T. Buntingford (31) 4 m. E b S. Pop. 504.

A parish in the hundred of Edwinstree; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 150*l.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, St. John's College, Cambridge.

HORMEAD LITTLE, co. Hertford.

P. T. Buntingford (31) 4 m. ESE. Pop. 112.

A parish in the hundred of Edwinstree; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 10*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, St. John's College, Cambridge.

HORMER, co. Berks.

Pop. 3254.

A hundred forming the northern point of the county, and bounded on the east, north, and west by the river Isis, which separates it from Oxfordshire, containing eleven parishes, including the borough of Abingdon.

HORN, or HORNFIELD, co. Rutland.

P. T. Stamford (89) 7 m. NW b W.
Pop. 10.

A parish in the hundred of Alstoe; living, a rectory with the vicarage of Exton, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 21*l.* It is a sinecure; patron (1829) Sir Gerard Noel, Bart.

HORNBLOTTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Castle Cary (113) 4 m. NW b W.
Pop. 111.

A parish in the hundred of Whitestone; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) John Roberts, Esq.

HORNBY, co. Lancaster.

London 249 m. NNW. Pop. 477. M. D. 1st Monday in every Month. Fairs, June 30, and July 30; for horned cattle and horses.

A market town and chapelry in the parish of Milling and hundred of Lonsdale, south of the Sands, situated on the river Wenning, over which there is a handsome stone bridge of three arches. The town is small, but extremely pleasant, commanding fine views of the river and its delightfully wooded banks. Here is a cotton-manufactory, which affords employment to many of the inhabitants. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 6*l.* 13*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 88*l.*; patron (1829) John Marsden, Esq. The church, ded. to St. Margaret, is a beautiful structure with a fine octagonal tower; it was built in the sixteenth century by the first Lord Montague, in consequence, it is said, of a vow made at Flodden; in the churchyard is a very ancient freestone cross. Hornby Castle, the elegant seat of J. Marsden, Esq. is much noted; the original edifice was built soon after the Conquest, on the site of an ancient Roman villa, by Nicholas Montbegon; but the present is not more than a century old. Here was formerly a priory of Premonstratensian canons.

HORNBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. North Allerton (225) 8½ m. N.
Pop. 238.

A township in the parish of Great Smeaton, and wapentake of Allertonshire.

HORNBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Catterick (228) 3½ m. SSW.
Pop. of Pa. 315. Of To. 102.

A parish and township, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Ilang East; living, a dis. vicarage, and a peculiar in the diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 85*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of York. Hornby Castle, which is the seat of the Duke of Leeds, was the last fortress erected in Richmondshire; it is a spacious and handsome structure, commanding some fine views, but is combined of a singular mixture of architecture.

HORNCASTLE, co. Lincoln.

Pop. 7468.

A soke situated near the centre and Lindsey division of the county, to the north of the fens, containing thirteen parishes, including the borough, from which it takes its name.

HORNCASTLE, co. Lincoln.

London 136 m. N. Pop. 3058. M. D. Sat. Fairs, June 22; Aug. 21 (the latter of which was, until lately, held at Stainton, and is called Horncastle Stainton fair); and Oct 29.

A market-town and parish in the soke of Horncastle, parts of Lindsey, situated in a valley, nearly surrounded by the river Bain and a small rivulet, called Waring; the former of which was made navigable from hence to the Witham, in 1792. The site of this town was anciently a Saxon fortification, in the form of a parallelogram. It was incorporated in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, at which time it received the privilege of its market and one of the fairs. Many of the inhabitants are tanners, and consequently a considerable trade is carried on here in leather. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Bishop of Carlisle. Here is an excellent public dispensary, founded by subscription in 1789. The town has also the advantage of a grammar and charity schools. The petty sessions for the soke are holden here. Considerable numbers of Roman coins have been discovered in this neighbourhood at different periods, by persons digging.

HORNCHURCH, co. Essex.

London 14 m. ENE. Pop. 1938.

A parish in the liberty of Havering Atte Bower; living, a vicarage and a peculiar of New College, Oxford, not in charge; patron, New College, Oxford.

HORNCLIFF, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Berwick-upon-Tweed (337) 5 m. WSW. Pop. 351.

A township in the parish of Norham, Northumberland, pleasantly situated on the banks of the Tweed.

HORNDEAN, shire of Berwick, S.

P. T. Berwick (337) 7 m. SW b W. Pop. with Pa.

A chapelry, formerly a distinct parish, but now united to that of Ladykirk. It is bounded on the east by the river Tweed.

HORNDON, EAST, or GREAT, co. Essex.

P. T. Brentwood (18) 4 m. SE. Pop. 359.

A parish in the hundred of Barstaple; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 10*l*.; church ded. to All Saints; patrons (1829) Earl Brownlow, &c.

HORNDON-ON-THE-HILL, co. Essex.

London 24 m. E b N. Pop. 420. M. D. Sat. Fair, June 29, for wool.

A decayed market-town and parish in the hundred of Barstaple, situated on a hill, which commands a very fine prospect, and from whence it derives its name. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 14*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*.; church ded. to St. Peter; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's.

HORNDON, WEST, or LITTLE, co. Essex.

P. T. Brentwood (18) 3½ m. SSE. Pop. 45.

A parish in the hundred of Barstaple; living, a rectory, with that of Ingrave, in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 14*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) Thomas Newman, Esq.

HORNE, co. Surrey.

P. T. Godstone (19) 5 m. SSW. Pop. 585.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Tandridge; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 4*l*. 17*s*. 11*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Thomas Poynder, Esq.

HORNEHEAD, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

P. T. Duffanaghy (174) m. Pop. with Pa.

A headland in the parish of Clondahorky and barony of Kilmacrenan, forming the western protection of Sheep Haven, and is the Boreum Promontorium of Ptolemy. The shore of this district is abrupt, and faced with bold rocks of greenstone porphyry, in which sea-fowl of various species build their nests. Here are gannets, gulls, pinquets, and eider-ducks; the last sort is extremely valuable, the down selling generally for five shillings per pound. Near this place is the picturesque demesne of Mr. Stewart.

HORNING, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Acle (121) 6 m. NNW. Pop. 440. Fair, Mond. aft. Aug. 2, for ordinary horses and petty chapmen.

A parish in the hundred of Tunstead; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Norwich; certified value 30*l*.; ann. val. P. R. 108*l*. 8*s*.; patron, the Bishop of Norwich. Here was an abbey of Benedictines, endowed by King Canute, whose superior had a seat in Parliament.

HORNINGHOLD, co. Leicester.

P. T. Rockingham (83) 5½ m. NW. Pop. 97.

A parish in the hundred of Gartree; living, a dis. vicarage, with the curacy of Blaston, in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6*l*. 16*s*. 8*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 65*l*. 16*s*. 7*d*. The church, which is ded. to St. Peter, is a very ancient structure, and a curious specimen of the real Saxon style; patron (1829) Mrs. Holland.

HORNINGLOW, co. Stafford.

P. T. Burton-upon-Trent (125) 2 m. NW. Pop. 341.

A township in the parish of Burton-upon-Trent and north division of the hundred of Offlow.

HORNINGSEA, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Cambridge (50) 5 m. NNE. Pop. 285.

A parish in the hundred of Flendish; living, a curacy, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Ely, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 50*l*.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, St. John's College, Cambridge.

HORNINGSHAM, co. Wilts.

P. T. Warminster (96) 4½ m. SW. Pop. 1267.

A parish in the hundred of Heytesbury; living, a prebendary in the church of Heytesbury and a curacy, both peculiars of the Dean of Salisbury; the former valued in K. B. 9*l*. 15*s*. and the latter not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 75*l*. 16*s*.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patrons of the former, the Dean of Salisbury, as Dean of Heytesbury; and of the latter, the Prebend.

HORNINGSHEATH, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmund's (71) 2 m. SW. Pop. 539.

A parish in the hundred of Thingoe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10*l*. 17*s*. 8½*d*.; church ded. to St. Leonard; patron (1829) the Marquis of Bristol.

HORNINGTOFT, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Fakenham (100) 4 m. S b E. Pop. 254.

A parish in the hundred of Launditch; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. at 6*l.* 17*s.* 8½*d.*; church ded. to St. Edmund; patron (1829) F. R. Reynolds, Esq.

HORNSEA, E. R. co. York.

London (188) 3 m. N. Pop. with Burton, 700. M. D. Mon. Fairs, Aug. 13; and Dec. 17, for horses and beasts.

A market-town, parish, and township, in the north division of the wapentake of Holderness, bordering on the ocean, though formerly twelve miles distant; the sea is making almost daily encroachments, and some years since, nearly a whole street was washed away. It consists of four straggling streets, with a market-place. The living is a vicarage, with the rectory of Riston, in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church, which is dedicated to St. Nicholas, is a spacious edifice, and was formerly noted for its lofty spire, which served for a sea-mark till destroyed by a hurricane, which happened upwards of a hundred years since. Here is a lake, covering from four to 500 acres, called Hornsea Mere; it is interspersed with several wooded islands, and abounds with excellent fresh-water fish, is nearly two miles in length, and three-quarters of a mile wide; and, except Malham water, is the only lake in Yorkshire.

HORNSEY, co. Middlesex.

London 5 m. N b W. Pop. 4122.

A parish and village, in Finsbury division of the hundred of Ossulstone; the former including the hamlets of Crouch End, Muswell Hill, Stroud Green, a considerable part of Highbury, and a part of Finchley Common. This place, in the thirteenth century, was called Haringhee, and afterwards Haringey, whence its present appellation. The manor has, from time immemorial, belonged to the see of London; and here was anciently an episcopal palace, and also a park, now converted to tillage; lands in this manor descend according to the custom of gavelkind. Hornsey Park is mentioned in history as the place where the Duke of Gloucester and other nobles assembled in hostile array, in 1386, to oppose the favourites of Richard II.; here Edward V. was met in procession by the citizens, on his approach to London, after the death of his father; and Henry VII. was received in a similar manner, on his return from the north of England, in 1487, after the conclusion of a treaty with Scotland. In this parish, between Highbury and Hornsey, was a wooden aqueduct, 534 feet in length, for the purpose of preserving the level of the New River, which was destroyed in 1776, and replaced by a channel, made on a mound of clay. The living of Hornsey is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 22*l.*; patron, the Bishop of London. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, consisting of a nave, south aisle, and chancel, with a square western tower, appears to have been erected in the beginning of the sixteenth century. Among the clergymen who have held the rectory, were Lewis Atterbury, brother of the celebrated Bishop of Rochester, and himself a man of some literary eminence; and William Cole, F. S. A., the author of voluminous antiquarian collections, preserved in MS., in the British Museum. At a short distance from the village is a coppice, called Hornsey Wood, at the entrance to which is a house of entertainment, much frequented in the summer season, on account of its pleasant situation and delightful and extensive prospects.

HORNTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Banbury (69) 6½ m. NW b W. Pop. 529.

A chapelry in the parish of Horley and hundred of Bloxham; living, a curacy, with the vicarage of Horley, in the archdeaconry of Oxford and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. John the Baptist; patronage with Horley vicarage.

HORSEHEATH, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Linton (48) 3½ m. ENE. Pop. 413.

A parish in the hundred of Chilford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Governors of the Charter House.

HORSE HOUSE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Middleham (232) 7 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Coverham and wapentake of Hang West; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 1*l.* 9*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 70*l.*; patron (1829) Rev. S. Hardcastle.

HORSEFORD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Norwich (108) 5 m. NNW. Pop. 512.

A parish in the hundred of Taverham; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. at 4*l.* 5*s.* 2½*d.*; patron (1829) Lord Ranelagh. The church, which is dedicated to All Saints, is a small plain building, of one aisle, a chancel, a chapel, and a square tower. In this parish are the site, moat, &c. of an ancient castle, which belonged to the lords of the manor, and who obtained their name from the place.

HORSE-LEAP. See Ardnorcher.

HORSE-PASS BRIDGE, co. Wicklow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Blessington (18) 3 m. SW. Pop. not specified.

A village in the barony of Talbotstown, situated upon the river Liffey, and on the boundary-line of Kildare and Dublin counties.

HORSLEY, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Minchin-Hampton (99) 2½ m. SW b W. Pop. 3563.

A parish in the hundred of Longtree; was formerly a market-town, but is now disused; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 11*s.* 5½*d.*; ann. val. P. R.

807. 3s.; patron, the Bishop of Gloucester. The church, which is dedicated to St. Martin, is a spacious structure, with a handsome tower. Here were formerly several monastic buildings, the only remains of which is an ancient gateway, standing near the church.

HORSLEY, co. Stafford.

P. T. Stafford (121) 7 m. NW b W. Pop. 487.

A township in the parish of Eccleshall and hundred of Pirehill north.

HORSELEY, EAST, co. Surrey.

P. T. Leatherhead (18) 5½ SW b W. Pop. 192.

A parish in the hundred of Woking; living, a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 12l. 16s. 5½d.; church ded. to St. Martin; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

HORSELEY, WEST, co. Surrey.

P. T. Leatherhead (18) 6½ m. WSW. Pop. 611.

A parish in the hundred of Woking; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 22l. 17s. 1d.; patron (1829) H. P. Weston, Esq. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, is a small ancient structure, containing several old stalls and monuments. In the chapel, which is the burial-place belonging to the manor-house, is interred Carew Raleigh, Esq., son of Sir Walter; near his coffin, a human skull, without any other bones or covering, was found in a niche in the rock of chalk, which is supposed to have been that of Sir Walter Raleigh, brought here by his son with the intention of having it buried with himself. Within a short distance is the venerable old mansion, which formerly belonged to the Raleigh family.

HORSELL, co. Surrey.

P. T. Ripley (24) ¼ m. NW b W. Pop. 617.

A parish in the hundred of Godley and Chertsey; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 29l. 7s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Trustees.

HORSEMONDEN, co. Kent.

P. T. Lamberhurst (40) 2 m. NE b E. Pop. 1221.

A parish in the hundred of Brenchley and Horsemonden, lathe of Aylesford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 26l. 3s. 9d.; church ded. to St. Margaret; patrons (1829) W. A. Morland, Esq., Sir J. W. Smith, Bart., and J. P. Ince, Esq.

HORSENDON, co. Bucks.

P. T. Great Missenden (31) 7 m. W b N. Pop. 50.

A parish in the hundred of Aylesbury; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Bucks and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6l. 17s.; ann. val. P. R. 147l. 13s. 1d.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) — Grubb, Esq.

HORSEPOOL, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (96) 8 m. NW b W. Pop. with Stanton-under-Bardon.

A township in the parish of Thornton and hundred of Sparkenhoe.

HORSEY, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Caister (126) 9 m. NNW. Pop. 95.

A parish in the hundred of Happening; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 3l. 1s. 5½d.; ann. val. P. R. 125l. The church was dedicated to All Saints, but is now in ruins; patrons, the Governors of North Walsham school.

HORSFORTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Leeds (189) 5½ m. NW b W. Pop. 2321.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Guiseley and upper division of the wapentake of Skyrack, situated near the river Aire, over which there is a bridge to Calverley; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Guiseley, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 6l. 11s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 73l.; patronage with Guiseley rectory. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the woollen manufacture.

HORSHAM, co. Sussex.

London 30 m. SSW. Pop. 4575. M. D. Sat. Fairs, April 5; and Mond. bef. Whit. Sun.; for sheep and lambs; July 18; for cattle, sheep, and lambs; Nov. 27; for cattle and poultry; and last Tues. in every month, for cattle, sheep, &c. Memb. of Pt. 2.

A borough, market-town, and parish, in the hundred of East Easwirth, rape of Bramber, situated on the river Adur, and is supposed to have derived its name from Horsa, the brother of Hengist, the Saxon, who is said to have built it, but there seems to be nothing more than a similarity of sound to support this conjecture. The town is governed by a steward, two bailiffs, who are the returning officers at elections for representatives, and two constables, annually chosen at the court-leet of the manor, which belongs to the Duke of Norfolk. It has returned two members to Parliament ever since the reign of Edward I., the right of election being in those who possess an estate, by inheritance or for life, in burgage, houses, or lands, lying within the borough, whose number is about twenty-five; patron, the Duke of Norfolk. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 25l.; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, is an ancient structure with a lofty spire of lead and slate, and contains some fine old monuments. Here are two freeschools and several meeting-houses for different sects of dissenters, and many charitable gifts to the poor parishioners. Horsham has a good market-house and a commodious townhall, in which the assizes are held alternately with Lewes. The county-gaol is a good modern structure, built partly with stone from the vicinity, and situated at the southern entrance of the town, where also are extensive barracks and a magazine, in which are kept 30,000 stand of arms. Here also is an established bank.

HORSHAM, ST. FAITH'S, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Norwich (108) 5 m. N b W. Pop. 735.

A parish in the hundred of Taverham; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; certified value 20*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 38*l.* 0*s.* 2*d.*; patron (1829) Lord Ranelagh. Here was formerly a priory of Black Monks.

HORSINGTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Horncastle (130) 3 m. W. Pop. 322.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Gartree, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, Magdalen College, Oxford.

HORSINGTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Wincanton (108) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 625.

A parish in the hundred of Horethorne; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 18*l.* 6*s.* 0*d.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patrons (1829) G. Whitechurch, Esq., and others.

HORSLEY, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (120) 6 m. NNE.
Pop. of Pa. 1714. Of To. 624.

A parish and township in the hundred of Morleston and Litchurch; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 5*s.* 5*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 94*l.*; church ded. to St. Clement; patron (1829) the Earl of Chesterfield.

HORSLEY, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 10 m.
W b NW. Pop. 257.

A township in the parish of Ovingham, and east division of Tindale ward. Here is a Presbyterian chapel.

HORSLEY, LONG, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 7 m. NW b N.
Pop. 1006.

A parish in the west division of Morpeth ward; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Helen; patron, the Lord Chancellor. Here is a strong ancient tower, which formerly belonged to the Horsleys, but is now converted into a Catholic chapel, with a house for the priest. It is a plain square building, with a deer park adjoining it. A good school, under Dr. Bell's system, is supported by voluntary contributions.

HORSLEY WOODHOUSE, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (120) 7 m. NE b N. Pop. 502.

A township in the parish of Horsley and hundred of Morleston and Litchurch.

HORSPATH, co. Oxford.

P. T. Oxford (54) 4 m. E b S. Pop. 264.

A parish in the hundred of Bullington; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford, not in charge; ann. val.

P. R. 38*l.*; church ded. to St. Giles; patron, Magdalen College, Oxford.

HORSTEAD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Coltishall (116) 6 m. W.
Pop. with Stanninghall, 492.

A parish in the hundred of Taverham; living, a rectory with that of Coltishall, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 10*s.*; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with Coltishall rectory.

HORSTED KEYNES, co. Sussex.

P. T. Cuckfield (37) 6 m. ENE. Pop. 713.
Fairs, May 57, and Sep. 12, for cattle and pedlery.

A parish in the hundred of Rushmonden, rape of Pevensey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Giles.

HORSTED, LITTLE, co. Sussex.

P. T. Uckfield (13) 2½ m. S b W. Pop. 286.

A parish in the hundred of Rushmonden, rape of Pevensey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 7*l.*; patron (1829) the Rev. John Hubbard.

HORTLAND, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

P. T. Kilcock (18) 5½ m. SW.
Pop. of Pa. 621.

A village in the parish of Ballysculloge and united baronies of Ikenahy and Aughterany. See Ballynculloge and Cloncurry.

HORTON, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Ivinghoe (33) 3 m. NNW.
Pop. with Seabrook, 139.

A hamlet in the parish of Edlesborough and hundred of Cottesloe.

HORTON, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Colnbrook (17) 2 m. SSW. Pop. 706.

A parish in the hundred of Stoke; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 22*l.* 9*s.* 4½*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) the Rev. William Brown.

HORTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Whitechurch (163) 8 m. NW. Pop. 141.

A township in the parish of Tilston and hundred of Broxton.

HORTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 6 m. E b N
Pop. with Peele, 36.

A township in the parish of Tarvin and hundred of Eddisbury.

HORTON, co. Dorset.

P. T. Cranborne (93) 5 m. SSW. Pop. 420.

A parish in the hundred of Badbury, Shaston division; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacy of Knowlton, in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 50*l.* The church, which is ded. to St. Wulfreda, was almost entirely re-edified about the year 1720; from its then ruinous state, it appeared to be very ancient, and is conjectured to have been a part of the church belonging to the priory, which was founded here for Benedictine monks, by Orgar.

Here is a large and deep circular intrenchment.

HORTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Chipping Sodbury (108) 4 m. N.E.
Pop. 385.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Grombald's Ash; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 167; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) Thos. Brooks, Esq.

HORTON, co. Kent.

P. T. Canterbury (55) 3½ m. SW b W.
Pop. with Chartham Pa.

A chapelry in the hundred of Bridge and Petham, lathe of St. Augustin; living, a curacy, with the rectory of Chartham, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury, not in charge; patronage with Chartham rectory.

HORTON, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (66) 6½ m. S.E. Pop. 87.

A parish in the hundred of Wymersley; living, a vicarage, with that of Piddington, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 71. 17s. 1d.; ann. val. P. R. 707; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Sir R. H. Gunning, Bart., who has a handsome seat here, called Horton House, situated in a fine park, ornamented with excellent trees and a piece of water, crossed at a short distance from the house by a small stone bridge. Charles Montague, the first Earl of Halifax, who was born in 1661, was a native of this place.

HORTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 6 m. S.E.
Pop. of Pa. 2090. Of To. 139.

A parish and township in the east division of Castle ward; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Woodhorn, in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; certified value 167; ann. val. P. R. 807; patron, the Vicar of Woodhorn. Here was formerly a strong castle, but in 1809 it was razed to the ground, and the fosse and rampart levelled.

HORTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 3 m. N.E. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Chatton and east division of Glendale ward. Here was formerly a strong castle, of which there are now scarcely any remains.

HORTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Oxford (54) 7 m. N.E.
Pop. with Studley chapelry.

A hamlet in the parish of Beckley and hundred of Bullington.

HORTON, co. Salop.

P. T. Wem (163) 1 m. W b N. Pop. 99.

A township in the parish of Wem and Whitechurch division of the hundred of Bradford, North.

HORTON, co. Salop.

P. T. Wellington (142) 2 m. N.E.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Wellington and Wellington division of Bradford, South.

HORTON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Leek (154) 3 m. W b N.
Pop. with Horton Hay Township, 912.

A parish in the north division of the hundred of Totmonslow; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; certified value 207; ann. val. P. R. 851. 16s.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) Sir E. Antrobus, Bart.

HORTON-IN-CRAVEN, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (216) 10 m. W b S. Pop. 187.

A township in the parish of Gishburn and west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross.

HORTON-GRANGE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 8½ m. NNW.
Pop. 60.

A township in the parish of Ponteland and west division of Castle ward.

HORTON, GREAT, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Bradford (106) 2 m. SW. Pop. 7192.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Bradford and wapentake of Morley; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Bradford, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 321; ann. val. P. R. 447; patron, the Vicar of Bradford.

HORTON-HAY, co. Stafford.

P. T. Leek (154) 3 m. W b N. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Horton and north division of the hundred of Totmonslow.

HORTON KIRBY, co. Kent.

P. T. Dartford (15) 4 m. S b E. Pop. 537.

A parish in the hundred of Axton, Dartford, and Wilmington, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 51. 7s. 6d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. P. Rashleigh. Here are the massive remains of an ancient castle.

HORTON, LITTLE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Bradford (190) 1 m. SW b S.
Pop. 7192.

A hamlet in the parish of Bradford and wapentake of Morley.

HORTON, MONK'S, co. Kent.

P. T. Hythe (65) 5 m. NNW. Pop. 186.

A parish in the hundred of Stouting, lathe of Shepway; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 71. 10s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Peter; patronage with Brabourn vicarage. Horton Priory was founded here for Cluniac monks, about the reign of Henry II., by Robert de Vere, constable of England; it is now tenanted as a farm. Here is Mount Morris, for many years the seat and retirement of the late Lord Rokeby; it is a large square edifice of brick; the park is well wooded, and contains nearly 1000 acres.

HORTON-IN-RIBBLESDALE, W. R. York.

P. T. Settle (235) 6 m. N b W. Pop. 558.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 13*l.*; ann. val. 23*s.* R. 55*l.*; patron (1829) the Rev. G. Holden, L.L.D. Here is a free grammar-school, founded in 1725 by John Armistead. In this parish are the sources of the Ribble and the Wharfe. To the east is Pennigent Hill, a towering mountain, at whose base are two frightful chasms, called Hulpit and Huntpit Holes; through each of them runs a subterraneous brook, which emerges at a considerable distance. On the west side of the mountain are the remains of some ancient places of interment, called the Giant's Graves, though the skeletons discovered here do not exceed the ordinary size. To the western boundary of the parish are the skirts of Ingleborough Hill; this mountain is 2361 feet in height, the top is flat, and nearly a mile in circumference; the summit is of a gritty sand stone, and commands a noble view. Here was formerly a beacon, to communicate any sudden alarm. Ingleborough is the first land descried by sailors in their voyage from Dublin to Lancaster.

HORWICH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Great Bolton (197) 5 m. WNW.
Pop. 2873.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford; livings, two curacies in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; the former of the certified value of 9*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 119*l.* 12*s.*; and the latter not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Dean.

HORWOOD, co. Devon.

P. T. Bideford (201) 4 m. ENE. Pop. 144.

A parish in the hundred of Fremington; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. at 7*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 131*l.* 9*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) John Dene, Esq.

HORWOOD, GREAT, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Winslow (40) 2½ m. N. Pop. 698.

A parish in the hundred of Cottesloe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. James; patron, New College, Oxford.

HORWOOD, LITTLE, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Winslow (40) 3 m. NE b N. Pop. 429.

A parish in the hundred of Cottesloe; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of St. Albans and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 92*l.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Bishop of London.

HOSE, or HOWES, co. Leicester.

P. T. Melton-Mowbray (105) 7 m. N b W.
Pop. 325.

A parish in the hundred of Framland; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 115*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the King, by lapse.

HOSPITAL, co. Berks.

P. T. Abingdon (50) 14 m. W.
Pop. with Wadley.

A tithing in the parish of Great Faringdon and hundred of Faringdon.

HOSPITAL, co. Limerick, Munster, I.

P. T. Bally (133) m. Pop. of Pa. 1666. Of To. 375. Fairs, May 10; July 9; Sept. 8; and Oct. 30.

A small town and parish in the barony of Small County; living, one of seven vicarages, which constitute the union of Aney, in the diocese of Emly and archdiocese of Cashel; patron, Lord Kenmare. (See Aney.) A commandery for knights hospitaliers was founded here in the reign of King John, by Geoffrey De Mariscis, chief governor of Ireland, in the year 1215. This hospital and its possessions were granted by Queen Elizabeth, to Sir Valentine Browne, who erected, upon the site of the hospital, a magnificent castle. The ruins of the castle still exist, as well as some parts of the ancient church, in the side-wall of which, near to the high altar, may be seen the tomb of the founder, in a mutilated condition.

HOTHAM, E. R. co. York.

P. T. North Cave (185) 1 m. NNE. Pop. 293.

A parish in Hunsley Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 0*s.* 7½*d.*; church ded. to St. Oswald; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HOTHERSALL, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (21) 7 m. NE b E. Pop. 619.

A township in the parish of Ribblesdale hundred of Amounderness.

HOTHFIELD, co. Kent.

P. T. Ashford (53) 3 m. NW b W. Pop. 400.

A parish in the hundred of Chart and Longbridge, lathe of Scray; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 17*l.* 5*s.*; patron, the Earl of Thanet. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, was partly destroyed by fire in the reign of James I., but was soon afterwards re-edified by Sir John Tufton, Bart., to whose memory it contains a handsome monument. Hothfield House is a square edifice of Portland stone, and occupies a commanding situation.

HOTHORPE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Market-Harborough (83) 4½ m. WSW.
Pop. 62.

A hamlet in the parish of Tbedingworth and hundred of Rothwell.

HOTON, or HOUGHTON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Loughborough (109) 3 m. NE b E.
Pop. 412.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Prestwold and hundred of East Goscote; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Prestwold, in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 15*l*.; patronage with Prestwold vicarage.

HOUGH, THE, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Nantwich (161) 3 m. E b S. Pop. 202.

A township in the parish of Wybunbury and hundred of Nantwich.

HOUGH-ON-THE-HILL, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (110) 8 m. N. Pop. 533.

A parish in the wapentake of Loveden, parts of Kesteven; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 15*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 83*l*. 4*s*. 8*d*.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HOUGHAM, co. Kent.

P. T. Dover (71) 2½ m. WSW. Pop. 834.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Bewsborough, lathe of St. Augustin, partly in that of Folkestone, and partly in the Cinqueport liberty of Dover; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 6*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*.; church ded. to St. Laurence; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

HOUGHTON, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 2 m. N b E. Pop. 288.

A township in the parish of Stanwix, Eskdale ward.

HOUGHTON, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. St. Ives (59) 2 m. N b W. Pop. 427.

A parish in the hundred of Hurstingstone; living, a rectory with the curacy of Witton, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 34*l*. 17*s*. 8½*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Mrs. Peck.

HOUGHTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Stockport (176) 4 m. NE. Pop. 2084.

A township in the parish of Manchester and hundred of Salford.

HOUGHTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Newton-in-Makerfield (193) 4 m. SE b E. Pop. with Arbury and Middleton, 280.

A township in the parish of Winwick and hundred of West Derby.

HOUGHTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 8 m. W b N. Pop. with Close House, 362.

A township in the parish of Haddon-on-the-Wall and east division of Tyndale ward. Here is a large elegant mansion, called Close House, surrounded by plantations and pleasure-grounds, in which there are three fine sheets of water.

HOUGHTON, co. Sussex.

P. T. Arundel (55) 3½ m. N b E. Pop. 163.

A parish in the hundred of Bury, rape of Arundel; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Amberley, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 10*l*.; patronage with Amberley vicarage.

TORON. DICT.—VOL. II.

HOUGHTON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Market-Weighton (192) 2 m. SSE. Pop. 331.

A township in the parish of Sancton and Hunsley Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill.

HOUGHTON CONQUEST, co. Bedford.

P. T. Ampthill (45) 2 m. N b E. Pop. with Houghton Gildable, 651.

A parish in the hundred of Redborne-Stoke; living, a rectory, with that of Houghton Gildable, in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 15*l*. 9*s*. 2*d*.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, St. John's College, Cambridge.

HOUGHTON GILDABLE, co. Bedford.

P. T. Ampthill (45) 3 m. NNE. Pop. with Houghton Conquest.

A parish in the hundred of Redborne-Stoke; living, a rectory, with that of Houghton Conquest, in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 9*l*. 19*s*. 7*d*.; patron, St. John's College, Cambridge.

HOUGHTON GLASS, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Pontefract (177) 3 m. NW b N. Pop. 412.

A township in the parish of Castleford and upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross.

HOUGHTON, GREAT, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (60) 3 m. SE b E. Pop. 219.

A parish in the hundred of Wymersley; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 22*l*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Magdalen College, Oxford.

HOUGHTON, GREAT, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnesley (172) 6 m. E b N. Pop. 287.

A township in the parish of Darfield and lower division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill.

HOUGHTON HANGING, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (66) 8½ m. N b W. Pop. 111.

A hamlet in the parish of Lamport and hundred of Orlingbury. Here was anciently a chapel.

HOUGHTON-ON-THE-HILL, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (96) 6 m. E b S. Pop. 374.

A parish in the hundred of Gartree; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 16*l*. 1*s*. 0½*d*.; church ded. to St. Catherine; patrons (1829) Mr. and Mrs. Coulton.

HOUGHTON-ON-THE-HILL, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Walton (91) 4 m. N W. Pop. 34.

A parish in the hundred of South Greenhoe; living, a dis. rectory with that of North Pickenham, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4*l*. 18*s*. 9*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with North Pickenham rectory.

HOUGHTON-IN-THE-HOLE, co. Nor-

P. T. New Walsingham (113) 1 m. SW.
Pop. 206.

A parish in the hundred of North Greenhoe; living, a dis. vicarage, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 146*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*; patron (1829) H. D. Lee Warner, Esq.

HOUGHTON, LITTLE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Northampton (66) 3½ m. ESE. Pop. 501.

A parish in the hundred of Wymersley; living, a vicarage with that of Brayfield-on-the-Green, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 9*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. J. Johnson.

HOUGHTON, LITTLE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alnwick (308) 4 m. NE b E.
Pop. with Little Mill, 77.

A township in the parish of Long Houghton and South division of Bambrough ward. Here is a lead-mine.

HOUGHTON, LITTLE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnesley (172) 5½ m. E. Pop. 112.

A township in the lower division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill.

HOUGHTON, LONG, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alnwick (308) 4½ m. E b N. Pop. 650.

A parish in the south division of Bambrough ward; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Duke of Northumberland. In this parish is a stupendous and romantic eminence, called Ratcheugh Crag, covered with a thriving plantation.

HOUGHTON, NEW, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Fakenham (109) 9 m. W. Pop. 200.

A parish in the hundred of Gallow; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 52*l.*; church ded. to St. Martin; patron (1829) the Marquis Cholmondeley.

HOUGHTON, NORTH, co. Southampton.

P. T. Stockbridge (66) 2 m. SW. Pop. 305.

A parish in the hundred of King's Sambourne, Andover division; living, a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 28*l.* 2*s.* 8½*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Bishop of Winchester.

HOUGHTON REGIS, co. Bedford.

P. T. Dunstable (33) 2 m. N. Pop. 1233.

A parish in the hundred of Manshead; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Duke of Bedford.

HOUGHTON-LEE-SIDE, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Darlington (248) 6 m. NW b N.
Pop. 122.

A township in the parish of Gainsford and south-east division of Darlington ward.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING, co. Pal. of Durham.

London 266 m. NNW. Pop. of Pa. 12,550.
Of Township 2905. M. D. Fri.

A market-town, parish, and township, in the north-east division of Easington ward, delightfully situated at the head of a fine vale, sheltered on the north and east by the hill of Houghton and Wardenlaw. Its market, which was established so lately as 1825, is too contiguous to the city of Durham for any very great attendance. The neighbourhood is famous for its chalybeate springs, from which the town receives its second appellation; it also abounds with coal, limestone, and freestone. The livings are a rectory and a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; the former valued in K. B. 124*l.*; the latter not in charge; patrons, the Bishop of Durham and Rector of Houghton. The church, dedicated to St. Michael, is an ancient structure, containing many monuments; besides which, there is a chapel-of-ease and three dissenting meeting-houses. Here also are a grammar-school and a blue-coat school for girls. The former was founded in 1574 by the Rev. Bernard Gilpin, who was rector of the parish for twenty-three years. The petty sessions are holden here every other Thursday.

HOUGHTON, WEST, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Wigan (300) 4½ m. E b N. Pop. 4211.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 2*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*; chapel ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Vicar of Dean. This is a populous manufacturing place, in which the loom affords subsistence to a large portion of the inhabitants.

HOUGHTON WINTERBOURNE, co. Dorset.

P. T. Blandford Forum (103) 5½ m. WSW.
Pop. 203.

A parish in the hundred of Pimperne, Blandford division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) E. M. Pleydell, Esq.

HOUND, co. Southampton.

P. T. Southampton (74) 4 m. SE b E.
Pop. 387.

A parish in the hundred of Mansbridge, Fawley division; living, a dis. vicarage, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Winchester College.

HOUND-STREET, co. Somerset.

P. T. Pensford (116) 2 m. S E b E. Pop. 73.

A tithing in the parish of Marksbury and hundred of Keynsham.

HOUNDSBOROUGH, BERWICK, AND COKER, co. Somerset.

Pop. 7235.

A hundred situated on the south side of the county, containing sixteen parishes.

HOUNSLOW, co. Middlesex.

London 10 m. WSW. Pop. with Pa.

A market-town, partly in the parish of Heston and partly in that of Isleworth, and in the hundred of Isleworth. It is situated on the principal road from London to the west of England, and has long been noted as a great thoroughfare. In ancient records this place is called Hundeslawe and Hundeslowe, hence doubtless was derived its present name. It is stated in a parliamentary survey made in 1650, that the town of Hounslow then contained one hundred and twenty houses, most of which were inns and alehouses, depending upon travellers; but such has since been the increase of population, that in 1795 a greater number of houses was comprised within that part of the town alone belonging to the parish of Heston. Its early importance may be inferred, from its having been the scene of a tournament, held during the insurrection of the associated barons, who procured the grant of the great charter from King John; and in the first year of Henry III. a conference took place at Hounslow between the partisans of that prince and those of the French dauphin, who had invaded England. On Hounslow Heath, both the royal and the parliamentary armies were encamped, at different periods, during the civil war. Here also James II. had collected a large body of troops, in June, 1688; and when on a visit to the camp to review the soldiers, he was alarmed by the loud exclamations of joy, on the arrival of the news of the acquittal of the seven prelates who had been tried for sedition, in consequence of their presenting to the king a remonstrance against his assumed power of dispensing with the established laws of the kingdom. While this encampment continued, the king granted the privilege of holding a daily market on the heath, for the convenience of the troops, and also a weekly market on Thursdays, the latter of which is still continued. There was anciently a priory at Hounslow, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, which gave rise to the foundation of the present church, as a chapel of ease to the parish of Heston. A district church has also recently been erected under the authority of the parliamentary commission. The only manufacture of importance at present, is that of gunpowder; for making which there are two establishments in the vicinity of Hounslow. Barracks were erected on the heath, by government, in 1793, calculated to afford accommodation for more than 600 men. This heath was formerly one of the most noted scenes of highway robberies in the neighbourhood of London; but almost every part of it which is capable of culture has been inclosed by act of Parliament, and numerous handsome houses have been erected, and plantations made within a few years past, which have materially changed the appearance of this formerly desolate tract of country.

HOUSTON, shire of Renfrew, S.

P. T. Paisley (50) 5 m. NW. Pop. 2317.

Fairs, St. Peter's Day; in July; and 2d Tues. in May.

A parish and village, in union since 1760 with the ancient parish of Killellan, together about six miles in length, and three in breadth. The soil is partly fertile, and partly covered with heath. Freestone, limestone, peat, and coal, are found in abundance, in working which, and in weaving, the inhabitants are chiefly employed. The living is in the presbytery of Paisley and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patrons, alternately, — Fleming, Esq., and A. Spiers, Esq., who have each an elegant seat in the parish, situated amidst fine natural woods and flourishing plantations. Here are several cairns, in which urns, containing human bones and ashes, have been discovered; and on an adjacent hill is an ancient cross, which formerly stood by the side of the high-road, in the barony of Barsclan.

HOVE, co. Sussex.

P. T. Brighton (51) 2 m. W b N. Pop. 312.

A parish in the hundred of Preston, rape of Lewes; living, a dis. vicarage with that of Preston, in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester, not in charge; church ded. to St. Andrew; patronage with Preston vicarage. Bathing-machines have been established here, and a few lodging-houses are open during the season.

HOVERINHAM, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Southwell (132) 5 m. S. Pop. 333.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Thurgarton; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York, of the certified value of 20l.; ann. val. P. R. 30l. 10s.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge. Here is a ferry over the Trent.

HOVETON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Coltishall (116) 3 m. E b S. Pop. 387.

A village containing the parishes of St. John and St. Peter, in the hundred of Tunstead; livings, two vicarages in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; patron, the Bishop of Norwich.

HOVINGHAM, N. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 8½ m. WNW.

Pop. of Pa. 1115. Of To. 649.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Ryedale, pleasantly situated in a rich vale, and formerly possessing a market, which is now disused; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York, of the certified value of 20*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 57*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Earl of Carlisle. Hovingham appears to have been built nearly on the site of a Roman villa, as a tessellated pavement, and several other antique remains have been discovered.

HOW BOUND, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (283) 9 m. NW. Pop. 279.

A township in the parish of Castle Sowerby, Leath ward.

HOWBURN, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Belford (322) 5 m. WNW.

Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Lowick and east division of Glendale ward.

HOWDEN, E. R. co. York.

London 180 m. N b W. Pop. of Pa. 4413.

Of To. 2030. M. D. Sat. Fairs, 2d Tues. after Jan. 11; April 5; Sat. before Holy Thurs.; 2d Tues. July 11; and Oct. 2; for horses, cattle, and linen.

A market-town, parish, and township in the wapentake of Howdenshire, situated at a short distance from the river Ouse. The town is neat and well-built, and has latterly been much improved; in the market-place is a large old building called the Moot Hall, where the Bishop of Durham, as lord of the manor, holds four copyhold courts in the year, two freehold courts, and a court-baron every three weeks, for causes under 40*s.* The Bishops of Durham formerly had a palace here, with many of whom it seems to have been a very favourite residence; among those who have lived here are particularly Hugh Pudsey, in 1195. Walter de Kirkham in 1260 and Walter de Skirlaw in 1405; also Bishop's Hatfield and Langley, who made great improvements in the town; the former was the original founder of the College at Oxford, which has since been refounded under the name of Trinity College. Henry III. granted to the Bishops of Durham, among many other privileges, those of having the property of all persons who died felo de se within the manor, all wrecks cast upon the shores of the river Ouse, and the power of issuing writs. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; patron the Lord Chancellor. The church, ded. to St. Peter, is a handsome building, of a cruciform construction, with a fine tower rising from the centre, which contains a peal of eight bells; this tower was erected in 1390, by Bishop Skirlaw, as a place of refuge, in case of the inundations of the Ouse, which were formerly very frequent occurrences. Here also are two chapels belonging to congregations of dissenters. The annual horse-fair held at Howden is the largest in the kingdom. John de Hoveden, an ancient monkish historian and chaplain to Henry II. was a native of this place, as his name proves, corresponding with the ancient appellation of the town.

HOWDENSHERE, E. R. co. York.

Pop. 7805.

A wapentake situated nearly in the centre of the county; bounded on the west by the river Derwent, and on the south by the Ouse, containing seven parishes, including the market-town of Howden, twenty-one townships and three chapelries.

HOWDEN PANS, co. Northumberland.

P. T. North Shields (279) 2½ m. SW b W.

Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Wall's End and east division of castle ward, situated at the foot of some lofty banks rising abruptly from the river Tyne. The inhabitants are for the most part employed in the coal-pits; many are also engaged in a rope-yard and a lamp-black and coal-tar manufactory. Here is a chapel belonging to the Wesleyan methodists.

HOWE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Norwich (108) 6½ m. ESE. Pop. 99.

A parish in the hundred of Clavering; living, a dis. rectory with that of Little Poringland, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patroness (1829) Mrs. Wheler.

HOWE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Thirsk (217) 6 m. SW b W. Pop. 32.

A township in the parish of Pickhill, wapentake of Hallikeld.

HOWE CAPLE, co. Hereford.

P. T. Ross (120) 6 m. NNE. Pop. 117.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Greytree; living, a rectory with that of Sollers Hope, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 9*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Mrs. Gregory.

HOWELL, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Stenford (115) 5 m. ESE. Pop. 603.

A parish in the wapentake of Aswardhurn, parts of Kesteven; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; church ded. to St. Oswald; patroness (1829) Mrs. Reynolds.

HOWFIELD, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Tarporley (178) 3 m. W. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Tarvin and hundred of Eddisbury.

HOWGILL, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Kendal (202) 9 m. E b N. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Sedbergh and west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewecross; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 9*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 69*l.*; patron, the Vicar of Sedbergh. Here is an endowed grammar-school.

HOWGRAVE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Rippon (212) 5 m. N.

Pop. with Sutton township.

A township in the parish of Kirklington and wapentake of Hallikeld.

HOWICK, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (217) $3\frac{1}{2}$ m. SW b W. Pop. 136.

A township in the parish of Penwortham and hundred of Leyl.

HOWICK, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Chepstow (136) 3 m. NW b W. Pop. 34.

An extra-parochial hamlet in the upper division of the hundred of Caldicot.

HOWICK, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Alnwick (303) 6 m. NE b E. Pop. 235.

A parish in the south division of Bamrough ward, pleasantly situated about one mile from the sea; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 36l. 13s. 4d. The church, which is ded. to St. Mary, is a neat elegant edifice in the Grecian style, with a tower and flat roof. Here is an endowed school. Howick Hall, a noble and beautiful mansion, situated in a spacious park, is the seat of Earl Grey, who takes his title of Viscount from this place. Near the east side of the park are the remains of a Roman encampment, and several Roman coins and antiquities have been found here.

HOWNAM, or HOUNAM, shire of Roxburgh, S.

P. T. Kelso (42) 11 m. S. Pop. 327.

A parish in the district of Kelso, bounded on the east by the Cheviot Hills and Northumberland, and intersected by the Roman road from Boroughbridge, in Yorkshire. It is nine miles in length, six in breadth, and though rather a mountainous surface, is famed for excellent pasturage and a particular breed of sheep, termed the Kail-water breed, from the river that flows through the district. The living is in the presbytery of Jedburgh and synod of Merse and Tiviotdale; patron, the Duke of Roxburgh. Here are several vestiges of Roman occupancy, particularly those of a very extensive encampment on the summit of Hownam Law, one of the loftiest of the border hills.

HOWRIGG, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Wigton (303) $5\frac{1}{2}$ m. E. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Westward in Allerdale ward below Darwent.

HOWSHAM, or HOWSON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Glaston Bridge (156) 3 m. SE.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Cadney and south division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey.

HOWSHAM, E. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 7 m. SSW. Pop. 225.

A township in the parish of Scrayingham and wapentake of Buckrose.

HOWSHILLS, or HOWSEL, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) 6 m. SW b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Leigh and lower division of the hundred of Pershore.

HOWTH, or HOATH, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Dublin 9 m. NE b E. Pop. of Pa. 1530.

A village and parish in the barony of Coolock, situated on the peninsula, called the Hill of Howth, and on the north side of Dublin Bay. The village, which is picturesquely placed in a little glen, watered by a rivulet, contains an excellent inn, and a few respectable houses. The inhabitants find employment in the deep sea fisheries. The harbour of Howth lies on the north side of the hill, and is sheltered by the island called Ireland's Eye. It was originally designed by Mr. Rennie, but subsequently conducted under Thomas Telford, Esq. The expense of its construction may be calculated at 320,000*l.* part of which was expended in the carriage to and from Kingstown. The area is embraced by two piers, the western 2700 feet in length, the eastern composed of three limbs, whose lengths successively are 1200, 220, and 860 feet. The breadth of the entrance between the jetties is 320 feet, and the area of the harbour covers fifty-two acres. The depth at entrance is eleven feet, at low water, and the rise of the tide varies from nine to twelve. The breadth of the causeway on the western pier is forty feet, and the base of the same pier measures 130. The carriage-way formed on the east pier is fifty feet broad, and the base of the pier itself 200. Much expense has been incurred in raising rocks from the bottom of the harbour, by means of the diving-bell, but the advantage attending it has been considerable. The harbour does not admit vessels of large burden or great draught; but had it been constructed one furlong to the eastward of its present situation, the navy of Great Britain might have been reviewed in a harbour sheltered from the prevailing winds, and affording safe anchorage and deep water, uninfluenced by ebb or flow of tide. As a packet-station the present harbour has fully answered the expectation of government, at whose expense it was constructed, and the regularity of the conveyance of the mail to and from Holyhead has never been interrupted, to any extent, since the establishment of the station at Howth. On a little promontory, the extremity of the peninsula, and called the Baily, stands a lighthouse, exhibiting a fixed, bright light. The living is a rectory in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalagh and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the chapelry of Kilbarrack and curacy of Baldoyle, constituting thereby the corps of a prebend; valued, by commutation for tithes, at 231*l.* 5s. 0*d.* It possesses a handsome church, adorned with a steeple. Near the village is the ancient seat of the St. Laurences, Earls of Howth, whose name was originally Tristram, but exchanged for the present honourable appellation, in consequence of the overthrow of the Danes, at this place, by Sir Armoricus Tristram, on St. Laurence's day, in the year 1177. The two-handled sword, borne by the great warrior on that memorable occasion, is still preserved in the venerable family mansion of the present Earl of Howth.

This ancient family has continued in possession of the estate for the space of six centuries and upwards. There is one tower still remaining, which formed part of the castle of the famous knight, Sir Armoricus, the founder of the family. The Hill of Howth was anciently, it is supposed, well wooded, and a chief seat of the Druids, one of whose altars may still be seen here, in a little sequestered glen. On the west side of the town are the interesting ruins of St. Mary's church, containing some monuments of the noble family of St. Laurence. The gates of Lord Howth's castle are said to stand open always during dinner-time; a circumstance attributed to the power of Grace O'Maley, better known to the world by the title of Granuwal. This warrior princess, in the year 1575, having cast anchor, with a fleet of four sail, in Howth Harbour, despatched a messenger to the castle, to inform the noble proprietor of her arrival; but the family being then at dinner, and the gates closed, the messenger returned unanswered. Grace resolved to punish the indignity, and immediately besieged the castle with spirit, nor desisted until she exacted a promise, that his lordship and his descendants should never after dine with closed gates.

HOWTHORPE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 7 m. W.
Pop. with Aryholme, 33.

A hamlet in the parish of Hovingham and wapentake of Ryedale.

HOWTELL, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 7½ m. NW b W. Pop. 192.

A township in the parish of Kirk Newton and west division of Glendale ward.

HOXNE, co. Suffolk.

Pop. 15,458.

A hundred situated on the north-eastern side of the county, divided from Norfolk by the river Waveney, and containing twenty-six parishes.

HOXNE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Eye (81) 3 m. NE. Pop. 1003.

A parish in the hundred of Hoxne; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 121. 3s. 6½d.; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patronage with Denham vicarage. It was to this place, anciently denominated Eglesdune, that King Edmund fled after his last unsuccessful encounter with the Danes in 870. In hopes of escaping his pursuers, it is said he concealed himself under a bridge, now called Gold Bridge, from the gilt spurs which he happened to wear, and by which he was discovered. Here also the remains of that unfortunate monarch were first interred, but afterwards removed to Bury.

HOXTON, co. Middlesex.

Pop. with St. Leonard's Shoreditch.

A parochial district, formerly a hamlet or liberty in the parish of St. Leonard, Shorelitch, lower division of the hundred of Osulstone, and now forming a part of the north-east suburb of the metropolis. In Domesday Book the place is called Hoche-stone, and in other old records, Hockesden, and Hogsden, whence its present name. In the beginning of the seventeenth century, when Hoxton was a detached village, it seems to have been a favourite place of resort for the citizens, and, like Islington, it was famous for cakes and ale, and also for custards, as appears from allusions of the dramatists and other popular writers of that period. The manor belongs to the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, who held it before the Norman Conquest. It gives denomination to, a Prebend in St. Paul's Cathedral; valued in K. B. 101. 5s. The district church, recently erected, is a neat brick edifice, with a domed tower at the west end, and ornamented in front with Ionic columns. Hoxton consists of several streets, irregularly disposed, and two squares, one of which, called Hoxton Square, is noted as having formerly been the residence of several eminent dissenting divines. Here are various places of worship for dissenters; and an academy, for the education of ministers, was established here by William Coward Esq. of Walthamstow, who died in 1738; which was removed to Northamptonshire after a few years; and another academy, for Independent Dissenters, has been transferred to Highbury, near Islington. Among the charitable institutions connected with London, one of the most important is Haberdashers' Hospital, in this liberty, founded in 1692, in pursuance of the will of Robert Aske, Esq., for the support of twenty poor members of the Haberdashers' Company, and the education of twenty boys. The original building, from the design of the celebrated Dr. Robert Hooke, was taken down a few years since, and a new one erected, forming three sides of a quadrangle, with a chapel in the centre; and in the area is a statue of the founder, standing on a pedestal. The annual income of this hospital, derived from Mr. Aske's and other benefactions, was, in 1798, about 800l. Here are also Mr. Badger's almshouses, founded in 1698, for six aged women; Mr. Fuller's almshouses built in 1794, for twelve aged women; besides some others. Here is a vinegar manufactory, and another of verditer and aqua fortis. A mineral spring is said to have been discovered in or near Charles Square in 1685, but it has long since fallen into neglect.

HOY, shire of Orkney and Shetland, S.

P. T. Stromness 2½ m. S. Pop. 288.

An island and parish in union with the parish of Gremsay. It is nine miles in length by six in breadth, and chiefly formed by three considerable hills in a triangular position with each other, of which that termed the Wart is elevated nearly a mile above the level of the sea, and is further remarkable for that curious relic of antiquity, the Dwarfie stone, lying on the brink of a valley at its base, and hollowed into three apartments, which, according to tradition, was once occupied by a giant and giantess, though the more reasonable supposition is, that it has been a hermit's cell. Almost the entire surface of the parish is covered with heath, over which numerous sheep roam at large, subject to attacks from dogs and birds of prey, of which latter the heron and the black eagle find security in the terrific cliffs that rise in awful majesty from the shore. The village of Rackwick is delightfully situated in a valley opening on a fine bay towards the entrance of the Pentland Firth, and in another excellent harbour, called the Long Hope, the largest fleet may ride in complete safety. Sandstone abounds here, and a lead-mine has been discovered, the ore containing more silver than common. The living is in the presbytery of Cairston and synod of Orkney; patron, Lord Dundas.

HOYLAND, HIGH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnsley (172) 6 m. NW b W.
Pop. of Pa. 1122. Of To. 268.

A parish and township in the upper division of the wapentake of Staincross; living, a dis. rectory in mediocrities, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; each valued in K. B. 5*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Earl of Mexborough.

HOYLAND, NETHER, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnsley (172) 5 m. SE b S.
Pop. with High Hoyland, 1229.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Wath-upon-Dearn and upper division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Wath-upon-Dearn, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York, not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Wath-upon-Dearn.

HOYLAND, SWAIN, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnsley (172) 6½ m. W b S. Pop. 733.

A township in the parish of Silkstone and upper division of the wapentake of Staincross.

HUBBERHOLME, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Settle (235) 14½ m. NE b N.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Arncliffe and east division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Arncliffe, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 10*l.* 6*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 46*l.* 7*s.*; patronage with Arncliffe vicarage. The chapel, dedicated to St. Michael, is an ancient structure, situated in a sequestered spot, upon the north bank of the river Wharfe.

HUBBERSTON, or St. HUBERT'S TOWN, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Milford (273) ½ m. NW. Pop. 910.

A fishing-village in the parish of the same name, and hundred of Rhôs, situated upon Milford Haven, and forming, with the opposite shore of the creek, what is generally called the Port of Milford. The village, interspersed with trees, has an agreeable appearance, and the old church possesses a vaulted roof. The presence of shipping confers an air of liveliness upon the place, and there is an export trade here in corn, limestone, and coals. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; patron, the Lord Chancellor. Here is an astronomical observatory.

HUBY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Easingwold (213) 4 m. SE. Pop. 407.

A township in the parish of Sutton-in-the-Forest and wapentake of Bulmer.

HUCKING, co. Kent.

P. T. Maidstone (34) 6 m. E b N. Pop. 158.

A parish in the hundred of Eythorne, lathe of Aylesford; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Hollingbourn, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Margaret; patronage with Hollingbourn vicarage.

HUCKLECOT, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Gloucester (104) 3 m. ESE. Pop. 439.

A hamlet in the parish of Churchdown and upper division of the hundred of Dudstone and King's Barton.

HUCKLOW, GREAT, co. Derby.

P. T. Tideswell (160) 2½ m. NE. Pop. 274.

A township in the parish of Hope and hundred of High Peak.

HUCKLOW, LITTLE, co. Derby.

P. T. Tideswell (160) 2½ m. NNE. Pop. 218.

A liberty in the parish of Hope and hundred of High Peak.

HUCKNALL FORKARD, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Nottingham (124) 6½ m. NNW.
Pop. 1940.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Broxtow; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 18*s.* 1½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron, the Duke of Devonshire.

HUCKNALL-UNDER-HUTHWAITE, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Mansfield (133) 5 m. W b S. Pop. 712.

A hamlet in the parish of Sutton in Ashfield and north division of the wapentake of Broxtow.

HUDDERSFIELD, W. R. co. York.

London 186 m. NNW. Pop. of Pa. 24,220.
Of Township 13,284. M. D. Tu. Fairs, March 31; May 14; and Oct. 4; for lean, horned cattle, and horses.

A market-town, parish, and township, in the upper division of the wapentake of Agbrigg, pleasantly situated on the little river Colne. Here is a spacious cloth-hall, erected in 1765, by Sir John Ramsden; it is a circular building, consisting of two high stories, divided into two courts. Over the entrance is a handsome cupola, in which is a bell, rung at the commencement and close of the hours of attendance. A great deal of business is transacted at this place every Tuesday by the woolstaplers from Leeds, Halifax, and Wakefield. Huddersfield, from its coal-mines and numerous waterfalls, has every advantage for the woollen manufactures, in which great numbers of the inhabitants are employed. The livings are a vicarage and two curacies in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; the former valued in K. B. 17*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; the latter is not in charge; patrons (1829) Sir J. Ramsden, B. H. Allen, Esq., and the Vicar of Huddersfield. The church, dedicated to St. Peter, is an ancient building, but possessing nothing remarkable; that dedicated to the Holy Trinity, which is one of the chapels of ease, is a handsome Gothic structure, built by B. H. Allen, Esq. in 1817. By means of the Ramsden and Huddersfield Canals, this town has every facility for trade; the former is cut from the latter three miles in length to the river Calder, and thus opens a communication both with the eastern and western parts of the kingdom. On the Castle Hill, about two miles hence, are the evident remains of an ancient Roman city; in the neighbourhood are several medicinal springs.

HUDDLESTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Ferrybridge (177) 7 m. NNW.
Pop. with Lumby, 184.

A township in the parish of Sherburn and upper division of the wapentake of Barksdon Ash.

HUDINGTON, co. Worcester.

P. T. Droitwich (116) 4½ m. SSE. Pop. 125.

A parish in the middle division of the hundred of Oswaldslow; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 34*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) — Talbot, Esq.

HUDSWELL, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Richmond (233) 2 m. WSW. Pop. 305.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Catterick and wapentake of Hang West; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 9*l.* 13*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 66*l.*; patron, the Vicar of Catterick.

HUELSFIELD, or HEWELSFIELD, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Chepstow (130) 5½ m. NNE. Pop. 434.

A parish in the hundred of St. Briavell's; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Lydney, in the archdeaconry of Hereford and diocese of Gloucester, not in charge; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patronage with Lydney vicarage.

HUGGATE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Pocklington (212) 7 m. NE. Pop. 413.

A parish in Wilton Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 15*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Lord Chancellor. Races are held here in the latter end of July.

HUGGLESCOTE, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market Bosworth (106) 7 m. N b E.
Pop. with Douglaston, 683.

A township in the parish of Ibstock and hundred of Sparkenhoe.

HUGHLEY, co. Salop.

P. T. Much Wenlock (143) 5 m. W b S.
Pop. 101.

A parish in the hundred of Wenlock; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) the Earl of Bradford.

HUGILL, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kendal (292) 6 m. NW. Pop. 300.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Kirkby in Kendal, Kendal ward; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; of the certified value of 6*l.* 10*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 70*l.*; patrons, the Landowners.

HUIISH, co. Devon.

P. T. Hatherleigh (201) 5 m. N. Pop. 118.

A parish in the hundred of Shebbear; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 7*l.* 19*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 150*l.*; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) Lord Clinton.

HUIISH, co. Somerset.

P. T. Crewkerne (132) 1½ m. SW b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish and hundred of Crewkerne.

HUIISH, co. Somerset.

P. T. Axbridge (130) 7½ m. N b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Yatton and hundred of Winterstoke, pleasantly situated on the river Yeo.

HUIISH CHAMPFLOWER, co. Somerset.

P. T. Wiveliscombe (153) 3 m. W b N.
Pop. 317.

A parish in the hundred of Williton and Freemanors; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 9*s.* 4½*d.*; patron (1829) Sir J. Trevelyan, Bart.

HUIISH EPISCOPI, co. Somerset.

P. T. Langport (128) ½ m. E. Pop. 472.

A parish in the hundred of Kingsbury East; living, a dis. vicarage, with that of Langport, and a peculiar, in the diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 14*l.* 10*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Archdeacon of Wells, as Prebendary of Huish, in Wells Cathedral.

HUIISH, NORTH, co. Devon.

P. T. Totness (196) 6 m. WSW. Pop. 440.

A parish in the hundred of Stamborough; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 29*l.* 18*s.* 11½*d.*; patron (1829) Sir John Perring, Bart.

HUL

HUISH, SOUTH, co. Devon.

P. T. Kingsbridge (208) 4 m. SW. Pop. 383.

A parish in the hundred of Stanborough; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of West Allington, in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; patronage with Allington vicarage.

HULAM, or HOLAM, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Stockton-upon-Tees (211) 13 m. N. Pop. 16.

A township in the parish of Monk Hesleden and south division of Easington ward.

HULCOTT, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Aylesbury (38) 3½ m. NE b E. Pop. 139.

A parish in the hundred of Aylesbury; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 10l. 0s. 2½d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) John Brereton, Esq.

HULCOTT, or HULCOTE, co. Northampton.

P. T. Towcester (60) 3 m. NE. Pop. with Easton Neston, 137.

A hamlet in the parish of Easton Neston and hundred of Cleley.

HULL, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Northwich (173) 3 m. N b E. Pop. with Appleton, 1435.

A township in the parish of Great Budworth and west division of the hundred of Bucklow.

HULL. See Kingston-upon-Hull.

HULLAND, co. Derby.

P. T. Ashborne (130) 4½ m. E b S. Pop. 221.

A township in the parish of Ashborne and hundred of Appletree.

HULLAND WARD, co. Derby.

P. T. Ashborne (130) 5 m. E b N. Pop. 290.

A hamlet in the parish of Ashborne and hundred of Appletree.

HULLAND WARD INTACKS, co. Derby.

P. T. Ashborne (130) 6½ m. E b S. Pop. 39.

A township in the parish of Ashborne and hundred of Appletree.

HULLAVINGTON, co. Wilts.

P. T. Malmesbury (90) 5 m. SW b S. Pop. 506.

A parish in the hundred of Malmesbury; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 6l. 13s.; ann. val. P. R. 142l. 12s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Eton College.

HULME, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Warrington (184) 2 m. N. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Winwick and hundred of West Derby.

HULME CURTIS, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Middlewich (167) 2 m. SE b S. Pop. with Kinderton, 469.

A township in the parish of Middlewich and hundred of Northwich.

HUL

HULME KIRKHAM, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 2 m. SE b S. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Manchester and hundred of Salford.

HULME LEVENS, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 3½ m. SE b S. Pop. 4234.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Manchester and hundred of Salford, divided from Manchester by the river Medlock, is pleasantly situated and contains many excellent houses. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, not in charge; patron, Manchester Collegiate church. The church, which is ded. to St. George, is a very beautiful modern edifice in the florid Gothic style. Here is Hulme Hall, a very ancient structure, and formerly the seat of the Prestwich family: it is a singularly curious and picturesque mansion, but has been long in a state of dilapidation. The barracks, which are generally occupied by a squadron of horse, form a large and handsome structure.

HULME WALFIELD, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Congleton (162) 2 m. N b W. Pop. 108.

A township in the parish of Astbury and hundred of Northwich.

HULMITRAY, shire of Inverness, S.

A small uninhabited island of the Hebrides, situated in the sound and forming part of the parish of Harris.

HULSE, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Northwich (173) 4 m. E b S. Pop. 51.

A township in the parish of Great Budworth and hundred of Northwich.

HULTON ABBEY, co. Stafford.

P. T. Newcastle-under-Lyne (150) 4 m. NE b E. Pop. 477.

A township in the parish of Burslem and north division of the hundred of Pirehill. Here was formerly an abbey of Cistercian monks.

HULTON, LITTLE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Bolton (197) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 2465.

A township in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford.

HULTON, MIDDLE, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Bolton (197) 3 m. SSW. Pop. 938.

A township in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford.

HULTON OVER, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Bolton (197) 3½ m. SW. Pop. 501.

A township in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford.

HULVERSTREET, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Beccles (109) 5 m. SE b E. Pop. 241.

A hamlet in the parish of Henstead and hundred of Wangford.

H U M

HUMBER, co. Hereford.

P. T. Loominster (137) 4 m. SE b E.
Pop. 219.

A parish in the hundred of Wolphy; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; val. in K. B. 5*l*. 16*s*. 3*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HUMBER, THE, E. R. co. York.

One of the largest rivers in the kingdom, formed by the junction of the Trent, Ouse, Derwent, Aire, and several minor streams; it is the Abus of Ptolemy. It is here a mile broad, and runs towards the east, washing the port of Hull, where it receives the river of the same name. Thence taking a direction towards the south-east it widens itself into an estuary nearly seven miles across, and empties itself into the German Ocean. This river, thus, with a very few exceptions, receiving all the waters of Yorkshire from the Ouse, and most of those of the midland counties from the Trent, commands the inland navigation of very extensive and commercial parts of England, namely, that of the Mersey, Dec, Ribble, Severn, Thames, and Avon. It also forms the boundary between Yorkshire and Lincolnshire.

HUMBERSHORE, co. Bedford.

P. T. Luton (31) 2 m. SW b W.
Pop. with Risbury township, 363.

A hamlet, partly in the parish of Caddington and partly in that of Studham, and partly in the hundred of Maushead, and partly in that of Dacorum.

HUMBER SIDE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (174) 19 m. ESE.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Patrington and south division of the wapentake of Holderness.

HUMBERSTON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (96) 3 m. ENE. Pop. 415.

A parish in the hundred of East Goscote; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; val. in K. B. 8*l*.; ann. val. P. R. 115*l*. 14*s*. 10*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. John Dudley.

HUMBERSTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Great Grimsby (169) 5½ m. SE b S.
Pop. 217.

A parish in the wapentake of Bradley Ha-verstoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 5*l*. 18*l*. 4*d*.; ann. val. P. R. 72*l*.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Lord Carrington.

HUMBERTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Aldborough (207) 2 m. NNE.
Pop. with Milby, 143.

A township, partly in the parish of Aldborough, partly in that of Kirkby Hill, and partly in the wapentake of Hallikeld, North Riding, and partly in the lower division of the wapentake of Claro, West Riding.

H U M

HUMBIE, shire of Haddington, S.

P. T. Haddington (16) 8 m. SSW. Pop. 837.

A parish comprising the ancient parishes of Keith-Hundaby and Keith-Marshall, and forming a square of about six miles in every direction. It is intersected by a small river running between steep banks, which, with the other high grounds are well adapted for sheep pasture, while the lower are well cultivated and productive in corn. Humbie Wood covering about 300 acres produces fine oak and birch, and iron ore is found here in abundance. Coal is supposed to exist in many parts of the parish, and there is a fine mineral spring efficacious in the cure of scorbutic diseases. The living is in the presbytery of Haddington and synod of Lothian and Tweeddale; patrons, the King and the Earl of Hopetown alternately. Vestiges of a Roman station are still traceable on the south-west boundary, where a gold coin of Trajan and other relics have been met with. There are several tumuli in the vicinity in which urns filled with human bones and ashes have been discovered.

HUMBLETON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 1 m. W. Pop. 184.

A township in the parish of Doddington and east division of Glendale ward. Humbleton Bourn is cut into a number of terraces, twenty feet deep; and in the plain below is a stone pillar, denoting the scene of a dreadful battle, in which 10,000 Scotchmen, under Earl Douglas, were defeated by Henry, Lord Percy, and George, Earl of March, on Holyrood Day, 1402.

HUMBLETON, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (174) 9 m. NE b E.
Pop. of Pa. 580, Of To. 136.

A parish and township in the middle division of the wapentake of Holderness; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 10*l*. 1*s*. 0½*d*.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HUMBLEYARD, co. Norfolk.

Pop. 4803.

A hundred situated a little to the eastward of the centre of the county, and bounded on the east by the Tate, containing nineteen parishes and the city of Norwich.

HUMBY, GREAT, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Grantham (110) 4½ m. SE b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Somerby and wapentake of Winnibriggs and Threo, parts of Kesteven.

HUMBY, LITTLE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Folkingham (190) 6 m. W b N. Pop. 65.

A hamlet in the parish of Ropesley and wapentake of Winnibriggs and Threo, parts of Kesteven.

IIUMSHAUGH, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Hexham (278) 5 m. N. Pop. 334.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Simonbourn and north-west division of Tindale ward, pleasantly situated on a woody and rising ground; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham, not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Simonbourn.

HUNA, shire of Caithness, S.

Edinburgh 296 m. N. Pop. with Pa.

A small post-town, or village, in the parish of Canisbay, near which Ewin, King of Scotland, gained a complete victory over an army of Orkney men.

HUNCOAT, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Burnley (211) 5 m. WSW. Pop. 620.

A township in the parish of Whalley and hundred of Blackburn.

HUNCOTE, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (90) 7 m. SW. Pop. 280.

A township in the parish of Narborough and hundred of Sparkenhoe.

HUNDERSFIELD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Rochdale (198) 4 m. NE.
Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Rochdale and hundred of Salford; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 90l.; chapel ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Vicar of Rochdale.

HUNDERTIWAITE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnard Castle (216) 5½ m. NW.
Pop. 313.

A township in the parish of Romald Kirk and wapentake of Gilling West. Here is Doe Park, or Ledgard Hall.

HUNDLEBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 1 m. W. Pop. 318.

A parish in the east division of the soke of Bolingbroke, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7l. 19s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 100l.; church ded. to St. Mary; held by sequestration.

HUNDON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Caistor (126) 1 m. N b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Caistor and south division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey.

HUNDON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Clare (56) 3 m. NW. Pop. 936.

A parish in the hundred of Risbridge; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 7l. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to All Saints; in a building adjoining which there is a beautiful monument to Arethusa Vernon, daughter of Lord Clifden; patron, Jesus College, Cambridge.

HUNDREDSBARROW, co. Dorset.

Pop. 530.

A hundred in the Blandford division and centre of the county, containing three parishes.

HUNDRIDGE, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Chesham (27) 2½ m. W. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Chesham and hundred of Burnham.

HUNGERFORD, co. Berks.

London 64 m. W b S. Pop. 2025. M. D. Wed. Fairs, last Wed. in April; Aug. 10, for horses, cows, and sheep; and Mond. bef. and aft. New Michaelmas, statuto.

A small market-town and parish in the hundred of Kintbury Eagle, formerly called Ingleford Charman Street, is situated on a marshy soil on the banks of the Kennet, and watered by two separate streams of that river. It consists chiefly of one long street, in the centre of which is the market-house and shambles; over the latter is a large room, used as a town-hall. In this room a curious relic of antiquity is preserved, denominated the Hungerford Horn, which was given as a charter to the town by John of Gaunt, and is now blown annually to assemble the inhabitants on the day appointed to choose the constable, who is assisted in the execution of his duties by twelve feoffees and burgesses, a bailiff, steward, town-clerk, and other inferior officers. The constable is lord of the manor, and holds his right immediately of the king. The town is chiefly inhabited by tradesmen, has a considerable traffic by means of its canal navigation, but no manufacture. The living is a vicarage and a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 9l. 13s. 4d.; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Windsor. The church, which is dedicated to St. Laurence, is an ancient structure, and contains some fine old monuments, and near it is a free grammar-school with a good endowment. Hungerford Park was formerly the residence of the Barons of Hungerford, who took their name and title from this town; a neat mansion in the Italian style, occupies the site of the old house, which was built by Queen Elizabeth and given to the Earl of Essex. The lands surrounding the house are mostly cultivated and have a neat and pleasing appearance.

HUNGERTON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (96) 7 m. E b N.
Pop. with Queenby, 292.

A parish in the hundred of East Goscote; living, a vicarage with that of Twyford, in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 9l. 8s. 1½d.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) Sir T. A. Apreece.

HUNGERTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Colsterworth (102) 4½ m. NW.
Pop. with Wyvil, 124.

A parish in the wapentake of Winnibriggs and Threo, parts of Kesteven; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 2l. 3s. 4d.; held by sequestration.

HUNINGHAM, or HONYNGHAM, co. Warwick.

P. T. Southam (82) 5½ m. NW b N. Pop. 103.

A parish in Southam division of the hundred of Knightlow; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 5l.; ann. val. P. R. 60l.; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron (1829) Chandos Leigh, Esq.

HUNMANBY, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Scarborough (217) 8 m. SSE. Pop. 1018.
Fairs, May 6, and Oct. 29, for toys.

A parish in the wapentake of Dickering, situated on a rising ground, and formerly had a market, which is now disused; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*; patron (1829) H. Osbaldeston, Esq. The church, which is dedicated to All Saints, contains some curious monuments. Here is an hospital for six poor widows. Hunmanby Hall is an ancient mansion with modern improvements. This place gave birth to Dr. Fiddes, a divine of the last century, author of a life of Cardinal Wolsey and of a body of divinity.

HUNSDON, or HONESDON, co. Hertford.

P. T. Sawbridgeworth (25) 5 m. W b S.
Pop. 584.

A parish in the hundred of Braughin, situated on the river Stort in a fine gravelly soil; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 12*l.*; patron (1829) N. Calvert, Esq. Here is a house which was used by Henry VIII. and Elizabeth as a royal palace, and is still moated round.

HUNSHIELF, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnsley (172) 7 m. SW. Pop. 436.

A township in the parish of Penniston and upper division of the wapentake of Staincross.

HUNSINGORE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Knaresborough (202) 6½ m. ESE.
Pop. of Pa. 599. Of To. 237.

A parish and township in the upper division of the wapentake of Claro; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 17*s.* 3½*d.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) Sir H. Goodricke.

HUNSLET, or HUNFLEET, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Leeds (190) 2 m. SSE. Pop. 8171.

A township and chapelry in the parish of St. Peter, Leeds, and in the liberty of Leeds; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 15*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*; chapel ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Vicar of Leeds. This extensive township abounds in various woollen manufactures.

HUNSLEY, HIGH and LOW, E. R. co. York.

P. T. South Cave (102) 4½ m. NE.
Pop. with Pa.

Two townships in the parish of Rowley and Hunsley Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill.

HUNSONBY, co. Cumberland.

T. P. Penrith (283) 6 m. NE.
Pop. with Winakill, 131.

A township in the parish of Addingham and Leath ward. Here is a school which Mr.

Joseph Hutchinson endowed with fifty acres of land in the year 1726.

HUNSTANTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Burnham Westgate (117) 10½ m. W.
Pop. 433.

A parish in the hundred of Smithdon, and remarkable for a cliff a hundred feet high called St. Edmund's Point, from a supposition that Edmund the Martyr landed here when he was brought from Germany to be crowned King of East Anglia. He is said to have built a tower here, in which he committed to memory the whole book of Psalms, in compliance with a previous vow. Some remains of an old chapel on the cliff, dedicated to St. Edmund, probably gave rise to this story. Near these ruins stands a lighthouse, the light of which is visible for seven leagues. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 12*l.*; patron, the Bishop of Ely. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, is an ancient edifice; in the centre of the chancel is an altar-tomb, on which are divers coats of arms of the Le Strange family. Here is Hunstanton Hall, an ancient family mansion, erected in the time of Henry VII., and once the seat of the distinguished family of Le Strange. The celebrated political writer, Sir Roger Le Strange, was born here December 17, 1616.

HUNSTANWORTH, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Stanhope (262) 8 m. N b W. Pop. 411.

A parish in the west division of Chester ward; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; certified value 10*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 72*l.*; patron (1829) John Ord, Esq.

HUNSTERTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Nantwich (164) 5½ m. SE. Pop. 230.

A township in the parish of Wybunbury and hundred of Nantwich.

HUNSTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Stow Market (69) 7 m. NW b N.
Pop. 178.

A parish in the hundred of Blackbourn; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; certified value 16*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 60*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) J. Heigham, Esq.

HUNSTON, co. Sussex.

P. T. Chichester (02) 3 m. SSW. Pop. 166.

A parish in the hundred of Box and Stockbridge, rape of Chichester; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to St. Leodegar; patron (1829) W. Brereton, Esq.

HUNSWORTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Bradford (196) 4 m. SSE. Pop. 870.

A township in the parish of Birstall and wapentake of Morley.

HUNTINGFIELD, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Halesworth (100) 4 m. WSW.
Pop. 386.

A parish in the hundred of Blything; lying, a rectory with that of Coakley, in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Lord Huntingfield, to whom it gives his title.

HUNTINGDON, county of.

N to S, greatest extent, 24 m. E. to W. 18 m. No. of statute acres, 220,900. Pop. 48,771. Hundreds 4. Parishes 78. Borough 1. Market-towns 5. Memb. of Pt. 4. Norfolk Circuit. Diocese of Lincoln; province of Canterbury.

A small inland county, bounded on the north and west by Northamptonshire, on the south-west by Bedfordshire, and on the south and east by Cambridgeshire; from the first of these counties it is separated on the northern border by the river Nene; from the last-mentioned, partly by the Ouse, and the dykes and canals which unite it with the Nene; the Ouse also, previously to its entrance into this county, for a short distance, forms the line of separation from Bedfordshire. Before the Roman invasion, this county probably made a part of the territories of the Cassii or the Iceni; after that event, it was included in the Flavian province; and under the Saxon heptarchy it belonged to the kingdom of Mercia. When the Normans became masters of England, William the Conqueror, in 1068, gave the earldom of this county to Waltheof, a noble Saxon, on whom he also bestowed the hand of his niece, Judith; but that lady betrayed her husband, who was executed for a treasonable conspiracy against the government. David, Prince of Scotland, having married the heiress of Waltheof, was made Earl of Huntingdon in 1108, and the honour continued in his family till 1219. Almost the whole county is said to have been forest land till the reign of Henry II.; but it is now open and well cultivated. The face of the country displays three varieties. That part bordering on the Ouse, which flows across the county from the south-west, consists of a tract of the most fertile and beautiful meadows, of which Portholm Mead, near Huntingdon, almost inclosed by a bend of the river, is especially celebrated. The middle and western parts present an agreeable variety of surface, fertile in grain, and sprinkled with woods. In the north-east are fens, which unite with those of Ely, and are supposed to cover nearly one-fifth of the county. Considerable portions of these are drained, so as to afford rich pasture for cattle, and produce heavy crops of corn. In the midst of them are shallow ponds, abounding with fish; the largest, called Whittlesey Mere, almost deserves the appellation of a lake, being between five and six miles in length, and three in breadth. Ramsey Mere, situated to the north-east of the town of Ramsey, anciently distinguished for its rich monastery, is of smaller dimensions. The chief rivers have been already noticed; both of them receive from this county many tributary streams, but none of any importance. The climate is healthy, except in the fens, where the damp foggy atmosphere gives rise to the diseases common in marshy countries; but the cutting of dykes and drains has greatly contributed to lessen this evil. The principal native products are corn and horned cattle, besides wild fowl and fish, which are very abundant. Peat or turf is in many places the usual kind of fuel, especially among the common people. Agriculture occupies the chief attention of the inhabitants; the manufactures, therefore, are trifling, consisting of woolstapling and spinning yarn, the latter principally practised by the women and children during the winter season, when they are prevented from finding more profitable employment in the fields. The four hundreds are Norman Cross, Hurstingstone, Eightonstone, and Toseland; the only borough is Huntingdon; and the other market-towns are Kimbolton, Ramsey, St. Ives, St. Neots, and Yaxley, of which last the market is discontinued. Two members are returned to Parliament for the town of Huntingdon, and two for the county.

HUNTINGDON, co. Huntingdon.

London 59 m. N b W. Pop. 2806. M. D. Sat. Fair, March 25, pedlars' ware, disused. Memb. of Pt. 2. Mail arr. 2.41. f. Mail dep. 10.53. a.

A market, borough, and county-town, forming a distinct liberty, under separate jurisdiction, but locally in the hundred of Toseland. It is situated at the junction of several other roads, with the great north road from the metropolis, and on a rising ground to the north of the river Ouse, over which there is a good stone bridge of six arches, leading to the neighbouring village of Godmanchester. It was called in Saxon, Huntingadun, or Hunters' Down, from the nature of the surrounding country, as adapted for the chase. It was a place of some importance in the reign of Edward the Elder, who is said to have erected a castle here, in 917, which was enlarged and strengthened with new buildings and ramparts, by David, King of Scotland, and Earl of Huntingdon, in the reign of Stephen; but was afterwards demolished by order of Henry II. At the period of the Norman Conquest, here was a mint, for coinage; and Matilda, the wife of William I., founded a monastery at this place, which must have been anciently much more extensive than it is at present, as there were fifteen churches, which in Camden's time were reduced to four, and at present there are only two. The first charter to this borough was granted by King John; but it is now governed by a charter of Charles I., under which the corporation consists of a mayor, a recorder, twelve aldermen, and a common council. This town has sent members to Parliament ever since the reign of Edward I. The right of election is vested in the corporation and freemen, two hundred and forty in number; the mayor is the returning officer, and the patronage of the borough belongs to the Earl of Sandwich. Here are held the assizes for the county. It contains at present the four parishes of All Saints, a rectory united with St. John the Baptist; charged in K. B. 12l. 19s. 4½d.; ann. val. P. R. 123l. 19s. 8d.; St. Mary, united with St. Benedict, a dis. vicarage; valued in K. B. 10l. 5s.; ann. val. P. R. 111l. 6s. 6d.; patron of all, the Lord Chancellor. St. Mary's, which is called the corporation church, appears, from the dates over the north doorway, to have been rebuilt or repaired in the reign of James I. It consists of a nave, aisles, and chancel, with a handsome embattled tower at the west end, having angular buttresses, with ornamented niches. It contains a good organ. The church of All Saints, on the north side of the market-place, has been ascribed to the period just before the Reformation. It is adorned with battlements, and has a small tower with pinnacles at the north-west end. Two of the cemeteries are remaining, which belonged to churches destroyed in the reign of Charles I. There are places of worship belonging to the Society of Friends, and the followers of the Countess of Huntingdon. Here are a free grammar-school, which is well endowed; and a green-coat school, called also Walden's Charity, for clothing and educating twenty-four boys. The town is of moderate size, consisting principally of a street, extending north-westward from the banks of the Ouse, about a mile in length, with several lanes branching from it at right angles, which are well paved, and lighted during the winter season. The town-hall is a neat and commodious building, standing on one side of a large square; and in the interior are two courts, for the trial of civil and criminal causes at the assizes: over these courts is a handsome assembly-room, in which are portraits of George III. and his queen. The commerce of the town is favoured by its vicinity to the river Ouse, which is navigable as far as Bedford; and the principal trade carried on is in corn, flour, and malt. Huntingdon was the birth-place of the celebrated Oliver Cromwell, who was born in the parish of St. John, April 25, 1599. It gives the title of Earl to the noble family of Hastings.

HUNTINGFORD, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Gloucester (104) 10 m. SSW.
Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish of Wotton-under-Edge and upper division of the hundred of Berkeley.

HUNTINGTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 3 m. SSE. Pop. 133.

A township in the parish of St. Oswald and hundred of Broxton.

HUNTINGTON, co. Hereford.

Pop. 5482.

A hundred, situated on the north-western side of the county, bordering upon Rad-

HUNTINGTON, co. Hereford.

P. T. Kington (155) 4½ m. WSW. Pop. 215.

A parish in the hundred of Huntington; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Kington, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford, not in charge; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patronage with Kington vicarage.

HUNTINGTON, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 2½ m. VNW. Pop. 82.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Holmer and hundred of Grimsworth; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Holmer, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Bartholomew; patronage with Holmer vicarage.

HUNTINGTON, co. Salop.

P. T. Worcester (111) 22 m. NNE.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Hales Owen and Hales Owen division of the hundred of Brimstree.

HUNTINGTON, co. Stafford.

P. T. Penkridge (131) 3 m. E. Pop. 138.

A township in the parish of Cannock and east division of the hundred of Cuttlestone.

HUNTINGTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (100) 3 m. NNE.
Pop. of Pa. 517. Of To. 346.

A parish and township, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Bulmer; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the North Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 5l.; ann. val. P. R. 130l.; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Subchanter and Vicars Choral of York Cathedral.

HUNTLEY, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Newent (112) 4½ m. S b W. Pop. 405.

A parish in the hundred of the duchy of Lancaster; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Hereford and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 7l. 5s. 10d.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patrons (1829) Mrs. Morse, &c.

HUNTLEY, shire of Aberdeen, S.

Edinburgh 140 m. N. Pop. 3349. Fairs, 1st Tues. O. S. July and Dec.; and 2d Tues. O. S. Sept.

A market and post-town and parish in the district of Strathbogie, the former of which occupies a pleasing point of land formed by the junction of the rivers Bogie and Deveron, each crossed by a substantial stone bridge, and affording a quantity of fine trout. It is a healthy and well-built place, consisting principally of two spacious streets, intersecting each other at right angles, having a commodious market-place; in the centre and on one side of the square there were formerly a town-house and prison; near the bridge over the Deveron are the remains of Huntley Castle, once the magnificent residence of the ancient family of that name, and on its banks is Deveron Lodge, the present elegant seat of the Duke of Gordon. The population has been on the increase for these several years past, in consequence of the thriving state and considerable extension of the linen manufacture carried on in the town and neighbourhood. The parish is about six miles in length and its surface generally rugged and rocky, though it is diversified with patches of arable land and hills clothed with verdure and fine plantations. On the summit of St. Mungo's Hill is a small lake occupying what is supposed to have been the crater of a volcano. The living is in the presbytery of Strathbogie and synod of Moray; patron, the Duke of Gordon, who takes his title of Marquis from this place. The church is a very small structure.

HUNTON, co. Kent.

P. T. Maidstone (31) $4\frac{1}{2}$ m. SW b S.
Pop. 683.

A parish in the hundred of Twyford, lathe of Aylesford; living, a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 16l. 13s. 1½d. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, contains some handsome monuments; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

HUNTON, co. Southampton.

P. T. Whitechurch (50) $5\frac{1}{2}$ m. S b E. Pop. 122.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Crawley and hundred of Buddlesgate, Fawley division; living, a curacy, subordinate to the rectory of Crawley, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Winchester, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. James; patronage with Crawley rectory.

HUNTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Richmond (233) $5\frac{1}{2}$ m. S b E. Pop. 496.

A township, partly in the parish of Patrick Brompton, partly in that of Hornby, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Hang West.

HUNTSHAM, co. Devon.

P. T. Bampton (161) $3\frac{1}{2}$ m. E b S. Pop. 153.

A parish in the hundred of Tiverton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 10l. 12s. 11d.; patron (1829) W. Troyte, Esq.

HIUNTSHAW, co. Devon.

P. T. Great Torrington (494) 3 m. NNE.
Pop. 201.

A parish in the hundred of Fremington; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 11l. 7s. 1d.; ann. val. P. R. 100l.; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron (1829) the Earl of Orford.

HUNTSPILL and PURITON, co. Somerset.

Pop. 1037.

A hundred situated on the north side of the county, containing two parishes.

HUNTSPILL, co. Somerset.

P. T. Bridgewater (130) $7\frac{1}{2}$ m. N b E.
Pop. 1337.

A parish in the hundred of Huntspill and Puriton, situated on the river Parret, near its junction with the Bristol Channel; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 72l. 5s. 5d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, Balliol College, Oxford.

HUNTWICK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Pontefract (177) $4\frac{1}{2}$ m. SW.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Wragby and lower division of the wapentake of Agbrigg.

HUNWICK, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Bishop Auckland (218) 2 m. NW b N.
Pop. with Helmington, 160.

A township in the parish of St. Andrew Auckland and north-west division of Darlington ward, occupies a romantic situation on the north side of the river Wear.

HUNWORTH, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Holt (119) $2\frac{1}{2}$ m. SSW. Pop. 220.

A parish in the hundred of Holt; living, a dis. rectory, with that of Stody, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4l.; church ded. to St. Laurence; patron (1829) Lord Suffield. A considerable tanning business is carried on here.

HURDSFIELD, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Macclesfield (167) 2 m. ENE.
Pop. 1082.

A township in the parish of Prestbury and hundred of Macclesfield.

HURLESTON, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Nantwich (161) 3 m. NW. Pop. 191.

A township in the parish of Acton and hundred of Nantwich.

IIURLEY, co. Berks.

P. T. Maidenhead (20) 5 m. WNW.
Pop. 1005.

A parish in the hundred of Beynhurst, beautifully situated on the banks of the Thames; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 6l. 13s. 6½d.; ann. val. P. R. 138l. 17s. 10d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Duke of Marlborough. Hurley House, a spacious mansion, occupies the site of a monastery, which was founded here in 1086 for Benedictines; the remains of the monastery may still be traced in several of the apartments, and, in a vault beneath the hall, some bodies have been found buried in Monkish habits. During the reigns of Charles II. and his successor, the principal nobility held frequent meetings in a subterraneous vault beneath this house; and it is also reported, that the principal papers which produced the revolution of 1688, were signed in the dark recess at the end of this vault.

HURLEY, co. Warwick.

P. T. Coleshill (104) 5 m. NE b N.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Kingsbury and Tamworth division of the hundred of Hemlingford.

HURN, co. Southampton.

P. T. Southampton (74) $21\frac{1}{2}$ m. SW b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish and hundred of Christchurch, New Forest, west division.

HURSLEY, co. Southampton.

P. T. Winchester (62) 5 m. SW b W.
Pop. 1302.

A parish in the hundred of Buddlesgate, Fawley division; living, a vicarage, with the curacy of Otterbourne, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 9*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Sir W. Heathcote, Bart. Richard, son of Oliver Cromwell, resided at the old mansion in Hursley Park, during great part of the time that his father held the protectorate. Hursley Lodge is a substantial, spacious edifice, occupying the site of the old house, which was pulled down; and in one of the walls, the dye of a seal was discovered, which being cleaned, proved to be the seal of the Commonwealth of England, and was supposed to be the identical seal which Oliver Cromwell took from the Parliament. The park is well stocked with deer, and the woods and shrubberies are extensive.

HURST, co. Berks.

P. T. Wokingham (31) 3½ NNW. Pop. 2001.

A parochial chapelry, partly in the hundred of Sonning, partly in that of Charlton, and partly in that of Amesbury, Wilts; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Sonning, and a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury, of the certified value of 40*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Dean of Salisbury. An almshouse was founded here in 1682, by William Barker, Esq., for eight single persons, who receive sixpence a-day, and a gown once in two years.

HURST, or FALCONER'S HURST, co. Kent.

P. T. Hythe (65) 5½ m. W. Pop. 30.

A parish partly within the liberty of Romney Marsh and partly in the hundred of Street, lathe of Shepway; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*; patron (1829) Miss Carter.

HURSTBOURNE PRIOR'S, co. Southampton.

P. T. Whitechurch (56) 2 m. WSW.
Pop. 404.

A parish in the hundred of Evingar, Kingsclere division; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 19*s.* 4½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron, the Bishop of Winchester. Here is the noble mansion of the Earl of Portsmouth.

HURSTBOURNE TARRANT, co. Southampton.

P. T. Andover (63) 7½ m. N b E. Pop. 766.

A parish in the hundred of Pastrow, Kingsclere division; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Prebend of Hurstbourne and Burbage in Salisbury cathedral.

HURST COURTENAY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Snaith (173) 2½ m. NW. Pop. 143.

▲ township in the parish of Birkin and lower division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash.

HURST, LONG, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (235) 2½ m. NE. Pop. 176.

A township in the parish of Bothall and east division of Morpeth ward. Here is Longhurst House, a handsome mansion, with extensive out-offices.

HURST, NORTH, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Morpeth (288) 5½ m. E b N. Pop. 42.

A township in the parish of Woodhorn and east division of Morpeth ward. Hurst castle was one of the ancient fortified erections, so common in this county.

HURST, OLD, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. St. Ives (59) 4 m. N b W. Pop. 427.

A parish in the hundred of Hurstingstone; living, a curacy with that of Woodhurst, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; of the certified value of 17*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patronage with St. Ives vicarage.

HURST-PIERREPOINT, co. Sussex.

P. T. Chichester (62) 32 m. ENE.

Pop. 1321. Fairs, May 1; and Aug. 10, for pedlers' ware.

A parish in the hundred of Buttinghill, rape of Lewes; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 9*s.* 4½*d.*; patron (1829) Sir J. G. Shaw, Bart. The church, which is ded. to St. Laurence, consists of a nave, south aisle, a small north transept, and two chancels, one of which, called the Danychancel, is the burial-place appropriated to the owners of the mansion of that name. At the west end is a substantial tower, with a wooden shingled spire of considerable height. In the Danychancel are several curious and ancient monuments.

HURST, TEMPLE, or, WEST HURST, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Snaith (173) 3 m. NE. Pop. 141.

A township in the parish of Birkin, and lower division of the wapentake of Barkston Ash.

HURSTINGSTONE, co. Huntingdon.

Pop. 15,638.

A hundred situated on the eastern side of the county, and bounded on the south by the river Ouse, containing twenty-four parishes, including the borough of St. Ives.

HURSTLEY, co. Hereford.

P. T. Weobley (147) 5 m. WSW. Pop. 68.

A township in the parish of Letton and hundred of Wolphy.

HURSWORTH, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Darlington (241) 4 m. SE b S.
Pop. of Pa. 1124. Of To. 811.

A parish and township in the south-west division of Stockton ward, pleasantly situated on the brink of a steep hill and commanding an extensive view over Teasdale, where the river winds round a plain, and its opposite banks rise abruptly to a considerable height, forming an amphitheatre of about four miles in circumference. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 27l. 5s. 5d.; church ded. to All Saints; patrons (1829) W. Hogg, and R. H. Williamson, Esqrs. alternately. Here is a Methodist chapel and a National School, built by subscription, and a grant of 30l. from the National Society. Hurworth gave birth to that great self-taught mathematician, William Emerson.

HUSBAND'S BOSWORTH, eo. Leicester. See Bosworth Husband's.

HUSTHWAITE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Easingwold (213) 4 m. N b W.
Pop. of Pa. 493. Of To. 324.

A parish and township in the liberty of St. Peter of York; living, a curacy, and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York; certified value 25l.; patronage with Carlton curacy.

HUTOFT, or HIGHTOFT, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Alford (141) 4 m. E. Pop. 401.

A parish in the Marsh division of the hundred of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6l. 11s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron, the Bishop of Lincoln, seq.

HUTTON, shire of Berwick, S.

P. T. Berwick-upon-Tweed (534) 6 m. W b N.
Pop. 1118.

A parish embraced by the rivers Tweed and Whittadder, the former on the south, the latter on the north, and each producing fine salmon and trout. The Tweed is navigable for small vessels to New Waterford, and the tide flows as high up as Norham Castle, ten miles above Berwick. This parish, which comprises the ancient parishes of Fishwick and Hutton, also the village of Paxton, is four miles in length, three in breadth, and tolerably fertile, containing also an abundance of freestone of a superior quality. The living is in the presbytery of Chirside and synod of Merse and Tiviotdale; patron, the Crown. The church is a commodious edifice, rebuilt in 1765. The learned Philip Redpath, the translator of Boethius, was minister here.

HUTTON, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (283) 10 m. W b N. Pop. 214.

A township in the parish of Greystock, Leath ward. Here is a good freestone quarry.

HUTTON, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Lockerby (66) 7 m. N. Pop. 804.

A parish in union with the ancient parish of Corrie, with which it contains about 19,000 acres, watered chiefly by the rivers Corrie, Dryfe, and Milk, on the banks of which the soil is fruitful, while many other streams run through a more mountainous and barren tract, producing nothing but heath and moss, though abounding with game. The living is in the presbytery of Lochmaber and synod of Dumfries; patron, the Earl of Hopetown. In this parish are vestiges of several circular forts, a Roman camp, and the ruins of a massive tower, the ancient residence of the Grahams of Gillespie.

HUTTON, co. Essex.

P. T. Billericay (23) 2½ m. W. Pop. 418.

A parish in the hundred of Barstable; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 8l.; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's.

HUTTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (217) 4 m. SW b W.
Pop. 613.

A township in the parish of Penwortham and hundred of Leyland. Here is a grammar-school, founded in the reign of Edward VI., by Christopher Walton.

HUTTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Axbridge (130) 5½ m. NW b W.
Pop. 325.

A parish in the hundred of Winterstoke; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 14l.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) A. G. H. Battersby, Esq.

HUTTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Stokesley (237) 4 m. WSW. Pop. 910.

A township in the parish of Rudby in Cleveland and west division of the liberty of Langbaurgh, where the linen manufacture is carried on to a considerable extent.

HUTTON BONVILLE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. North Allerton (222) 4 m. NNW.
Pop. 107.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Birkby and wapentake of Allerton shire; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Birkby, exempt from visitation, in the diocese of York; certified value 10l.; ann. val. P. R. 40l.; chapel ded. to St. Laurence; patron (1829) H. Piers, Esq.

HUTTON BUSHELL, N. R. co. York.]

P. T. Scarborough (217) 6 m. SW b W.
Pop. of Pa. 648. Of To. 419.

A parish and township in the east division of the wapentake of Pickering Lythe; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 14l. 17s. 6d.; church ded. to St. Matthew; patron (1829) Earl Fitzwilliam.

HUTTON CONYERS, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Rippon (219) 2 m. NNE. Pop. 127.

An extra-parochial district in the wapentake of Allertonshire.

HUTTON CRANSWICK, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (196) 3 m. S.
Pop. of Pa. 1000. Of To. 917.

A parish and township in the Bainton Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 15l. 8s. 6d.; ann. val. P. R. 53l. 1s.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) Lord Hotham.

HUTTON-IN-THE-FOREST, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (283) 5½ m. NW.
Pop. of Pa. 252. Of To. 157.

A parish in Leath ward; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle, valued in K. B. 18l. 12s. 8½d.; ann. val. 128l.; patron, the Bishop of Carlisle. The church, dedicated to St. James, is a neat edifice, which was rebuilt in 1714. Hutton Hall, the seat of F. F. Vane, Esq., is a handsome mansion, standing on an eminence, surrounded by highly cultivated lands and fine plantations.

HUTTON HANG, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Middleham (232) 3 m. ENE. Pop. 23.

A township in the parish of Fingall and wapentake of Hang West.

HUTTON-IN-THE-HAY, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kendal (202) 3½ m. SE b E.
Pop. with Scathwaite-rigg Township.

A hamlet in the parish of Kirkby in Kendal, Kendal ward.

HUTTON HENRY, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Stockton-upon-Tees (241) 12 m. N b W.
Pop. 174.

A township in the parish of Monk Hesledon and south division of Easington ward. Here is a Catholic chapel, which was built by the Rev. Thomas A. Slater, for his own congregation, in 1824.

HUTTON-IN-THE-HOLE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Pickering (226) 8½ m. NW. Pop. 304.

A township in the wapentake of Ryedale.

HUTTON JOHN, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (283) 6 m. WSW. Pop. 30.

A township in the parish of Greystock, Leath ward.

HUTTON LOCRA, or LOWCROSSE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Guisborough (245) 2 m. SW b S.
Pop. 56.

A township in the parish of Guisborough and east division of the liberty of Langbaugh. Here was formerly an hospital for lepers; some of its mutilated arches still remain.

HUTTON MAGNA, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Greta Bridge (242) 3 m. E b S.
Pop. of Pa. 317. Of Township, with Lane-Head, 248.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Gilling West; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Gilling, in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 28l. 6s. 6d.; ann. val. P. R. 36l.; patron, the Vicar of Gilling.

HUTTON MULGRAVE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Whitby (226) 4½ m. W. Pop. 90.

A township in the parish of Lythe and east division of the liberty of Langbaugh.

HUTTON, NEW, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kendal (202) 4 m. ESE. Pop. 127.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Kirkby in Kendal, Kendal ward; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 64l.; patron, the Vicar of Kendal.

HUTTON, OLD, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kendal (202) 4½ m. SE.
Pop. with Holmescales, 424.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Kirkby in Kendal, Kendal ward; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 9l. 17s. 10d.; ann. val. P. R. 114l. 5s. 8d.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron, the Vicar of Kendal.

HUTTON PRIEST, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Lancaster (240) 9 m. NNE. Pop. 213.

A township in the parish of Warton and hundred of Lonsdale, south of the sands. Matthew Hutton was born here of humble parentage in 1529, and became successively Bishop of Lichfield and of Durham and Archbishop of York; he perpetuated his memory by the foundation of a freeschool at Warton, his native parish.

HUTTON ROOF, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kirkby Lonsdale (253) 3½ m. W b S.
Pop. 257.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Kirkby Lonsdale, Lonsdale ward; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 2l. 10s.; ann. val. P. R. 90l.; patron, the Vicar of Kirkby Lonsdale.

HUTTON SAND, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Thirsk (217) 4 m. W b S. Pop. 273.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Thirsk and wapentake of Birdforth; living, a curacy with that of Thirsk, in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; certified value 2l. 10s.; patronage with Thirsk curacy.

HUTTON SAND, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (196) 8 m. NE. Pop. 202.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Bossall and wapentake of Bulmer; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Bossall, in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York, not in charge; patronage with Bossall vicarage.

HUTTON SESSAY, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Easingwold (213) 6 m. NW. Pop. 129.

A township in the parish of Sessay and wapentake of Allerton shire.

HUTTON SHERIFF, N. R. co. York.

P. T. York (196) 11 m. NNE.
Pop. of Pa. 1278. Of To. 788.

A parish and township in the wapentake of Bulmer; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 10l.; church ded. to St. Helen; patron, the Archbishop of York. Here are the considerable ruins of a castle built by Bertrand de Bulmer in the reign of King Stephen, seated on an eminence and commanding an extensive prospect.

HUTTON SOIL, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Pearlith (283) 6 m. W b S. Pop. 280.

A township in the parish of Greystock and Leath ward.

HUTTON WANDESLEY, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Tadcaster (100) 5 m. NNE. Pop. 125.

A township in the parish of Long Marston, upper division of the Ainstey of the city of York.

HUTTON'S AMBO, N. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 3 m. SW. Pop. 455.

A parish in the wapentake of Bulmer; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; certified value 13*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 106*l.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron, the Archbishop of York.

HUXHAM, co. Devon.

P. T. Exeter (84) 4 m. NNE. Pop. 172.

A parish in the hundred of Wonford; living, a rectory with that of Paltimore, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; patronage with Paltimore rectory.

HUXLEY, or HURLEY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 7½ m. SE b E. Pop. 247.

A township in the parish of Waverton and hundred of Broxton.

HUXLOE, co. Northampton.

Pop. 11,632.

A hundred situated on the eastern side of the county, and nearly surrounded by branches of the river Nen, containing twenty-one parishes.

HUYTON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Prescot (108) 2 m. SW b W.

Pop. of Pa. 3040. Of To. 863.

A parish and township in the hundred of West Derby; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 9*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 70*l.*; patron, the Earl of Derby. The church, which is dedicated to St. Michael, is an ancient edifice with a square tower, and formerly belonged to the priory of Burscough. Here is a dilapidated mansion called Huyton Hay, for many generations the residence of the Harrington family.

HYCKHAM, NORTH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 5 m. SW b S. Pop. 290.

A parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Boothby Graffo, parts of Kesteven; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. at 19*l.* 16*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

HYCKHAM, SOUTH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 6½ m. SW. Pop. 102.

A parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Boothby Graffo, parts of Kesteven; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 1*l.* 5*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 136*l.* 19*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Bishop of Lincoln.

HYDE, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Stockport (170) 4 m. NE b E.

Pop. 3355.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Stockport, which obtained its name from a chapel for dissenters, which, with a solitary house, were the only buildings here till within these forty years; but the place now resembles a small town, and the houses range along each side of the road for nearly a mile. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester, not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Stockport. Hyde Hall, an ancient brick edifice, is situated in a romantic spot, on the banks of a small river, and surrounded with bold swelling eminences, gradually sloping to the water's edge. At a short distance from the house is a neat bridge of one arch, for the accommodation of those who frequent the coal-mines that are worked on this estate, which includes both sides of the river Tame. A weir, formed to supply a water-engine, causes the river above to assume the appearance of a large lake, which, with the cascade produced by the falling of the water to a considerable depth, adds great interest to the surrounding scenery; the grounds are pretty well wooded, and the general character of the seat is picturesque and elegant.

HYDE HILL, co. Hereford.

P. T. Leominster (137) 6 m. SW.

Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Leominster and hundred of Wolphy.

HYSSINGTON, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Bishop's Castle (189) 4 m. W. Pop. 230.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Montgomery, and partly in the hundred of Chirbury and county of Salop; living, a dis. curacy to the parish of Church Stoke, in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph; patron, the incumbent of Church Stoke. The church stands within the precincts of the ruined castle. On one of the bells may be read the following inscription: "Sancto Ethehelda, ora pro nobis." The parish lies in the manor of Halceton, includes part of the forest of Corwdal, and was formerly dependent on the priory of Cherbury.

HYTHE, co. Kent.

Pop. 2390.

A hundred in the lathe of Shepway, on the south-east borders of the county, containing two parishes, including the Cinque Port of Hythe.

HYTHE, co. Kent.

London 65 m. ESE. Pop. 2181. M. D.

Thurs. Fairs, July 40 and Dec. 1.

A market-town, incorporated borough, and one of the Cinque Ports, pleasantly situated on the eastern coast of Kent, in the hundred of Hythe, lathe of Shepway. It is sometimes called East Hythe, to distinguish it from West Hythe, a neighbouring seaport, the harbour of which, as well as that of Limme, having been rendered useless by the accumulation of sand driven in by the tide, those ports were deserted, and East Hythe, profiting by their decay, became a place of importance. It seems to have been made one of the Cinque Ports at their original institution, which is ascribed to William I. In the reign of Henry IV. the town was desolated by a dreadful pestilence, two hundred houses were destroyed by fire, and the merchants suffered by the loss of five ships sunk at sea; in consequence of which accumulated disasters, it is said the inhabitants were about to abandon the town, but they were induced to remain there, on obtaining from the king a new charter, exempting them, for a certain period, from the burden to which they had been previously subjected, of providing for the royal service, in the time of war, five vessels, with a hundred men, to be maintained fifteen days. The town anciently contained four or five churches; but of these, one only was standing in the middle of the sixteenth century. The original style of the corporation was that of Barons of the town and port of Hythe; but since the grant of a charter by Queen Elizabeth, it consists of a mayor, twelve jurats, and twenty-four common-council men, who, with the freemen resident and non-resident, elect the members of Parliament, the mayor being the returning officer. The mayor is chosen into office annually on Candlemas-day. The living is a curacy not in charge, subordinate to the rectory of Southend, and exempt from visitation. The church, dedicated to St. Leonard, is an ancient structure, displaying in its architecture considerable diversity of style: it had formerly a lofty steeple, which fell by accident, in April 1739. Beneath this building is a vault, or charnel-house, containing a pile of bones, described in Hasted's History of Kent, as being twenty feet in length and eight feet in height and breadth. These remains are supposed to be those of British and Saxon warriors who fell in an engagement which took place between Hythe and Folkestone in 456. Here are various places of worship for dissenters. Among the charitable institutions are a free-school for thirty-eight boys; and two hospitals, or almshouses, under the government of the corporation. The town consists principally of one long street; and its situation being convenient for sea-bathing, it contains commodious lodging-houses, bathing-machines, and other accommodations. The coast is defended by Martello towers, erected during the war with France, under the government of Bonaparte; at which period also was constructed the Royal Military, or Shorncliffe and Rye Canal, which passes by Hythe, and which was originally designed as a protection against foreign invasion, but has since been adapted to commercial purposes. A considerable trade is carried on here in corn, hops, &c., and a market, formerly kept 'on Saturdays, is discontinued. About two miles and a half north of Hythe is Westernhanger House, anciently an extensive fortress belonging to the family of Aberville; but in 1701, a great part of it was taken down, and the remainder is occupied as a farm-house.

HYTE, WEST or OLD, co. Kent.

P. T. Hythe (43) 2 m. WSW. Pop. 112.

A parish in the hundred of Hythe, lathe of Shepway; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 14*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 30*l.*; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

I.

IARCONNAUGHT, co. Galway, Con-naught, I.

An ancient name of the district, including the present baronies of Moycullen and Ballynahinch, and included between the Lough of Corrib and Mash and the Atlantic Ocean. See Connemara. The O'Flahertys were the chiefs of this mountainous region.

IBBERTON, co. Dorset.

P. T. Blandford Forum (103) 8½ m. W b N. Pop. 233.

A parish in the hundred of Whiteway, Sherborne division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 19l. 13s. 9d.; church ded. to St. Eustache; patron (1829) Lord Rivers.

IBERIUS, ST., co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Broadway (103) m. Pop. 496.

A parish in the barony of Forth, situated adjacent to Salt Lake. The living is an inappropriate cure in the diocese of Ferns and archdiocese of Dublin, and united to seven other benefices in the same diocese, constituting thereby the union of Killinick.

IBLE, co. Derby.

P. T. Wirksworth (140) 4 m. NW. Pop. 135.

A township in the parish and wapentake of Wirksworth.

IBRICKEN, co. Clare, Munster, I.

Pop. 16,306.

A barony included between the Atlantic Ocean and the barony of Islands. It is almost wholly occupied by mountains, extends over an area of 24,297 acres, and contains three parishes, several inhabited islands, and the village of Miltown-Malbey. The shore is productive of kelp in vast quantities, and the inhabitants are much engaged in the fisheries.

IBSLEY, co. Southampton.

P. T. Ringwood (98) 2½ m. N b E. Pop. 217.

A parish in the hundred of Fordingbridge, New Forest, west division; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Fordinge bridge, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; church ded. to St. Martin; patronage with Fordingbridge vicarage.

IBSTOCK, or IBOTSTOKE, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market Bosworth (100) 5 m. N.
Pop. 1741.

A parish in the hundred of Sparkenhoe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 191. 8s. 11½d.; church ded. to St. Dennis; patron, the Bishop of Rochester.

ICCOMBE, or ICKHAM, co. Worcester.

P. T. Stow-on-the-Wold (86) 2½ m. SE.
Pop. 161.

A parish, partly in the upper division of the hundred of Slaughter, county of Gloucester, and partly in that of Oswaldslow, county of Worcester; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 81. ; ann. val. P. R. 1271. 4s.; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Worcester. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, is an ancient structure, and contains a curious tomb of a knight in armour, surrounded by seven figures, some of which are in religious habits.

ICKBOROUGH, or ICKBURGH, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Brandon Ferry (78) 5½ m. NNE.
Pop. 154.

A parish in the hundred of Grimeshoe, and supposed to have been the station Icliani of Antoninus; living, a dis. rectory, with that of Langford, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 101. 2s. 8½d.; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patronage with Langford rectory. Several Roman coins and antiquities have been dug up here at different periods.

ICKENHAM, co. Middlesex.

P. T. Uxbridge (15) 3 m. NE. Pop. 291.

A parish in the hundred of Elthorne; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 131. 6s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Giles; patron, the Bishop of London.

ICKFORD, cos. Buckingham and Oxford.

P. T. Thame (41) 4 m. WNW. Pop. 324.

A parish partly in the hundred of Ashenden, county of Buckingham and partly in the hundred of Ewelme, county of Oxford; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 91. 9s. 7d.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) R. Townsend, Esq.

ICKHAM, co. Kent.

P. T. Wingham (62) 2 m. W. Pop. 321.

A parish in the hundred of Downhamford, lathe of St. Augustin; living, a rectory, with the curacy of Weld, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 291. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to St. John the Evangelist; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

ICKLEFORD, co. Hertford.

P. T. Hitchin (34) 2 m. N. Pop. 442.

A parish in the hundred of Hitchin, said to have been anciently a market-town; it derives its name from its situation on the Ickneild Way, near a ford of the river Ivel; living, a rectory with the vicarage of Merton, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 81. ; patron (1829) C. Peers, Esq. In the church ded. to St. Catherine, was buried Henry Boswell, king of the gipsies, who died in 1780.

ICKLESHAM, co. Sussex.

P. T. Winchelsea (64) 2 m. W b S.
Pop. 585.

A parish in the hundred of Guestling, rape of Hastings; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 131. 1s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Bishop of Chichester.

ICKLETON, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Linton (49) 4 m. SW. Pop. 602.

A parish in the hundred of Whittlesford; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 81. 6s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 701. ; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron, the Bishop of Ely.

ICKLINGHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Mildenhall (70) 4 m. ESE. Pop. 424.

A village comprising the parishes of All Saints and St. James, in the hundred of Lackford, which has evidently been the site of a Roman station, some remains of an ancient encampment, being still visible; the livings are two rectories in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 121. 17s. 6d.; and 111. 11s. 5½d.; patron (1829) the Rev. D. Gwilt.

ICKWELL, co. Bedford.

P. T. Biggleswade (45) 3 m. W b N.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Northill and hundred of Wixamtree.

ICKWORTH, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmund's (71) 2½ m. SW.
Pop. 82.

A parish in the hundred of Thingoe; living, a dis. rectory united to that of Chedburgh, in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 71. 11s. 5½d.; patronage with Chedburgh rectory. In Ickworth Park, which comprises the whole of the parish, being eleven miles in circumference, and containing 1800 acres, is the handsome seat of the Hervey family, one of whom, John Hervey, was created a peer of the realm, by Queen Anne, in 1703, and was invested by George I. in 1714, with the title of Earl of Bristol.

I-COLM-KILL, shire of Argyll, S.

Pop. about 350.

A celebrated island of the Hebrides, in the parish of Kilfinichen and district of Mull, lying to the westward of the Isle of Mull, and separated from it by the narrow sound of I. It is three miles in length, and averages three-quarters of a mile in breadth, the surface exhibiting peculiar alternations of broken, rocky, and fertile ground, and the interior rich in beautifully variegated marbles, with many valuable minerals, particularly a curious yellow serpentine, jasper, quartz, lapis-nephritica, porphyry, limestone, &c. Bede, the venerable historian, terms this still interesting spot Hii, but Monkish writers call it Iona, signifying in Gaelic, The Island of Waves, a name most applicable to its locality; while others affirm Iona to have been derived from the Hebrew word, signifying a dove, in allusion to St. Columba, who in the middle of the sixth century landed at I, converted the Pictish monarch to Christianity, and founded here the magnificent monastery, Columb-Kill, famed as the only seat of piety and learning in the darker ages, when profound ignorance had thrown her mantle over every other portion of western Europe. It was first occupied by Canons Regular, who, till 716, differed in some points from the Romish church, and in 807, were dislodged by the Danes; but some years afterwards a fraternity of Cluniac monks was placed in it and continued till the general dissolution, when its revenues were bestowed on the Bishops of Argyll. Of the cathedral, which exhibits specimens of various styles of ancient architecture, there are yet considerable remains, particularly a central tower of three stages, rising from four arches; the east window, an elegant piece of Gothic architecture; and pillars, all of different orders, having their capitals highly sculptured either with scriptural or grotesque figures. Near the altar is a monumental tomb of black marble with the effigies of the Abbot Macfingone, and on the south side is a chapel containing the tombs of several lords of the isles. This is also the reputed burial-place of forty-eight Scottish, four Irish, one French, and eight Norwegian kings. On the north side of the church are some remaining fragments of the bishop's palace. Here was also a nunnery, of which the conventual church, now used as a cow-house, and other vestiges are yet conspicuous, as are the ruins of five chapels, the sites of three others, and two ancient crosses. Many of these venerable relics have been secured from further dilapidation by strong walls built at the expense of the Argyll family, the proprietors ever since the abolition of Episcopacy in Scotland, but this place, once so remarkable for religious exercises, has divine service now performed only four times a-year by the minister of the parish. A considerable extent of ground around these edifices are literally covered with grave-stones, and the cemetery of the nunnery was till lately never opened but for the interment of females. The neighbouring village is situated on the Bay of Martyrs, so called from its having been the landing place to which the illustrious dead were anciently brought for interment on this supposed holy spot. The island is extremely productive, both in corn and cattle, much of each being exported; fish also is plentiful on the coast. The present inhabitants are rude and unlettered; they speak only the Gaelic dialect, but the Christian Knowledge Society having recently established a school amongst them, much benefit must ultimately accrue therefrom.

IDAGH, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

Pop. 17,880.

One of the nine baronies contained in this county. It occupies an area of 60,434 acres, includes thirteen parishes and the village of Rossercon. It is entirely an agricultural district.

IDBURY, co. Oxford.

P. T. Burford (72) 5½ m. N b W. Pop. 193.

A parish in the hundred of Chadlington; living, a curacy with that of Swinbrook, and a peculiar of the Chancellor of Salisbury, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 57l.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patronage with Swinbrook.

IDDESLEIGH, co. Devon.

P. T. Hatherleigh (204) 4 m. NE b N.
Pop. 492.

A parish in the hundred of Shebbear; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 17l. 1s. 3d.; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) H. Harris, Esq.

IDE, co. Devon.

P. T. Exeter (164) 2 m. SW. Pop. 724.

A parish in the hundred of Exminster; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Ida; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Exeter.

IDEFORD, co. Devon.

P. T. Chudleigh (182) 2 m. SE. Pop. 356.

A parish in the hundred of Teignbridge; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 17l. 13s. 9d.; patron (1829) the Rev. J. Heywood.

IDE-HILL, co. Kent.

P. T. Sevenoaks (23) 4 m. SW.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Sundridge and hundred of Codsheath; laith of Sutton-at-Hone; living, a curacy, and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 100l.; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

IDEN, co. Sussex.

P. T. Rye (63) 2 m. N. Pop. 442.

A parish in the hundred of Goldspur, rape of Hastings; living, a rectory, in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 18l. 8s. 6½d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Thomas P. Lamb, Esq.

IDLE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Bradford (196) 4 m. N b E.
Pop. 4666.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Calverley and wapentake of Morley, possessing some extensive woollen-manufactories, and from its contiguity to Bradford, is a place of some trade; livings, two curacies, subordinate to the vicarage of Calverley, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York, one of which of the certified value of 18*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 109*l.* 5*s.* 10*d.*; the other not in charge; patron, the Vicar of Calverley.

IDLICOTE, co. Warwick.

P. T. Shipston-upon-Stour (83) 3 m. NNE.
Pop. 88.

A parish in the Brailles division of the hundred of Kington; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) Samuel Peach, Esq.

IDMISTON, or IDMERSTON, co. Wilts.

P. T. Salisbury (81) 6 m. NE b N.
Pop. of Pa. 438. Of Tithing 177.

A parish and tithing in the hundred of Alderbury; living, a vicarage, with the curacy of Purton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 6*s.* 0*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Bishop of Salisbury.

IDRIDGE, or HITHERIDGE HAY, co. Derby.

P. T. Wirksworth (140) 4 m. S.
Pop. with Allton, 160.

A township in the parish of Wirksworth and hundred of Appletree.

IDRONE, co. Carlow, Leinster, I.

Pop. 7415.

A small but rich barony, containing thirteen parishes, and the town called Bagnallstown. It is bounded on the west by the navigable river Barrow, and on the east is hemmed in by the Blackstairs mountains.

IDSTONE, co. Berks.

P. T. Lambourn (68) 6 m. WNW. Pop. 154.

A hamlet in the parish of Ashbury and hundred of Shreveingham.

IDSWORTH, co. Southampton.

P. T. Petersfield (34) 7 m. S b W. Pop. 310.

A tithing and chapelry in the parish of Chalkton and hundred of Finch Dean, Alton, south division; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Chalkton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; patronage with Chalkton rectory.

IFFA, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

Pop. 74,232.

An extensive and populous barony, united to that of Offa, and including twenty-nine parishes, besides the capital towns of Clonmel, Carrick-on-Suir, and Caher, the most flourishing places in the county. The only occupation of the inhabitants is agriculture, to which the remarkable fertility of this district naturally directs them. The noble river Suir, navigable by barges to Clonmel, affords an influx for the produce of the barony at Waterford Haven.

IFIELD, co. Kent.

P. T. Gravesend (32) 3 m. S b E. Pop. 55:

A parish in the hundred of Toltingtrough, lathe of Aylesford; living, a dis. rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 7*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; church ded. to St. Edmeades; patron (1829) W. Edmeades, Esq.

IFIELD, co. Sussex.

P. T. Horsham (36) 7 m. NE. Pop. 758.

A parish in the hundred of Burbeach, rape of Bramber; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patrons (1829) Mr. and Mrs. Lewin.

IFLEY, co. Oxford.

P. T. Oxford (54) 2 m. SE b S.
Pop. with Littlemoor Liberty, 881.

A parish and village in the hundred of Bulington, anciently called Gifteley. The village, which is but inconsiderable, is situated on the bank of the river Isis, near its confluence with the Cherwell. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; patron, the Archdeacon of Oxford. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, was formerly regarded as a specimen of Saxon ecclesiastical architecture, and is mentioned as such by Dr. Ducarel, in his "Anglo-Norman Antiquities," but the style it displays is purely Norman, and it was probably erected in the twelfth century; the western portal, with its receding arch-mouldings, richly ornamented, is peculiarly characteristic of the Norman style of building. In the interior is an antique square stone font, supported on four pillars.

IFORD, co. Southampton.

P. T. Christchurch (99) 2 m. W b N.
Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish and hundred of Christchurch New Forest west division.

IFORD, co. Sussex.

P. T. Lewes (50) 2 m. SW. Pop. 157.

A parish in the hundred of Swanborough, rape of Lewes; living, a vicarage with that of Kington, near Lewes, in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 10*s.* 2*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patronage with Kington vicarage.

IFORD, co. Wilts.

P. T. Bradford (100) 2 m. SW b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Westwood and hundred of Elatub and Everly.

IFTON, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Chepstow (136) 6 m. SW. Pop. 80.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Caldecot; living, a rectory with that of Rogent, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; patronage with Rogeat rectory. It is a sinecure, the church having fallen to decay.

IGHTERMURROUGH, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Castle-Martyr (164) 3 m. S.E.
Pop. with Garryvol.

A parish in the barony of Imokilly, situated upon the river Phoenix; living, a rectory in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the vicarages of Garryvoe, Kilmacdonogh, and Killereden; patron, the King. It possesses a church and six acres of glebe, but is without a residence for the rector. Here are the ruins of an ancient castle.

IGHTONHILL-PARK, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Burnley (311) 1½ m. NW. Pop. 209.

A township in the parish of Whalley and hundred of Blackburn, formerly one of the demesnes belonging to Clitheroe Castle. In the park, which commands some fine views to the north and west, was an ancient manor-house of the Lacy family.

IGHTFIELD, co. Salop.

P. T. Whitchurch (163) 4 m. S.E. b. E.
Pop. 261.

A parish in the Whitchurch division of the hundred of Bradford, North; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 7l. 14s. 9½d.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) P. Justice, Esq.

IGHTHAM, co. Kent.

P. T. Wrotham (24) 1½ m. S.W. Pop. 867.

A parish in the hundred of Wrotham, lathe of Aylesford; living, a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 15l. 16s. 8d.; patroness (1829) Miss Cobb. The church, dedicated to St. Peter, contains several curious old monuments.

IHEATH, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

Pop. 6025.

One of the fourteen baronies into which the county is divided. It contains eight parishes, besides the market-town of Killocock, and is a fertile district. It is watered by the Blackwater river, and a few streamlets tributary to that river. The old barony of Oughteron is united to this, and the population return is applied to both.

IKEN, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Orford (90) 4½ m. N. Pop. 363.

A parish in the hundred of Plomesgate; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6l. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Botolph; patron (1829) Thomas Syer, Esq.

IKERIN, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

Pop. 24,021.

A populous barony containing nine parishes and the market-town of Roscrea. The surface in general is level, and productive, although much interspersed with bog. The family of Butter, now Earls of Carrick, take the title of Baron from this district.

ILA. See Islay.

ILAM, co. Stafford.

P. T. Ashborne (130) 3½ m. NW.
Pop. with Trowley and Casterton, 253.

A parish in the north division of the hundred of Totmonslow, situated in one of the most romantic spots in the country; the rivers Hamps and Manyfold rise from some limestone rocks in this parish, under which they run in separate streams for several miles. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 6l. 13s. 4d.; patron (1829) J. Wotts Russell, Esq. In the church, ded. to Holy Cross, St. Bertram is recorded to have performed many miracles.

ILCHESTER, co. Somerset.

London 121 m. WSW. Pop. 994, M. D.
Wed. Fairs, Monday before Palm Sunday;
July 2; and Aug. 2; for all sorts of cattle.
Memb. of Pt. 2.

A market and borough-town in the hundred of Tintinhull, situated on the navigable river Yeo, or Ivel, whence its name of Ivelchester or Ilchester. It is supposed to be the place mentioned by Ptolemy and Richard of Cirencester, under the appellation of Ischalis, as one of the towns belonging to the Hedui, an ancient British tribe, and afterwards occupied by the Romans. Traces are still visible of the extent of the walls and fortifications of the Roman station, which, according to Dr. Stukeley, formed an oblong square; crossed from the north-east to the south-west by the old road called the Fosse-way, passing in the line of one of the principal streets. In and near the town Roman coins and other antiquities have repeatedly been discovered. It seems to have been a place of some importance at the time of the Norman Conquest, and had then belonging to it 107 burgesses. In the reign of William Rufus it was besieged by Robert de Mowbray, the leader of an insurrection against that prince; and the town was successfully defended by the inhabitants. In the thirteenth century the manor belonged to Edmund, Earl of Cornwall, and afterwards to John of Eltham, son of Edward II., on whose death it reverted to the crown. It is a borough by prescription, governed by a bailiff and twelve burgesses, and has sent members to Parliament, with some intermissions, ever since the 26th of Edward I. The right of election is vested in the bailiff, burgesses, and the inhabitants not receiving alms, in all, seventy: the bailiff is the returning officer; and the patronage is disputed between the Marquis of Cleveland and Lord Huntingtower. It was considered as the county-town in the time of Edward III., who granted a patent or charter for holding the county assizes at Ilchester; but they have been since held at this place, alternately with Taunton, Wells, and Bridgewater. Among the few public buildings are a county court-house, and a county gaol, the latter erected on the plan proposed by Howard, and it has been occasionally the place of confinement for persons prosecuted by Government, and convicted of sedition. Leland says the town had anciently four churches, only one of which was entire when he wrote, just before the Reformation, but there were then traces of two of the others remaining. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 7l. 16s. 10½d., and in the patronage of the Bishop of the diocese. The church, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, is an old edifice, with an octangular stone tower. An hospital, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, was founded here about 1220; and it is said to have been subsequently converted into a nunnery, and at length into a free chapel. Here was also a convent of the Black Friars or Dominicans. There is an almshouse for sixteen poor women. The town has a small manufacture of lace, thread, and silk; but it has long been in a state of decline. Ilchester is commonly stated to be the birthplace of Roger Bacon, the great luminary of science, in the thirteenth century; and here likewise was born, in 1674, Mrs. Elizabeth Rowe, a popular writer on devotional subjects, whose family name was Singer. This place gives the title of Earl to the family of Fox.

ILDERTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (329) 4½ m. SSE.
Pop. of Pa. 579. Of To. 157.

A parish and township in the north division of Coquetdale ward, situated on a hill, and bounded on the west by the picturesque mountains of Cheviot; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 4l.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) the Duke of Northumberland. Between this village and one of the highest of the Cheviot mountains, called Hedghope, is a Druidical temple, consisting of ten large rude and unequal stones, placed in an oval form, from east to west. This neighbourhood was a favourite place with the Druids, who generally fixed their temples amongst towering hills and thick woods.

ILERAY, shire of Inverness, S.

An island of the Hebrides, forming part of the parish of North Uist, and situated to the southward of it. It is about three miles long, half a mile broad, and yields plentiful crops of barley, with good pasturage for cattle.

ILFORD, co. Somerset.

P. T. Ilminster (153) 2 m. N b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Ilton and hundred of Abdick and Bulstone.

ILFORD, GREAT, co. Essex.

London 7½ m. NE b E.
Pop. with Little Ilford, 2972.

A ward and chapelry in the parish of Barkington, hundred of Becontree, situated on the high road from London to Chelmsford, Colchester, &c. Morant supposes the name of this place to have been derived from the existence of an "ill ford" here, over the river Rodon, previously to the erection of the bridge and causeway; to which point the river is now navigable, having been made so about 1738. The living is a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Barking, in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London, not in charge; patron (1829) James H. Leigh, Esq. In the village, an hospital for lepers, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, was founded in the reign of Stephen, by Adeliza, Abbess of Barking; and its revenues, at the dissolution of monasteries, amounted to 16l. 1s. 6½d. Queen Elizabeth granted the property to Thomas Fanshawe, Esq. remembrancer of the exchequer, on condition that the chapel should be kept in repair for the use of the village, and also apartments for six paupers, with pensions of 2l. 5s. per annum each. The hospital stands to the north of the turnpike-road, forming three sides of a quadrangle, the chapel being situated on the south side. The latter appears to have been built in the fifteenth century, but has undergone many subsequent alterations and repairs: some of the windows contain armorial bearings in stained glass. In 1812, on digging for brick earth in a field near the bank of the river Rodon, and about two miles north of the Thames, various fossil remains were discovered, consisting of very large bones of oxen, horns and bones of stags, a spiral horn thirteen feet long, and the head, bones, and teeth of an elephant, differing on examination from those of the Asiatic or African elephants. In a neighbouring field, other remains were disinterred, including the teeth and tusks of the hippopotamus.

ILFORD, LITTLE, co. Essex.

London 7 m. NNE.
Pop. with Great Ilford.

A village and parish in the hundred of Becontree, distinguished by its prefix from the neighbouring village of Great Ilford. It is situated southward of the great road through Essex, and on the east side of the Rodon, which separates it from Barking. The manor of Ilford Parva anciently belonged to the abbey of Stratford Langthorn; and in the last century it was held by the family of Wight. There is another manor in the parish, called Alderbroke, which in the reign of Henry VIII. was the property of Giles Heron, the son-in-law of Sir Thomas More, on whose attainder it fell to the crown: in 1694 it was aliened to Sir John Lethieullier, whose descendant, Smart Lethieullier, a distinguished antiquary, resided at Alderbroke House till his death in 1760. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 11l. 13s. 9d.; patron (1829) James H. Leigh, Esq. The church, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, is a small structure, with a low tower at the west end. In 1583 the rectory was given to Thomas Newton, a writer of some eminence on medicine, botany, poetry, and other subjects, who died in 1607, and was interred in his parish church. A great annual mart, for the sale of cattle from Wales, Scotland, and the north of England, is held from February to May, on Kipping Forest, within the parishes of Ilford, East Ham, West Ham, Leyton, and Wanstead; but the business is chiefly transacted at a house on the high road, in this parish.

ILFRACOMBE, co. Devon.

London 202 m. W b S. Pop. 2622. M. D. Sat. Fairs, April 14, and the 1st Sat. aft. Aug. 22, for cattle.

A considerable seaport, market-town, and parish, in the hundred of Braunton, at the northern extremity of the county, bordering on the Bristol Channel. Its maritime importance was considerable at an early period; and it contributed six ships and eighty-two mariners towards the expedition fitted out against Calais in 1346. In the civil war under Charles I., this place was garrisoned for the Parliament, and it was taken in September, 1644, together with a quantity of arms and ammunition, by Sir Francis Doddington, a royalist officer. The town is under the government of a portreeve. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 50*l.* 4*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 100*l.*; in the patronage of the Prebendary of Ilfracombe, in the cathedral of Salisbury. The church, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, is a large, plain building, containing some handsome monuments, particularly one erected by government, in memory of Captain Richard Bowen, who fell in July, 1797, in the memorable attack on Teneriffe, under Admiral Nelson. There is a place of worship for Dissenters, who have been established at Ilfracombe for more than a century. Here is a school for the gratuitous instruction of boys, and another for girls, partly supported by the benefactions of Mrs. Gertrude Pyncomb, and partly by subscriptions; and here are also a school of industry for girls, and other charitable foundations. The harbour, which is safe and commodious, is greatly resorted to, particularly in the winter season, by vessels passing up and down the Channel, from Ireland and other places. It consists of a natural basin, defended from the violence of the sea by a bold mass of rock, stretching nearly half way across the entrance, and an artificial pier, 850 feet in length, which was repaired by an act of Parliament in 1731, and partly rebuilt in 1761, by Sir Bourchier Wrey, the lord of the manor. The rock, forming the mouth of the harbour, rises almost to a point, and on its summit has been erected a lighthouse, somewhat in the style of an ecclesiastical structure. There is a daily intercourse by means of packets with Swansea and Milford Haven, in Wales, and also with Bristol. A considerable coasting-trade is carried on here, the grand article of export being oats: the herring-fishery is likewise considerable. The number of vessels belonging to this port in 1820 was about seventy. Ilfracombe has, of late years, been much frequented as a watering-place; in consequence of which, a number of good houses for the accommodation of visitors have been erected along the side of the harbour; and there are bathing-machines, and warm baths for the use of invalids.

ILKESTON, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 9½ m. NE b E. Pop. 3681.

A parish in the hundred of Morleston and Litchurch; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. at 5*l.* 7*s.* 9*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 107*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry.

ILKLEY, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Otley (205) 6 m. WNW. Pop. of Pa. 911. Of T. 496.

An ancient parish and township in the upper division of the wapentake of Skyrack, considered by antiquaries to have been the Olicana of the Romans; it is situated on the river Wharfe, to the south of which, on a lofty bank, is the outline of a Roman fortification, still in very good preservation; at Middleton Lodge is an altar inscribed to Verbeia, probably the tutelary nymph of the river. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. at 7*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 56*l.* 1*l.* 6*d.*; patron (1829) L. W. Hartley, Esq. In the church, dedicated to All Saints, is a monument to Sir Adam de Middleton, bearing the date of 1312. From a neighbouring hill issues a fine clear and cold stream, forming an excellent bath, which is much resorted to in the summer season.

ILLINGTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. East Harling (80) 4 m. NW b W. Pop. 96.

A parish in the hundred of Shropham; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patroness (1829) Mrs. Kellett.

ILLINGWORTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Halifax (197) 2½ m. NW b N. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Halifax and wapentake of Morley; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Halifax, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; certified value 12*l.* 16*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 135*l.*; chapel ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Vicar of Halifax.

ILLOGAN, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Redruth (261) 3 m. NW. Pop. 5170.

A parish in the east division of the hundred of Penwith; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 22*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*; patron (1829) Lord de Dunstanville. Here is one of the richest copper-mines in the county, called Cook's Kitchen. On the summit of a steep hill is Carn Bré Casge, 697 feet above the level of the sea, situated on a ledge of rocks, and surrounded with Druidical remains and immense masses of granite.

ILLMIRE, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Thame (44) 4½ m. E b S. Pop. 28.

A parish in the hundred of Ashenden; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6l. 10s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 97l.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Earl of Chesterfield.

ILMINGTON, co. Warwick.

P. T. Shipston-upon-Stour (83) 4½ m. NW b W. Pop. with Compton Scorpion, 722.

A parish in Kington division of the hundred of Kington, and separated from the rest of the division by a part of Worcestershire; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 30l.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. H. Townsend.

ILMINSTER, co. Somerset.

London 133 m. WSW. Pop. 3156. M. D. Sat. Fairs, last Wednesday in Aug., for horses, bullocks, pigs, sheep, cheese, &c.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Abdick and Bulstone, situated at the southern angle of the county, on the river Ile, from which it derives its name, signifying the minster, or church on the Ile. It stands low, but pleasant, at the intersection of two turnpike-roads which cross this part of the county. The town is said to have been privileged with a market before the Norman Conquest; and it was formerly much larger than at present, its limits having been reduced by frequent conflagrations, especially in 1491, when the place was nearly reduced to ashes. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 25l. 5s.; patron (1829) W. Hanning, Esq. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a handsome structure, in the decorated Gothic style, consisting of a nave, south porch, transepts, and chancel, with a central square tower, ornamented with pinnacles and battlements. In the north transept is a sepulchral monument for Nicholas and Dorothy Wadham, the founders of Wadham College, Oxford, in the beginning of the seventeenth century. A free grammar-school was founded here in 1550, by Humphry Walrond and Henry Greenfield, who gave considerable estates for the endowment of this charity. The town comprises two streets, intersecting each other, one of them being nearly a mile in length. Many of the houses were formerly thatched; but considerable improvements have been made, and good houses erected within a few years past. The manufacture of woollen cloth was at one period largely carried on here, but the trade is now in a state of decay. At Horton, about a mile and a half from Ilminster, is a mineral spring, said to be efficacious in curing diseases of the eyes.

ILSINGTON, co. Devon.

P. T. Ohudleigh (132) 5 m. WSW. Pop. 1122.

A parish in the hundred of Teignbridge; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 17l. 9s. 7d.; church ded. to St. Michael; patrons, the Dean and Canons of Windsor.

ILESLEY, EAST, co. Berks.

London 54 m. W. Pop. 676. M. D. Wed. Fairs, Wed. in Easter week; and every other Wed. till July, for sheep; Aug. 26, for sheep and lambs; 1st Wed. after Sept. 29; Wed. after Oct. 17; and Wed. after Nov. 12.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Compton, situated on a gentle eminence, in a pleasant valley, in the centre of a range of downs, and celebrated for its sheep-market, which, next to the metropolis, is said to be the largest in England, not less than 20,000 sheep having been sometimes sold in one day; the annual average is upwards of 250,000, which are principally purchased for the farmers of Hertfordshire and Buckinghamshire, where they are afterwards fattened for the London market. The number of houses does not exceed 200. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 22l. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Magdalen College, Oxford.

ILSLEY, WEST, co. Berks.

P. T. East Ilsley (54) 2 m. NW. Pop. 323.

A parish in the hundred of Crompton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 22l. 7s. 1d.; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Dean and Canons of Windsor.

ILSTON, or LLAN-ILLTYD, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Swansea (206) 7 m. WSW. Pop. 279.

A parish in the hundred of Swansea, situated upon a small river, called Pen-Arths Pill, a little north of its union with Oxwich Bay; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 105l. 10s. per annum; patron, the Lord Chancellor. Here is a manufactory of woollen cloth.

ILSTON-ON-THE-HILL, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (96) 9 m. ESE. Pop. 125.

A township and chapelry, partly in the parish of Carlton Curliu, and partly in the parish of Norton and hundred of Gartree; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Carlton Curliu, in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; church ded. to St. Michael; patronage with Carlton Curliu rectory.

ILTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Ilminster (133) 2 m. NNW. Pop. 420.

A parish in the hundred of Abdick and Bulstone; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 6l. 19s. 4½d.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Prebend of Ilton in Wells cathedral.

ILTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Bedale (223) 9 m. SW b S. Pop. 206.

A township in the parish of Masham and wapentake of Hang East. Here is a modern erection of rude stones, called the Druids' Temple.

IMBER, co. Wilts.

P. T. East Lavington (90) 5 m. SSW. Pop. 414.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Heytesbury, and partly in that of Swanborough living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 58l. 14s. 9d.; church ded. to St. Giles; patron (1829) the Marquis of Bath.

IMLAGH. See Emlagh.

IMMINGHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Great Grimsby (165) 6 m. NW. Pop. 207.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Yarborough; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 7l. 18s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 100l.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patrons (1829) W. Ancotta, Esq., &c.

IMOKILLY, co. Cork, Munster, I.

Pop. 53,615.

An extensive, fertile, and populous barony, containing eighteen parishes, and the market-towns of Castle-Martyr, Middleton, Cloyne, and Youghal. It extends about thirty miles in length, and measures nineteen in breadth, and has the advantage of a maritime position. The soil in the lowlands is not inferior to that of the richest southern counties, resting upon a substratum of limestone; but the highlands are found less profitable, and recline upon a coarse schistus. Fuel is, unfortunately, a scarce article; but imported coal might be sold at a cheap rate if canals were provided to connect the inland places with the valuable line of coast which the barony possesses. Many large landed proprietors reside in this district.

IMPINGTON, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Cambridge (50) 3 m. N b W. Pop. 149.

A parish in the hundred of North Stow; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Ely; valued in K. B. 8l. 7s.; ann. val. P. R. 140l.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Ely. During the inclement weather of 1799, a poor woman lost her way in this parish and was overwhelmed in a snow-drift, where she continued nearly eight days and nights, but was discovered alive and survived her confinement several months.

INCE, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Frodsham (191) 5 m. W b S. Pop. 400.

A parish in the hundred of Eddisbury; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chester; certified value 8l. 3s. 3d.; ann. val. P. R. 125l.; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) Edmund Yates, Esq.

INCE BLUNDELL, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Liverpool (206) 8 m. N b W. Pop. 472.

A township in the parish of Sephton and hundred of West Derby. Here is Ince Hall, the seat of Charles Blundell, Esq., whose ancestors have possessed the manor since the reign of Henry III. The mansion is a spacious modern structure, attached to which is an edifice built after the model of the Pantheon at Rome, for the purpose of containing a collection of ancient marbles and statuary.

INCE-IN-MAKERFIELD, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Wigan (200) 1½ m. E. Pop. 1302.

A township in the parish of Wigan and hundred of West Derby. Here is found the Cannel coal. Ince Hall, an ancient manor-house, is one of those curious and picturesque half-timbered buildings not unfrequently met with in this county.

INCH, or INSCH, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Old Rayne (136) 2½ m. W. Aberdeen 26 m. NW. Pop. 1059. Fairs, 3 annually.

A burgh of barony, market-town, and parish, in the district of Garioch; the former of which is pleasantly situated on the northern bank of a rivulet, near the parish church, and has been gradually increasing in population and importance since the opening of a canal communication with the town and port of Aberdeen through the district of Garioch, which has been significantly termed the granary of Aberdeen, from its great fertility. The parish contains about 7500 Scotch acres, of which one-third is in a high state of cultivation, producing early and heavy crops. The lofty hill of Fondland extends into this parish and affords great quantities of fine blue slate from its quarries. Half a mile from the town, on the curious isolated hill Dun-o-Deer, whose base is 3000 yards in circuit, and its elevation about 300 feet, are the ruins of a castle said to have been built by Gregory the Great, of volcanic materials dug from the spot. The living is in the presbytery of Garioch and synod of Aberdeen; patron, Sir W. Forbes, Bart.

INCH, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Cloyne (186) 5 m. SW. Pop. with Aghada.

A parish in the barony of Imokilly, situated upon the sea-coast; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel, forming part of the union of Aghada, which has been attached to the see for the last century; patron, the King.

INCH, co. Down, Ulster, I.

P. T. Downpatrick (93) 3 m. Pop. 2746.

A parish in the barony of Lecale, situated upon Strangford Lough; living, a rectory in the diocese of Down and archdiocese of Armagh, united by charter of James I. in 1609, to the rectory of Ardkeen and vicarage of Witter, constituting the corps of the prebend of St. Andrews; Inch alone produces, by commutation of tithes, the sum of 286*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.*

INCH, shire of Inverness, S.

P. T. Pitmain (112½) 10½ m. NE. Pop. with Pa.

An ancient parish now united to that of Kingussie. It is about three miles square, is intersected by the Feshie and Fromie streams, having their sources in the Grampian hills, and is bounded on the west by the river Spey, which flows through a considerable piece of water called Loch Inch, and a branch of which sometimes circumscribes the little hill upon which the church stands hence the name Inch, i. e. Island.

INCH, co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Arklow (49) 3 m. SW. Pop. 1315. †

A parish in the barony of Gorey, including the village of Coolgraney; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the vicarage of Kilgorman. It possesses a church and parsonage upon a glebe of fifty-nine acres. †

INCH, co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Taghmon (103) 7 m. SW. Pop. 966.

A parish in the barony of Shemalier; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Ferns and archdiocese of Dublin, forming a part of the union of Horetown.

INCH, shire of Wigtown, S.

P. T. Stranraer (126) 2½ m. E. Pop. 2386.

A parish, about nine miles square, including the fishing village of Cairn, and occupying the greater part of the isthmus formed by the bays of Luce and Ryan. Towards the east is a fine range of verdant hills which extends the entire length of the district, and is chiefly appropriated to pasturage. It contains numerous lakes well stocked with various kinds of fish; and on an island in the centre of one of these are the ruins of Castle Kennedy, once the seat of the Cassil family, but destroyed by an accidental fire in 1715. In the lake adjoining is another island upon which are the remains of a monastic building. The living is in the presbytery of Stranraer and synod of Galloway; patron, the Crown. Near the village of Cairn is a spring strongly impregnated with sulphur, and efficacious in scorbutic and stomachic complaints.

INCH BRAYOCK, shire of Forfar, S.

A small island in the parish of Craig, lying in the river South Esk, and joined to the mainland on each side by a bridge on the high road between Arbroath and Montrose, on which line a spacious street has been recently formed through the island, and commodious docks for building and repairing ships have been constructed. The principal burial-place of the parish is here.

INCH CAILLOCH, shire of Stirling, S.

Pop. with Pa.

An island in Loch Lomond, forming part of the parish of Buchanan. It is about one mile long, is considerably elevated above the level of the water, and finely wooded. The name, signifying the Island of the Old Women, is derived from its ancient nunnery. The parish church stood here till 1621, but having gone to decay, and the parishioners finding it inconvenient to cross the lake, particularly in stormy weather, it was not rebuilt; they have ever since attended the chapel of Buchanan.

INCH-COLM, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Aberdour (8) 1 m. S. Pop. with Pa.

A small island in the Firth of Forth, and parish of Aberdour, upon which there is a fort erected at the public expense for the protection of the Channel. Here are considerable remains of a sumptuous monastery of Augustin canons, founded in 1123, by Alexander I. and dedicated to St. Columba. It was most richly endowed, and remarkable for its wealth, which in the time of Edward III. fell a prey to the English fleet lying in the Forth. The Earl of Moray, the present proprietor, derives the title of Lord of St. Colm from this place.

INCH CRUIN, shire of Stirling, S.

Pop. with Pa.

An island in Loch Lomond, forming part of the parish of Buchanan. It is about three quarters of a mile long, and is appropriated to the growth of corn and pasturage. This is an asylum for lunatics.

NCHEGEELAH, or INCHIGEELAGH, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Macroom (101) 9 m. SW. Pop. 169.
Fairs, May 31, and Dec. 3.

A village in the parish of Eveleary, or Inch-geelagh and barony of Muskerry, situated upon the river Lee, near to the Lakes of Allua and Gougane Barra, in the heart of a romantic and mountainous district.

INCH FAEL, shire of Stirling, S.

Pop. with Pa.

An island in Loch Lomond, forming part of the parish of Buchanan. It is inhabited, and chiefly consists of good arable and pasture lands.

INCH GALBRAITH, shire of Stirling, S.

An island in Loch Lomond, forming part of the parish of Buchanan. Here are the ruins of the ancient castle of the Galbraiths.

INCH GARVIE, shire of Fife, S.

Pop. with Pa.

A small island in the parish of Inverkeithing and district of Dunfermline. It lies in the Firth of Forth, about midway across Queen's-ferry, and has a Fort, mounting four pieces of heavy ordnance, with a small detachment of artillerymen for the defence of the passage. In 1779, on the appearance of the celebrated Paul Jones off this coast, the fortifications underwent a thorough repair.

INCHICRONANE, co. Clare, Munster, I.

P. T. Ennis (142) 6 m. NE. Pop. 4173.

A parish in the barony of Bunratty; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Killaloe and archdiocese of Cashel, being a part of the corps of the prebend of Dysert, and yielding, by commutation for tithes, 133*l*. 0*s*. 7*d*.

INCHIOLOGHAN, or CASTLEINCH, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Kilkenny (75) 2½ m. SW. Pop. 1103.

A parish in the barony of Shillelogher; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the vicarage of Tullohanbrogue and prebend of Outrath, forming thereby the corps of the chancellorship of the diocese. This parish possesses a church, a glebe-house, and fifty-three acres of glebe. Lady Cuffe supports a school here of forty-nine children.

INCHINABRACKY, or ROCKSBO-ROUGH, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Castle Martyr (104) 4 m. NW. Pop. 215.

A parish in the barony of Barrymore; living, a rectory in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel, and one of the parishes, forming the union of Templecar-rigg and corps of the treasureship of Cloyne. The church is situated at Middleton.

INCH-INNAN, shire of Renfrew, S. ?

P. T. Renfrew (40) 1½ m. W b N. Pop. 582.

A parish three miles in length, half as much in breadth, and intersected by the high-road between Glasgow and Greenock, which crosses the rivers Gryfe and White Cart, by an elegant and substantial bridge of ten arches. It is also watered by the Clyde, on the banks of which the soil is particularly fertile, and was once graced by the ancient castle of the Dukes of Lennox. North Barr, a fine old mansion, formerly the residence of the Lord Templell, is in this parish. Living, in the presbytery of Paisley and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, Archibald Campbell, Esq.

INCHQUIN, co. Clare, Munster, I.

Pop. 16,165.

One of the inland baronies of the county, containing 48,595 acres, seven parishes, the town of Corofin, and the village of Coolnahana. The eastern portion is a level, calcareous, and rather light soil; the western, for the most part moory and hilly, but having many valleys of great fertility. The proximity of limestone renders the reclamation of the whole a work of no great difficulty. It is watered by the lakes of Inchiquin, an area of 300 acres, Tedano, and a chain of pools of less magnitude, connected together by subterranean channels. This barony, anciently called Tullogh I' Dea, was granted to the baron of Inchiquin, in the year 1585, by Queen Elizabeth; and the noble family of O'Brien, descended from the famous Brian Boromhe, Monarch of Ireland, now derive title of Earl from this place. Here is also an ancient castle belonging to the family.

INCH-ISLAND, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

P. T. Buncrana (164) 3 m. SE. Pop. 1094.

An island in the parish of the same name and barony of Ennistwen, situated in the inlet called Lough Swilly, and separated by a deep and narrow channel from Ramullen. It is of a conical shape, rather fertile, contains one small village, and a fortified barrack, constantly garrisoned. There is a good roadstead to the north of the island, where vessels bound to Letterkenny and Rametton drop anchor; and a valuable bed of oysters close to the shore. The living is a chapelry in the diocese of Derry and archdiocese of Armagh, in charge to the rectory of Templemore.

INCH-ISLAND, or INIS-COURCEY, co. Down, Ulster, I.

A peninsula, improperly styled Inch or Inis, stretching into Lough Strangford, from the barony of Lecale. In the year 1180, John de Courcy founded an abbey here for monks of the Cistercian order, in lieu of the abbey of Erynagh, which he had destroyed. He supplied it with monks from Furness, in Lancashire, and endowed it with the possession of Erynagh. Part of the abbey still remains. On the same peninsula stands the ruins of a church, wherein may be seen a monument to the memory of Sir James Melville, a Scottish knight, supposed to be a descendant of the secretary to Queen Mary.

INCH-ISLAND, or ORLEAN-IONA-INIS, co. Leitrim, Connaught, I.

A small island situated at the entrance of the Shannon river into Lough Allen. Here are the remains of a religious edifice, erected by St. Beorg, and the cemetery adjoining it is a favourite place of burial.

INCH-KEITH, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Dumfermline (104) 12 m. SE. Pop. with Pa.

A small rocky island belonging to the parish of Kinghorn in the district of Dunfermline. It lies about midchannel, in the Firth of Forth, and in 1549 was taken possession of by the English, who fortified it, though, after a gallant defence, the garrison was compelled by the Scots to evacuate it. On the summit of the rock is a spring of remarkably pure water, also an excellent lighthouse, recently erected. The French termed it L'Isle des Chevaux, from its property of fattening horses, but it is now occupied only as pasture for cows, and particular breeds of sheep, belonging to the British Wool Society.

INCH KENNETH, shire of Argyll, S.

P. T. Arus (150) 12 m. SW b W. Pop. with Pa.

An island of the Hebrides, in the parish of Kilfinichen and district of Mull. It is one mile long and half a mile broad, covered with verdure, and fit for pasture and tillage. Its only inhabitants are the chieftain of the great clan Maclean, his family, and domestics. Here are traces of a monastic establishment or college, once subject to that of

I-Colm-Kill, of which the ancient chapel still remains, except its roof, having on one side of the altar a bas-relief of the Virgin Mary, and near it a small bell, relics protected only by the sacred influence of the venerable building itself. The cemetery is covered with grave-stones of the Macleans, and continues to be the burial-place of their descendants. Around the coast are beds of delicious oysters, with various specimens of beautiful marine shells; and on the neighbouring little island, Sandilands, there was formerly a hermitage.

INCH-KENNY, or INIS-KENNY, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Cork (106) 5 m. W. Pop. 1074.

A parish in the county of the city of Cork; living, a rectory in the diocese of Cork and archdiocese of Cashel; forming the corps of a prebend; valued, by commutation for tithes, at 369*l.* 4*s.* 7*d.* per annum. It possesses a church, but wants a residence for the rector, as well as a glebe.

INCH-MARNOC, shire of Bute, S.

A beautiful little island, lying on the south-west side of the isle of Bute, and exhibiting vast strata of coral and shells. Here are the ruins of a chapel, said to have belonged to a monastery dedicated to St. Marnoc.

INCH MURIN, shire of Stirling, S.

An island, said to be the largest in Loch Lomond. It is extra-parochial, but the inhabitants are allowed church privileges, when requisite, at Buchanan. It is two miles in length by one in breadth, is well wooded, and kept as a deer park by its proprietor, the Duke of Montrose, who in 1793 erected a convenient hunting-seat, with proper offices, at present occupied by the forester and his family. Here are the ruins of a castle of the ancient Earls of Lennox.

INCHTURE, shire of Perth, S.

Edinburgh 40½ m. N. Dundee 9 m. W b S. Pop. 585.

A post-town and parish on the great road from Perth to Dundee; the parish, which is four miles in length and three in breadth, is remarkable for the richness of its soil and the high state of cultivation into which it has been brought; and contains also the villages of Balledyarne and Polgavie, the latter having a good harbour and pier on the river Tay. The living is in the presbytery of Dundee and synod of Angus and Mearns; patron, the Crown. The beautiful grounds of Drimmie House, the seat of Lord Kinnaird, are partly in this parish, adjacent to which are the ruins of the ancient castle of Moncur, forming, with the surrounding plantations, a most pleasing object. At the foot of the eminence that skirts the northern boundary of the Carse of Gowrie, is Balindean, the delightful residence of Sir John Wedderburn, Bart.

INCHYCRONANE, co. Clare, Munster, I.

P. T. Ennis (142) 6 m. N.

An island, encompassed by a rivulet, in the barony of Bunratty. Donald O'Brien, King of Limerick, founded an abbey here for canons regular, in the year 1190.

INCHYRA, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Perth (40½) 5 m. S.E. Pop. with Pa.

A small village in the parish of Kinnoull, though situated in a disjoined district. It possesses a good harbour on the eastern side of the Tay, which affords shelter for vessels of considerable tonnage.

INGATESTONE, co. Essex.

London 23 m. NE b E. Pop. 747. Market disused. Fair, Dec. 1, for cattle of all sorts.

A small market-town and parish in the hundred of Chelmsford, situated on the main road from London to Colchester and Harwich. The town consists chiefly of one street, a part of which extends into the parish of Frierning; and being a great thoroughfare, it contains a considerable number of inns for the accommodation of travellers. The name of this place is from the Saxon Ing atte Stone, or the Meadow ad Lapidem, i. e. at the military stone; and in some old records it is called Ging, or Yng ad Petram. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; patron (1829) R. W. Lewis, Esq. The church, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, consists of a nave, aisles, and chancel, with a lofty brick embattled tower at the west end. On the north side of the chancel is a sepulchral chapel, containing several elaborate monuments belonging to the noble family of Petrie. Here is an almshouse for seven women and three men, founded in 1557 by Sir W. Petrie, and endowed with considerable landed property.

ING-BIRCHWORTH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnsley (172) 9 m. W b S. Pop. 307.

A township in the parish of Penniston and upper division of the wapentake of Staincross.

INGERSBY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (90) 6½ m. E. Pop. 14.

A hamlet in the parish of Hungeston and hundred of Gartree.

INGERTHORPE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Rippon (312) 4 m. SSW. Pop. 44.

A township in the parish of Rippon, and within the liberty of Rippon.

INGESTREY, co. Stafford.

P. T. Stafford (141) 4 m. ENE. Pop. 125.

A parish in the south division of the hundred of Pirehill; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 10*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Earl Talbot.

INGHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 8 m. NNW. Pop. 267.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Aslaoce, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B.

6l. 13s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 70l.; patron (1829) Cr. Neville, Esq.

INGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. North Walsham (123) 7½ m. ESE. Pop. 418.

A parish in the hundred of Happing; living, a dis. curacy in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; certified value 50l.; ann. val. P. R. 50l. The church, which is dedicated to the Holy Trinity, contains several ancient and beautiful monuments; patron, the King by lapse.

INGHAM, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmund's (71) 5 m. N b W. Pop. 185.

A parish in the hundred of Blackbourn; living, a rectory with that of Culford and Timworth, in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 12l. 16s. 0½d.; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patronage with Culford and Timworth rectory.

INGLEBY, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 7 m. S b W. Pop. 141.

A township in the parish of Foremark and hundred of Repton and Gresley.

INGLEBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (123) 6 m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Saxilby and west division of the wapentake of Lawres, parts of Lindsey.

INGLEBY, ARNCLIFFE, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Stokesley (237) 7½ m. SW b W. Pop. 331.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Arncliffe and west division of the liberty of Langbaugh; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; certified value 6l.; ann. val. P. R. 39l.; patron (1829) Bryan Abbs, Esq.

INGLEBY BERWICK, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Yarm (237) 3 m. NE. Pop. 175.

A township in the parish of Stainton, west division of the liberty of Langbaugh.

INGLEBY GREENHOW, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Stokesley (237) 4½ m. ESE. Pop. of Pa. 347. Of To. 158.

A parish and township in the west division of the liberty of Langbaugh; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York; certified value 13l. 13s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 60l. 15s.; patron (1829) Sir Wm. Foulis, Bart.

INGLESHAM, co. Wilts.

P. T. Highworth (77) 3 m. N. Pop. 129.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Faringdon, county Berks, and partly in the hundred of Highworth Cricklade and Staple, county of Wilts; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 8l.; patron, the Bishop of Salisbury.

INGLETON, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Barnard Castle (246) 8½ m. E. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Staindrop and south-west division of Darlington ward.

INGLETON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Settle (235) 10½ m. N. W. Pop. 1302.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Bentham and west division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewecross, pleasantly situated near the junction of two rivers; its collieries nearly supply the country around with coals, but the inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of cotton yarn. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value of 20l.; ann. val. P. R. 116l.; patron, the Vicar of Bentham. Here are several of those celebrated natural curiosities, the Caves of Craven; about four miles north of the town is Gingle Pot, ten yards across, and about twenty deep; and one hundred and fifty yards further is Hurtle Pot, about forty yards in diameter, and forty feet in depth; round this abyss the branches of several trees almost meet in the centre, and shed, by their gloomy foliage, additional horror on the yawning gulf; at the bottom is a deep lake, in which are several large black trout; in great floods both these pots run over. At a short distance is Weathercoat Cave, perhaps the most surprising natural curiosity in Great Britain; it is situated in a low field, where such a phenomenon would not be expected, and is about one hundred feet deep, sixty yards long, and thirty broad, and divided into two parts by a rude and grotesque arch of limestone-rock; at the south end is an entrance down into this abyss, where the astonished visitant sees a cataract issuing from an immense aperture in the rock, and falling twenty-five yards in an unbroken sheet, and with a deafening noise, disappears amongst the rocks at the bottom, and running about a mile through a subterraneous passage, again emerges; the cave is filled with the spray of the dashing water, which sometimes produces a small rainbow of surprising brilliancy. One of the most astonishing features of the scene is a stone of enormous magnitude, suspended by its opposite angles, touching the sides of a crevice, over the orifice, whence the cataract issues. About a mile to the south is Dank Cave, resembling Weathercoat, on a smaller scale, its stream not falling more than eight or nine yards.

INGLISTON, shire of Edinburgh, S.

Edinburgh 7½ m. WSW. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Kirkliston.

INGLISTOWN, shire of Peebles, S.

P. T. Linton (164) 4 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Linton, where there was formerly a chapel, dedicated to the Virgin Mary.

INGOE, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (374) 3 m. NW b W. Pop. 230.

A township in the parish of Stamfordham and north-east division of Tindale ward.

INGOL, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Preston (217) 3 m. NW b N.
Pop. with Lea Ashton and Cottam, 656.

A township in the parish of Preston and hundred of Amounderness.

INGOLDMELLS, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Alford (141) 8 m. ESE. Pop. 155.

A parish in the Marsh division of the wapentake of Candleshoe, parts of Lindsey living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 23l. 10s. 2½d.; ann. val. P. R. 65l.; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patroness (1829) Miss Hutton.

INGOLDSBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Corby (105) 4 m. N. Pop. 360.

A parish in the wapentake of Aswardhurn living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 21l. 6s. 10½d.; church ded. to St. Andrew patron, Christ's College, Cambridge. Here is a circular encampment, which comprehends an area of about 500 feet in diameter.

INGOLDESTHORPE, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Castle Rising (100) 5 m. NNE.
Pop. 247.

A parish in the hundred of Smithdon; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 12l.; church ded. to St. Michael patron (1829) the Rev. Lovick Cooper.

INGRAM, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Wooler (320) 9½ m. S b E.
Pop. of Pa. 228. Of To. 74, with Linop and Greensidehill townships.

A parish and township in the north division of Coquetdale ward; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northumberland and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 24l. 16s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Michael patron (1829) J. P. Selby, Esq.

INGRAVE, or GING-RALPH, co. Essex.

P. T. Brentwood (18) 2 m. ESE. Pop. 427.

A parish in the hundred of Barnstable living, a rectory with that of West Horn don, in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 7l. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) the Rev. T. Newman, sen.

INGS-IN-HUGILL, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kendal (202) 6½ m. NW.
Pop. with Hugill.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Kirkby in Kendal, Kendal ward; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 6l. 10s.; ann. val. P. R. 70l.; patrons, the Landowners.

INGWORTH, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Aylesham (118) 2 m. N. Pop. 161.

A parish in the hundred of South Erpingham; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5l.; ann. val. P. R. 120l.; church ded. to St. Laurence; patron (1829) W. Windham.

INIS-BEG, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

An island off the barony of Kilmacrenan, TOROE, Dicr.—Vol. II.

Inis-beg, signifies the little island, and is applied to many in different parts of Ireland. There is one so called off the barony of Corkaguiney, in the county of Kerry; a second off the barony of Carbery, in the county of Cork; a third off the coast of Wexford, where a church was founded in the early ages, and placed under the care of Erdicus and of Augustin.

INISBOFIN, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

P. T. Dunfanaghy (174) m. Pop. 252.

An island in the parish of Tullaghmaghly, and off the barony of Kilmacrenan, situated on the Atlantic Ocean, due south of Tory Island, and west of Horn-Head. It is tolerably fertile, and manured by the saline deposit from the spray wafted across it by the storms.

INISBOFIN, co. Longford, Leinster, I.

An island off the barony of Rathcline, situated in Lough Ree, an expansion of the Shannon river. St. Rioch, the son of Damerca, sister of St. Patrick, founded an abbey here, of which he was himself the first abbot, sometime in the sixth century. The Danes plundered this place, A. D. 1089.

INISCALTRA, or INNISCALTRA, co. Clare, Munster, I.

P. T. Killaloe (110) 9 m. NW. Pop. 1685.

An island and parish off the baronies of Tulla and Leitrim, the latter being in Galway county, situated in the Bay of Scariff, an expansion of the river Shannon; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Killaloe and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the vicarages of Moynoe and Clonrush, and possessing a church and parsonage. A school of sixty boys and forty-two girls is supported here by the Dublin Association. Here are the ruins of seven churches, and of an ancient pillar-tower.

INISCARAGH, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

Pop. 47.

A small island in the parish of Templecroan, off the barony of Boyleagh.

INISCARRA, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Cork (166) 5½ m. SW.
Pop. with Malthy.

A parish in the barony of Barretts, situated upon the river Lee; living, a prebend and rectory in the diocese of Cloyne and archdiocese of Cashel; valued, by commutation for tithes, 636l. 5s. 9d.; and possessing a church, with a parsonage-house upon a glebe of twenty-four acres. It is united to the rectory and vicarage of Malthy. There was a charter-school founded here in 1760, and endowed with a grant of land by Sir J. C. Colthert, Bart. St. Senanus, of Scattery Island, built an abbey here, and placed eight of his disciples over it.

NISCATHY, or INNISCATHRIE, or NISCATRY, or SCATRY, or SCATTERY ISLAND, co. Clare, Munster, I.

P. T. Kilrush (177) 3 m. SW. Pop. 35.

A parish in the barony of Moyarta. The island is small, but picturesque and fertile, situated at the mouth of the noble river Shannon, between the counties of Clare and Kerry. The living is a prebend in the diocese of Killaloe and archdiocese of Cashel (see Kilrush). About the year 534, St. Senan, the son of Ercan, a Christian prince, and a native of Corco-baskind, a district in the west of Thomond, founded an abbey here. He erected eleven churches and many cells here for his monks; and one of his rules was, that no female should be permitted to land upon the island. This singular regulation gave occasion to the beautiful ballad of "St. Senanus and the Lady," in Moore's Irish Melodies. Considerable ruins of the cells and churches still remain. Here is also an ancient pillar-tower, 120 feet in height, which has been split by lightning from top to bottom. The festival of the patron saint is regularly observed around the holy well, upon the eighth day of March, and pilgrims continue to visit the islands at all periods of the year. Scattery was an ancient bishopric, and united to the see of Limerick, in 1190. St. Senan's monument is still shown; and in the gable of Kilrush is a large stone upon which some figures are engraven, said to represent the saint in the act of destroying a monster which infested the island. The beautiful form of the island, the singular appearance of the lofty solitary tower, and the ruinous semblage of ancient edifices, constitutes it once an object of deep interest and matchless beauty, when viewed from the surface of the great estuary on which it reposes.

INIS-CHONNEL, shire of Argyll, S.

An island in Loch Awe, forming part of the parish of Kilchrenan, in the district of Lorn. It is a beautifully romantic spot, surrounded by numerous other small islands, but most remarkable for the stately and ivy-clad ruins of its ancient castle, formerly the chief residence of the illustrious family of Argyll.

INISCLOGHRAN, or INISCLOTHRAN, STONEY-ISLE, co. Longford, Leinster, I.

An island off the barony of Rathcline, situated in an expansion of the river Shannon, called Lough Ree. St. Diarmid, a contemporary of St. Senan, and descended from the illustrious house of Hy-fiachri, in Connaught, founded an abbey here about the year 540. Dr. Lannigan is of opinion that he was not the author of the prayers and Litanies generally attributed to him.

INISDONEY, or INCHIDONEY, co. Fermagh, Ulster, I.

An island, whose area measures about twenty-four acres, off the barony of Tyrkenedy, and situated in the lower division of Lough Erne. It is uninhabited.

INISFALLEN, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

P. T. Killarney (224) m. One family resides here.

An island, containing about nineteen acres of land, in the parish of Killarney and the barony of Magienihy. It is remarkable for affording an infinite variety of agreeable and picturesque scenes and views, amidst its undulating lawns and shady groves, and along its pebbly and shelving strand. The soil is remarkably fertile, and rests upon a limestone base, the formation of the island. The growth of the various shrubs and trees, all planted by nature, is most luxuriant, and its position, in the spacious and beautiful lower lake of Killarney, most happy. Near the close of the sixth century, a monastery was founded here by St. Finian, the Leper, son of Alild, King of Munster, and a disciple of St. Brendan. The inhabitants of the surrounding county were in the habit of depositing their treasures in the abbey of Inisfallen, for safe keeping; but this practice led to the destruction of the abbey and massacre of the monks, by the M'Carthy's, in the year 1180. Malduin O'Donaghoe, the chief actor in this tragedy, carried away the accumulated treasures. The annals of Inisfallen are esteemed of much value in the illustration of Irish history. The ruins of the abbey are insignificant; but there is a little chapel, or oratory, now converted into a banqueting-room for visitors, the door-way of which presents a beautiful specimen of the ornamental Saxon style.

INISFREE, or INNISFREE, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

Pop. 171.

An island in the parish of Templecroan and barony of Boyleagh. See Templecroan.

INISFREE, or INIS-GLORIA, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

Pop. 7.

An island in the parish of Kilmore, off the barony of Erris, situated in the Atlantic Ocean, at the entrance of Broad Harbour in the Mullet.

INISGOULA, or INISGOWLEY, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

Pop. 42.

An island in the parish of Kilmina, off the barony of Burrishoole, situated in Clew Bay.

INISHAIL, shire of Argyll, S.

Pop. with Glenorchy.

A beautiful and picturesque island in Loch Awe, formerly a distinct parish, but now united to that of Glenorchy, in the district of Lorn. Here are the remains of a Cistercian nunnery, and the ruins of its ancient chapel, which, until 1736, was used as the parish church; but another having been erected at Inis-Drynich, opposite to the island, on the road between Dalmally and Inverary, the inhabitants usually resort thither.

INISHANNON, or INISHONAN, co. Cork, Munster, I.

Dublin 182 m. SW. Pop. of Pa. 3653.

Of To. 636. Fairs, May 20, and Oct. 23.

A post and fair-town in the parish of Inishonan, which latter is partly in Carbery and partly in Kinnalea baronies. The town is in that part of the parish which is in Kinnalea barony, and situated upon the river Bandon, which is navigable by small vessels from Kinsale. It is more remarkable for the beauty of its position than for its opulence or magnitude. It possesses many good houses, enjoys some share of the linen manufacture, besides that of cottons and dainties; it is encompassed by gentlemen's seats, and owes much of its beauty and all of its manufacturing importance to the late Thomas Adderly, Esq. The living is a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Cork and archdiocese of Cashel; valued at 632*l.* 6*s.* 11*d.* per annum, by commutation for tithes. It possesses a church, with a glebe of one acre; patron, the King, during the incapacity of T. Rochfort, Esq. A charter-school, for forty boys, was established here in 1752, and endowed by Mr. Adderly; it now consists of but twenty-six scholars.

INISHARK, or SARK, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

Pop. 180.

One of the inhabited islands in the parish of Kilgener, off the barony of Morisk, near the entrance to Killeeny Harbour.

INISHEGIL, or INISBIGLE, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

Pop. 54.

An island in the parish of Kilcommon, off the barony of Erris, situated in Bullan Bay.

INISHERK, co. Galway, Connaught, I.

Pop. 32.

A small island in the parish of Kilcummin, and off the barony of Moycullen.

INISHERKIN, or SHERKIN, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Bandon (186) m. Pop. 1053.

A large and populous island in the parish of Tullagh and barony of Carbery, situated between Clare Island and Baltimore Bay. In the year 1460 Houme O'Driscoll founded a monastery here for Franciscan Friars; others attribute its foundation to Dermot O'Driscoll, and date its erection ten years later. The citizens of Waterford despoiled this island in the year 1537, and demolished the villages, the castle, and the mill.

INISHOWEN, or ENNISHOWEN, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

Pop. 48,147.

A barony of a peninsular form, connected to the mainland by an isthmus, four miles in breadth, which it is intended to cut through, and thereby unite the salt-water loughs of Foyle and Swilly. The surface of the barony is mountainous, but produces good crops of oats and barley; and before the improved system of revenue police was established, the greatest share of the grain was consumed in illicit distillation. The superficial contents of this peninsula amount to 150,000 acres, and it contains twelve parishes, besides two villages and the post-town of Buncrana; chief proprietors, the Marquis of Donegal and the Bishop of Derry.

INISKTRAVA, co. Galway, Connaught, I.

Pop. 38.

An island in the parish of Moyrus, off the barony of Ballynahinch.

INISKEA, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

Pop. of North 157. Of South 19.

Two islands, one containing 140 acres, the other only nineteen, in the parish of Kilmore, and off the barony of Erris.

INISKEEL, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

Pop. 5.

An island in the parish of Iniskeel, off the barony of Boyleagh. The festival of St. Connald, who was slain by pirates at this place in 1590, is observed here on the 12th of March.

INISKEEL, or NAIRN, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

Dublin 173 m. NW. Pop. 7223.

A parish in the barony of Boyleagh; situated upon the sea-coast; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Raphoe and archdiocese of Armagh, possessing a church, with a parsonage upon a glebe of sixty-four acres.

INISKEEN, or INISKEAN, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Dunmanway (203) m. E. Pop. with Pa-

A village, having a good market, in the parish of Kinnagh and barony of Carbery, situated upon the Bandon river. At Kinnagh is a pillar tower, seventy feet in height, the basement story of which is of an hexagonal form.

INISKEEN, co. Monaghan, Ulster, I.

P. T. Carrickmacross (56) m.

Pop. not specified.

A parish in the barony of Donaghmoyne, situated upon the Fane river; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Clogher and archdiocese of Armagh; valued, by commutation for tithes, at 417*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.*; and possessing both church and glebe-house.

INISKELTAIR. See Iniscaltra.

INISKERRY, or ENNISKERRY, co. Clare, Munster, I.

Pop. 17.

An island belonging to the parish of Kilmurry and barony of Ibrichane. The inhabitants are supported by the fishery on the coast, and by the gathering and sale of kelp. It is also called Mutton Island. (See Kilmurry.)

INISKERRY. See Enniskerry.

INISKILLEN. See Enniskillen.

INISLACKEN, co. Galway, Connaught, I.

P. T. Clifden (184) m. Pop. 122.

An island belonging to the parish of Moyrus and barony of Ballynahinch. Gathering of kelp and the deep sea fishery occupy the population.

INISLEAGUE, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

P. T. Newport (177) m. W. Pop. 13.

A small island attached to Kilinina parish, off the barony of Burrishoole, situated in Clew Bay.

INISLIRE, or INISLYER, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

P. T. Newport (177) m. W. Pop. 44.

One of the three hundred islands in Clew Bay. It belongs to the parish of Kilmina and barony of Burrishoole, and contains seven habitations.

INISLOUGH, or INISLOUNAGH, or INISLONAGHTY, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Clonmel (123) 3 m. SW. Pop. 1550.

A parish in the barony of Iffa and Offa, situated on the banks of the river Suir; living, a rectory entire in the diocese of Lismore and archdiocese of Cashel; producing, by commutation for tithes, 576*l.* 18*s.* 5½*d.*; possessing a church, but neither parsonage nor glebe. It is united to the rectory of Monksland. St. Mochoemoc founded an abbey here; he died the 13th of March, 655. The building is said to have possessed singular beauty, and to have contained a chapel, which was consecrated by St. Patrick. There is a holy well here, which has the reputation of having wrought miraculous cures. The learned Nicholas Fagan, abbot of Inislough, promoted by the pope to the see of Waterford, was interred here in 1617.

INISMACSAINT. See Ennismacsaint.

INISMAIN. See Arranmore.

INISMAKEERAGH, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

Pop. 47.

An island in the parish of Templecroan and off the barony of Boyleagh. See Templecroan.

INISMOOTHY, or INISMOUTHY, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Ardre (43) 5 m. W b S. Pop. 382.

A parish in the barony of Lower Slane; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh. It does not possess either church or glebe. •

INISMORE, co. Sligo, Connaught, I.

An island in the parish of Calry and barony of Carbery. It is two miles in length by about one in breadth, was formerly called the Church Island, and is situated in the beautiful and romantic piece of water, called Lough Gill. Here are the ruins of a church, founded by St. Loman, the contemporary of St. Columb. In 1416 the old church was destroyed by fire, and the MSS. of O'Curran, together with the short book of that family, consumed. The holy well here is visited on the patron day by pilgrims. This was formerly the burial-place of Calry parish. In a rock near the church-door is a cavity called "Our Lady's Bed," which is said to possess the miraculous property of saving from the perils of child-birth, those females, who, in a state of pregnancy, turn round twice within it, and repeat at the same time appropriate prayers. The ruins of the church are remarkably picturesque.

INISMURRY, or ENNISMURRY, co. Sligo, Connaught, I.

P. T. Sligo (132) m. N b W. Pop. 61.

An island in the parish of Ahamplish and off the barony of Carbery, situated in the Atlantic Ocean, five miles westward of Mullaghmore Harbour. The area of the surface is 110 acres; it is occupied by persons all related to each other and bearing the same name; they submit their disputes to the oldest man upon the island. Here are a stone-roofed chapel, dedicated to Molassius, the patron saint, and ruins of several cells and stations for the performance of pilgrimage and penance. The approach to the shore is difficult, and escape from it sometimes impossible for months at a time, owing to the exposed position of the only boat harbour. The inhabitants are vain of the sanctity of their island, and detail numerous traditions of the miraculous efficacy of a wooden figure preserved here. Lord Palmerston is the proprietor of this interesting and curious place. There are three places of burial here, one for drowned persons and unbaptized children, a second for males, and a third for females of the island inhabitants.

INISTIÖGE, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

Dublin 80 m. S b W. Pop. of Pa. 2427. Of To. 976. Fairs, June 9 and 13, and Oct. 14.

A post, market, and fair town, in the parish of the same name and barony of Gowran, picturesquely situated upon the banks of the river Nore, which is here overhung by the noble woods of Woodstock demesne. This was anciently a borough, although a poor place, and is well situated for trade, standing at the head of the tide-water. The bridge is a beautiful piece of architecture; it consists of ten equal circular arches, the piers on the southern front are adorned with coupled Ionic pilasters, and the causeway on the top is perfectly flat; G. Smith was the architect. The living is a half rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin, possessing a church and glebe-house, and united to the rectory and vicarage of Cloneamery, constituting thereby the corps of a prebend. The salmon-fishery of the Nore gives occupation to many persons, and the females in the town are engaged in lace-making. Besides the public charity-school there is a school supported by Mr. Tighe, wherein twelve boys and an equal number of girls are clothed and educated, and from which, when fit, they are apprenticed with a small fee.

INISTRAHUL, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

P. T. Carn (174) m. E. Pop. with Pa.

An island in the parish of Cloncah and off the barony of Inishowen, situated in the Atlantic Ocean, east-by-south of Malin Head. The lighthouse upon this island exhibits a bright-coloured revolving light. This light is still insufficient to prevent the entrance at Lough Swilly from being mistaken for Strabegga Harbour, an error which can only be effectually remedied by a lighthouse upon Dunaff Head.

INISTUSKAR, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

An island in the parish of Donquin and off the barony of Corkaguinney, situated in the Atlantic Ocean.

INISTURC, or INISTURK, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

P. T. Newport (177) m. W. Pop. 456.

An island in the parish of Kilgeven and off the barony of Morisk, at the entrance of Clew Bay adjacent to Clare Island; it lies nine miles from the main land, and possesses an excellent natural harbour, with a breakwater, behind which twelve vessels of 150 tons burden may shelter safely. Here stood anciently a cell of the abbey of Knockmoy.

INISTURK, co. Galway, Connaught, I.

Pop. 60.

An island in the parish of Moyrus, off the barony of Ballynahinch, situated in the Atlantic Ocean.

INKBERROW, or INTEBOROUGH, co. Worcester.

P. T. Alcester (103) 4½ m. W. Pop. 1067.

A parish in the middle division of the hundred of Oswaldslow; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 16l. 2s. 1d.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron, the Earl of Abergavenny. Here are the ruins of the abbey of Cokehill, founded in 1260 by Isabella, Countess of Warwick, who also took the veil here.

INKPEN, co. Berks.

P. T. Hungerford (64) 4 m. SE b S. Pop. 617.

A parish in the hundred of Kintbury Eagle; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 11l. 14s. 7d.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) John Butler, Esq.

INLAND COMMUNICATION.

RIVERS, CANALS, AND RAILROADS, IN GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

[The Editor is indebted for much valuable assistance in this article to the excellent quarto volume, recently published by Mr. Pricestley, intitled "Historical Account of the Rivers, Canals, and Railways, throughout Great Britain."]

The construction of navigable canals has been brought nearer to perfection in this country during the last and present centuries than in any other part of the world. Ancient history affords accounts of most magnificent plans for cutting channels across the isthmus of Corinth in Greece, and that of Suez, which separates the Mediterranean from the Red Sea. But these were mere projects which remained unexecuted, like the modern scheme for making a canal across the isthmus of Darien or Panama, which unites North and South America. In modern times works of this kind of considerable extent and importance have been carried into execution in Russia, Sweden, the Netherlands, France, and other parts of Europe; but it may be fairly asserted that in boldness of design, ingenuity and skill of execution, and general utility, the inland navigation of England is superior to that of any other country. By far the greater part of our canals have been constructed since the middle of the last century, and these will nearly all be noticed in detail in the course of this article.

In tracing the history of Inland Navigation previously to the period just mentioned, but few circumstances of peculiar interest occur. The oldest canal in England is supposed to be the Caerdyke, said to have been cut by the Romans during the time they governed this country, in order to form a communication between the rivers Nene and Witham; but some writers ascribe this work to the Danes. Alfred the Great is reported to have had a canal made at Ware in Hertfordshire, in 894, for the purpose of facilitating his military operations against the Danes; and in 1016 Canute the Dane cut a canal from the Thames near Horsely Down through Lambeth to Chelsea Reach, concerning which it is stated in the Saxon Chronicle, that "the Danes brought their ships to Greenwich and thence to London, where they sunk a deep ditch on the south side, and dragged their ships to the west side of the bridge." In the reign of Edward VI. an attempt was made to improve Sandwich Harbour, by means of a navigable cut from Sandown castle to the sea, of which, according to Smeaton, there are still some traces remaining. In 1608 Sir Hugh Myddelton commenced his noble undertaking, called the New River, which, however, was not designed as a navigable canal, and will be noticed elsewhere. Early in the last century were undertaken Kindersley and Badslade's surveys and works for improving the canals through the fen countries of Lincoln, Norfolk, Suffolk, Cambridgeshire, Hertford, and Northamptonshire. But to the magnificent undertakings of the Duke of Bridgewater, and the success which attended his schemes for making navigable communications from his collieries to Manchester and other great towns may be principally attributed the vast improvements in the art of constructing canals which have taken place in this country. Among the most celebrated engineers who have distinguished themselves by the skill and ability with which they have planned and executed works of this description may be mentioned the names of Brindley, Henshall, Smeaton, Mylne, Rennie, and Dodd; besides many others still living.

ABERDARE CANAL, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

This canal extends from the Glamorganshire canal to Ynys Cynon, about three-quarters of a mile from Aberdare, a distance of about six miles and a half; and from its termination a railroad has been formed two miles long, to the Llwydcoed Furnaces, from which branches reach to Godleys and Abernaut Furnaces. It was made under the authority of an act of Parliament, passed in 1793.

ABERDEENSHIRE, or DON AND DEE CANAL, co. Aberdeen, S.

This navigation was executed by an incorporated company, under acts of Parliament obtained in 1796, 1801, and 1809. It commences on the north bank of the Dee, in the tideway of the harbour of Aberdeen, and passing the town of Aberdeen to Wordside, continues its course by Fintray to Kintore, and joins the river Don at Inverury, near its confluence with the water of Ury. The entire length is nineteen miles; and the fall from the Don to low water-mark at Aberdeen harbour is 168 feet, by seventeen locks.

ADUR RIVER, co. Sussex.

In 1807 an act passed for improving the navigation of this river from its junction with the Baybridge Canal at Binesbridge, to its estuary at Shoreham harbour, on the English Channel, a distance of about fourteen miles.

AIRE AND CALDER NAVIGATION, W. R. co. York.

An act of Parliament for making navigable the rivers Aire and Calder was obtained in 1699, in consequence of which several improvements took place; but the increase of trade requiring greater facilities for the transmission of goods, a second act was passed in 1774, for making a canal from the Aire at or near Huddlesley to the Ouze at Ouzegate End, in the township of Selby, and for other purposes. In 1820 an act was procured for making a canal from the former line of navigation at Knottingley to the river Ouze, near Goole, with two collateral branches; which was executed by Mr. G. Leather, under the direction of the late Mr. Rennie, and opened in July 1826. Further improvements are in progress, from a survey made by Mr. Telford; a fourth act of Parliament having been passed in 1828, empowering the proprietors to borrow at interest 750,000*l*.

ALFORD CANAL, co. Lincoln.

This canal was designed by Mr. W. Tierney Clarke, and executed at the expense of about 37,000*l*., under an act of Parliament passed the 7th George IV.; and it extends five miles from Alford to the sea, near Anderby, where is a basin, harbour, and pier.

ANCHOLME RIVER NAVIGATION, co. Lincoln.

Acts of Parliament for improving the navigation of the Ancholme, from the Hummer, near Ferraby Sluice to the town of Glamford Briggs, and thence to Bishop Briggs, and for draining the adjacent lands, were passed in 1767, 1802, and 1825; and the works were carried on under the direction of the late Mr. Rennie.

ANDOVER CANAL, co. Hants.

This canal commences near Andover, and after crossing the river Anton, and passing Stockbridge, Romsey, and other places, enters the tideway of Southampton Water at Redbridge; having a fall of 176½ feet in a course of about twenty-two miles. It was constructed under the authority of an act of Parliament of the 29th George III.; the engineer was Mr. Robert Whitworth.

ARUN RIVER NAVIGATION, co. Sussex.

In 1785, an act of Parliament was passed for improving the navigation of the Arun from Houghton Bridge to New Bridge, in the parish of Pulborough, whence a canal has been cut parallel with the Arun to Pallenham Wharf, where the river itself becomes navigable; and another canal extends from Greatham Bridge to New Bridge, which shortens the distance arising from the windings of the river. The entire length of this navigation is thirteen miles; but to the sea at Arundel Port is twenty-six miles, there being a good tideway navigation, free of toll, from Houghton Bridge to Arundel; and acts were passed in 1732 and 1793, for erecting piers and making other improvements in the harbour of Littlehampton, or Arundel Port, including the cutting of a new channel through the sea beach.

ASHBY-DE-LA-ZOUCH CANAL, cos. Warwick, Derby, and Leicester.

An act of Parliament was passed in 1794, for making a canal from the Coventry Canal, three miles south of Nuneaton to Ashby-de-la-Zouch, and continuing it to the lime-works at Ticknall, in Derbyshire, and in another line to those at Cloughill, in Leicestershire. This canal crosses the Watling Street, Bosworth Field, and the river Sence, and passes through Snareston Tunnel; being twenty-six miles and a half in length, and having several railways branching from it, one extending to Ticknall, and another to Cloughill, the canal itself ending at Ashby. It was executed under the direction of Mr. Robert Whitworth, and opened in May, 1805. There is an uninterrupted level through the whole of this canal, that of Coventry, and a part of the Oxford canal to Hill Morton, a distance of seventy miles.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE CANAL, co. Lancashire.

In 1792 and 1793 acts of Parliament were obtained for making a canal from Manchester to Clayton, with a branch to Stockport, and continuing the canal from Clayton to Fairfield; whence one branch proceeds to Ashton and another to Oldham: the latter passing through a tunnel, and by an aqueduct over the river Medlock. Other acts relating to this canal were passed in 1798, 1800, and 1805. Several collateral cuts and basins have been made from wharfs, quays, and manufactories, in the town and suburbs of Manchester, and great advantages are derived from the cheapness and facility of carriage thus afforded for stone, coal, and other heavy articles. This canal forms part of a line of inland navigation between the Irish Sea and the German Ocean.

AVON RIVER, cos. Wilts. and Hants.

The Upper Avon was made navigable from Christchurch to Salisbury, under an act of Parliament, 17th Charles II.; but the works were destroyed by a flood soon after their completion; and the river is now navigable only at spring tides, and for small vessels, two miles from the sea.

AVON RIVER, cos. Warwick, Worcester, and Gloucester.

This river becomes navigable at Stratford-on-Avon, and after passing Evesham, Pershore, and other places, it falls into the Severn at Tewkesbury. The property of the tolls, &c. formerly belonged to George Perrott, Esq., but in 1793, an act of Parliament passed, vesting the navigation in trustees.

AVON AND FROME RIVERS, co. Gloucester.

The profits arising from the navigation of these rivers have long been vested in the corporation of Bristol, by grants from the crown; but several acts of Parliament, regulating their rights, have been passed in the reigns of William III., George II., and George III. Their jurisdiction on the Avon extends from Hanham Mills, south-east of Bristol, to the Severn at Kingroad, a course of fifteen miles and a half. The river formerly ran through the middle of the city, but a new channel has been cut on the south side of Bristol, while the ancient course has been converted into a floating-dock and harbour. The Frome is a small stream which enters the city on the north, and falls into the floating-dock just mentioned; the last half-mile only of its course is navigable, and this is used as a dock and harbour, the advantages of which, from the situation, are very important. In 1803 an act was passed for improving the port and harbour of Bristol, which incorporated the Mayor, burgesses, merchants, and other persons, under the style of the Bristol Dock Company, and authorized making a canal, or entrance-basin, in Rownham Mead, and other works; and an additional act was obtained in 1806, under which have been constructed a solid dam across the Avon at the Red Cliff, another between what is now the floating-dock and the new channel of the river, and a third dam across the Avon at Totterdown, besides other improvements. These works were executed under the direction of William Jessop, engineer. The Avon, from the contraction of the channel of the Severn, is subject to sudden rising of the tide, the usual height at its mouth at spring-tide being forty feet, and in November, 1813, the perpendicular rise was full fifty feet.

AVON RIVER, cos. Somerset and Gloucester.

This is the same river that visits Bristol, called the Lower Avon, to distinguish it from others of a similar name. It rises on the borders of Wiltshire, and running through the northern part of that county, by Chippenham to Bath, there becomes navigable, in its passage to Bristol, dividing the counties of Gloucester and Somerset. Acts for improving its navigation were obtained in 1712 and 1807; and in 1811 an act was passed for making a canal parallel with the Avon, from Bath to Bristol Dock, in continuation of the Kennet and Avon Canal; but the scheme was relinquished, after a large sum had been subscribed, in consequence of the Kennet and Avon Company, with whom it originated, having purchased most of the shares in the Avon navigation.

AXE RIVER, co. Somerset.

The navigation of this river, from Lower Weare, near Axbridge, to its entrance into the Bristol Channel, a distance of nine miles, was greatly improved, in consequence of an act of Parliament, passed in 1802.

BARNESLEY CANAL, W. R. co. York.

This canal extends from the river Calder, near Wakefield, to the neighbourhood of Barnsley, and thence to Barnby Bridge, in the township of Cawthorne. At Haw Park Wood is a feeder, communicating with Hiendley Reservoir, which covers 127 acres; near Burton, this canal crosses the river Dearne, by an aqueduct of five arches; and in the latter part of its course of fifteen miles, it forms a junction with the Dearne and Dove Canal. It was constructed in pursuance of an act, passed in 1793, and was opened in June, 1799. It is connected with a railroad to Silkstone, and its principal purpose was to facilitate the conveyance of coal from the extensive mines near Barnsley and Silkstone.

BARROW RIVER, cos. Kildare, Carlow, and Wexford, I.

Grants from the Irish Parliament, to the amount of 13,600*l.*, for improving the navigation of this river were made between 1753 and 1771.

BASINGSTOKE CANAL, cos. Surrey and Hants.

This canal commences from the navigable river Wey, about three miles from its junction with the Thames, and extends to Basingstoke, a distance of thirty-seven miles. After passing Odiham to Grewell, it enters Grewell Hill Tunnel, more than half a mile long; and at Aldershot is a reservoir for the supply of the canal. It was made under the authority of acts passed in 1778 and 1793.

BAYBRIDGE CANAL, co. Sussex.

This canal, made in pursuance of an act of Parliament, procured in 1825, extends from Baybridge to Binesbridge, in the parish of West Grinstead, where commences the navigation of the river Adur, with which the canal is connected.

BELFAST CANAL, co. Antrim, I.

This canal, from Belfast to Lough Neagh, forming a communication with the sea at Carrickfergus Bay, was begun several years ago, under the authority of an act of Parliament. On the line of this navigation are marble quarries, for the produce of which it will afford great facilities for exportation.

BEVERLEY BECK, E. R. co. York.

The canal, or creek, thus denominated, extends from the navigable river Hull to Beverley; and it was formerly maintained and kept in repair by the corporation of that town, by whom acts of Parliament were obtained in 1726 and 1744, for the improvement of the navigation, and to authorize the collection of tolls for the carriage of goods.

BIRMINGHAM CANAL NAVIGATIONS, cos. Warwick and Stafford.

These works were executed under the authority of various acts of Parliament, the first of which was procured in 1768, for making a cut from Birmingham to Bilstone, and thence to Autherley, to communicate with another canal between the Severn and the Trent, and for making collateral cuts to several coal-mines; and a supplementary act was obtained the following year. In 1783 was passed an act for making a canal from Rider's Green, in Staffordshire, to Broadwater Fire Engine; and another from Birmingham, to join the Coventry Canal at Fazeley, in the parish of Tamworth. The two incorporated companies of the proprietors of the Birmingham and Bilstone Canal, and Birmingham and Fazeley Canal, were united by an act passed in 1784; and the next year they procured a new act for joining the latter canal to the Trent and Mersey navigation, and for other purposes. Under the authority of subsequent acts, a communication has been opened within the town of Birmingham, between the preceding navigation and the Worcester Canal; various collateral cuts and branches have been made, and other improvements have taken place. Of the extent of the commerce carried on through this navigation, an idea may be formed from the annual amount of tonnage-rates received by the company, which in 1823 exceeded 88,000*l*.

BIRMINGHAM AND LIVERPOOL JUNCTION CANAL, cos. Stafford, Salop, and Chester.

Acts of Parliament were passed in 1826 and 1827, for making a canal from Tettenhall, about a mile from Autherley, where the Birmingham Canal joins the Staffordshire and Worcestershire Canal, to Norbury, whence a branch diverges to Newport, and communicates with the Shrewsbury Canal; and from Norbury the canal proceeds to Drayton, crossing the river Tarn, and then passing Audlem and Nantwich, joins the united navigation of the Ellesmere and Chester Canals, near Dorfold Hall. Its entire length is thirty-nine miles, with a fall of 174 feet and three quarters, by twenty-seven locks.

BLACKWATER NAVIGATION, cos. Armagh and Monaghan, I.

This river falls into Lough Neagh, and for extending a navigable line from it to the Dungannon and Tyrone collieries, grants from the Parliament, amounting to 11,000*l*., were made between 1753 and 1770. A canal, with eight locks, was constructed, extending within three miles of the collieries, but including a rise of 200 feet, to surmount which Mr. Davis Dukart, engineer, in 1776, made four water-levels, connected by three inclined planes, by which small boats were raised or lowered; but this plan was, after a short time, exchanged for a railway.

BORROWSTOWNNESS CANAL, cos. Linlithgow and Stirling, S.

Acts of Parliament were passed in 1768 and 1783, for making a canal from the river Forth, at Borrowstownness, to the Forth and Clyde Canal at Grangemouth; but after considerable sums had been expended the work was abandoned.

BOURN EAU NAVIGATION, co. Lincoln.

In 1781, an act of Parliament was procured for improving the navigation of the river called Bourn Eau, from the town of Bourn to its junction with the river Glen, at Tongue End, opening a communication with the port of Boston.

BOYNE RIVER, co. East Meath, I.

This river, which falls into the sea at Drogheda Bay, has received improvements in its navigation, for which grants, amounting to 9507*l*., were made by Parliament between 1768 and 1771. At Edenderry commences a cut, joining this river to the Grand Canal.

BRADFORD CANAL, W. R. co. York.

This canal extends from the Leeds and Liverpool Canal, near the manufacturing village of Shipley, to the town of Bradford. Its length is three miles, with a rise from the Leeds Canal of eighty-six feet and a quarter, by ten locks. It was executed under the authority of an act passed in 1771, and finished in 1774.

BRECKNOCK AND ABERGAVENNY CANAL, cos. Brecknock and Monmouth, S. W.

This canal commences in the Monmouthshire Canal, about a mile south of Pontypool, and passes by Abergavenny to Brecknock, after a course of thirty-three miles, in the last eighteen of which there is a rise of sixty-eight feet. It crosses the river Avon by an aqueduct, passes through a short tunnel, and communicates by several railways with ironworks, collieries, and limestone quarries. It was executed under acts passed in 1793 and 1804, the engineer being T. Dodford, junior.

THE DUKE OF BRIDGEWATER'S CANAL, cos. Lancashire and Cheshire.

An act of Parliament for making navigable Worsley Brook, from Worsley to the river Irwell, was obtained in 1737; but the undertakers having neglected to carry their scheme into execution, the Duke of Bridgewater, who possessed valuable coal-mines at Worsley, in 1759, procured a fresh act for a canal from Salford to Worsley and to Hollin Ferry; and in 1760, another act for carrying the canal from Worsley Mill, over the river Irwell to the town of Manchester, the line from Worsley to Hollin Ferry being abandoned. The canal from Worsley to Manchester, together with extensive subterranean works in the coal-mines of Worsley, were speedily completed; and the aqueduct over the Mersey and Irwell navigation at Barton was opened in July, 1761, as also was the line of canal to Manchester a short time after. The underground canals and tunnels at Worsley are said to be eighteen miles in length, and the expense of making them to have been 168,960*l*. In 1762 this nobleman obtained an act to extend his navigation so as to form a communication with Liverpool, by a cut from Longford Bridge, in the township of Stretford, to the river Mersey, at Hempstones in Cheshire. But an act of Parliament being procured by a company in 1766, for a canal to connect the Trent and Mersey, a clause was inserted in it, authorizing the Duke of Bridgewater to unite his canal with the Trent and Mersey Canal at Preston, instead of proceeding to the Mersey at Hempstones. The whole of this canal and other works were completed to Manchester in March, 1776. The duke, in 1766, obtained an act of Parliament for a canal to Stockport, but it was never executed; and in 1795, he was enabled, by another act, to make a cut from the Worsley navigation to Pennington, near Leigh, to which place the Leeds and Liverpool Canal Company have since extended a branch of their navigation. In order to continue the Duke of Bridgewater's Canal on one level from Manchester to Runcorn, and from Longford Bridge by Worsley to Leigh, immense embankments were requisite in consequence of the line passing over several valleys. One of these, over Stretford meadows, is 900 yards in length, seventeen feet high, and 112 wide, at its base; that at Barton aqueduct, thirty-nine feet above the Mersey and Irwell navigation is 200 yards long; and there is a vast embankment between Dunham Massey and Oughtrington Hall. These canals, except the cut to Leigh, were all executed in five years, under the direction of the celebrated Brindley, at an expense of more than 220,000*l*. The property now belongs to the Marquis of Stafford, who is reported to derive from it the immense annual income of 260,000*l*.; such is the vast extent of commercial intercourse facilitated by this navigation.

BRIDGEWATER AND TAUNTON CANAL, co. Somerset.

In 1811 an act was obtained for making a canal from the Avon below Bristol to join the Grand Western Canal near Taunton; but part of the plan was abandoned, and in 1824 a new act passed for a canal between Bridgewater and Taunton.

BRITTON CANAL, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

This canal, which is private property, extends from the river Neath, above Britton Ferry, to Swansea Harbour, in the river Tawe, a distance of four miles and a quarter. BUDE HARBOUR AND CANAL, cos. Cornwall and Devon.

An act of Parliament was passed in 1774, for making a cut from Bude Harbour to the river Tamar at Calstoke, but the project did not succeed; and in 1819, a new act was procured for improving the harbour of Bude and making a canal to the village of Thornbury, in Devonshire, with various branches, one of which extends towards Launceston.

BURE, or NORTH RIVER, co. Norfolk.

The navigation of the Bure from Coltishall to Aylsham Bridge, a distance of nine miles, was improved under the authority of an act of Parliament passed in 1773, by the erection of six locks and making short canals to avoid mills and bends of the river.

BURE, YARE, and WAVENEY RIVERS, and YARMOUTH HAVEN, co. Norfolk.

An act was passed the twenty-second of Charles II. for making navigable the rivers Brandon and Waveney; and in 1722, another act for improving the harbour of Great Yarmouth, and deepening and clearing the rivers running into it; for which purpose also additional acts were obtained in 1747, 1749, and 1772.

BURY, LOUGHOR, and LLIEDI RIVERS, cos. Glamorgan and Carmarthen, S. W.

The river Bury is a spacious estuary between the south coast of Carmarthenshire and a promontory of Glamorganshire forming its western extremity; and the Loughor and Lliedi are tributary streams. In 1813 an act was passed for improving the navigation of these rivers, which, with the canals and railroads connected with them, afford great facilities for the conveyance of coal, iron ore, and limestone, the produce of the neighbouring country.

BUTE SHIP CANAL, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

This canal extends from the south side of the town of Cardiff to the Eastern Hollows near the mouth of the river Taff, passing through some of the streets of Cardiff, in its course of about one mile and a half. It was planned by Mr. J. Green, civil engineer to the Marquis of Bute, in pursuance of an act passed in 1830; estimated expense 76,669*l*.

CAISTOR CANAL, co. Lincoln.

An act was obtained in 1793, for making this canal from the navigable river Ancholme at South Helsey, to Moortown, three miles and a half west of Caistor.

CALDER and HEBBLE NAVIGATION, W. R. co. York.

In 1758 an act was procured for extending the navigation of the river Calder to Sowerby Bridge, in the parish of Halifax, and for making the Hebble navigable from Brooksmouth to Salterhebble Bridge; and the execution of the undertaking was superintended by Mr. Smeaton. The navigation having been materially injured by a great flood in October, 1767, the proprietors obtained a new act of Parliament in 1769, and the works were subsequently repaired. This navigation extends twenty-two miles from its junction with that of the Aire and Calder to Sowerby, where it joins the Rochdale Canal. On its banks are iron and coal-works and stone-quarries, to some of which railways have been made for the convenience of carriage. In 1825, an act was passed for making a cut from this canal at Salterhebble to Bailey Hall, near Halifax, where wharfs and basins have been constructed for the benefit of commerce. The water supplying this cut is procured, by means of a drift 1170 yards long, from the basin of the canal at Salterhebble to a pit beyond the uppermost lock, from which it is raised by a steam-engine, into the head level, a height of 100 feet. The engineer, Mr. Bradley, adopted this method of obtaining a supply of water to avoid disputes with the owners of the numerous mills on the Hebble below Halifax.

CALEDONIAN CANAL, co. Inverness, S.

This magnificent canal, or rather line of canals and navigable lakes, intersects Scotland from sea to sea, extending from Inverness on the north-east to Fort William on the south-west, and passing through that valley called the Great Glen of Caledonia. Its entire length is sixty miles and a half, of which about twenty-three are artificially formed, and the remainder consists of natural lochs, or lakes; these are Loch Ness, Loch Oich, and Loch Lochy. There are on this navigation twenty-eight locks: from Clachnacarry Basin in Loch Beaully, on the east sea, it rises by seven locks to Loch Ness, from the west end of which at Fort Augustus, it rises by seven more to the summit level in Loch Oich, whence it descends by two locks to Loch Lochy, and there are twelve more between that lake and the Corpach Basin in the tideway of Loch Eil, near Fort William. This undertaking was carried on at the expense of government; Acts of Parliament for that purpose having been passed in 1803, 1804, and 1825; but the second of these secures proportionate shares of the profits to subscribers of any sum above 50*l.*, towards the completion of the works. This canal, which is fifteen feet deep, was opened in October, 1822; and the money expended on it up to the 1st of January, 1828, amounted to 977,524*l.* It was projected with a view to the advantage of the Baltic trade in timber, which has been in a great measure destroyed, a new scale of duties having diverted that branch of commerce to Canada. It however affords a passage for ships, which enables mariners to avoid the circuitous and hazardous voyage through Pentland Firth and the western Hebrides; yet the numbers of the vessels which have annually passed through it show that its safety and convenience have not been fully appreciated, the produce of the rates being far below the expenditure; however those rates were somewhat lowered in January, 1828, which reduction may eventually increase the amount of profits from this great national concern.

CAM, or GRANT RIVER, co. Cambridge.

The navigation of this river from Clayhythe Ferry to Queen's Mill, about seven miles, is managed by conservators, under acts passed in 1702 and 1813.

CAMEL RIVER, co. Cornwall.

This river has a tideway navigation of eight miles and a half, from Guinea Port, near Wade Bridge, to the sea; chiefly useful for the conveyance of tin and copper ore from the mines in its vicinity.

ANTERBURY NAVIGATION, or RIVER STOUR, co. Kent.

An act of Parliament relating to the navigation of this river was passed in the reign of Henry VIII.; and under that it was managed till 1825, when an act was procured for improving the navigation of the Stour from Canterbury to Sandwich Haven, and for making a new harbour at that port. The works proposed consist chiefly of a canal or harbour from the sea to the river Stour, two miles and a half long, and three short cuts connected with the river; together with a jetty, 1000 feet in length, at the end of the canal in the Downs.

CARLISLE CANAL, co. Cumberland.

This canal, for making which an act was obtained in 1819, extends from the east side of Carlisle to the Solway Firth, near Fisher's Cross, in the parish of Bowness, a course of eleven miles and a quarter, with a rise of twenty feet, by nine locks. Estimated expense 73,392*l.*

CARRON RIVER, co. Stirling, S.

This is a tideway navigation, of only three miles, noticed on account of its vicinity to the famous Carron iron-works.

CART RIVER, co. Renfrew, S.

An act for improving the navigation of this river from Paisley to its junction with the Clyde, passed in 1753; and in 1787, another act was procured by the magistrates and town council of Paisley, for further improving this river, and for making a navigable cut across the turnpike-road from Glasgow to Greenock.

HELMER and BLACKWATER NAVIGATION, co. Essex.

An act for making the Chelmer navigable was obtained in 1766; and another in 1793, under which the navigation was completed. Its whole length is thirteen miles and a half from Chelmsford to the tideway at Collier's Reach, including a cut which unites the rivers Chelmer and Blackwater, and a canal from the latter at Heybridge to the basin at Colliers' Reach, which was executed under the direction of Mr. John Rennie, and opened in 1796.

CHESTERFIELD CANAL, cos. Derby, York, and Nottingham.

This canal, authorized by an act passed in 1771, was planned by the celebrated Brindley, who, dying in September, 1772, it was completed by his brother-in-law, Mr. Henshall, in 1776. It commences in the tideway of the Trent, at Stockwith, Notts, and passing by East Retford and Worksop to Shire Oaks, enters Yorkshire, and then proceeds southwards through a part of Derbyshire abounding in coal, to its termination at Chesterfield, after a course of forty-six miles. It has sixty-five locks, the rise from the Trent being 335 feet to its summit level at Harthill, where it passes through a tunnel, 2850 yards long; and near Gringley Beacon is another tunnel, 153 yards in length. In 1789 the whole cost of this undertaking was about 152,400*l.*; but it has been highly profitable, as the proprietors, sixteen years after that period, received dividends of six per cent., and the profits have been progressively increasing.

CLYDE RIVER, cos. Lanark, Renfrew, and Dumbarton, S.

This river, originally navigable at high water, spring tides, as far as Glasgow, has undergone various improvements, in consequence of several acts of Parliament between 1759 and 1825, under which bridges have been erected; the harbour of Glasgow has been enlarged, and other works for the benefit of that great commercial city have been executed.

COLNE RIVER, co. Essex.

As early as 1623, an act passed for repairing and maintaining the haven, river, and channel of Colchester; and in 1698, another for making navigable the channel from the Hythe at Colchester to Wivenhoe, on the coast, where there is a dockyard for frigates and merchantmen. Four subsequent acts for the improvement of this part of the navigation have since been obtained, the last in 1781. The chief imports by this river are coal, deals, and groceries; and the exports, agricultural produce and Colchester oysters.

CONWAY RIVER, cos. Denbigh and Carnarvon, N. W.

This is a tideway navigation, about thirteen miles in length, with an harbour at the mouth of the river for vessels of small burden.

COOMBE HILL CANAL, co. Gloucester.

This canal, for making which an act passed in 1792, extends from Coombe Hill, about seven miles from Gloucester, to the Severn, at Fletcher's Leap, in the parish of Deerhurst.

COVENTRY CANAL, cos. Warwick and Stafford.

In 1768 an act was procured for making a canal from Coventry to Fradley Heath, in Staffordshire, the plan and estimate of which were made by Brindley. The canal was finished to Fazeley, near Tamworth, where it communicates by locks with the Birmingham and Fazeley Canal; and the line was afterwards completed to Fradley, in conjunction with the Trent and Mersey Canal Company; the whole extent of the navigation is thirty-seven miles and three-quarters, and it was opened in July, 1790.

CREE RIVER, or WATER OF CREE, cos. Kirkcudbright and Wigton, S.

This river is navigable eight miles from its mouth, in Wigton Bay.

CRINAN CANAL, co. Argyll, S.

Acts were passed in 1793 and 1799 for making this canal, which connects Loch Crinan, a small inlet of the sea, on the west coast of Argyllshire, with Loch Gilp, a branch of Loch Fine. It is nine miles and a half long, and it affords a more convenient passage from the ports of the Highlands to the Clyde than that by the Mull of Cantyre. The engineer was Mr. John Rennie.

CROMFORD CANAL, cos. Nottingham and Derby.

This canal was constructed under the authority of acts passed in 1789 and 1790. Commencing in the Erewash Canal, near Langley Bridge, Notts, it proceeds to Codnor Park Ironworks, thence to Butterley Park, where it passes through a tunnel 2966 yards long; it afterwards crosses the river Amber, by an aqueduct 200 yards long and fifty feet high, and having passed through two short tunnels, and been conducted over the Derwent by an aqueduct, the principal arch of which is eighty feet wide, it terminates about one mile and three-quarters from Cromford.

CROUCH RIVER, co. Essex.

This is a tideway navigation, sixteen miles long.

CROYDON CANAL, cos. Surrey and Kent.

In 1801 an act was passed for making a canal from Croydon into the Grand Surrey Canal, at Deptford; and other acts to facilitate the completion of the undertaking were obtained in 1808 and 1811. It is nine miles and a half in length, and its summit level is about 149 feet above the high water-mark in the Thames. The original engineers were John Rennie and Ralph Dodd.

DARENT RIVER, co. Kent.

On this river, navigable as a tideway, four miles from the Thames, are situated the Dartford gunpowder-mills.

DART RIVER, co. Devon.

The harbour of Dartmouth is formed by the estuary of the Dart, which has a tide-way navigation about twelve miles in length.

DEARNE AND DOVE CANAL, W. R. co. York.

An act passed in 1793 for making a canal from the river Dunn navigation cut, at Swinon, to the Barnsley Canal, near Barnsley, where the latter is carried by an aqueduct over the river Dearne. It is nine miles and a quarter long, with a total rise of 127 feet to the point of junction, near Barnsley. A second act of Parliament was procured in 1800, for completing this canal and the collateral cuts belonging to it.

DEBEN RIVER, co. Suffolk.

This river is navigable from Woodbridge to its confluence with the sea, about four miles north-west of Harwich, a distance of nine miles and a half. At Woodbridge are docks for ship-building, and convenient wharfs and quays; and there is also a dock at Ramsholt, six miles lower down the river.

DEF RIVER, co. Chester.

The ancient navigation of this river, from Chester to the sea, having been nearly destroyed, an act for restoring and preserving it was procured by the mayor and citizens of that city, in 1700, and considerable sums were expended, but without effect. A new act was therefore passed in 1734, and the necessary works were completed in March, 1740, in which year a third act was obtained for incorporating the undertakers of the navigation as a joint-stock company; and acts, authorizing further improvements, passed in 1744, 1753, and 1791; but the maritime commerce of Chester is still comparatively inconsiderable.

DERBY CANAL, co. Derby.

This canal, an act for making which passed in 1793, commences at the Trent, near Swarkstone, and shortly after enters the Trent and Mersey, or Grand Trunk Canal, leaving which, it proceeds through Derby to Little Eaton, where it terminates. A branch from the main line joins the Erewash Canal; and it communicates, by railways, with several collieries.

DERWENT RIVER, co. Derby.

This river was made navigable from Derby to the Trent, under an act of 6th George I.; but the advantage arising from it nearly ceasing on the opening of the Derby Canal, the proprietors of that work purchased the river navigation for 3996*l*.

DERWENT RIVER, N. R. co. York.

The navigation of this river is the private property of Earl Fitzwilliam. In 1701 an act was passed for making the Derwent navigable from New Malton to its confluence with the Ouze, at Barmby-on-the-Marsh, thirty-eight miles; and in 1805 the navigation was extended eleven miles and a half further to Yedingham Bridge.

DEVON RIVER, cos. Perth and Clackmannan, S.

This river has only a tideway navigation: plans proposed for its improvement by Mr. Smeaton, not having been executed.

DORSET AND SOMERSET CANAL, cos. Dorset, Somerset, and Wilts.

In 1796 and 1803 acts were passed for making a canal from the river Stour to the Kennet and Avon Canal, near Bradford; but it was never completed.

DRIFFIELD NAVIGATION, E. R. co. York.

An act passed in 1767, for improving the navigation of the river Hull, from Aike Beckmouth, four miles and a half north of Beverley to Fisholme Clough; and extending it by a canal to Great Driffield. The navigation was further improved by making cuts to avoid bends of the river, under the authority of acts procured in 1801 and 1817.

DROITWICH CANAL, co. Worcester.

In 1768 an act was obtained for making a canal from Droitwich to the Severn, which Brindley, who was the engineer, regarded as the best executed of his numerous undertakings.

DRUMGLASS CANAL, co. Tyrone, I.

This canal is connected with the Drumglass collieries; and between 1753 and 1771 no less than 117,714*l*. were granted for making it by the Irish parliament.

DUDLEY CANAL, cos. Worcester and Stafford.

This canal commences from the Worcester and Birmingham Canal, near Selly Oak, and proceeding westward, near Stone House, enters the Lapal Tunnel, 3776 yards in length; it then passes north towards Hales Owen, beyond which it enters another tunnel 623 yards long, and near Dudley is a third tunnel, 2926 yards in length, from which it emerges near Tipton Green, and soon after joins the Birmingham Canal. A branch from this unites it with the Stourbridge Canal, north of Stourbridge. This undertaking was executed under the authority of acts passed in 1776, 1785, 1790, 1793, and 1796.

DUN RIVER NAVIGATION, W. R. co. York.

This navigation affords the means of exporting the cutlery and hardware of Sheffield, and the coal, iron, and agricultural produce of the neighbouring country; and it forms a line of water-carriage, from Tinsley, twenty-one miles above Doncaster, to the river Ouze, several miles below that town. The Don, or Dun, has been greatly improved, as a navigable river, under various acts of Parliament between 1726 and 1826; cuts having been made to avoid bends of the river, so that the whole line from Tinsley to the Ouze is now only thirty-nine miles.

EDEN RIVER, co. Cumberland.

An act was passed in 1721 for making this river navigable to Carlisle; but the Carlisle Canal has superseded in a great degree this circuitous navigation.

EDINBURGH AND GLASGOW UNION CANAL, cos. Stirling, Linlithgow, and Edinburgh, S.

This canal commences from the sixteenth lock of the Forth and Clyde navigation, and terminates by a basin at the Lothian Road, half-a-mile south-west of the castle of Edinburgh; and in its course of thirty miles, it passes through Black Hill Tunnel, and is carried by aqueducts over the rivers Avon and Almond, and some smaller streams; keeping one level from Edinburgh to its junction with the Forth and Clyde Canal where it falls at once by a series of locks 110 feet. The works were designed by Mr. Telford and Mr. Baird, and executed under the authority of various acts passed from 1817 to 1826.

ELLESMERE AND CHESTER CANAL, cos. Chester, Denbigh, and Salop.

From its commencement in the tideway of the Mersey, at Ellesmere Port, ten miles south-east of Liverpool, this canal passes to Chester, where is a short branch which locks down into the river Dee. Hence it proceeds eastward, and then south to join a branch of the Trent and Mersey canal at Middlewich; the main line goes on to near Hurleston, where a cut branches off to the Birmingham and Liverpool canal; after passing other places, the canal enters Shropshire near Whitchurch; and in its way to join the Montgomeryshire canal at Careghofa, it sends off various other branches, crosses the river Ceiriog, by a fine stone aqueduct 200 yards long, penetrates Chirk Tunnel, and is carried over the Dee by the famous aqueduct of Pont-Cysyllte, at the height of 125 feet above the bed of that river. There are several collateral cuts and railways belonging to this extensive navigation, which was completed under the sanction of twelve acts of Parliament, passed since 1772; but these are, with the exception of that of 1827, repealed by a provision of that statute: a new act for further improvements was obtained in 1830. Total length, sixty-one miles.

ENGLISH AND BRISTOL CHANNELS SHIP CANAL, cos. Devon, Dorset, and Somerset.

This is a magnificent project for forming a navigable communication between the seas on the southern and the western coasts of England, by a canal admitting vessels of 200 tons burden, from which immense advantages were anticipated; but, though it was sanctioned by an act of Parliament in 1825, it remains unexecuted.

EREWASH CANAL, cos. Derby and Nottingham.

This canal extends from the Trent about a mile east of Sawley to the Cromford canal, near Langley Bridge; and in its course of eleven miles and three quarters, it unites with a branch of the Derby Canal, crosses the Nutbrook by an aqueduct and joins the Nutbrook Canal, near Sandiacre. It was made in pursuance of an act passed in 1777.

EXE RIVER AND EXETER CANAL, co. Devon.

The Exe, between the sea and Topsham forms a considerable estuary, in some parts one mile and a half wide. The navigation of the river above that town having been interrupted, the corporation of Exeter, under the authority of an act of 31st Henry VIII. constructed a canal three miles in length, parallel with the river. But this work having been at first imperfectly executed, and afterwards injured by the flux and reflux of the tide, it was extended lower down, and considerable improvements have recently been made in the navigation, under the sanction of an act passed in 1829.

FORTH AND CLYDE CANAL, cos. Dumbarton, Lanark, and Stirling, S.

This noble navigation commences in the river Forth, in Grangemouth Harbour, near the mouth of the Carron. It runs westward parallel with that river, and passing north of Falkirk to Redbridge, quits the county of Stirling, and enters a detached portion of Dumbartonshire. Hence it proceeds to the south of Kilsyth, and extending along the south bank of the Kelvin, crosses the Logie Water at Kirkintullock by a fine aqueduct; it then passes about two miles north-west of Glasgow, to which there is a branch communicating with the Monkland Canal at Port Dundas; the canal then crosses the Kelvin by a noble aqueduct, and after running parallel with the Clyde for some distance, it locks down into that river at Bowling's Bay. This canal is thirty-five miles in length, rising from low water-mark in the Forth to the summit level 155 feet, by twenty locks; and after continuing at that height for sixteen miles, it descends to low water in the Clyde, 156 feet, by nineteen locks. The plan of a canal across the isthmus, formed by the estuaries of the Forth and the Clyde, was suggested in the reign of Charles II., and revived in 1723, and again in 1762. A survey was made the following year by Mr. Smeaton, and after some delay an act of Parliament, authorizing the undertaking, was obtained in March, 1768; and on the 10th of July the work was commenced under the direction of that engineer. Great difficulties occurred, in spite of which the navigation was, in 1775, completed to Stockingfield, whence the cut branches off to Glasgow; and the canal remained in this state till 1784, when the work was renewed, and in July, 1790, the whole line was opened from sea to sea. Several acts of Parliament relative to the supply of funds for the completion and improvement of the works were passed at different periods, the last in 1820; when the capital stock of the Forth and Clyde Company amounted to 519,840*l*.

FOSS NAVIGATION, N. R. co. York.

The river Foss was made navigable from Stillington to its junction with the Ouse near York, under the authority of acts passed in 1793 and 1801. The line extends twelve miles and a half, including a short canal, which cuts off a considerable bend of the river. Mr. W. Jessop was the engineer, whose estimate for the works amounted to 16,274*l*.

FOSSDIKE NAVIGATION, co. Lincoln.

This very ancient canal extends from the Trent at Torksey, ten miles south of Gainsborough, to the Witham near Lincoln. It is supposed by Dr. Stukeley to have been constructed by the Romans.

GIPPING RIVER, co. Suffolk.

The navigation of this river between Stowmarket and Ipswich, a distance of sixteen miles, was improved under the sanction of acts of Parliament in 1790 and 1793.

GLAMORGANSHIRE, or CARDIFF CANAL, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

This canal, for making which an act was obtained in 1790, extends from Merthyr Tydvil to Lower Layer, in the tideway of the river Taff, where is a sea-lock, with a floating dock, which will admit ships of 300 tons burden. It crosses the Taff by an aqueduct, near which it is joined by the Aberdare Canal.

GLASGOW, PAISLEY, and ARDROSSAN CANAL and RAILWAY, cos. Ayr, Renfrew, and Lanark, S.

The canal commencing from Port Eglington, west of Glasgow, is continued by Paisley to Johnstone, where it terminates, after a course of eleven miles; and from the canal wharf the railway extends twenty-two miles to Ardrossan Harbour, with a short branch to the harbour of Saltcoats. An act for making a canal throughout the line passed in 1806; but the plan being altered, a new act for constructing the railway was obtained in 1827.

GLASTONBURY NAVIGATION, co. Somerset.

The object of this navigation is to open a communication between Glastonbury and the sea, by a canal to Highbridge and the river Brue; for improving which and making the canal an act passed in 1827.

GLENKENNS CANAL, co. Kirkcudbright, S.

This navigation extends from the Boat Pool of Dalry, in the Glenkens, to Kirkcudbright, north of which town it terminates in the tideway of the river Dee. The act for making it passed in 1802; and the engineer was Mr. John Rennie, whose estimate was 33,382*l*.

GLOUCESTER AND BERKELEY CANAL, co. Gloucester.

This useful and important ship canal commences in a spacious basin on the south side of Gloucester, communicating by a lock with the Severn, in the estuary of which river it terminates at Sharpness Point, about three miles north of Berkeley. The object of this navigation is to avoid the tedious and dangerous passage of the Severn, the canal being one-third shorter than the corresponding line of the river. Various acts of Parliament were passed from 1793 to 1825, for raising money and other purposes connected with this undertaking; the expense of which was about 480,000*l*. The canal was opened in April, 1827.

GRAND CANAL, cos. Dublin, Kildare, and King's County, I.

A line of inland navigation, commencing in the floating docks on the north side of the river Liffey and to the west of the city of Dublin, and extending to the river Shannon, with which it unites near Banagher, in the King's county, a length of eighty-seven English miles. The wet-docks are capable of floating 400 sail in sixteen feet water, and have three entrance locks, and three graving docks. The canal passes by the towns or stations of Hazel-Hatch, Sallins, Robertstown, Lowtown, Ticknerin, Edenderry, Ballybrittan, Philipstown, Tullamore, Comorlom, Gillen, and Shannon Harbour. Branches issue from the main trunk at Sallins, Lowtown, and Edenderry. In passing through its course it attains a summit level of 264 feet above Dublin Bay, which equals 160 feet above the surface of the river Shannon. This elevation might be lowered sixteen feet six inches at a comparatively moderate expense. There are forty-four locks on the line of the grand trunk, and two aqueducts, the Griffith and the Leinster; the latter is thrown across the river Liffey. The branch from Lowtown to Athy is twenty-six miles long, and attains a height of thirty-two feet above the river Barrow at Monastenevan. It is intended to open a branch from this last place to Portarlinton; and the extension of the grand line beyond Banagher to the town of Ballinasloe, was first opened for trade and passage-boats on the 29th of September, 1828. This noble line of inland navigation was commenced in 1756, by a body incorporated under the name of the Company of Undertakers of the Grand Canal. They received early subscriptions to the amount of 100,000*l*., and enjoyed Parliamentary aid and additional subscriptions at subsequent periods. The line from Dublin to Monastenevan was completed in 1788. The Shannon navigation was perfected in 1806, at an expense of 54,634*l*. 13*s*. 7*d*., and the extension to Ballinasloe in 1828.

GRAND JUNCTION CANAL, cos. Northampton, Buckingham, Hertford, and Middlesex.

This stupendous navigation begins at Braunston, where it joins the Oxford Canal, and after passing through Braunston Tunnel 2045 yards in length, it proceeds to Norton, giving off in its passage a branch to Northampton, it then passes through Blisworth Tunnel 3080 yards long, and after a considerable descent it gives off a branch in its course to Fenny Stratford, the line afterwards rises to the Wendover branch, beyond which the ascent is continued to the summit level at Tring, thence is a continued descent by Hemel Hempstead, Rickmansworth, and other places, to Harefield Park, and subsequently to Uxbridge, Norwood, and Osterley Park, where, intersecting the river Brent, it falls into the Thames between Brentford and Sion House, after a course of more than ninety miles. From Norwood a navigable cut proceeds to the Paddington Canal, by which and the Regent's Canal, another communication is formed with the Thames and the metropolis. In the progress of the navigation are several reservoirs and feeders and some extensive embankments, one of which is thirty feet high, with three aqueduct arches, where it crosses the river Ouse at Wolverton. This undertaking originated in 1792, and the first act of Parliament relating to it passed in 1793, since which twelve more acts, the last in 1819, have been obtained for raising the necessary funds and other objects connected with the navigation. Mr. Telford, Mr. Jessop, and other engineers, were employed on this great work, which, though executed at an immense expense, will be the source of great profit to the proprietors, the tonnage due amounting to nearly 160,000*l.* per annum.

GRAND SURREY CANAL, cos. Surrey and Kent.

This canal, which is about four miles long, begins a quarter of a mile below the Thames Tunnel, at Rotherhithe, enters the docks belonging to the navigation, and thence passing by Peckham New Town, crosses the Kent Road to Addington Square, Camberwell Road, where it terminates. The engineer was Mr. Ralph Dodd, whose estimate for the work was 80,220*l.*; but under four acts of Parliament passed in 1801—1811, the company had authority to raise more than 300,000*l.*, for which the shareholders have not received more than two and a half per cent.

GRAND UNION CANAL, cos. Leicester and Northampton.

An act of Parliament passed in 1810, for making a canal from the Union Canal, at Gumley, in Leicestershire, to the Grand Junction Canal, near Long Buckby, in Northants, with a collateral cut to Market Harborough. The length of the canal is forty-five miles, and on the line are two tunnels; the estimated cost was 219,000*l.*

GRAND WESTERN CANAL, cos. Devon and Somerset.

The purpose of this undertaking is to form a communication between the English and the Bristol Channels, for which an act was obtained in 1796, and others in 1811 and 1812. The canal extends from Topham, by Exeter, Tiverton, and Wellington, to Taunton, where it forms a junction with the river Tone.

GRANTHAM CANAL, cos. Lincoln and Nottingham.

In 1793 an act was passed for making a canal from Grantham to the Trent, near Nottingham, with a collateral cut to the town of Bingham; and an act for raising additional funds passed in 1797.

GRESLEY CANAL, co. Stafford.

This canal, from the coal-mines at Ape-dale to Newcastle-under-Lyne, was made at the expense of Sir Nigel Gresley, under an act passed in 1775.

HEREFORD AND GLOUCESTER CANAL, cos. Hereford and Gloucester.

In 1791 and 1793 acts of Parliament were obtained for making a canal from the Severn at Gloucester, by Ledbury to Hereford; and in 1792 the works were commenced; but after being continued seven years, at the expense of 105,000*l.*, the canal was completed only so far as Ledbury, a distance of eighteen miles, being somewhat less than half the purposed length, according to the original plan. The engineer was Mr. Jos. Clowes; and the line of the navigation includes three considerable tunnels, one of which only is finished, the Oxenhall Tunnel, 2192 yards in length.

HERTFORD UNION CANAL, cos. Hertford and Middlesex.

The object of this canal, for making which an act passed in 1824, is to connect the river Lea navigation with the Regent's Canal, at Old Ford, Bethnal Green.

HORNCASTLE NAVIGATION, co. Lincoln.

An act passed in 1792 for improving the Tattershall Canal, from the river Witham to the town of Tattershall, extending it to the river Bain, and making the latter navigable to Horncastle; and likewise for completing the navigation between the Witham and the Fossdike canal at Lincoln. The length of his canal is eleven miles, and it was opened in 1802.

HUDDERSFIELD CANAL, W. R. cos. York and Chester.

In 1794, an act passed for making a canal from Huddersfield, where it communicates with Sir John Ramsden's Canal, to join the canal navigation from Manchester, near Ashton-under-Lyne; and two other acts were obtained in 1800 and 1806, previously to its completion, at an expense of more than 90,000*l.* This canal thrice crosses the river Colne by aqueducts, and ascending 36 feet, by forty-two locks, to its summit level near Marsden, it enters a mountain district, and passes under Pule Hill and Drunn Top, through a tunnel 5451 yards in length; and in its subsequent descent of 34 feet, by thirty-three locks, it crosses the river Tame repeatedly, and passes through two short tunnels. Its whole course is nineteen miles and three quarters, forming part of one of the lines of inland navigation between the German Ocean and the Irish sea; and its summit level is 656 feet above the surface of the sea, being higher than that of any other canal in the kingdom.

ISLE OF DOGS CANAL, co. Middlesex.

This canal, made by government, under the authority of an act passed in 1807, was purchased in 1829, by the West India Dock Company, for 120,000*l*. It crosses the northern part of the Isle of Dogs, just below the West India Docks, being three quarters of a mile in length, with a tide-lock at each end.

ITCHIN NAVIGATION, co. Hants.

An act for making the river Itchin navigable for boats and barges, was passed in the beginning of the reign of Charles II.; and after a considerable period the property of this navigation became vested in one individual, whose exorbitant charges induced the corporation of Winchester, the dean, the warden of Winchester College, and others, to procure a new act in 1767, to explain and amend the former. Other acts were obtained in 1795, 1802, 1811, and 1820, under the authority of which improvements have been made in this line of navigation, extending from the city of Winchester to the tideway in Southampton Water, a distance of fourteen miles.

IVEL RIVER, cos. Bedford and Herts.

The Ivel was rendered navigable from its junction with the Ouse at Tempsford to Shefford, both in Bedfordshire, under the sanction of an act passed in 1757; but the works requisite between Biggleswade and Shefford have not long been completed.

IVELCHESTER AND LANGPORT CANAL, co. Somerset.

In 1795, an act was procured for making a navigable communication between the river Parrett, near Langport, and the town of Ilchester, a distance of about seven miles.

KENNET AND AVON CANAL, cos. Wilts and Berks.

This important navigation, which forms part of one of the lines of communication across the southern part of the kingdom, from sea to sea, was commenced under the authority of an act of Parliament passed in 1794, and various subsequent acts were obtained previously to the opening of the canal in December, 1810; besides which, in 1813, an act was procured to enable the proprietors to purchase the river Kennet navigation. The entire length of the canal is fifty-seven miles, extending from the Kennet, at Newbury, by Hungerford and Bedwin to Crofton, near which commences its summit level; and after passing through a tunnel, 510 yards long, it descends in its course by Devizes, Semington, and Bradford, through Sidney Gardens, to the Avon, near the Old Bridge, at Bath. It communicates with the Wilts and Berks Canal, at Tisbury, and with the Frome Canal at Mottisfont, near Bradford; and it is carried over the Avon, near Limply Stoke, by several aqueducts, one of which is much admired, on account of its beauty. The engineer was Mr. Rennie.

This navigation commences at Hertford, and passes by Ware to its junction with the Stort River Navigation, near Hoddesdon;

KENNET RIVER, co. Berks.

This river was made navigable from the Thames, at Reading, to Newbury, under acts of Parliament, passed in 1715, 1720, and 1730.

KENSINGTON CANAL, co. Middlesex.

In 1824 an act was passed for enlarging and making navigable an inlet of the Thames, called Counter's Creek, extending from the river to the western extremity of Kensington; and in 1826, another act was obtained, under which the work was completed, at the estimated expense of 21,000*l*.; Mr. Thomas Hollingsworth being the engineer.

KIDWELLY CANAL, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

In 1766, Mr. T. Kymer procured an act of Parliament for making a canal from Kidwelly Harbour to his coal and lime-works, about three miles from that place; and in 1812 and 1818, other acts passed, authorizing various improvements to be carried on by an incorporated body, called The Kidwelly and Llanelly Canal and Tramroad Company."

LANCASTER CANAL, cos. Westmorland and Lancaster.

This vast undertaking, which was commenced under the authority of an Act of Parliament, passed in 1792, extends from Kirkby Kendal to Hincaster Green, where it passes through a tunnel, and crossing Stainton Beck, turns southward by Milthorpe and Burton in Kendal, to Lancaster, near which it is carried over the river Lune, or Loyne, by a grand aqueduct of five arches, seventy feet in span each: it afterwards passes Garstang and Preston, and at this last place the canal is interrupted by a railroad, which crosses the Ribble, and is continued about four miles and a half, rising 222 feet to its termination, where the head level of the canal commences, and after passing through a short tunnel, the line is extended to Bark Hill, near Wigan, where it terminates, the total length being about sixty miles. The original plan included an extension of the line fifteen miles further to West Houghton, but this has been rendered unnecessary by a junction between this and the Leeds and Liverpool Canal, about two miles and a half from the last tunnel. Various acts of Parliament were procured during the progress of this work, the last of which was in 1819. Mr. Rennie was the engineer, and the money raised for this undertaking amounted to 614,100*l*.

LARKE RIVER, cos. Suffolk and Cambridge.

The navigation of this river was improved under the authority of acts passed in 1700 and 1817.

LEA RIVER, cos. Middlesex, Herts, and Essex.

This navigation commences at Hertford, and passes by Ware to its junction with the Stort River Navigation, near Hoddesdon; thence it extends southward to Waltham Abbey, and passing Wanstead and Bromley, falls into the Thames at Bow Creek, a short distance eastward of the East India Docks. Near Bromley it communicates by a short cut with the Regent's Canal; and further south branches off the Lea Cut, or Limehouse Canal, which forms a junction with the Thames above the Isle of Dogs. Two acts of Parliament relating to this river passed in the early part of the reign of Henry VI.; one in 1561, three in the last century, one in 1805, and one for making the branch to the Regent's Canal in 1824.

LEEDS and LIVERPOOL CANAL, cos. York and Lancaster.

This canal commences at Leeds Bridge, where it joins the Aire and Calder Navigation, and passing north-westward by Arnsley, Kirkstall, and Forge, to near New Leeds, after several windings, it reaches Shipley, where the Bradford Canal branches from it; thence its course is westward to New Mill, where it crosses the river Aire by an extensive aqueduct, and runs north-westerly to Bingley; at which place it rises eighty-eight feet and a half, by what is termed the Great Lock, consisting of five ascents in one range of gates and masonry, an arrangement which has the inconvenience of causing a great waste of water. From Bingley Great Lock the canal is continued, in the same direction, towards Keighley, and then to Skipton, a short branch diverging to Skipton Castle; it afterwards passes north-westward by Thorleby and Gargrave, crossing the Aire by another large aqueduct; then bending to the south-west, it reaches its summit level at Greenberfield, 411 feet above the Aire at Leeds. The canal next proceeds by Barnoldswick and Salterford to Foulridge, where commences the great tunnel, 1640 yards in length; after passing which it descends by locks seventy feet near Barrowford, crosses the Colne Water by an aqueduct, passes to Burnley, where there are an extensive embankment, aqueducts over the rivers Brown and Calder, and a road aqueduct under the canal. Passing on near Gannah, it enters another tunnel, proceeds by various places to Blackburn, crossing different rivers by three aqueducts, in its way towards Chorley; thence it passes on to Cophurst Valley, where it descends by seven locks to the head level of the Lancaster Canal, at Johnson's Hillock. From this point the joint navigation continues in one level eleven miles, when the Leeds and Liverpool Canal recommences near Kirkstall, at the head of a range of twenty-three locks, by which it falls 214 feet to the basin at Wigan; thence to Newburgh is a line of seven miles, called the Upper Douglas Navigation, from the termination of which to Liverpool is twenty-eight miles and a half, making the entire length of this canal somewhat more than 127 miles. This gigantic undertaking was completed from Leeds to Liverpool in

TOPOG. DICT.—Vol. II.

October, 1816, at an expense of 1,200,000*l.*; and a collateral branch from Wigan to the Duke of Bridgewater's Canal, at Leigh, opening a communication with Manchester, was finished in 1821, at an additional cost of more than 50,000*l.* The line of this canal was surveyed by Brindley, and the work partly executed by Mr. Longbottom; of Halifax, who appears to have been the first projector of the scheme. An act of Parliament for making the river Douglas navigable passed in 1720, and acts for forming this canal were obtained in 1770, 1783, 1790, 1794, and 1819, the branch to Leigh being executed under the authority of the last of these acts. The importance of this grand undertaking may be appreciated from the consideration of its opening a communication between Liverpool and Hull, and furnishing the means of transit for the products of nature and art through districts noted for manufactures and commerce.

LEICESTER NAVIGATION, co. Leicester.

In 1791 was passed an act for making a cut from the Loughborough Canal to the river Soar, at Quorndon, and making that river and the Wreak navigable to Leicester, with collateral cuts and railways. The engineer was Mr. W. Jessop; the works were finished in 1794; though some additions were made under the authority of a second act in 1797.

LEICESTERSHIRE AND NORTHAMPTONSHIRE UNION CANAL, co. Leicester.

This joins the preceding navigation near Leicester, and forms a communication with the river Nen, near Northampton, by its union with the Grand Junction Canal, at Foxton, whence there is a collateral cut to Market Harborough. At Saddington the canal passes through a tunnel 880 yards in length. The works were carried on by Mr. J. Varley, senior, and Mr. C. Staveley, junior, under the authority of acts passed in 1793 and 1805.

LEOMINSTER CANAL, co. Hereford.

This navigation commences at Kington, where it meets the Kington railway, and after passing Leominster and Tenbury, with a winding course, it joins the Severn at Stourport; having traversed a distance of forty-six miles, crossing the Lugg at Kingsland by an aqueduct, and passing through a tunnel near Sousant 1250 yards long, and another at Great Pensax 3850 yards in length. Mr. T. Dadford, junior, was the engineer, and the undertaking was executed under acts passed in 1791, 1796, 1803, and 1826.

LIFFEY RIVER, cos. Kildare and Dublin, I.

The course of this river through Dublin county to the bay of Dublin, at the entrance basin of the Grand Canal, where also are an harbour and docks, has with these works been improved by Mr. W. Jessop. In 1800 it was proposed to avoid the bar at the mouth of this river by cutting a ship canal from Dunleary to Ringstead Dock ; which plan, with other improvements, failed for want of parliamentary sanction, the bill relating to them being rejected by the House of Lords.

LISKEARD AND LOOE CANAL, co. Cornwall.

This navigation, for making which an act passed in 1825, extends from Tarras Pill, in the parish of Duloe, to Moorswater, in the parish of Liskeard, a distance of nearly six miles. In its course are twenty-five locks ; and the estimated expense of the undertaking was 12,577*l*.

LIVERPOOL DOCKS AND HARBOUR, co. Lancaster.

The various improvements which have taken place at Liverpool for the advantage of its commerce and navigation, will be noticed in the article relative to that seaport. It will, therefore, be sufficient here to state, that the works have been carried on under the sanction of several acts of Parliament passed between 1710 and 1828, and that the management of these works is vested in the incorporated Trustees of the Liverpool Docks.

LLANELLY DOCK AND RAILWAY, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

These works, consisting of a wet-dock at Machynis Pool, in the parish of Llanelly, with a tram-road extending from it, upwards of two miles in length, were executed under the authority of an act of Parliament passed in 1828, at the estimated expense of 11,736*l*.

LONDON AND CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION CANAL, cos. Essex and Cambridge.

In 1812 an act was obtained for a canal from the Stort Navigation, near Bishop's Stortford, to join the river Cam, near Clayhithe Sluice, in Cambridgeshire ; and a supplementary act passed in 1814.

LOUTH CANAL, co. Lincoln.

This canal extends from the Humber, at Tetney Haven, to Alvingham, where it joins the river Ludd, by which the navigation is continued to Louth, the entire length being about fourteen miles. It was constructed and improved under the authority of acts passed in 1763 and 1828.

LOYNE or LUNE RIVER, co. Lancaster.

The estuary of this river forms the harbour of Lancaster ; and acts of Parliament for its improvement passed in 1749, 1772, 1789, and 1807.

MACCLESFIELD CANAL, cos. Chester and Stafford.

In 1826 an act was obtained for making a canal from the Peak Forest Canal, in the township of Marple, to join the Trent and Mersey Canal at Talk-on-the-Hill in Staffordshire, a distance of about twenty-nine miles and a half.

MANCHESTER, BOLTON, AND BURY CANAL, co. Lancaster.

This canal, commencing on the north side of Manchester, joins the river Irwell, and running parallel with it to Clifton Hall, crosses the river there by an aqueduct and passes on to Bolton over the river Roach by a second aqueduct near Darley Hall, and again over the Irwell by a third aqueduct near Bolton ; whence it proceeds to its termination at Bury. It was executed under the authority of acts passed in 1791 and 1805.

MARKET WEIGHTON CANAL, E. R. co. York.

In 1772 an act was obtained for making this canal from Market Weighton to the river Humber, and draining the neighbouring lowlands ; the works were executed under the direction of Mr. Whitworth.

MEDWAY RIVER, co. Kent.

An act for improving the navigation of this river passed in 1664 and another in 1740 ; but the principal improvements have been made under the authority of acts obtained in 1792, 1802, and 1824 ; by widening the channel of the river and other alterations in that part of its course between Maidstone and Halling.

MERSEY AND IRWELL NAVIGATION, co. Lancaster.

The navigation of these rivers has been variously improved since the passing of an act of Parliament in 1720, which was altered and amended by an act passed in 1794. They form a communication between Manchester and Liverpool, the line of which, owing to the winding of the rivers, is nearly fifty miles ; but the distance is lessened by side-cuts across the loops or bends of the stream.

MONKLAND CANAL, co. Lanark, S.

This canal from the collieries at Monkland to the city of Glasgow, was made under the authority of an act passed in 1770 ; the works having been commenced in 1782. It joins the Forth and Clyde Canal at Port Dundas.

MONMOUTHSHIRE CANAL, co. Monmouth.

In 1792 an act was obtained for making a canal from Pontnewynydd to the river Usk and Newport, with collateral cuts and railroads to various mines and iron-works. It passes by Pontypool, between which place and Pontnewynydd it is connected with the Abergavenny and Brecknock Canal. Supplementary acts for completing these works were passed in 1797 and 1802.

MONTGOMERYSHIRE CANAL, cos. Montgomery, N. W. and Salop.

This canal commences at Portyvain lime-works, in the parish of Llanyblodwell, Shropshire, where it unites with a branch of the Ellesmere Canal : it passes near Llannymynach, and crossing the Verniew river, it joins another branch of the Ellesmere Canal ; thence running to Gwern-felu, it sends off a branch to Guilsfield, after which it proceeds to Welshpool, and then runs parallel with the Severn till it forms a junction with that river on the east side of Newtown. Acts relative to this undertaking passed in 1794, 1815, and 1821.

NEATH CANAL NAVIGATION, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

Acts were passed in 1791 and 1798, authorizing this navigation, which extends from Abernant to Neath, a distance of about fourteen miles.

NEN, or NYNE RIVER, co. Northampton.

In 1714 an act was obtained for making this river navigable from Northampton to Peterborough; and improvements have since taken place under the sanction of acts passed in 1725, 1756, and 1794.

NEN RIVER BEDFORD LEVEL, co. Cambridge.

The navigation of this river through part of Cambridgeshire was improved under the authority of an act obtained in 1754.

NENE AND WISBECH RIVERS, cos. Cambridge, Norfolk, and Lincoln.

In 1827 an act passed for improving the outfall of the river Nene, the navigation of the Wisbech river, draining the neighbouring lands, and other purposes; in consequence of which a plan was formed in conjunction by Mr. Remie and Mr. Telford, and the requisite improvements undertaken, at the estimated expense of 127,890*l*. In 1829 a second act passed for altering the line of the navigation, and enlarging the provisions of the former enactment.

NEWCASTLE-UNDER-LYNE CANAL, co. Stafford.

This canal extends from the Trent and Mersey navigation, at Stoke-upon-Trent, to Newcastle; and it was constructed under an act obtained in 1795.

NEWCASTLE-UNDER-LYNE JUNCTION CANAL, co. Stafford.

In 1798 was passed the act for making this canal, which forms a communication between the preceding and the Gresley Canal.

NEWPORT - PAGNEL CANAL, co. Bucks.

This canal extends from Newport-Pagnel to the Grand Junction Canal at Great Linford. An act for making it passed in 1814; and the estimated expense was 12,650*l*., though it is only one mile and a quarter in length, with a rise of fifty feet, by seven locks.

NEWRY CANAL, co. Down, I.

This canal from the tideway at Fadham Point to the town of Newry, was executed in 1761, under the direction of Mr. Golborne. It was designed to have been connected with the Blackwater navigation; and between 1753 and 1771 the Irish Parliament granted sums amounting to 11,434*l*. for that purpose.

NITH RIVER NAVIGATION, cos. Kirkcudbright and Dumfries.

The harbour of Dumfries and the navigation of the Nith were improved under the sanction of an act passed in 1811.

NORTH LEVEL NAVIGATION AND DRAINAGE, cos. Lincoln and Cambridge.

The drainage of the fens called Bedford Level was commenced under the sanction of an act of Parliament procured by Francis Earl of Bedford in the reign of Charles II., and numerous subsequent enactments have taken place; but in 1830 a new act was obtained for making extensive improvements, including a navigation to be called the North Level Main Drain, commencing in the Nene Outfall cut, and extending to Clows Cross, with a drainage cut from that place to the Old Eau Drain, at Black Horse Sluice, two miles south of Crowland. Estimated expense 92,517*l*.

NORTH WALSHAM AND DILHAM CANAL, co. Norfolk.

This canal, from the rivers Ant and Bure, near Dilham to North Walsham and Antingham, was made in pursuance of an act of Parliament passed in 1812.

NORTH WILTS CANAL, co. Wilts.

An act was obtained in 1813 for making this canal from the Wilts and Berks Canal near Swindon, to join the Thames and Severn Canal in the parish of Latton; passing in its course of about eight miles and a half by the town of Cricklade.

NORWICH AND LOWESTOFT NAVIGATION, cos. Norfolk and Suffolk.

This is a ship canal, principally formed by deepening, widening, and otherwise improving the course of the rivers Wensum and Waveney. It extends from Norwich by Buckenham and other places to Raveningham Mill, where a canal, two miles and a half long, joins the Wensum, or Yare, to the Waveney, from which river at Oulton Dyke is another cut, three-quarters of a mile in length to Oulton Broad, forming a connexion with Lake Lothing, at the east end of which is a cut, half a mile in length, to the sea, where is a tide-lock for the entrance of vessels, eighty-four feet long and twenty-one wide. These works were executed under an act passed in 1827.

NOTTINGHAM CANAL, co. Nottingham.

An act passed in 1792, for making this canal from the Cromford Canal to the river Trent, near Nottingham, a distance of about fifteen miles.

NUTBROOK, or SHIPLEY CANAL, co. Derby.

This canal, extending from the collieries at Shipley and West Halton to the Erewash canal, in the parish of Stanton-by-Dale, was constructed in pursuance of an act of Parliament passed in 1793.

OAKHAM CANAL, cos. Leicestershire and Rutland.

This canal, constructed under the authority of acts passed in 1793 and 1800, reaches from Oakham to the Melton-Mowbray navigation, near the town so called, after a course of fifteen miles.

OUSE RIVER, co. Sussex.

Various acts of Parliament passed from 1790 to 1814, for improving the navigation of this river, especially in that part of its course from Lewes to Newhaven, where it falls into the sea. The whole length of the navigable line from Cuckfield to the sea is nearly thirty miles.

OUSE RIVER, W. and E. R. co. York.

An act of Parliament passed in 1657, for amending the river Ouse, near the city of York; and subsequently acts have been obtained in 1727, 1732, 1767, and 1770, for improving its navigation from Linton, and for making navigable the Swale and other contributory branches. The commercial intercourse on the Ouse, above York, is but limited; while an immense traffic is carried on between York and the junction of this river with the Humber, as in this last part of its course it unites with numerous rivers and canals, extending from the manufacturing districts, iron-works, coal-fields, and limestone-quarries of Yorkshire and Lancashire.

LITTLE OUSE, or BRANDON AND WAVENEY RIVER, cos. Norfolk and Suffolk.

This navigation, commencing at Thetford, passes Santon, Downham, and Brandon, to its junction with the Ouse, at Brandon Creek Bridge, after a course of about twenty-two miles and a half. The first act relating to this river passed in 1670, and it was followed at a considerable interval by five more acts, the last in 1810.

OUSE AND LARKE, cos. Cambridge, Suffolk, and Norfolk.

This navigation was made under the authority of acts of Parliament, consolidated by a subsequent statute of 1827; and it is connected with the Little Ouse, with the New Bedford River, and with the Eau Brink Cut to Lynn, recently made by Sir Edward Banks.

GREAT OUSE RIVER, cos. Bedford, Huntingdon, and Cambridge.

The Old Bedford River, a cut which communicates with the Great Ouse, was made in pursuance of an act of the 6th Charles I.; and in 1649 another act was obtained (confirmed the 15th Charles II.), for establishing the Fen Corporation, under which was completed the New Bedford River, which also joins this navigation.

OXFORD CANAL, cos. Oxford and Warwick.

This extensive and important line of navigation commences in the Coventry Canal, at Longford; and after communicating with the Grand Junction Canal, at Braunston Tunnel, and with the Warwick and Napton Canal, near Napton, it reaches its summit level at Marston Wharf; then passing a tunnel, near Fenny Compton, it proceeds to Banbury, where it crosses a branch of the Cherwell, and thence takes its course between Doddington and Aynhoe, to the Thames at Oxford. It is carried over the valley, at Brinklow, by an aqueduct of twelve arches; and by two others over the Swift and Great Ouse rivers, at Casford and Clifton. The tunnel, near Fenny Compton, is 1188 yards long; and a short tunnel conveys the canal under the churchyard and street, at Newbold. The first act of Parliament relative to this undertaking passed in 1769, and it was followed by several others, which are repealed or consolidated by the last in 1829. The money raised under these acts amounted to 178,648*l*.

PEAK FOREST CANAL, cos. Derby and Chester.

This canal begins near Ashton-under-Lyne, where it joins the Manchester, Ashton, and Oldham Canal, then crosses the Tame River, and proceeds to Hyde Bank Tunnel, afterwards over the Mersey, by an aqueduct ninety feet high, below Water Meetings; and, passing on to Marple, it rises 212 feet to its summit level by sixteen locks; here it is joined by the Macclesfield Canal, and proceeding to Whaley Bridge and Bugsworth, a railway is thence continued by Chapel Milton and Chapel Town-end, where is an ascending plane 600 yards long, to Limestone Rock, in Peak Forest. The canal is nearly fifteen miles in length, and the railway about seven. The undertaking was executed under the sanction of acts passed in 1794, 1800, and 1805, and the line was opened May 1, 1800; engineer, Mr. Benjamin Outram.

PEMBREY HARBOUR CANAL AND RAILWAY, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

These works were carried on under an act of the 6th George IV.

PENCLAWDD CANAL, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

This canal, from the river Burry to the township of Loughor, and the railroads connected with it, were constructed pursuant to an act passed in 1811.

POCKLINGTON CANAL, E. R. co. York.

An act was obtained in 1815, for making a canal from the river Derwent, at East Cottingwith, to Street Bridge, in the township of Pocklington; which was executed under the direction of Mr. George Leather, engineer.

POLBROCK CANAL, co. Cornwall.

An act, authorizing this undertaking, passed in 1797.

PORTSMOUTH AND ARUNDEL CANAL, cos. Sussex and Hants.

This canal commences from the tideway in the river Arun, at Ford, two miles and three-quarters from Arundel, and extends westward to within half a mile from North Mundham, where it gives off a branch to Chichester, and proceeding by Donnington to Chichester Harbour, there the main line terminates, but there are cuts extending to Langstone Harbour and Portsea; and these, with other works connected with them, were executed by Mr. Rennie, under the sanction of acts of Parliament passed in 1817, 1819, 1821, and 1828. The length of the line from the Arun to Chester Harbour is about twelve miles; the distance from thence to the canal at Cosham is fifteen miles; and the length of the canal to Porchester Lake, in Portsmouth Harbour, one mile and a quarter. The estimate for the whole undertaking was 125,490*l*. This vast work not only opens a navigable communication between the southern coast and various other parts of England, but likewise affords the means of transmitting military or other stores from London to Portsmouth, without the risk of capture in time of war.

SIR JOHN RAMSDEN'S CANAL, W. R. co. York.

This navigation, which is private property, extends from the river Calder, near Cooper's Bridge, to the head of the Huddersfield Canal. It was constructed under an act obtained in 1774.

REGENT'S CANAL, co. Middlesex.

The acts authorizing this undertaking were passed in 1812, 1813, 1816, 1819, and 1821; and the sums raised in pursuance of these enactments collectively amount to 1,000,000*l*. This canal commences in the Paddington branch of the Grand Junction Canal, in the north-western suburb of the metropolis, and passing by a short tunnel under the Edgware Road at Maida Hill, proceeds to the west angle of the Regent's Park, where it gives off a supply of water for an ornamental pond in that park; then passing eastward, near the Zoological Gardens a cut diverges to Cumberland Market, the main line proceeding to the north of Camden Town, St. Pancras, and Pentonville; near which the canal enters a tunnel under Islington and the New River; on emerging it sends off a branch to a basin across the road from Finsbury to Islington, and then proceeds eastward, crossing the Kingsland and Hackney Roads, and afterwards southward crossing the Mile-End and Commercial Roads to Limehouse, where is a basin from which it locks into the Thames. Its length is about eight miles and a half, with a fall of ninety feet, by twelve locks, besides the last or tide lock. Mr. Morgan is the engineer in the direction of this concern, which derives its importance from the additional facilities it affords to the commercial intercourse between different parts of London and the surrounding country.

RIBBLE RIVER, co. Lancaster.

The navigation of this river, from Penwortham Bridge, near Preston, to the sea, was improved under an act of Parliament obtained in 1806.

ROCHDALE CANAL, cos. York and Lancaster.

This canal extends from the Calder navigation at Sowerby Bridge Wharf, by Heb-den Bridge and Todmorden to Warland, where commences the summit level; it then proceeds to Littleborough, and sending off a branch to School Lane, near Rochdale, continues its course southward and then south-west, through Manchester to the Duke of Bridgewater's Canal at Castlefield; having previously joined the Manchester, Ashton, and Oldham Canal at Piccadilly Wharf. The rise from Sowerby to the head level is 275 feet, and the fall thence to the Duke of Bridgewater's Canal 438½ feet; the entire length of the line being thirty-one miles and a half. Mr. Rennie was the engineer, and the works were executed under the sanction of acts passed in 1794—1807.

ROTHER RIVER, co. Sussex.

This navigation, belonging to the Earl of Egremont, extends from Midhurst to the river Arun, near Stopham Bridge, a distance of eleven miles. An act for making the river navigable passed in 1791.

ROYAL CANAL, cos. Dublin, Westmeath, and Longford, I.

This canal from Dublin to the river Shannon at Tarmonbury, was commenced by a body of subscribers, subsequently incorporated by a royal charter. One branch originates at Glassmanogue, the other from the river Liffey; at the latter point is a sea lock, with a depth of fourteen feet and a half at high water, within which is a floating dock capable of containing about twenty-five sail. In a length of one mile and a half the line of the navigation rises sixty-two feet, by the four locks to the Broadstone level, where there is a large boat harbour, and a basin for the supply of the northern side of the city of Dublin with water. From the Broadstone there is a rise, in eighteen miles and a half, of 175 feet, by fourteen locks; and this level continues for sixteen miles, when another rise of seventy feet, by eight locks in a distance of five miles and a half, brings the canal to the summit level, 307 feet above high water in Dublin Bay. It keeps this height for twelve miles; and communicates by a navigable river at Mullingar with Lough Owel, the chief reservoir whence the navigation is supplied with water. From Coolnahay the descent is accomplished by fifteen locks to Tarmonbury, or Richmond Harbour, on the Shannon, the surface of which river is 191 feet lower than that of Lough Owel, or the head level. The whole length of the canal is eighty-three miles.

ROYAL MILITARY, or SHORNCLIFF AND RYE CANAL, cos. Kent and Sussex.

This canal, as its name indicates, was constructed by government for military purposes, in pursuance of a plan for the defence of the coast against invasion. It extends from the tide-way at Shorncliff, not far from Sandgate Castle, to Hythe, and then proceeds westward, leaving Lympne, Bonnington, Ruckinge, and Appledore, on its north bank, to the junction with the intended Weald of Kent Canal; here it turns south till it unites with the river Rother, in the channel of which the line is continued past Rye to Winchelsea, whence the canal diverges southward to Cliff End, where it terminates, after a course of about thirty miles. In 1807 an act of Parliament passed containing arrangements for the application of this navigation to the service of commerce, under the management of commissioners, including the Speaker of the House of Commons and other principal officers of state.

ST. COLUMB CANAL, co. Cornwall.

This canal was constructed under the authority of an act of Parliament procured by John Edyvean, Gent., of St. Austell, in 1773.

SALISBURY AND SOUTHAMPTON CANAL, cos. Wilts and Hants.

Acts for making a canal from Salisbury to Southampton passed in 1795 and 1800; but only that part of the line between Southampton and Redbridge, where it joins the Andover Canal, has been completed.

SANKEY CANAL, co. Lancaster.

This was the earliest work of the kind in this country, an act respecting it having passed in 1755, four years before that for making the Duke of Bridgewater's Canal; and a second act was obtained in 1762. It runs parallel with a stream called the Sankey Brook, which serves as a feeder to the canal, from the junction of that brook with the Mersey to the coal-mines at St. Helen's, near Prescot, a distance of about twelve miles. Mr. John Eyes, a surveyor of Liverpool, directed this undertaking as engineer. The canal about a mile from Newton is crossed by the Liverpool and Manchester Railway, at the height of seventy feet from the surface of the water. The plan of propelling vessels by steam was the subject of a successful experiment on this canal in 1797. An additional act of Parliament was obtained in 1830, for extending this navigation from its present junction with the Mersey to Widness Wharf, near West Bank, to communicate there with the Mersey.

SEVERN RIVER, cos. Montgomery, N. W. Salop, Worcester, and Gloucester.

An act of Parliament for improving the navigation of this river passed in 1503, and another in 1532; since which several were obtained during the reign of George III., the latest in 1811.

SEVERN AND WYE CANAL AND RAILWAY, co. Gloucester.

These works were executed under the authority of acts of Parliament passed in 1809, 1810, 1811, 1814, and 1822. The railway crosses the forest of Dean, nearly from north to south, connecting the rivers Severn and Wye. From the latter river to Cross Pill the railway extends thirteen miles and a half; and thence the canal proceeds to the Severn at Nass Point, one mile further; besides which there are nine branches, the united extent of which is about twelve miles.

SHEFFIELD CANAL, W. R. co. York.

This canal, for making which an act passed in 1815, connects the town of Sheffield with the river Dunn, or Don; its length somewhat exceeding four miles.

SHREWSBURY CANAL, co. Salop.

In 1795 an act was obtained for making this canal from the north end of the Shropshire Canal at Rockwardine Wood to the town of Shrewsbury, a distance of seventeen miles and a half. It crosses the river Tern by an aqueduct; and passes through a tunnel near Atcham, 970 yards in length. The engineers were Mr. T. Telford and Mr. W. Reynolds.

SHROPSHIRE CANAL, co. Salop.

This navigation commences at the Donnington Wood Canal, in the parish of Lillishall, and joins the Severn at Coalport, two miles below Colebrook Dale. Its length is seven miles and a half, in the course of which are three inclined planes; the first at Donnington Wood, a perpendicular ascent of 122 feet; the second at Stirchley, a perpendicular descent of 126 feet; and the third at Hay, near the Severn, a descent of 207 feet. The machinery connected with these planes is worked by steam-engines. This canal was constructed under the authority of an act passed in 1788.

SLEAFORD NAVIGATION, co. Lincoln.

An act was obtained in 1794, for making this navigation from Sleaford Castle Causeway, through the town of Sleaford, along the course of Sleaford Mill Stream and Kyme Eau, to the river Witham, near Chapel Hill, a distance of about thirteen miles and a half.

SOAR RIVER, or LOUGHBOROUGH NAVIGATION, co. Leicester.

Acts passed in 1766 and 1776, for making a navigable communication from the Trent to Loughborough, which has been effected by constructing a canal from the Rushes at Loughborough to the river Soar at Bishop's Meadow, in the liberty of Garenton.

SOMERSETSHIRE COAL CANAL, co. Somerset.

This canal, with the railways connected with it, forms a communication between the coal-mines at Radstock, &c., and the Kennet and Avon Canal at Limpley Stoke, between Bath and Bradford. The works were executed under the sanction of acts passed in 1794, 1796, and 1802.

STAFFORDSHIRE AND WORCESTERSHIRE CANAL, cos. Worcester and Stafford.

This branch of inland navigation commences in the Severn at Stourport, and passing by Kidderminster, Penkridge, and other places, unites with the Trent and Mersey Navigation near Haywood, in Staffordshire. It is conveyed by aqueducts over the rivers Trent, Sow, Penk, Smester, and Stour; and by a tunnel under the town of Kidderminster. The act authorizing this undertaking was obtained in 1766; and the celebrated Brindley was the engineer. In 1790, a new act was procured for improving this navigation.

STAINFORTH AND KEADBY CANAL, cos. York, W. R., and Lincolnshire.

This canal extends from the river Dun navigation near Stainforth to the Trent at Keadby, passing in its course to the south of the towns of Thorne and Crowle. It was executed under the authority of acts passed in 1793, 1798, and 1809.

STORT RIVER, cos. Essex and Herts.

Acts for making this river navigable from Bishop Stortford to the river Lea passed in 1759 and 1766.

STOURBRIDGE CANAL, cos. Stafford and Worcester.

This canal commencing near Stourbridge, proceeds to Wordesley Brook, where it crosses the river Stour, and joins the Staffordshire and Worcestershire canal at Stewponey, near Stourton. Acts authorizing this canal were obtained in 1776 and 1782.

STRATFORD-UPON-AVON CANAL, cos. Warwick and Worcester.

This canal extends from King's Norton, where it joins the Worcester and Birmingham Canal to Stratford; passing through a tunnel, and crossing the river Alne, in its course of twenty-three miles and a half, besides which it has four branches. This undertaking was carried on under various acts of Parliament passed in 1793 and 1821.

STROUDWATER NAVIGATION, co. Gloucester.

This canal extends from Wallbridge, near Stroud, to the Severn, at Framiload. An act for making a navigable communication from Stroud to the Severn, passed in 1730, but the scheme failed, as also did another in 1759. The act for making the present canal was procured in 1776.

SWANSEA CANAL, co. Glamorgan and Brecknock, S. W.

In 1794 an act was obtained for making this canal from Swansea Harbour to Ystradgunlais, in the county of Brecon, a distance of seventeen miles. Mr. Thomas Sheasby was the engineer.

TAVISTOCK CANAL, co. Devon.

This canal from the tideway of the Tamar at Morwelham quay to Tavistock, was constructed under the authority of an act passed in 1803. It is about four miles long and passes through a tunnel, 2640 yards in length, at Morwelham Down; and crosses the Lumbourn river, near Crebar, by an aqueduct bridge, 200 yards long and sixty feet above the river.

TAY RIVER AND PERTH NAVIGATION, cos. Perth, Fife, and Forfar, S.

The Tay is navigable at spring tides to Perth; but the navigation is liable to obstructions from floods and shallows; in consequence of which an act for improving it, building quays, &c., was obtained in 1830. The estimated expense is 14,504: engineer, Mr. James Jardine.

TEES NAVIGATION, cos. Durham and N. R. York.

An act passed in 1808 for making a navigable cut from the east side of the Tees, near Stockton into the same river near Portrack, with other improvements; and in 1828 a second act was obtained for making a cut from Portrack into the Tees near Newport in the township of Acklam, Yorkshire.

THAMES RIVER, cos. Gloucester, Oxford, Berks, Buckingham, Surrey, Middlesex, Essex, and Kent.

The first act of Parliament for improving the navigation of this river was passed in the reign of Henry VI., and many have been subsequently obtained under Henry VII., Henry VIII., James I., William III., Anne, George II., George III., and George IV. The Thames was formerly navigable to Cricklade, in Wiltshire, but since the completion of the Thames and Severn canal in 1789, which joins the Thames at Lechlade, the river navigation has been considered as terminating at that town, the distance of which from London by water is 146½ miles, and the fall from Lechlade to low water-mark is 258 feet.

THAMES AND MEDWAY CANAL, co. Kent.

In 1800 an act was obtained for making this canal from the Thames near Gravesend to the river Medway in the parish of Frindsbury; which obviates the necessity for the circuitous passage of vessels round the Nore, from Gravesend to Stroud. In the latter part of its course of nine miles the canal passes through a tunnel about two miles in length. Four additional acts of Parliament were procured during the progress of the undertaking, the last in 1824; engineers, R. Dodd and R. Walker.

THAMES AND SEVERN CANAL, cos. Gloucester and Wilts.

This canal, projected by Brindley, and executed by R. Whitworth, extends from the Stroudwater Canal, at Stroud, to the Thames at Lechlade; passing in its course through a tunnel at Saperton, near Cirencester, two miles and three-eighths in length, being the most extensive in the kingdom; it also sends off a branch to Cirencester, and passes a little to the north of the town of Cricklade. The whole length of the canal is thirty miles; and it was executed under acts passed in 1783—1813.

TONE AND PARRETT NAVIGATION, co. Somerset.

The extent of this navigation is about twenty-seven miles from its junction with the Grand Western Canal at Taunton to the tideway in the Bridgewater Bay, Bristol Channel. It was made under the sanction of acts passed in 1699 and 1707.

TRENT RIVER, cos. Leicester, Derby, Nottingham, and Lincoln.

The earliest act for improving the navigation of this river passed in 1699, and five more acts were obtained in the reign of George III. the last in 1794. The river is navigable from Burton-upon-Trent to the Lumber, a distance of 117 miles, with a fall to low water-mark of 118 feet.

TRENT AND MERSEY CANAL, cos. Chester, Stafford, and Derby.

The acts under the authority of which this important undertaking was executed, are numerous, and were obtained between 1766 and 1827. It commences at Wilden Ferry in Derbyshire, where the Derwent joins the Trent, and passing south-westward to Swarkestone, it is crossed by the Derby Canal; at Burton it communicates with the river Trent, at Fradley with the Coventry and Fradley Canal, at Heywood Mill with the Staffordshire and Worcestershire Canal, at Stoke, with the Newcastle-under-Lyne Canal, at Harecastle with the Macclesfield Canal, and at Preston Brook with the Duke of Bridgewater's Canal, in which it terminates, the remainder of the line to Runcorn Gap, on the Mersey, being reckoned a part of the Duke's Canal. It gives off the Caldon branch at Stoke, another branch at Middlewich, and is connected with various railways: it also passes through a short tunnel at Armitage, another at Harecastle, 2880 yards long, and three more at Barnton, Saltersford, and Preston; and in its course are 126 aqueducts and culverts, and ninety-one locks. The rise from Wilden Ferry to the summit level at the Great Tunnel is 316 feet, and the descent to Preston Brook, 326 feet: total length, ninety-three miles. Engineers, Brindley and Henshall.

ULSTER CANAL, cos. Fermoy, Monaghan, Armagh, and Tyrone, I.

This projected line of navigation is to commence at Wattle Bridge, in the county of Fermanagh, and unite with the Upper Bann River, and so connect the two great lakes, called Loughs Erne and Neagh. The total length is about fifty-nine miles, and the number of required locks twenty-two. The line is remarkably well chosen; it may be said that it will open a communication between the seas on the east and west of Ireland, and its particular advantages are very conspicuous. At Wattle Bridge, where it unites with the Finn River, a short cut would open it to the Royal Canal; and at Portadown it falls in with the Newry navigation. In its transit it approaches the town of Clones, passes Smithborough, very near to Monaghan, just touches Middleton and Caledon, and at the nineteenth lock, admits of a union with the navigable river Blackwater, by a cut of about one mile, thence passing Loughgall, it terminates in the Bann, at Portadown.

WARWICK AND BIRMINGHAM CANAL, cos. Warwick and Worcester.

This canal extends from Saltisford, in the borough of Warwick, to Birmingham, where it joins the Digbeth branch of the Birmingham Canal; and in its course joins the Lapworth branch of the Stratford Canal. It is twenty-two miles and a half in length, passing through two tunnels, and over three rivers, by aqueducts. The acts under which it was executed, passed in 1793 and 1796.

WARWICK AND NAPTON CANAL, co. Warwick.

This canal, commencing at Budbrook, where it joins the preceding navigation, passes north of Warwick, by Leamington Prior's and other places, to its union with the Oxford Canal, near Napton-on-the-Hill. By an act passed in 1794 authority was given to terminate this canal at Braunton, Northants; but the line was altered to the present termination, by an act in 1796, and another, granting additional powers, was obtained in 1809.

WEALD OF KENT CANAL, co. Kent.

The act for making this canal passed in 1812, but it has not been executed.

WEAR RIVER, co. Durham.

Various acts passed from 1716 to 1830, for improving the navigation of this river from Durham to its estuary at Sunderland, a distance of eighteen miles.

WEAVER NAVIGATION, co. Chester.

The navigation of the Weaver has been improved, from Frodsham to Winsford Bridge, and a communication opened between this river and the Mersey, under the authority of various acts passed in 1720—1829.

WELLAND RIVER, co. Lincoln.

The navigable part of this river extends from Stamford, by Market Deeping, Crowland, and Spalding, to its estuary in the Wash. An act for making it navigable passed in 1571, and some considerable improvements were authorized by an act obtained in 1794.

WEY RIVER, co. Surrey.

This river is navigable from Godalming to its junction with the Thames, a distance of about twenty miles, in the course of which it communicates with the Wey and Arun Canal, and with the Basingstoke Canal. It has been improved under acts passed in 1671 and 1760.

WEY AND ARUN JUNCTION CANAL, cos. Surrey and Sussex.

The length of this canal from its union with the Arun navigation, at New Bridge, to the Wey at Shalford, between Guildford and Godalming, is about eighteen miles. It was made under the authority of an act passed in 1813.

WILTS AND BERKS CANAL, cos. Berks and Wilts.

This canal, commencing in the Thames, at Abingdon, passes to Breach Field, where a cut branches off to Wantage, and proceeds westward by Sparsholt, Uffington, Shrivenham, Stratton, and other places, to Swindon, where the North Wilts Canal diverges from it, the main line continuing by Wootton Bassett, Dauntsey, Laycock, and Melksham, to Semington, where it unites with the Kennet and Avon Canal; having sent off branches to Calne and Chippenham, in its passage through Wiltshire. The length of this canal is fifty-two miles. The acts under which it was executed, were obtained in 1795, 1801, 1810, 1813, 1815, and 1821.

WISBECH CANAL, co. Cambridge.

This canal, extending six miles from the Nene River, at Wisbech, to the Old River, at Outwell, was constructed under the sanction of an act passed in 1794.

WITHAM RIVER, co. Lincoln.

Several acts passed between 1671 and 1829, for improving the navigation of this river; which extends from Lincoln, by Tattershall, where it is joined by the Horn-castle Navigation, and three miles further south by the Sleaford Canal, through the Fens to Boston, five miles below which it terminates in the Wash, after a course of about thirty-eight miles.

WORCESTER AND BIRMINGHAM CANAL, co. Worcester.

This canal begins at the junction of the Birmingham and Birmingham and Fazeley Canals, communicates with the Dudley Canal, at Selly Oak, with the Stratford Canal, at King's Norton, and passing south-west by several places, and near Droitwich and Bromsgrove, joins the Severn at Diglis, a little below Worcester. Its whole length is twenty-nine miles, in which there is a fall of 428 feet by seventy-one locks. It was made under the authority of an act passed in 1791, and other acts relating to it were obtained in 1798, 1804, 1808, and 1815.

WREAK AND EYE RIVERS, or LEICESTER AND MELTON - MOWBRAY NAVIGATION, co. Leicester.

Acts passed in 1791 and 1800, for improving this navigation from Leicester, where it joins the Leicester Navigation to Melton-Mowbray, a distance of eleven miles.

WYE AND LUGG RIVERS, cos. Radnor, S. W. Hereford, Monmouth, and Gloucester.

The navigable portion of the Wye, from Hay to the Severn, is ninety-nine miles and a half. It is crossed by the Hay Railway, near Whitney Bridge, whence its course to Hereford is very circuitous: near Mordiford it receives the Lugg, which is navigable but a short distance before the junction; and hence it proceeds southward by Ross and Monmouth to Chepstow, where it falls into the Severn. Acts for improving this navigation passed in 1662, 1695, 1727, and 1809.

WYRLEY AND ESSINGTON CANAL, co. Stafford.

This canal, made under the authority of acts passed in 1792 and 1794, extends from Wyrley Bank to the Birmingham Canal, near Wolverhampton, with various branches, one of which joins the Coventry Canal, near Huddlesford. The length from the Coventry Canal to the junction with that of Birmingham is twenty-four miles; engineer, Mr. W. Pitt.

Railways or tramroads have been in use to a limited extent in coal-mines and other situations, for a considerable period of time; but when they were first introduced is uncertain. Their principal importance arises from the advantages they afford for employing locomotive steam-carriages. Mr. Trevethick, of Cornwall, is said to have been the first person who adopted the idea of applying the steam-engine to the purpose of propelling loaded waggons on railways; and his plan was practised with improvements by Mr. John Blenkinsop, manager of the collieries, at Middleton, near Leeds, belonging to the late C. Brandling, Esq., and the first experiment which he made was upon Brandling's railroad from Middleton to Leeds. Since that attempt, the subject has occupied the ingenuity of several eminent engineers; and the trials which took place in October, 1825, on the Liverpool and Manchester Railway, to ascertain the comparative powers of different steam-carriages made by Messrs. Gurney, Stephenson, Acworth, and Errickson and Braithwaite, have been followed by regular establishments for travelling and conveying goods, by means of the propelling power of steam.

ABER DULAI RAILWAY, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

It extends from Aber Dulais to Cwm Dulais, about eight miles and a half on an ascending plane, with a rise of 426 feet, and it was constructed in pursuance of an act of Parliament of 7 George IV. at the estimated expense of 8730*l.*; engineer, Mr. W. Brough.

AIRDRIE, or BALLOCHNEY RAILWAY, co. Lanark, S.

This railway extends from Kipps Colliery Branch of the Monkland and Kirkintilloch Railway, one mile and a half west of Airdrie, to New Monkland, a distance of four miles: besides various branches. It was made under the authority of an act of Parliament passed in 1826, at the estimated cost of 18,431*l.*; engineer, Mr. T. Grainger.

BERWICK AND KELSO RAILWAY, cos. Durham, Roxburgh, and Berwick, S.

An act authorizing this undertaking passed in 1811; but it remains unexecuted.

BOLTON AND LEIGH RAILWAY, co. Lancaster.

This railway, forming a communication between the Manchester, Bolton, and Bury Canal and the Leeds and Liverpool Canal, was constructed under the authority of acts passed in 1825 and 1828. Mr. Dalglish was the engineer first employed in this work, but it has since been under the direction of Mr. Stevenson.

BRANDLING'S RAILROAD, W. R. co. York.

This railway, extending from collieries belonging to the Rev. R. H. Brandling, about three miles south of Leeds, to that town, was made under the sanction of an act passed in 1758.

BRISTOL AND GLOUCESTERSHIRE RAILWAY, co. Gloucester.

In 1828 an act was passed for making this railway from the east side of the city of Bristol to Coalpit Heath, in the parish of Westerleigh, a distance of nine miles, in the course of which, at Staple Hill, is a tunnel 880 yards in length. The estimate for this work, made by Mr. W. H. Townsend, was 41,819*l*. This railway is to be joined near Rodway Hill by the Avon and Gloucestershire Railway.

BULLO PILL, or DEAN FOREST RAILWAY, co. Gloucester.

Acts for making this railway, through the forest of Dean to the bank of the Severn, passed in 1809 and 1826.

CANTERBURY AND WHITSTABLE RAILWAY, co. Kent.

This road extends from Whitstable Bay, opposite the eastern point of the Isle of Sheppey, to Canterbury. Acts for making it were obtained in 1825, 1827, and 1828.

CLARENCE RAILWAY, co. Durham.

This railway extends from the river Tees to the city of Durham, with various branches, one of which joins the Stockton and Darlington Railway; the entire length being forty-five miles and a half. Acts for making it passed in 1828 and 1829; and the estimate for the works made by Mr. Leather, the engineer, amounted to 243,003*l*.

CROMFORD AND HIGH PEAK RAILWAY, co. Derby.

In 1825 an act was obtained for making this road from the Cromford Canal at Wirksworth, to the Peak Forest Canal near Whaley, in Cheshire. Mr. Josias Jessop was the engineer, and his estimate for the works was 155,079*l*.

CROYDON, MERSTHAM, and GODSTONE RAILWAY, co. Surrey.

This road, from Pitlake Meadow, Croydon, where it joins the south end of the Surrey Railway, to Merstham and Godstone, was constructed under acts passed in 1803 and 1806. The railway is double, and its length is about twelve miles.

DUNDEE AND NEWTYLE RAILWAY, co. Forfar, S.

Acts passed in 1826 and 1830, for making this railroad from the port of Dundee to Newtyle, through a mountainous tract of country, eleven miles and a half in length. There are three inclined planes on the line of this road; and the estimated expense of the works was 27,600*l*.

EDINBURGH AND DALKEITH RAILWAY, co. Edinburgh, S.

This railway, from Edinburgh to the south side of the river North Esk, near Dalkeith and Newbattle, with various branches, is making, under the authority of acts passed in 1826 and 1829.

GARNKIRK AND GLASGOW RAILWAY, co. Lanark, S.

Acts for making this road from the Monkland and Kyrkintilloch Railway, at Cargill Colliery, to Glasgow, were passed in 1826, 1827, and 1830.

GLOUCESTERSHIRE AND AVON RAILWAY, co. Gloucester.

In 1828 an act passed for constructing this railway, from the river Avon, near Keynsham, to the Bristol and Gloucestershire Railway, at Rodway Hill.

GLOUCESTER AND CHELTENHAM RAILWAY, co. Gloucester.

This road was made under the authority of acts passed in 1809 and 1815.

KILMARNOCK RAILWAY, co. Ayr, S.

This road, extending from Kilmarnock to Troon, a distance of about nine miles and a half, was made under the sanction of an act passed in 1808.

KINGTON RAILWAY, cos. Hereford and Radnor, S. W.

This railway forms a communication between the Hay Railway, at Eardisley, and the lime-works, near Burlinjob, Radnorshire; and its length is fourteen miles. The act for making it passed in 1818.

KIRKINTILLOCH, or MONKLAND AND KIRKINTILLOCH RAILWAY, cos. Dumbarton and Lanark, S.

This road, extending from Old Monkland to the Forth and Clyde Canal, near Kirkintilloch, was undertaken under the sanction of an act passed in 1824.

LEEDS AND SELBY RAILWAY, W. R. co. York.

The act for making this railway passed in 1830. It will extend nearly twenty miles; and its estimated cost is 200,000*l*.

LEICESTER AND SWANNINGTON RAILWAY, co. Leicester.

For making this road from the river Soar through Leicester to Swannington, with four branches, an act passed in 1830. Estimate 75,453*l*.

LIVERPOOL AND MANCHESTER RAILWAY, co. Lancaster.

This tramroad extends from Liverpool, through Walton, Prescott, Winwick, Warrington, Leigh, and Eccles, to Manchester, with various collateral branches. The first act relating to it passed in 1826, by which the proprietors were authorized to raise 10,000*l*.; and subsequent enactments took place in 1827, 1828, and 1829. The whole length of the road, including a tunnel under Liverpool, is thirty miles and three-quarters, in which space there are three inclined planes.

MANCHESTER AND OLDHAM RAILWAY, co. Lancaster.

In 1826 an act was obtained for making this road from Manchester, through Newton, Failsworth, Prestwich-cum-Oldham, and Ashton-under-Lyne, to Mumps Brook, in the parish of Oldham.

MANSFIELD AND PINXTON RAILWAY, cos. Nottingham and Derby.

This road, which passes near Alfreton, and twice communicates with the Cromford Canal, was made under the authority of an act obtained in 1817.

MONMOUTH RAILWAY, cos. Gloucester and Monmouth.

In 1810 an act passed for making this road from Howler Slade, in the Forest of Dean to Monmouth, with several branches.

NANTLE RAILWAY, co. Carnarvon, N. W.

This road extends from Gloddfarlon Slate-quarries, near Nantlle Pool, to the shipping-quay at Carnarvon. Acts for making it passed in 1825, 1827, and 1828.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE AND CARLISLE RAILWAY, cos. Northumberland and Cumberland.

For this very extensive undertaking an act passed in 1829, giving the proprietors authority to raise 300,000*l*.

PENRHYNMAUR RAILWAY, co. Anglesey, N. W.

An act passed in 1812 for making this road from Penrhynmaur coal-works to Red Wharf Bay, crossing the turnpike-road between Holyhead and Bangor.

PLYMOUTH AND DARTMOOR RAILWAY, co. Devon.

This road, made under the authority of acts passed in 1819, 1820, and 1821, extends from Lydford, on Dartmoor, where an establishment for French prisoners was formed during the last war, to Egg Buckland, near Plymouth.

REDRUTH AND CHASEWATER RAILWAY, co. Cornwall.

In 1824 an act passed for making this road from Redruth to Nangiles, where it is met by a branch from mines near Scorrier Hall, and passes on by Killiganoon House to Point Quay, where it terminates.

SAINT HELEN'S AND RUNCORN GAP RAILWAY, co. Lancaster.

For making this road, with branches from various collieries to the Mersey, an act passed in 1830. Estimate 119,980*l*.

STOCKTON AND DARLINGTON RAILWAY, co. Durham.

This road commences at the river Tees, near Stockton, joins the Clarence Railway, and divides into various branches, one of which extends to Darlington. It was made under the authority of acts passed in 1821, 1823, 1821, and 1828.

STRATFORD AND MORETON RAILWAY, cos. Warwick and Gloucester.

Commencing at Stratford-on-Avon, this road passes by Atherstone, Tredington, and other places, to Moreton-in-the-Marsh, sending off a branch to Shipston-upon-Stour. Acts for making it passed in 1821 and 1825. Estimated expense, 33,456*l*.

SURREY IRON RAILWAY, co. Surrey.

This road extends from the Thames at Wandsworth, by Mitcham, to Croydon, where it joins the Croydon, Merstham, and Godstone Railway. Acts for making it passed in 1801 and 1805.

WARRINGTON AND NEWTON RAILWAY, co. Lancaster.

In 1829 and 1830 acts passed for making his railway, at the estimated expense of 7,008*l*.

WIGAN BRANCH RAILWAY, co. Lancaster.

In 1830 an act passed for making this road from Wigan to the Liverpool and Manchester Railway, at Newton, with collateral branches. Estimated expense 70,000*l*.

INNERKIP, shire of Renfrew, S.

P. T. Greenock (65) $5\frac{1}{2}$ m. SW. Pop. 2344. Fairs, three annually.

A parish and village, the latter of which, seated at the mouth of the small river Kip, is a neat and well-frequented bathing-place, possessing also a very productive fishery, and a ferry across the Firth of Clyde to Dunoon, in Argyll, which is distant five miles. The parish extends seven miles along the coast, which is indented by several fine bays and harbours, that of Gourock in particular, being safe and commodious. About one half of the surface is arable, and inclosed, while the remainder is either moorland, or covered with heath. The living is in the presbytery of Paisley and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, Sir Michael Stewart, Bart., whose spacious mansion, Ardgowan, stands near the shore of the Clyde, in a delightful situation, embellished with extensive and thriving plantations. The church has been lately rebuilt.

INNERLEITHEN, shire of Peebles, S.

P. T. Peebles (20) $5\frac{1}{2}$ m. ESE. Pop. 703. Fair, Oct. 14.

A parish and village, the latter of which is situated at the confluence of the river Leithen, with the Tweed, a spot peculiarly well adapted for manufactures, being surrounded by a country abounding in wool, and intersected by a stream, capable of turning the most powerful machinery, conveniences that have led to the establishment of an extensive manufacture of woollen cloth, and the employment of most of the inhabitants. The parish extends into the shire of Selkirk, and altogether comprises about 22,300 Scottish acres of rugged and precipitous ground, rising from the banks of the two rivers, to the height of 1000 feet, and chiefly laid out in sheep-walks, remarkable for affording luxuriant and healthy pasture, sufficient for more than 15,000 sheep. At the north-eastern extremity of this district is the mountain, termed Windlestraw Law, near which the shires of Edinburgh, Peebles, and Selkirk, meet. A mineral spring here, similar to the Harrogate water, is in high repute for the cure of scrofula and diseases of the eye. The living is in the presbytery of Peebles and synod of Lothian and Tweeddale; patrons, the Oswald family. The church, a very neat edifice, has been lately rebuilt. This parish exhibits numerous vestiges of antiquity, the most remarkable of which are the ruins of a fortified tower at the entrance of each defile; a triple-intrenched camp, near the village, and the old castle of Horseburgh, on the margin of the Tweed, adorned with young and thriving plantations.

INNERPEFFRAY, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Crieff (34) 3½ m. SE. Pop. with Pa.

A small village in the parish of Madderty, situated near the ruins of an ancient castle, on the bank of the river Earn, which is here crossed by a ferry. It is noted for its charity-school, and a library, founded by David, Lord Madderty, for the accommodation of the inhabitants, to which additions still continue to be made.

INNERWICK, shire of Haddington, S.

P. T. Dunbar (28) 5 m. SE b S. Pop. 924.

A parish, twelve miles in length, and averaging four in breadth, lying on the coast of the North Sea, or German Ocean, by which it is bounded on the north and east, and having a small creek, convertible with ease into an harbour. The surface, though level as it approaches the sea, rises inland to a considerable elevation, and the soil in general is fertile. Freestone, limestone, and peats, are plentiful, but coal is mostly used for fuel along the shore, where there is also a very profitable lobster-fishery. The living is in the presbytery of Dunbar and synod of Lothian and Tweeddale; patron, William Nisbet, Esq. The church was erected in 1784, previously to which there was an ancient chapel, the ruins of which are still visible on a promontory, at the northern extremity of the parish. Black Castle Hill is occupied by a small Danish camp; and here are the remains of a border fortress of the Hamiltons, which was taken by the Duke of Somerset, in 1547.

INNY, co. Longford, Leinster, I.

A sluggish stream, having few obstructions, intersecting the barony of Rathcline; it could readily be rendered navigable. In the year 960, a bloody conflict took place upon the banks of this river, between Mahon and Feargal, in which the latter was defeated. It is a remarkable circumstance, that two of the brightest ornaments in the literary annals of Ireland were born upon the banks of this little river; the first, Oliver Goldsmith, at Pallas, near Ballymahon; the second, Maria Edgeworth, at Edgeworthstown House. The Royal Canal crosses the Inny, by an aqueduct of five arches, each having a span of twenty feet.

INOSH, co. Clare, Munster, I.

An island in the barony of Bunratty, situated in the river Shannon. The name is a corruption of Yech, which is itself a corruption of Inis, an island.

INSKIP, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Kirkham (225) 5 m. NNE.

Pop. with Sowerby, 739.

A township in the parish of St. Michael and hundred of Amounderness.

INSTOW, co. Devon.

P. T. Bideford (201) 4 m. N b E. Pop. 353.

A parish in the hundred of Fremington; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 12l. 17s. 3½d.; ann. val. P. R. 23l. 10s.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) C. W. Sibthorp, Esq.

INTWOOD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Norwich (108) 4 m. SW. Pop. 44.

A parish in the hundred of Humbleyard; living, a rectory, with that of Keswick, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5l.; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with Keswick rectory.

INVAR, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Dunkeld (35) ½ m. WSW.

Pop. with Pa.

A small village in the parish of Little Dunkeld, situated at the junction of the rivers Bran and Tay, and connected with the town of Dunkeld by a bridge, over which passes the great Highland road from Perth to Inverness. Neil Gow, the celebrated composer of Scotch reels, was born here.

INVER, co. Antrim, Ulster, I.

P. T. Larne (123) m. Pop. with Glynn.

A parish in the barony of Belfast; living, a rectory in the diocese of Down and archdiocese of Armagh, being part of the corps of the deanery of Connor. See Carriackfergus.

INVER, or INVERNAYLE, co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

P. T. Killybegs (158) 5 m. E. Pop. 9364.

A parish in the barony of Bannagh, watered by the river of Inver, and situated upon Inver Bay. There was a pier erected here at the expense of Parliament, but the unskilfulness of the workmanship was so gross, that it has literally been washed away by the great swell of the Atlantic. The living is a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Raphoe and archdiocese of Armagh; valued, by commutation for tithes, at 346l. 3s. 1d.; possessing a church, glebe-house, and about sixty-four acres of land, and being the corps of a prebend. St. Natalis, who died A. D. 563, was abbot of Inver; and a monastery, for Franciscans of the third order, was founded here some time in the fifteenth century, probably upon the site of the ancient abbey of Natalis.

INVER, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

P. T. Crossmalua (192) m. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Kilcommon and barony of Erris, situated upon the isthmus which connects the peninsula of Mullet to the mainland, and just midway between Broad Haven and Biskrod Bay. It is a good fishing-station, and has derived incalculable benefit from the new line of road through Erris, connecting Bellmullet and Castlebar.

INVER, shire of Sutherland, S.

Edinburgh 245 m. NNW.

A small village and excellent fishing-station in the parish of Assint. It is situated on the Minsh Channel, near the mouth of the small river Culag, and possesses a spacious and secure harbour, termed Loch Inver. At a neighbouring farm there is a burying-ground.

INVERALEN, shires of Elgin and Inverness, S.

P. T. Grantown (135) 1½ m. SW.
Pop. with Cromdale.

An ancient parish in union with that of Cromdale, lying on the west bank of the river Spey. The old church and cemetery are still in use.

INVERARITY, shire of Forfar, S.

P. T. Forfar (70) 4½ m. S. Pop. 960.

A parish about three miles square, and of unequal surface, though generally enclosed, and either well cultivated or planted. The living is in the presbytery of Forfar and synod of Angus and Mearns; patrons, the Fotheringham family, who have an elegant mansion here. The church has lately undergone repair. Hare Faulds, an extensive Roman camp, is partly in this parish.

INVERARY, or INVERARAY, shire of Argyll, S.

Edinburgh 114½ m. W b N. Glasgow 60 m.
W. Pop. 1137. Memb. of Pt. 1, with Ayr, &c.

A royal burgh, seaport, post-town, and parish, in the district of Argyll; the former the capital of the shire and seat of the High Court of Justiciary for the western circuit, and of the jurisdictions of justiciary and sheriff of Argyll, an office hereditary in the illustrious family of Campbell. The town is a regular and well-built place, delightfully ranged around the head of a small bay on Loch Fine, which there receives the river Aray, whence it derives its name. It has an elegant new church in the Gothic, or what is familiarly termed, the later English style, erected from a design by Milne, and comprising two places of worship under the same roof, in one of which the service is performed in English, and in the other in Gaelic. A commodious prison has been recently erected; and in the centre of the town is a monument, raised in commemoration of the massacre of seventeen gentlemen of the name of Campbell, who were executed upon the spot, without trial, for alleged participation in the Duke of Monmouth's rebellion. The rise of this place, which before the fourteenth century was only a poor fishing-village, is attributable to the ancestors of the Dukes of Argyll, having about that period made it their chief residence, and founded a new town, to which the inhabitants removed from their former dwellings near the ancient castle, on the north side of the bay. It is governed under charter of Charles I., by a provost, two bailies, and a council appointed by the Duke of Argyll; and jointly with Ayr, Campbeltown, Irvine, and Rothesay, sends one member to Parliament. The revenue of the burgh arises chiefly from the petty customs, from land bestowed upon it by its noble proprietors, and from a perpetual rent-charge of 20l. secured upon the domain by the late duke. Many of the inhabitants are employed in the manufacture of linen, woollen cloth, iron, and carpentry, but the town derives its principal support from the herring-fishery, in Loch Fine, which produces annually upwards of 20,000 barrels for exportation. Wool, timber, and oak-bark are likewise exported; while the imports chiefly consist of home and foreign merchandise, including meal and coal, also iron-ore from the west of England, consigned to the Argyll Iron Company, who in 1754 established large blast-furnaces, about two miles from the town, for the purpose of smelting the ore by means of charcoal, produced from the neighbouring extensive forests. The parish stretches about eighteen miles along Loch Fine, but is no more than three in breadth, and is watered by the rivers Aray and Shira; also by a deep fresh-water lake, termed Dub Loch, which is abundantly stocked with fish, and communicates with the sea by a narrow outlet, crossed by a bridge. The general aspect of the surface, which is finely ornamented with wood, giving shelter to a profusion of game, is mountainous, though interspersed with beautiful and extensive plains, rich in soil and highly cultivated; of these, the picturesque Glen-Shira, is about five miles long, and noted for its drying-barns, erected by the Duke of Argyll, for the purpose of making hay, or drying corn during the heaviest rains. The living is in two distinct benefices, Highland and Lowland, in the presbytery of Inverary and synod of Argyll; patron, the Duke of Argyll and Lord of Inverary, whose princely mansion partakes both of the dignity of a Highland castle, and the elegance of a more modern taste. From the lawn, in front of the castle, the distant scenery is sublime beyond expression; and near it is a rude pillar of stone, said to have been raised over the grave of some hero.

INVERAVEN, shires of Banff and Elgin, S.

P. T. Grantown (135) 1½ m. NE. Pop. 2181.

A parish, mostly in the former shire, eighteen miles in length by five in breadth, and watered by the rivers Avon and Spey, which here unite their streams; it is also intersected by the smaller river Livet, which gives name to a considerable district termed Glen Livet, noted for its great fertility and valuable substratum of limestone. Living, in the presbytery of Aberdour and synod of Moray; patron, Lord Seafield. The church, a venerable structure, is dedicated to St. Peter. There are ruins of several other places of worship in different parts of the parish, the burying-grounds of which are still used for sepulture; also the remains of three Druidical temples.

INVERCHAOLAIN, shire of Argyll, S. c.
P. T. Rothesay (89) 6½ m. N. Pop. 651.

A parish in the district of Cowal, lying on the estuary Loch Straven, and intersected by the small river Chaolain, both abounding with a variety of fish. The surface is rugged, but affords good pasturage for sheep and exhibits a vast extent of natural wood in which game is extremely plentiful. Living, in the presbytery of Dunoon and synod of Argyll; patron, the Marquis of Bute. The church was erected in 1745. There are vestiges of many graves and cairns; and a small island at the mouth of Loch Ridau is memorable, as having been a depository for arms and ammunition belonging to the Duke of Monmouth's followers in 1685, but which fell into the hands of government before they could be rendered available.

INVERESK, shire of Edinburgh, S.
Edinburgh 5 m. E. Pop. 7836.

A parish and village, the latter of which, from the salubrity of the climate and its pleasing site, on an eminence overlooking the beautiful windings of the river Esk, and the Firth of Forth, has been justly termed the Montpelier of Scotland; between it and the towns of Musselburgh and Fisher-Row, which are also within the limits of this parish, are the fine downs termed Musselburgh Links a noted field for playing the national and manly game of Golf, and upon which Cromwell encamped in 1650. The parish contains about 3570 acres all in high cultivation, more especially on the banks of the Esk, and the inhabitants of the different villages are chiefly supported by tillage, and by a constant traffic with Edinburgh, where they find a ready market for the produce of the soil and fisheries, as well as for the salt manufactured here. Freestone and limestone are abundant, and a most productive and valuable vein of coal lies under the entire surface of the parish. Living, in the presbytery of Dalkeith and synod of Lothian and Tweeddale; patron, the Duke of Buccleuch. The church, which is greatly dilapidated, and dedicated to St. Michael, was built on the site of a Colonia Romana, and with the materials of the Prætorium; besides this relic, foundations of various buildings, and many other marks of Roman occupancy, near the shore, have been frequently discovered, and some of them are still visible. The celebrated battle of Pinkie, was fought in this parish between the protector Somerset and the regent Arran, in 1547, when the unfortunate Mary was yet an infant. Overlooking the field is a hill, termed the Queen's Seat, which afterwards proved still more fatal to that princess, who having been then deserted by Bothwell, gave herself up to the confederated lords, her enemies, on June 15th, 1567; the result is too well known to need repetition.

INVERGORDON, shire of Ross, S.

Edinburgh 103 m. NNW. Pop. with Pa.

A small seaport and post-town in the parish of Rosskeen, situated on the northern coast of the Firth of Cromarty, over which there is a stated ferry to and from the town of Cromarty. It is also termed the Ness of Invergordon, and has a secure harbour capable of receiving vessels of 100 tons burden. The parish church stands about one mile and a half to the westward, and the parochial school in the immediate vicinity of this place. The castle of Invergordon, surrounded by beautiful and very extensive plantations is the noble residence of the family of Macleod.

INVERGOWRIE, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Dundee (40½) 3 m. W. Pop. 36.

A small parish, mostly in the above shire, but extending into that of Forfar. It is situated on the northern side of the Firth of Tay; about half a mile from the village are vestiges of the Roman camp Cater, Mellie, which seems to have formed part of a chain of forts constructed for the purpose of keeping up a communication with the Roman navy when lying in the Tay. Alexander I., on escaping assassination at his palace of Liff, embarked from this place. The living is united to that of Liff, in the presbytery of Dundee and synod of Angus and Mearns. The first church north of the Tay, is said to have been founded here by the legate Boniface, on his landing from Rome in 620; it has been long demolished; the inhabitants still use the cemetery for interment.

INVERKEILOR, shire of Forfar, S.

P. T. Arbroath (58) 6 m. N b E. Pop. 1785.

A parish and village, the latter situated on the small river Keilor, about one mile above its fall into the German Ocean. The parish, in which also is the fishing-village called Ethiehaven, contains more than 8000 acres in high cultivation, and is intersected by the river Lunan, which empties itself into a bay of the same name, affording excellent anchorage when the wind blows off the shore. The coast, which extends about six miles, is mostly flat and sandy, but southward it becomes considerably elevated, rising into a lofty promontory termed the Red Head, from being composed of a freestone of that hue; in its inexhaustible quarries are found beautiful specimens of the Scotch pebble, and from them was drawn the material used by William the Lion in building his royal hunting-seat, Red Castle, the venerable ruins of which still occupy a neighbouring hill. The living is in the presbytery of Aberbrothock and synod of Augus and Mearns. Here are two schools each with a small endowment. The remains of St. Murch's chapel and that of Quytefield, both monastic edifices of very ancient date are still visible in this parish, as are vestiges of several Danish intrenchments.

INVERKEITHING, shire of Fife, S.

Edinburgh 12½ m. NW. Dunfermline 8 m. E. S. Pop. 2512. Fairs, 1st Wed. in Mar.; 3d Thurs. in May and June; 1st Wed. in Aug.; and 3d Wed. in Oct. Mem. of Pt. 1, with Stirling, &c.

A royal burgh, seaport, market, and post-town and parish, occupying a pleasant elevation rising from the northern shore of the Firth of Forth, which here forms a noble bay of the same name, affording secure anchorage for ships of all descriptions, including the men of war on the Leith station, which in heavy gales occasionally run up hither from Leith roads for safety; here also foreign vessels usually perform quarantine, for whose accommodation a lazaretto is moored at the mouth of the harbour for the purpose of receiving their merchandise and fumigating it under the superintendence of an inspector. Within this bay is the harbour which has been recently improved and deepened, so that ships can now take in or discharge their cargoes alongside the excellent and commodious quays constructed close to the town. Inverkeithing is a very ancient place, having been a royal residence in the time of David I., when it contained convents of Franciscan and Dominican friars, the remains of one of which termed The Inns, is still exempt from the magisterial authority exercised over the rest of the burgh. At present it consists of one spacious street intersected by several others of inferior width, and contains the parish church, which is a large structure; also a town-house, a prison, and various public offices, under one roof. It was made a royal burgh by William the Lion, and has since received charters from other kings, all ratified by James VI., under which it is governed by a provost, two bailies, a dean of guild, and a treasurer, who are annually elected by the councillors, and the deacons of the trades. The number of the town council is not limited, but cannot be less than twenty, so that every burgess may become a councillor and continue in office during life. The jurisdiction of the magistrates extends from the water of Dovan to that of Leven, and northward as far as Kinross, and though many of their ancient rights and dues have been disposed of, the revenue is still considerable and applied for the public good. This burgh, with those of Culross, Queensferry, and Stirling, enjoys the privilege of sending one member to Parliament. There are several salt-pans and an iron-foundry; and a branch of the custom-house of Borrowstouness is established at this place for the convenience of its commerce, as well as that of St. David's, the chief place of export for the produce of the extensive coal-mines in the neighbourhood. Several vessels belonging to merchants of this port trade with the Mediterranean, and others are constantly employed as coasters and in the herring-fishery. The parish is three miles and a half in length by about one in breadth, and includes the island of Inchgarvie, the fishing-village of Bruce Haven and that of North Queen's Ferry, between which and South Queen's Ferry, on the opposite side of the Forth, passenger-boats are in constant requisition. The climate is pure and healthy, and the soil yields rich crops of corn. The living is in the presbytery of Dunfermline and synod of Fife; patron, Sir William Erskine, Bart. Upon a rock surrounded at high water by the sea are the ruins of Rosyth Castle, and the summit of Lethem Hill is covered with the remains of a Druidical circle; there is also in the northern part of the parish an ancient monument ten feet high, called the Standing Stone, curiously carved with rude figures of men and horses. Commodore Roxburgh and Admiral Greig, who became distinguished officers in the Russian navy, were born here.

INVERKEITHNY, shire of Banff, S.

P. T. Turreff (155) 6 m. WSW. Pop. 577.

A parish five miles and a half in length, by six in breadth, intersected by the burn Keithny, which falls into the river Doveron in a narrow valley near the church. Living, in the presbytery of Turreff and synod of Aberdeen; patron, Morison of Bognie.

INVERLOCHY, shire of Inverness, S. See Kilmanivaig.

INVERNESS, shire of, S.

NE to SW, 92 m. NW to SE, 50 m. Pop. 90,157. Parishes 35. Royal burgh 1. Mem. Pt. 1.

A maritime and very extensive county of Scotland, bounded on the east by those of Aberdeen and Elgin or Moray, on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, on the north by the shire of Ross and the Moray Firth, and on the south by the shires of Argyll and Perth, including also the islands of North and South Uist, Eigg, and several others of the Hebrides. It comprehends the three districts, Badenoch, Glenely, and Lochaber, and extends across the entire country from the North Sea to the Atlantic, having the noble Lochs Ness, Oich, and Lochy, running in a direct line through the centre, or vale of Glenmorenahalabin, from north-west to south-east, and uniting the northern and western oceans by means of the great Caledonian Canal cut from the Moray Firth to that arm of the sea termed Lochiel. This extensive vale is bounded on each side by wild and barren tracts, terminating in lofty mountains, of which the celebrated Ben Nevis, whose summit is capped with eternal snow, is elevated 4370 feet above the level of the sea, and is principally composed of brown porphyry, with a finer specimen of a green colour, speckled with white quartz; it contains a rich vein of lead ore, and the red granite quarried in this mountain is deemed the best and most beautiful yet discovered in any part of the world; its verdant sides, as well as the surface of the adjoining mountains, which attain to nearly the same height, the more distant tracts, and the forests on the borders of the county, respectively afford provender for numerous sheep, cattle, goats, and game of almost every description, including vast herds of red deer and roes, the Alpine hare, &c. &c. This great district is intersected by numerous rapid streams, which, uniting at various points, form the rivers Beauly Foyers, noted for its stupendous falls, Lochy and Sprey, with others of minor consideration, all of them well stocked with salmon, trout, and different other kinds of fish. There are evident remains of extensive forests, consisting of several tracts of oak, fir, mountain-ash, and other wood, and in the neighbourhood of the lakes and rivers are large patches of arable lands, well cultivated, though the farmers are mostly engaged in rearing black cattle and sheep for the southern markets. Springs impregnated with sulphur and iron, are met with as are veins of lead, silver, and iron ore, but the absence of coal is severely felt. Gaelic is generally spoken, and is still the most prevalent language. Since the construction of the military stations, Fort Augustus, Fort George, and Fort William, to overawe the inhabitants of this wild and remote region, the means of communication with the south has been rendered equally expeditious and convenient by the formation of various roads and bridges at the public expense, which are kept in excellent repair. The limits anciently assigned to this shire, comprehended the whole of that division of Scotland lying north of the Grampians, the extent of which entitled it to be considered rather as a vice-royalty than as a secondary division of the kingdom, though in the earlier annals of Scotland its kings appear to have had but a doubtful authority over this part of the realm, the Norwegian princes then possessing the province of Caithness, with the isles of Orkney and Shetland, while the Lords of the Isles held dominion over the Hebrides, and the adjacent districts of the Mainland, and the rest of the country was peopled by rude and barbarous tribes who owned no regular authority or government. No steps seem to have been taken towards the division of Inverness so late as 1633, but in the act passed by the first parliament of Charles I. against the clan Gregor, the sheriffs of Perth, Dumbarton, Angus, Mearns, Stirling, Banff, Elgin, Cromarty, &c. &c. are expressly noticed, though there is no mention of Argyll, Caithness, Nairn, Ross, and Sutherland, which, however, appear to have been all distinct from the shire of Inverness, at the Restoration, and no material alteration in the limits of the latter have since been made. In Glenelg are the remains of several circular towers, similar to those so common in the Hebrides, with galleries, and flights of steps ascending to the top, which is quite open. Inverness has the honour to give the title of Earl to his Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex one of the King's brothers.

INVERNESS, shire of Inverness, S.

Edinburgh 155 m. N b W. Fort Augustus 32 m. N E. Pop. 12,264. Markets, twice weekly. Fairs, Feb. 11, or Wed. after; and the Wed. after July 18; Aug. 11; Sept. 11; and Nov. 11 (all O. S.) Memb. of Pt. 1, with Fortrose, &c.

A royal burgh, seaport, market-town, and parish, the capital of the shire, also of the Highlands, and the seat of the Court of Justiciary for the northern circuit, as well as of a presbytery. It is situated on the southern coast of the Moray Firth, near the mouth of the river Ness, from which it takes its name, and by which it is divided into two parts, connected by a noble stone bridge of seven arches, thrown across the stream, the southern division of the town being the principal and by far the most populous. The harbour has depth of water sufficient not only for the admission of vessels of 200 tons burden, but to enable them to take in or discharge their cargoes alongside its commodious quay; while ships of a superior class and tonnage may ride with perfect safety on the Firth, about a mile below. This town, a century ago, consisted chiefly of barns, granaries, kilns, &c.; and so lately as the rebellion of 1745, presented an appearance little better than a confused heap of ruins, but since that period it has been wholly rebuilt, and is still improving in all quarters. It is now a large, well-built place, containing several spacious streets of handsome houses, three national churches, one Episcopalian church, a Methodist chapel, a court-house, and tollbooth, of elegant design, with a stately tower, surmounted by a spire of beautiful proportions, a general post-office, a public academy of high repute, erected in 1790, and conducted by a rector and four masters; and several other schools, four of which, here and in other parts of the parish, owe their origin to the Society for propagating Christian Knowledge. Inverness was made a royal burgh, by Malcolm Canmore, from whom it received its first charter, which was ratified and renewed by succeeding monarchs, till its constitution was settled by James VI., as it now exists, and under which it is governed by a provost, elected triennially, four baillies, a dean of guild, and a treasurer, who continue in office two years, and twenty-one town-councillors, chosen annually, at Michaelmas, who have a clerk and a clerk-depute. There are six incorporated trades, at the head of which are as many deacons, who elect out of their own body a deacon-convener, or president of all the corporations, who, by virtue of his office, is a member of the town-council. This burgh, jointly with those of Fortrose, Nairn, and Forres, sends one member to Parliament. All criminals from the shires of Inverness, Orkney, Caithness, Sutherland, Ross, Cromarty, Nairn, and Elgin, are confined and tried here. The markets are amply supplied with fish, flesh, and fowl, of the best quality, and at a cheap rate. A number of the inhabitants find employment in the manufacture of hemp, flax, linen, and woollen cloth, cotton, leather, &c.; and in a considerable salmon-fishery, in the river Ness, which is farmed by some of the principal fishmongers in London, and the produce conveyed thither in vessels belonging to this port, whose return cargoes chiefly consist of colonial merchandise, and hardware. A convent of Black Friars, founded here in 1233, by Alexander II., was demolished by Cromwell, and the materials appropriated to the erection of a citadel, at the mouth of the harbour. On a hill, overlooking the town, are some slight traces of a castle, said to have been built by Malcolm Canmore; and of another fort, constructed by Cromwell, but they have been almost obliterated by the plough, as have the castles of Macbeth and Cummings, which stood in this neighbourhood. The parish is ten miles in length by two miles and a half in breadth, and its surface pleasingly diversified with hills rising into mountains, plains, and extensive plantations in a very thriving condition. The soil is rich and productive, and the roads and bridges, particularly the great military road which intersects the district, are in capital repair. The principal mountains in this parish form a continuation of the great chain that separated the Scottish and Pictish kingdoms, termed Drumalbin, in which range is Craig Phatrack, 1150 feet in height, and crowned with the ruins of a vitrified fort, supposed to be Pictish; and at a short distance from the town on the west side of the Ness, is the remarkable mount Tom na Heurich, the Hill of Fairies, bearing some resemblance to a ship turned keel uppermost; it is a beautiful isolated object, elevated about 250 feet above the stream, inclosed and clothed with rich plantations. The entire parish labours under a great scarcity of fuel, the mosses being either exhausted or under cultivation. The livings (three charges) are in the presbytery of Inverness and synod of Moray; patrons, the Crown, of the first and third; and the Hon. A. Fraser, of the second. The ancient parish of Bona was united to Inverness in 1618.

INVERNOCHTIE, shire of Aberdeen, S. See Strathdon.

INVERSNAID, shire of Stirling, S.

P. T. Drymen (55) 14 m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Buchanan, situated at the northern extremity of Loch Lomond, over which there is a ferry. A fort was constructed here about the beginning of the last century, to keep in awe the freebooters, particularly of the Clan Macgregor, who at that time committed great depredations in the neighbourhood, and who burned it in 1745, but it was soon afterwards repaired, and has been ever since garrisoned by detachments from the Castle of Dunbarton.

TOPOG. DICT.—VOL. II.

INVERUGIE, shire of Aberdeen, S. See St. Fergus.

INVERUGLAS, shire of Dunbarton, S.

* P. T. Luss (70) 4 m. N b W. Pop. with Pa.

A small village situated at the junction of the river Douglas with Loch Lomond, over which there is a ferry.

INVERURY, shire of Aberdeen, S.

Edinburgh 137 m. N b E. Aberdeen 15 m. NW. Pop. 1129. Memb. of Pt. 1, with Kintore, &c.

A royal burgh, post-town, and parish, in the district of Garioch, situated on a point of land formed by the approximation and junction of the rivers Ury and Don, each of which is crossed by an elegant bridge, of recent erection; and a third bridge is about to be thrown over the Ury. Though a small town, the canal communicating with Aberdeen having given a stimulus to trade formerly unknown, it has for several years past been rapidly improving, and bids fair to become a place of considerable importance. It was erected into a royal burgh by Robert Bruce, on occasion of the great victory he achieved here over the army of Edward I., commanded by Cumyn, Earl of Buchan, is governed by a provost, three bailiffs, a dean of guild, a treasurer, and three councillors; and jointly with Kintore, Cullen, Banff, and Elgin, enjoys the privilege of sending one member to Parliament. The parish comprises about 4000 acres, half being arable, while the other half, which is more elevated, and skirts the Mountain Benochie, is appropriated to pasture for sheep. The living is in the presbytery of Garioch and synod of Aberdeen; patron, the Earl of Kintore, to whom it gives the title of Baron. The church was built in 1774.

INWARDLEIGH, co. Devon.

P. T. Hatherleigh (201) 2½ m. SSE. Pop. 540.

A parish in the hundred of Black Tarrington; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 16l. 11s. 3d.; patron (1829) Albany Saville, Esq.

INWORTH, co. Essex.

P. T. Kelvedon (41) 1½ m. SE. Pop. 437.

A parish in the Witham division of the hundred of Lexden; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 10l.; patron (1829) Thomas Poynder, Esq. The church, dedicated to All Saints, is an ancient structure; on the south side is a curious porch, built with a mixture of flints and Roman bricks; in a recess near the altar is a piscina, formerly used by the Romish priests at the solemnities of the Eucharist.

IPING, co. Sussex.

P. T. Midhurst (50) $3\frac{1}{2}$ m. WNW. Pop. 305. A parish in the hundred of Easebourne, rape of Chichester; living, a rectory with the curacy of Chithurst, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 71.; patron (1829) the Earl of Egremont.

IPPLEPEN, co. Devon.

P. T. Abbot's Newton (189) 4 m. SSW. Pop. 815.

A parish in the hundred of Haytor; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacy of Woodland, in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 261. 2s. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.; ann. val. P. R. 591.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patrons, the Dean and Canons of Windsor.

IPPOLETTIS, or HIPPOLITS, co. Hertford.

P. T. Hitchin (34) 2 m. SE b S. Pop. 671.

A parish in the hundred of Hitchin; living, a dis. vicarage with that of Great Wymondley, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 117.; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with Great Wymondley vicarage.

IPSDEN, co. Oxford.

P. T. Wallingford (46) 4 m. SE b S. Pop. 583.

A parish in the hundred of Langtree; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of North Stoke, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford, not in charge; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with North Stoke vicarage.

IPSLEY, co. Warwick.

P. T. Alcester (103) 6 m. N b W. Pop. 745.

A parish in Alcester division of the hundred of Barlichway; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 111. 10s. 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Rev. T. S. Dolben.

IPSTONE, cos. Oxford and Buckingham.

P. T. Great Marlow (31) 7 m. NW b W. Pop. 272.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Deoborough, county of Buckingham, and partly in that of Pirton, county of Oxford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 91. 9s. 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, Merton College, Oxford.

IPSTONES, co. Stafford.

P. T. Cheadle (146) $4\frac{1}{2}$ m. N b E. Pop. 1425.

A parish in the south division of the hundred of Totmonslow; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; certified value 131. 6s. 8d.; ann. val. P. R. 961. 18s.; church ded. to St. Leonard; patrons, the Freeholders.

IPSWICH, co. Suffolk.

London 69 m. NE. Pop. 17,186. M. D. Wed., Frid., and Sat. Fairs, May 4 and 18, for lean cattle and toys; July 25, for toys; Aug. 22, for horses and lambs; Sept. 25, for butter and cheese.

A market, borough, and county-town, under a separate jurisdiction, as forming a distinct liberty, which includes the town and suburbs, with the hamlets of Stoke Hall, Brooks Hall, Wykes Ufford, and Wykes Bishop. It stands on the banks of the river Orwell, just below its junction with the Gipping, from which the town derives its appellation, as in Domesday-book it is called Gypsesvitz, or Gypseswic, since altered to Ipswich. It was anciently fortified and encompassed by a ditch and rampart, which were partially destroyed by the Danes, who took and pillaged the place in 991, and again in 1000. A castle is said to have been erected here by William the Conqueror, which was demolished by King Stephen; but the fortifications were renewed in the fifth year of John, when a wall was built round the town, with four gates, denominated from the four cardinal points of the compass; and of this wall a portion is still remaining. The first charter of incorporation was granted to the inhabitants in 1199, by King John; but Edward I., in the thirteenth year of his reign, deprived them of their franchises, which, however, on their subsequently furnishing ships for his service, he restored; and in 1291 granted a new charter, confirming those of John and Henry III. Other charters were granted by succeeding princes, the last being that of Charles II., under which the town is governed by a high steward, a recorder, twelve portmen, including two bailiffs, twenty-four chief constables, a town-clerk, and other officers, the bailiffs and four of the other portmen being justices of the peace. Ipswich has sent members to Parliament ever since the twenty-sixth of Edward I.; the right of election is vested in the bailiffs, portmen, commonalty, and freemen, resident and non-resident, in number 1100; and the bailiffs are the returning officers. The corporation has the power of passing fines and recoveries, trying civil and criminal causes, and holding pleas of the crown; as likewise of holding assizes of wine, bread, beer, &c.; and also of maintaining an admiralty jurisdiction, extending to the claim of all waifs, strays, and goods, cast on shore. No freeman can be compelled to serve on juries out of the town; and all the burgesses are entitled to various advantageous privileges on sailing to different ports. The jurisdiction of the corporation extends not only throughout the liberty of Ipswich, on land, but also over the estuary of the Orwell, on the Essex coast, beyond Harwich, and on both sides the Suffolk coast, beyond Landguard Fort. At the period of the Norman Conquest, the town contained nine parish churches, three of which are supposed to have been destroyed by a tempest, recorded by Stow, to have happened January 1, 1287, notwithstanding which the number afterwards increased to twenty-one; but at present there are only twelve remaining; those of St. Clement, St. Helen, St. Laurence, St. Margaret, St. Mary at Elm, St. Mary at Quay, St. Mary at Stoke, St. Mary at Tower, St. Matthew, St. Nicholas, St. Peter, and St. Stephen, with those of Thurlweston, Wilton, and Westerfield, which are within the liberties of the borough. The living of St. Clement's is a perpetual curacy, not in charge, consolidated with St. Helen's; patron (1829) H. S. Thornton, Esq.; St. Helen's is a dis. rectory; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.*; patron (1829) J. G. Baseley, Esq.; St. Laurence's is a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the patronage of the parish; St. Margaret's is a perpetual curacy; certified value 10*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; patron (1829) the Rev. W. Fonnereau; St. Mary's at Elm is a perpetual curacy; certified value 9*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*, in the patronage of the parish; St. Mary's at Quay is a perpetual curacy; certified value 25*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 53*l.* 16*s.*, in the patronage of the parish; St. Mary's at Tower is a perpetual curacy; certified value 60*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 89*l.*, in the patronage of the parish; St. Matthew's is a dis. rectory; valued in K. B. 5*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 120*l.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor; St. Nicholas's is a perpetual curacy; certified value 10*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 117*l.*, in the patronage of the parish; St. Peter's is a perpetual curacy; certified value 30*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; patron (1829) the Rev. W. Fonnereau; St. Stephen's is a dis. rectory; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 80*l.*; patron (1829) the Rev. William Marsh. These benefices are in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich. The church of St. Laurence is said to have been commenced by John Bottold, who died in 1431; and the chancel was built by John Baldwyn, who died in 1449. A chantry was founded in it, in 1514, by Edward Daundy, a portman of the borough, who also erected the market-cross, now taken down. A free grammar-school existed here previously to 1477, and after the termination of Cardinal Wolsey's Collegiate Institution, Henry VIII. renewed the school by a royal charter, which was confirmed and enlarged by Queen Elizabeth, in 1565. It is endowed for the support of a master and usher, under the patronage of the corporation; and the number of scholars is at present restricted to thirty. There are also three charity-schools, in two of which are seventy boys, and in the third forty girls. Besides these there is a Lancasterian school, founded in 1811, for 200 boys. In the town are various almshouses; and in 1704 was established an institution for the relief and support of the widows and orphans of poor clergymen, which is supported by subscription. The town stands on a gentle declivity, forming a sort of crescent on the north side of the Orwell, which here makes a curve in its course, and over which there is a stone bridge leading to the suburb of Stoke. The streets in general are narrow, and disposed without much attention to regularity; but they are well paved and lighted with gas. Many of the shops and private houses are handsome modern buildings; and among the number which have an antiquated appearance, many are spacious, comfortable, and convenient. The townhall formerly constituted part of the parochial church of St. Mildred, said to have been one of the most beautiful structures in Ipswich; the custom-house, situated on the quay, is a commodious brick building; and the corn-exchange, standing on Corn Hill, is well arranged, and furnished for the business there transacted. A handsome market-cross, which had been erected in 1510, was taken down in 1812, and the square in which it stood enclosed for a market-place. At no great distance from the former is another market-place, built at the joint expense of five persons, in 1811, and consisting of inner and outer quadrangles, round both of which are covered colonnades, affording to the market-people protection from the weather; and adjoining is an enclosed cattle-market, constructed at the expense of the same proprietors. The county gaol, the plan and disposition of which have been highly praised, stands within a boundary wall, twenty-four feet in height, and enclosing about an acre and a half of ground; in front is the turnkey's lodge, which has a flat roof, covered with lead, where malefactors are executed. At a short distance from this edifice is the House of Correction, in an airy situation, surrounded by a wall seventeen feet high; it includes three court-yards; and in the keeper's house is a chapel for the prisoners. The Borough goal, in St. Matthew's Street, is described as a handsome and commodious building. The manufacture of linen was introduced here by French refugees, but it did not succeed; and the spinning of woollen yarn is the only manufacture carried on here at present, to any extent, except ship-building, sail-making, &c. The principal commerce of the town arises from the exportation of corn, malt, cheese, and butter, the produce of the neighbouring country. A good harbour for light vessels is formed by the estuary of the Orwell, which is navigable at high water up to the bridge, except for ships of considerable burden, which pass no further than Downham Reach, three or four miles nearer the sea. Acts of Parliament passed in 1790 and 1793, for making the river Gipping navigable from Stowmarket to Ipswich. The Orwell, which is noted for the beauty of its adjacent scenery, affords the means for a pleasant excursion to Harwich in the summer season; and to that place wherries go and return regularly every tide. The number of vessels belonging to the port of Ipswich in 1829 was 138, and their collective burden 5532 tons. On the quay is a custom-house. In the reign of Edward III. it was decided that the bailiff and burgesses of Ipswich possessed the sole right to take custom-house duties for goods landed at the port of Harwich; whence it is to be inferred that the latter was then a subordinate and dependent port with respect to Ipswich. Among the ancient mansions here belonging to eminent persons, of which some parts or traces are remaining, may be mentioned, the walls and a brick-built gateway of a building called Wolsey College, which was appropriated and enlarged by Cardinal Wolsey, for the establishment of a dean, twelve secular canons, and other officers, with a grammar-school, on a magnificent plan; but it failed in consequence of the misfortunes and death of that ambitious statesman. It is, however, supposed to have given rise to the foundation of the free grammar-school, by Henry VIII. already noticed. The Bishop of Norwich had a palace, called Curson's House, in Silent Street; Sir Andrew Winsor, afterwards ennobled, had a house in the parish of St. Mary-at-Stoke; and Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, and Sir Anthony Wingfield, vice-chamberlain and privy counsellor to Henry VIII., both had mansions in the parish of St. Stephen. There are also in the town several houses, embellished, externally and internally, with carved and stuccoed devices, in the taste that prevailed in the reigns of James I. and his son. A priory of canons of St. Austin was founded here before 1177, the revenue of which, at the dissolution of monasteries, was 88*l.* 6*s.* 9*d.*; there was another priory of the same order, dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, founded in the reign of Henry II.; and also convents of Austin Friars, Dominicans, Franciscans, and White Friars, or Carmelites. Among the eminent natives of Ipswich, the most distinguished was Thomas Wolsey, born in March, 1471, who, after attaining the official dignities of Archbishop of York, cardinal, and prime minister of Henry VIII. died under arrest for treason, at Leicester Abbey, Nov. 29, 1530. Fuller, in his Worthies, mentions as having been born in this town, Ralph Brownrigg, D. D. a learned bishop of Exeter; and Dr. William Butler, a physician at Cambridge, in the reign of James I., who seems to have been the Radcliffe of his age, as he was alike distinguished for his wit and humour, and for his skill in his profession.

IRBY, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Great Neston (194) 5 m. NNW. Pop. 145.

A township in the parish of Woodchurch and hundred of Wirrall.

IRBY-UPON-HUMBER, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Great Grimsby (165) 5 m. WSW. Pop. 217.

A parish in the wapentake of Bradley Harverstoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 18*l.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Lord Yarborough.

IRBY-IN-THE-MARSH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 6 m. ESE. Pop. 78.

A parish in the Wold division of the wapentake of Candleshoe, parts of Lindsey; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; certified value 4*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 70*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln.

IRCHESTER, or ARCHESTER, co. Northampton.

P. T. Wellingborough (67) 3 m. SE. Pop. 690.

A parish in the hundred of Higham Ferrers; living, a dis. vicarage, with that of Wollaston, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; church ded. to St. Catherine; patronage with Wollaston vicarage.

IREBY, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Kirkby-Lonsdale (253) 8 m. SE & E. Pop. 118.

A township in the parish of Tatham and hundred of Lonsdale, south of the sands.

IREBY, HIGH, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Wigton (303) 7½ m. S & W. Pop. 164.

A township in the parish of Ireby and Allerdale ward, below Darwent.

IREBY, LOW, co. Cumberland.

London 304 m. NNW. Pop. of Pa. 457. Of To. 293. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, Feb. 24, and Sept. 21, for horses and horned cattle.

A market-town and township, forming, with High Ireby, a parish, in Allerdale ward, below Darwent, situated near the source of the river Ellen. It is called Low Ireby, and also Market Ireby, to distinguish it from the village of High Ireby, in its vicinity. Though now an inconsiderable place, its origin has been referred to a remote period; for Camden supposes, from the similarity of names, that it was the Arbeia of the Romans, where the military corps of the Barcarii Tigrienses was stationed; but this opinion is controverted by Horsley, who observes that no Roman antiquities have been discovered here. The living is a perpetual curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle; certified value 25*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 45*l.*; in the patronage of the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle. The grant for holding the market was obtained in 1237; and in 1688 it was frequented as a great corn-mart, but at present there is only a small market for butchers' meat. A freeschool was founded here in 1726, by Matthew Caldbeck, and endowed with 5*l.* per annum.

IRELAND.

NE to SW 306 m. E to W 207 m. No. of square statute-miles, 30,370. No. of acres, 19,436,000. Pop. 6,801,827. Provinces 4. Counties 32. Baronies 232. Cities 7. Counties of Towns 9. Boroughs 17. Memb. of Par. 100. Archbishops 4. Bishops 18. Parishes 2436.

The most westerly of the British isles, and the second in magnitude and importance. Although anciently unconnected with Great Britain, it does not appear to have submitted to the government of any one royal family, but was partitioned amongst many petty princes, to the dissensions of whom the acquisition of this fine island by the English is mainly attributable. In the year 1800, all distinction between Great Britain and Ireland was abolished by the Act of Union then passed, transferring the seat of government to London, the capital of the empire. Ireland lies between longitude 6° and $10^{\circ} 40'$ W., and latitude $51^{\circ} 15'$ and $55^{\circ} 13'$ N. It is bounded on the north, south, and west, by the Atlantic Ocean; is separated from Scotland by the North Channel, from Wales by the Irish Sea, and from England by St. George's Channel. Cape Clear is the most southern point, and it is the first land made, or rather seen, by homeward-bound vessels from America; Malin Head, the Robogdium of Ptolemy, is the extreme north. The longest line that can be extended across the island would be from Emlagh-Rash, in Mayo, to Carnsore Point, in the county of Wexford; and it is very remarkable, that there is not a spot in the kingdom distant sixty-three miles from the sea. The Irish Sea, from Howth to Holyhead, is about sixty geographic miles in width; and the Channel between Portpatrick, in Scotland, and Donaghadee, in Ireland, is contracted to a breadth of about twenty-seven.

The surface of the country possesses infinite variety. The extreme of desolation may be witnessed in one place, and the most complete and perfect civilization in another. Extensive denuded areas, as well as districts richly clothed with wood; scenery the most wild and savage in nature, and landscapes the most delicate and tender. Numerous lakes and lofty mountains, which every where encumber, may be said also every where to adorn the island. Fertile limestone regions, spread out in plains, present agricultural and pastoral scenes rarely equalled. The courses of many rivers mark and fertilize the picturesque valleys between noble ranges of lofty mountains, and the dreary bog covering so great a proportion of the island, although it does not beautify, certainly varies the character of the scene, and is a fortunate acquisition during the absence of coal. The northern counties are much engrossed by mountains, but contain extensive tracts of flat and fertile land. The western are still more encumbered with mountain masses. The southern are also mountainous, but possess some of the richest pastures in Europe; and the central and eastern parts include the most level and productive parts of the whole surface. The coast on the south, west, and north, is elevated, and generally fortified by nature against the awful incursions of the Atlantic Ocean; while the eastern is lower and more sheltered, but possesses fewer and less valuable harbours. The whole island may be said to be basin-formed, the centre dipping, and the coast rising on all sides. That Ireland was, at an early period, part of a great continent, has been urged with much apparent truth by learned naturalists. The discovery of the horns and skeletons of the moose-deer, an animal too enormous and too active for the present narrow limits of the island, has contributed to encourage this opinion; a similarity between the basaltic formation of the opposite coast of Scotland and that of the county of Antrim, affords an argument in favour of an ancient union of those parts; and the resemblance between the vegetable and mineral productions of the western coast and the opposite shores of North America, where the moose-deer also is still found, have helped to confirm the belief that, although long since dissolved, a union probably did once exist between them.

No country in Europe possesses coasts abounding with so many or such noble harbours as Ireland. On the north are the spacious estuaries of Loughs Foyle and Swilly, the former washing the walls of Derry, and the latter extending thirty miles inland, and affording safe anchorage and shelter for the largest vessels at the Roadstead of Bunrana, several miles from the entrance. To the west of these are situated Mulroy Bay and Sheep Haven, ports of less value, separated on the south-west by an inhospitable coast from the noble bay of Donegal, within which are some small harbours of great utility, particularly Killybegs. Sligo and Killala Bays are the ports of important towns, the former one of the most prosperous and independent in the kingdom. Broad-Haven and Black-sod Bays enclose the isthmus leading to the Mullet, and might readily be united by cutting through the narrow neck of land which divides them. They possess a great depth of water, and will at some time contribute to the aggrandizement of this now wild and retired district. Clew Bay lies due south of the two former; it is an area of sixteen miles in length by six in breadth, and contains about 300 islands, many of which are inhabited: two thriving towns, Westport and Newport, stand upon its margin, and a population of about 30,000 souls, all engaged in the deep-sea fisheries, inhabit its shores and islands. Of the many convenient harbours between Clew and Galway, Killery is one of the safest, and Ardabear capable of floating the largest vessels at all times of tide. The prosperous town of Clifden, a place of late creation, stands at the head of Ardabear Harbour. The bay of Galway seems to invite the trade of the western world. It opens to the Atlantic, but is sheltered from its violence by the south isles of Arran, which, while they allow ample sea-room, act as a distant breakwater. The Shannon, the Severn of Ireland, opens to the west, and its mouth is a sea or channel, as that of Bristol. Like the Severn, too, it cuts off a portion of the kingdom, the language and habits of which are original and distinct from those of the other provinces; and many excellent towns stand upon its banks, in the great length of its course from Lough Allen to the sea. Tralee, Brandon, Smerwick, and Dingle Bays, admit small craft; and some inlets on the Kerry coast are capable of being converted into safe asylums; but the boast of the western coast is the noble arm of the sea, called Bantry Bay, thirty-six miles in length by an average width of six. All the shipping of Europe might anchor safely here in thirty fathom water. Its vast depth of water, great extent of superficies, and complete shelter from the west wind, are not more conspicuous in a description of this noble haven, however brief, than the bold and beautiful scenery which encompasses it. The south-western extremity of Ireland is indented with harbours, which are in general deep, and enclosed by rocky shores. These may be considered as the natural consequence of the violent action of the waves of the Atlantic driven against this precise coast by the prevailing wind. Of the many harbours of the Cork coast from Bantry to Cove, Kinsale is the most secure, and of most ancient establishment. Cove or Cork Harbour is decidedly the finest in Ireland or in the British isles, being a land-locked basin of great depth, wherein the navy of Britain may ride in smooth water during the year. It is the Milford Haven of Ireland, but with this difference, that there vessels must take the ground, while Cove Harbour is a spacious wet-dock. Youghal and Dungarvan derive consequence from being the ports of the little thriving towns from which they borrow their names, but Waterford Harbour or Haven is a noble estuary, into which fall the waters of the Nore, the Barrow, and the Suir; the last ought to have been the Irish Thames, and at Cheek Point, on this river, the capital of the island should have been erected. The eastern coast is less exposed to the prevailing winds, for which cause it is less indented. From Wexford Harbour to Dublin no large bay occurs, and the harbours of Courtstown, Wicklow, and Bray, afford shelter to small craft only. Dublin Bay has been adapted to the admission of large vessels by the construction of an asylum at Kingstown, and a Packet Harbour has been formed, at the expense of government, on the north side of the Hill of Howth. There is a small harbour at Balbriggan, north of Dublin, and northward still lies the mouth of the Boyne at Drogheda, an entrance obstructed by banks, but quite capable of improvement. Dundalk is an open bay, and Carlingford sheltered, and remarkably picturesque. Strangford Lough is an arm of the sea extending into the county of Down; and the Lough of Belfast, or Carrickfergus Bay, is a similar expansion, but not so completely sheltered. The coast is again without opening from Belfast to Derry, with the exception of Larne Lough. Nature appears to have acted bountifully to this island, in conferring upon it commercial facilities greater than falls to the lot of other nations; and to this incomplete enumeration of the great harbours is to be added above one hundred smaller asylums, enclosed by piers erected at the expense of the Fishery-board, under the direction of Alexander Nimmo, for the protection and encouragement of the valuable fisheries along the coast; which desirable improvements are still in progress of execution, under the same skilful director.

The climate of Ireland naturally resembles that of England, so that the details relative to rain, dew, variation in the length of days, and other properties common to this part of the temperate zone, will be found in the article England. The difference between the climate of these two islands is but slight. In Ireland the weather is more variable, and probably more mild than that of England; its summers are less hot, and winters not so cold. The air is certainly damper, which arises from its insular position, and from its greater proximity to the western ocean, whereby it intercepts a greater quantity of the moist particles wafted thither by the prevailing winds. The moisture of the Irish climate has been erroneously attributed to the presence of so much bog; but this is a mistake, and even if it were the case, the vicinity of bogs is not unwholesome, any more than the moist atmosphere, which prevails here. Bog waters do not emit putrid exhalations, like marshes, fens, or stagnant pools, but possess antiseptic and strongly astringent qualities. This fact is abundantly testified by the preservation and additional durability acquired by timber, which has lain in bogs for ages; and the same result is further established by the conversion of the hides of animals and skins of human beings into a species of leather. This twofold effect was illustrated within the last ten years by the discovery of the skeleton of a man, clothed with undressed hide, and holding a staff in his hands, which was found in a bog in Connaught; his skin and clothing were completely tanned, and the staff in perfect preservation. In a comparative estimate of the effects of fens and bogs upon the climate of a country, the advantage appears to be on the side of the latter, fens being confessedly unwholesome. Plagues visited Ireland in the year 1348, 1462, 1470, 1525, and 1604; but were almost wholly confined to the metropolis, and are supposed to have been imported from England. For nine months of the year, nearly, the westerly and south-westerly winds prevail, the violence of which is somewhat checked by the elevated surface of the western districts. In the year 1316, it is recorded that the steeple of Christ Church Cathedral, in Dublin, was blown down; and within the last twenty years, violent storms, resembling West Indian hurricanes, have visited Ireland, throwing down houses, and otherwise occasioning serious damage. The winters are generally less severe than those in England; but in the year 1739, a frost commenced upon the 29th of December, and continued with unabated severity until the 8th of February following. The consequences of this unusual event were lamentable, the ensuing season being marked by pestilence and famine amongst the poor. A frost of less severity set in upon the 25th of December, 1783, and lasted till the 21st of February following; and in 1814 the whole island was covered beneath a fall of snow of some feet in depth. These visitations of intense frost and deep snow are "few and far between" in Ireland. The mean temperature of the north counties is about 48°; of the middle, about 50°; and of the south, 32°; of Fahrenheit's thermometer. The summer's heat is insufficient to bring grapes and other tender fruits to maturity in the open air, without especial care; but the broad-leaved myrtle and the abutus grow luxuriantly in the southern counties. The latter is not indigenous to any other country so remote from the equator. Thunder-storms and forked lightning, so frequent in England, are of rare occurrence here; and, in their effects, by no means so ruinous and awful. The instances wherein life has been taken away, and houses rent by lightning, are comparatively few.

Ireland is well watered both by lakes or loughs, and rivers. Of the former, some possess magnitude and beauty; others enjoy the latter quality in an eminent degree, although their surfaces are but small. Lough Erne occupies about one-sixth of the county of Fermanagh, measures forty miles in length, but varies in breadth from one mile to nine, and is adorned with about 100 islands. Lough Neagh washes the shores of five different counties, and is of a quadrangular form, thirty-two miles long by sixteen in width. It is now navigated by steam-boats. These are the largest fresh-water loughs, not only in Ulster, but in Ireland. Donegal contains many small lakes, contributing to its picturesque scenery; one of them, called Lough Dearg, is celebrated as the theatre where superstitious ceremonies are annually enacted at St. Patrick's Purgatory. There are upwards of twenty lakes in the county of Cavan, in one of which the river Erne takes its rise, the source of the great lake of that name. Loughs Melville, Nilly, and Gill, are the most interesting in the north-west angle; and in Connaught, the lakes called Carra, Mask, and Corrib, may be termed inland seas; the last will shortly be made navigable to the bay of Galway. There are four expansions of the Shannon, lakes Allen, Bofin, Ree, and Derg, which impede boat navigation by the extent of their areas, and liability to agitation from winds; a steam-boat, however, is established upon the largest of them, which partly remedies this disadvantage. There are about thirty pools formed in the mountain glens of the county Clare; and Kerry is celebrated for its beautiful lakes at Killarney. The celebrated lakes of Glendalough and the beautiful lough of Luggelaw are numbered in the ten pools of the county of Wicklow; and the county of Westmeath is a region of waters. Here are Lough Onil, the reservoir of the Royal Canal; Belhaven Lake, and the loughs called Ennell and Sil-lin, all possessing extensive areas; besides the largest and most beautiful, Derryvaragh. There are, besides, several great inlets or arms of the sea, which it is customary in Ireland to call loughs; the principal are Loughs Swilly, Foyle, Larne, Belfast, and Strangford. The lakes of Ireland are so important as mediums of conveyance, that the rivers appear rather less valuable here than in other countries. Many of them, however, are extended through lengthened lipes, and navigable for considerable distances. The Shannon is the noblest river in the island; it rises at the foot of Culca mountain, in the county of Cavan, and passing by Carrick, Lanesborough, Athlone, Banagher, Portumna, Killaloe, and Limerick, falls into the sea, after a course of 190 miles, between the counties of Clare and Kerry. It is very singular that the direction of this river, and the manner in which it detaches Connaught from the rest of Ireland, are precisely similar to the position and circumstances of the Severn in England; and the analogy appears more striking, when it is remembered that the inhabitants of Connaught profess to be the direct and unmixed descendants of the Milesians, and retain their primitive language to the present day; all which circumstances correspond precisely with the relation existing between the English and Welsh, as regards the Severn. Besides an infinite number of minor streams, the Shannon receives the Fergus below Clare and Ennis, the Suck below Ballinasloe, and the Brosna near Banagher. The Inny joins it in Lough Ree, and the Camlin near to Tarmonbury. It is crossed by bridges at Carrick, Athlone, Banagher, Portumna, Killaloe, and Limerick. That at Portumna is of great length, and built of wood, the others are all of stone. The Suir is the second river in magnitude, and perhaps affords more present advantage than the Shannon. It rises in the mountains of Kilmemans, and flowing past the large towns of Cahir, Clonmel, and Carrick, washes the quays of Waterford, and falls into the Atlantic below Dunmore East, after having its waters swelled by those of the Nore and the navigable Barrow. The rapidity and floods of the Nore render improvement in its navigation impracticable; but the Barrow, which rises in the King's County, and takes a southerly course of many miles, affords a valuable line of inland navigation. The Lee rises in the romantic lake of Gougane Barra, in the county of Cork, and after a short course from west to east, and being augmented by numerous rivulets, falls into the harbour of Cove, six miles below Cork city, the head of its navigation. There are three Blackwater rivers in Ireland. The southern is the finest river, and its banks possess the most interesting, picturesque, and cultivated scenery; rising in the borders of Kerry and Cork, the Blackwater flows by Mill Street, Mallow, a fashionable spa, Fermoy, where it is crossed by a handsome stone bridge, the ancient city of Lismore, Capo-quin, and Youghal, at the last of which places it is crossed by a wooden bridge of 1400 feet in length. The Slaney may also be ranked amongst the rivers of note in the southern counties; it takes its rise in the county of Wicklow, and passing down into Carlow and Wexford counties, becomes navigable at Enniscorthy, and ultimately falls into Wexford Haven. The city of Dublin occupies both banks of the river Liffey, a stream which otherwise would be little known to geographers. The river flows out of a little pool in the county of Wicklow, called Liffey Head, and meandering into Kildare, turns eastward into Dublin, and running through the middle of the city nearly, falls into Dublin Bay, about one mile below the custom-house, or the seamost bridge. It may be called a tide river up to the city, and it allows boat navigation for a length of two miles further at half-tide, but is fordable at ebb. Few navigable rivers fall into the sea on the eastern coast, although there are many eminently suitable to the erection of mills and application of water-power to machinery. The Boyne is navigable naturally as far as Drogheda, one mile from the coast; and a still-water navigation is formed by means of its waters to Navan, where the central Blackwater unites with the Boyne. Art has rendered the rivulet, called the Newry Water, both known and valued; and the Lagan, like the Liffey, derives its consequence from its proximity to a noble town, Belfast, which stands on its northern bank. The basaltic shores of Antrim appear to refuse a passage for the waters to the sea; and the Bann is the first river of note from Belfast to Coleraine. It is divided into two parts, the Upper rising in the Mourne Mountains, and discharging its waters into Lough Neagh, the Lower conveying the surplusage of that great lake into the Atlantic Ocean, a little to the north-west of Coleraine. Lough Foyle is the estuary of the river bearing that name, upon which the city of Derry stands, and as far as which it is navigable by vessels of 500 tons burden. Lighters proceed to Lifford, a distance of twenty-five miles; and an artificial communication renders Strabane accessible by water. The Morne and the Finn are tributaries to the Foyle. Here, the northern enumeration ceases, the rivers which flow into the sea along the residue of the coast not being navigable. The Guibarra is the principal on the Donegal coast, except the outlet of Lough Erne, called the Erne River, known by its famous salmon-fishery. The Moy, which runs by Balliner and Ardnaree, is navigable for a short distance, and also possesses a valuable salmon-fishery. The coast of Connaught is deficient in deep and navigable rivers, but this loss is amply supplied by an uncommon number of the finest natural harbours in Europe. In a country possessing such natural advantages of water-carriage, and where manufactures are yet so little cultivated, it may be supposed that little necessity would be felt for further extension, but the facts appear otherwise. Two great lines of still-water navigation extend from Dublin to the river Shannon, and are called the Grand and Royal Canals. Lough Neagh forms part of a navigation, commencing at Newry, and borrowing a supply from the Upper Bann. Branches issue in various places from the great trunks connected with the metropolis. Short cuts render the navigation of the Shannon perfect. A line is projected between Loughs Neagh and Erne, and a second from the latter to the bay of Ballyshannon. A survey is also made for a line of navigation from Enniskillen to Derry, and another from Lough Foyle to Lough Swilly. How far these vast projects may be superseded by the introduction of railroads, would be difficult to foresee; but it is already decided, that the ship canal contemplated to connect Kingstown Harbour with the river Liffey, is to be laid aside for this more favoured mode of transport and conveyance.

It is rather singular that the ingenious Dr. Beaufort, who devoted so much of his life to the investigation of Irish topography, should have concluded that the term mountainous was not correctly applied to Ireland. The central counties certainly are free from mountains, and one great plain stretches directly across the island from east to west. But with this exception, the learned topographer admits that there are few places where the prospect is not somewhere terminated by mountain scenery, forming a back-ground seldom more remote than twenty miles. The generality of those to whom this island is at all familiar, will, notwithstanding, readily grant to it the character of mountainous, and of being only less so than the neighbouring territory of Wales. In the province of Ulster, the adjacent counties of Donegal, Londonderry, and Antrim are altogether encumbered with mountains, rising generally to a height of 1500 feet. Knockade in Antrim attains an altitude of 1820. The eastern half of the county of Down is also completely engaged with lofty hills, projecting into the sea, and forming sublime and prominent features in the view. They are usually denominated the mountains of Mourne; and the summit of Sliebh Donard, the loftiest, is elevated 2809 feet above the sea level. Tyrone and Monaghan are, properly speaking, hilly; but Sligo, Mayo, all the west of Connaught province, and literally the entire of the county of Clare, present a continued and unbroken chain of mountain masses, interspersed with fertile vales and spacious lakes. Benbulbin, in Sligo, is a remarkable object, and presents the appearance of an enormous mass, flattened on the top, and having precipitous sides. Its summit reaches a height of 1697 feet. Culkagh, in Cavan, stands 2155 feet high, and Nephin, in Mayo, one of the most remarkable in Connaught, is 2600 feet over the surface of the sea. The singularly wild and mountainous tract along the western coast testifies the goodness and wisdom of Providence in the dispensations for our happiness, for it is to this great barrier the islanders generally are indebted for the climate they enjoy, and the protection they possess against the fury of the transatlantic storms and rains. The most famous of the Connaught range, however, is Croagh Patrick, a coneformed and conspicuous mountain, overhanging Clew Bay, and rising to an elevation of 2510 feet. An altar or cairn appears on its summit, to which pilgrimages are sometimes made, and on the west side is discovered the beautiful marble called serpentine. This is the hill so famed in story, from which St. Patrick banished all noxious animals existing in the island, and commanded them to plunge themselves into the sea. The Twelve Pins of Connemara are also remarkable landmarks and enter into the composition of many interesting landscapes. South of the Shannon, again, the hills of Kerry raise their heads, and continue ascending towards the south, until the lordly Reeks of M'Gillicuddy are seen exalted to their proud preeminence; Carrán-Tual, the highest, attaining an elevation of 3410 feet. Around stand Mangerton, 2550; Purple Mountain, 2280; and many others, of nearly equal heights. These form the boldest, and most picturesque groups, and the summit of Carrán-Tual is the highest point in the kingdom. The chain extends away southward to the wilds of Glengarriff and Bantry, thence easterly to the Bogra hills, and along the south bank of the Blackwater. A little north-east of the Bogra hills are the Galtees, a chain of twenty miles in length, extending from Seefin, near Charleville, to the river Suir. The highest point of this range is elevated 2500 feet. In the King and Queen's counties is the fine range of the Sliebh Bloom Mountains, the fruitful source of rivers and rivulets, and admitting of an easy passage from one side to the other in one place only, that is through the Gap of Glandine. Many small groups must be here overlooked, and the enumeration concluded with the mention of the mountains of Wicklow, which cover the entire of that beautiful county. Some of these are lofty; Lugnaquilla is 3070 feet high, and many are picturesquely and irregularly formed. The Glens in Wicklow constitute the peculiar beauties of this romantic and mountainous region.

The mineral productions of Ireland are various and considerable, and from its very mountainous surface greater results may fairly be calculated upon. The most useful of all subterranean productions is coal, two species of which substance have been found here, very distinct in character; the one the bituminous, the other the stone or non-flaming coal. It is asserted confidently, that if a line were drawn across the island, from Galway to Dublin, the former species would be found exclusively on the north, and the stone-coal on the south of that separation. Hitherto there have been but three great coal-fields, where works have been extensively conducted: the Tyrone and Antrim district, the Connaught, or Leitrim district, both on the north side of the imaginary line, and the Kilkenny field, which contains non-flaming coal only, and has been extensively wrought for years back. Indications of coal appear in other parts of Ulster and Leinster, and a tolerably extensive field has lately been discovered and worked to advantage in the county of Cork. Other mineral substances are found, and raised with skill and spirit in various districts, but cannot be conducted to the consummation of art, as in England, from the want of a sufficient and convenient supply of coal. There are now established in Ireland two energetic companies, the one called the Mining Company, the other the Hibernian Mining Company. Their singular zeal and large capital have caused trials so numerous and scientific to be made, that upwards of twenty lead-mines, ten copper-mines, twenty coal-pits, and about twelve slate-quarries have been set to work by their speculative and beneficial exertions. The Audley mines in Cork and Bonmahon in Waterford, are the most promising in copper. The lead-mines in Wicklow and Donegal will perhaps prove the most productive of their kind, and the coals of Leitrim are of the best quality, and in the greatest abundance. In the vicinity of this last field ironstone exists, and bloomeries were anciently established here. The finest and best-working slates are raised near Killaloe, upon the river Shannon, but quarries are worked to advantage in Cork and elsewhere. Silver was raised in the county of Tipperary at a place which derives its distinctive appellation from that circumstance, the townland being now called Silver-mines, and it is in contemplation to revive the works. Gold was found, and stream-works established at the expense of Government, at the base of Croghan Kinshelagh in the county of Wicklow, but the return ultimately proved inadequate to the cost of working. At Clontibret, in Monaghan, there is a mine of antimony, and manganese exists in many places. In connexion with the mines of Ireland may be mentioned the many beautiful species of marble found in various parts of the kingdom. In Donegal and Galway white marble is raised fit for the statuary; and in the latter county serpentine of the richest colours and slabs of any dimensions. Brown marble exists in Fermanagh, where it is worked into chimney-pieces, for the home market only, and the black and gray marbles of Kilkenny have long been sought after by the public, and a good trade is now established in these quarries. In Kerry also there is a useful species of marble, and a mineral production of much beauty and rarity called Irish diamonds is found there. Potters' clay is found in Cork, gypsum in Antrim, and a silicious earth in Donegal. These mineral productions have hitherto proved of little value, from the remoteness of the factories where-in they are required.

The geological structure of Ireland is quite dissimilar to that of England. Here limestone is the substratum, or at all events, the prevailing rock: there, the protruding ridge, called by geologists the Back Bone of England, is narrow and limited to the central region entirely. Ireland possesses three extensive granite regions, one in Leinster, extending from Dublin to Kilkenny, a second in Donegal, and a third spread over a great part of the west of the island. The field of Dartmoor, or more properly of the south-west of England, is the only extensive one in that country. The quality of the Irish granite also is greatly superior to that of England. Red sandstone supports part of the county of Antrim and is scarcely met with elsewhere, while it is the predominant stone in the sister kingdom. Coal, perhaps, exists but in a scanty supply in one country, and in inexhaustible quantities in the other, and lastly, there is no basalt or trap in England, while the most perfect specimen of the columnar kind, and the largest basaltic area in Europe is that in Antrim. A tolerable profit is derived from the export of slabs of serpentine, and some benefit arises from the sale of black marble; but the white and rose marbles continue unnoticed, the different earths suited to the manufacture of glass, porcelain, and pottery remain unused, and the granite both of the gray and red kinds, is only consumed or employed at home. It appears a rational conclusion to form, that these mineral productions would afford a ready commodity to exchange with the British manufacturer for his less durable goods. Besides the Irish diamonds, perhaps peculiar to Kerry, beryls of a beautiful green colour are found in the Mourne mountains, garnets in Dublin and Wicklow, pearls in many of the rivers, and much admired pebbles in Wicklow and along the shores of Lough Neagh. The Achill diamond is of a purple hue but is of no value in the estimation of the lapidary.

The bogs of Ireland constitute a distinct feature, not belonging to either mountain or plain exclusively, but partaking of the character of both. According to Mr. Bald, there are three millions of acres of flat and mountain bog in the whole kingdom, the mean depth of which may be estimated at three yards, making 7,055,247,360 cubic yards of bog soil, exhibiting a quantity of fuel apparently calculated to last for many centuries. The mountainous districts generally are interspersed with peat bog, and the level country with a black, heavy, earthy turf. The greatest of the low county bogs is that of Allen, extending over parts of the counties of Kildare, Roscommon, Meath, Westmeath, and the King's and Queen's Counties; 36,430 acres of this plain have been surveyed at the cost of government. Minute surveys have also been made by eminent engineers, of 1,036,988 acres in different parts of the kingdom, and general reports made upon 500,000 acres additional.

Commissioners appointed to inquire into the nature and extent of these bogs, laid their final report before Parliament in the year 1812, and a bill for the purpose of aiding in their reclamation is now before the house. Individuals have improved particular districts of bog, but their efforts make but a trifling diminution in such a vast amount of acres. The investigation of the constitution of Irish bogs has furnished a strong proof of the existence of extensive forests in ancient times. At considerable depths, stumps, trunks, and roots of trees, are continually found, and when cut into faggots, are sold as match-wood for kindling fires. Different kinds are found, fir, oak, and sometimes yew.

Plantation is little encouraged in Ireland, although no country is better adapted to it. Less cold than Scotland, and equally moist, vegetation would advance rapidly in all the hardier kinds of forest-trees. The soil is of depth sufficient to retain the largest roots; and the mountain brows that now lie denuded, bleak, and profitless, might readily be converted into objects of interest, beauty, and emolument. The forest-trees of Ireland are analogous to those mentioned in the account of England; the oak, however, is a different species, and it is said that spiders will not build in it; the arbutus also is indigenous to the south of Ireland, and has attained to unusual dimensions in the county of Wicklow.

Agriculture is conducted less skilfully than in England, arising altogether from the inferior value of land. The soil exhibits all varieties; stiff clay, fertile loam, light and strong ground, thin pastures, and sometimes, but unfrequently, light sand. The highlands every where are employed in feeding cattle for exportation, as well as in raising oats and barley for the English market. Belfast, Dublin, Waterford, Cork, and Limerick, are the chief ports whence grain and cattle are shipped for export. Butter is also an article of great consequence here, and the sales effected in this article nearly defray the rental of all the small upland farms in the kingdom, as well as of many in the low and fertile plains. The butter made in the county of Carlow bears the highest price in the English market, but the greatest quantities are sold and shipped at Cork and Belfast. Wheat is the produce of every county, for home consumption, but the counties of Meath, Louth, and the rich clay soils, dispose of vast quantities for other markets. Drogheda and Dublin are two very principal markets for the sale of wheat. The northern counties have been occupied largely in the manufacture of linen, which has caused the growth of flax to be encouraged there, but the extension of this important manufacture into Connaught and Munster has introduced the culture of flax along with it. Beans and turnips are not extensively cultivated, as there is not that great coaching system which exists in England, and the black-cattle of Ireland are exported as stores only. The pastures are considered the richest and sweetest in the British isles; they rest on limestone, and almost every where limestone-gravel, marl, or coralline, may be had for manuring; yet it is strange that Irish cheese does not possess an agreeable flavour, although made with the utmost skill, a circumstance, perhaps, attributable to the very fact of the limestone soil. Ireland did not possess any royal forests, but was doubtless at an early period clothed with wood. In these, perhaps, the moose-deer sheltered, and the noble animal called the red deer was one of the inhabitants. Some of the latter are still found near the lakes of Killarney, and it is supposed they are not extinct in Donegal. The wolf was a native of this country, but his race was extinguished by the perseverance and vigilance of the agriculturist. A reward was paid for the head of the last wolf taken in the kingdom in the year 1710. With the extinction of this vicious race perished a breed of noble dogs, probably peculiar to Ireland, and called the Irish wolf-dog. The other quadrupeds are nearly of the same kinds as those found in England and Wales. The fox, hare, rabbit, weasel, ferret, otter, hedgehog, and varieties of rats and mice, but the mole does not belong to this country. Though the wild horse is unknown, herds of small and hardy creatures of this tribe are bred in the mountains of Connemara and of Kerry, where they are permitted to range for two or three years, and then driven to the market as a flock of sheep. The expertness of the herdsman in catching a particular horse is remarkable: when the animals are collected together, and any one pointed at by a purchaser, the care-taker instantly rushes into the midst of the group, throws his arms round the animal's neck, and hangs from it until a halter is placed upon its head. Horses of a strong and active description, fitted for the carriage, are found both better and cheaper here than in England, and the benefit of a public and national race-course is completely established by this fact, the Irish horses being the heaviest and most worthless animals in the empire previous to the institution of the Curragh meetings. The black-cattle, such numbers of which are annually exported, are less admirable than the horses; the breed was improving during the life of "The Farming Society," and crosses from the best English kinds introduced. Much still remains to be done in this way, and it is a matter of vast importance to a country so wholly agricultural. There is one breed of sheep in Ireland held in much esteem, it is called the South Down, but the sheep generally are of a good kind. The Irish pigs are rather long-legged, but better and more improved breeds are in the possession of individuals. The breeds of swine and sheep in the county of Fermanagh are both excellent. The feathered tribe exhibits less variety here than in most other countries. The eagle and hawk are amongst the birds of prey, and falcons were common here two centuries ago; owls are less common than in Wales or England, and nightingales do not live in this climate. Amongst the game may be mentioned the pheasant, woodcock, partridge, grouse, barnacle, widgeon, snipe, &c. Ringdoves, stockdoves, cootes, quails, and water-hens, are met in every part; and the passerine family is remarkably numerous. The winged inhabitants of the sea-coast are also of various kinds,—puffins, eider-ducks, curlews, &c. There are no poisonous animals, or any of the reptile species of a disgusting kind in Ireland: whether owing to the soil, or to the fabled patronage of St. Patrick, neither vipers, snakes, or any venomous reptiles are found here; even the croaking frog is an importation.

The coast fisheries are amongst the principal resources of the population. In the prosecution of them they have been aided by government as well as by the landed proprietors, and as the supply of fish is infinite, so is the variety very great. The fishing-banks, which nearly surround the island, contribute turbot, cod, ling, sun-fish, on the western coast; a delicious fish unknown on the English coast, called haddock; bream, mackerel, hake, ray, herrings, pilchards, gurnet, mullet, and a great variety of the less valuable kinds; while the lakes and rivers contain an inexhaustible store of the different species peculiar to fresh water. Of these, the principal are pike and trout, the latter in some places having gizzards, and being distinguished by the epithet Gillaroo; char, perch, tench, carp, eels, a species of fish found in the great lake of Erne called "Fresh-water herrings," and various others, to which must be added the salmon, a source of much profit to the country. Valuable salmon-fisheries belong to the Boyne, Bann, Erne, Moy, Shannon, and Blackwater; and almost all the rivers of any consequence abound with this desirable species. Lobsters, crabs, muscles, crayfish, &c., are taken all along the coast; and the finest-flavoured oysters in the British isles are brought from Lisadil, near Sligo, and from Carlingford, in the county of Down. The former are considered the most delicious, and possess a flavour quite unique, the latter resemble the natives sold in the London market.

The learned and accurate Ware observes, in speaking of the ancient territorial division of Ireland, "that it is a subject so difficult and obscure, that the most clear-sighted can hardly discover any thing of certainty in it." And Seneca exclaims, "new foundations of cities are laid, and new names of people spring up, either from the extinction of the ancient, or change of them into the more prevailing." The only true guides to the distribution of Ireland in early days are Marinus Tyrius, and after him Ptolemy, for what Camden has added is not to be implicitly relied on. According to these ancient geographers, the north was inhabited by the Venicnii, Robogdii, and Damnii. The Erudini occupied the site of Cavan and its vicinity, and the Voluntii somewhere near the present county Down. Connaught was possessed by the Nagnati, Auteri, and Gangani, and Leinster divided amongst the Ebalni, Cauci, Menapii, and Brigantes; the Coriondii, Lucenii, Velabri, Ulterni, and Vodii, occupied the south. They do not favour the moderns with any name for the Cape Clear of our day, but the present Malin-Head was named Robogdium. The number of small principalities into which the kingdom was divided under what is termed the Milesian dynasty, and subsequently, from the year 807, when the Danes and Norwegians first infested Ireland, to the arrival of the English in the reign of Henry II., must here be passed over. It may be observed, briefly, that the Romans never obtained a footing in Ireland; and that a pentarchal form of government existed up to the arrival of Palladius and of St. Patrick, the petty kingdoms being named Munster, Leinster, Connaught, Meath, and Ulster. These were afterwards subdivided, and the variety of their conflicting interests occasioned the history of the country to present a succession of very sanguinary events. Henry II. acted vigorously in reducing the kingdom to a more systematic territorial arrangement, and a reduction of the ancient partitions into shires commenced by him, was pressed much by Elizabeth, and completed by Charles I. In the year 1152, Pope Eugene III. divided Ireland into four provinces, for ecclesiastical objects purely: this division, however, has been retained ever since, without any one advantage resulting from it. The first of the provinces, Ulster, includes the counties of Antrim, Armagh, Cavan, Down, Donegal, Fermanagh, Londonderry, Monaghan, and Tyrone; which counties are subdivided into fifty-five baronies, a denomination corresponding to the hundreds and wapentakes in England. Leinster contains the shires of Carlow, Dublin, Kildare, Kilkenny, King's County, Longford, Louth, Meath, Queen's County, Westmeath, Wexford, and Wicklow, which are again partitioned into ninety-nine baronies. The southern province, called Munster, consists of the six following shires: Clare, Cork, Kerry, Limerick, Tipperary, and Waterford, the number of baronies in which is sixty-three. And Connaught is composed of Galway, Leitrim, Mayo, Roscommon, and Sligo counties, having but forty-three baronies. The circuits are arranged to correspond with the four provinces, the Leinster being generally called the Home Circuit, and supreme courts are also held in Dublin. Each county has its chairman, a barrister of eminence, and sessions are held under his direction and decision. The county of Cork, like Yorkshire, is divided into ridings, east and west, and has the benefit of two petty judges, or chairmen, to preside at their sessions. Drogheda, Waterford, and a few other large towns, possess separate local jurisdictions, which will be found described under each particular place; and the unhappy inquietude of the country is under the watchful care of stipendiary magistrates, whose quarters are shifted according to the urgency of cases, assisted by the gentry of each vicinity, who are commissioned, as magistrates, by the Lord Chancellor of Ireland solely. There is no map of Ireland whose accuracy and truth are esteemed, and it is more than probable they are all completely worthless. The Domesday-book, the Stafford Survey, and Pinnar's Survey, are mere terriers or catalogues of property, not maps laid down on paper. The topographical representation of Ricardus Corinensis, and of Mercator, are totally incorrect. Some few additions to the map of Ireland were acquired in the reigns of Elizabeth and James I.; but the principal survey, and the only one possessing a claim to accuracy or authenticity, is the Down Survey, made by Dr. Petty immediately subsequent to the memorable time of 1641. Even this last work is charged with imperfection upon two accounts; first, the persons employed in making it were, in most cases, the private infantry soldiers, who were incapable of laying down any thing on paper; and, secondly, part of the original maps, on their way to Dr. Petty in England, were taken by a French privateer and carried to Paris, where they are now preserved in the King's Library; the copies retained in Ireland were destroyed accidentally by fire, and the copies granted by the French government since have been totally objected to when brought to Ireland. Such is the case of the general topography of Ireland, from which the necessity of the trigonometrical survey now in progress, under the Ordnance, evidently appears.

The Irish claim a high antiquity. They assert that Partholanus, with a train of Grecians, first colonised their island about 322 years after the deluge. After a period of 330 years, during which the first invaders became extinct, a colony of Scythians appeared; and the inhabitants, about this era, are usually denominated Fírbolgs. Grecians, Danes, and Egyptians, successively possessed and were expelled the country, until the establishment of the Milesian kings, the descendants of Heber and Heremon, a race which is supposed to have continued till the arrival of the English. It cannot be said that the Milesian race is still in existence, although Spain acknowledges a consanguinity, and the Aborigines of Connaught profess such ancient ancestry; the period of their government is too remote, and their history too uncertain. The Irish, like other nations, appear to have been the dupes of priests for centuries. The worship of the sun, or some such ancient system, probably existed here, and the upright stones may have relation to their mode of adoration. This was, in all likelihood, succeeded by Druidism, a religion of blood and terror: it was extensively cultivated through the kingdom, as the very many cromlechs, circles, chairs, and sacrificing-stones, amply prove, Aborigines, Danes, and all the component parts of this wild nation were under the entire control of the Arch-Dæid and his disciples. The ready transition from Druidism to Christianity, which followed the preaching of St. Patrick, argues the severity of their former masters; and they again became the slaves of the Christian minister, and the altar of the sun was abandoned, the cromlech overturned, the rocking-stone dislodged, and their places filled by temples dedicated to the true God. Ireland now became the "insula sanctorum." Architecture, borrowed from the Grecian churches, was introduced instantaneously, amongst people who had not before known the art of masonry. Seven churches at Cluanmacnois, as many at Glendalough and in Scatterry, testify the genius of the ministers of the new religion and the submission of the converts; and Cormac's chapel at Cashel, and the stone-roofed church of St. Doolagh, are surviving evidences of incomparable skill in workmanship and design. Where the pillar-towers are to stand in history, whether erected for religious purposes, when erected, and by whom,—these questions are all unanswerable, if we except that they may probably be said to have been raised sometime in the tenth century. The remains of one hundred are still visible, and fifty are quite perfect; they average one hundred feet in height, measure from fifty to sixty in circumference near the base, are entered by a door nine or ten feet from the ground, are smooth like gun-barrels on the inside generally, and covered with a conical cap of stone, beneath which appear four small windows, corresponding to the cardinal points. The English found them here upon their arrival, but even then their uses were unknown. Rathes and tumuli are found in almost every district. Some were intended as intrenchments, within which cattle and moveables might be enclosed and watched during the night, others are sepulchres of the great, such as the cave at New Grange, in Meath, in which the chambers of the monument were discovered, and wherein urns full of burned bones were deposited. Although ecclesiastical architecture, imported from the eastern kingdoms, adorned this country at an early period, the military holds did not enjoy the benefit of such substantial protection as masonry afforded. Perhaps the Wonderful Castle, as it is styled, of O'Connor, at Tuam, was the first stone edifice erected in Ireland for objects not exclusively religious. This was built, according to Ware, in the year 1161. Portumna Castle, the seat of the Marquis of Clanricarde, was erected by his ancestors, the De Burgos, in the year 1180. It is still completely perfect, and one of the most interesting objects in Ireland to the antiquary. The face of the kingdom is speckled with castles of the Irish chieftains, all erected between the date of Portumna and the reign of Elizabeth. Those belonging to the mere Irish, as they are called, consist of one square keep or citadel, without outworks, but enclosing a small space in the centre used as a bawn for the preservation of their cattle at night. The castles erected by the Norman barons, are extensive and architectural; but the [most magnificent in the kingdom are the royal castles of King John, of which that at Trim is perhaps the most spacious and perfect. The plan consists of an outer court, secured by a ballium, which encompasses rather more than an acre of land, the entrance being through a noble barbican, concealing a drawbridge. In the centre stands the citadel, a pile of great magnitude, originally secured by the curtain walls of the inner court. The waters from the Boyne, on whose banks this stately pile is built, can be conducted round the outer walls by means of a broad fosse. After the manner of this royal habitation, the Anglo-Irish lords raised spacious, secure, and costly structures. One of the most perfect in its plan was Courtstown, the palace of the Graces, to which may be added Kilkea, belonging to the Fitzgeralds, and Dunluce, the property of the M'Donnells. The style of all, the last excepted, was Norman, or Anglo-Norman, as might naturally be concluded from the origin of the settlers. The policy, the wisdom, and determination of Elizabeth, at last rendered the abandonment of the defensive dwelling practicable. Henceforth the open casement is to be found, and other indications of the establishment of perfect personal security. Few, however, of the pretty gabled houses of that reign are to be met with in Ireland, although the style so completely possessed the sister island. The famous Inigo Jones was not unknown in Ireland, and the Old Tholsel of Dublin, built from one of his designs, although substantial in appearance, was obliged to be pulled down in less than a century after its elevation. Some few specimens of Inigo's style still survive in the old cities and towns, but, like heavy animals, they sink under their own weight. Cassels, Penrose, and others, softened the severity of this style, and introduced the Grecian orders. The Bank of Ireland is acknowledged to be one of the noblest piles in the British isles. The force of example is not only striking, but lasting, and to the present day the public buildings of Ireland, so conspicuous for their chaste and classic elevations, are uniformly built in some modification of the Grecian manner. The introduction of the Anglo-Normans did not diminish the religious or superstitious character of the inhabitants. Religious houses, monasteries, and cells, were multiplied, and the ruins of many yet surviving exhibit masterly specimens of the architectural art. Jerpoint Abbey possesses a mixture of Saxon and Norman. Holy Cross, in Tipperary, presents a splendid display of the abilities of the artist, and a wonderful proof of the excellence of the workmanship of that age. The carving of the twisted pillars of black and polished marble would be found a task of no ordinary difficulty in the present day. The style of Holy Cross, as well as that of some hundred other ecclesiastic edifices, scattered over the kingdom, is Gothic, or more properly, pointed, and it does not appear that this beautiful style advanced in the hands of the Irish after this period, as is sufficiently shown from the inferiority of the greater number to the exquisite workmanship at Holy Cross. The Reformation shook the religious fabrics of Ireland, and cut short the progress of monastic establishments. The arts fell by this blow, and their revival was for years both slow and spiritless. A style, contemptible and inconvenient, was adopted in the erection of churches for the celebration of the reformed service. The disputed claims to many of the noblest buildings, caused their final desertion and utter decay; nor have any new cathedrals been raised by the successors to the property of the church. A happier age of ecclesiastical architecture has lately arisen, the merit of which is due to Francis Johnston; he ventured to revive the Gothic, or pointed style, in its most florid manner; and although he cannot be exactly followed, from the cost attendant upon such elevations, a spirit has been awakened amongst his disciples which will beautify and improve. The castle chapel, in Dublin, is the richest specimen of Johnston's labours. A living artist has ventured further back into the study of the ancients, and borrowed their vaulted roof. Several very graceful churches in this ancient manner have lately been raised in the diocese of Dublin. Private mansions of extent and costliness were first, it may be said, erected in Ireland by Cassels, not a century back. Carton House, the seat of the Duke of Leinster; Russborough House, the front of which extends 700 feet; Powerscourt and other magnificent mansions were built after his sensible designs. Gandon, one of the editors of "Vitruvius Britannicus," was next known as the skilful artist and accomplished gentleman; the late president of the Royal Hibernian Academy, besides his public works, has left Tullamore Castle as a monument of his fame in domestic architecture; and the authors of Shelton Abbey, and Kilruddery House, may assume the peculiar merit of having selected all the graces of ancient English architecture, neglecting its many incongruities, and of applying this, their happy union, to the embellishment of their country. The profession of an engineer is one with which the early Irish appear to have had but little acquaintance, wherefore those beautiful efforts of art, the construction of bridges and harbours were almost wholly neglected. Few ancient bridges are known of, and the great rivers of the Foyle, the Suire, and the Barrow, are crossed by wooden bridges, at the cities of Derry and Waterford, and the town of New Ross, all designed by Lemuel Cox, an American. A new era, however, has arrived in this useful science; and to the genius and exertions of existing Irish engineers, assisted by public bounty, is to be attributed the construction of the great ~~Harbour~~ ^{Harbour}, called Kingstown Harbour, an area of above 200 acres; the Packet Harbour of Howth, and upwards of 100 smaller safety and fishing harbours. Roads have been constructed upon new principles, into districts where wheeled carriages were never seen before, canals carried from one side of the kingdom to the other, and permanent stone bridges thrown across the most rapid, as well as the broadest rivers. Perhaps the Wellesley Bridge, over the Shannon, at Limerick, may be mentioned as one of the most accomplished designs in this species of architecture; it is about 400 feet in length, and presents a flat causeway from end to end.

It has already been observed that the Irish claim a high antiquity. According to traditional history, about 1300 B. C., the Gadelians, called also Scots, conquered Ireland, and settled there under the government of Heber and Heremon, sons of Milesius, King of Spain, to whom the country was indebted for comparative civilization. A code of laws was introduced by the celebrated Ollam Fodla, under whose institution conventions of kings, priests, and bards, were held triennially in the great hall of Tarah, in Meath. Kimboth, one of his successors, built a palace and established his seat of government at Armagh. The bards during this and a long succeeding period, exercised a great ascendancy, but the result appears to have been no way desirable, as few or none of the monarchs or minor kings or chieftains died, otherwise than in battle or by conspiracy, until the arrival of St. Patrick A. D., 432 who softened the native character by the introduction of a peaceful religion. The invasions of the Danes, rude and barbarous as they were, and the government established by them, were in some respects favourable to a still ruder people, and although ultimately subdued, a remnant of the race, as in the north of England, is still traceable.

About the year 1156, from which period the history of Ireland is connected with that of England, Dermot M'Murrough, King of Leinster, inflamed by an unlawful passion, carried off Dervolga, the wife of O'Rorke, Prince of Breffny, or Leltrim. A willingness to embrace the military life, which the Irish Toparchs manifested in the early history of the country, seconded the desires of O'Rorke to revenge the injury done to his honour, and the insult to his crown. Supported by Roderic O'Connor, King of Connaught, aided by the remnants of their old enemies, the Danes, and urged by such powerful feelings of vengeance against Dermot, he accordingly took the field. The latter deeming himself unable to oppose so formidable a coalition, set fire to his palace at Ferns, and fled into France, to seek the assistance of King Henry II., then in Aquitaine, whom he promised to acknowledge as his sovereign lord, and consented to hold, his dominions in vassalage to the crown of England. Henry received the application of the Prince of Leinster with courtesy, and granted him letters of aidance addressed to all his subjects, giving licence and promising favour to those who might be disposed to assist him. This permission induced Richard, Earl of Chepstow, or Strigul, and surnamed Strongbow, to make a treaty of alliance with the exile, and Fitzstephen and Fitzgerald engaged their services for the proffered reward of the town of Wexford. The two last adventurers arrived in the month of May, 1170, with two vessels called the Bag and Bun, and landed upon a small cape near Wexford, named at this day the Bagandbun Head. Hervey De Monte-Marrisco, nephew of Strongbow, accompanied this armament, which consisted of thirty knights, sixty men in armour, and 300 archers. The smallness of the body of troops, and the mode of their introduction into Ireland, certainly do not permit this descent to be called an invasion, nor does the gradual manner in which the English advanced from one acquisition to another, deserve the epithet of conquest; perhaps it had been a happier event for Ireland had it been boldly invaded by the English king, and the inhabitants, like those of Wales, completely and at once subdued. After some insignificant engagements, Dermot was enabled to obtain a peace, of which his perfidious heart did not long permit him to observe the conditions. New broils arose and gave an opportunity for the admission of Strongbow, in addition to the brave Raymond le Gros, whom he previously sent into Ireland with a handful of warriors. The earl was accompanied by a force of 200 horse and 1200 foot, all disciplined troops, and with these he succeeded in establishing himself on the throne of Leinster, to which he founded an additional claim as the heir of Dermot, whose daughter Eva he had espoused. Henry could not brook a rival so near his throne, and determined to bring his suspicions of Earl Richard to the test by ordering his immediate return and appearance in his presence. Strongbow and his followers instantly obeyed and attended the king at Newnham, in Gloucester, and there acknowledged a loyal and dutiful submission to his will. Henry affected to be satisfied with the loyalty of his newly-acquired subjects, but resolved to have a more entire knowledge of their affection by visiting the kingdom of Ireland in person. Wherefore, in the month of October, 1172, having previously obtained a grant of the whole island from the pope, he sailed from Milford with 400 knights and a force of 4000 men, and landed at Waterford on the festival of St. Luke, not as an invader, but as one desirous to take possession of a conquest and grant already completed. The Princes of Desmond, Thome, and others, submitted and did homage for their dominions; and Limerick,

Cork, Waterford, and Wexford, received English garrisons. Dublin was honoured by a royal visit, when a temporary palace was erected, and a charter granted to the citizens. The lieutenancy of Prince John, declared Lord of Ireland by his father, Henry, followed; and this weak prince acted there with the same tyranny and insolence as he did every where else. A visit, however, which he made to Ireland after his accession to the English throne, was attended with more beneficial results. He gave the Irish a new code of laws, which he ordered to be deposited in the Exchequer at Dublin, under the royal seal, and constituted the shires of Dublin, Meath, Kildare, Louth, Carlow, Kilkenny, Wexford, Waterford, Cork, Kerry, Limerick, and Tipperary, being the entire of the English pale at that period. He also appointed courts of judicature in Dublin, and sheriffs to the counties; and further empowered his deputy, Grey, Bishop of Norwich, to coin money in Ireland of equal weight with that of England, which was made current through the empire at large by royal proclamation. Notwithstanding these wise and wholesome arrangements, Ireland remained in great disorder in the following reigns of Henry III. and Edward I., and in that of Edward II. was further distressed by an invasion of the Scots under Edward Bruce, brother of the celebrated Robert Bruce, King of Scotland. Edward Bruce was, however, slain in battle, on which his brother Robert, who had landed with an army to support him, retired. The reign of Edward II. is marked by an effort to found a university of learning in Dublin, which proved abortive. The oppressions of the Irish and Anglo-Irish attained their climax under Edward III. All persons, either natives, or allied to them by marriage, were disqualified from holding office under the crown, and distrust and ill-treatment were the portion of the subjects of this part of the kingdom. Remonstrance and petition followed each other incessantly, and at length an assemblage of Parliament was convened at Kilkenny, in 1368, the result of whose deliberation was the act called "the statute of Kilkenny." By this, unluckily for the peace of the country, it was enacted, that marriage, with the mere Irish nurture of infants, &c., should be punished as high treason. That if any man of English descent should adopt an Irish name, apparel, language, or customs, he should forfeit his lands or tenements; or, if he had none, be imprisoned till he gave security for his future abstinence from such supposed crimes. The Brehon law was pronounced vicious, and submission to it high treason, while the English laws were to be found only amongst the English by descent and birth. These were the principal features of this vile statute, the consequences of which were increased hatred, jealousy, animosity, and frequently bloodshed. Like all laws of a too sanguinary cast, it had a direct contrary tendency to the intention of its makers, and accordingly the English interest was found to decline daily. Henry VII.'s reign brought to England peace, and established the English interests on a solid foundation in Ireland. The law of Sir Edward Poynings ordained that Irish Parliaments should not assemble, or enact laws without the leave and approbation of the king of England, by which the seigniority of the English king was fully established, and the exaction of Black Rents abolished. Disorders arose in the reign of Henry VIII., which were suppressed with a severity characteristic of that monarch. The instigation and assistance of the Spaniards, seconded by the daring spirit of Tyrone, kept the whole kingdom open as an arena for marshal display to the hour of Elizabeth's dissolution. James I., perhaps, took the most decisive step to calm this agitated state of things, by actually removing the obstructions to an even flow of events. This he did by ejecting the old inhabitants, of about 500,000 acres of forfeited lands in Donegal, Tyrone, Derry, Fermanagh, Cavan, and Armagh, and colonising them with English undertakers and Scotch servitors. Whatever may be thought of the severity of this measure, as respects the native Irish, its effects were otherwise beneficial. Here the linen manufacture sprung up, and this is the most tranquil, wealthy, and enterprising portion of the kingdom. Difference of religion cannot be urged as a reason why other provinces have retrograded while Ulster advanced, for there is a greater variety of sects in the north than in any other part of Ireland. It was in this arrangement the corporation of London, became proprietors of large estates in Derry and elsewhere, granted on condition of their expending 20,000*l.* upon improvements, and building the towns of Derry and Coleraine. The cause of education was not neglected in this applotment. Several freeschools were endowed, and the university of Dublin, which had been founded in the preceding reign, enriched by a grant of many of the largest benefices in the province.

The Roman Catholic party availing themselves of the miserable condition of the English nation, broke out into rebellion in the memorable year 1641, and many English Protestants were massacred in cold blood. The accounts, however, of what is called the Popish massacre, are discredited or deemed exaggerated by some of the most intelligent and candid historians. Cromwell's arguments proved very convincing, and the horror and barbarity with which his reduction of the distressed districts is connected, are disgraceful to the character of both man and soldier. The restoration was a cause of gratulation, although Charles proved a contemptible arbitrator between individuals, and here, as every where else, was deficient in gratitude, but on the whole his reign was favourable to Ireland. Endowments of schools, establishments of hospitals, and renewals of charters, evince the fact very generally in every part of the kingdom. The conflict between the infatuated James and the cautious William, although decided by the battle of the Boyne in this country, is a conspicuous part of the history of England. The English Parliament at this time enacted many laws restrictive of trade and destructive of the establishment of manufactures in Ireland; in addition to which the English Lords reversed a decision of the Irish Lords, a power it was never thought they possessed; and, in 1724 a patent was granted to an individual named Wood, an Englishman, to coin halfpence and farthings for this kingdom. Here were causes of jealousy and discontent sufficient to inflame a less irritable people; and the Drapier's letters, from the pen of the facetious Swift, put the match to the combustible matter. An attempt was made in the year 1731, by which the English government endeavoured to supersede the necessity of parliamentary meetings in Ireland, by asking for a supply for twenty-one years at once; this stratagem was frustrated by the arrival of Colonel Tottenham, in time for the division, which was against the minister by a majority of one. The government of Lord Chesterfield is much extolled. His courtesy, condescension, and acts of liberality to the Roman Catholics preserved a perfect calm in Ireland, while rebellion raged in Scotland. A new and unexpected event now occurred. Factions called White Boys, Oak Boys, Steel Boys, &c., arose, who did not know the precise object of their coalition, yet were conscious that they were not governed as they ought to be. It was also enacted at this time, as if to augment the disturbances, that beef or live cattle should not be exported to England, nor any commercial intercourse between Ireland and the American colonies allowed, except through the medium of England or Wales. This last act brought Irish affairs to a crisis, as it gave occasion for the display of Mr. Grattan's eloquence and abilities, and led to the celebrated association called the Irish Volunteers, owing to whose independent declaration the opening of a free trade was effected. This final adjustment and first day of real independence occurred in 1782. The Irish were now flattered by the institution of the illustrious order of knights of St. Patrick; and a succession of noblemen of the greatest abilities and amplest fortunes were appointed to govern them. Still the religious animosities, the Association of United Irishmen for reform of Parliament, and the approach of the French, under General Hoche, with 25,000 men, laid the foundation of those unhappy rebellions, which burst forth with such violence in 1798 and 1803. The suppression of the first and most formidable of these civil wars, was followed quickly by the legislative union of the two British isles, which took place in the year 1800; from which period the history of Ireland can no longer be considered as distinct from the more general history of the British dominions.

The legislative and executive government of Ireland are not further distinct from that of the great island to which it is now united, than by the substitution of a viceroy for the monarch (see the article, England). Ireland contributes to the Upper House twenty-one peers, elected for life; and to the Lower 100 commoners, returned by freemen of corporate towns, by freeholders possessing real estates to the value of 10*l.* per annum, by boroughs, and the university of Dublin. There are three representative bishops and one archbishop, always entitled to seats in the House of Lords; they sit in rotation with their venerable brethren. The courts of justice are numerous, but analogous to those of England. The lord chancellor is assisted in the discharge of the duties attached to his high court by the master of the rolls, but there is no vice-chancellor in Ireland. The courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer, are each presided over by a chief, assisted by three puisne judges; and the judges of the three law courts preside at the courts of assize held in the different counties. Dublin possesses several courts peculiar to itself, as the recorder's, lord mayor's, court of conscience, &c.; and other corporate towns enjoy similar advantages in the speedy attainment of justice. The Insolvent Debtor's Court is a tribunal distinct from all others, and subject to judges confined to that part of the administration of the laws. Each county has also a petty judge, or chairman; and several courts of feudal origin still exist throughout the kingdom, and aid in the decision of minor matters. The ordinary revenues of both countries arise from the same sources, viz.—customs, excise, post-office, and stamp duties; but there are no assessed taxes collected in Ireland. The total amount of public income received in 1829, is stated to be 4,734,291*l.*, and the net paid into the exchequer 4,664,778*l.* The consolidation of the different boards of customs, stamps, &c., has rendered separate statements less useful or necessary. The revenue derived from the post-office, which may be considered as under a distinct arrangement from the office in London, was, in 1828, 216,232*l.*, although it yielded but 84,040*l.* in the year 1800. The number of post-towns is 429: the number of mails, forwarded weekly, amounts to 2436; and there are thirty-one mail-coaches in the employment of the establishment.

Attempts have been frequently made by private individuals and by existing governments, to ascertain the exact population of Ireland: perhaps that of Sir William Petty, in the year 1672, was the first. His occupation in making a territorial survey of the forfeited lands, coupled with his well-known talent for calculation and tact for such inquiries, lead to the supposition that his return, amounting to 1,320,000 souls, is tolerably correct. In 1695 Captain South published his calculation of the number of inhabitants, in the Transactions of the Royal Society of London, which reduced the amount to 1,034,102. Thomas Dobbs made four different enumerations, basing his calculation upon the returns of the hearth-money collectors, in all of which he makes the population exceed 2,000,000. His last census is dated 1726. The House of Lords directed a return of the population to be made by the established clergy in the year 1731, the amount of which was somewhat lower than that of Dobbs. From 1731 to 1785, four distinct enumerations were attempted, calculated from the hearth-money collectors' books, from which a regular increase was observable to the last year, when the total amounted to 2,845,932. But there is very little doubt that the preceding were founded upon insufficient data, for in three years subsequent to the last estimate, Gervais P. Bushe, Esq., upon good grounds, considered that the population should be rated at 4,040,000, in which conclusion he was countenanced by Dr. Beaufort, who made a calculation in 1792. Mr. Newenham's inquiry into the progress and magnitude of the population in 1803, discovers a further increase, the total then being 5,395,456, which differed little from the incomplete census of 1814, taken under an act of Parliament, in which the amount is made 5,937,856. In the preceding list of enumerators Sir W. Petty, Mr. Bushe, and Major Newenham, are generally supposed to have arrived pretty near the truth; but the enumeration of Mr. Shaw Mason, under an act passed in 1821, is perhaps the most satisfactory document of that description ever submitted to the legislature of any country. According to him, Ireland contained, in 1823, a population of 6,801,827, of which number only 2,836,815 are stated to have been occupied. There is much difficulty in distinguishing the population otherwise than into the occupied and unoccupied; there are no poor-rates in Ireland, whereby a line of distinction can at once be drawn, so that the relative numbers of what the world call rich and poor, or the ancient Romans called patrician and plebeian, patron or client, cannot here be ascertained. The applotments returned to Parliament in 1820, and called Parochial Rates, are wholly levied for the maintenance of the established church, and not in any way connected with the relief of the poor. The absence of legal provision for the aged and infirm, is in part supplied by the benevolence of the wealthy. No country abounds in a greater number of charitable asylums than this, and annual contributions are as regularly paid by every parishioner capable of affording such, either at the usual parochial charity-sermon, or in some other voluntary manner, as by the rate-payer in England. Every county possesses its infirmary: the whole kingdom is divided into districts, to each of which a lunatic asylum, on an extensive scale, is attached; and mendicity associations are established in Dublin and Cork. The education of the humbler classes is a subject of anxious care to the Irish gentry. Charter-schools for the maintenance and education of Protestant children, are under the direction of the Incorporated Society. They were established in conformity with a charter, granted in 1733, and have been largely endowed since that period by benevolent individuals. About 2000 children were sheltered in these asylums; but the plan has lately been objected to, and is about to be reformed. The Association for Discountenancing Vice was instituted in the year 1792; it extends its patronage to poor-schools, and upwards of 20,000 children are educated at schools in connexion with this society. The Kildare Street Society direct their attention exclusively to the extension of education amongst the humbler classes, and have received annual grants of considerable amount from the imperial Parliament. The first meeting of this society was held in the year 1811; and there were in January, 1831, the number of 1553 schools on the society's list, containing, in all, 124,449 scholars. Besides those already mentioned, there are numerous poor-schools, supported by the Roman Catholics exclusively, the numbers educated in which are not any where returned upon authority; so that, in quoting the parliamentary return of the number of children, receiving gratuitous education in this country, at 394,813, a return less than the truth is really made. The endowed classical schools, some of royal foundation, others diocesan, and some on the foundation of Erasmus Smith, are not connected with the subject of the education of the poor, although they receive some free scholars. They are like the endowed schools of England, intended for and adapted to the children of the more wealthy.

Though Ireland cannot be called a manufacturing country, nor until larger fields of coal be discovered can she expect to enter into competition with countries superior to her in this respect, yet she claims the character of a commercial kingdom. A few centuries back the restrictions laid upon her commerce by the legislature of Great Britain completely crushed her infant struggles. The prohibition from exporting wool or cattle seemed to have been enacted in a destructive spirit. However, in 1782, a free foreign trade was obtained for this country by the eloquence of Grattan, and the union of the two kingdoms in 1800, has rendered the ports of Ireland as free as those of the British merchant, while the vexatious duties upon the trade between these sister islands is now upon the footing of a coasting-trade. Without the consequences of the union, Ireland could never hope to become a country of manufactures, unless she were powerful enough to subdue the British lioness, and hold her bound in chains. Linen is and has long been the staple manufacture of the kingdom. It is asserted by one of the most learned Irish authorities, John Lynch, that the growth of flax and weaving of linen was early known to the Irish, and that thirty yards were generally consumed in the formation of the dress then commonly worn by the natives. However this may be, the present generation are indebted to the unfortunate Lord Strafford for the secure footing on which he planted that trade, and to their own industry, for the high character their fabrics have obtained. The province of Ulster is wholly engaged in this manufacture, and it has latterly been extended into Connaught and the south of Munster. Rivals have started in Yorkshire and borne away part of the trade from Drogheda and some other places; but the privation has been supplied by the introduction of the cotton manufacture into Ireland, a business occupying upwards of 30,000 hands in the counties of Antrim and Down alone. Woollen is not extensively manufactured; coarse cloths are made in many places, but fine ones rarely attempted, the English cloths being now sold at such moderate rates. The other manufactures are muslin, leather, glass, salt, vitriol, &c. Spirits are distilled in great quantities, but subject to restriction in exportation; and porter is exported to England from the Dublin and Cork breweries. The maritime position of Ireland seems to calculate it more especially for commerce, her ports are convenient to every nation, and her havens deep, spacious, and sheltered. She enjoys a share of foreign commerce as appears from the returns of 1828, calculated upon average of the three preceding years, the amount of exports abroad averaging 773,944*l.*, and of foreign imports 1,538,347*l.* The trade with England consists in the export of corn, cattle, hides, butter, and all sorts of agricultural produce, besides linen, lead and copper ore, whiskey, tallow, and various other commodities; for which she receives in exchange, of cottons about 5,000,000 of yards annually, of coals about 921,000 tons, besides china, earthenware, cutlery, and hardware of every description. Iron, hats, hosiery, and the productions of the East Indies, those of Canada and the colonies, being imported directly into the harbours of Ireland. Agriculture constitutes the principal employment of the population. Mining probably will give much additional occupation very speedily, but no prospect of profit or employment appears more decided or rational than that likely to arise from the fisheries. Some of the noble harbours on the coast have been already described as natural features only, on which account the seaports of consequence may here be enumerated. On the eastern coast are Wexford, Dublin, Drogheda, and Belfast; on the north, Derry possesses a solitary importance, owing to the imperfect navigation of the Bann, whereby Coleraine is excluded from a rank it should aspire to. Sligo, Westport, Clifden, and Galway, carry on direct foreign and British trade, and Limerick is one of the chief places of export in the kingdom; Kinsale is an ancient port, but Cork possesses the finest harbour and the best situated in the British isles, for trade with all parts of the globe. The port of Waterford remains to be mentioned amongst the principal in the island, and has been chosen as a packet harbour by the post-office. The limits which are here prescribed prohibit a further detail of the ports of minor importance, although many, such as Youghal and Dungarvan, possess an active and improving commerce. There are few ports where ship-building is conducted upon an enlarged scale, though vessels are repaired in a skilful manner and at the most moderate rates. The number of merchant-ships belonging to the Irish ports is estimated at 1500, besides a vast number of smallcraft engaged in the deep-sea fisheries and the coasting trade. The total amount of import tonnage, as returned in 1829, was 1,470,977 tons; and of tonnage engaged in the export trade, in the same year, 1,039,461. Of course many of the bottoms here enumerated belong to English, Welsh, and Scotch ports. Ireland participates in the benefit and fame of the British navy, but its history belongs to the details of English shipping.

The constitution of society here is analogous to that of England and Wales, being divided into laity and clergy. Of the former, subdivisions are made into nobility, gentry, and commonalty. The highest rank of nobility is a dukedom, of which there is but one in Ireland, that of Leinster, the well-deserved dukedom of Ormond being suppressed. Of the second rank, marquises, there are fourteen belonging to Ireland exclusively: there are besides seventy-three earls, forty-eight viscounts, and seventy-one barons. Many of these enjoy English titles of an inferior rank, from which they become entitled to the honour of a seat in the House of Peers; the remainder are excluded from this high privilege, the twenty-one representative peers of Ireland excepted. Peerages, or rather Irish titles of nobility, are granted by letters patent, but no new creation takes place until the complete extinction of four Irish peerages, conformably with a clause in the Act of Union. The title of baronet is the next inferior in rank to that of baron, but it does not confer any of the privileges of nobility; of this class the total is seventy-five, whose titles also are hereditary. In addition to the honourable and hereditary titles already mentioned, there is an order of knighthood here, to companionship in which the nobility alone are admitted, it is styled "the illustrious order of St. Patrick." It was instituted on the 17th of March, 1783, Earl Temple being then lord lieutenant. His majesty is sovereign of the order, and an installation was held by the king (George IV.,) in person, in August, 1821, in the ancient cathedral of St. Patrick, in Dublin. The lord lieutenant for the time being is grand master, and the number of knights companions was augmented by his late majesty to twenty-one. The lord lieutenant of Ireland, as the king's representative, possesses authority to confer a distinction also called knighthood. The person upon whom this honour is bestowed, by a touch of a sword upon the shoulder, is styled a knight bachelor, and adopts the prefix of Sir to his name, but his title does not descend to his heirs.

Though the greater portion of the inhabitants of Ireland are of the Roman Catholic religion, and many also dissenters, yet the religion must, in an historic narrative, be called Protestant, that being the religion established by law. Palladius first attempted the introduction of Christianity amongst the Irish, and was not successful; but St. Patrick, who followed immediately after him, overturned the altars of the Druids for ever. The disciples of the patron saint were also subservient to the see of Rome; but the Culdees, who possessed most extensive influence here during the middle ages, as they are termed, of Irish history, disclaimed totally all Romish interference, and very much resembled in their forms and principles, the Protestant church. Their power, however, was again set aside by the followers of the church of Rome, who held possession not only of the national creed, but also of much of the landed property of the kingdom, until the Reformation. There are some trifling differences between the articles of the English and Irish churches, which were mainly drawn up by the learned Archbishop Ussher, and they would have been more and wider, but for the prudent remonstrances of the lieutenant-governor of that time, with the pious and excellent prelate himself. The Irish church is under the government of four archbishops, viz., of Armagh, Dublin, Cashel, and Tuam. The occupant of the first is styled the lord primate of all Ireland, the dignitary presiding over the second being called the lord primate of Ireland. This curious division of an honour is the result of the settlement of a long and violent contest, as to which was entitled to the rank of metropolitan. There are besides eighteen bishops, who, together with the archbishops, preside over thirty-two dioceses, twenty of the sees coalescing into ten; under these again there are thirty-three deans and thirty-four archdeacons. The bishops of Down and Connor, Derry, Raphoe, Clogher, Kilmore, Ardagh, and Meath, are suffragans to the Archbishop of Armagh. The archdiocese of Dublin includes the sees of Glendalough, Kildare, Ossory, Ferns, and Leighlin. There are eleven dioceses in the ecclesiastical province of Cashel, viz., Emly, Waterford and Lismore, Cork and Ross, Cloyne, Limerick, and Ardfernt and Aghaloe, Killaloe and Kilfanora; and the suffragans of Tuam are the bishops of Clonfert, Kilmacduagh, Elphin, and Killala and Achonry. One archbishop and three bishops sit as barons in the House of Lords and there is an order of rotation fixed, according to which the different prelates succeed to this privilege. The total number of parishes in Ireland is 2436, which are reduced into 1396 benefices, by unions, held by faculties, dispensations, permission, &c., and by corporations, and in commendam. 1210 are served by resident incumbents, who have no second ecclesiastical preferment. There are about 1100 parish churches for the accommodation of above 2000 parishes; and the working clergy, 1250 in number, are provided with but 771 glebe-houses. The diocesan schools, long since founded, but suffered to decay, have lately been revived under strict regulations; and where the means of one diocese were insufficient to procure a house and compensate a qualified master, two dioceses have united to effect the desired end. The established church is sometimes furnished with ministers from the English universities, but chiefly, of course, from the university of Dublin. This is the great seat of learning in Ireland, and here many eminent persons have received their education. It was founded by Queen Elizabeth, in the year 1591, and contains one college, with provision in the charter for a second. The number registered upon the college books at this period, amounts to about 2000.

IRELAND, co. Bedford.

P. T. Biggleswade (45) 5 m. SW b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Southill and hundred of Wixamtree.

IRELAND'S-EYE, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

An island in the parish of Howth, off the barony of Coolock. It is of a pyramidal form, occupies an area of forty-eight statute acres, and is overrun by rabbits. It forms a natural break-water to Howth Harbour; and on it stand some singular rocks, presenting a castellated form, as seen from the mainland, which is just one mile distant. Its ancient name was Adros. Ptolemy calls it Adri-Deserta; Pliny, Andros; and by Richard, of Cirencester, Edria. On the east side is a cluster of dangerous rocks, called the Stags; and on the south-west may be seen the ruins of an ancient chapel. About the year 570, St. Nessan founded an abbey here, in which was preserved the book of the Four Gospels, usually styled "The Garland of Howth," of which Archbishop Allen speaks in his "Liber Niger."

IRELETH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Ulverston (273) 5 m. Pop. 513.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Dalton in Furness and hundred of Lonsdale north of the sands; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 3*l*.; patrons, the Vicar of Dalton and Landowners. The passage over the Dudden Sands commences here.

IRETON KIRK, co. Derby.

P. T. Wirksworth (140) 3 m. SSW.
Pop. 820.

A parish in the wapentake of Wirksworth; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in Br. B. 7*l*. 10*s*. 10*d*.; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron, the Dean of Lincoln.

IRETON WOOD, co. Derby.

P. T. Wirksworth (140) 4½ m. SSW.
Pop. 105.

A township in the parish of Kirk Ireton and wapentake of Wirksworth.

IRISHTOWN, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Dublin 2 m. E. Pop. with Donnybrook.

A poor village and a parish in the barony of Rathdown, situated at the extremity of Dublin Bay, near to the embouchures of the Liffey and Dodder rivers. It derives some advantage from the occasional residence of visitors in the bathing season. Here is a chapel of royal foundation, in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin.

IRLAM, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 9 m. WSW.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Flixton and hundred of Salford. Here is a ferry over the river Irwell.

IRLAM-O'THE-HEIGHT, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Manchester (182) 3½ m. W b N.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Eccles and hundred of Salford.

IRMINGLAND, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Aylesham (119) 5 m. WNW. Pop. 10.

A parish in the hundred of South Erpingham; living, a dis. rectory with that of Heydon, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l*.; patronage with Heydon rectory.

IRNHAM, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Corby (105) 2 m. NE b N. Pop. 413.

A parish in the wapentake of Bentsloe, parts of Kesteven; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 13*l*. 13*s*. 9*d*.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) the Rev. F. Burton.

IRON-BROCK GRANGE, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 13 m. NNW. Pop. 34.

A hamlet in the parish of Wirksworth and hundred of High Peak.

IRON-LOUGH, co. Westmeath, Leinster, I.

A lake in the barony of Moygoist, covering an area of 610 acres. Near to this is Baronston, the seat of the Malones, an ancient family.

IRSTEAD, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Colishall (116) 0½ m. E. Pop. 152.

A parish in the hundred of Tunstead; living, a dis. rectory with that of Barton Turf, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Bishop of Norwich.

IRTHINGTON, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 8 m. NE b E.
Pop. of Pa. 1020. Q^{r} To. 251.

A parish and township in Eskdale ward; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 1*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Kentigern; patron (1829) Mrs. Dacre. Here is an endowed freeschool.

IRTHLINGBOROUGH, co. Northampton.

P. T. Higham Ferrers (65) 2 m. NW.
Pop. 1072.

A parish in the hundred of Huxloe; livings, a rectory and a vicarage, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; the former valued in K. B. 5*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; the latter not in charge. The church, which is ded. to St. Peter, consists of a nave, two aisles, a transept, a lofty spacious chancel, with a tower, which is square for two stories, where an octangular part rises; in the chancel are several antique monuments; patron (1829) Earl Fitzwilliam.

IRTON, or IRTONDALE, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Ravenglass (279) 5 m. N b E.
Pop. 506.

A parish in Allerdale ward above Darwent; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 4*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; church ded. to St. Paul; patron (1829) Lord Muncaster.

IRTON, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Scarborough (217) 4½ m. SW. Pop. 105.

A township in the parish of Seamer and east division of the wapentake of Pickering Lythe.

IRVINE, shire of Ayr, S.

Edinburgh 69½ m. SW b W. Glasgow 25½ m. SW. Pop. 7007. Fair, 3d Mond. in Aug. for the week. Mem. of Pt. 1, with Ayr, &c.

A royal burgh, sea-port, market, post-town and parish in the district of Cunninghame, situated on an eminence rising from the north bank of the river Irvine, which is crossed by a handsome stone bridge leading to a well-built street in the parish of Dundonald, and chiefly inhabited by mariners; through this suburb passes the road to the harbour, which is formed by the estuary of the river, half a mile south-west from the town. This place consists principally of one broad street running parallel with the river, and contains an elegant church surmounted by a lofty spire, a handsome town-house in the centre of the town, and at its northern extremity a commodious academy, where Greek, Latin, French, the mathematics, and various other branches of useful knowledge are taught. Here also are established branches of the Paisley and Ayr banks; and a weekly market is held, which is well attended and plentifully supplied with provisions. Irvine was erected into a royal burgh long before the reign of Alexander II., who confirmed its ancient charter under which it is now governed by a provost, two bailies, a dean of guild, a treasurer, and twelve councillors; and jointly with Ayr, Campbelltown, Inverary, and Rothesay, sends one member to Parliament. An ample revenue arises from the lauded possessions of the burgh and customs of its port, which is commodious, and at spring-tides has about twelve feet water on the bar. The principal article of export is coal, of which 24,000 tons are annually shipped in vessels built and fitted out here, for which purposes there is a yard for ship-building, and a rope-walk, affording employment to a number of the inhabitants, while many others are occupied in a considerable manufacture of leather and cotton. The imports consist chiefly of iron, timber, hemp, flax, and grain, and formerly a great number of boats were employed in the herring-fishery, but it has been long on the decline. The parish is five miles in length by two in breadth, and the soil in some parts is abundantly productive, though the surface on the banks of the river is flat and sandy. The living is in the presbytery of Irvine (of which it is the seat) and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, the Earl of Eglintown, to whom belongs the remains of an old castle in the neighbourhood, said to have been built on the site of an ancient nunnery. The religious sect termed Buchanites, from their founder, Mrs. Buchan, originated in this parish.

ISALL, or ISELL, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Cockermouth (306) 3 m. NE.
Pop. 440.

A parish in Allerdale ward below Darwent, situated on the north bank of the river Darwent; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 13*s.* 6½*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829) Sir Wilfred Lawson, Bart., who has a seat here called Isall Hall; it is an ancient building, and was formerly a place of defence, one of its old towers is still remaining; it is situated in a pleasant and well-wooded spot, nearly surrounded by eminences. Old mines which have been worked, are visible in many parts of this parish, and there are supposed to be still veins of coal and copper untouched. Moothey Hill, in the neighbourhood, produces excellent freestone. Here is a school for the education of seventeen poor children, supported by Sir W. Lawson and H. T. Thompson, Esq.

ISALL OLD PARK, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Cockermouth (306) 5 m. NE b E.
Pop. 90.

A township in the parish of Isall and Allerdale ward below Darwent.

IS-CARNEG, co. Montgomery, N. W.

P. T. Machynllaeth (208) m. Pop. 338.

A township in the parish and hundred of Machynllaeth. The woollen manufactory and tanning are conducted here with great spirit, and give considerable occupation.

IS-COED, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

P. T. Carmarthen (219) 6 m. S. E.
Pop. 169.

A hamlet in the parish of Llan-dysaelog and hundred of Kidenelly, not far from the banks of the Towy.

IS-COED, co. Denbigh, N. W.

P. T. Wrexham (179) 5 m. E b S.
Pop. 509.

A parish in the hundred of Maelor, county of Flint, and partly in that of Bromfield, county of Denbigh. It is altogether entered in Flint in P. R. Living, a chapelry in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. Asaph, and not in charge, to the parish of Malpas; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Winchester. This is a coal district.

ISERTKELLY, or DYSERTKELLY, co. Galway, Connaught, I.

P. T. Loughrea (109) 3 m. SW.
Pop. 217.

A parish in the barony of Loughrea, situated upon the Gurtnamuckin river; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Killmacduagh and archdiocese of Tuam, being one of six vicarages which compose the union of Killinane; patrons, the Marquis of Clanricarde and the Bishop of Clonfert alternately. See Killinane.

ISERTKERRIN, or DYSERTKERRIN, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Callan (80) 6 m. SW.
Pop. with Killenaula.

A parish in the barony of Sliebhardagh; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese and archdiocese of Cashel, and forming a part of the union of Killenaula.

ISERTLAURENCE, co. Limerick, Munster, I.

P. T. Limerick (110) 7 m. SE.
Pop. 778.

A parish in the barony of Clanwilliam; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Emly and archdiocese of Cashel. The rectory constitutes the corps of a prebend, of which the Archbishop of Cashel is prebendary, without cure of souls; patron, the King. The vicarage is united to the benefices of Ballybrood, Liscormack, Liateely, and Rathjordan, constituting the corps of the precentorship of Emly diocese; value, by commutation of the rectory, 92*l.* 16*s.* 1*d.*, of the vicarage, 46*l.* 3*s.* 1*d.* per annum. Isertlaurence possesses about eighteen acres of glebe, together with a good house, but the church of the union is at Ballybrood; its area covers 820 acres.

ISFIELD, co. Sussex.

P. T. Uckfield (43) 3 m. SW.
Pop. 569.

A parish in the hundred of Isfield, rape of Pevensey; living, a rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

ISHAM, co. Northampton.

P. T. Kettering (74) 2½ m. SSE. Pop. 322.

A parish in the hundred of Orlingbury; living, a rectory in two portions, inferior and superior, in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. each 7*l.* 10*s.*; the latter of ann. val. P. R. 137*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patrons (1829) the Rev. Sir H. Hoare, Bart. and the Bishop of Lincoln.

ISHARTMON, co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Broadway (103) 5 m. SW.
Pop. 224.

A parish in the barony of Forth, situated upon the sea-coast; living, an impropriate cure in the diocese of Ferns and archdiocese of Dublin, united to five other impropriate cures, the vicarage of Maglass, and the rectory of Killinick, at which place is the church of the union.

ISHLAWRCOED, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Newport (126) 16 m. NW.
Pop. 978.

A hamlet in the parish of Bedwellty and hundred of Wentloog.

ISHMAELS, ST., co. Carmarthen, S. W.

P. T. Kidwelly (230) 3 m. WNW.
Pop. 861.

A parish in the hundred of Kidwelly, situated upon the sea-shore at the embouchure of the Towy river; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David; valued in P. R. at 89*l.* 10*s.* The church stands upon a rock within thirty yards of high water-mark, and there is a chapel of ease to this parish called Llan-Saint, or Halkin Chapel. Excellent barley is grown here, and three-fourths of the population are engaged in the catching and sale of shell-fish. The village of Ferry Hill is resorted to in summer for the benefit of sea-bathing. Tradition states that a monastery once existed at Pen Allt within this parish, but is silent as to its founder, or the date of its erection.

ISHMAELS, ST., co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Milford (258) m. W. Pop. 458.

A parish in the hundred of Rhôs, situated upon a creek issuing from Milford Haven, and opposite to the village and parish of Hubberston; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. at 62*l.* 19*s.* 4½*d.* The corporation of Tewkesbury are the impropriators, and the Lord Chancellor is patron. Caradoc of Llancarvan, the Welsh historian, died here, and was interred with much ceremony in the cathedral of St. David.

ISLAND OF ALLEN, co. Kildare, I.

A remarkable tract of land, called an island, from the circumstance of its being entirely surrounded by bog. It contains stratified limestone, used chiefly for building, the great portion of ilx found in it rendering it difficult to be burned into lime. Here also is found a conglomerate of rounded quartz pebbles, imbedded in argillaceous cement. The Hill of Allen, which is within the island, rises 300 feet above the level of the vast surrounding bog, and is composed of an unstratified fine-grained greenstone. The Milltown Canal and the main trunk of the Grand Canal intersect the island, and at the village of Ballyleagh a limestone quarry is worked. This place was the eastern portion of the Uagh Leana of the ancients, and the Hill of Allen is the Mount Cromla of the bards.

ISLAND-BRIDGE, co. Dublin, Leinster, I.

Dublin 2 m. W. Pop. 507.

A village in the parish of St. James and barony of Newcastle, agreeably situated upon the banks of the river Liffey at the head of Tide Water. Here is an artillery barrack, a few good private dwellings, and an extensive flour-mill. The salmon fishery also is a source of much profit, the fish being held in considerable estimation. The place derives its name from a noble bridge of one arch, which crosses the Liffey here. Its span is 104 feet, and versed sine thirty feet. The foundation stone was laid by Sarah, countess of Westmorland, in the year 1791, and it is in consequence, more generally called Sarah's Bridge. Mr. Stephenson was the architect, and Sir John Blaquiére the amateur engineer. The original island bridge was erected in the year 1577, and had the armorial bearings of Queen Elizabeth carved upon the centre stone of the battlements. Here is a Holy Well, dedicated to St. John of Jerusalem, and a patron is observed here upon Midsummer-day. Adjoining is the ancient cemetery of the hospital of the Knights of St. John, in the centre of which stands the shaft of an enormous cross, usually mistaken for the monument of Brian Boromhe.

ISLAND, or INCHIDONY, co. Cork, Munster, I.

P. T. Cloghnakilly (108) 2 m. S. Pop. 2091.

A parish, partly in the barony of Carberry, but partly also in the united baronies of Ibane and Barryroe, situated upon the bay of Cloghnakilly. The living is a vicarage in the diocese of Ross and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the vicarages of Killgaruff, Disart, Killkerran, and Castrum-Ventry, constituting thereby the corps of the prebend of Island. The church is at Killgaruff, but there is no residence for the incumbent, nor does the prebend possess any glebe.

ISLANDIKANE, or ISLAND OF KANE, co. Waterford, Munster, I.

P. T. Waterford (94) 9 m. SW. Pop. 1018.
Of Islands 267.

A parish in the barony of Middlethird, situated upon the sea-coast and including three inhabited islands of Ikane, on which there are about forty dwellings. The living is an entire rectory, in the diocese of Waterford and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the entire rectory of Killbride, constituting thereby the corps of the economy of the diocese; patron, the King.

ISLANDINE, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

P. T. Castlebar (159) 4 m. NW. Pop. 8418.

An extensive parish, partly in the barony of Burishoole and partly in that of Carra. The living is a vicarage in the diocese and archdiocese of Tuam, constituting part of the Union of Breafy. See Breafy and Casligbar.

ISLAND-MAGEE, co. Antrim, Ulster, I.

P. T. Larne (123) m. E. Pop. 2290.

A peninsula in the barony of Belfast, bounded on the east by the sea, and on the west by the Lough of Larne. It occupies an area of 6000 statute acres, and is remarkably fertile. It derives its name from the Magees, the proprietors in the reign of Elizabeth, and possesses a melancholy notoriety in history, as the scene of a barbarous massacre committed upon the inhabitants in the year 1642, by a party of military quartered at Carrickfergus. The unfortunate victims were surprised, murdered in cold blood, and thrown into the sea from the basaltic cliffs, called the Gobbins. The living is a rectory in the diocese of Connor and archdiocese of Armagh, forming part of the Union of Carrickfergus, which latter constitute the corps of the deanery of Connor; patron, the King. Here is a church, but no glebe or parsonage. The substratum of the peninsula is basalt, but chalk and lias emerge at the northern extremity. Gypsum also exists here, and coals undoubtedly are at a trifling depth. It is also thought that salt-mines will yet be discovered. There is here a bed of red ochre, 200 feet in thickness. The fishery upon the coast produces turbot, herrings, and a fish called blockens, peculiar to this ground; and kelp is manufactured on the eastern side of the peninsula. The remains of two churches, Killkeran and White Kirk, may still be seen. Also the ruins of two ancient castles, besides Druidical cromlechs and rocking-stones.

ISLANDS, co. Clare, Munster, I.

Pop. 24,141.

One of the nine baronies into which the county is divided. Its superficial contents are estimated at 28,088 acres, which is distributed into six parishes. Ennis, the chief town of the county, is in this barony, and also the town and commons of Clare. The surface of the western part is moory and mountainous, but that of the eastern is level and fertile, and includes some of the famous grassland of this part of the kingdom, generally denominated Corcass.

ISLAY, or ISLA, shire of Argyll, S.

N to S 28 m. E to W 18 m. Pop. about 1270. Fair, May 18.

The most southern island of the Æbudæ, or Hebrides, comprising the parishes of Bownmore, or Kilarrow, Kilchoman, Kildalton and Kilmeny, in the district of Islay. It is separated from the island of Jura, on the north-east, by a narrow sound formed by the Atlantic Ocean, which bounds it on every side, and is said to have derived its name either from Isla, the daughter of a king of Lochlin, whose ashes repose at Kildalton, or Isla, i. e. the Isle, from its having been the chief seat of the Lords of the Isles, till their sovereignty was overthrown by James III. The coast, though rocky and dangerous, is indented by several safe bays and harbours, that of Loch-in-Daul, affording secure anchorage, off the populous village of Bowmore, for ships of large burden, and having a commodious quay, with good landing-places. In the centre of the island is Loch Finlaghan, three miles in circuit, surrounding an islet of the same name, where are vestiges of the palace in which the Macdonalds, lords of the isles, once resided in all the pomp and splendour of royalty, and who were here crowned, anointed, and enthroned on a square stone by the Bishops of Argyll, in the presence of their subordinate chieftains. There are several other lakes, besides numerous streams, all abounding with salmon and trout, but the soil is not very productive in corn, flax being chiefly raised for spinning into yarn, which is annually exported to the value of about 3000*l*. Lead, copper, and iron ores, with quicksilver, limestone, and marl, are obtained here. This is a favourite resort for eagles, falcons, geese, ducks, and various other species of birds; and otters, hares, weasels, vipers, &c. are frequently found upon the island. Isla has recently become celebrated for the excellence of its distillation of whiskey.

ISLE, ABBOT'S, co. Somerset.

P. T. Ilminster (133) 4 m. N b W. Pop. 312.

A parish in the hundred of Abdick and Bulstone, situated near the small river Isle, a branch of the Parrot; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 8*l*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Bristol.

ISLE, BREWERS, co. Somerset.

P. T. Langport (128) 5 m. SW. Pop. 219.

A parish in the hundred of Abdick and Bulstone; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Taunton and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 7*l*. 10*s*.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) D. R. Mitchell, Esq.

ISLEBECK, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Thirsk (217) 4 m. SSE. Pop. 221.

A township in the parish of Thirsk, and partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Birdforth.

ISLEHAM, or ISELHAM, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Mildenhall (70) 3 m. SW b W. Pop. 1716.

A parish in the hundred of Staplehoe; living, a dis. vicarage and a peculiar in the diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 13*l*. 3*s*. 1*d*.; church ded. to St. Andrew, patron, the Bishop of Rochester.

ISLE-MARTIN, shire of Cromarty, S.

P. T. Ullapool (216) 5 m. NW.

Pop. with Pa.

A considerable fishing-station and village in the parish of Lochbroom, lying in the loch of that name. It has a fine harbour in latitude 57. 56. 12. N., and longitude 5. 16. 15. W., and is accommodated with a custom-house establishment.

ISLEWORTH, co. Middlesex.

Pop. 12,285.

A hundred, situated on the south-western side of the county, bounded on the east by the Thames, and north by the Grand Junction Canal, containing three parishes.

ISLEWORTH, co. Middlesex.

London 8 m. WSW. Pop. 5269.

A village and parish in the hundred of Isleworth, pleasantly situated on the north bank of the Thames, opposite to Richmond. In Doomesday Book this place is called Gistelworde; and about the time of Queen Elizabeth, the name was altered to Thistleworth, but of both these appellations the origin is uncertain. In 1263, the barons, in insurrection against Henry III., encamped in Isleworth Park, which at that time belonged to Richard, Earl of Cornwall, the king's brother. The following year, the citizens of London, headed by the constable of the Tower, destroyed the manor-house and two mills, besides committing other ravages. The property subsequently became vested in the crown; and Henry V., in 1414, founded within the manor of Isleworth a convent of Bridgetine nuns, called the Monastery of Sion. The original site of the convent was within the parish of Twickenham; but in 1432 a new and more spacious nunnery was erected in the parish of Isleworth, to which the sisterhood removed; and there continued till the dissolution of monasteries, when the revenues belonging to it were 1731*l*. 8*s*. 4*d*. Edward VI. granted the conventual estate to his uncle, the Duke of Somerset, who erected a noble mansion at Sion, and formed a botanic garden. The property, on his attainder, fell to the crown; and in 1604, it was regranted to Henry, Earl of Northumberland, who laid out 9000*l*. on the house and gardens, which have been since variously improved by later proprietors. This noble mansion, now belonging to the Duke of Northumberland, is of magnificent dimensions, and of a quadrangular form, and is built of white stone. The four fronts are all unornamented, and the grandeur they display arises from accuracy of proportion, and the massive solidity of the component parts. The building has a flat roof, and embattled parapets, and at each angle is a square embattled turret. An inclosed area of eighty feet in the centre is laid out as a flower-garden. The entrance to the house, from the principal front, is by a flight of steps; and on the eastern side is a piazza, or cloistral arcade. The great hall, paved with black and white marble, contains some antique statues, and a cast of the dying gladiator; and adjoining this hall is a most magnificent vestibule, furnished with Ionic columns and pilasters of verde antique, said to consist collectively of a larger quantity of that expensive kind of marble than is to be found in any other building in Europe. The living of Isleworth is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 18*l*.; and in the patronage of the Dean and Canons of Windsor. The church, dedicated to All Saints, consists of a nave, aisles, and chancel, with an ancient Gothic tower at the west end. The whole structure, except the tower, was rebuilt of brick, in 1706. An almshouse for six poor women was founded here, and endowed with an estate in Yorkshire, by Sir Thomas Ingram, in 1664; another almshouse for six poor men and six women, was erected in pursuance of the munificent bequest of 5000*l*., by Mrs. Tolson, who died in 1750; and there is a third, for six women, built in 1738, and subsequently endowed by Mrs. Mary Bell. There is likewise a charity-school for children of both sexes, originally founded by Dame Elizabeth Hill, in 1630. The parish comprises 2377 acres of land, principally arable and pasture; but between four and five hundred acres are occupied by nurserymen and market-gardeners, the latter of whom raise large quantities of fruit, especially raspberries, for the London market. Brass and copper-mills, china-works, calico-grounds, and flour-mills, are the most important manufactories which have existed here: the first mentioned is noticed by Norden, in the reign of Elizabeth; and he says the ore used at these mills was brought from Mendip. Anthony Collins, a noted writer on Philosophical Necessity, the friend and correspondent of Locke, was born at Isleworth, in 1676.

ISLEY WALTON, co. Leicester.

P. T. Ashby-de-la-Zouch (115) 7 m. NE.
Pop. 63.

A parish in the hundred of West Goscote; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; church ded. to All Saints; patronage with Kegworth rectory.

ISLINGTON, co. Middlesex.

London 1 m. N b W. Pop. 22,417.

An extensive village and parish in the hundred of Ossulston, situated between the ancient channels of the little rivers Fleet and Walbrook, which mark its western and eastern borders, in the course of their subterraneous passage to the Thames. The village, which was long one of the principal rural haunts of the metropolitan citizens, is now so closely connected with Clerkenwell,

St. Luke's, Old Street, and Shoreditch that, like those places, it may be regarded as forming an integrant portion of the vast metropolis. The etymology of the name is somewhat uncertain, but it may perhaps be most satisfactorily traced from the Saxon Isendune, or the Iron Hill, which name is applied to it in Doomesday Book, and other old records, probably in reference to its chalybeate springs, of which there are several; or to the discovery of iron ore, some specimens of which have repeatedly been found in sinking wells. Besides Islington, the parish includes the villages or hamlets of Battlebridge, Upper and Lower Holloway, Highbury, Balls Pond, part of Newington Green, Kingsland Green, and City Gardens. Battlebridge is supposed, with great probability, to have been the place where Suetonius Paulinus, the Roman governor, defeated the multitudinous army of the Britons, under the celebrated Boadicea, queen of the Iceni, A. D. 61. In a field near the spot was discovered the skeleton of an elephant, which may have been killed in this engagement; and on a neighbouring eminence, called Reed-moat Field, near Barnsbury Park, are the remains of a square intrenched camp, which appears to have been of Roman origin, and was perhaps occupied by Paulinus, before his encounter with the British forces. As early as the reign of Henry II., Islington was noted as the scene of public recreation, where wrestling, casting quoits, shooting at butts, and other athletic pastimes were practised. In 1514, the Londoners, displeased at the abridgment of their pleasures, by the inclosure of common fields about Islington, Hoxton, and Shoreditch, which they had been accustomed to frequent for the sport of archery, assembled in great numbers, and levelled the inclosures. Fox, in his Book of Martyrs, says, that four persons were burnt here for heresy, in September, 1557. On the commencement of war between Charles I. and the Parliament, trenches and ramparts were constructed at this place, for the defence of the city. The living of Islington is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 30*l*.; patron (1829) the Rev. Daniel Wilson. Islington also gives title to a prebendary in St. Paul's Cathedral, and the value of the benefice in K. B. is 11*l*. 10*s*. 10*d*. The parish church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a modern structure of brick, with stone quoins and cornices, having at the west end an entrance-porcho and a square tower, surmounted by an octangular steeple. It was erected in 1751-1754; and when some repairs took place in 1787, it being requisite to make some alterations in the vane, that object was effected by means of a scaffolding of wicker-work round the steeple, ingeniously constructed, on a novel plan, by Thomas Birch, a basket-maker. In this church, and the surrounding cemetery have been interred several persons of considerable eminence, including Dr. William Cave, a writer on ecclesiastical history, who was vicar of the parish; William Hawes, M. D. founder of the Royal Humane Society; and John Nichols, F. S. A., proprietor and editor for a long period of the Gentleman's Magazine, the last two having been natives of Islington. Besides the parish church, there are in the parish episcopal churches or chapels at Holloway, Balls Pond, and Clouesley Square, Liverpool Road. There are also various places of worship belonging to the Independents, Methodists, and Baptists. Part of the village of Islington, adjoining Pentonville, extends into the parish of Clerkenwell, where stands the freeschool and almshouses, founded and endowed by Dame Alice Owen, about 1610, for the benefit of both parishes. A charity-school for boys and girls was established here in 1710, the house belonging to which was rebuilt on an enlarged scale in 1788; there are also parochial schools at Lower Holloway, besides which there are some others. In Queen's Head Row are almshouses, founded in 1640, by John Heath, for ten decayed members of the Company of Clothworkers; and another set of almshouses, founded and endowed by Mrs. Jane Davis in 1794; and in Frog Lane are six almshouses for widows, originally founded at White Friars, by Margaret, Countess of Kent, in 1538, but subsequently removed to this place. At Islington is a handsome and spacious building, erected in 1825, for the use of the Church of England Missionary Institution; and at Highbury is a college or academy for the education of Congregational or Independent Dissenting ministers, removed hither from Hoxton. The parish contains about 3000 acres of land, almost the whole of which is meadow, or pasture, except that which is covered with buildings or has been converted into brick-fields. The land is occupied principally by cow-keepers, who furnish milk for a very considerable portion of the metropolis, as well as for the village and neighbourhood. In the Liverpool Road is a nursery-garden, in front of which a handsome building, with a greenhouse, has been recently erected. At Holloway is a large brewery; and near Balls Pond an extensive floor-cloth manufactory; at a short distance from which are windmills, which have been employed for the manufacture of ceruse or white lead. The Regent's Canal passes through the parish, being conveyed by a tunnel under the High Street and the New River, and having on its banks convenient wharfs and warehouses. A considerable part of the course of the New River extends through this parish, but it terminates in that of Clerkenwell. In that parish also are situated Sadler's Wells Theatre; and the New Tunbridge Wells, or Islington Spa, a chalybeate spring, once in some repute, but at present neglected. Copenhagen House, Highbury Barn, and Canonbury House, are places of public entertainment, much frequented in the summer season. The last mentioned is situated near an old mansion, which was erected as a country-house of the Prior of St. Bartholomew's, West Smithfield, and having been long occupied as a lodging-house, has had among its occasional inmates, Chambers, author of the Cyclopædia, Dr. Goldsmith, and other distinguished literary characters.

ISLINGTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Lynn Regis (96) 4 m. WSW. Pop. 236.

A parish in Marsh division of the hundred of Freebridge; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 60*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

ISLIP, co. Northampton.

P. T. Thrapston (73) 1 m. WNW. Pop. 551.

A parish in the hundred of Huxloe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) the Duke of Dorset.

ISLIP, co. Oxford.

P. T. Oxford (54) 5½ m. N. b. E. Pop. 653.

A village and parish in the hundred of Ploughley, called in Saxon Gidslepe, or Gightslepe, of which the present name is a corruption. It is pleasantly situated on an elevated spot on the north side of the river Ray, near its confluence with the Cherwell, and over the former of these streams there is a neat stone bridge. Near the centre of the village anciently stood a palace belonging to King Ethelred II., whose youngest son Edward, surnamed the Confessor, was born here. A building, long used as a barn, but supposed to have been a chapel connected with the palace, was taken down in 1780. The manor of Islip was given by the Confessor to the abbot and monks of Westminster; and in the manor-house Isabel of France resided for a short time in 1326, while concerting measures for the dethronement of her husband, Edward II. In 1644 and 1645, this village and its vicinity were the scenes of repeated skirmishes between the troops of Charles I. and the Parliament. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Westminster. The church, dedicated to St. Nicholas, consists of a nave, aisles, and chancel, with a lofty tower at the west end, ornamented with battlements and pinnacles. Among the incumbents of this benefice were Dr. Peter Heylin, a voluminous historical writer, and the celebrated Dr. Robert South. The latter founded here an endowed freeschool, for twenty-one poor boys.

ISSELL'S, ST., co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Tenby (261) 4 m. N. Pop. 1151.

A parish in the hundred of Narberth, intersected by the high road from Narberth to Tenby, and only a short distance from the coast of Carmarthen Bay; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. 91*l.* 1*s.* per annum; patron, the Chapter of St. David's. The area of the parish covers an extent of 3000 acres, and abounds in coal and culm, which are exported from Hen Castle and Saundersfoot.

ISSEY, ST., co. Cornwall.

P. T. Padstow (246) 3 m. SSE. Pop. 600.

A parish in the hundred of Pyder; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 97.; patron (1829) Sir F. R. Buller, Bart.

ITCHEN ABBOTS, co. Southampton.

P. T. Alresford (57) 3½ m. WNW. Pop. 254.

A parish in the hundred of Bountisborough, Fawley division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester; valued in K. B. 147. 1s. 5½d.; church ded. to St. John; patron (1829) John Wright, Esq.

ITCHEN, STOKE, co. Southampton.

P. T. Alresford (57) 2 m. W b N. Pop. 243.

A parish in the hundred of Bountisborough, Fawley division; living, a vicarage with Abbotston rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Abbotston rectory.

ITCHINOR, WEST, co. Sussex.

P. T. Chichester (62) m. WSW. Pop. 181.

A parish in the hundred of Manhood, rape of Chichester; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 67. 14s. 2d.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

ITCHINGFIELD, or ETCHINGFOLD, co. Sussex.

P. T. Horsham (36) 3 m. WSW. Pop. 349.

A parish in the hundred of East Easwirth, rape of Bramber; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 87.; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1828) N. Fredcroft, Esq.

ITCHINGSWELL, co. Southampton.

P. T. Whitchurch (56) 8 m. NNE. Pop. 390.

A chapelry in the parish of Kingsclere and hundred of Evingar, Kingsclere division; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Kingsclere in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Laurence; patronage with Kingsclere vicarage.

ITCHINGTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Thornbury (120) 3½ m. SE. Pop. 144.

A tithing in the parish of Tytherington and upper division of the hundred of Henbury.

ITCHINGTON, BISHOP'S, co. Warwick.

P. T. Southam (82) 4 m. SW. Pop. 430.

A parish in the Southam division of the hundred of Knightlow; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 107.; patron, the Bishop of Lichfield. This parish was formerly a market-town.

ITCHINGTON, LONG, co. Warwick.

P. T. Southam (82) 3 m. N b W. Pop. 836.

A parish in the Southam division of the hundred of Knightlow, formerly a considerable town; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 77. 1s. 8d.; church ded. to the Holy Trinity; patron (1829) Chandos Leigh, Esq.

ITCHINGTON, OLD, or ITCHINGTON, INFERIOR, co. Warwick.

P. T. Southam (82) 4½ m. SSW. Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Bishop's Itchington and Southam division of the hundred of Knightlow; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Bishop's Itchington, in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Michael; patronage with Bishop's Itchington vicarage.

ITONFIELD, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (283) 10½ m. NW b N. Pop. 210.

A township in the parish of Hesket, in the Forest and Heath ward.

ITERINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Aylesham (118) 4 m. NW. Pop. 334.

A parish in the hundred of South Erpingham; living, a rectory in mediocres, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 57. 17s. 1d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Orford.

ITTON, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Chepstow (136) 3 m. W b N. Pop. 123.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Caldicot; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; valued in K. B. 47. 10s. 10d.; patron (1829) W. Curre, Esq.

IVE, ST., co. Cornwall.

P. T. Callington (216) 4 m. WSW. Pop. 601.

A parish in the middle division of the hundred of East; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 267.; patron, the King.

IVEAGH, co. Down, Ulster, I.

Pop. of Upper, 75,155. Of Lower, 60,330.

The largest of the baronies into which the county is divided. It is bounded on the north by the Lagan river; on the west by the Newry navigation; on the south by the great mountain chain of the Iveagh and Mourne hills, and on the east by the barony of Kinelearty. It comprehends twenty-nine parishes, besides Dromore, a bishop's see; Moira, a good village; Hillisborough, an improved and graceful town; Warren's Point, a sea-port; Ross-trevor, a picturesque and fashionable village; besides Rathfild, Bannbridge, and Maghera, and the lordship of Newry, though possessing a distinct jurisdiction, locally belongs to this large barony. Agriculture is conducted skilfully in every part, but linen is the staple commodity. The upper half is an open hilly country, the lower more level, and inhabited much by gentry. The whole barony, together with the half barony of Mourne, was anciently the country of Magennis, and part of old Dalaradia. The name Iveagh, is derived from Ili Eachach, i. e. the territories of Eachach. This prince was grandfather of King Coalbhaig.

IVEGILL, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Carlisle (301) 9 m. S. E. Pop. 129.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Dalston, Cumberland ward; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Dalston, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle, of the certified value of 22*l.*; patronage with Dalston vicarage. Here are the remains of an ancient structure called High Head Castle, which have latterly been used as a farm house.

IVER, co. Buckingham.

P. T. Colnbrook (17) 2½ m. NNE. Pop. 1663.

A parish in the hundred of Stoke; living, a dis. vicarage, in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 95*l.* 5*s.*; church ded. to St. Peter; patron (1829) the Right Hon. J. Sullivan. Here are several flour-mills, and also a cotton-mill, and a considerable trade is carried on with the metropolis by means of the Uxbridge Canal. In 1789 this place was considerably damaged by a storm.

IVERAGH, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

Pop. 17,792.

One of the eight baronies of the county, entirely occupied by mountain and bog. The former consist of three great chains, composed principally of clay slate, run in a direction east and west, and lie nearly parallel to each other. The bog occupies the two great vales formed between the mountain ranges, and covers an area of 43,567 acres. In this wild and remote country cattle are bred in great numbers, but butter is the staple. It is carried upon horseback across the mountains to some carriage-road, where it is transferred to a wheeled conveyance, and carried to the Cork market. This is an improvable county, and if the project of establishing a packet station at Valentia Harbour, to communicate with North America, be effected, little doubt need be entertained of a rapid reclamation of this enormous superficies of bog. There are seven parishes in this barony, and the post-town of Cahersiveen, to which place a new road has lately been opened, under the direction of an able engineer.

IVERK, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

Pop. 14,212.

One of nine baronies into which the county is divided. It includes fifteen parishes, and the villages of Kilmacow and Mountcoin, and extends over an area of 40,435 acres. The navigable river Suir constitutes its boundary on the south and west, and a group of lofty hills encumbers the northern half. The only occupations of the inhabitants are agricultural, and this part of the country labours under a want of fuel, a commodity so abundantly supplied in the northern baronies.

IVERNOON, or ST. JOHN'S, co. Roscommon, Connaught, I.

P. T. Athlone (75) 9 m. NW.

A parish in the barony of Athlone; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Elphin and archdiocese of Tuam, united to the vicarages of Killenvoy, Killmear, Porterin, and Raharrow, and producing, by commutation for tithes, the sum of 122*l.* 14*s.* 5*d.*, of which the lay impropriator receives 60*l.* The church and vicarage house are at Killenvoy. A priory was founded here for Knights Hospitallers, or for Crossbearers, in the reign of King John, and it is supposed by his express command, Clarus, archdeacon of Elphin and founder of the priory of Lough Key, founded a church here also, dedicated to the Holy Trinity.

IVES, ST. co. Cornwall.

London 277 m. W. b. S. Pop. 3526. M. D. Wed. and Frid. Fair, Sat. before Advent, for cattle. Memb. of Pt. 2.

A borough, market, and sea-port town, in the east division of the hundred of Penwith, but having separate jurisdiction. It is a place of great antiquity, and is said to derive its name from Iva, a woman of great sanctity, who came here from Ireland, about the year 460. It is situated at the north-east of the fine bay of St. Ives, in the Bristol Channel, and bounded by rocks of black killas. Previously to the year 1816, the harbour was greatly incommoded by immense shoals of sand driven upon the coast by the north-west winds; the pier was then extended, and a breakwater constructed for its protection; it will now afford at spring tides accommodation for 200 large vessels. The chief articles of exportation are slates and pilchards; the latter are taken here in great abundance. In the neighbourhood are some copper-mines, and in the above rocks are some streaks resembling that metal. A very singular custom prevails in this town, namely, that on the death of every individual worth 10*l.* ten shillings shall be paid to the curate. In the reign of Queen Mary this town was governed by a portreeve and burgesses, but was not incorporated until the time of Charles I., who vested its government in a mayor, recorder, twelve capital and twenty-four inferior burgesses, and granted the markets and four annual fairs, only one of which is now used. It returns two members to Parliament, who are elected by the inhabitants paying scot and lot, being about 350 in number; the mayor is the returning officer. The living is a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Lalan Uny, in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; patronage with Lalan Uny vicarage. The church is a low but spacious building, consisting of a nave and two aisles, and situated so near the sea, that at high tides it is covered with the spray. Here also are meeting-houses for Dissenters, who have Sunday schools for their poor children. The town has likewise the advantage of a free grammar school, founded by Charles I. At a short distance from the town is a seat called Tregony Castle, and about a mile further, on the summit of a lofty hill, a pyramid which was erected by John Knoll, Esq. an eccentric individual, who died in 1811, and left in his will, that at the end of every five years an old woman and ten girls, under the age of fourteen, dressed in white, should parade from the market-place around this pyramid, where they should dance and sing the 100th psalm. To defray the expenses of this singular desire, he left frecholds vested in the minister, to whom, with the port-collector, he bequeathed 10*l.* for a dinner.

IVES, ST. co. Huntingdon.

London 59 m. N b W. Pop. 2772. M. D. Mon. Fairs, Whit-Mond. and Oct. 10, for cattle of all sorts, and cheese.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Hurstingstone, situated on the river Ouse, over which there is a handsome stone bridge of six arches; it was called Slepe, by the Saxons, and is thus entered in Doomesday Book, but derives its present appellation from St. Ivo, a Persaian saint, who travelled through England, about the year 600. Most of the buildings are of modern erection, nearly the whole of the town having been destroyed by a dreadful fire in 1689. Here are several ale-breweries and malt-kilns, as the inns and public-houses are numerous, the town being a considerable thoroughfare for travellers. The living is a vicarage with the curacies of Old Hurst and Wood Hurst, in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 15*s.*; patron (1829) George Brooks, Esq. The church is a light and neat edifice, consisting of a nave, chancel, and aisles, with a north and south porch, and a handsome tower, surmounted by a spire. Here was formerly a priory, founded by Ivo, for monks of the Benedictine order; the priory-barn and dove-house are yet remaining. Slepe Hall, also called Cromwell Place, was for some time the residence of the Protector, and possesses a curious picture of two half-length figures, said to be of Sir Oliver Cromwell and another of his family, though this is far from being certain, and indeed from the figures themselves is scarcely probable.

IVES ST. IN AREDALE, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Keighley (206) 3 m. SE. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Bingley and upper division of the wapentake of Sky-rack.

IVESTONE, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (258) 10 m. NW. Pop. 238.

A township in the parish of Lanchester and west division of Chester ward.

IVINGHOE, co. Bucks.

London 33 m. NW. Pop. 1665. M. D. Sat. Fairs, May 6, and Oct. 17, for cows, sheep, and hogs.

A small market-town and parish in the hundred of Cotslow, situated on the declivity of a chalkhill, on the eastern side of the county, where a part of it projects between Bedfordshire and Hertfordshire. It consists of two streets, one of which extends through the whole length of the town, and the other branches off from it near the centre, so that the ground-plan takes somewhat the form of the letter T. A traditionary tale and distich prevails in the neighbourhood, purporting that the manor of Ivinghoe, with others near it, anciently belonged to the family of Hampden; and that they were forfeited to the crown, as a fine or composition, for an act of personal violence towards the Prince of Wales, son of Edward III., the circumstances of which are not recorded. The antique couplet is thus worded:

"Tring, Wing and Ivinghoe did go,
For striking the Black Prince a blow."

The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Buckingham and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 16*s.* 1*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 70*l.*; patrons (1829) the Trustees of the late Earl of Bridgewater. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a handsome Gothic structure, which appears to have been erected in the reign of Edward IV., and within it are sepulchral monuments of the family of Duncombe, formerly the possessors of a seat in this parish, called Barley-end House. There is said to have been a lace-manufactory here formerly, which afforded employment for 900 persons; but at present the only kind of manufacture appears to be that of straw-plat. The market, granted in 1318, was once large, but is now almost discontinued. Berrysted House, in this parish, now a farm-house, is said to have been the seat of Henry de Blois, Bishop of Winchester, brother of King Stephen, to whom also is attributed, but without any probability, an altar-tomb and statue in the chancel of the church. At the hamlet of St. Margaret's are the remains of the monastery of Muresley, founded by Henry de Blois, for Benedictine nuns, the revenue of which, at the dissolution, was 14*l.* 3*s.* 1*d.* The building, which was almost entire in 1802, is thought to have been erected in the reign of Henry VII.

IVINGTON, co. Hereford.

P. T. Leominster (137) 3 m. SW b W. Pop. 674.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Leominster and hundred of Wolphy; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Leominster, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford, not in charge; patronage with Leominster vicarage. Here is a strong fortification, divided into two parts by a more modern intrenchment than the outer works, and supposed to be the camp occupied by Owen Glendwr, on his retreat before the army of Prince Henry. Many coins of the dates 1340 and 1390 have been found here of late years.

IVYBRIDGE, co. Devon.

P. T. Totness (190) 13 m. W b S.
Pop. with Parishes.

A township and chapelry in the parishes of Cornwood, Ermington Harford, and Ugborough, beautifully situated in a romantic dell, on the great road to Plymouth; it derives its name from a small bridge of one arch, which is covered with ivy, and crosses the river Erme. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; patrons, the Impropriators. Here are some paper and block-mills.

IVY-CHURCH, or IVECHURCH, co. Kent.

P. T. Romney (60) 3 m. NW. Pop. 232.

A parish within the liberty of Romney Marsh, lathe of Shepway; living, a rectory exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 44l. 16s. 8d.; church ded. to St. George; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

IVYCHURCH, co. Wilts.

P. T. Salisbury (81) 3 m. E b S.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish and hundred of Alderbury.

IWADE, co. Kent.

P. T. Milton (30) 3 m. NNW. Pop. 145.

A parish in the hundred of Milton, lathe of Scray; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; certified value 8l.; ann. val. P. R. 68l.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

IWERNECOURTENAY, or SHROWTON, co. Dorset.

P. T. Blandford Forum (103) 5 m. NNW.
Pop. 512.

A parish in the hundred of Red Lane, Sturminster division; living, a rectory with the curacy of Faringdon, in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 25l. 8s. 1½d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Lord Rivers. Here is a freeschool.

IWERNE MINSTER, co. Dorset.

P. T. Shaftsbury (101) 6 m. S. Pop. 622.

A parish in the hundred of Sixpenny Handley, Shaston division; living, a dis. vicarage with the curacies of Gussage St. Andrew, Hargrove, Hinton St. Mary, and Sixpenny Handley, in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 10l. 1s. 0½d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Canons of Windsor.

IXWORTH, co. Suffolk.

London 77 m. NE b N. Pop. 932. M. D.
Mond. Fair, Whit-Mond., for toys.

A small market-town in the hundred of Blackburne, pleasantly situated in a valley, on the bank of a small river, which falls into the Little Ouse. Roman coins are said to have been repeatedly found here; but it may be questioned whether it was the site of any Roman settlement, and the origin of the town may with more probability be traced to the foundation of a priory of Canons Regular of St. Augustin, by Gilbert Blund, or Blount, about the year 1100. It was dedicated to the Virgin Mary; and having been endowed by several benefactors, its revenue at the dissolution of monasteries amounted to 280l. 9s. 5d. The conventual buildings have been replaced by a private mansion, called Ixworth Priory. The living is a perpetual curacy in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 40l.; patron (1829) R. Cartwright, Esq. The town is a considerable thoroughfare, being situated on the road from Bury to Norwich and Yarmouth; but it has no manufacture, and its market is now inconsiderable.

IXWORTH THORPE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bury St. Edmund's (71) 7½ m. NE b N.
Pop. 143.

A parish in the hundred of Blackburn; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; certified value 20l.; church ded. to All Saints.

J.

JACOBSTOW, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Stratton (222) 8 m. SSW. Pop. 571.

A parish in the hundred of Stratton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 19*l*.; church ded. to St. James; patron (1829) the Earl of St. Germans.

JACOBSTOWE, co. Devon.

P. T. Hatherleigh (201) 4 m. SE b E.
Pop. 209.

A parish in the hundred of Black Tarrington; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 11*l*. 4*s*. 4½*d*.; patron (1829) L. Burton, Esq.

JAMES'S, SAINT, shire of Roxburgh, S.

An ancient parish, now united to that of Kelso, in the district of Kelso. Its church is supposed to have been demolished in the Border wars, but the site, upon which is held one of the greatest fairs in Scotland on the 5th of August, is still plainly visible near Roxburgh Castle; as are the remains of a Franciscan convent, on the north bank of the Tiviot, a little above its junction with the Tweed. See Kelso.

JAMES'S, ST., co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Feathard Wexford (108) 6 m. NW.
Pop. 4300.

A parish in the hundred of Shelburne, adjacent to the harbour of Waterford; living, an inappropriate cure in the diocese of Ferns and archdiocese of Dublin, united to the benefices of Dunbrody, Killesk, and Rathroe; patron, Lord Chichester. See Dunbrody.

JAMES, ST., South Elmham, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Halesworth (100) 4½ m. NW b W.
Pop. 331.

A parish in the hundred of Wangford; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norwich and diocese of Suffolk; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; patron (1829) Alexander Adair, Esq.

JAMESTOWN, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Langholm (70) 6 m. NW.
Pop. with Pa.

A neat village in the parish of Westerkirk, pleasantly situated on the banks of the river Megget. It owes its origin to Sir James Johnstone, upon whose estate a rich mine of antimony was discovered in the neighbourhood, about 1788, which is still worked to a considerable extent. It is chiefly inhabited by the miners.

JAMESTOWN, co. Leitrim, Connaught, I.

P. T. Drumina (91) m. Pop. 391.
Fairs, May 28; July 8; and Dec. 20.

A village in the parish of Killtoghart and barony of Leitrim, situated upon the river Shannon, and having a canal of one mile in length, auxiliary to the river navigation. It was formerly a borough town and a military station. In the year 1623 Sir Charles Coote erected here a strong castle, which was taken by Lord Carlingford in 1645, and by the Enniskilleners under Colonel Lloyd in 1689. There was a Franciscan friary here, the founder of which is unknown.

JARROW, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. South Shields (278) 3 m. SW b W.
Pop. of Pa. 24,189. Of To., with Monkton township, 3530.

A parish and township in the east division of Chester ward, pleasantly situated on the south side of the Tyne, at the point where that river expands and forms the fenny pool called Jarrowlake, which covers 460 acres of ground. It was formerly called Gyrvy, which is the Saxon name for a marsh. The living is a curacy, with that of Nether Heworth, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; certified value 46*l.* 1*s.*; ann. va-P. R. 95*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.*; patron (1829) Cuthbert Ellison, Esq. The church, which is dedicated to St. Paul, was rebuilt in 1783, except the chancel and tower, which are very ancient. In the vestry is a rudely-formed and very ancient oaken chair, which is said to have belonged to the venerable Bede, who was born at Monkton in this parish. Here are the remains of an ancient monastery, said to be founded by King Egfrid.

JEDBURGH, shire of Roxburgh, S.

Edinburgh 45 m. SE b S. Pop. 5251. M. D. Tu., for corn and cattle. Fairs, 2d Tu. aft. Whit-Sunday; 2d Tu. (O. S.) in Aug.; Sept. 25; and 2d Tu. in Nov. Memb. of Pt. 1, with Dunbar, &c.

A royal burgh, market-town, and parish, the capital of the shire, and seat of the High Court of Justiciary for the southern circuit, of the Sheriffs' Court, and of the presbytery, giving name to a district. This was a place of considerable importance before 1165, as appears by a charter from William the Lion, when it was denominated Jedweorth or Jedwarth. About that period David I. founded its sumptuous abbey for canons regular, whom he caused to be transferred from that of St. Quintin's, in France, though, from its exposed situation, it was often subject to the molestations of the English, till taken under the protection of Edward I., who repaired it, and greatly augmented its revenue, which at the Reformation amounted to 1274*l.* 10*s.* Scotch. So late as the commencement of the last century, Jedburgh was one of the most flourishing towns on the border, but soon after the union, its size, trade, and population considerably diminished. It is pleasantly seated on the banks of the river Jed, in a neighbourhood noted for its fine orchards, which are well sheltered by an amphitheatre of hills, rising to a lofty height. The town principally consists of four spacious streets, diverging at right angles from the market-place in the centre; two of them run parallel with the river, which is crossed by New Bridge, whence the other two ascend in a direct line to the site of the ancient castle, which was demolished by the English in 1409. Among other improvements, a number of handsome houses and a commodious town-house, in which the courts are held, have been recently erected, to the great ornament and convenience of the place. On the south side of the town are the remains of the abbey church, deemed, for the magnitude and beautiful lightness of its architecture, if not unique, certainly one of the noblest cruciform structures of the kind in North Britain; the eastern portion is much dilapidated; but the western, which is entered through a highly-enriched Norman doorway, is still in use for divine worship, and exhibits considerable loftiness and elegance of style, having in the upper compartment a circular, radiated window, of exquisite design and workmanship. Here are also three places of worship for dissenters. This burgh is governed by a provost, three baillics, a dean of guild, and a treasurer, assisted by a select council; and jointly with Dunbar, Haddington, Lauder, and North Berwick, sends one member to Parliament. Its principal manufactures are flannels, woollen cloths, and hose, which of late years have been in a very thriving state; tanning of leather, also, has been introduced with advantage. The parish is about thirteen miles in length by six or seven in breadth, but of an irregular form, being much intersected by the parishes of Oxnam and Southdean, in the latter of which rises the Jed, a stream noted for a peculiarly delicious trout of a red species, and which loses itself in the river Teviot, two miles below the town. In the banks of the Jed are several artificial caves, each containing three apartments, supposed to have been occupied by the inhabitants during the invasions of the English. Freestone, in great abundance and of an excellent quality, is quarried here; and there are several medicinal springs in the parish, one of which, called Tud Hope Well, has been successfully used in scorbutic and rheumatic complaints. The living is in the presbytery of Jedburgh and synod of Merse and Tiviotdale; patron, the Crown. The old Scottish dialect is commonly in use among the peasantry. Adam Abel, the historian, lived and died in the convent of Observatines, founded by the burgesses in 1513; and the poet, Hamilton, notices with sadness,

Jeda's ancient walls,
Once seat of kings.

JEFFRESTON, or JEFFREYSTON, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Narberth (255) 5 m. S. Pop. 732.

A parish in the hundred of Narberth, situated upon a creek issuing from Milford Haven, navigable to Cresselly; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's; valued in P. R. at 47l. 10s. per ann.; patron, the Upper Chapter of St. David's. The superficial contents of the parish measure about 1000 acres, and cover vast beds of coal and culm, which are exported from Cresselly.

JERPOINT, EAST, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Thomastown (75) 1 m. SW. Pop. with Church Jerpoint.

A parish in the barony of Knocktopher, at a short distance from the river Nore; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin, not possessing either church or residence for the vicar, but having a glebe of eight acres; patron, the King.

JERPOINT, WEST, or JERPOINT ABBEY, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Thomastown (75) 2 m. SW. Pop. 1333.

A parish in the barony of Gowran, situated upon the river Nore; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin, and united to thirteen vicarages, which, taken together, constitute the Union of Burnchurch; patrons, the King and the Bishop alternately. Here is one of the most beautiful and interesting ecclesiastical remains in the kingdom. The ruins are those of a Cistercian abbey, founded in the year 1180, by Donald prince of Ossory, who dedicated the abbey to the Virgin Mary. The Abbot sat as a lord in Parliament. Within the abbey are some ancient tombs one rather remarkable, of Robert Walsh. A bas-relief of two monks. An unusual monument bearing the effigies of a monk and nun, lies in one of the vaults. From the west angle of the belfry a rudely-cut lead projects, said to be commemorative of a faithful servant of the abbey, who discovered a vessel of gold in an adjoining field, and bestowed the entire to complete the building. There was anciently a town here, the traces of which may yet be perceived.

JERSEY, Island of.

E to W 12 m., greatest length. N to S from 5 to 7 m. Superficial extent about 40,000 acres. Pop. in 1806 22,355. Parishes 12. Towns 2. Diocese of Winchester. Province of Canterbury.

A populous island in the English Channel, the largest and most southerly of the insular group, adjacent to the coast of Normandy, and comprehended within the limits of that duchy, when it belonged to the kings of England, in whom the sovereignty of this and the neighbouring islands is still vested. Jersey is usually regarded as the Casarea of the Roman geographers, though some have referred that appellation to Guernsey, and conjectured that this island was called by the Romans, Barsa. It is mentioned in history as the place to which Prætextatus Archbishop of Rouen, was banished in 577 and when the Normans invaded France, in the ninth century, they ravaged this island, and murdered Helier, a holy hermit, afterwards canonized, and from whom the principal town has derived its name. After the conquest of Normandy, from the English, in the reign of John, many attempts were made by the French to gain possession of Jersey; and in the reign of Henry VI. they partially succeeded, and for some time held the castle of Mont Orgueil, but they were at length expelled. In the civil war, under Charles I., this island was occupied by the royalists, under Sir George Carteret, who maintained his footing here till October, 1651, when he was obliged to surrender the forts and island to Admiral Blake. In January, 1781, a detachment of French troops, commanded by Baron de Rullecourt, made a descent here, and captured the governor and garrison; but Major Pierson, the second in command, bravely attacked the invaders; and after a desperate conflict, obliged them to surrender as prisoners of war, though this gallant officer and his antagonist both fell in the engagement. The general outline of this island forms an oblong quadrangle, or wedge, with a surface inclining from the high cliffs which border it on the north, towards the low southern shore. Its superficies are uneven, being broken by several ridges of hills, which diverge from the northern chain. Their sides are frequently steep and rugged, but in many parts clothed with thickly-planted orchards, which add greatly to the beauty of the landscape, and at a distance present the appearance of an extensive forest. Between these ridges lie deep and narrow valleys, irrigated by numerous streams, which impart fertility to the soil. The land is divided into diminutive fields, surrounded by closely-planted hedges, the inconveniences of which, from their overhanging the roads, were so great that it was found necessary to restrain the excessive fondness for planting, by local enactments. The coast is protected from hostile attacks by a barrier of rocks, which almost encompass the island, rising abruptly from the sea to a great height, and forming a natural wall of defence, or concealing their pointed summits beneath the water, and thus presenting an imperceptible, and therefore more formidable obstacle to the approach of an enemy. The climate is extremely mild, in consequence of the southern site and aspect of the island; and the temperature being equalized by the surrounding sea. Snow seldom falls, and frosts are of transient occurrence; hence, myrtles and other shrubs, which in the south of England require protection, grow here luxuriantly in the open air; and melons are raised in gardens without artificial heat. The soil is light but prolific, and as at Guernsey it is much improved by the use of wrack, or sea-weed, as a manure. On the west side of the island is a large tract, said to have been once very fertile, but now a mere desert, in consequence of its having been covered by sand from the sea-shore. Agriculture is checked by the multiplicity of subdivisions of the fields already mentioned, and by the number of roads, which even two hundred years ago, are supposed to have occupied almost one-third part of the surface of the island. The husbandry also is by no means creditable to the character of the Jersey farmers, who allow their land to be overrun with weeds, and thus deprive themselves of much of the benefit which might be derived from the fertility of the soil. The pulse and corn grown here are smaller than the produce of England; yet, formerly enough was raised to form a considerable article of exportation, but now the inhabitants are obliged to procure from other countries nearly one-half of the grain they consume. Among the most important productions of Jersey are apples and pears, besides which apricots, peaches, and strawberries, are plentiful and remarkable for size and richness of flavour. Cider is made in large quantities, and it is the usual beverage of the people: about 2000 hogsheads are annually sent to England. The horses are small, but strong and hardy; the cows are of the Alderney breed; and the sheep appear to be chiefly Southdowns, the six-horned variety, for which the island was once noted, having become extinct. Game does not abound here; but the Jersey partridge, with red feet, pheasant's eyes, and variegated plumage, may be noticed as a curiosity. The weasel and the mole are almost the only noxious animals; and it is believed that the island contains no venomous reptiles, though toads of a large size are found here, whilst there are none at Guernsey, where it is said the air proves destructive to them. Fish are plentiful, including conger eels sometimes weighing fifty pounds; and the curious shell-fish called the Ormer, or sea-eel. The only remarkable mineral substance is the sienitic granites, of which the cliffs are composed. It is raised from quarries at Mount Mado in large quantities, and sent to Guernsey and to England, to be used for paving. Its colour is a reddish white, and it may be polished so as to resemble marble, when it is adapted to the purposes of ornamental architecture. Ochre and tripoli are found here; and there are several chalybeate springs in the island. Jersey having been a great military depot, various fortresses have been erected on it, the most important of which is Elizabeth Castle, and among the others are Mont Orgueil, Fort Henry, and La Rocco. The shores are likewise defended by a chain of martello towers, together with numerous redoubts and batteries. The superintendence of these posts, and the entire military government of the island are vested in the governor, an officer appointed by the king in council. The civil government is intrusted to a court of judicature and an ecclesiastical body, acting separately, or united with twelve constables and the governor, to constitute the assembly of the states, or legislature of the island, without whose consent no law imposed by the English government is binding. The court of judicature consists of a bailiff and a president appointed by the crown, twelve jurats chosen by the householders, and various officers. The ecclesiastical court is composed of a dean and eleven rectors. The island is comprehended in the diocese of Winchester, and it is divided into twelve parishes: viz., St. Owen, St. Mary, St. John, St. Peter, St. Brelade, Trinity, St. Laurence, St. Martin, Gronville, St. Saviour, St. Clement, and St. Helier. Eight of these parishes only have churches, all which are built in the Gothic or pointed style. The island contains two towns, St. Helier, the capital, and St. Aubin, besides several villages. St. Helier, situated on the eastern side of St. Aubin's Bay, is the seat of government, the principal military depot, and the centre of insular commerce, amusement and fashion. It was formerly an insignificant village, consisting of thatched houses and ill-paved streets; but since the commencement of the war with France, which sprung out of the revolution, this place has been so much improved, that it may vie with most of the country towns in England. It consists of several streets, diverging from a square, ornamented with a gilt statue of George II. in Roman costume. Among the public buildings are the government-house and the court-house, where the assemblies of the states are held, and also the courts of justice. The parish church of St. Helier was founded in 1341, but has been altered and enlarged: here are likewise places of worship for Roman Catholics, Independents, and Methodists. A prison was erected at the west end of the town, near the sea-shore in 1812; and there is a small theatre and a public library. St. Aubin stands on the western side of the bay of the same name, under a long range of cliffs which separate this bay from that of St. Brelade. It is a small town, comprising a single street, in which is a neat chapel of ease to the parish church of St. Brelade, which is situated at some distance. St. Aubin is protected by a fort on a rock to the south-west of the town, which at high tide becomes insulated. From the fort projects a strong pier, which forms a harbour of considerable depth at the flowing of the tide. This place is four miles west of St. Helier. The bay of St. Aubin is defended by Elizabeth Castle, which stands on the islet of St. Helier, which is approachable by land at low-water, along a causeway formed of stones and sand. It derives its name from its original founder, Queen Elizabeth and is now reckoned one of the strongest fortified posts in Great Britain. On the hill, above the town of St. Helier, stands Fort Regent, which is bomb-proof, and was constructed not many years since. Mount Orgueil Castle, or Gourray, on the eastern coast, in the Bay of St. Catherine, was anciently a place of great strength, but being commanded by the adjacent hill, it has been suffered to fall into decay. Here, William Pryne, a famous political writer, was confined for three years as a state prisoner, in the reign of Charles I. The trade of Jersey has declined from its former importance. By a charter of Elizabeth, confirming previous grants, the ports of this island and those of Guernsey were declared free and neutral, even while the mother-country was involved in war; but this privilege was abolished in 1689. The inhabitants then turned their attention to privateering, in which they were very successful during the wars under William III. and Anne; but they were afterwards less fortunate. The contest with Bonaparte became productive of great advantage to Jersey, in consequence of its being made a grand military depot. Its shores were then crowded by French emigrants and other strangers; workmen arrived here from England, to labour at the forts and other public works; the harbours were filled with shipping; and every thing contributed to give an extraordinary impulse to commerce, so that the whole island displayed a scene of active industry and increasing wealth. At one period, there was some inconvenience and alarm from a depreciation of the paper currency; but time allayed these apprehensions, and business reverted to its former channels. In 1812 there were, belonging to the island, fifty-nine vessels, collectively of 6000 tons burden, and navigated by 550 men; and the following year, 734 vessels entered the ports inwards, and 813 cleared outwards. Steam-packets, carrying the mail, pass regularly between St. Helier and Weymouth; and there are likewise steam-packets to Southampton, which touch at Guernsey. The exports to England, besides cider, are fruit, potatoes, and cattle; and the chief imports, corn, flour, seeds, live and dead stock, coal, cloth, earthenware, and glass. Salt fish is brought hither from Newfoundland, and much of it is shipped again for the Mediterranean; commerce is also carried on with America, and with several parts of Europe. The grand staple article of manufacture at Jersey consists of worsted stockings, which are made of the finest quality, and the trade in which has been protected by various regulations of the English Parliament. The language of Jersey, as well as the neighbouring islands, is the Norman-French, much corrupted, and said to be on the decline, but still used in the pulpits and the courts of law. Here are the remains of some monuments, regarded as Druidical; and in 1785 was discovered, near St. Helier, a stone circle, buried on the top of a hill, the stones composing which were removed by General Conway, then governor of the island, to his seat at Park Place, in Berkshire. Besides the abbey of St. Helier, here were anciently four priories, Noirmont, St. Clement, Bonne Nuit, and Le Leek, and more than twenty chapels, now in ruins or utterly destroyed. Among the eminent natives of Jersey may be mentioned Philipalle, historian of the island; Daniel Breint, dean of Lincoln; Dr. David Durell, a biblical critic; and Dr. John Lempriere, author of a Classical Dictionary, and other useful publications. Jersey gives the title of Earl to the family of Villiers.

JESMOND, or JESMONT, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (374) adjacent.
Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of St. Andrew, and east division of Castle ward, is beautifully situated, and contains several elegant mansions. At Jesmond Grove are the ruins of the chapel and hospital, dedicated to the Virgin Mary, to which so many pilgrims anciently resorted. Near these ruins is St. Mary's well, which was anciently in great estimation among the religious. To the south of Jesmond, at a sudden turn of the road, the Sandysford Dean is crossed by a small bridge, at the point where the rivulet falls over a rocky precipice, forty-five feet in perpendicular height, and is commonly called Lambert's Leap, on account of the singular escape of Mr. Cuthbert Lambert, whose mare took fright, and bounding over the low battlements of the bridge, fell with her rider into the dreadful abyss below; the horse was killed on the spot, though Mr. L. having kept his seat, most miraculously escaped with his life, and soon recovered from the violent shock which he sustained. In 1827 another accident of the kind took place, but the unfortunate rider met with instant death.

JEVINGTON, co. Sussex.

P. T. Eastbourne (61) 3 m. NW. Pop. 300.

A parish in the hundred of Willingdon, rape of Pevensey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester; valued in K. B. 20*l.*; patron (1829) Lord G. Cavendish.

JIGGINSTOWN, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

P. T. Naas (10) 1 m. W. Pop. with Pa.

A townland in the parish and barony of Naas. Here is an extraordinary ruin of a castle, or rather of a palace, built of brick, the workmanship of which is of so admirable a description, that the bricks cannot be detached whole, and the cement so tenacious, that the fracture of any part of the walls resembles more a detached piece of rock than a composition of lime and brick. Lord Stafford, when Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, raised this vast and well-built pile, but did not live to complete it. The situation appears ill-chosen.

JOHN, ST., co. Cornwall.

P. T. Saltash (229) 3½ m. SSW. Pop. 178.

A parish in the south division of the hundred of East; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; patron (1829) the Rev. William Rowe. Here was formerly a priory of knights of St. John of Jerusalem. The site is now occupied by a Methodist meeting-house.

JOHN, ST., co. Cumberland.

P. T. Egremont (203) 4 m. SSE. Pop. 910.

A parish in Allerdale ward above Darwent; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester, of the certified value of 7*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.*; patron (1829) the Rev. H. J. Todd.

JOHN, ST., co. Southampton.

P. T. Winchester (62) adjacent. Pop. 705.

A parish in the east part of the soke of Winchester, Fawley division; living, a dis. rectory with that of St. Peter Southgate, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Winchester, not in charge.

JOHN, ST., W. R. co. York.

P. T. Worksop (146) 7 m. NW. Pop. 50.

A parish in the upper division of the wapentake of Strathforth and Tickhill; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Laughton-en-le-Morthen, in the archdeaconry and diocese of York, of the certified value of 7*l.* 14*s.* 7½*d.*; patronage with Laughton-en-le-Morthen vicarage.

JOHN, ST., THE BAPTIST, IN BEDWARDINE, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) m. adjacent.
Pop. of Pa. 2424. Of To. 1161.

A parish and township in the lower division of the hundred of Oswaldslow; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; val. in K. B. 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Worcester.

JOHN, ST., CASTLERIGG, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Keswick (291) 3 m. ESE. Pop. 566.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Crosthwaite, Allerdale ward below Darwent, comprising the two romantic vales of St. John of Wanthwaite; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Crosthwaite, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Carlisle, of the certified value of 4*l.* 15*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 76*l.*; patron, the Vicar of Crosthwaite. A branch of the river Greta flows from Thirlmere, through the deep and narrow dell of Wanthwaite, where a water-spout fell in 1749, and in two hours covered the whole vale many feet deep in water, forced down all the walls, houses, and bridges, and so completely carried away the corn-mill, that not a single stone was to be seen; the side of a mountain was excavated into a large and deep gully, and in some places stones of twenty tons weight were piled up in heaps twelve yards high. In the widest part of the dale is a rugged rock, called Green Crag, which at a distance has the appearance of a ruined castle, and greatly heightens the grandeur of this wild and discordant scene. St. John's vale is of a more verdant and chaste character than the former, but like it, is a deep and narrow glen, affording many picturesque beauties.

JOHN, ST., ILKETSHALL, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Bungay (106) 2½ m. SE. Pop. 66.

A parish in the hundred of Wangford; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

JOHN'S, ST., or EGLWYS JEYAN ABERTAWY, co. Glamorgan, S. W.

P. T. Swansea (206) m. Pop. 606.

A parish in the suburbs of Swansea town, in the hundred of Swansea; living, a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's and province of Canterbury; valued in P. R. 27*l.* per annum; patron, Lord Vernon. Extensive copper-works are carried on within this parish.

JOHN'S, ST., co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Kilkenny (75) 3 m. N. Pop. 5604.

A parish in the county of the city of Kilkenny; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin producing, by commutation for tithes 576*l.* 2*s.*; and possessing a church, but no glebe; it is united to the vicarage of Clarah; patron, the King. In this parish is situated the Lintown Factory, sustained by an endowment of 800*l.* from the learned Bishop Pococke. Its object is to instruct boys in the manufacture of linen; and after serving an apprenticeship of seven years, they receive the purchase-money of a loom. The parochial school consists of 179 boys and the Marchioness of Ormond supports a school of eighty-seven boys and sixty girls.

JOHN'S, ST., co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Enniscorthy (82) 14 m. S. Pop. 572.

A parish in the barony of Bantry, situated upon the river Slaney; living, a rectory entire in the diocese of Ferns and archdiocese of Dublin, forming part of the union of St. Mary's Enniscorthy.

JOHN'S, ST., co. Wexford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Wexford (94) m. Pop. 140.

A parish in the barony of Forth, including a part of the town of Wexford; living, an impropriate cure in the diocese of Ferns and archdiocese of Dublin; constituting part of the union of St. Patrick's Wexford. See Wexford. In this parish is situated the diocesan school, consisting of thirty-six boarders and forty-seven day-scholars; also a Lancasterian school of 207 pupils, instructed gratuitously; and a convent-school of 230 girls, educated by the nuns.

JOHN'S, ST., CLAUCHAN, stewartry of Kirkcudbright, S.

P. T. Kirkcudbright (984) 21 m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A considerable village in the parish of Dalry, remarkable for a curious stone preserved here, called St. John's Chair, from which it derives its prefix. This place is the property of the Earl of Galloway, and is in a very thriving state, on account of the advantageous terms upon which the feuers hold land under his lordship.

JOHNBAY, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Penrith (283) 5 m. W. Pop. 99.

A township in the parish of Greystock, Leath ward.

JOHN O'GROAT'S HOUSE, shire of Caithness, S. See Canisbay.JOHN'S-HAVEN, shire of Kincardine, S.

P. T. Bervie (824) 4 m. SSW. Pop. with Pa.

A small seaport in the parish of Benholme, and within the jurisdiction of the port of Montrose, having a small pier, at which, vessels drawing from ten to twelve feet water, can lie to take on board, or discharge their cargoes at any time of the tide. The village consists of one principal street and a number of inferior dwellings, built without regard to neatness or regularity, and chiefly inhabited by fishermen. This was formerly a very considerable fishing-town, but has been for some years on the decline; a brisk trade, however, is carried on in the exportation of corn and the importation of coal; and an extensive sail-cloth manufactory, established by a company of Dundee merchants, gives employment to many hands. Much advantage also is derived from two schools kept up here, one for boys, the other for girls.

JOHNSTON, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Lochmaben (65) 64 m. N. Pop. 1170.

A parish, four miles in length, and averaging from three to six in breadth. It is bounded on the east by the river Annan, and watered also by the Kinnel, which is crossed on the line of road from Moffat to Dumfries, by St. Anne's Bridge, built in 1782, by the Earl of Hopetown, the sole proprietor of the parish, under whom agriculture is pursued with great advantage, the soil being remarkable for its richness and fertility. The living is in the presbytery of Lochmaben and synod of Dumfries; patron, the Earl of Hope-town; the church was built in 1733. At the northern extremity of the parish are the ruins of the castle of Lochwood, erected in the fourteenth century, and formerly the seat of the noble family of Annandale; it was a fortress of great strength, the walls being still prodigiously thick, and surrounded by almost impassable bogs.

JOHNSTON, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Haverford West (251) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 186.

A small parish in the hundred of Rhôs, crossed by the Port Road, between Milford and Haverford West; living, a dis. rectory consolidated with the vicarage of Stainton, in the archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's; patron, the Lord Chancellor. Coals are raised in this parish. Here is the ancient mansion of the Lords Kensington, called Johnston Hall, no longer occupied by its noble proprietor.

JOHNSTOWN, ST., co. Donegal, Ulster, I.

P. T. Strabane (136) 9 m. NW. Pop. 422. Fairs, April 7; Oct. 13; and Nov. 25.

A village in the parish of Taughboyne and barony of Raphoe, situated upon the navigable river Foyle, which is here the boundary of the counties.

JOHNSTOWN, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

Dublin 80 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Urlingford and barony of Galmoy, consisting of about forty habitations.

JOHNSTOWN, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

P. T. Naas (10) 2 m. NE. Pop. 264.

A hamlet in the parish of Johnstown and barony of Naas. It consists of a few cottages, but possesses a spacious and excellent inn and posting-house; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Kildare and archdiocese of Dublin; area of parish 949 acres. Lady Mayo supports a charity-school in this parish.

JOHNSTOWN, shire of Renfrew, S.

P. T. Paisley (50) 4 m. W. Pop. with Pa.

A considerable manufacturing village in the parish of Paisley. It is a well-built place, very populous, and the inhabitants are chiefly employed in cotton-spinning. Here are a chapel-of-ease, and a burgher meeting-house.

JOHNSTOWN, ST., or BALNAREE, co. Longford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Granard (75) 7 m. W. Pop. 212.
Fairs, May 11; Nov. 21; and Dec. 29.

A town in the parish of Clonbroney and barony of Granard. It was formerly a borough, returning two members to Parliament, but disfranchised by the act of union. A monastery of Grey Friars, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, anciently stood near to this place, but no remains of it can now be discovered.

JOHNSTOWN, ST., or SCADDANSTOWN, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Killenaule (96) 4 m. S.E. Pop. 990.

A parish in the barony of Middlethird; living, a rectory in the diocese and archdiocese of Cashel; valued at 110*l.* by commutation for tithes. It is united to seven other parishes, which, taken together, constitute the union of Killenaule, in which parish the church and parsonage are situated. Area of St. Johnstown parish, 2131 acres.

JOHNSTOWN BRIDGE, co. Kildare, Leinster, I.

P. T. Kilcock (18) 7 m. W b N. Pop. 239.
Fairs, March 31; May 29; Oct. 13; and Dec. 21.

A village in the parish of Cadamstown and barony of Carbery, situated upon the river Blackwater.

JONESBOROUGH, co. Armagh, Ulster, I.

P. T. Newry (63) 4½ m. SW. Pop. of Pa. 1250.
Of Vill. 130. Fairs, June 4; Aug. 14; Oct. 21; and Dec. 3.

A village and parish in the barony of Orior upper half, situated upon the great northern road, and is a permanent military station; living, a rectory in the diocese and archdiocese of Armagh, possessing a church with a parsonage upon a glebe of ten acres.

JORDANSTOWN, co. Pembroke, S. W.

P. T. Fishguard (257) 4 m. SW. Pop. 150.]

A small parish in the hundred of Dewisland, situated upon the Hiog river; living, a disrectory in the diocese of St. David's and archdeaconry of Carmarthen; valued in P. R. 57*l.* 13*s.* per annum; patron, G. Vaughan, Esq.

JULIANSTOWN, or NANNY, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Drogheda (30) 4 m. SE. Pop. 680.

A parish in the barony of Lower Duleek, situated adjoining the Nanny Water; living; a vicarage in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh, united to the parishes of Moorechurch, Clonalvey, and Stamullen, possessing a church, glebe-house, and glebe of thirty acres; patron, the Marquis of Drogheda. Area of Julianstown parish alone, 2604 acres.

JULIET, ST., co. Cornwall.

P. T. Camelford (228) 5½ m. N b E. Pop. 263.

A parish in the hundred of Lesnewth; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; certified value 5*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 60*l.*; patron (1829) — Rawl, Esq.

JURA, shire of Argyll, S.

P. T. Craignish Ferry 4 m. S.
Pop. 1264. Of Pa. 2168.

An island of the Hebrides, forming, with those of Collonsay, Oronsay, Scarba, Lunga, Balnahaigh, and three uninhabited isles to the northward, a parish in the district of Islay. Jura is about thirty-two miles in length, averaging seven in breadth, and contains nearly 60,000 Scottish acres, of which one-twentieth part only is arable; the rest of the surface is barren and totally incapable of improvement, exhibiting little else than huge masses of rugged rocks, some lying heap upon heap, others scattered about in the wildest confusion. On the western side, a lofty ridge, termed the Pass of Jura, elevated 2000 feet above the level of the sea, extends from north to south the entire length of the island, and gives vent to the numerous rapid rivulets by which it is intersected. It is bounded on all sides by the Atlantic Ocean, having the sound of Islay on the south-west, and that of Jura on the east, where the only level ground and inhabitants are to be found, and where the coast is indented by the two fine harbours, Lowland-Man's Bay and Small Isles. The tides and currents are here exceedingly rapid and dangerous, especially through the sounds of Jura and Scarba, and in the noted gulf of Corry-Vrehan, between the two, in which Breacan, a prince of Denmark, is said to have perished. Iron-ore, black oxide of manganese, slate, and a fine sand used in the manufacture of glass, are in great abundance, and immense quantities of sea-weed proper for manure are cast upon all parts of the shore. Oats, barley, potatoes, and flax, are cultivated here, but fuel is extremely scarce. Numbers of sheep and goats are reared by the inhabitants, and herds of wild deer of the red species, with grouse and various other kinds of game, are found in the mountains. A capital line of road, sixteen miles long, connects the ferry of Lagg with Keills, and that of Feoline with Port-Askaig in the island of Islay. Near Small Isles are vestiges of an old encampment, and there are many tumuli and duns in the vicinity. The living is in the presbytery of Cantyre and synod of Argyll; patron, the Duke of Argyll. The church is much dilapidated. Gaelic only is spoken by the natives; a society's school has been established here.

K A N

JUST, ST., co. Cornwall.

P. T. Penzance (281) $7\frac{1}{2}$ m. W.b N. Pop. 3666.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Penwith; living, a vicarage in the arch-deaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 117. 11s. 0 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.; patron, the Lord Chancellor. Here are many valuable copper and tin mines.

JUST, ST., co. Cornwall.

P. T. St. Mawes (262) 1 m. N.
Pop. with St. Mawes, 1648.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Powder; living, a rectory in the arch-deaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 371. 0s. 10d.; patron (1829) Francis Rod^d, Esq.

K E A

JUSTRYFOGARTY, or INCHYANLY, or INCH, co. Tipperary, Munster, I.

P. T. Burrolleigh (94) 4 m. SE. Pop. 1088.

A parish in the barony of Eliogarty; living, a vicarage in the diocese and archdiocese of Cashel, united to the vicarages of Clogher and Doven, and to the rectory and vicarage of Moycarkey, constituting thereby the corps of the chancellorship of Cashel diocese. There is neither church nor glebe-house within the union.

K.

KABER, or KABERGH, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Brough (281) 2 m. S. Pop. 164.

A township, partly in the parish of Brough, and partly in that of Kirby Stephen, East ward. Here is a small endowed school. In 1663, after the restoration of Charles II., an insurrection of the republican party was intended, and meetings were held for that purpose at Kaber Rigg, where several were taken prisoners by the militia and executed at Appleby, for joining in this conspiracy, which was called the Kaber Rigg Plot.

KAILSIE, shire of Peebles, S.

Pop. with Innerleithen and Traquair.

An ancient parish, the northern part of which, in 1647, was consolidated with that of Innerleithen, and the southern or greater portion with the parish of Traquair. The ruins of its church are still to be seen on the banks of a stream thence called Kirkburn, which is tributary to the Tweed.

KANTURK, KANETURK, or KINTURK, co. Cork, Munster, I.

Dublin 175 m. S b W. Pop. 1026. Fairs, May 4; July 4; Nov. 8; and Dec. 11.

A town in the parishes of Clonfert and Kilbrin and barony of Duhallo, situated upon the river Dalus, near to its junction with the Allo. Here is a chapel of ease to Clonfert parish, and a glebe-house for the residence of the chaplain. The appearance of this place is extremely comfortable, and its trade much better than places so much inland and removed from the principal lines of road generally enjoy; much retail business is transacted by the shopkeepers; wool-combing, serge-making, bolting-mills, and an extensive porter-brewery, employ the population and bring an influx of wealth. In addition to which, coals of the non-flaming kind are raised adjacent to the town. Keanturk signifies a boar's head, and the district anciently belonged to the M'Do-noughs, who commenced, but were not permitted to finish, a noble castle, 120 feet in length by eighty in breadth, flanked by four square towers. The town and manor give the title of Viscount to the family of Percival, now Earl of Egmont.

KAYINGHAM, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Hull (174) 14 m. E b S. Pop. 630.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Holderness, situated on an eminence commanding a fine prospect of the Humber, with its numerous shipping. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of the East Riding and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 12*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 42*l.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron, the Archbishop of York.

KEA, ST., co. Cornwall.

P. T. Truro (255) 3½ m. SSE. Pop. 3206.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Powder; living a vicarage with that of Kenwyn, in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; patron, the Bishop of Exeter.

KEADBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Gleanford Bridge (156) 12 m. NW b W. Pop. 379.

A township in the parish of Althorpe and west division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey.

KEADUE, co. Roscommon, Connaught, I.

Dublin 108 m. NW. Pop. of Township, 867.

A village in the parish of Killronan and barony of Boyle.

KEADY, co. Armagh, Ulster, I.

Dublin 77 m. N b W. Pop. of To. 646. Of Pa. 6635. Fairs, April, 4; Aug. 14; and Oct. 14.

A village in a parish of the same name and barony of Armagh, the parish being partly also in Turany barony, situated upon a stream which flows from Lough-clay, and is generally considered to be the chief source of the Callen-Water. The living is a rectory and vicarage in the diocese and archdiocese of Armagh, possessing a church and parsonage, upon a glebe of sixty-four acres, and valued by commutation for tithes at 350*l.* per annum. This extensive parish lies in the centre of the linen-making district, and the banks of the Callen-Water are, for many miles, occupied by bleach greens. Here is a mine of lead ore on the estate of Trinity College, Dublin.

KEAL, EAST, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 2 m. SW. Pop. 313.

A parish in the east division of the soke of Bolingbroke, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 17*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. Helen; patron (1829) Rev. R. Hastings.

KEAL, WEST, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 3 m. SW b W. Pop. 502.

A parish in the west division of the soke of Bolingbroke parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.*; church ded. to St. Helen; patron (1829) R. Cra-croft, Esq.

KEARN, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Clatt (120) 2½ m. WNW.
Pop. with Auchindoir.

An ancient parish, now in union with that of Auchindoir, in the district of Alford. It comprises nearly 2720 acres, consisting chiefly of pasture, moss, and muir, about 600 acres only being under cultivation. Peats are abundant. The church is old and much dilapidated.

KEARSLEY, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Bolton (197) 4 m. SE b S.
Pop. 1833.

A township in the parish of Dean and hundred of Salford. Here is an extensive common, called Kearsley Moor, under the surface of which are many valuable coal-mines.

KEARSLEY, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 12½ m.
NW b W. Pop. 11.

A township in the parish of Stamfordham and north-east division of Tyndedale ward.

KEDDINGTON, cos. Essex and Suffolk.

P. T. Castle Hedingham (47) 9½ m. NW b N.
Pop. 607.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Hinckford, county Essex, and partly in that of Rishridge, county Suffolk; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 16*l.* 8*s.* 6½*d.* The church, which is dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, contains many ancient and handsome monuments; patron (1829) Barrington Syer, Esq. At the time of the commonwealth the celebrated Archbishop Tillotson was minister of this place.

KEDDINGTON, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (149) 2 m. NE. Pop. 170.

A parish in the Wold division of the hundred of Louth Eske, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. [val. P. R. 20*l.*; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron (1829) Sir W. E. Welby, Bart.

KEDLESTON, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (120) 4 m. NW b N. Pop. 109.

A parish in the hundred of Appletree; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Derby and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 3*l.* 19*s.* 7*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 90*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Lord Scarsdale, who has a most magnificent seat here; it is situated on a gentle ascent, is 360 feet in extent, consisting of a centre and two pavilions connected with the main buildings by corridors of the Doric order; in the centre of the north front is a double flight of steps leading to a grand portico, whose pediment is supported by six columns of the Corinthian order. The hall is a most beautiful apartment, planned after the ancient Greek mode, and the ceiling is supported by twenty columns of alabaster. The saloon is an extremely elegant apartment, and is deservedly admired for the classic taste displayed in its various decorations. Almost every room in this splendid mansion is decorated with paintings comprising many valuable works by the most eminent masters. The park-lodge was designed from the arch of Octavia, and gives admission to the grounds which are about five miles in circumference, and display some flourishing plantations, and also a grove of venerable oaks, some of them of enormous magnitude. In the park is a neat building, erected over a spring, which is greatly valued for its anti-scorbutic qualities; it has also been found efficacious, from external application, in various cutaneous diseases, but more especially in ulcerous complaints. The temperature of the spring is about forty-seven degrees.

KEELBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Great Grimsby (165) 6½ m. W b N.
Pop. 402.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, of the certified value of 20*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 60*l.*; church ded. to St. Bartholomew; patron (1829) Lord Yarborough.

KEELE, co. Stafford.

P. T. Newcastle-under-Lyne (150) 2½ m.
W b S. Pop. 1061.

A parish in the north division of the hundred of Pirehill; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Stafford and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, of the certified value of 24*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 60*l.*; church ded. to St. Michael; patron (1829); R. Sneyd, Esq.

KEEVIL, co. Wilts.

P. T. Trowbridge (99) 4 m. E. Pop. 496.

A parish in the hundred of Whorwelsdown; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 12l. 7s. 1d.; church ded. to St. Leonard; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Winchester.

KEGWORTH, co. Leicester.

P. T. Loughborough (109) 6 m. NW b N. Pop. 1672. Fairs, Feb. 18; Easter-Mon.; April 30; and Oct. 10, holiday-fair, toys, &c.

A parish in the hundred of West Goscote, pleasantly situated on an eminence near the Trent, over which there is a handsome stone bridge, built at the expense of the Duke of Devonshire; it formerly had a market, which is now discontinued. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 25l. 15s. 7½d.; patron, Christ's College, Cambridge. The church, which is ded. to St. Andrew, is a handsome light building, with a nave, aisles, transepts, chancel, and tower with a spire. Most of the windows are large, and some of them have pieces and complete figures of painted glass. Queen Elizabeth founded a freeschool here, in 1575. The petty sessions for the hundred of West Goscote are holden here occasionally.

KEIG, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Alford (123) 4½ m. ENE. Pop. 502.

A parish in the district of Alford, containing about 4500 acres, and watered by the river Don. The surface is undulated, rising in some places to a considerable elevation, nearly half of it being arable and pastureland, and the rest hills and ruins, partly covered with natural woods, frequented by red and fallow-deer and roes; living, in the presbytery of Alford and synod of Aberdeen; patron, the Crown.

KEIGHLEY, or KIGHLEY, W. R. co. York.

London 206 m. NNW. Pop. 9223. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, May 8, for horned cattle, brass, and pewter; and Nov. 8, for ditto and pedlery.

A market-town and parish in the east division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross, situated in a deep valley, near the south-west bank of the river Aire, over which is a stone bridge; its principal manufactures are woollen cloth, cottons, linseys, worsted and Manchester goods, the prosperity of which is much increased by the Leeds and Liverpool canal, which passes within two miles. The town is well-built of stone, and is amply supplied with water, which is brought from a spring on the west side of it. The living is a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 21l. 0s. 7½d.; patron (1829) the Duke of Devonshire. The church, which is ded. to St. Andrew, is a spacious and handsome structure, containing two remarkable grave-stones, with an inscription, purporting to be of the date 1023, the age of King Canute, but which is supposed by some to be fictitious. Here is a small race-course, which is the only piece of level ground in the parish.

KEILLESAY, shire of Inverness, S.

Pop. with Barray.

An inhabited island of the Hebrides, forming a portion of the parish of Barray.

KEILLS, shire of Argyll, S.

Pop. with Pa.

A fishing-village in the parish of North Knapdale, island of Jura, and district of Islay. It is situated on Jura Sound, and is the landing-place on the line of road through Jura and Islay; the ferry from Lagg, the northern extremity of this road, is about six miles across. The Argyll county road from Crinan communicates also with Keills by a branch rather more than a mile in length.

KEIR, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Thornhill (59) 2 m. S b W. Pop. 987.

A parish, eight miles in length, about three in breadth, and watered by the rivers Nith and Scarr, on the banks of which are many fertile holms; the surface, however, is partly covered with natural woods, and being chiefly hilly, more than one-third of it is appropriated for sheep pasturage. Limestone is quarried to a great extent at Bارج, where there is a small village, founded by the late Dr. Hunter. The living is in the presbytery of Pierpoint and synod of Dumfries; patron, the Marquis of Queensberry. The church is a very small structure.

KEISBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Corby (105) 5 m. NE. Pop. 80.

A hamlet in the parish of Lavington and wapentake of Beltisloe, parts of Kesteven.

KEITH, shire of Banff, S.

Aberdeen 46½ m. NW. Edinburgh 130 m. N. Pop. 3929. Market weekly. Fairs, four annually.

A market-town and parish, situated on the great post-road from Aberdeen to Inverness, and famous for one of the greatest fairs in Scotland, held on the second Thursday in September, for black cattle and horses. The old town of Keith having been reduced to a small village, Lord Findlater, the proprietor, feued out in small lots the barren muir, now occupied by the new town, the building of which commenced about 1750. It consists of three principal streets running parallel with each other, with several lanes crossing them at right angles, and a spacious market-place, where the fairs and markets are held. At the northern extremity of the parish are two villages, called Old New-Mill and New New-Mill, the latter having been founded by Lord Fife soon after the commencement of New Keith. The inhabitants of these four places are chiefly employed in flax-dressing, spinning of linen yarn, weaving and bleaching linen cloth; there are also a distillery and tannery carried on to some extent. The parish forms an irregular circle, whose diameter is about six miles; it lies in the centre of a fertile valley, termed Strath Isla, from being intersected by the river Isla, which, below the village of Old Keith, forms a picturesque cascade, called the Linn of Keith. Several medicinal springs, of similar properties to the mineral waters of Peterhead, are met with here; as are the remains of some Druidical circles. The living is in the presbytery of Strathlogie and synod of Moray; patron, Sir William Forbes. The church is a very spacious edifice.

KEITH MARSHAL, shire of Haddington, S.

P. T. Haddington (16) 8 m. SW b S.
Pop. with Humber.

An ancient parish, now in union with that of Humber; the barony of Keith and other demesnes were given with the post of Hereditary Great Marshal of Scotland, by King Malcolm, to one Robert, for killing Camus, the Dane, at the battle of Barry in 1010. The ruins of the once noble mansion of the earls marshal are still remarkable for their extent and elegance.

KEITHALL, shire of Aberdeen, S.

P. T. Inverury (137) 1 m. NE. Pop. 838.

A parish in the district of Garioch, including the greater portion of the ancient parish of Kinkell, united in 1754, and containing about 11,000 acres, the eastern division of which is barren and very unproductive; but the tract lying along the banks of the Don and Ury is extremely fertile. The rents are paid in grain and meal, and many of the female inhabitants are employed in the knitting of stockings. The living is in the presbytery of Garioch and synod of Aberdeen; patron, the Earl of Kintore, whose residence, Keith Hall, is an elegant mansion, situated amidst fine plantations; as is Balbithan, the handsome seat of General Gordon. The church was built in 1772, at Legate, a place so named from the pope's legate having sojourned the night before the great battle of Hardlaw at a chapel then existing there: Serimgeour, the high constable of Dundee, and many nobles who fell in that celebrated contest, are interred in the churchyard. On the muir of Kinmuck, numerous small cairns mark the scene of a bloody engagement between the Scots and Danes; and there are three Druidical circles within the parish. Many of the descendants of "The Lass of Peatie's Mill" still reside at this place, which, with Galston, disputes the honour of her birth.

KEIWICK, or KETCHWICK, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Frodsham (101) 6 m. NE b N. Pop. 86.

A township in the parish of Runcorn and west division of the hundred of Bucklow.

KELBROOK, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Colne (218) 4 m. N b E.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Thornton-in-Craven and east division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross.

KELBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Sleaford (115) 5 m. SW b W. Pop. 124.

A chapelry in the parish of Haydor and wapentake of Aswardhurn, parts of Kesteven; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Haydor, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; patronage with Haydor vicarage.

KELFIELD, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Gainsborough (149) 7½ m. N.
Pop. with Butterwick township.

A hamlet in the parish of Owston and west division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey.

KELFIELD, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Selby (181) 5 m. N b W. Pop. 5286.

A township in the parish of Stillingfleet and wapentake of Ouse and Derwent.

KELHAM, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Newark (124) 2 m. NW. Pop. 100.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Thurgarton; living, a rectory, with that of Averham, in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 197. 8s. 4d.; patronage with Averham rectory. The church, ded. to St. Wilfrid, contains a handsome monument to the last Lord Lexington. Kelham Hall, long the seat of the Sutton family, is a handsome building, consisting of a centre and two wings, and is surrounded by some very pleasant grounds.

KELK, GREAT, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (106) 5½ m. E.
Pop. 158.

A township in the parish of Toston and wapentake of Dickerling.

KELK, LITTLE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (106) 6 m. NE b E.
Pop. 51.

An extra-parochial township in the wapentake of Dickerling.

KELLAMERGH, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Kirkham (225) 2½ m. SW. Pop. 145.

A township in the parish of Kirkham and hundred of Amounderness.

KELLAN, co. Cardigan.

P. T. Lampeter (207) 4 m. E. Pop. 460.

A parish in the hundred of Moyddyn; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's; valued in K. B. 57. 7s. 8½d.; ann. val. P. R. 974; patron, the Bishop of St. David's.

KELLAWAYS, co. Wilts.

P. T. Chippenham (93) 2½ m. EN E.
Pop. 15.

A parish in the hundred of Chippenham living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry

Wilts and diocese of Salisbury; valued in K. B. 2*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*.; patron (1829) R. G. Long, Esq.

KELLETH, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Orton (276) 4 m. SE. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Orton, East ward.

KELLET NETHER, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Lancaster (240) 6½ m. N b E.

Pop. 358.

A township in the parish of Bolton by the Sands and hundred of Lonsdale south of the Sands.

KELLET OVER, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Lancaster (240) 8 m. NNE. Pop. 531.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Bolton by the Sands and hundred of Lonsdale south of the Sands; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 29*l*.; ann. val. P. R. 114*l*. 10*s*.; chapel ded. to St. Cuthbert; patron, the Bishop of Chester. At a short distance is a natural curiosity, called Dunald's Mill Hole, a cave at the foot of a mountain, into which the water of a large brook, after having given motion to a mill, falls and disappears. After a subterraneous course of two miles, it again emerges at Cranforth, and falls into the river Keer. The cave consists of many apartments, the roofs of which are adorned with incrustations, reflecting the light of tapers in a variety of colours.

KELLEY, co. Devon.

P. T. Launceston (211) 5 m. ESE. Pop. 218.

A parish in the hundred of Lifton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 9*l*. 8*s*. 9*d*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) — Kelley, Esq., a minor.

KELLEYTHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. Great Driffield (196) 2 m. SW.

Pop. with Emswell.

A township in the parish of Great Driffield and Bainton Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill.

KELLING, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Holt (119) 2½ m. N b E. Pop. 163.

A parish in the hundred of Holt; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 12*l*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) Z. Girdlestone, Esq.

KELLINGTON, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Pontefract (177) 6 m. ENE.

Pop. of Pa. 1323. Of To. 283.

A parish and township in the lower division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 9*l*. 8*s*. 11½*d*.; church ded. to St. Edmund; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge.

KELLOE, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Durham (258) 6½ m. SE b E.

Pop. of Pa. 679. Of To. 101.

A parish and township in the south division of Easington ward; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Durham; valued in K. B. 20*l*. 9*s* church ded. to St. Helen; patron, the Bishop of Durham.

KELLS, co. Antrim, I.

P. T. Antrim (105) 6 m. N. Pop. 184.

A village in the parish of Connor and barony of Antrim, situated upon a rivulet, which is tributary to the Glenwherry. It is said that a monastery was founded, or re-edified, at this place, in the year 807, by Kellach, the son of Comgall. There is much confusion amongst antiquarians as to the identification of each of the places called Kells, with their religious establishments founded at them.

KELLS, co. Kilkenny, Leinster, I.

P. T. Kilkenny (75) 7 m. SW. Pop. of Barony, 17,000. Of Pa. 1287. Of Vil. 289.

Fair, July 13.

A village in the parish and barony of Kells, situated upon the King's River. The village, formerly a place of consequence, is now contemptible. The living is a vicarage in the diocese of Ossory and archdiocese of Dublin; valued, by commutation for tithes, at 297*l*. 15*s*. 9½*d*.; of which the lay improPRIATOR receives 198*l*. 10*s*. 6½*d*. It is united to the parishes of Earlstown, Ballytobin, Mallardstown, Kilree, Stamcarty, and Anamult. Kells possesses a church and a parsonage, upon a glebe of thirty-four acres; patrons of the union, the Marquis of Ormond and the Bishop of Ossory, alternately. Here was a priory for Augustines, founded and richly endowed by Geoffrey Fitz-Roberts, who accompanied Strongbow to Ireland; the prior was a spiritual lord, and had a seat in the House of Peers previous to the Reformation.

KELLS, stewartry of Kirkcudbright, S.

P. T. New Galloway (80) ½ m. NW.

Pop. 1104.

A parish (including the royal burgh of New Galloway) fifteen miles in length, and at its northern extremity six in breadth, but gradually diminishing to a point on the south, by the approximation and junction of the rivers Dee and Ken, the banks of which are abundantly fertile, as are those of the two navigable lochs, whence they derive their names and sources; these extensive sheets of water, which communicate with each other, are together ten miles long, and as well as four smaller lochs within the parish, are profusely stocked with the finest fish, including pike of an immense size, and salmon. Game also is plentiful, and the peats dug here are of an excellent quality, and easily attainable. Poised on the summit of a lofty hill, called Mulla, is the Mickle Lump, or the Laggan Stone, a huge mass of rock, moveable with the slightest application of force. The living is in the presbytery of Kirkcudbright and synod of Galloway; patron, the Crown. The church was rebuilt in 1745, and repaired in 1788. Here are the ruins of the once-strong castle of Dind-cuck. Thomas Gordon, the translator of Tacitus, and author of the "Independent Whig," was born in this parish.

KELLS, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

Pop. 30,392.

A populous and extensive barony, divided into upper and lower. It includes eighteen parishes, besides the towns of Kells and Crossaheel, and the village of Kilmainham Wood. It is a rich agricultural country, watered by the river Blackwater.

KELLS, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

Dublin 40 m. N.W. Pop. of Pa. 2801. Of To. 3618. Fairs, Thurs. bef. Shrove-Tu.; the day bef. Ascension; Sept. 9; and Oct. 16.

A handsome town in the parish and barony of the same name, upon the banks of the Blackwater. It consists of one broad street, ascending a hill of agreeable inclination, and forms a very interesting picture. Here is a large church, in perfect repair, near to which stands an ancient pillar-tower, ninety-nine feet high, and in complete preservation. The Roman Catholic chapel, in the main street, is an elegant Gothic building, and possesses an admired altar-piece, the gift of the Marquis of Headfort. A market-house and handsome court-house, the latter happily situated at the foot of the hill, comprises all that can be called public buildings. Many neat private residences add to the cheerful appearance of this place, and two comfortable inns afford accommodation to the traveller. This was formerly a borough town, sending two members to the Irish Parliament, and is now governed by a sovereign and deputy. The living is a rectory in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh, united to the chapelries of Duleene, Rathboyne, and Burry, possessing a church, with a parsonage and glebe of 1427 acres, and constituting the corps of the archdeaconry of Meath; valuation of the rectory of Kells alone, by commutation for tithes, 553*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.*; and its area occupies 5132 acres of land. There is a manufacture of ticken here; and a freeschool in the town, of forty-seven boys and thirty-six girls. Kells was anciently a city of note, and on the arrival of the English, was walled and fortified. A strong castle was erected, in 1178, upon the precise spot now occupied by the market-place, and in front of it was an enormous cross, of one stone, and ornamented with devices, and bearing inscriptions in the Irish character. A church, dedicated to St. Senan, stood near to the pillar-tower, and a monastery for regular canons, erected in 510. This last establishment was founded by the famous St. Columb Kill, to whom the site of the abbey was granted by Dermot, the son of Kervail, King of Ireland; the ruins of St. Columb's cell are still to be seen. In the thirteenth century, the ancient see of Kells was united to that of Meath. In the reign of Richard I., Walter de Lacie erected an hospital here for cross-bearers or crouched friars, following the rule of St. Augustin; and there was a perpetual chantry of three priests in the parish church of St. Columb, to celebrate mass daily; one in the Rood Chapel, a second in St. Mary's, and the third in the chapel of St. Catherine the Virgin. A synod was held here in 1152, at which Cardinal John Pseudo-presided, who distributed the palliums sent by Pope Eugene III. to the provinces of Armagh, Dublin, Cashel, and Tuam. Adjacent to the town is the noble mansion of the Marquis of Headfort, beautifully seated on the banks of the Blackwater. The family of Cholmondeley take the title of Viscount from this place.

KELLYSTOWN, co. Carlow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Carlow (49) 5 m. SE. Pop. 387.

A small parish in the barony of Carlow, situated upon the river Burren; living, a rectory in the diocese of Leighlin and archdiocese of Dublin; possessing a church, a parsonage, and about thirty-three acres of glebe; patrons, the King, and the Bishop, the former having two turns, the latter one. Here are the ruins of a church, dedicated to St. Patrick, who is said to have been the founder. The family of Cummins were formerly extensive proprietors here, and the tomb of one of them, having the following inscription, Hoc jacet sub lapide Hugo Mac Cummins, 1603, is still remaining.

KELMARSH, co. Northampton.

P. T. Market Harborough (83) 5½ m. S. Pop. 172.

A parish in the hundred of Rothwell; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 23*l.* 1*s.* 5½*d.*; church ded. to St. Dennis; patron (1829) W. Hanbury, Esq.

KELMSCOTT, co. Oxford.

P. T. Lechlade (76) 2 m. E. Pop. 168.

A parish in the hundred of Bampton; living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Broadwell, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. George; patronage with Broadwell.

KELPOLE, co. Wicklow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Wicklow (32) 3 m. SE. Pop. with Wicklow.

A parish in the barony of Arklow, situated upon the sea-shore; living, a vicarage in the diocese of Dublin and Glendalough and archdiocese of Dublin; constituting part of the union of Wicklow.

KELSALE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Saxmundham (39) 1 m. N. Pop. 1060.

A parish in the hundred of Hoxne; living, a rectory with that of Carlton, in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 20*l.* 0*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Carlton rectory.

KELSALL, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Chester (183) 9 m. E b N. Pop. 508.

A township in the parish of Tarvin and hundred of Eddisbury.

KELSEY, NORTH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Glanford Bridge (156) 6 m. SE b S. Pop. 573.

A parish in the south division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey; living, a dis. vicarage, exempt from visitation, in the diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 74*l.*; patron, the Prebendary of North Kelsey, in Lincoln Cathedral.

KELSEY, SOUTH, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Castor (162) 6 m. W b S. Pop. 623.

A village, comprehending the parishes of St. Mary and St. Nicholas, in the west division of the wapentake of Walshcroft, parts of Lindsey; livings, two dis. rectories in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.* and 7*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*; patron (1829) the King and P. Skipwith, Esq., alternately.

KELSHALL, co. Hertford.

P. T. Royston (37) 3 m. SW b S. Pop. 208.

A parish in the hundred of Odsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 21*l.*; church ded. to St. Faith; patron, the Bishop of Ely.

KELSO, shire of Scotland, S.

Edinburgh 42 m. SE. Pop. 4860. M. D. Frid. Fairs, July 10; Aug. 5; and Nov. 2.

A market and post-town, burgh of barony, and parish, in the district of the same name, remarkable for the beauty of its situation and fine plain, watered by the rivers Tweed and Tiviot, and encompassed by hills, clothed with the most luxuriant plantations; a spot universally admired for the richness of its scenery, and on that account particularized by Patten, a follower of the protector, Somerset, into Scotland. Kelso, or as it was anciently called Calc-How and Calco, from the calcareous hill still conspicuous in the town, and termed the Chalk Heugh, owed much of its ancient importance to the stately abbey, founded in 1128, to the honour of the Virgin Mary and St. John, by the Earl of Northumberland, afterwards David I., for a mitred abbot and monks of the order of Tyronenses, whom he first settled at Selkirk, then at Roxburgh, and finally fixed here, granting them many valuable privileges, with an endowment so liberal, that at the suppression it is stated to have been worth 2000*l.* Scotch per annum. A considerable portion of this once-extensive and sumptuous edifice remains, exhibiting a most interesting specimen of the Norman style, and that fine taste in sacred architecture by which it is distinguished. The town was thrice destroyed by fire during the border warfare, was burned down by accident in 1686, and a like casualty caused its almost entire destruction again in 1745, from which period it has gradually arisen to its present state, that of a well-built, gay, and populous place. It is delightfully seated on the northern bank of the river Tweed, which is crossed by a noble bridge of five arches, built upon the site of a more ancient structure that was swept away by a flood in 1798; there is also a bridge over the Tiviot, which, running from the southward, forms a junction with the Tweed, nearly opposite to the town. Almost at the southern termination of the principal street, which runs parallel with the Tweed, is the market-place, containing many handsome buildings and shops, and on the east side of it is a newly-erected town-house, comprising the town-hall and other public offices, with piazzas, and an arcade underneath, for the convenience of the great concourse of persons who resort to the high markets, of which there are twelve in the year (exclusive of the weekly marts), viz., two before, and one after the Whitsuntide and Martinmas terms, for hiring servants, and the other six in March and at the close of autumn, chiefly for horses. This is often the seat of the Caledonian Hunt; and the Kelso races are held upon Cavertown Edge, a muir in the adjoining parish of Eckford. The parish church, which is dedicated to the Virgin Mary, stands at the east end of the venerable abbey, a conspicuous ornament to the place; there are also an elegant episcopal chapel, burgher, anti-burgher, and relief meeting-houses, three benefit societies, a public dispensary, three subscription libraries, containing valuable collections of books, two public schools of some repute, one for Latin, the other for English; with several minor establishments for the instruction of youth, including a school of industry, conducted on a plan most creditable to its originators. The inhabitants are mostly employed in the manufacture of woollen cloth, linen, stockings, shoes, leather, and in the dressing of sheep and lamb skins, the latter business being carried on to a considerable extent for the supply of the populous country, of which Kelso is the centre. It was erected into a burgh of barony, by James VI., on the forfeiture of Francis, Earl of Bothwell, in 1605, when it was granted to Sir Robert Ker, and has ever since been governed by a baron-baillie, under his descendants, the Dukes of Roxburgh, assisted by fifteen stent-masters, who have the power to impose a stent, or tax, upon the inhabitants, to defray the expenses of the burgh; eight of their body consist of the preses of the merchant-company, the deacon convener, the deacon of the butchers, and those of the five corporations of hammermen, skinnners, shoemakers, tailors, and weavers, the remaining seven being nominated by the duke. The parish, which once formed the three distinct parishes of Kelso, Maxwell, and St. James, contains nearly 6000 English acres, and the soil produces early and abundant crops.

The living is in the presbytery of Kelso and synod of Merse and Tiviotdale; patron, the Duke of Roxburgh, whose princely mansion, Fleurs, in the vicinity of the town, exhibits a front of considerable magnitude, flanked by extensive woods. On an eminence, near the confluence of the two rivers, and within this parish, are the massive ruins of the old castle of Roxburgh, anciently called Marchidun, from its site in the marches, the history of which is more important than that of any other fortress on the border, from the numerous contests between the English and the Scots for the possession of it, and its frequent change of masters; James II. was killed by the bursting of a piece of ordnance, while besieging it, and there yet stands a holly-tree on the spot where the catastrophe happened, and where also a large village, named in allusion to it, Fair-cross or Fair-corse, once existed. The protector, Somerset, was so intent upon repairing this castle, which had fallen almost to ruins, that he laboured with his own hands at the works, an example followed by his principal officers, who in six days made it defensible, and fit for the reception of a garrison of 500 men. At a place, called Wooden, is an ancient tumulus, near which stone coffins and skeletons have been dug up. The family of Douglas are hereditary sheriffs of Roxburgh, or as they are usually denominated, sheriffs of Tiviotdale. Kelso confers the title of Earl on the noble family of Ker, Dukes of Roxburgh.

KELSTERNE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Louth (140) 4½ m. SW to W. Pop. 170.

A parish in the Wold division of the hundred of Louth Eske; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 11*s.* 10*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 105*l.*; church ded. to St. Faith; patron (1829) John Dennison, Esq.

KELSTON, co. Somerset.

P. T. Bath (100) 4 m. WNW. Pop. 248.

A parish in the hundred of Bath Forum, anciently written Kelveston, is beautifully situated and commands an extremely pleasing and rich prospect; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Bath and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 15*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) Sir J. C. Hawkins, Bart. Here is a fine eminence, called Kelston Round Hill, which rises to an immense height above the bed of the river; its summit is crowned with a range of firs, surrounded with a circular wall: the prospect from this hill is very extensive. The old manor-house, which was erected about the year 1587, and the only remains of which is the court-yard, was the seat of Sir John Harrington, chiefly known as the first English translator of the "Orlando Furioso" of Ariosto. Sir John was born here about 1561, and had for his godmother no less a personage than Queen Elizabeth, who did his parents this honour from motives of gratitude for the services they had rendered her before she ascended the throne. The present manor-house was erected near the site of the old mansion, and is an elegant modern structure pleasantly situated on a rising ground.

KELTHORPE, co. Rutland.

P. T. Stamford (80) 4 m. SW. Pop. with Pa. A hamlet in the parish of Ketton and hundred of Wrangdike.

KELTON, or KETEL'S TOWN, co. Cumberland.

P. T. Whitehaven (204) 8 m. E. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Lamplugh, Allerdale ward above Darwent.

KELTON, stewardry of Kirkcudbright, S.

P. T. Castle Douglas (87) 1½ m. S. Pop. 2410.

A parish in union with the ancient parishes of Gelston and Kirkcormock, together comprising 9500 square acres, partly appropriated to pasture for a number of black cattle and sheep, the staple commodity, and partly well cultivated and fertilized with an abundance of rich marl obtained in the northern portion of the district. The great military road between Dumfries and Port Patrick runs through the small market-town of Rhon House, or Kelton Hill, and the high road from Edinburgh to Kirkcudbright through the post-town of Castle Douglas in this parish. The living is in the presbytery of Kirkcudbright and synod of Galloway; patron, the Crown. The church was rebuilt in 1743, and enlarged in 1783.

KELTON-HILL. See Rhon House.

KELTOWN, shire of Dumfries, S.

P. T. Dumfries (71½) 3 m. S. Pop. with Pa.

A small seaport and thriving village in the parish of Caerlaverock, situated on the eastern bank of the river Nith. It has a harbour for vessels of ninety tons burden, which are employed in the exportation of grain and potatoes to Cumberland and Liverpool, whence are imported in return lime, coal, and colonial produce for the consumption of the neighbouring population.

KELTY, shire of Kinross, S.

Edinburgh 21 m. NNW. Pop. with Pa.

A thriving village in the parish of Cleish, situated on a small river of the same name, which is crossed by a bridge. Here is a general post-office.

KELVEDON, or EASTERFORD, co. Essex.

P. T. Chelmsford (20) 12 m. NE. Pop. 1328. Fair, Easter-Monday, for toys.

A parish in the hundred of Witham, consisting of a very long street; it is crossed by the river Pant; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Colchester and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 4*s.* 2*d.*; church

ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Bishop of London.

KELVEDON HATCH, co. Essex.

P. T. Chipping Ongar (21) 3 m. S b E.
Pop. 336.

A parish in the hundred of Ongar; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Essex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. 12*l.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) A. Serle, Esq.

KEMBACK, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Cupar of Fife (30) 3 m. E. Pop. 631.

A parish in the district of St. Andrew's, containing about 1850 acres, of which 1500 are under cultivation, and tolerably fertile, though the soil is various; that on the banks of the Eden is considered the most fruitful. A mine of lead ore was formerly worked on the Blebo estate, and free-stone is quarried here in great abundance. Living, in the presbytery of St. Andrew's and synod of Fife; patrons, the United College of St. Andrew's. The church is very ancient.

KEMBERTON, co. Salop.

P. T. Shifnal (135) 3 m. SSW. Pop. 260.

A parish in Shifnal division of the hundred of Brimstrey; living, a rectory, with the vicarage of Sutton Maddock in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 6*s.* 5½*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Peter Broughton, Esq.

KEMBLE, co. Wilts.

P. T. Malmsbury (96) 6½ m. NE b N.
Pop. 435.

A parish in the hundred of Malmsbury; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Sarum; valued in K. B. 11*s.* 4*s.* 7*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) C. W. Cox, Esq.

KEMERTON, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Tewkesbury (103) 4 m. NE. Pop. 520.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Tewkesbury; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 17*l.* 13*s.* 1½*d.*; patrons, the mayor and corporation of Gloucester. Here is an excellent freestone quarry and several petrifying springs.

KEMEYS, COMMANDER, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Usk (142) 4 m. NW b N. Pop. 72.

A parish in the upper division of the hundred of Usk; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff, of the certified value of 5*l.*; ann. val. P. R. under 80*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) — Gore, Esq.

KEMEYS, INFERIOR, co. Monmouth.

P. T. Caerleon (141) 3 m. ENE. Pop. 100.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Caldicot; living, a dis. rectory, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Llandaff; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 10*s.* 5*d.*; church ded. to All Saints; patrons (1829) Mrs. Lord, &c.

KEMPLEY, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Newent (112) 5 m. NW b N. Pop. 301.

A parish in the hundred of Botloe; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Hereford, and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 6*s.* 5½*d.*; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Hereford.

KEMPSFORD, co. Gloucester.

P. T. Fairford (80) 2 m. S. Pop. 838.

A parish in the hundred of Brightwell's Barrow; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Gloucester; valued in K. B. 19*l.*; patron, the Bishop of Gloucester. The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, is a handsome edifice, consisting of a nave, and lofty tower, rising from the centre. It was erected in the fourteenth century at the expense of Henry, Duke of Lancaster. A battle is said to have been fought here about the year 800, between Æthelmund, chief of the Wiccii, or inhabitants of Gloucestershire, and Wearitan, general of the Walsati, who inhabited Wiltshire; both generals were killed, but the Walsati were victorious.

KEMPSHOT, co. Southampton.

P. T. Basingstoke (45) 4 m. SW b W.
Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish of Winslade and hundred of Basingstoke, Basingstoke division. Kempshot House is a large and handsome brick building, and was formerly the seat of Robert Pink, who was born here in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and was celebrated for his acquaintance with philosophy and divinity.

KEMPSTON, co. Bedford.

P. T. Bedford (50) 3 m. SW b W. Pop. 1419.

A parish in the hundred of Redborne Stoke; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 12*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) the Rev. Charles Fenwick.

KEMPSTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Swaffham (93) 6 m. NE. Pop. 56.

A parish in the hundred of Launditch; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 4*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 110*l.*; church ded. to St. Paul; patron (1829) T. W. Coke, Esq.

KEMSEY or KEMESEY, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) 4 m. S. Pop. 1120.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Oswaldslow, is a handsome place, and is rapidly increasing, it being the thoroughfare between Bristol and Worcester, it has several good inns. The living is a dis. vicarage, exempt from visitation, and in the diocese of Worcester; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Worcester. Here was anciently a monastery, which flourished about 799. This place seems to have been of great consequence formerly, for Henry II. held his court here, and was attended by the principal nobility and bishops of the kingdom, and in 1265, just before the battle of Evesham, Simon de Montfort, and his unfortunate prisoner, Henry III., were for some time here, and lay at the Bishop's palace. Near the church are the ruins of an ancient camp, which appears to have been of considerable strength.

KEMSING, co. Kent.

P. T. Seven Oaks (23) 4 m. NE b N.
Pop. 359.

A parish in the hundred of Codsheath, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone; living, a vicarage with the curacy of Seale, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester; valued in K. B. 19l. 13s. 4d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Plymouth.

KENAGH, co. Longford, Leinster, I.

P. T. Ballymahon (63) m. Pop. 402.
Fair, Oct. 10.

A village in the parish of Killcommock and barony of Rathcline, situated upon the Royal Canal, just seven miles from Richmond Harbour. Here is a Baptist Society's school of thirty-three boys and twenty-one girls.

KENARDINGTON, co. Kent.

P. T. Tenterden (55) 7 m. E b S. Pop. 106.

A parish, partly within the liberty of Romney Marsh and partly in the hundred of Blackbourn, lathe of Scray; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 12l. 1s. 0½d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patrons (1829) the Trustees of M. Breton. Here are the remains of some ancient entrenchments.

KENAUGHT, or KENOUGHT, co. Londonderry, Ulster, I.

Pop. 31,908.

An extensive, populous, though mountainous barony, including eight parishes, the market-town of Newtown Limavady, and the villages of Dungiven and Ballykelly. The inhabitants are engaged in the manufacture of linen. This district was anciently called Kennacta, and was the birthplace of St. Kienan. There was another Kennacta in the county of Meath, occupying the precise county in which Duleek is situated.

KENCHIESTER, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 5 m. WNW. Pop. 94.

A parish in the hundred of Grimsworth, which is extremely ancient, having been a famous Roman town, and the Magna of the Itinerary. Great numbers of Roman antiquities have from time to time been discovered, and may yet be traced in different parts of the parish. Among the chief which have been found, are a part of a Roman temple, a hypocaust, and an aqueduct of considerable extent. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 6l. 5s. 7d.; church ded. to St. Michael; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

KENCOTT, co. Oxford.

P. T. Burford (72) 5 m. S. Pop. 174.

A parish in the hundred of Bampton; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 6l. 19s. 4½d.; church ded. to St. George; patron (1829) H. Hammersley, Esq.

KENDAL, co. Westmorland.

° Pop. 16,134.

A ward, forming the southern part of the county, which derives its name from the river Kent, which, with many smaller streams, rises within its limits, and flows southward to the sands of Morecambe Bay. It contains the beautiful lakes of Windermere, Rydal and Grasmere, and is intersected as far as Kendal by the Lancaster Canal. This ward, although so large a district, is only divided into six parishes, including the towns of Kendal, Ambleside, Bowness, and Milnthorpe, twenty-eight townships, and seventeen chapelries.

KENDAL, co. Westmorland.

London 262 m. NW b N. Pop. of Pa. 17,417.
Of To. 8084. M. D. Sat. Fairs, April 27, for horned cattle, sheep, and pedlery; and Nov. 8, for horned cattle, horses, and sheep. 3

An incorporated market-town, locally situated in Kendale ward, but having a separate jurisdiction. It stands in a pleasant valley, watered by the river Ken or Kent, whence its appellation, which is a contraction of Kirkby Kendale, or the Church in the Vale of the Ken. Horsley supposes the Roman station of Concangium, mentioned in the Notitia Imperii, to have been very near this place; and the remains of a baronial castle, on a hill to the east of the town, are said to occupy the site of a Roman fortress. Portions of two square and two round towers are yet standing, as also a considerable part of the wall surrounding the outer ballium; and in 1813, the fence encompassing these relics of antiquity was strengthened and extended, and other measures adopted for their preservation. Opposite the castle is an artificial eminence, called Castle-law Hill, on the summit of which, in 1788, a handsome obelisk, designed to commemorate the Revolution of 1688, was erected at the expense of the inhabitants. As early as the latter part of the fourteenth century, Kendal was distinguished for the manufacture of cloth; and laws for the encouragement of this branch of industry were enacted in the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. Here are several trading companies each of which has a hall. The town received a charter of incorporation from Queen Elizabeth in 1575; and another was granted by Charles I., under which the municipal government is vested in a mayor, recorder, twelve aldermen, twenty-four capital burgesses, a town-clerk, and other officers. The two senior aldermen act as justices within the borough; the mayor is coroner, and has the appointment of two constables. Sessions are held here quarterly for the borough; and also the adjourned sessions from Appleby, for the wards of Kendale and Lonsdale. A court of record for the recovery of sums under 40*l.* within the precincts of the borough, is likewise held every three weeks in the town-hall; and a court of requests for debts under forty shillings. The livings of Kirkby Kendal are a vicarage and curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; the former valued in K. B. 92*l.* 5*s.*; the latter not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 112*l.* 18*s.*; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge. The church, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, is a large ancient Gothic structure, with a square tower, and exhibiting a variety of styles in its architecture. The chapel, dedicated to St. George, is of modern erection. It is situated in the township of Kirkland; and there are two chapels of ease, one of which, called St. George's Chapel, stands in the centre of the town, and was erected in 1755. There are, besides, several places of worship, belonging to various sects of dissenters, and a Roman Catholic chapel. A free grammar-school has long existed here, which was endowed by Edward VI., Philip and Mary, Queen Elizabeth, and other benefactors. An hospital or charity-school was founded in 1670, by Thomas Sands, of Kendal, for the support of eight widows and the instruction of children; and there are also national and other schools, for the gratuitous education of youth. A dispensary and a lying-in charity have likewise been established by subscription. Many of the streets are narrow, but those extending towards the outskirts of the town, being comparatively of recent erection, are more spacious and convenient; and the houses, which are generally whitened and roofed with blue slate, have a peculiarly neat and pleasant aspect. At the east end of the town stands a house of industry, or workhouse; and near it is the house of correction. Among the public buildings and institutions are a theatre, assembly-rooms, a public library, philosophical and natural history societies, and a mechanics' institute. The present manufactures of this place include the making of waistcoating, kerseymere, linsey-woolsey, serge, baize, knit woollen caps and jackets, and various kinds of carpeting. The combing and spinning of wool furnishes employment for a great number of persons; and many important improvements have been made in the machinery used in the different processes of these manufactures. Works for sawing and polishing of marble, gunpowder-mills, corn and paper mills, and dye-houses, are also among the sources of commercial industry belonging to this town. The land in the vicinity is in general well cultivated; and the roads in almost every direction are kept in good repair. The market is noted for the sale of grain; and the fairs for cattle and horses are much frequented by the Yorkshire farmers and clothiers. The parish, which contains nearly thirty townships and chapelries, besides the town of Kendal, is of great extent, and is said to be the largest in the county. Madame Schuilenberg, a German lady, was created Duchess of Kendal by George I., but the title has long been extinct.

KENDER CHURCH, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 11 m. SW. Pop. 77.

A parish in the hundred of Webtree; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford; valued in K. B. 2*l.* 5*s.* 2*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 32*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Earl of Oxford.

KENE, or KAINE, or INIS-CHAOIN, co. Louth, Leinster, I.

P. T. Dundalk (51) 4 m. NW. Pop. 360.

A parish in the barony of Dundalk; living, a rectory in the diocese and archdiocese of Armagh; united to the vicarages of Baronstown and Philipstown-Nugent, and to the curacy of Roche; patron, the Primate. See Baronstown. Area of parish, 271 acres. St. Dageus, represented to have been smith to St. Kienan, was bishop of this place in the sixth century.

KENEDAR, shire of Elgin, S.

P. T. Elgin (167) 6 m. N. E.
Pop. with Drainy.

An ancient parish, now forming part of the parish of Drainy. It was formerly the seat of the treasurer of St. Andrew's. Some remains of the church and of a palace of the bishops of Moray, in which they resided before the erection of the castle of Spynie, are still discernible here.

KENELM, ST., co. Salop.

P. T. Hales-Owen (117) m. adjacent.
Pop. with Pa.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Hales Owen and Hales Owen division of the hundred of Brimstrey; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Hagley, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester, not in charge; patronage with Hagley rectory. The chapel, dedicated to St. Kenelm, is a plain small building, but very ancient, being of the time of Henry III.

KENFIG, co. Glamorgan.

P. T. Bridgend (181) 7 m. Pop. 222.

A town and parish in the hundred of Newcastle, united with Pile, which see. On the sea-side, in the parish, are a quantity of sand-hills, which are continually shifting with the wind. The inhabitants have a vote for the member for the Glamorganshire boroughs.

KENILWORTH, co. Warwick.

London 95 m. NW. Pop. 2577. M. D. Wed. Fairs, April 30, and Sept. 30, for cattle and pedlery.

A market-town and parish in the Kenilworth division of the hundred of Knightlow, called also Kenilworth, and sometimes Killingworth. It consists principally of an Irregularly-built street, nearly a mile in length, and it is now a place of little importance, its chief claims to notice arising from the ruins of its ancient baronial castle. This structure was founded by Geoffrey de Clinton, chamberlain and treasurer to Henry I.; but the existing remains are part of a fortress subsequently erected by John of Gaunt, whose son becoming king under the title of Henry IV., the castle, with the extensive demesne belonging to it, was vested in the Crown. Queen Elizabeth gave Kenilworth to her favourite, Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, who enlarged the chase, and made various improvements in the buildings and decorations of the castle, on which he is said to have expended 60,000*l*. In July, 1575, he celebrated here a grand festival, in honour of his royal mistress, the particulars of which have been described in a scarce tract, entitled "The Princely Pleasures of Kenilworth Castle," and more recently by Sir Walter Scott, in one of his most interesting historical romances. The castle was nearly demolished during the civil war under Charles I.; and the site is now the property of the Earl of Clarendon. The living of Kenilworth is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Coventry and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; valued in K. B. 6*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*. The church, dedicated to St. Nicholas, is an ancient Gothic building, with a tower and spire. There are two places of worship for Dissenters; a freeschool, founded by Dr. Edwards; and a school of industry, established by the Earl of Clarendon. The principal manufacture carried on here is that of horn combs; and there are also chemical works for the preparation of volatile salts and hartshorn, and a blue manufactory. A monastery of canons regular of St. Augustin was founded here by Geoffrey de Clinton, in the twelfth century, and was so richly endowed, that at the dissolution the revenues amounted to 643*l*. 14*s*. 9*d*.

KENLEY, co. Salop.

P. T. Much Wenlock (148) 4 m. WNW.
Pop. 321.

A parish in the hundred of Condover; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Salop and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry; certified value 33*l*.; patronage with Harley rectory.

KENMARE, or KEDDEEN, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

Dublin 230 m. SW. Cork (57) m. by Glenfesk Road. Pop. of Pa. 3472. Of To. 625.

A village in the parish of Kenmare and barony of Glanerought, situated at the mouth of a little rivulet, which falls into the great estuary, called the Kenmare River. The town, although insignificant, is a permanent military station; living, a rectory and vicarage in the diocese of Ardfer and Aghadoe and archdiocese of Cashel; united to the rectory of Tuosist and Balligreeby; patron, the King; valued, by commutation for tithes, 212*l*. 6*s*. 1*d*. Here is a church and a glebe of five acres. This place gave title of Earl to the family of Browne. Near to the village is a seat of the Marquis of Lansdown. The communication with this place has been lately much improved by the beautiful line of road from Killarney, laid down by Mr. Griffith.

Topog. Dict.—Vol. II.

KENMARE RIVER, co. Kerry, Munster, I.

A noble estuary on the coast of Kerry and south-west shore of Ireland. Its entrance lies between the Skeligs and the Buil, Cow, and Calf Islands. It extends about forty-two miles in length, having a breadth at the entrance of about sixteen miles. It is deep, navigable, and unobstructed as far as Ardea Castle, where there is a sunken rock, called the Maiden; and it is much beautified by islands and small promontories.

KENMORE, shire of Perth, S.

P. T. Aberfeldy (771) 6 m. SW b W. Pop. 3347. Fairs, 1st Tu. O. S. in March; June 28; July 26; Sept. 17; and Dec. 3 and 24.

A parish and village, the latter a well-built place, pleasantly seated on the isthmus of a peninsula, projecting into Loch Tay, at which point there is a handsome bridge of five arches over the river Tay. The parish, which includes also the village of Stronsfernan, is about eight miles in length by seven in breadth, and lies along both sides of Loch Tay, though a part of the vale of Glenlochay, which belongs to it, is distant twenty-eight miles from the church; and Glenquich, another portion of it to the southward, is separated from the rest by a lofty mountain, five miles across. The soil on the banks of the loch is rich and fruitful, and even the hills are mostly covered with verdure. On a small island of the Tay are the ruins of a priory, formerly subject to the abbey of Scone; it was founded by Alexander I., and was the burial-place of his queen, Sibilla, natural daughter of Henry I. of England: hither the Campbells retreated when pressed by the Marquis of Montrose, against whom they defended themselves here for some time, but it was taken and garrisoned, and in 1654 surrendered to General Monk. The living is in the presbytery of Dunkeld and synod of Perth and Stirling; patron, the Earl of Breckinridge, whose principal seat, Taymouth, formerly called Balloch Castle, stands about two miles north-east of the village, amidst extensive and tasteful plantations. The church is a plain, neat structure.

KENN, co. Somerset.

P. T. Axbridge (130) 10 m. N. Pop. 276.

A parish in the hundred of Winterstoke; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Yatton, and a peculiar in the diocese of Bath and Wells; certified value 37*l*. 15*s*.; patronage with Yatton vicarage.

KENNARTH, co. Carmarthen.

P. T. Carmarthen (318) 12 m. Pop. 1635.

A parish in the hundred of Elvet; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cardigan and diocese of St. David's; valued in K. B.

4*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 94*l.* 16*s.*; patron, the Bishop of St. David's.

KENNARTON, co. Radnor, S.W.

P. T. New Radnor (156) 2 m. NE.

Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Old Radnor and in the liberty of the new town of Radnor.

KENNE, co. Devon.

P. T. Exeter (164) 3½ m. S. Pop. 906.

A parish in the hundred of Exminster; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 46*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) Henry Ley, Esq.

KENNERLEY, or KENWARDLEIGH, co. Devon.

P. T. Crediton (180) 5 m. N. b W. Pop. 93.

A parish in the hundred of Crediton; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of Crediton, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 114*l.*; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patrons, the Governors of Crediton Charity.

KENNET, co. Cambridge.

P. T. Newmarket (61) 5 m. NNE. Pop. 164.

A parish in the hundred of Staplehoe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*; church ded. to St. Nicholas; patron (1829) O. Godfrey, Esq.

KENNET, EAST, co. Wilts.

P. T. Marlborough (74) 5 m. WSW. Pop. 94.

A parish in the hundred of Selkley; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Wilts and diocese of Sarum, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 50*l.*; patron (1829) R. Matthews, Esq. It is situated south of the river Kennet, and on the road from London to Bath, and is supposed by some antiquaries to occupy the site of the Roman station of Cunatio. This opinion is doubtful, but the place is interesting on account of its vicinity to the great tumulus, called Silbury Hill, and the barrows by which it is surrounded. Kennet is now famous for a brewery of strong ale, which forms a considerable article of commerce with London, where it is known by the appellation of Kennet Ale.

KENNET, WEST, co. Wilts.

P. T. Marlborough (74) 5½ m. W b S.

Pop. with Pa.

A tithing in the parish of Avebury and hundred of Selkley.

KENNET PANS, shire of Clackmannan, S.

P. T. Kincardine (26) 1 m. W. Pop. with Pa.

A small seaport and village in the parish of Clackmannan on the Firth of Forth, and within the jurisdiction of the port of Alloa. A large distillery has been established here; and there is an extensive colliery in the neighbourhood. The Salt Pans have been discontinued.

KENNINGHALL, co. Norfolk.

P. T. East Horling (69) 3 m. E b S. Pop. 1278.

Fairs, July 18, & Sep. 30, for cattle & toys.

A parish in the hundred of Gilt-Cross, was anciently a place of high consideration, and had a weekly market, which has long been discontinued. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.* The church, which is dedicated to St. Mary, is situated upon a hill, and has a large square tower at the west end, with the crest of Norfolk upon the buttresses; patron, the Bishop of Ely.

KENNINGTON, co. Berks.

P. T. Abingdon (56) 3½ m. NNE. Pop. 171.

A township and chapelry partly in the parish of Radley and partly in the parish of Sunningwell and hundred of Hormer; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Sunningwell, in the archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Salisbury, not in charge; chapel ded. to St. Swithin; patronage with Sunningwell rectory.

KENNINGTON, co. Kent.

P. T. Ashford (53) 2 m. NE b N. Pop. 447.

A parish in the hundred of Chart and Longbridge, lathe of Scray; living, a dis. vicarage, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 12*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 140*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury.

KENNINGTON, co. Surrey.

London from 1 to 2 m. SSW. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Lambeth, eastern division of the hundred of Brixton, which formed a distinct manor in the reign of Edward the Confessor, called in Doomesday Book the lordship of Chenintune. After having been held by various persons under royal grants, it was in the 11th of Edward III. annexed to the duchy of Cornwall, to to which it still belongs. Henry III. is supposed to have had a palace here, in which several of his successors occasionally resided, and which appears to have been pulled down, when the manor was let on lease by Henry VIII. A district church was erected on the south side of Kennington Common, under the authority of the Commissioners for building new churches, at the expense of 15,274*l.* It was commenced in June 1822, and consecrated in 1824; it is a handsome structure, with a Grecian Doric portico, surmounted by a tower and cupola. In Kennington Lane is situated Carlisle Chapel, belonging to the establishment; and there are various chapels for the Dissenters. Near Vauxhall are the Licensed Victuallers' Schools, instituted in 1803, under the patronage of his present majesty, then Duke of Clarence. On the south-eastern border of Kennington Common, but partly within the parish of Newington Butts, is a considerable vitriol manufactory. In this part of the parish are the Lambeth water-works. Kennington Common was formerly the place of execution for malefactors in the county of Surrey; and after the suppression of the rebellion in Scotland in 1745, many of the insurgents having been convicted of treason at Southwark, here suffered the sentence of the law.

KENNOWAY, shire of Fife, S.

Edinburgh 20½ m. N b E. Pop. 1649.
Fairs, 1st Thurs. O. S. in April, and 4th
Mond. in Oct.

A parish and village in the district of Kirkaldy, having a considerable linen manufactory. The parish is three miles in length, two in breadth, and the greater part enclosed and very fertile. A general post-office is established at a place called Widygales, a short distance from the village. Living, in the presbytery of Kirkaldy and synod of Fife; patron, the Crown. The church is a venerable structure. The parochial school is a commodious building lately erected, with a house for the master.

KENNYTHORPE, E. R. co. York.

P. T. New Malton (217) 4 m. S b E. Pop. 83.

A township in the parish of Langton and wapentake of Buckrose.

KENRY, co. Limerick, Munster, I.

Pop. 13,265.

One of the baronies into which the county is divided. It contains six parishes, but no town of consequence. It was anciently called Carbre Aobdha, and was governed by a petty king. In the year 1165, Auliff Mor-O'Donoghoe, King of Kenry, was slain at Brury, by Murtagh O'Brien.

KENSINGTON, co. Middlesex.

London 1½ m. W b S. Pop. 14,428.

A parish and populous and extensive village in Kensington division of the hundred of Ossulston. It is situated on the grand western road, about a mile and a half from Hyde Park Corner, and by means of the intervening hamlet of Knightsbridge, it is connected by an almost uninterrupted range of buildings with the metropolis. In Doomesday-book this place is called Chenisistun, probably from the name of an ancient proprietor, since from the same record it appears that Chenesi was the personal appellation of a Saxon who lived in the reign of Edward the Confessor. The parish includes the hamlets of Brompton, Earl's Court, Kensington Gore, the Gravel Pits, and a part of Little Chelsea; but the royal palace and several houses on the north side of the High Street are within the parish of St. Margaret, Westminster. Kensington Palace was the seat of Sir Heneage Finch, who was made Earl of Nottingham and Lord Chancellor; and his son, the second earl, sold it to William III. in 1691. It was a favourite residence of royalty till the death of George II., which event took place here, and it has since been entirely deserted by the reigning monarchs. It is a spacious, irregular, brick edifice, built at different times, and containing a suit of twelve rooms, called the state apartments, in which are a considerable number of paintings by eminent masters, including many portraits of persons distinguished in the annals of our native country. Kensington Gardens, attached to the Palace, were enlarged by Queen Anne, and much more extensively by Queen Caroline, the wife of George II., who added nearly 300 acres out of Hyde Park, laid out by Bridgman, and since improved by Kent and Lancelot Brown, so as to form the finest display of sylvan scenery near the metropolis, and hence a favourite promenade of the citizens, especially on Sunday mornings. Westward of the palace is situated Campden House, erected by Baptist Hicks, created Viscount Campden in the reign of James I. it was the residence of Queen Anne, before she ascended the throne; but is now occupied as a boarding-school. Here also is Holland House, built in 1607, and affording a good specimen of the architecture of that period. It was the residence of the celebrated Addison, from the time of his marriage with the Countess Dowager of Warwick till his death, which happened in 1719. At Earl's Court is a villa which belonged to John Hunter, distinguished as a surgeon and anatomist; between Kensington Gore and Knightsbridge is Kingston or Ennismore House, the seat of the Earl of Listowel; and there are several other handsome mansions belonging to the nobility and gentry. The living of Kensington is a vicarage, in the archdeaconry of Middlesex and diocese of London; valued in K. B. at 18l. 8s. 4d.; patron, the Bishop of London. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, is a large brick building, erected about 1694, with subsequent alterations and repairs. In the church and the adjoining cemetery have been interred several persons of eminence, including William Courten, Esq., who formed an interesting collection of natural and artificial curiosities, many of which are preserved in the British Museum; Dr. John Jortin; who was vicar of Kensington; James Elphinstone, the author of several philological works; Martin Madan, author of the Thelyphthora, a defence of polygamy; and George Colman, sen., the dramatist. There are also in the parish two new churches, erected under the authority of the Government Commissioners; one at Brompton, built in the Gothic style, with a square tower, and completed in October 1828, at the expense of 5000l.; the other in Addison Road, in the later Gothic style, ornamented with buttresses, pinnacles, and angular turrets, finished in June 1829, at the same expense with the preceding. At Bayswater is a proprietary episcopal chapel; and there are some others, besides several for Dissenters. An extensive charity-school, for both sexes, was founded here in 1713, which is now conducted on the national plan, and new buildings for the use of this seminary were erected in 1818. Here are almshouses, founded by William Methwold; and there are others in Gore Lane and at Kensington Gravel Pits. At the latter place are the West Middlesex water-works. The parish includes several large nurseries and gardens, one of the former of which was established at the latter end of the seventeenth century. Kensington has been the residence of many distinguished individuals, and it was the birthplace of the Lord Chancellor Camden, who died in 1794, at the age of eighty. The Irish title of Baron Kensington, belonging to the family of Edwardes, is derived from this place.

KENSWICK, co. Worcester.

P. T. Worcester (111) 4 m. NW b.W.
Pop. 15.

A parish in the lower division of the hundred of Oswaldslow; living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Knightwick, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester, not in charge; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Worcester.

KENSWORTH, co. Hertford.

P. T. Market Street (20) 2 m. NW.
Pop. 615.

A parish in the hundred of Dacorum; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 9l. 13s. 4d.; ann. val. P. R. 150l.; patron, the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's. The church, ded. to St. Mary, is a small Norman edifice, with a tower at the western extremity.

KENT, county of.

E to W, about 58 m. N to S, 36 m. Estimated superficial extent, 983,690 acres. Pop. 426,016. Lathes, 5. Bailiwicks, 14. Hundreds and Liberties, 65. Cities, 2. Market-towns, 30. Memb. of Pt. 13. Home Circuit. Dioceses of Canterbury and Rochester. Province of Canterbury.

A maritime county, forming the south-eastern angle of the island of Great Britain, whence, probably, originates its name, the word Cant signifying a corner, in the ancient Gaulish, or Celtic dialect. Its figure is quadrangular, and it is bounded on the north by the river Thames, which divides it from Essex; on the west by Surrey and Sussex; on the south by the English Channel; and on the east by the German Ocean. It contains numerous monuments of antiquity, and has been the theatre of many important events connected with our national history. On the eastern coast the Romans landed, under Julius Cæsar, when he invaded Britain, 54 B. C. and again the following year; but he made no permanent conquest, and a century elapsed before this part of the island submitted to the power of Rome, when Kent became a part of the province called Britannia Prima. In this county the Saxons, commanded by Hengist and Horsa, obtained their earliest settlements, having been invited hither by the Britons, to aid them in repelling the invasions of the Picts and Scots, but becoming ultimately much more formidable enemies than those northern marauders. An open war at length took place between the Britons and their former allies, and Hengist, having subdued this county, about 455, assumed the title of King of Kent. Canterbury was the capital of this kingdom, and Ethelbert, who reigned here towards the close of the sixth century, having been converted to Christianity by Augustin, an Italian monk, founded in that city the first bishopric among the Anglo Saxons, in consequence of which, when other sees were founded, this was made an archbishopric, and the prelates who sat here became primates of all England, which ecclesiastical dignity they still retain. When the kingdoms of the Heptarchy were united under the sovereignty of the West Saxon princes in the ninth century, Kent, from its vicinity to London, and other local advantages, retained much of its former importance; and William, Duke of Normandy, after his victory over the English, near Hastings, is said to have entered into a convention with the people of Kent, securing unto them their ancient rights and privileges, as the condition of their admitting his claim to the crown; and hence it is supposed the custom of gavelkind has been preserved in this county, while it has been abolished in almost every other part of England. At a subsequent period William appears to have shown his conviction of the maritime importance of Kent, by the institution of the cinque-ports, a measure which probably had a considerable effect in promoting the naval prosperity of Britain. The surface of this county displays much diversity of scenery, the banks of the Thames being low and marshy, while the central and eastern parts consist of a range of chalk hills, terminating in the white cliffs of Dover; and that portion bordering on Sussex, called the Weald of Kent, is a flat woody tract, of a clayey soil, fruitful, but damp and unhealthy, especially at the southern angle, where its extremity forms the great marsh of Romney. The western districts include hill and dale, arable and pasture land, equalling in pleasantness and variety of products the most agreeable and fertile parts of the kingdom. Two chains of hills intersect this county, termed the Upper and the Lower Hills; the former, situated to the north, are the chalk hills already mentioned, in which are embedded numerous nodules of flint, and fossilized organic remains; the southern, or lower range, consists of iron-stone and rag-stone; and on the west, towards Surrey, a mixture of clay and gravel predominates. Kent is watered by several rivers, the most considerable of which, next to the Thames, is the Medway, formed by four streams, which unite near the confines of Sussex, and passing by Maidstone and Rochester, this river expands into an estuary, containing several small islands, and joins the Thames at Sheerness. The Stour rises in the Weald of Kent, flows by Canterbury, and falls into the sea north of Sandwich; the Rother, which has its source in Sussex, forms the boundary between that county and Kent, and empties itself into the sea at Rye; and the Ravensbourn, the Cray, and the Darent mingle their waters with the Thames. Besides the usual productions of agriculture, Kent affords large quantities of hops, by which the breweries of the metropolis are principally supplied. Here also are grown various kinds of fruit, especially cherries and apples, for the London markets ; madder for the dyers, birch twigs for brooms, and timber for several purposes, also form considerable articles in commerce. Among the other productions of the county, besides grain, are beans, peas, tares, canary, clover, trefoil, cinquefoil, and many garden seeds ; potatoes, turnips, asparagus, and other culinary vegetables ; horses, kine, sheep, swine, venison, poultry, rabbits, game, and fish. Kent contains some iron mines, and the chalk hills supply inexhaustible stores of chalk and lime. No county of equal extent is less distinguished than this for manufactures ; those of gunpowder and Tonbridge ware, or toys, are perhaps the most deserving of notice. As a maritime county its importance has always been very considerable ; and besides the great naval establishments at Woolwich, Chatham, and Dover, its coast is studded with ports and harbours, some of which are frequented by natives and foreigners in pursuit of commerce, and others are the resorts of summer visiters, for the purpose of bathing in the sea. The five lathes are those of Sutton-at-Hone, Aylesford, Scray, St. Augustin, and Shepway. The first includes the hundreds of Blackheath, Lessness, Axton, Dartford, and Wilmington, Bromley and Beckenham, Ruxley, Codsheath, Somerdan, and Westerham ; the second, Totlingtough, Shamwell, Hoo, Gillingham, Wrotham, Larkfield, Maidstone, Eythorne, Littlefield, Twyford, Washlingstone, Brenchley, and Horsemenden, and Tonbridge ; the third, Milton, Teynham, Isle of Sheppey, Faversham, Broughton-under-Blean, Felborough, Colehill, Wye, Bircholt, Chart and Longbridge, Blackbourne, Tenterden, Barclay, Cranbrooke, Marden, E. Barnfield, Rovelden, and Selbrightenden ; the fourth, Whitstable, Blean Gate, Ringslaw, or Isle of Thanet, Wingham, Preston, Downhainford, Westgate, Bridge and Petham, Kinghamford, Eastry, Cornilo and Bewsborough ; and the fifth, Stouting, Loningborough, Folkstone, Hayne, Hythe, Street, Bircholt, Newchurch, Ham, Aloesbridge, Worth, St. Martin Pountney, Langport, and Isles of Oxney. The cities are, Canterbury and Rochester ; the boroughs, Maidstone and Queensborough ; of the cinque ports there are four in Kent, viz., Dover, Sandwich, Romney, and Hythe ; and the market-towns are, Ashford, Bromley, Chatham, Cranbrook, Dartford, Deal, Deptford, Faversham, Folkestone, Gravesend, Greenwich, Margate, Milton, Ramsgate, Sheerness, Tenterden, Tonbridge, and Woolwich ; besides Aylesford, Eltham, Wrotham, Wye, and other places, the markets of which are discontinued.

KENTCHURCH, co. Hereford.

P. T. Hereford (135) 13 m. SW b S. Pop. 311.

A parish in the hundred of Webtree ; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Hereford ; valued in K. B. 10l. 12s. 3½d. ; church ded. to St. Mary ; patron, the Lord Chancellor. Here is a handsome seat, surrounded by a park, nearly four miles in circumference.

KENTFORD, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Newmarket (61) 4½ m. NE b E. Pop. 109.

A parish, partly in the hundred of Lackford and partly in that of Risbridge ; living, a dis. vicarage with Gazeley, in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich ; valued in K. B. 7l. 3s. 4d. ; church ded. to St. Mary ; patron, Trinity Hall, Cambridge.

KENTISBEARE, co. Devon.

P. T. Columpton (160) 3 m. E. Pop. 1143.

A parish in the hundred of Hayridge ; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter ; val. in K. B. 27l. 11s. 8½d. ; church ded. to St. Mary ; patron (1829) the Hon. P. C. Wyndham.

KENTISBURY, co. Devon.

P. T. Barnstaple (192) 9 m. NE b N. Pop. 307.

A parish in the hundred of Braunton ; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter ; valued in K. B. 12l. 10s. 7½d.

KENTISH TOWN, co. Middlesex.

London 2 miles N. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet and chapelry in the parish of St. Pancras, Holborn division of the hundred of Ossulston. This place is described in Doomesday-book as a manor belonging to the canons of St. Paul's ; and it gives title to the Prebendary of Cantelows, or Kentish Town, who is now lord of the manor, and holds a court-leet and court-baron. Here, William Bruges, garter king at arms, in the reign of Henry V., had a country-house, at which he entertained the German Emperor Sigismund, who visited England in 1416, to promote a negotiation for peace with France. A chapel existed at Kentish Town in the reign of Elizabeth, which was taken down, and another erected on a different site, near the centre of the village, in 1784. It is a neat brick structure, surmounted by a turret. Here are also two places of worship for Dissenters ; and a national school for 300 children of both sexes, belonging to this place and Camden Town, is supported by voluntary contributions. The situation of Kentish Town is pleasant and healthy ; and the limits of the village have within a few years past been considerably extended, by the erection of new streets and ranges of handsome houses. The land in the vicinity is almost entirely occupied by cowkeepers and dairymen, or nursery and seedsmen, but chiefly by the former.

KENTMERE, co. Westmorland.

P. T. Kendal (262) 9 m. NNW. Pop. 212.

A township and chapelry in the parish of Kirkby-in-Kendal, Kendal ward, forms a narrow vale, two miles in length, and shut in by lofty fells. It is watered by the river Kent, which rises a little to the north, and here forms a lake one mile long, abounding with trout, perch, and wild ducks, and mar-gined by swampy grounds, so that it cannot be approached except at one point at the foot of a mountain. The living is a curacy in the archdeaconry of Richmond and diocese of Chester; certified value 8*l.* 6*s.*; ann. val. P. R. 82*l.*; patrons, the Landowners. Here are blue slate and blue limestone quarries.

K E N

KENTON, co. Devon.

P. T. Exeter (164) 6 m. SSE.
Pop. 1819.

A parish in the hundred of Exminster, situated at the confluence of the rivers Ken and Ex; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 34*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; patron, the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury. The church, dedicated to All Saints, is a handsome structure of red stone, unbattled and decorated with two handsome turrets; at the west end is a fine tower 100 feet in height, ornamented with battlements and pinnacles. The interior exhibits some beautiful specimens of carving in wood, and also contains several old monuments. A custom prevails here that if the issue of any of the tenants hold their tenements for three successive descents, they may claim as their inheritance.

KENTON, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Newcastle-upon-Tyne (274) 3 m. NNW.
Pop. 1204.

A township in the parish of Gosford and west division of Castle ward. This place produces coal, freestone, and grindstones.

KENTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Framlingham (87) 6½ m. WNW.
Pop. 252.

A parish in the hundred of Loes; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 8*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 130*l.*; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Lord Henniker.

KENTON MANDEVILLE, co. Somerset.

P. T. Somerton (123) 4 m. ENE. Pop. 349.

A parish in the hundred of Catsash; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron (1829) the Rev. George Stone.

KENTSTOWN, co. Meath, Leinster, I.

P. T. Slane (38) 6 m. SW. Pop. 476.

A parish in the barony of Duleek; living, a rectory in the diocese of Meath and archdiocese of Armagh; producing, by commutation for tithes, 200*l.* per annum; and united to the rectories of Darristown and Ballymagarvey; patrons, the King and Lord Dunsany. Here are a church and glebe-house, upon a glebe of four acres.

KENWYN, co. Cornwall.

P. T. Truro (255) ½ m. NW. Pop. 6231.

A parish in the west division of the hundred of Powder; living, a vicarage with that of St. Kea in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 16*l.*; church ded. to St. Cuby; patronage with St. Kea vicarage.

K E R

KENYON, co. Pal. of Lancaster.

P. T. Newton in Makerfield (193) 3 m. E b N.
Pop. 396.

A township in the parish of Winwick and hundred of West Derby.

KEPPOCH, shire of Inverness, S.

P. T. Arasaig (166) 1 m. NW. Pop. with Pa.

A small village in the parish of Ardnamurchan, situated on the north-eastern shore of Lochna-Gaul.

KEPWICK, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Thirsk (217) 6 m. NNE. Pop. 176.

A township in the parish of Over Stilton and wapentake of Birdforth.

KERDESTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Reepham (111) 2 m. NW b N.
Pop. 100.

A parish in the hundred of Eynesford; living, a dis. rectory with that of Reepham, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Reepham rectory.

KERERA, shire of Argyll, S.

An island of the Hebrides, in the parish of Kilmore and district of Lorn, from the mainland of which it is separated by Port Kerera, a sound about one mile broad, where a ferry crosses to within two miles of Oban; there is another ferry, eight miles over, to Achnacraig, in the Island of Mull. This island is three miles in length by two in breadth; and its surface, which is mountainous and rocky, exhibits many evidences of volcanic origin. It has two excellent harbours, Ardintrive and Horseshoe Bay, the latter of which is noted as the place where Alexander II. died, in 1249, when upon an expedition against the Danes.

KERESLEY, co. Warwick.

P. T. Coventry (91) 2½ m. NNW. Pop. 386.

A hamlet in the parish of St. Michael, in the county of the city of Coventry.

KERMANSTOWN, co. Carlow, Leinster, I.

P. T. Carlow (49) m. Pop. 486.

A townland, partly in the parish of Carlow and partly in that of Urglin, and barony of Carlow, returned as a separate parish in the Parliamentary Report, but not distinct in the ecclesiastical division of the county.

KERMINCHAM, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Congleton (102) 5½ m. NW. Pop. 176.

A township in the parish of Swetenham and hundred of Northwich.

KERRIER, co. Cornwall.

Pop. 42,746.

A hundred, situated at the southern extremity of the county, terminated by Lizard's Point, containing eighteen parishes, and the borough of Helstone.

KERRY, co. Munster, I.

N to S. 67 m. E to W 52 m. in the broadest part. No. of acres, 1,040,480. Barones, 8. Boroughs, 1. Market Towns, 6. Parishes, 88. Pop. 216,188. Memb. of Pt. S. Diocese of Ardfeil and Aghadee, and Archdiocese of Cashel.

One of the most mountainous and picturesque counties in the kingdom. It is bounded on the north by the county of Limerick, on the east and south by Cork county, and on the west by the Atlantic Ocean. The peninsular barony of Corkaguiney terminates at Dudmore Head, the most westerly point of land in Europe. It is enclosed between Dingle and Tralee Bays, and is entirely covered with mountains, the most remarkable of which is St. Brandon's Promontory. The baronies of Iveragh and Dunkerron boast some few fertile sheltered vales, but are also wholly mountainous. A lofty, rugged, and almost inaccessible chain separates the counties of Cork and Kerry, though there is but one pass, which is called the Priest's Leap. But the greatest masses and the loftiest summits are assembled around the celebrated Lakes of Killarney. Mangerton is the most remarkable of the first class, and Carran Tual the highest point, not only here, but in Ireland, being elevated 3410 feet above the level of the sea. Besides the diminution of available land occasioned by such a mountainous occupancy, there is an additional cause of detraction arising from the vast extent of bog which spreads into every part of the county, 150,000 acres of which have been carefully surveyed at the expense of government, and the practicability of draining and cultivating them clearly pointed out by an eminent engineer. Hilly counties are generally well watered, but this unusually so. The Casheen formed by the union of the rivers Feale and Gale, is navigable for a distance of ten miles from the sea. The Lane, or Lune, is the channel through which the Lakes of Killarney discharge their surplus waters, and the Flesk contributes to augment their occasional overflow. The rapid Roughy, which is tributary to the Kenmare and the Mang, and navigable to Castlemain, was the northern boundary of the ancient county Palatine of Desmond. Besides these rivers, Kerry possesses several convenient bays and harbours: those of Dingle, Ventry, and Ballynaskeliga are safe and commodious for vessels of moderate burden; but Valentia, formed by an interposing island, is one of the safest havens in Ireland. Kenmare river, more properly called an estuary, extends many miles inland, and possesses a few small harbours or creeks. Lakes are numerous here, but of course the greater number less noticed, in consequence of the superior beauty of the famous chain of picturesque lakes in the vicinity of Killarney. Lough Cloney, however, has sometimes been compared with its great rivals. Trout and salmon are taken in the various lakes and rivers, and the coast fishery is pursued with success, but the once famous pilchard fishery established along the coast is lost, the fish having forsaken this ground. The nature of the surface is badly calculated for tillage, but supports numerous flocks of cattle. The black-cattle are very small, but remarkably hardy, and much esteemed, and the horses are of a similar character. Cattle and butter constitute the chief exports of the county, and Cork is the great market for both. The mountains in general are composed of a clay-slate, interspersed with quartz, and good roofing-slate is quarried at Valentia, Caher and Begnisl. The lowest districts recline upon a limestone, and here copper-ore, some of the rich ruby kind, has been raised, as at Ross island and elsewhere. Along the coast and inland also, the beautiful stone called Kerry Diamond, is found; the largest ever discovered was met with near Kerry Head. Pearls of some value are occasionally taken in Lough Leine, and the rivers of the county. Frieze, woollen stockings, and some cotton, are the only manufactures. The eight baronies into which the county is divided, are Clannaurice, Corkaguiney, Dunkerron, Glanerought, Iraghtic Connor, Iveragh, Magunihy, and Trughenackmy. The chief towns are Ardfert, anciently a city, Dingle, Kenmare, Cahersiveen, Killarney, Castle-Island, Blennerville, and the borough of Tralee. Iron and copper ores are found in many of the baronies, and the raising of copper and slates, the breeding of small horses and black cattle, the making of butter, and the expenditure of tourists in the summer and autumn, constitute the principal sources of support. There are medicinal springs of some estimation at Dingle, Tralee, Castlemain, Iveragh, and Fells Well. Amongst the curiosities of Kerry may perhaps be reckoned the red deer which range here in their primitive wildness, and the arbutus tree, which is indigenous, although reared with difficulty in lower latitudes. Pillar stones, bearing Ogham inscriptions, cromlechs, pillar-towers, and many remains of the Spanish intruders who infested this coast, are still in preservation. The O'Sullivans, O'Donoughoes, Mac Cartys, and Mac Ellicotts were amongst the principal of the ancient dynasty of this wild and romantic district. Their descendants continue to dwell here, but do not inherit or possess the vast domains of their ancestors. There are two members returned to Parliament for the county, and one for the borough of Tralee.

KERRY, or CERI, co. Montgomery, N.W.
P. T. Newtown (1743) 3 m. E b S. Pop. 2038.

A parish and village in the hundred of Montgomery. The village consists of one handsome street ascending the slope of a gentle hill, and in the centre of the rich, fertile, and beautiful vale of Kerry. The church is a venerable and architectural structure; within are interred the remains of Richard Jones, Esq., a great benefactor to this parish. The living is a vicarage in the diocese of St. David's; valued in K. B. at 17l. 8s. 4d. It was anciently claimed by the Bishop of St. Asaph, but wrested from him by Giraldus Cambrensis. Flannel and baize are manufactured here, and the petty sessions for the upper division of the hundred are held in the village. The area of the parish occupies 22,000 acres of land, 10,000 of which have lately been enclosed under the provisions of the Kerry enclosure act, passed in the year 1797. Richard Jones, Esq., formerly an officer in the navy, and a native of the place, endowed a freeschool in the village, with 120*l.* per annum, for educating, clothing, and apprenticing a certain number of children born in this parish; and the same benevolent person endowed the Sunday-school, with 30*l.* per annum, for instructing and supplying bread and cheese to the parish children.

KERSALL, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Ollerton (137) 5 m. S.E. Pop. 82.

A hamlet in the parish of Kneccall and north division of the wapentake of Thurgarton.

KERSEY, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Hadleigh (64) 2 m. NW b W. Pop. 621.

A parish in the hundred of Cosford; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; certified value 150*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 60*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, King's College, Cambridge. Here was formerly a priory, but whether of Benedictine monks or Augustine canons is uncertain.

KERSWELL ABBOT'S, co. Devon.

P. T. Abbot's Newton (190) 1½ m. S. Pop. 437.

A parish in the hundred of Haytor; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. at 11*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

KERSWELL, KING'S, co. Devon.

P. T. Abbot's Newton (190) 4 m. S.E. b S. Pop. 679.

A parish in the hundred of Haytor; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicarage of St. Marychurch, in the archdeaconry of Totness and diocese of Exeter, not in charge; church ded. to St. Mary; patronage with Marychurch vicarage.

KESGRAVE, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Ipswich (69) 4 m. E b N. Pop. 102.

A parish in the hundred of Carleford; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 40*l.*; patron (1829) Sir J. G. Shaw, Bart.

KESH, or KICH, or CASH, co. Fermanagh, Ulster, I.

Dublin 114 m. NW b N. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Drumkeeran and barony of Surg, situated upon the eastern bank of Lough Erne.

KESSINGLAND, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Lowestoff (114) 6 m. SSW. Pop. 579.

A parish in the hundred of Mutford and Louthland; it formerly had a weekly market, and was a place of much greater importance than at present. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10*l.* The church, which is dedicated to St. Edmund, has a lofty square steeple, containing five bells: the font, which is very ancient, is of an octagonal form, having on each of the eight sides the figure of a saint in a sitting posture, and underneath each of these, the figure of another saint, standing on a pedestal. The old church was considerably larger than the present structure, which was erected about 1694.

KESTON, co. Kent.

P. T. Bromley (10) 5 m. S b E. Pop. 232.

A parish in the hundred of Ruxley, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone; living, & dis. rectory and a peculiar in the diocese of Canterbury; valued in K. B. 6*l.* 10*s.*; patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury. On the west side of Holwood Hill are the remains of an immense Roman encampment; its form is elliptical, but approaching to a circle; it is surrounded by triple ditches and ramparts of vast height and depth, and measures nearly two miles in the outward circumference. At a short distance from the outer ditch is the spring-head of the river Ravensborne, from which the soldiers were supplied with water, and a plain way leading down to it can still be traced.

KESWICK, co. Cumberland.

London 291 m. NW b N. Pop. 1901.

M. D. Sat. Fair, Aug. 2, for leather and woollen yarn.

An ancient market-town and chapelry in the parish of Crosthwaite, ward of Allerdale below Darwent, situated on the eastern side of the vale of Keswick, and on the banks of the lake of Derwentwater, in a most romantic tract of country, encompassed with rocky hills, rich in mineral productions, and watered by the rapid river Greta. On the north rises the lofty mountain of Skiddaw, and near its base is the lake of Bassenthwaite or Broadwater. The town consists of one long street, and the houses are built of stone; but it has somewhat declined from its former importance, in consequence of the exhaustion of the copper-mines in the neighbourhood. It was a place of some note in the beginning of the fourteenth century, as it appears that a customary market was then held here. The manor is now vested in the commissioners and governors of Greenwich Hospital, as part of the forfeited estate of the Earl of Derwentwater; and manor courts are held in the town-hall, at spring and autumn, when a constable is appointed for the government of the town. The parish church of Crosthwaite stands about three-quarters of a mile north-west of the town; and within the parish there are five chapels of ease, besides places of worship for Dissenters. In the town are a freeschool and a workhouse. The manufactures of Keswick consist principally of coarse woollens, but more recently cloth of a finer texture has also been made here. On the Greta are corn-mills, and a forge worked by a water-wheel, for the construction of scythes, spades, and edgetools. Blacklead pencils are made here in considerable quantities; and though the copper-works are extinct, a vein of lead ore, which is very productive, is now worked not far from the lake of Deventwater. There are in the town two museums of mineral specimens and other curiosities, collected by individuals, for public exhibition.

KESWICK, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Norwich (104) 3 m. SSW. Pop. 104.

A parish in the hundred of Humbleyard; living, a rectory, with that of Intwood, in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 5*l*.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) J. Musket, Esq.

KESWICK, co. Norfolk.

P. T. North Walsham (123) 5 m. NE b E. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Bacton and hundred of Tunstead.

KESWICK, EAST, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Wetherby (194) 5 m. SW. Pop. 290.

A township in the parish of Harewood and lower division of the wapentake of Skyrack.

KETLEY, co. Salop.

P. T. Wellington (142) 2 m. E. Pop. with Pa.

A township in the parish of Wellington and hundred of Bradford, celebrated for its iron works. Here is a canal, which communicates with that of Shropshire.

KETTERING, co. Northampton.

London 74 m. NW b N. Pop. 3668. M. D. Sat. Fairs, Thurs. bef. Easter; Fri. bef. Whit-Sunday; Thurs. bef. Oct. 11, for horses and horned cattle, sheep, hogs, and pedlery; Thurs. bef. Dec. 21; and a Friday fortnight market for sheep and cattle.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of Huxloe, situated on a gentle ascent, near a rivulet that runs into the Nen; the inhabitants are chiefly employed in sorting, working, combing, and spinning wool. The living is a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Northampton and diocese of Peterborough; valued in K. B. 34*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*.; patron (1829) Lord Sondes. The church, which is dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul, consists of a nave, north and south aisles, and a chancel, with a handsome tower and spire, containing eight bells and a set of chimes. The tower consists of three stories, in each of which are large windows of several compartments; the angles are flanked with double buttresses; under the embattled parapet runs an ornamented fascia, and at each corner is raised a small hexangular embattled turret; the whole surmounted by a handsome hexagonal crocketed spire, with three windows, diminishing in their size upwards, on the alternate sides. Here are two or three dissenting meeting-houses, a well-endowed freeschool, an almshouse for six poor widows, and the sessions-house for the county. Dr. John Gill was born here in 1697.

KETTERINGHAM, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Wymondham (100) 4 m. E b N. Pop. 175.

A parish in the hundred of Humbleyard; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 6*l*.; ann. val. P. R. 131*l*. 6*s*.; patron (1829) E. Atkins, Esq. The church, which is ded. to St. Peter, contains several handsome monuments, amongst which is one to the memory of William Heveningham, Esq., one of the judges who decided the fate of Charles I. Ketteringham Hall is a handsome seat, pleasantly situated, and surrounded with plantations.

KETTINS, shire of Forfar, S.

P. T. Cupar of Angus (534) 1 m. SE. Pop. 1215.

A parish and village, the former is about five miles in length and four in breadth, exclusive of the lands of Bandirran, which are detached, and surrounded by the shire of Perth, six miles to the south-west. It lies on the north side of the Sidlaw Hills, and is mostly enclosed, well-cultivated, and fruitful. The living is in the presbytery of Meigle and synod of Angus and Mearns; patron, the Crown. The church, which was built in 1768, had formerly six subordinate chapels in different parts of the parish, viz., on the south side of the village, Denhead, South Coston, Muir-Faulds, Pitcur, and at the village of Pettie. The ruins of the ancient castles of Dore and Pitcur are still visible; the latter gave the title of Baron to the family of Haliburton (now extinct). At a place, called Camp Muir, are vestiges of a temporary earthwork, thrown up by Agricola, and many stone coffins and rude urns, containing ashes and bones, have been met with in the vicinity. There is also a Danish monument, ornamented with figures, almost obliterated by age, at Baldowie, in this parish.

KETTLE, shire of Fife, S.

P. T. Falkland (24) 4 m. ENE. Pop. 2040.

A parish and village in the district of Cupar; the former including also the villages of Balmaccolm and Coalton. It contains 5668 Scotch acres, lying in the vale between Kinross and St. Andrew's, and watered by the river Eden, on the banks of which the soil is fruitful; while the uplands afford excellent pasture for cattle. Of freestone, limestone, ironstone, and muirstone, there are inexhaustible quarries; coal also of a very superior quality is obtained here; and many of the inhabitants are occupied in the manufacture of coarse linen. The living is in the presbytery of Cupar and synod of Fife; patron, the Crown. The church was erected in 1636. Within this parish are two ancient circular camps, several barrows, and the remains of the castle of Clatto, once the residence of the Seatons, and a place of some strength and importance.

KETTLEBASTON, or KETTLIBARSTON, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Blideston (63) 2 m. NW b W. Pop. 190.

A parish in the hundred of Cosford: living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Sudbury and diocese of Norwich; valued in

K E T

K. B. 13l. 16s. 8d.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron (1829) the Rev. Thomas Fiske.

KETTLEBURGH, co. Suffolk.

P. T. Framlingham (87) 2 m. SW.
Pop. 368.

A parish in the hundred of Loes; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 16l.; church ded. to St. Andrew; patron (1829) the Earl of Gosford.

KETTLEBY-UPON-EYE, or KETTLEBY BELER, co. Leicester.

P. T. Melton Mowbray (105) 1½ m. SW.
Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Melton Mowbray and hundred of Framland.

KETTLESBY, or KETTESBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Spilsby (132) 6½ m. NNW.
Pop. with South Ormesby.

A parish in the hundred of Hill, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory with that of South Ormesby, in the archdeaconry and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; church ded. to St. Margaret; patron (1829) C. B. Massingberd, Esq.

KETTLES HULME, co. Pal. of Chester.

P. T. Macclesfield (167) 7 m. NE.
Pop. 354.

A township in the parish of Prestbury and hundred of Macclesfield.

KETTLESTON, co. Norfolk.

P. T. Fakenham (109) 4 m. ENE. Pop. 230.

A parish in the hundred of Gallow; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Norfolk and diocese of Norwich; valued in K. B. 10l.; church ded. to All Saints; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

KETTLETHORPE, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Lincoln (132) 9 m. WNW. Pop. 309.

A parish in the west division of the wapentake of Well, parts of Lindsey; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Stow and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 28l.; church ded. to St. Peter and St. Paul; patron (1829) Sir W. A. Ingilby, Bart.

KETTLEWELL, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Skipton (216) 14 m. N.
Pop. with Starborton, 663. Fairs, July 6, and Sept. 2, for sheep.

A parish in the east division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross, formerly a market-town; it is situated at the foot of a steep hill, which, together with the village of Starborton, was in 1686 nearly destroyed by a flood. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 5l.; ann. val. P. R. 91l. 0s. 6d.; patron (1829) R. Tennant, Esq. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, was rebuilt in 1820, the original having been of very great antiquity, and much dilapidated.

KETTON, co. Rutland.

P. T. Stamford (89) 4 m. WSW. Pop. 707.

A parish in the hundred of East; living, dis. vicarage with the curacy of Tixover and a peculiar in the diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 8l.; ann. val. P. R. 107l.; church

K E W

ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Prebendary of Kelton, in Lincoln Cathedral.

KEVERNE, St., co. Cornwall.

P. T. Falmouth (29) 9 m. S b W. Pop. 2305.

A parish in the east division of the hundred of Kerrier; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 18l. 11s. 5½d.; patron (1829) the Rev. James Pascoe.

KEW, co. Surrey.

London 6 m. W. Pop. 683.

A village and parish in the hundred of Kingston, agreeably situated on the southern bank of the Thames. In a court-roll of the manor of Richmond, in the time of Henry VII., this place is called Kay-hough, and in subsequent records Kay-o, probably from a quay on the hough, or low ground, by the river side; and hence its present appellation doubtless originated. This place has been chiefly distinguished as the site of a royal mansion, which was the residence of Frederick, Prince of Wales, who held the property on lease. The freehold was purchased by George III., who enlarged the gardens belonging to the mansion, and erected, from the designs of Sir William Chambers and Mr. James Wyatt, a number of fanciful structures in different styles of architecture, which, however may be deemed mere summer-houses. There are only two which are worthy of notice, the Orangery and the Pagoda, which is 163 feet high, and was open to the public, until the absurdity of the visitors in carving their names on every plain piece of wood they could find, produced an order against their admission. Besides the garden belonging to the palace, Kew has long been celebrated for its botanic garden, which was enriched by George III. with a vast multitude and variety of exotic trees, shrubs, and plants, from every quarter of the globe. A catalogue of the plants in these gardens was published by Sir John Hill, under the title of Hortus Kewensis; and a much more elaborate and valuable work, with a similar title, was composed by Mr. Aiton in 1789; besides which, this collection has been made the subject of botanical publications, by L'Heritier de Bruttelle, and others. The old palace, in which Queen Charlotte died and all the royal family were brought up, a plain brick building, is still standing and occasionally visited by the royal family. An unfinished palace, built by Mr. Wyatt in conformity with the taste of George III., has since his death been pulled down. Kew was formerly a hamlet of the parish of Kingston; but in 1769 it was constituted by act of Parliament a distinct parish. The living is a vicarage with Petersham in the archdeaconry of Surrey and diocese of Winchester; certified value 5l.; patron, King's College, Cambridge. The church, ded. to St. Anne, is a brick structure, built and consecrated in 1714, on ground given to the parish by Queen Anne. It was designed as a chapel-of-ease to Kingston; and was erected instead of another, which had been originally founded as a private chapel, in 1522. Among the persons interred here are Joshua Kirkby, F.R.S., who died in 1774; Gainsborough, the celebrated landscape painter; Zoffani, the painter; and Jeremiah Meyer, R.A., who died in 1789. Here is a charity-school, founded by Dorothy Lady Capel, who died in 1721; and also another seminary, called the King's Freeschool, founded and endowed in 1821, and the building belonging to it erected in 1824. The approach to this village, from the great western road, is by a stone bridge of seven arches over the Thames, besides a land-arch on each side, which was erected in 1789, and is now the property of a private individual. Kew is lighted with gas from Brentford.

KEY

KEW, ST., co. Cornwall.

P. T. Wade Bridge (230) $3\frac{1}{2}$ m. NNE. Pop. 1218.

A parish in the hundred of Trigg; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 19*l.* 11*s.* 0*d.*; patron (1829) Thomas Pitt, Esq.

KEW STOKE, co. Somerset.

P. T. Axbridge (130) 9 m. NW b N. Pop. 429.

A parish in the hundred of Winterstoke; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Wells and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 9*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*; church ded. to St. Paul; patron, the Lord Chancellor.

KEXBOROUGH, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Barnsley (172) 4 m. NW b W. Pop. 440.

A township in the parish of Darton and upper division of the wapentake of Staincross.

KEXBY, co. Lincoln.

P. T. Gainsborough (140) $5\frac{1}{4}$ m. SE b E. Pop. 171.

A township in the parish of Upton and east division of the wapentake of Well, parts of Lindsey.

KEXBY, E. R. co. York.

P. T. York (160) $5\frac{1}{2}$ m. E b N. Pop. 149.

A township in the parish of Catton and wapentake of Ouse and Derwent.

KEYFENLYS, or KEYFENLEECE, co. Radnor, S. W.

P. T. Rhayader (181) 10 m. Pop. 371.

A parish in the hundred of Keyfenlys; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of St. David's; valued in K. B. 8*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*; patron, the Bishop of St. David's.

KEYFORD, LITTLE, co. Somerset.

P. T. Frome (103) 1 m. SW. Pop. with Pa.

A manor in the parish and hundred of Frome, long the property of the ancient family of Twyniho.

KEYHAM, or KEAME, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (96) 6 m. E b N. Pop. 210.

A township and chapelry in the parish of

KEY

Rothley and hundred of East Goscote; living, a curacy, subordinate to the vicar of Rothley and a peculiar of Rothley; certified value 50*l.*; chapel ded. to All Saints; patron, the Vicar of Rothley.

KEYMER, or KYMERE, co. Sussex.

P. T. Hurst Pierrepont (48) 2 m. ESE. Pop. 679.

A parish in the hundred of Buttinghill, rape of Lewes; living, a curacy, subordinate to the rectory of Clayton, in the archdeaconry of Lewes and diocese of Chichester, not in charge; patronage with Clayton rectory.

KEYNE, ST., co. Cornwall.

P. T. Liskeard (224) 3 m. S. Pop. 153.

A parish in the hundred of West; living, a dis. rectory in the archdeaconry of Cornwall and diocese of Exeter; valued in K. B. 5*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.*; ann. val. P. R. 106*l.* 15*s.*; patron (1829) the Rev. W. Cory.

KEYNSHAM, co. Somerset.

Pop. 8086.

A hundred, situated on the northern extremity of the county, and bounded by the river Avon, which separates it from Gloucestershire; it contains sixteen parishes, including the town from which it takes its name.

KEYNSHAM, co. Somerset.

London 114 m. W. Pop. 1761. M. D. Thurs. Fairs, March 24, and Aug. 15, for cattle and cheese.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of the same name, situated on the south bank of the river Avon, over which is the county bridge, built of stone, and consisting of fifteen arches, leading to Gloucester; and another over the river Chew, which here falls into the Avon, leading to Bath. It is supposed to have derived its name from Keyna, daughter of Braganus, prince of the province of Wales, now called Brecknockshire, who is said to have been the foundress of the town, the site of which was previously a wild forest. The town is built upon a rock, replete with fossil ammonite, and consists of one street, nearly a mile in length. Here was formerly a considerable clothing-trade, which has now almost totally declined; but the poorer inhabitants are employed in spinning for those of Bradford and Shepton. Its chief trade now consists in malting. The petty session for the hundred are holden here. The living is a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Bath and diocese of Bath and Wells; valued in K. B. 11*l.* 19*s.* 7*d.*; patron (1829) the Duke of Buckingham. The church, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, is a large, handsome building, with a fine lofty tower, situated nearly in the centre of the town; it contains many ancient and curious monuments, and was appropriated to an abbey of black canons, which formerly existed here, and was founded by William, Earl of Gloucester. Here also is a good charity-school, where the children of the poor receive the rudiments of education.

KEYNSTON TARRANT, co. Dorset.

P. T. Blandford Forum (103) 3½ m. ESE. Pop. 220.

A parish in the hundred of Pimperne, Blandford division; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Bristol; valued in K. B. 71. 18s. 8½d.; church ded. to All Saints; patron (1829) Charles Hiley, Esq.

KEYSOE, co. Bedford.

P. T. Kimbolton (63) 4 m. SSW. Pop. 640.

A parish in the hundred of Stodden; living, a dis. vicarage in the archdeaconry of Bedford and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 81.; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, Trinity College, Cambridge.

KEYSTON, co. Huntingdon.

P. T. Kimbolton (63) 6 m. NW b N. Pop. 196.

A parish in the hundred of Leightonstone; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Huntingdon and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 291. 5s.; church ded. to St. John the Baptist; patron (1829) Earl Fitzwilliam.

KEYTHORPE, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market Harborough (63) 9 m. N b E. Pop. 26.

A liberty in the parish of Tugby and hundred of Gartree.

KEYWORD, co. Nottingham.

P. T. Nottingham (124) 7 m. SSE. Pop. 454.

A parish in the north division of the wapentake of Rushcliffe; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Nottingham and diocese of York; valued in K. B. 71. 5s.; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron (1829) Lord Ranelagh.

KIBBLESTONE, co. Stafford.

P. T. Stone (111) m. adjacent. Pop. 1030.

A liberty in the parish of Stone and south division of the hundred of Pirehill.

KIBBLESWORTH, co. Pal. of Durham.

P. T. Gatshead (272) 4 m. S b W. Pop. 237.

A township in the parish of Lamesley and middle division of Chester ward.

KIBWORTH, BEAUCHAMP, or LOWER, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market Harborough (63) 6 m. NW b N. Pop. 1372.

A parish in the hundred of Gartree, it formerly had a market which has long been disused; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln; valued in K. B. 391. 15s.; patron, Merton College, Oxford. The church, which is dedicated to St. Wilfrid, is a spacious edifice, consisting of a nave, aisles, chancel, two porches, and a steeple fifty-three yards in height. Here is a free grammar-school founded and supported on a liberal plan. The petty sessions for the hundred of Gartree are holden here occasionally.

KIBWORTH, HARCOURT, or UPPER, co. Leicester.

P. T. Market Harborough (63) 5½ m. NW. Pop. 306.

A parish in the hundred of Gartree; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; patron, Merton College, Oxford. Here is an ancient encampment, consisting of a large mount surrounded by a single ditch.

KID, co. Mayo, Connaught, I.

Pop. with Pa.

An island of the parish of Kilcommon and barony of Erris, off Binwi Head, and to the north of the entrance of Broad Haven.

KIDBROOK, co. Kent.

Pop. 73.

A liberty in the hundred of Blackheath, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone.

KIDDERMINSTER, co. Worcester.

London 126 m. NW b N. Pop. 15,290.

M. D. Thurs. Fairs, Palm-Mon., for cattle, sheep, and pedlery; Holy Thurs.; June 20; Sept. 4; and Nov. 26; for horned cattle, horses, cheese, linen, and woollen-cloths.

A large and populous market and corporation town, having separate jurisdiction, but locally situated in the lower division of the hundred of Halfshire. It stands on the river Stour, not far from its confluence with the Severn; and close to the town passes the Staffordshire and Worcestershire canal. Members were returned to Parliament for this place in the reign of Edward I., but the privilege was lost by disuse. A charter of incorporation was granted by Charles I. in the twelfth year of his reign, the officers acting under which are a high bailiff, a recorder, twelve aldermen, and twenty-five common-councilmen; who are empowered to make by-laws for regulating the commerce, government, and police of the town. The bailiff acts as justice of the peace and quorum, and sessions are regularly held for the trial of causes arising within the jurisdiction of the corporation. The lord of the manor also holds a court-baron; besides which there is a court of requests held once in three weeks for the recovery of debts under forty shillings. The livings are a vicarage and a curacy; the former valued in K. B. 301. 15s. 7d.; the latter not in charge; in the archdeaconry and diocese of Worcester; patrons, Lord Foley and the Vicar of Kidderminster. The church, ded. to All Saints, is a spacious and venerable Gothic structure, with a lofty tower. There is another episcopal place of worship called St. George's Chapel, a handsome edifice in the Gothic or pointed style of architecture, erected in 1823, at the estimated expense of 16,4011., under the sanction of the commissioners for building new churches and chapels. Over the altar is suspended a beautiful specimen of carpet weaving, exhibiting a picture of the Descent from the Cross, interesting as an example of the progress of arts and manufactures in the town; but it is to be lamented that this piece of modern tapestry has been cut and damaged, but by whom or from what motive could not be discovered. Here are chapels for the Independents, Wesleyan Methodists, Unitarians, and Baptists. At the east end of the old church, adjoining the choir, is a room appropriated to the free grammar-school, and in the town are two national schools and an infant school, besides which there are Sunday schools connected with the church, and others supported by the dissenters. Among the other charitable institutions are twelve almshouses, and a dispensary for the gratuitous supply of medicines to the sick. The town consists of ranges of buildings extending nearly a mile from north to south-east, and about half a mile in breadth; the streets are well paved and lighted with gas, and are kept clean by means of underground sewers, which prevent in some degree the inconvenience to which the inhabitants of the lower streets were formerly exposed from inundations. The town-hall is a large and handsome brick building, part of which is occasionally used as a prison; and there is a council-chamber for meetings of the corporation, beneath which is an open space for the meat market. Kidderminster was noted in the reign of Henry VIII. for the manufacture of broad cloth, afterwards for that of linsey-woolsey, and more recently for the making of crapes, bombazines, and poplins. In 1735, the manufacture of Scotch carpeting was introduced, and subsequently that of cut carpets was established, which sort of goods having been invented here has obtained the distinction of Kidderminster carpets. Brussels carpets are likewise made here in a style of excellence highly creditable to the skill and taste of the Kidderminster manufacturers, whose productions are said to be unrivalled for elegance of design and permanence and brilliancy of colour. In 1772, the number of the looms for weaving carpets used in the town and suburbs was about 250; but since that period the number has greatly increased. There is a considerable market for the sale of corn, held by charter on Thursdays; and a market on Saturdays, for butcher's meat and other provisions, has been established within a few years.

KIDDINGTON NETHER, co. Oxford.

P. T. Neat Eastone (80) 3 m. ESE.
Pop. with Upper Kiddington.

A parish in the hundred of Wootton, pleasantly situated on the river Glyne, which separates it from Upper Kiddington; living, a rectory in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford; valued in K. B. 71. 9s. 4½d.; patron (1829) Viscount Dillon. The church, which is dedicated to St. Nicholas, is a very ancient structure. Here is an ancient mansion, situated on a gentle eminence, and pleasantly ornamented with an alternation of wood and water. In the garden is a font, in which it is said Edward the Confessor was baptized at Islip; it is of an octangular shape ornamented on the outside by tracery-work.

KIDDINGTON, UPPER, co. Oxford.

P. T. Neat Eastone (89) 3 m. SE & E.
Pop. with Nether Kiddington, 252.

A division in the parish of Kiddington and hundred of Chadlington. Here is the ruin of the old parochial cross, comprising parts of the shaft and base.

KID HALL, W. R. co. York.

P. T. Leeds (189) 8 m. NE.
Pop. with Potterton, 124.

A hamlet in the parish of Berwick-in-Elmet lower division of the wapentake of Skyrack. KIDLAND, co. Northumberland.

P. T. Rothbury (303) 12 m. NW & W. Pop. 62.

An extra-parochial district in the west division of Coqueldale ward; this mountainous district is most pleasantly situated and surrounded by fertile pastures; most of the surrounding hills are covered with rich verdure, and many of them are of a conical form; the glens which divide these eminences display a great variety of bold, sublime, and picturesque scenery. Here are the remains of some ancient British intrenchments.

KIDLINGTON, co. Oxford.

P. T. Woodstock (02) 4 m. ESE. Pop. 1153.

A parish in the hundred of Wootton; living, a vicarage in the archdeaconry and diocese of Oxford, not in charge; church ded. to St. Mary; patron annexed to Headship of Exeter College, Oxford, without institution.

KIDWELLY, co. Carmarthen, S. W.

London 226 m. W. Carmarthen 10 m. S.
Pop. 1733. M. D. Tues. and Frid. Fairs,
May 24; July 22; and Oct. 29; for cattle and pedlery.

A market-town and parish in the hundred of the same name, situated on the banks of the river Gwendraeth, which, about a mile and a half hence, falls into another, called Gwendraeth-Fawr; from this junction, and the circumstance of their afterwards falling into Carmarthen Bay, the town derives its name, as the Welsh word Cidwelli signifies to go into one place. The town is divided into old and new, by the river, and united by a bridge; the former, now in a decayed state, was anciently defended by a strong wall; and over one of its old gates is the present town hall and prison. On an elevated spot are the ruins of an extensive castle, consisting of four uniform towers, said to have been erected in 1189, by Rhys, Prince of Wales. It was formerly noted for its clothing manufacture, but its chief trade is now in coals, raised about four miles hence, which are conveyed by a canal to the vessels lying in the docks, where there is also a very commodious quay. The manufactures are in iron and tin, there being an iron-foundry of considerable extent in the town, and a tin-mill at about a mile distant; the latter exports a large quantity of tin annually to all parts of the kingdom. The port has been latterly much improved by Lord Cawdor. The town, which is within the jurisdiction of the Duchy of Lancaster, was incorporated in the reign of Henry VI., and is governed by a mayor, recorder, twelve aldermen, and twelve common-councilmen. The mayor holds two courts for the recovery of debts not exceeding 100*l*. The living is a vicarage in the archdeaconry of Carmarthen and diocese of St. David's; valued in K. B. 71. 10s.; ann. val. P. R. 807. patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church is a very handsome structure, with a fine steeple 153 feet high. Here also are two chapels for dissenters, and a good grammar-school.

KIFTSGATE, co. Gloucester.

Pop. 14,194.

A hundred, situated on the northern side of the county, containing thirty-seven parishes, including the towns of Chipping Campden and Winchcombe.

KIGHBEARE, co. Devon.

P. T. Oakhampton (195) 2 m. NW. Pop. 116.

A hamlet in the parish of Oakhampton and hundred of Black Torrington.

KIL, generally as a prefix to places in Ireland. See Kill.

KILBAGIE, shire of Clackmannan, S.

Edinburgh 28 m. W b N. Pop. with Pa.

A village in the parish of Clackmannan situated on the northern coast of the Firth of Forth, having a small harbour, or port. On the introduction of threshing-mills into this shire, in 1787, one was erected here, and set in motion by water. There is also an extensive distillery of whiskey at this place.

KILBARCHAN, shire of Renfrew, S.

P. T. Paisley (50) 3 m. W b S. Pop. 4213.
Fair, 1st Wed. in July.

A considerable village and parish, the former of which, a neat well-built place, is inhabited chiefly by manufacturers; and has in the immediate vicinity several extensive bleach-fields. The parish is about nine miles in length, averaging four in breadth is mostly enclosed, well-cultivated, and ornamented with many plantations of recent growth. Coal, limestone, freestone, and whinstone, are abundant, the former of which is found curiously embedded between strata of the two latter, the whin uppermost. The living is in the presbytery of Paisley and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, Macdowal, of Milliken. The church is a commodious structure, rebuilt in 1724. There are also a relief meeting-house, and three benefit societies. The celebrated reformer, John Knox, was descended from an ancient family, who long resided in the now ruined castle of Ranfurly, in this parish; but whose surname was derived from the lands of Knock, in the parish of Renfrew, of which they were previously the proprietors.

KILBERRY, shire of Argyll, S.

P. T. Tarbert (140) 12½ m. SW b W. Pop. 1067.

A parish, united to that of Kilcalmonell, in the district of Kintyre, lying along the coast of the Atlantic Ocean. The surface is partly arable, but chiefly muir and heath, upon which various kinds of game are plentiful; the fisheries here are very productive. The living is in the presbytery of Kintyre and synod of Argyll; patron, the Duke of Argyll. The church service is performed both in Gaelic and English. In the neighbourhood are the remains of ancient forti-which pieces of old brass armour have been found.

KILBIRNIE, shire of Ayr, S.

P. T. Beith (02) 2 m. SW. Pop. 1333.

A parish and village in the district of Cunningham, the latter of which is chiefly inhabited by silk manufacturers. This is an extensive tract, in general well cultivated, and very fertile, one-third, however, of the surface consists of muir, moss, and hills, upon which game is found in great plenty; and on one side of the parish is a fine loch, about two miles in length and one in breadth, abounding with pike and tench. The living is in the presbytery of Irvine and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, the Earl of Eglintoun. The castle of Kilbirnie, which once belonged to the monastery of Kilwinning, and was long the seat of the Crawfurds, Viscounts Garnock, is now a heap of ruins, having been burned down about eighty years ago.

KILBOURNE, co. Middlesex.

London 6 m. NW b W. Pop. with Pa.

A hamlet in the parish of Hampstead and Holborn division, of the hundred of Ossulston, was at one time celebrated for its mineral spring. Here was formerly a priory, of which there are not at present any remains. This place has been rapidly increasing in extent and population for some years past. Coldbourne stream, which rises near Westend, Hampstead, and from which this place takes its name, passes through Kilbourne to Bayswater; and after supplying the Serpentine reservoir in Hyde Park, flows into the Thames, at Ranelagh.

KILBRANDON, shire of Argyll, S.

P. T. Oban (126) 11 m. SSW. Pop. 1402.

A parish, in union with that of Kilchattan, in the district of Lorn, bounded on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, and including the Isle of Easdale, with several smaller islands, celebrated for their quarries of excellent slate. The coast abounds with various kinds of fish, and is indented by many good harbours. The surface is rather mountainous, and mostly appropriated to pasturage, though the valleys consist of arable land, well cultivated and productive. The living is in the presbytery of Lorn and synod of Argyll; patron, the Duke of Argyll. The Christian Knowledge Society have established, and maintain two schools here.

KILBRIDE, shire of Argyll, S.

P. T. Oban (126) 3 m. S. Pop. 1046.

A parish, in the district of Lorn, bounded on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, the coast of which is high and rocky. The surface is rugged and mountainous, and game is abundant. The living is in the presbytery of Lorn and synod of Argyll; patron, the Duke of Argyll. The church is much dilapidated.

KILBRIDE, or KILL-BRIDE, shire of Bute, S.

P. T. Largs (79½) 18 m. SSW. Pop. 2714.

parish in the Isle of Arran (which see). It is fourteen miles in length, seven in breadth, and forms the northern portion of that island. The soil is admirably adapted for the culture of potatoes, which are the principal food of the inhabitants; and the air was formerly considered so mild and pure, as to be efficacious in restoring consumptive constitutions. The lofty mountain, Goatfield, is in this parish, and is noted for containing many beautiful specimens of Scotch pebbles. Freestone, limestone, marl, and blind-coal, are plentiful here; and upon the coast, which is indented by the two fine harbours, Lambhach and Loch Ransa; the fisheries are very productive, that of herrings in particular. The living is in the presbytery of Kintyre and synod of Argyll; patron, the Duke of Hamilton. The church is dedicated to St. Bridget. Broadwick Castle, which stands upon a well-wooded eminence, overlooking the sea, on the east side of the parish, was an ancient fortress, held by the English, in 1306, when it was surprised by the Scots, and the garrison put to the sword; it was demolished in 1456, by the Earl of Ross, and was afterwards rebuilt by James V., and garrisoned during the protectorate of Cromwell.

KILBRIDE, EAST, shire of Lanark, S.

P. T. Glasgow (43) 8 m. SE. Pop. 3485. Sheep Marts, last Frid. in May, and two first Frid. in June (O. S.) Fairs, 4th Tues. in June; 2d Tues. in Aug.; and 2d Tues. in Nov.; for cows.

A parish and village in the Middle ward, the latter of which was erected into a burgh of barony, in the reign of Anne, and had a weekly market, now disused. Most of the inhabitants are employed in the manufacture of cotton for the Glasgow merchants; and here is a relief meeting-house. The parish, united with that of Torrance in 1589, is about ten miles in length, and averages three and a half in breadth; the greater portion of it is arable; and the remainder affords good pasturage for sheep. Limestone and ironstone abound, and there are some coal-mines in the vicinity; petrifications also, with various other natural curiosities, are frequently met with here. The living is in the presbytery of Hamilton and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, the Crown. The church was rebuilt in 1774. A fine silver Faustina and other coins have been found on Castle Hill, the site of a Roman fort, near the river Clyde. This was the birth-place of the celebrated brothers, Dr. William Hunter, and John Hunter, the eminent anatomist.

KILBRIDE, WEST, shire of Ayr, S.

P. T. Largs (79½) 8 m. S. Pop. 1371. *

A parish in the district of Cunninghame, stretching six miles along the Firth of Clyde, and about three miles in breadth. The face of the country is mountainous, and the soil rather barren than otherwise; but it is finely diversified with fine natural woods, particularly surrounding the romantic glen of Southennan, the wild beauty of which is enhanced by a series of cascades, and the ruins of an old chapel. Ardneel Bank is also worthy of admiration, as a delightfully sequestered spot. In Auld Hill, are quarries of excellent millstone, and its summit is crowned with the remains of a circular fort. Here also stood a castle of the Killmarnock family; and the ancient castle of Portincross, near which one of the ships of the Spanish Armada was wrecked in 1588, was once the occasional residence of the kings of Scotland. The living is in the presbytery of Irvine and synod of Glasgow and Ayr; patron, the Earl of Eglintoun, who is the proprietor of the House of Southannan, formerly belonging to the Semples. The church is remarkable only for its mean appearance. A recent influx of strangers have considerably increased the population of the parish. Robert Simpson, M. D., late professor of mathematics, in the University of Glasgow, and translator of Euclid, was born here.

KILBUCHO, shire of Peebles, S.

P. T. Broughton (27) 3 m. SW. Pop. 328.

A parish four miles and a half from east to west, by three from north to south, and comprising about 4500 acres. The surface exhibits two parallel ridges of hills, producing only heath and grass, with a valley between them, and another to the northward, consisting of arable land in a state of cultivation. Living, in the presbytery of Biggar and synod of Lothian and Tweeddale; patron, the Dickson family. The church is dedicated to St. Bega. The hill of Carden rises to the height of 1400 feet above the level of the sea, and on that of Corserine the English pitched their camp just before the battle of Biggar. A monastery once existed here, and on the north-east side of the parish is a tumulus, apparently in connexion with others to be met with in the adjoining parishes.

KILBURN, co. Derby.

P. T. Derby (126) 7 m. NNE. Pop. 408.

A township in the parish of Horsley and hundred of Morleston and Litchurch.

KILBURN, N. R. co. York.

P. T. Eastgould (213) 7 m. N b' W. Pop. of Pa. 530. Of To. 500.

A parish and township within the liberty of Rippon; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Cleveland and diocese of York, of the certified value of 20*l.*; ann. val. P. R. 65*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary; patron, the Archbishop of York.

KILBY, co. Leicester.

P. T. Leicester (98) 6 m. SSE. Pop. 400.

A parish in the hundred of Guthlaxton; living, a curacy in the archdeaconry of Leicester and diocese of Lincoln, not in charge; ann. val. P. R. 44*l.*; church ded. to St. Mary Magdalen; patron (1829) Sir H. Halford, Bart.

KILCAIGOW, shire of Lanark, S.

P. T. Lanark (32) 3 m. N. Pop. with Pa.

A small village in the parish of Carluke, and in the upper ward. The Roman Watling Street passed here, and is yet distinctly visible on Kilcaigow Law.

KILCALMONELL, shire of Argyll, S.P. T. Tarbert (140) $\frac{1}{2}$ m. W. Pop. 2511.

